PREFACE

HUMAN nature is not altogether unchanging but it does remain sufficiently constant to justify the study of ancient classics. The problems of human life and destiny have not been superseded by the striking achievements of science and technology. The solutions offered, though conditioned in their modes of expression by their time and environment, have not been seriously affected by the march of scientific knowledge and criticism. The responsibility laid on man as a rational being, to integrate himself, to relate the present to the past and the future, to live in time as well as in eternity, has become acute and urgent. The Upaniṣads, though remote in time from us, are not remote in thought. They disclose the working of the primal impulses of the human soul which rise above the differences of race and of geographical position. At the core of all historical religions there are fundamental types of spiritual experience though they are expressed with different degrees of clarity. The Upaniṣads illustrate and illuminate these primary experiences.

These are really the thoughts of all men in all ages and lands; they are not original with me. If they are not yours as much as mine, they are nothing or next to nothing,' said Walt Whitman. The Upaniṣads deal with questions which arise when men begin to reflect seriously and attempt answers to them which are not very different, except in their approach and emphasis from what we are now inclined to accept. This does not mean that the message of the Upaniṣads, which is as true today as ever, commits us to the different hypotheses about the structure of the world and the physiology of man. We must make a distinction between the message of the Upaniṣads and their mythology. The latter is liable to correction by advances in science. Even this mythology becomes intelligible if we place ourselves as far as possible at the viewpoint of those who conceived it. Those parts of the Upaniṣads which seem to us today to be trivial, tedious and almost unmeaning, should have had value and significance at the time they were composed.

Anyone who reads the Upaniṣads in the original Sanskrit will be caught up and carried away by the elevation, the poetry, the compelling fascination of the many utterances through which they lay bare the secret and sacred relations of the human soul and the Ultimate Reality. When we read them, we cannot help being impressed by the exceptional ability, earnestness and ripeness of mind of those who wrestled with these ultimate questions. These souls who tackled these problems remain still and will remain for all time in essential harmony with the highest ideals of civilisation.

The Upaniṣads are the foundations on which the beliefs of millions of human beings, who were not much inferior to ourselves, are based. Nothing is more sacred to man than his own history. At least as memorials of the past, the Upaniṣads are worth our attention.

A proper knowledge of the texts is an indispensable aid to the understanding of the Upaniṣads. There are parts of the Upaniṣads which repel us by their repetitiveness and irrelevance to our needs, philosophical and religious. But if we are to understand their ideas, we must know the atmosphere in which they worked. We must not judge ancient writings from our standards. We need not condemn our fathers for having been what they were or ourselves for being somewhat different from them. It is our task to relate them to their environment, to bridge distances of time and space and separate the transitory from the permanent.

There is a danger in giving only carefully chosen extracts. We are likely to give what is easy to read and omit what is difficult, or give what is agreeable to our views and omit what is disagreeable. It is wise to study the Upaniṣads as a whole, their striking insights as well as their commonplace assumptions. Only such a study will be historically valuable. I have therefore given in full the classical Upaniṣads, those commented on or mentioned by Śaṅkara. The other Upaniṣads are of a later date and are sectarian in character. They represent the popular gods, Śiva, Viṣṇu, Śakti, as manifestations of the Supreme Reality. They are not parts of the original Veda, are of much later origin and are not therefore as authoritative as the classical Upaniṣads. If they are all to be included, it would be difficult to find a Publisher for so immense a work. I have therefore selected a few other Upaniṣads, some of those to which references are made by the great teachers, Śaṅkara and Rāmānuja.

In the matter of translation and interpretation, I owe a heavy debt, directly and indirectly, not only to the classical commentators but also to the modern writers who have worked on the subject. I have profited by their tireless labours. The careful reader will find, I hope, that a small advance in a few places at least has been made in this translation towards a better understanding of the texts.

Passages in verse are not translated into rhyme as the padding and inversion necessary for observing a metrical pattern take away a great deal from the dignity and conciseness of the original.

It is not easy to render Sanskrit religious and philosophical classics into English for each language has its own characteristic genius. Language conveys thought as well as feeling. It falls short of its full power and purpose, if it fails to communicate the emotion as fully as it conveys the idea. Words convey ideas but they do not always express moods. In the Upaniṣads we find harmonies of speech which excite the emotions and stir the soul. I am afraid that it has not been possible for me to produce in the English translation the richness of melody, the warmth of spirit, the power of enchantment that appeals to the ear, heart and mind. I have tried to be faithful to the originals, sometimes even at the cost of elegance. I have given the texts with all their nobility of sound and the feeling of the numinous.

For the classical Upaniṣads the text followed is that commented on by Śaṅkara. A multitude of variant readings of the texts exist, some of them to be found in the famous commentaries, others in more out of the way versions. The chief variant readings are mentioned in the notes. As my interest is philosophical rather than linguistic, I have not discussed them. In the translation, words which are omitted or understood in Sanskrit or are essential to complete the grammatical structure are inserted in brackets.

We cannot bring to the study of the Upaniṣads virgin minds which are untouched by the views of the many generations of scholars who have gone before us. Their influence may work either directly or indirectly. To be aware of this limitation, to estimate it correctly is of great importance in the study of ancient texts. The classical commentators represent in their works the great oral traditions of interpretation which have been current in their time. Centuries of careful thought lie behind the exegetical traditions as they finally took shape. It would be futile to neglect the work of the commentators as there are words and passages in the Upaniṣads of which we could make little sense without the help of the commentators.

We do not have in the Upaniṣads a single well-articulated system of thought. We find in them a number of different strands which could be woven together in a single whole by sympathetic interpretation. Such an account involves the expression of opinions which can always be questioned. Impartiality does not consist in a refusal to form opinions or in a futile attempt to conceal them. It consists in rethinking the thoughts of the past, in understanding their environment, and in relating them to the intellectual and spiritual needs of our own time. While we should avoid the attempt to read into the terms of the past the meanings of the present, we cannot overlook the fact that certain problems are the same in all ages. We must keep in mind the Buddhist saying: 'Whatever is not adapted to such and such persons as are to be taught cannot be called a teaching.' We must remain sensitive to the prevailing currents of thought and be prepared, as far as we are able, to translate the universal truth into terms intelligible to our audience, without distorting their meaning. It would scarcely be possible to exaggerate the difficulty of such a task, but it has to be undertaken. If we are able to make the seeming abstractions of the Upaniṣads flame anew with their ancient colour and depth, if we can make them pulsate with their old meaning, they will not appear to be altogether irrelevant to our needs, intellectual and spiritual. The notes are framed in this spirit.

The Upaniṣads which base their affirmations on spiritual experience are invaluable for us, as the traditional props of faith, the infallible scripture, miracle and prophecy are no longer available. The irreligion of our times is largely the product of the supremacy of religious technique over spiritual life. The study of the Upaniṣads may help to restore to fundamental things of religion that reality without which they seem to be meaningless.

Besides, at a time when moral aggression is compelling people to capitulate to queer ways of life, when vast experiments in social structure and political organisation are being made at enormous cost of life and suffering, when we stand perplexed and confused before the future with no clear light to guide our way, the power of the human soul is the only refuge. If we resolve to be governed by it, our civilisation may enter upon its most glorious epoch. There are many 'dissatisfied children of the spirit of the west,' to use Romain Rolland's phrase, who are oppressed that the universality of her great thoughts has been defamed for ends of violent action, that they are trapped in a blind alley and are savagely crushing each other out of existence. When an old binding culture is being broken, when ethical standards are dissolving, when we are being aroused out of apathy or awakened out of unconsciousness, when there is in the air general ferment, inward stirring, cultural crisis, then a high tide of spiritual agitation sweeps over peoples and we sense in the horizon something novel, something unprecedented, the beginnings of a spiritual renaissance. We are living in a world of freer cultural intercourse and wider world sympathies. No one can ignore his neighbour who is also groping in this world of sense for the world unseen. The task set to our generation is to reconcile the varying ideals of the converging cultural patterns and help them to sustain and support rather than combat and destroy one another. By this process they are transformed from within and the forms that separate them will lose their exclusivist meaning and signify only that unity with their own origins and inspirations.

The study of the sacred books of religions other than one's own is essential for speeding up this process. Students of Christian religion and theology, especially those who wish to make Indian Christian thought not merely 'geographically' but 'organically' Indian, should understand their great heritage which is contained in the Upaniṣads.

For us Indians, a study of the Upaniṣads is essential, if we are to preserve our national being and character. To discover the main lines of our traditional life, we must turn to our classics, the Vedas and the Upaniṣads, the Bhagavad-gītā and the Dhamma-pada. They have done more to colour our minds than we generally acknowledge. They not only thought many of our thoughts but coined hundreds of the words that we use in daily life. There is much in our past that is degrading and deficient but there is also much that is life-giving and elevating. If the past is to serve as an inspiration for the future, we have to study it with discrimination and sympathy. Again, the highest achievements of the human mind and spirit are not limited to the past. The gates of the future are wide open. While the fundamental motives, the governing ideas which constitute the essential spirit of our culture are a part of our very being, they should receive changing expression according to the needs and conditions of our time.

There is no more inspiring task for the student of Indian thought than to set forth some phases of its spiritual wisdom and bring them to bear on our own life. Let us, in the words of Socrates, 'turn over together the treasures that wise men have left us, glad if in so doing we make friends with one another.'

The two essays written for the Philosophy of the Upaniṣads (1924), which is a reprint of chapter IV from my Indian Philosophy, Volume I, by Rabindranath Tagore and Edmond Holmes, are to be found in the Appendices A and B respectively.

I am greatly indebted to my distinguished and generous friends Professors Suniti Kumar Chatterji, and Siddhesvar Bhattacharya for their great kindness in reading the proofs and making many valuable suggestions.

INTRODUCTION

I

GENERAL INFLUENCE

THE Upaniṣads represent a great chapter in the history of the human spirit and have dominated Indian philosophy, religion and life for three thousand years. Every subsequent religious movement has had to show itself to be in accord with their philosophical statements. Even doubting and denying spirits found in them anticipations of their hesitancies, misgivings and negations. They have survived many changes, religious and secular, and helped many generations of men to formulate their views on the chief problems of life and existence.

Their thought by itself and through Buddhism influenced even in ancient times the cultural life of other nations far beyond the boundaries of India, Greater India, Tibet, China, Japan and Korea and in the South, in Ceylon, the Malay Peninsula and far away in the islands of the Indian and the Pacific Oceans. In the West, the tracks of Indian thought may be traced far into Central Asia, where, buried in the sands of the desert, were found Indian texts.¹

The Upaniṣads have shown an unparalleled variety of appeal during these long centuries and have been admired by different people, for different reasons, at different periods. They are said to provide us with a complete chart of the unseen Reality, to give us the most immediate, intimate and convincing light on the secret of human existence, to formulate, in Deussen's words, 'philosophical conceptions unequalled in India or perhaps anywhere else in the world,' or to tackle every fundamental problem of philosophy.¹ All this may be so or may not be so. But of one thing there is no dispute, that those earnest spirits have known the fevers and ardours of religious seeking; they have expressed that pensive mood of the thinking mind which finds no repose except in the Absolute, no rest except in the Divine. The ideal which haunted the thinkers of the Upaniṣads, the ideal of man's ultimate beatitude, the perfection of knowledge, the vision of the Real in which the religious hunger of the mystic for divine vision and the philosopher's ceaseless quest for truth are both satisfied is still our ideal. A. N. Whitehead speaks to us of the real which stands behind and beyond and within the passing flux of this world, 'something which is real and yet waiting to be realised, something which is a remote possibility and yet the greatest of present facts, something that gives meaning to all that passes, and yet eludes apprehension; something whose possession is the final good, and yet is beyond all reach; something which is the ultimate ideal and the hopeless quest.'² A metaphysical curiosity for a theoretical explanation of the world as much as a passionate longing for liberation is to be found in the Upaniṣads. Their ideas do not only enlighten our minds but stretch our souls.

If the ideas of the Upaniṣads help us to rise above the glamour of the fleshly life, it is because their authors, pure of soul, ever striving towards the divine, reveal to us their pictures of the splendours of the unseen. The Upaniṣads are respected not because they are a part of śruti or revealed literature and so hold a reserved position but because they have inspired generations of Indians with vision and strength by their inexhaustible significance and spiritual power. Indian thought has constantly turned to these scriptures for fresh illumination and spiritual recovery or recommencement, and not in vain. The fire still burns bright on their altars. Their light is for the seeing eye and their message is for the seeker after truth.¹

II

THE TERM 'UPANIṢAD'

The word 'upaniṣad' is dervied from upa (near), ni (down) and sad (to sit), i.e. sitting down near. Groups of pupils sit near the teacher to learn from him the secret doctrine. In the quietude of forest hermitages the Upaniṣad thinkers pondered on the problems of the deepest concern and communicated their knowledge to fit pupils near them. The seers adopt a certain reticence in communicating the truth. They wish to be satisfied that their pupils are spiritually and not carnally minded.² To respond to spiritual teaching, we require the spiritual disposition.

The Upaniṣads contain accounts of the mystic significance of the syllable aum, explanations of mystic words like tajjalān, which are intelligible only to the initiated, and secret texts and esoteric doctrines. Upaniṣad became a name for a mystery, a secret, rahasyam, communicated only to the tested few.³ When the question of man's final destiny was raised, Yājñavalkya took his pupil aside and whispered to him the truth.¹ According to the Chāndogya Upaniṣad, the doctrine of Brahman may be imparted by a father to his elder son or to a trusted pupil, but not to another, whoever he may be, even if the latter should give him the whole earth surrounded by the waters and filled with treasures.² In many cases it is said that the teacher communicates the secret knowledge only after repeated entreaty and severe testing.

³ guhya ādeśāḥ. C.U. III. 52. paramam guhyam. Kaṭha I. 3. 17. vedānte paramam guhyam. S.U. VI. 22. vedaguhyam, vedaguhyopaniṣatsu gūḍham. S.U. V. 6.

Śaṅkara derives the word upaniṣad as a substantive from the root sad, 'to loosen,' 'to reach' or 'to destroy' with upa and ni as prefixes and kṣip as termination.³ If this derivation is accepted, upaniṣad means brahma-knowledge by which ignorance is loosened or destroyed. The treatises that deal with brahma-knowledge are called the Upaniṣads and so pass for the Vedānta. The different derivations together make out that the Upaniṣads give us both spiritual vision and philosophical argument.⁴ There is a core of certainty which is essentially incommunicable except by a way of life. It is by a strictly personal effort that one can reach the truth.

the Indian tradition puts it at one hundred and eight.¹ Prince Muhammad Dara Shikoh's collection translated into Persian (1656-1657) and then into Latin by Anquetil Duperron (1801 and 1802) under the title Oupnekhat, contained about fifty. Colebrooke's collection contained fifty-two, and this was based on Nārāyaṇa's list (c. A.D. 1400). The principal Upaniṣads are said to be ten. Śaṅkara commented on eleven, Īśa, Kena, Kaṭha, Praśna, Muṇḍaka, Māṇḍūkya, Taittirīya, Aitareya, Chāndogya, Bṛhad-āraṇyaka and Svetāśvatara. He also refers to the Kauṣītaki, Jābāla, Mahānārāyaṇa and Paṅgala Upaniṣads in his commentary on the Brahma Sūtra. These together with the Maitrāyaṇīya or Maitrī Upaniṣad constitute the principal Upaniṣads. Rāmānuja uses all these Upaniṣads as also the Subāla and the Cūlika. He mentions also the Garbha, the Jābāla and the Mahā Upaniṣads. Vidyāraṇya includes Nṛsiṃhottara-tāpanī Upaniṣad among the twelve he explained in his Sarvopaniṣad-arthāmubhūti-prakāśa. The other Upaniṣads which have come down are more religious than philosophical. They belong more to the Purāṇa and the Tantra than to the Veda. They glorify Vedānta or Yoga or Saṁnyāsa or extol the worship of Śiva, Śakti or Viṣṇu.²

English translations of the Upaniṣads have appeared in the following order: Ram Mohan Roy (1832), Roer (1853), (Bibliotheca Indica) Max Müller (1879-1884) Sacred Books of the East, Mead and Chattopādhyāya (1896, London Theosophical Society), Sītārām Śāstrī and Gaṅgānāth Jhā (1898-1901), (G. A. Natesan, Madras), Sītānāth Tattvabhūṣan (1900), S. C. Vasu (1911), R. Hume (1921). E. B. Cowell, Hiriyanṇa, Dvivedi, Mahādeva Śāstrī and Śrī Aurobindo have published translations of a few Upaniṣads.

Śaṅkara's commentaries on the principal Upaniṣads are available in English translations also. His interpretations are from the standpoint of advaita or non-dualism. Raṅgarāmānuja has adopted the point of view of Rāmānuja in his commentaries on the Upaniṣads. Madhva's commentaries are from the standpoint of dualism. Extracts from his Modern criticism is generally agreed that the ancient prose Upaniṣads, Aitareya, Kauṣītaki, Chāndogya, Kena, Taittirīya and Bṛhad-āraṇyaka, together with Īśa and Kaṭha belong to the eighth and seventh centuries B.C. They are all pre-Buddhist. They represent the Vedānta in its pure original form and are the earliest philosophical compositions of the world. These Upaniṣads belong to what Karl Jaspers calls the Axial Era of the world, 800 to 300 B.C., when man for the first time simultaneously and independently in Greece, China and India questioned the traditional pattern of life.

As almost all the early literature of India was anonymous, we do not know the names of the authors of the Upaniṣads. Some of the chief doctrines of the Upaniṣads are associated with the names of renowned sages as Āruṇi, Yājñavalkya, Bālāki, Śvetaketu, Śaṇḍilya. They were, perhaps, the early exponents of the doctrines attributed to them. The teachings were developed in paṛiṣads or spiritual retreats where teachers and pupils discussed and defined the different views.

As a part of the Veda, the Upaniṣads belong to śruti or revealed literature. They are immemorial, sanātana, timeless. Their truths are said to be breathed out by God or visioned by the seers. They are the utterances of the sages who speak out of the fullness of their illumined experience. They are not reached by ordinary perception, inference or reflection,¹ but seen by the seers, even as we see and not infer the wealth and riot of colour in the summer sky. The seers have the same sense of assurance and possession of their spiritual vision as we have of our physical perception. The sages are men of 'direct' vision, in the words of Yāska, sākṣāt-kṛta-dharmāṇaḥ, and the records of their experiences are the facts to be considered by any philosophy of religion. The truths revealed to the seers are not mere reports of introspection which are purely subjective. The inspired sages proclaim that the knowledge they communicate is not what they discover for themselves. It is revealed to them without their effort.¹ Though the knowledge is an experience of the seer, it is an experience of an independent reality which impinges on his consciousness. There is the impact of the real on the spirit of the experiencer. It is therefore said to be a direct disclosure from the 'wholly other,' a revelation of the Divine. Symbolically, the Upaniṣads describe revelation as the breath of God blowing on us. 'Of that great being, this is the breath, which is the Ṛg Veda.'² The divine energy is compared to the breath which quickens. It is a seed which fertilises or a flame which kindles the human spirit to its finest issues. It is interesting to know that the Bṛhad-āranyaka Upaniṣad tells us that not only the Vedas but history, sciences and other studies are also 'breathed forth by the great God.'³

The Vedas were composed by the seers when they were in a state of inspiration. He who inspires them is God.⁴ Truth is impersonal, apauruṣeya and eternal, nitya. Inspiration is a joint activity, of which man's contemplation and God's revelation are two sides. The Śvetāśvatara Upaniṣad says that the sage Śvetāśvatara saw the truth owing to his power of contemplation, tapah-prabhāva, and the grace of God, deva-prasāda.⁵ The dual significance of revelation, its subjective and objective character, is suggested here.

The Upaniṣads are vehicles more of spiritual illumination than of systematic reflection. They reveal to us a world of rich and varied spiritual experience rather than a world of abstract

The Naiyāyikas maintain that the Vedas were composed by God, while the Mīmāṃsakas hold that they were not composed at all either by man or by God, but have existed from all eternity in the form of sounds. It is perhaps a way of saying that the timeless truths of eternity exist from everlasting to everlasting. Aristotle regards the fundamental truths of religion as eternal and indestructible.

philosophical categories. Their truths are verified not only by logical reason but by personal experience. Their aim is practical rather than speculative. Knowledge is a means to freedom. Philosophy, brahma-vidyā, is the pursuit of wisdom by a way of life.

IV

THE UPANIṢADS AS THE VEDĀNTA

The Vedānta meant originally the Upaniṣads, though the word is now used for the system of philosophy based on the Upaniṣads. Literally, Vedānta means the end of the Veda, vedasya antaḥ, the conclusion as well as the goal of the Vedas. The Upaniṣads are the concluding portions of the Vedas. Chronologically they come at the end of the Vedic period. As the Upaniṣads contain abstruse and difficult discussions of ultimate philosophical problems, they were taught to the pupils at about the end of their course. When we have Vedic recitations as religious exercises, the end of these recitals is generally from the Upaniṣads. The chief reason why the Upaniṣads are called the end of the Veda is that they represent the central aim and meaning of the teaching of the Veda.¹ The content of the Upaniṣads is vedānta viṣṇānam, the wisdom of the Vedānta.² The Sāmhitas and the Brāhmaṇas, which are the hymns and the liturgical books, represent the karma-kāṇḍa or the ritual portion, while the Upaniṣads represent the jñāna-kāṇḍa or the knowledge portion. The learning of the hymns and the performance of the rites are a preparation for true enlightenment.³

The Upaniṣads describe to us the life of spirit, the same yesterday, to-day and for ever. But our apprehensions of the life of spirit, the symbols by which we express it, change with time. All systems of orthodox Indian thought accept the authoritativeness of the Vedas,¹ but give themselves freedom in their interpretation. This variety of interpretation is made possible by the fact that the Upaniṣads are not the thoughts of a single philosopher or a school of philosophers who follow a single tradition. They are the teachings of thinkers who were interested in different aspects of the philosophical problem, and therefore offer solutions of problems which vary in their interest and emphasis. There is thus a certain amount of fluidity in their thought which has been utilised for the development of different philosophical systems. Out of the wealth of suggestions and speculations contained in them, different thinkers choose elements for the construction of their own systems, not infrequently even through a straining of the texts. Though the Upaniṣads do not work out a logically coherent system of metaphysics, they give us a few fundamental doctrines which stand out as the essential teaching of the early Upaniṣads. These are recapitulated in the Brahma Sūtra.

The Brahma Sūtra is an aphoristic summary of the teaching of the Upaniṣads, and the great teachers of the Vedānta develop their distinctive views through their commentaries on this work. By interpreting the sūtras which are laconic in form and hardly intelligible without interpretation, the teachers justify their views to the reasoning intelligence.

Different commentators attempt to find in the Upaniṣads and the Brahma Sūtra a single coherent doctrine, a system of thought which is free from contradictions. Bhartṛprapañca, who is anterior to Śaṅkara, maintains that the selves and the physical universe are real, though not altogether different from Brahman. They are both identical with and different from Brahman, the three together constituting a unity in diversity. Ultimate Reality evolves into the universal creation śṛṣṭi and the universe retreats into it at the time of dissolution, pralaya.²

The advaita of Śaṅkara insists on the transcendent nature of non-dual Brahman and the duality of the world including Īśvara who presides over it. Reality is Brahman or Ātman. No predication is possible of Brahman as predication involves duality and Brahman is free from all duality. The world of duality is empirical or phenomenal. The saving truth which redeems the individual from the stream of births and deaths is the recognition of his own identity with the Supreme. 'That thou art' is the fundamental fact of all existence.¹ The multiplicity of the universe, the unending stream of life, is real, but only as a phenomenon.

Rāmānuja qualifies the non-dual philosophy so as to make the personal God supreme. While Brahman, souls and the world are all different and eternal, they are at the same time inseparable.² Inseparability is not identity. Brahman is related to the two others as soul to body. They are sustained by Him and subject to His control. Rāmānuja says that while God exists for Himself, matter and souls exist for His sake and subserve His purposes. The three together form an organic whole. Brahman is the inspiring principle of the souls and the world. The souls are different from, but not independent of, God. They are said to be one only in the sense that they all belong to the same class. The ideal is the enjoyment of freedom and bliss in the world of Nārāyaṇa, and the means to it is either prapatti or bhakti. The individual souls, even when they are freed through the influence of their devotion and the grace of God, retain their separate individuality. For him and Madhva, God, the author of all grace, saves those who give to Him the worship of love and faith.

For Madhva there are five eternal distinctions between (1) God and the individual soul, (2) God and matter, (3) soul and matter, (4) one soul and another, (5) one particle of matter and another. The supreme being endowed with all auspicious qualities is called Viṣṇu, and Lakṣmī is His power dependent on Him. Mokṣa is release from rebirth and residence in the abode of Nārāyaṇa. Human souls are innumerable, and each of them is separate and eternal. The divine souls are destined for salvation. Those who are neither very good nor very bad are subject to saṁsāra, and the bad go to hell. Right knowledge of God and devotion to Him are the means to salvation. Without divine grace there can be no salvation.¹

Baladeva adopts the view of acintya-bhedābheda. Difference and non-difference are positive facts of experience and yet cannot be reconciled. It is an incomprehensible synthesis of opposites. Rāmānuja, Bhāskara, Nimbārka and Baladeva believe that there is change in Brahman, but not of Brahman.²

Even the most inspired writers are the products of their environment. They give voice to the deepest thoughts of their own epoch. A complete abandonment of the existing modes of thought is psychologically impossible. The writers of the Ṛg Veda speak of the ancient makers of the path.³ When there is an awakening of the mind, the old symbols are interpreted in a new way.

In pursuance of the characteristic genius of the Indian mind, not to shake the beliefs of the common men, but to lead them on by stages to the understanding of the deeper philosophical meaning behind their beliefs, the Upaniṣads develop the Vedic ideas and symbols and give to them, where necessary, new meanings which relieve them of their formalistic character. Texts from the Vedas are often quoted in support of the teachings of the Upaniṣads.

The thought of the Upaniṣads marks an advance on the ritualistic doctrines of the Brāhmaṇas, which are themselves different in spirit from the hymns of the Ṛg Veda. A good deal of time should have elapsed for this long development. The mass of the Ṛg Veda must also have taken time to produce, especially when we remember that what has survived is probably a small part compared to what has been lost.¹

Whatever may be the truth about the racial affinities of the Indian and the European peoples, there is no doubt that Indo-European languages derive from a common source and illustrate a relationship of mind. In its vocabulary and inflexions Sanskrit² presents a striking similarity to Greek and Latin. Sir William Jones explained it by tracing them all to a common source. 'The Sanskrit language,' he said in 1786, in an address to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, 'whatever be its antiquity, is of a wonderful structure; more perfect than the Greek, more copious than the Latin, and more exquisitely refined than either; yet bearing to both of them a stronger affinity, both in the roots of verbs, and in the forms of grammar, than could possibly have been produced by accident; so strong, indeed, that no philologer could examine them all without believing them to have sprung from some common source which perhaps no longer exists. There is a similar reason, though not quite so forcible, for supposing that both the Gothic and the Celtic, though blended with a different idiom, had the same origin with the Sanskrit; and the old Persian might be added to the same family.'

The oldest Indo-European literary monument is the Rg Veda.³ The word 'Veda,' from vid, to know, means knowledge

³ 'The Veda has a two-fold interest: it belongs to the history of the world and to the history of India. In the history of the world, the Veda fills a gap which no literary work in any other language could fill. It carries us back to times of which we have no records anywhere, and gives us the very words of a generation of men, of whom otherwise we could form but the vaguest estimate by means of conjectures and inferences. As long as man continues to take an interest in the history of his race and as long as we collect in libraries and museums the relics of former ages, the first place in that long row of books which contains the records of the Aryan branch of mankind will belong for ever to the Rg Veda.' Max Müller: Ancient History of Sanskrit Literature (1859), p. 63. The Rg Veda, according to Ragozin 'is, without the shadow of a doubt, the oldest book of the Aryan family of nations.' Vedic India (1895), p. 114.

Winternitz observes: 'If we wish to learn to understand the beginnings of our own culture, if we wish to understand the oldest Indo-European par excellence, sacred wisdom. Science is the knowledge of secondary causes, of the created details; wisdom is the knowledge of primary causes, of the Uncreated Principle. The Veda is not a single literary work like the Bhagavad-gītā or a collection of a number of books compiled at some particular time as the Tri-piṭaka of the Buddhists or the Bible of the Christians, but a whole literature which arose in the course of centuries and was handed down from generation to generation through oral transmission. When no books were available memory was strong and tradition exact. To impress on the people the need for preserving this literature, the Veda was declared to be sacred knowledge or divine revelation. Its sanctity arose spontaneously owing to its age and the nature and value of its contents. It has since become the standard of thought and feeling for Indians.

The name Veda signifying wisdom suggests a genuine spirit of inquiry. The road by which the Vedic sages travelled was the road of those who seek to inquire and understand. The questions they investigate are of a philosophical character. 'Who, verily, knows and who can here declare it, where it was born and whence comes this creation? The gods are later than this world's production. Who knows, then, whence it first came into being?'¹ According to Sāyaṇa, Veda is the book which describes the transcendent means for the fulfilment of well-being and the avoidance of evils.²

There are four Vedas: the R̥g Veda which is mainly composed culture, we must go to India, where the oldest literature of an Indo-European people is preserved. For, whatever view we may adopt on the problem of the antiquity of Indian literature, we can safely say that the oldest monument of the literature of the Indians is at the same time the oldest monument of Indo-European literature which we possess.' A History of Indian Literature, E.T. Vol. I (1927), p. 6. See also Bloomfield: The Religion of the Veda (1908), p. 17. He says that the R̥g Veda is not only 'the most ancient literary monument of India' but also 'the most ancient literary document of the Indo-European peoples.' 'This literature is earlier than that of either Greece or Israel, and reveals a high level of civilisation among those who found in it the expression of their worship,' according to Dr. Nicol Macnicol. See his Hindu Scriptures (1938), p. XIV.

of songs of praise; the Yajur Veda, which deals with sacrificial formulas; the Sāma Veda which refers to melodies; and the Atharva Veda, which has a large number of magic formulas. Each contains four sections consisting of: (i) Samhitā or collection of hymns, prayers, benedictions, sacrificial formulas and litanies; (ii) Brāhmaṇas or prose treatises discussing the significance of sacrificial rites and ceremonies; (iii) Āraṇyakas or forest texts, which are partly included in the Brāhmaṇas and partly reckoned as independent; and (iv) Upaniṣads.

Veda denotes the whole literature made up of the two portions called Mantra and Brāhmaṇa.¹ Mantra is derived by Yāska from manana, thinking.² It is that by which the contemplation of God is attempted. Brāhmaṇa deals with the elaboration of worship into ritual. Parts of Brāhmaṇas are called Āraṇyakas. Those who continue their studies without marrying are called araṇas or araṇamānas. They lived in hermitages or forests. The forests where araṇas (ascetics) live are aranyas. Their speculations are contained in Āraṇyakas.

Yāska refers to different interpretations of the Vedās by the ritualists (yājñīkas), the etymologists (nairuktas) and mythologists (aitihāsikas). The Bṛhad-devatā which comes after Yāska's Nirukta also refers to various schools of thought in regard to Vedic interpretations. It mentions ātma-vādins or those who relate the Vedas to the psychological processes.

The Ṛg Veda, which comprises 1,017 hymns divided into ten books, represents the earliest phase in the evolution of religious consciousness where we have not so much the commandments of priests as the outpourings of poetic minds who were struck by the immensity of the universe and the inexhaustible mystery of life. The reactions of simple yet unsophisticated minds to the wonder of existence are portrayed in these joyous hymns which attribute divinity to the striking aspects of nature. We have worship of devas,³ deities like Sūrya (sun),

Soma (moon), Agni (fire), Dyaus (sky), Pṛthivī (earth),¹ Maruts (storm winds), Vāyu (wind), Ap (water), Uṣas (dawn). Even deities whose names are no longer so transparent were originally related to natural phenomena such as Indra, Varuṇa, Mitra, Aditi, Viṣṇu, Pūṣan, the two Aśvins, Rudra and Parjanya. Qualities which emphasise particular important aspects of natural phenomena attained sometimes to the rank of independent deities.² Savitr, the inspirer or the life-giver, Vivasvat, the shining, were at first attributes and names of the Sun but later became independent Sun-gods. Some of the deities worshipped by the different tribes were admitted into the Vedic pantheon. Pūṣan, originally the Sun-god of a small shepherd tribe, becomes the protector of travellers, the god who knows all the paths. Some deities have their basis in abstract qualities such as śraddhā, faith, manyu, anger.³ We also come across R̥bhus, or elves, Apsaras or nymphs, Gandharvas or forest or field spirits.⁴ Asuras who become the enemies of the gods in the later Vedic works retain in the Ṛg Veda the old meaning of 'possessors of wonderful power' or 'God' which the corresponding word Ahura has in the Avesta.⁵

śiśnodara-parāyaṇāḥ. 'Addicted to the gratification of sex and stomach.'

Varuṇa, a god common both to the Indians and the Iranians, regulates the course of the sun and the sequence of the seasons. He keeps the world in order and is the embodiment of truth and order which are binding on mankind. He protects moral laws and punishes the sinful. The Vedic Indians approach Varuṇa in trembling and fear and in humble reverence and ask for forgiveness of sins.¹ Indra, who is a king among the gods, occupying the position of Zeus in the Greek Olympus, is invoked by those who are fighting and struggling. Agni is the mediator between men and gods. The hymns speak of him as a dear friend, the master of the house, gṛha-pati. He bears the sacrificial offerings to the gods and brings the gods down to an ancient dynasty and a venerable religion, a change, apparently almost unparalleled in history, was in the course of a few years brought over the land. Where for centuries the ancient hymns of the Avesta had been chanted and the sacred fire had burned, the cry of the Mu'ezzin summoning the faithful to prayer rang out from minarets reared on the ruins of the temples of Ahura Mazda. The priests of Zoroaster fell by the sword; the ancient books perished in the flames; and soon none were left to represent a once mighty faith but a handful of exiles flying towards the shores of India and a despised and persecuted remnant in solitary Yezd and remote Kirman. . . . Yet, after all, the change was but skin deep and soon a host of heterodox sects born on Persian soil—Shi'ites, Sufis, Ismailis and philosophers arose to vindicate the claim of Aryan thought to be free and to transform the religion forced on the nation by Arab steel into something which, though still wearing a semblance of Islam, had a significance widely different from that which one may fairly suppose was intended by the Arabian prophet.' A Year amongst the Persians (1927), p. 134.

In the later Avesta, the supreme God is the sole creator but his attributes of the good spirit, righteousness, power, piety, health and immortality become personified as 'the Immortal Holy Ones.'

the sacrifice. He is the wise one, the chief priest, purohita. Mitra is the god of light. When the Persians first emerge into history, Mitra is the god of light who drives away darkness. He is the defender of truth and justice, the protector of righteousness, the mediator between Ahura Mazda and man.¹

Mitra, Varuṇa and Agni are the three eyes of the great illuminator Sun.² Aditi is said to be space and air, mother, father and son. She is all comprehending.³ Deities presiding over groups of natural phenomena became identified. The various Sun-gods, Sūrya, Savitṛ, Mitra and Viṣṇu tended to be looked upon as one. Agni (Fire) is regarded as one deity with three forms, the sun or celestial fire, lightning or atmospheric fire and the earthly fire manifest in the altar and in the homes of men.

Again, when worship is accorded to any of the Vedic deities, we tend to make that deity, the supreme one, of whom all others are forms or manifestations. He is given all the attributes of a monotheistic deity. As several deities are exalted to this first place, we get what has been called henotheism, as distinct from monotheism. There is, of course, a difference between a psychological monotheism where one god fills the entire life of the worshipper and a metaphysical monotheism. Synthesising processes, classification of gods, simplification of the ideas of divine attributes and powers prepare for a metaphysical unity, the one principle informing all the deities.⁴ The supreme is one who pervades the whole universe. He is gods and men.¹

The Vedic Indians were sufficiently logical to realise that the attributes of creation and rulership of the world could be granted only to one being. We have such a being in Prajā-pati, the lord of creatures, Viśva-karman, the world-maker. Thus the logic of religious faith asserts itself in favour of monotheism. This tendency is supported by the conception of ṛta or order. The universe is an ordered whole; it is not disorderliness (akosmia).² If the endless variety of the world suggests numerous deities, the unity of the world suggests a unitary conception of the Deity.

If philosophy takes its rise in wonder, if the impulse to it is in scepticism, we find the beginnings of doubt in the Rg Veda. It is said of Indra: 'Of whom they ask, where is he? Of him indeed they also say, he is not.'³ In another remarkable hymn, the priests are invited to offer a song of praise to Indra, 'a true one, if in truth he is, for many say, "There is no Indra, who has ever seen him? To whom are we to direct the song of praise?"'⁴ When reflection reduced the deities who were once so full of vigour to shadows, we pray for faith: 'O Faith, endow us with belief.'⁵ Cosmological thought wonders whether speech and air were not to be regarded as the ultimate essence of all things.⁶ In another hymn Prajā-pati is praised as the creator and preserver of the world and as the one god, but the refrain occurs in verse after verse 'What god shall we honour by means of sacrifice?'⁷ Certainty is the source of inertia in thought, while doubt makes for progress.

Agni, kindled in many places, is but one;

The most remarkable account of a superpersonal monism is to be found in the hymn of Creation.¹ It seeks to explain the universe as evolving out of One. But the One is no longer a god like Indra or Varuṇa, Prajā-pati or Viśva-karman. The hymn declares that all these gods are of late or of secondary origin. They know nothing of the beginning of things. The first principle, that one, taḍ ekam, is uncharacterisable. It is without qualities or attributes, even negative ones. To apply to it any description is to limit and bind that which is limitless and boundless.² 'That one breathed breathless. There was nothing else.' It is not a dead abstraction but indescribable perfection of being. Before creation all this was darkness shrouded in darkness, an impenetrable void or abyss of waters,³ until through the power of tapas,⁴ or the fervour of austerity, the One evolved into determinate self-conscious being. He becomes a creator by self-limitation. N thing outside himself can limit him. He only can limit himself. He does not depend on anything other than himself for his manifestation. This power of

According to Aristotle, Thales considered that all things were made of water. The Greeks had a myth of Father-Ocean as the origin of all things. Cp. Nṛsiṃha-pūrva-tāpanī U. I. 1.

āpo vā idam āsan sahilaṃ eva, sa prajā-patir ekaḥ puṣkara-parṇe samabhavat, tasyāntar manasi kāmāḥ samavartata idam sṛjeyam iti.

'All this remained as water along (without any form). Only Prajā-pati came to be in the lotus leaf. In his mind arose the desire, "let me create this (the world of names and forms)."

Two explanations are offered for the presence of identical symbols used in an identical manner in different parts of the world. W. J. Perry and his friends argue that these myths and symbols were derived originally from Egyptian culture which once spread over the world, leaving behind these vestiges when it receded. This theory does not bear close examination and is not widely held. The other explanation is that human beings are very much the same the world over, their minds are similarly constituted and their experience of life under primitive conditions does not differ from one part of the world to another and it is not unnatural that identical ideas regarding the origin and nature of the world arise independently.

actualisation is given the name of māyā in later Vedānta, for the manifestation does not disturb the unity and integrity of the One. The One becomes manifested by its own intrinsic power, by its tapas. The not-self is not independent of the self. It is the avyakta or the unmanifested. While it is dependent on the Supreme Self, it appears as external to the individual ego and is the source of its ignorance. The waters represent the unformed non-being in which the divine lay concealed in darkness. We have now the absolute in itself, the power of self-limitation, the emergence of the determinate self and the not-self, the waters, darkness, parā-prakṛti. The abyss is the not-self, the mere potentiality, the bare abstraction, the receptacle of all developments. The self-conscious being gives it existence by impressing his forms or Ideas on it. The unmanifested, the indeterminate receives determinations from the self-conscious Lord. It is not absolute nothing, for there is never a state in which it is not in some sense.¹ The whole world is formed by the union of being and not-being and the Supreme Lord has facing him this indetermination, this aspiration to existence.² Rg Veda describes not-being (asat) as lying 'with outstretched

In the Purāṇas, this idea is variously developed. Brahma Purāṇa makes out that God first created the waters which are called nāra and released his seed into them; therefore he is called Nārāyaṇa. The seed grew into a golden egg from which Brahmā was born of his own accord and so is called svayambhū. Brahmā divided the egg into two halves, heaven and earth. I. 1. 38 ff.

The Brahmāṇḍa Purāṇa says that Brahmā, known as Nārāyaṇa, rested on the surface of the waters.

Vidyāranya on Mahānārāyaṇa U. III. 16 says nara-śarīrāṇām upādāna-rūpāṇy annādi-pañca-bhūtāni nara-śabdenocyante, teṣu bhūteṣu yā āpo mukhyāḥ tā ayanam ādhāro yasya viṣṇoḥ so'yaṁ nārāyaṇaḥ samudra-jala-sāyī.

Cp. āpo nārā iti proktā āpo vai nara-sūnavah ayanam tasya tāḥ proktās tena nārāyaṇas smṛtaḥ.

The Viṣṇu-ādharmottara says that Viṣṇu created the waters and the creation of the egg and Brahmā took place afterwards.

² Speaking of Boehme's mystic philosophy which influenced William Law, Stephen Hobhouse writes that he believes 'in the Ungrund, the fathomless abyss of freedom or indifference, which is at the root, so to speak, of God and of all existences . . . the idea of the mighty but blind face of Desire that arises out of this abyss and by means of imagination shapes itself into a purposeful will which is the heart of the Divine personality.' Selected Mystical Writings of William Law (1948), p. 307.

feet' like a woman in the throes of childbirth.¹ As the first product of the divine mind, the mind's first fruit, came forth kāma, desire, the cosmic will, which is the primal source of all existence. In this kāma, 'the wise searching in their hearts, have by contemplation (manīṣā), discovered the connection between the existent and the non-existent'². The world is created by the personal self-conscious God who acts by his intelligence and will.

This is how the Vedic seers understood in some measure how they and the whole creation arose. The writer of the hymn has the humility to admit that all this is a surmise, for it is not possible for us to be sure of things which lie so far beyond human knowledge.³

This hymn suggests the distinction between the Absolute Reality and Personal God, Brahman and Īśvara, the Absolute beyond being and knowledge, the super-personal, super-essential godhead in its utter transcendence of all created beings and its categories and the Real manifested to man in terms of the highest categories of human experience. Personal Being is treated as a development or manifestation of the Absolute.

In another hymn,⁴ the first existent being is called Prajā-pati, facing the chaos of waters. He impregnates the waters and becomes manifest in them in the form of a golden egg or germ, from which the whole universe develops.⁵ He is called the one

² Kāma becomes defined later as icchā, desire and kriyā, action. It is the creative urge.

Cp. with Kāma, the Orphic god, Eros, also called Phanes, who is the principle of generation by whom the whole world is created.

³ See also I. 16. 4. 32, where the writer says that he who made all this does not probably know its real nature.

'He, the first origin of this creation, whether he formed it all or did not form it,

Whose eye controls this world in highest heaven,

He, verily, knows it, or perhaps he knows not.'

X. 129. 7. E.T. by Max Müller.

⁵ hiranya-garbha, literally gold-germ, source of golden light, the world-soul, from which all powers and existences of this world are derived. It comes later to mean Brahmā, the creator of the world. In the Orphic Cosmogony we have similar ideas. Professor F. M. Cornford writes, 'In the beginning there was a primal undifferentiated unity, called by the Orphics "Night." Within this unity the world egg was generated, or life or soul of the gods (devānām asuḥ).¹ Hiranya-garbha is the first born determinate existent while Brahman-Īśvara, Absolute-God is in the realm of the transcendent.² The world is said to be a projection, emission or externalisation of the ideal being of God, of the eternal order which is eternally present in the divine wisdom.

The *Puruṣa Sūkta*³ repeats in concrete form the ideal of a primeval being existing before any determinate existence and evolving himself in the empirical universe. The being is con-according to some accounts, fashioned by Ageless Time (Chronos). The egg divided into two halves, Heaven and Earth. Mythically Heaven and Earth are the Father and Mother of all life. In physical terms the upper half of the egg forms the dome of the sky, the lower contains the moisture or slime from which the dry land (Earth) arose. Between earth and heaven appeared a winged spirit of light and life, known by many names, as Phanes, Eros, Metis, Ericapaeus, etc. The function of this spirit, in which sex was as yet undifferentiated, was to generate life either by the immediate projection of seed from itself, or by uniting the sundered parents, Heaven and Earth in marriage. The offspring were successive pairs of supreme gods; Oceanus and Tethys, Chronos and Rhea, Zeus and Hera.' Cambridge Ancient History, Vol. IV (1926), p. 536.

Anaximander develops a scheme similar to the Orphic cosmology: (1) There is a primal undifferentiated unity. (2) A separation of opposites in pairs to form the world order. (3) A reunion of these sundered opposites to generate life. This formula is stated by Euripides (Melanippe, Fragment 484): 'The tale is not mine; I had it from my mother: that Heaven and Earth were once one form, and when they had been sundered from one another, they gave birth to all things and brought them up into the light.'

This distinction which becomes established in the Upaniṣads has its parallels in other historical developments. Cp. the three Bodies of the Buddha, Dharmakāya or the Absolute Reality, Sambhogakāya, the personal God or the Logos and Nirmāṇakāya or the historical embodiment of the Logos in a material body born into the world at a given moment of time. ceived as a cosmic person with a thousand heads, eyes and feet, who filled the whole universe and extended beyond it, by the length of ten fingers,¹ the universe being constituted by a fourth of his nature.² The world form is not a complete expression or manifestation of the divine Reality. It is only a fragment of the divine that is manifested in the cosmic process. The World-soul is a partial expression of the Supreme Lord.

Creation is interpreted in the Vedas as development rather than the bringing into being something not hitherto existent. The first principle is manifested in the whole world. Puruṣa by his sacrifice becomes the whole world. This view prepares for the development of the doctrine which is emphasised in the Upaniṣads that the spirit in man is one with the spirit which is the prīus of the world.

Within this world we have the one positive principle of being and yet have varying degrees of existence marked by varying degrees of penetration or participation of nonentity by divine being. God as Hiraṇya-garbhā is nothing of the already made. He is not an ineffective God who sums up in himself all that is given.

Rg Veda used two different concepts, generation and birth, and something artificially produced to account for creation. Heaven and earth are the parents of the gods; or the Creator of the world is a smith or a carpenter.

Again 'In the beginning was the golden germ
From his birth he was sole lord of creation.
He made firm the earth and this bright sky';³

In this hymn Prajā-pati, the lord of offspring, assumes the name of Hiraṇya-garbhā, the golden germ, and in the Atharva Veda and later literature Hiraṇya-garbhā himself becomes a supreme deity.⁴ The Rg Veda is familiar with the four-fold distinction of (i) the Absolute, the One, beyond all dualities and distinctions, (ii) the self-conscious Subject confronting the object, (iii) the World-soul, and (iv) the world.¹

The monistic emphasis led the Vedic thinkers to look upon the Vedic deities as different names of the One Universal Godhead, each representing some essential power of the divine being.² They call him Indra, Mitra, Varuṇa, Agni. He is the heavenly bird Garutmat. To what is one, the poets give many a name. They call it Agni, Yama, Mātariśva.³ The real that lies behind the tide of temporal change is one, though we speak of it in many ways. Agni, Yama, etc., are symbols. They are not gods in themselves. They express different qualities of the object worshipped. The Vedic seers were not conscious of any iconoclastic mission. They did not feel called upon to denounce

Plato in the Timaeus teaches that the Supreme Deity, the Demi-urge, creates a universal World-Soul, through which the universe becomes an organism. The World-Soul bears the image of the Ideas, and the world-body is fashioned in the same pattern. If the whole world has not been ordered as God would have desired, it is due to the necessity which seems to reside in an intractable material, which was in 'disorderly motion' before the Creator imposed form on it.

² I. 164. 46. ekam santam bahudhā kalpayanti. R.V. X. 114. 4. See B. G. X. 41.

Zeus is the supreme ruler of gods and men; other gods exist to do his bidding.

Cp. Cicero. 'God being present everywhere in Nature, can be regarded in the field as Ceres; or on the sea as Neptune; and elsewhere in a variety of forms in all of which He may be worshipped. De Nature Deorum.'

For Plutarch and Maximus of Tyre, the different gods worshipped in the third century Roman Empire were symbolic representations of a Supreme God who is unknowable in his inmost nature.

'God himself, the father and fashioner of all . . . is unnameable by any lawgiver, unutterable by any voice, not to be seen by any eye. . . . But if a Greek is stirred to the remembrance of God by the art of Phidias, an Egyptian by paying worship to animals, another man by a river, another by fire, I have no anger for their divergence; only let them know, let them love, let them remember.'

In the Taittirīya Saṃhitā and Sarapatha Brāhmaṇa, it is said that Prajā-pati assumed certain forms of fish (matsya), tortoise (kūrma) and boar (varāha) for the attainment of certain ends. When the doctrine of avatāras, incarnations, becomes established, these three become the incarnations of Viṣṇu.

the worship of the various deities as disastrous error or mortal sin. They led the worshippers of the many deities to the worship of the one and only God by a process of reinterpretation and reconciliation.

The reaction of the local cults on the Vedic faith is one of the many causes of variety of the Vedic pantheon. People in an early stage of culture are so entirely steeped in the awe and reverence which have descended to them that they cannot easily or heartily adopt a new pattern of worship. Even when militant religions fell the tall trees of the forest, the ancient beliefs remain as an undergrowth. The catholic spirit of Hinduism which we find in the R̥g Veda has always been ready to give shelter to foreign beliefs and assimilate them in its own fashion. While preferring their own, the Vedic Indians had the strength to comprehend other peoples' ways.

There is no suggestion in the R̥g Veda of the illusory character of the empirical world. We find varied accounts of creation. The Supreme is compared to a carpenter or a smith who fashions or smelts the world into being. Sometimes he is said to beget all beings. He pervades all things as air or ether (ākāśa) pervades the universe. He animates the world as the life-breath (prāṇa) animates the human body, a comparison which has been developed with remarkable ingenuity by Rāmānuja.

R̥g Veda raises the question of the nature of the human self, ko nu ātmā.¹ It is the controller of the body, the unborn part, aṇo bhāgaḥ,² which survives death. It is distinguished from the jīva or the individual soul.³ The famous verse of the two birds dwelling in one body, which is taken up by the Upaniṣads,⁴ distinguishes the individual soul which enjoys the fruits of actions from the spirit which is merely a passive spectator.⁵ This distinction between the individual soul and the supreme self is relevant to the cosmic process and is not applicable to the supreme supra-cosmic transcendence. Those who think that the distinction is to be found in the Supreme Transcendence do not know their own origin, pitarāṃ na veda.¹ The individual souls belong to the world of Hiranya-garbha.

'Let this mortal clay (self) be the immortal god.'² 'Vouchsafe, O Indra, that we may be you.'³ One can become a devata, a deity, by one's own deeds.⁴ The aim of the Ṛg Veda is to become like gods. The individual soul can become the Universal Spirit.

The way to spiritual attainment is through worship⁵ and moral life. Vestiges of Yoga discipline are found in a late passage⁶ which describes the keśins or the long-haired ascetics with their yogic powers that enabled them to move at will in space. Of a muni, it is said that his mortal body men see but he himself fares on the path of the faery spirits. His hair is long and his soiled garments are of yellow hue. Vāmadeva when he felt the unity of all created things with his own self exclaimed: 'I am Manu, I am Sūrya.'⁷ So also King Trasadasyu said that he was Indra and the great Varuṇa.⁸

The cardinal virtues are emphasised: 'O Mitra and Varuṇa, by your pathway of truth may we cross.'⁹ Mere memorising of the hymns is of no avail if we do not know the Supreme which sustains all.¹⁰ balanced social organisations with their systems of belief and codes of behaviour. The fundamental needs of society are the moral and the spiritual, the military and the economic. In Indo-European society these three functions are assigned to three different groups, the men of learning and virtue, the men of courage and fight, and the men who provide the economic needs,¹ the Brāhmaṇa, the Kṣatriya and the Vaiśya. Below them were the Śūdras devoted to service. These distinctions are found in the Ṛg Veda, though they are not crystallised into castes. Ancient Iranian society was constituted on a similar pattern.

Even the gods were classified into the Brāhmaṇa, the Kṣatriya and the Vaiśya according to the benefits which they provide, moral, military or economic. Our prayers are for righteousness, victory and abundance. Sūrya, Savitṛ are gods who confer spiritual benefits. Indra is a war god and Aśvins give us health and food. In Roman mythology Jupiter provides spiritual benefits, Mars is the god of war and Quirinus is the god of plenty.

Pitaras or fathers or ancestral spirits receive divine worship. The king of the ancestral spirits who rules in the kingdom of the deceased is Yama, a god who belongs to the Indo-Iranian period. He is identical with Yima of the Avesta, who is the first human being, the primeval ancestor of the human race. As the first one to depart from this world and enter the realm of the dead, he became its king. The kingdom of the dead is in heaven, and the dying man is comforted by the belief that after death he will abide with King Yama in the highest heaven. The world of heaven is the place of refuge of the departed.² In the funeral hymn,³ the departing soul is asked to 'go forth along the ancient pathway by which our ancestors have departed.' The Vedic Heaven is described in glowing terms 'where inexhaustible radiance dwells, where dwells the King Vaivasvata.'³

There is no reference to rebirth in the Ṛg Veda, though its elements are found. The passage of the soul from the body, its dwelling in other forms of existence, its return to human form, the determination of future existence by the principle of Karma are all mentioned. Mitra is born again.¹ The Dawn (Uṣas) is born again and again.² 'I seek neither release nor return.'³ 'The immortal self will be reborn in a new body due to its meritorious deeds.'⁴ Sometimes the departed spirit is asked to go to the plants and 'stay there with bodies.'⁵ There is retribution for good and evil deeds in a life after death. Good men go to heaven⁶ and others to the world presided over by Yama.⁷ Their work (dharma) decided their future.⁸

In the Rg Veda we find the first adventures of the human mind made by those who sought to discover the meaning of existence and man's place in life, 'the first word spoken by the Aryan man.'⁹

THE YAJUR, THE SĀMA AND THE ATHARVA VEDAS

Sacred knowledge is trayī vidyā. It is three-fold, being the knowledge of the Rg, the Yajur and the Sāma Vedas. The two latter use the hymns of the Rg and the Atharva Vedas and arrange them for purposes of ritual. The aim of the Yajur Veda is the correct performance of the sacrifice to which is attributed the whole control of the universe. Deities are of less importance than the mechanism of the sacrifice. In the Atharva Veda the position of the deities is still less important. A certain aversion to the recognition of the Atharva Veda as a part of the sacred canon is to be noticed. Even the old Buddhist texts speak of learned Brāhmaṇas versed in the three Vedas.¹⁰

Though we meet in the Atharva Veda many of the gods of the Ṛg Veda, their characters are not so distinct. The sun becomes rohita, the ruddy one. A few gods are exalted to the position of Prajā-pati, Dhātṛ (Establisher), Vidhātṛ (arranger). Parameṣṭhin (he that is in the highest). In a notable passage the Supreme in the form of Varuṇa is described as the universal, omnipresent witness.¹ There are references to kāla or time as the first cause of all existence, kāma or desire as the force behind the evolution of the universe, skambha or support who is conceived as the principle on which everything rests. Theories tracing the world to water or to air as the most subtle of the physical elements are to be met with.

The religion of the Atharva Veda reflects the popular belief in numberless spirits and ghosts credited with functions connected in various ways with the processes of nature and the life of man.² We see in it strong evidence of the vitality of the pre-Vedic animist religion and its fusion with Vedic beliefs. All objects and creatures are either spirits or are animated by spirits. While the gods of the Ṛg Veda are mostly friendly ones we find in the Atharva Veda dark and demoniacal powers which bring disease and misfortune on mankind. We have to win them by flattering petitions and magical rites. We come across spells and incantations for gaining worldly ends. The Vedic seer was loth to let the oldest elements disappear without trace. Traces of the influence of the Atharva Veda are to be found in the Upaniṣads. There are spells for the healing of diseases, bhaiṣajyāni, for life and healing āyusyāni sūktāni. These were the beginnings of the medical science.³

The liberated soul is described as 'free from desire, wise, immortal, self-born . . . not deficient in any respect . . . wise, unageing, young.'⁴

THE BRĀHMAṆAS

The elements of the ritualistic cult found in the Vedas are developed in the Brāhmaṇas into an elaborate system of ceremonies. While in the R̥g Veda the sacrifices are a means for the propitiation of the gods, in the Brāhmaṇas they become ends in themselves. Even the gods are said to owe their position to sacrifices. There are many stories of the conflict between devas and asuras for world power and of the way in which gods won through the power of the sacrifice.¹

It is not the mechanical performance of a sacrificial rite that brings about the desired result, but the knowledge of its real meaning. Many of the Brāhmaṇa texts are devoted to the exposition of the mystic significance of the various elements of the ritual. By means of the sacrifices we 'set in motion' the cosmic forces dealt with and get from them the desired results. The priests who knew the details of the aim, meaning and performance of the sacrifice came into great prominence. Gods became negligible intermediaries. If we perform a rite with knowledge, the expected benefit will result. Soon the actual performance of the rite becomes unnecessary. Ritualistic religion becomes subordinate to knowledge.²

The Brāhmaṇas are convinced that life on earth is, on the whole, a good thing. The ideal for man is to live the full term of his life on earth. As he must die, the sacrifice helps him to get to the world of heaven.

While the Vedic poets hoped for a life in heaven after death, there was uneasiness about the interference of death in a future life. The fear of re-death, punar-mṛtyu becomes prominent in the Brāhmaṇas. Along with the fear of re-death arose the belief of the imperishability of the self or the ātman, the essential part of man's being. Death is not the end but only causes new existences which may not be better than the present one. Under the influence of popular animism which sees souls similar to the human in all parts of nature, future life was brought down to earth. According to the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, a man has three births, the first which he gets from his parents, the second through sacrificial ceremonies and the third which he obtains after death and cremation.¹

VIII

THE ĀRANYAKAS

The Āranyakas do not give us rules for the performance of sacrifices and explanations of ceremonies, but provide us with the mystic teaching of the sacrificial religion. As a matter of fact, some of the oldest Upaniṣads are included in the Āranyaka texts,² which are meant for the study of those who are engaged in the vow of forest life, the Vānaprasthas.³ As those who retire to the forests are not like the householders bound to the ritual, the Āranyakas deal with the meaning and interpretation of the sacrificial ceremonies. It is possible that certain sacred rites were performed in the seclusion of the forests where teachers and pupils meditated on the significance of these rites. The distinction of Brāhmaṇa and Āraṇyaka is not an absolute one.

THE UPANIṢADS

The Āraṇyakas¹ shade off imperceptibly into the Upaniṣads even as the Brāhmaṇas shade off into the Āraṇyakas. While the student (brahmacārin) reads the hymns, the householder (grhastha) attends to the Brāhmaṇas which speak of the daily duties and sacrificial ceremonies, the hermit, the man of the forest (vānaprastha), discusses the Āraṇyakas, the monk who has renounced worldly attachment (sannyāsin), studies the Upaniṣads, which specialise in philosophical speculations.

The great teachers of the past did not claim any credit for themselves, but maintained that they only transmitted the wisdom of the ancients.² The philosophical tendencies implicit in the Vedic hymns are developed in the Upaniṣads.

Hymns to gods and goddesses are replaced by a search for the reality underlying the flux of things. 'What is that which, being known, everything else becomes known?'³ Kena Upaniṣad gives the story of the discomfiture of the gods who found out the truth that it is the power of Brahman which sustains the gods of fire, air, etc.⁴ While the poets of the Veda speak to us of the many into which the radiance of the Supreme has split, the philosophers of the Upaniṣads speak to us of the One Reality behind and beyond the flux of the world. The Vedic deities are the messengers of the One Light which has burst forth into the universal creation. They serve to mediate between pure thought and the intelligence of the dwellers in the world of sense.

When we pass from the Vedic hymns to the Upaniṣads we find that the interest shifts from the objective to the subjective, from the brooding on the wonder of the outside world to the meditation on the significance of the self. The human self contains the clue to the interpretation of nature. The Real at the heart of the universe is reflected in the infinite depths of the soul. The Upaniṣads give in some detail the path of the inner ascent, the inward journey by which the individual souls get at the Ultimate Reality. Truth is within us. The different Vedic gods are envisaged subjectively. 'Making the Man (puruṣa) their mortal house the gods indwelt him.'¹ 'All these gods are in me.'² 'He is, indeed, initiated, whose gods within him are initiated, mind by Mind, voice by Voice.'³ The operation of the gods becomes an epiphany: 'This Brahma, verily, shines when one sees with the eye and likewise dies when one does not see.'⁴ The deities seem to be not different from Plato's Ideas or Eternal Reasons.

In the Upaniṣads we find a criticism of the empty and barren ritualistic religion.⁵ Sacrifices were relegated to an inferior position. They do not lead to final liberation; they take one to the world of the Fathers from which one has to return to earth again in due course.⁶ When all things are God's, there is no point in offering to him anything, except one's will, one's self. The sacrifices are interpreted ethically. The three periods of life supersede the three Soma offerings.⁷ Sacrifices become self-denying acts like puruṣa-medha and sarva-medha which enjoin abandonment of all possessions and renunciation of the world. For example, the Bṛhad-āraṇyaka Upaniṣad opens with an account of the horse sacrifice (aśva-medha) and interprets it as a meditative act in which the individual offers up the whole universe in place of the horse, and by the renunciation of the world attains spiritual autonomy in place of earthly sovereignty.¹ In every homa the expression svāhā is used which implies the renunciation of the ego, svatva-hanana.²

There is great stress on the distinction between the ignorant, narrow, selfish way which leads to transitory satisfactions and the way which leads to eternal life. Yajña is Karma, work.³ It is work done for the improvement of the soul and the good of the world, ātmonnataye jagaddhitāya. Sāṁkhyāyana Brāhmaṇa of the Rg Veda says that the self is the sacrifice and the human soul is the sacrificer, puruṣo vai yajñah, ātmā yajamānah. The observance of the Vedic ritual prepares the mind for final release, if it is in the right spirit.⁴

Prayer and sacrifice are means to philosophy and spiritual life. While true sacrifice is the abandonment of one's ego, prayer is the exploration of reality by entering the beyond that is within, by ascension of consciousness. It is not theoretical learning.⁵ We must see the eternal, the celestial, the still. If it is unknowable and incomprehensible, it is yet realisable by self-discipline and integral insight. We can seize the truth not by logical thinking, but by the energy of our whole inner being. Prayer starts with faith, with complete trust in the Being to whom appeal is made, with the feeling of a profound need, and a simple faith that God can grant us benefits and is well disposed towards us. When we attain the blinding experience of the spiritual light, we feel compelled to proclaim a new law for the world.

The Upaniṣad seers are not bound by the rules of caste, but extend the law of spiritual universalism to the utmost bounds of human existence. The story of Satyakāma Jābāla, who, though unable to give his father's name, was yet initiated into spiritual life, shows that the Upaniṣad writers appeal from the rigid ordinances of custom to those divine and spiritual laws which are not of today or of yesterday, but live for ever and of their origin knoweth no man. The words tat tvam asi are so familiar that they slide off our minds without full comprehension.

The goal is not a heavenly state of bliss or rebirth in a better world, but freedom from the objective, cosmic law of karma and identity with the Supreme Consciousness and Freedom. The Vedic paradise, svarga, becomes a stage in the individual's growth.¹

The Upaniṣads generally mention the Vedas with respect and their study is enjoined as an important duty.² Certain verses from the Vedas such as the gāyatrī form the subject of meditations³ and sometimes verses from the Vedas are quoted in support of the teaching of the Upaniṣads.⁴ While the Upaniṣads use the Vedas, their teaching is dependent on the personal experience and testimony of teachers like Yājñavalkya, Śaṇḍilya. The authority of the Vedas is, to no small extent, due to the inclusion of the Upaniṣads in them.

It is often stated that Vedic knowledge by itself will not do. In the Chāndogya Upaniṣad,⁵ Śvetaketu admits that he has studied all the Vedas but is lacking in the knowledge 'whereby what has not been heard of becomes heard of, what has not been thought of becomes thought of, what has not been understood becomes understood.' X

ULTIMATE REALITY: BRAHMAN

To the pioneers of the Upaniṣads, the problem to be solved presented itself in the form, what is the world rooted in? What is that by reaching which we grasp the many objects perceived in the world around us? They assume, as many philosophers do, that the world of multiplicity is, in fact, reducible to one single, primary reality which reveals itself to our senses in different forms. This reality is hidden from senses but is discernible to the reason. The Upaniṣads raise the question; what is that reality which remains identical and persists through change?

The word used in the Upaniṣads to indicate the supreme reality is brahman. It is derived from the root bṛh. 'to grow, to burst forth.' The derivation suggests gushing forth, bubbling over, ceaseless growth, bṛhattvam. Śaṅkara derives the word 'brahman' from the root bṛhati to exceed, atiśayana and means by it eternity, purity. For Madhva, brahman is the person in whom the qualities dwell in fullness, bṛhanto hy asmiṃ guṇāḥ. The real is not a pale abstraction, but is quickeningly alive, of powerful vitality. In the Ṛg Veda, brahman is used in the sense of 'sacred knowledge or utterance, a hymn or incantation,' the concrete expression of spiritual wisdom. Sometimes Vāc is personified as the One.² Viśva-karman, the All-Maker is said to be the lord of the holy utterance.³ Brahman is mantra or prayer. Gradually it acquired the meaning of power or potency of prayer, It has a mysterious power and contains within itself the essence of the thing denoted. Bṛhaspati, Brahmanaspati are interpreted as the lord of prayer.

In the Brāhmaṇas, brahman denotes the ritual and so is regarded as omnipotent. He who knows brahman knows and controls the universe. Brahman becomes the primal principle and guiding spirit of the universe. 'There is nothing more ancient or brighter than this brahman.'¹

In later thought, brahman meant wisdom or Veda. As divine origin was ascribed to the Veda or brahman, the two words were used with the same meaning. Brahman or sacred knowledge came to be called the first created thing, brahma prathamajam and even to be treated as the creative principle, the cause of all existence.

The word suggests a fundamental kinship between the aspiring spirit of man and the spirit of the universe which it seeks to attain. The wish to know the Real implies that we know it to some extent. If we do not know anything about it, we cannot even say that it is and that we wish to know it. If we know the Real, it is because the Real knows itself in us. The desire for God, the feeling that we are in a state of exile, implies the reality of God in us. All spiritual progress is the growth of half-knowledge into clear illumination. Religious experience is the evidence for the Divine. In our inspired moments we have the feeling that there is a greater reality within us, though we cannot tell what it is. From the movements that stir in us and the utterances that issue from us, we perceive the power, not ourselves, that moves us. Religious experience is by no means subjective. God cannot be known or experienced except through his own act. If we have a knowledge of Brahman, it is due to the working of Brahman in us.² Prayer is the witness to the spirit of the transcendent divine immanent in the spirit of man. The thinkers of the Upaniṣads based the reality of Brahman on the fact of spiritual experience, ranging from simple prayer to illuminated experience. The distinctions which they make in the nature of the Supreme Reality are not merely logical. They are facts of spiritual experience.

² Cp. St. Anselm: 'I cannot seek Thee except Thou teach me, nor find Thee except Thou reveal Thyself'; Rūmī: 'Was it not I who summoned Thee to long service; was it not I who made Thee busy with my name? Thy calling "Allāh" was my "Here am I".'

The thinkers of the Upaniṣads attempt to establish the reality of God from an analysis of the facts of nature and the facts of inner life.

‘Who knows and who can declare what pathway leads to the gods?

Seen are their lowest dwelling-places only;

What pathway leads to the highest, most secret regions?’¹

The Upaniṣads assume that it is a distorted habit of mind which identifies ‘the highest, most secret regions’ with the ‘lowest dwelling-places.’ The Real is not the actual. The Upaniṣads ask, ‘What is the tajjalān from which all things spring, into which they are resolved and in which they live and have their being?’²

The Bṛhad-āraṇyaka Upaniṣad maintains that the ultimate reality is being, san-mātram hi brahma. Since nothing is without reason there must be a reason why something exists rather than nothing. There is something; there is not nothing. The world is not self-caused, self-dependent, self-maintaining. All philosophical investigation presupposes the reality of being, astitva-niṣṭhā.³ The theologian accepts the first principle of being as an absolute one; the philosopher comes to it by a process of mediation. By logically demonstrating the impossibility of not-being in and by itself, he asserts the necessity of being. Being denotes pure affirmation to the exclusion of every possible negation. It expresses simultaneously God’s consciousness of himself and his own absolute self-absorbed being. We cannot live a rational life without assuming the reality of being. Not-being is sometimes said to be the first principle.⁴ It is not absolute non-being but only relative non-being, as compared with later concrete existence.

³ Cp. ‘Then God said to Moses: “I am that I Am”.’ Exodus III. 14.

There is a familiar distinction between nāstika and āstika. The nāstika thinks that nothing exists except what we see, feel, touch and measure. The āstika is one who holds with R.V. X. 31. 8. naitāvad enā paro anyad asi, there is not merely this but there is also a transcendent other.

Even as the nyagrodha tree is made of the subtle essence which we do not perceive, so is this world made of the infinite Brahman.¹ 'It is at the command of that Imperishable that the sun and the moon stand bound in their places. It is at the command of that Imperishable that the heaven and the earth stand each in its own place. It is at the command of that Imperishable that the very moments, the hours, the days, the nights, the half-months, the months, the seasons and the years have their appointed function in the scheme of things. It is at the command of that Imperishable that some rivers flow to the east from the snow-clad mountains while others flow to the west.'² When Bālāki defines Brahman as the person in the sun (āditye puruṣaḥ) and successively as the person in the moon, in lightning, in ether, in wind, in fire, in the waters, also as the person in the mind, in the shadow, in echo and in the body, King Ajātaśatru asks, 'Is that all?' When Bālāki confesses that he can go no farther, the king says, 'He who is the maker of all these persons, he, verily, should be known.' Brahman is satyasya satyam, the Reality of the real, the source of all existing things.³

In some cosmological speculations the mysterious principle of reality is equated with certain naturalistic elements. Water is said to be the source of all things whatsoever.⁴ From it came satya, the concrete existent. Others like Raikva look upon air as the final absorbent of all things whatsoever, including fire and water.⁵ The Kaṭha Upaniṣad tells us that fire, having entered the universe, assumes all forms.⁶ The Chāndogya Upaniṣad, however, makes out that fire is the first to evolve from the Primaeval Being and from fire came water and from water the earth. At the time of dissolution, the earth is dissolved in water, and water in fire and fire in the Primaeval Being.⁷ Ākāśa, ether, space, is sometimes viewed as the first principle.

look upon the earliest state of the material world as one of extension in space, of which the characteristic feature is vibration represented to us by the phenomenon of sound. From ākāśa, vāyu, air arises. Vibration by itself cannot create forms unless it meets with obstruction. The interaction of vibrations is possible in air which is the next modification. To sustain the different forces, a third modification arises, tejas, of which light and heat are the manifestations. We still do not have stable forms and so the denser medium of water is produced. A further state of cohesion is found in earth. The development of the world is a process of steady grossening of the subtle ākāśa or space. All physical objects, even the most subtle, are built up by the combination of these five elements. Our sense experience depends on them. By the action of vibration comes the sense of sound; by the action of things in a world of vibrations the sense of touch, by the action of light the sense of sight, by the action of water the sense of taste, by the action of earth the sense of smell.

In the Taittirīya Upaniṣad the pupil approaches the father and asks him to explain to him the nature of Brahman. He is given the formal definition and is asked to supply the content by his own reflection. 'That from which these beings are born, that in which when born they live, and that into which they enter at their death is Brahman.' What is the reality which conforms to this account? The son is impressed by material phenomena and fixes on matter (anna) as the basic principle. He is not satisfied, for matter cannot account for the forms of life. He looks upon life (prāṇa) as the basis of the world. Life belongs to a different order from matter. Life, again, cannot be the ultimate principle, for conscious phenomena are not commensurate with living forms. There is something more in consciousness than in life. So he is led to believe that consciousness (manas) is the ultimate principle. But consciousness has different grades. The instinctive consciousness of animals is quite different from the intellectual consciousness of human beings. So the son affirms that intellectual consciousness (vijñāna) is Brahman. Man alone, among nature's children has the capacity to change himself by his own effort and transcend his limitations. Even this is incomplete because it is subject to discords and dualities. Man's intellect aims at the attainment of truth but succeeds only in making guesses about it; there must be a power in man which sees the truth unveiled. A deeper principle of consciousness must emerge if the fundamental intention of nature, which has led to the development of matter, life, mind, and intellectual consciousness, is to be accomplished. The son finally arrives at the truth that spiritual freedom or delight (ānanda), the ecstasy of fulfilled existence is the ultimate principle. Here the search ends, not simply because the pupil's doubts are satisfied but because the pupil's doubts are stilled by the vision of Self-evident Reality. He apprehends the Supreme Unity that lies behind all the lower forms. The Upaniṣad suggests that he leaves behind the discursive reason and contemplates the One and is lost in ecstasy.¹ It concludes with the affirmation that absolute Reality is satyam, truth, jñānam, consciousness, anantam, infinity.

There are some who affirm that ānanda is the nearest approximation to Absolute Reality, but is not itself the Absolute Reality. For it is a logical representation. The experience gives us peace, but unless we are established in it we have not received the highest.

In this account, the Upaniṣad assumes that the naturalistic theory of evolution cannot be accepted. The world is not to be viewed as an automatic development without any intelligent course or intelligible aim. Matter, life, mind, intelligence are different forms of existence with their specific characteristics

I died a mineral and became a plant,
I died a plant and rose an animal,
I died an animal and I was man.
Why should I fear? When was I less by dying?
Yet once more I shall die as man, to soar
With the blessed angels; but even from angelhood
I must pass on. All except God perishes,
When I have sacrificed my angel soul,
I shall become that which no mind ever conceived.
O, let me not exist! for Non-existence proclaims, and modes of action, each acting on the other but not derived from each other. The evolution of life in the context of matter is produced not by the material principle but by the working of a new life-principle which uses the conditions of matter for the production of life. Life is not the mechanical resultant of the antecedent co-ordination of material forces, but it is what is now called an emergent. We cannot, by a complete knowledge of the previous conditions, anticipate the subsequent result. There is an element of the incalculable. Life emerges when the material conditions are available, which permit life to organise itself in matter. In this sense, we may say that matter aspires for life, but life is not produced by lifeless particles. So also life may be said to be aspiring for or be instinct with mind, which is ready to emerge when conditions enable it to organise itself in living matter. Mind cannot be produced from things without mind. When the necessary mental conditions are prepared, intelligence qualifies the mental living creature. Nature is working according to this fundamental intention, which is being accomplished because it is essentially the instrument of the Supreme Being.
"To him we shall return."

The world is not the result of meaningless chance. There is a purpose working itself out through the ages. It is a view which modern science confirms. By interpreting the fragmentary relics of far remote times, science tells us how this earth in which we live was gradually adapted to be a place where life could develop, how life came and developed through uncounted centuries until animal consciousness arose and this again gradually developed, until apparently, man with self-conscious reason appeared on the scene. The long record of the development of the human race and the great gifts of spiritual men like the Buddha, Socrates, Jesus make out that man has to be transcended by God-man.

It cannot be argued that, when material particles are organised in a specific way, life arises. The principle of organisation is not matter. The explanation of a thing is to be sought in what is above it in the scale of existence and value and not below it. Matter cannot raise itself. It moves to a higher level by the help of the higher itself. It cannot undergo inner development without being acted upon by something above it. The lower is the material for the higher. Life is the matter for mind and form for physical material: so also intellect is form for the mind and matter for the spirit. The eternal is the origin of the actual and its nisus to improvement. To think of it as utterly transcendent or as a future possibility is to miss its incidence in the actual. We cannot miss the primordially of the Supreme. 'Verily, in the beginning this world was Brahman.'¹ There is the perpetual activity of the Supreme in the world.

The Upaniṣad affirms that Brahman on which all else depends, to which all existences aspire, Brahman which is sufficient to itself, aspiring to no other, without any need, is the source of all other beings, the intellectual principle, the perceiving mind, life and body. It is the principle which unifies the world of the physicist, the biologist, the psychologist, the logician, the moralist and the artist. The hierarchy of all things and beings from soulless matter to the deity is the cosmos. Plato's world-architect, Aristotle's world-mover belong to the cosmos. If there is ordered development, progressive evolution, it is because there is the divine principle at work in the universe.

Cosmic process is one of universal and unceasing change and is patterned on a duality which is perpetually in conflict, the perfect order of heaven and the chaos of the dark waters. Life creates opposites, as it creates sexes, in order to reconcile them. 'In the beginning the woman (Ūrvaśī) went about in the flood seeking a master.'² Indra, for example, divided the world into earth and sky. He 'produced his father and mother from his own body.' This conflict runs through the whole empirical world, and will end when the aim of the universe is accomplished. Creation moves upward towards the divine. When the union between the controlling spirit and the manifesting matter is completed, the purpose of the world, the end of the evolutionary process, the revelation of spirit on earth is accomplished. The earth is the foothold of God, the mother of all creatures whose father is heaven.³

The conflict is not final. The duality is not a sterile dualism. Heaven and earth, God and matter have the same origin.

As regards the primordial God Hiraṇya-garbha, a circular process is found. The primal being spontaneously produces the primeval water; from this comes the primordial God as the first born of the divine Order, the golden-germ of the world 'who was the first seed resting on the navel of the unborn.'¹ Hiraṇya-garbha who is the World-soul expresses his spirit through the environment. He manifests the forms contained within himself. The world is fixed in him as are the spokes in the hub of a wheel. He is the thread, sūtrātman, on which all beings and all worlds are strung like the beads of a necklace. He is the first-born, prathama-ja. He is also called Brahmā and these Brahmās are created from world to world.²

In the Ṛg Veda,³ Hiraṇya-garbha is the golden germ which enters into creation after the first action of the creator. In the Sāṃkhya, prakṛti is treated as unconscious and develops on account of the influence of the multitude of individual subjects, and the first product of development is mahat, the great one, or buddhi, the intellect. It is the development of cosmic intelliessential relation to Earth-mother. The two are correlative. See A. B. Cook: Zeus (1914), Vol. I, p. 779.

Zoroaster reaches the conception of a single spiritual God, Ormuzd or Ahura Mazda, in whom the principle of good is personified, while the evil principle is embodied in Ahriman, or Angra Mainyu, who limits the omnipotence of Ahura Mazda. The whole creation is a combat between the two. The two principles strive eternally in life, and in this struggle men take part. Man is responsible for his actions, good or bad. If he struggles against evil, confesses God and cares for the purity of his body and soul, then after four periods of three thousand years each in the world's history a time shall arrive for the final victory of good over evil, of Ormuzd over Ahriman. The general resurrection of the dead and the last judgment will take place then, assuring him of his place among the saved and the righteous.

The Jews adopted the two principles of good and evil and they were taken over by Christianity. When Blake speaks of the marriage of Heaven and Hell, Heaven represents the one clear light over all and Hell the dark world of passion and the senses. Divided, both are equally barren, but from their union springs joy. 'Oh that man would seek immortal moments! Oh that men could converse with God' was Blake's cry.

gence or Hiranya-garbha. On the subjective side, buddhi is the first element of the līṅga or the subtle body. It is the essence of the individual spirit. Buddhi serves as the basis for the development of the principle of individuation, ahamkāra, from which are derived, on the one hand, mind and the ten sense organs, five of perception and five of action and, on the other hand, the subtle elements from which arise in their turn the gross elements. Sattva is buddhi, the innermost of the three circles, the outer being rajas and tamas which are identified with ahamkāra and manas, which are the emanations of rajas and tamas. The sattva or the buddhi is the bīja, the seed of the living individual, since it contains the seeds of karma which develop at each birth into a sense-organism. The sattva or līṅga is called the ego, the jīva. As the buddhi is the sūtrātman of the individual, so is Hiranya-garbha the sūtrātman, the thread-controller of the world.

In the Kāṭha Upaniṣad,¹ in the development of principles the great self stands after the undeveloped and the primeval spirit. Hiranya-garbha, the World-soul is the first product of the principle of non-being influenced by the Eternal Spirit, Īśvara. The puruṣa of the Sāṃkhya is the Eternal Spirit made many. Hiranya-garbha is the great self, mahān ātmā, which arises from the undiscriminated, the avyakta, which corresponds to the primitive material or waters of the Brāhmaṇas, or the prakṛti of the Sāṃkhya. We have the Supreme Self, the Absolute, the Supreme Self as the eternal subject observing the eternal object, waters or prakṛti and the great self which is the first product of this interaction of the eternal subject and the principle of objectivity. The Supreme Lord, Īśvara, who eternally produces, outlasts the drama of the universe. Śaṅkara begins his commentary on the Bhagavad-gītā with the verse: 'Nārāyaṇa is beyond the unmanifest. The golden egg is produced from the unmanifest. The earth with its seven islands and all other worlds are in the egg.' The names and forms of the manifested world are latent in the egg as the future tree is in the seed.

thought. For Plato, the Logos was the archetypal idea. For the Stoics it is the principle of reason which quickens and informs matter. Philo speaks of the Divine Logos as the 'first born son,'¹ 'archetypal man,'² 'image of God,'³ 'through whom the world was created.'⁴ Logos, the Reason, 'the Word was in the beginning and the Word became flesh.' The Greek term, Logos, means both Reason and Word. The latter indicates an act of divine will. Word is the active expression of character. The difference between the conception of Divine Intelligence or Reason and the Word of God is that the latter represents the will of the Supreme. Vāc is Brahman.⁵ Vāc, word, wisdom, is treated in the Ṛg Veda as the all-knowing. The first-born of Rta is Vāc:⁶ yāvad brahma tiṣṭhati tāvatī vāk.⁷ The Logos is conceived as personal like Hiranya-garbha. 'The Light was the light of men.' 'The Logos became flesh.'⁸

The Supreme is generally conceived as light, jyotiṣām jyotiḥ, the light of lights. Light is the principle of communication. Hiranya-garbha is organically bound up with the world. Himself, a creature, the first-born of creation, he shares the fate of all creation in the end.⁹ But Īśvara is prior to the World-soul.¹⁰ The principle of process applies to God. While he is the expression of the non-temporal he is also the temporal. Īśvara, the eternal Being functions in the temporal Hiranya-garbha. Rāmānuja who looks upon Īśvara as the supreme transcendent Reality above all world events treats Brahmā as the demi-urge of creation who forms the lower world in the name and bidding of God.

Why is the universe what it is, rather than something else? Why is there this something, rather than another? This is traced to the divine will. This world and its controlling spirit are the expressions of the Supreme Lord. While the World-soul and the world are organically related and are inter-dependent, there is no such relationship between the Supreme Lord and the world, for that would be to subject the infinite to the finite. The relationship is an 'accident' to use Whitehead's expression. This word 'accident' implies two different considerations, (1) that Divine Creativity is not bound up with this world in such a way that the changes which occur in the world affect the integrity of the Divine, and (2) that the world is an accidental expression of the Divine principle. Creativity is not bound to express itself in this particular form. If the choice were necessary it would not be free. Creation is the free expression of the Divine mind, icchā-mātram. The world is the manifestation of Hiranya-garbha and the creation of Īśvara. The world is the free self-determination of God. The power of self-determination, self-expression, belongs to God. It is not by itself. It belongs to the Absolute which is the abode of all possibilities, and by its creative power one of these possibilities is freely chosen for accomplishment. The power of manifestation is not alien to being. It does not enter it from outside. It is in being, inherent in it. It may be active or inactive. We thus get the conception of an Absolute-God, Brahman—Īśvara, where the first term indicates infinite being and possibility, and the second suggests creative freedom.¹ Why should the Absolute Brahman perfect, infinite, needing nothing, desiring nothing, move out into the world? It is not compelled to do so. It may have this potentiality but it is not bound or compelled by it. It is free to move or not to move, to throw itself into forms or remain formless. If it still indulges its power of creativity, it is because of its free choice.

In Īśvara we have the two elements of wisdom and power, Siva and Sakti. By the latter the Supreme who is unmeasured and immeasurable becomes measured and defined. Immutable being becomes infinite fecundity. Pure being, which is the free basis and support of cosmic existence, is not the whole of our experience. Between the Absolute and the World-soul is the Creative Consciousness. It is prajñāna-ghana or truth-consciousness. If sat denotes the primordial being in its undifferentenced unity, satya is the same being immanent in its differentiations. If the Absolute is pure unity without any extension or variation, God is the creative power by which worlds spring into existence. The Absolute has moved out of its primal poise and become knowledge-will. It is the all-determining principle. It is the Absolute in action as Lord and Creator. While the Absolute is spaceless and timeless potentiality, God is the vast self-awareness comprehending, apprehending every possibility.¹

Brahman is not merely a featureless Absolute. It is all this world. Vāyu or air is said to be manifest Brahman, pratyakṣam brahma. The Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad makes out that Brahman is beast, bird and insect, the tottering old man, boy and girl. Brahman sustains the cosmos and is the self of each individual. Supra-cosmic transcendence and cosmic universality are both real phases of the one Supreme. In the former aspect the Spirit is in no way dependent on the cosmic manifold; in the latter the Spirit functions as the principle of the cosmic manifold. The supra-cosmic silence and the cosmic integration are both real. The two, nirguṇa and saguna Brahman, Absolute and God, are not different. Jayatīrtha contends that Śaṅkara is wrong in holding that Brahman is of two kinds—brahmaṇo dvairūpyasya aprāmāṇikatvāt.² It is the same Brahman who is described in different ways.

¹ Eckhart says: 'God and Godhead are as different as heaven from earth. . . . God becomes and unbecomes.' 'All in Godhead is one, and of this naught can be said. God works, but Godhead works not. There is no work for it to do and no working in it. Never did it contemplate anything of work. God and Godhead differ after the manner of working and not working. . . . When I come into the Ground, into the depths, into the flow and fount of Godhead, none will ask me whence I have come or whither I go. None will have missed me; God passes away.' Sermon LVI. The personality of God is not to be conceived on the human lines. He is not to be thought of as a greatly magnified person. We should not attribute to the Divine human qualities as we know them.¹ We have (1) the Absolute, (2) God as Creative power, (3) God immanent in this world. These are not to be regarded as separate entities. They are arranged in this order because there is a logical priority. The Absolute must be there with all its possibilities before the Divine Creativity can choose one. The divine choice must be there before there can be the Divine immanent in this world. This is a logical succession and not a temporal one. The world-spirit must be there before there can be the world. We thus get the four poises or statuses of reality,¹ the Absolute, Brahman, (2) the Creative Spirit, Īśvara, (3) the World-Spirit, Hiraṇya-garbha, and (4) the World. This is the way in which the Hindu thinkers interpret the integral nature of the Supreme Reality. Māṇḍūkya Upaniṣad says that Brahman is catus-pāt, four-footed, and its four principles are Brahman, Īśvara, Hiraṇya-garbha and Virāj.²

¹ Aquinas says: 'Things said alike of God and of other beings are not said either in quite the same sense or in a totally different sense but in an analogous sense.' Summa Contra Gentiles XXXIV. God is not good or loving in the human sense. 'For who hath known the mind of the Lord?' Romans XI. 34. God is personal, but, as Karl Barth says, 'personal in an incomprehensible way in so far as the conception of His personality surpasses all our views of personality. This is so, just because He and He alone is a true, real and genuine person. Were we to overlook this and try to conceive God in our own strength according to our conception of personality, we should make an idol out of God.' The Knowledge of God and the Service of God (1938), pp. 3iff.

² In Plotinus we have a similar scheme. (i) The One alone, the simple, the unconditioned. God beyond being of Basilides, the godhead of Eckhart which can only be indicated by negative terms. We cannot even affirm existence of it, though it is not non-existent. It cannot be thought of as either subject or object of experience, as in it subject and object are identical. It is pure impersonal experience or perhaps the ground of all experience; it is pure consciousness, ineffable supra-existence. It is not the first cause, not the creator god. It is cause only in the sense that it is everywhere, and without it nothing could be. (ii) The Nous. The Intelligible world which Plotinus calls One—Many, the world of Platonic forms or archetypes. Not mere Ideas or things thought by the Divine Thinker, not mere passive archetypal pictures. They are active powers within the Divine mind. It is personal God. Unity cannot be separated from diversity. The most perfect form of expressive act is thought or intellection, vijñāna, Divine Intellect, First thinker and thought, the personal Lord, Universal Intelligence, The

The conception of tri-supārṇa is developed in the fourth section of the Taittirīya Upaniṣad. The Absolute is conceived as a nest from out of which three birds have emerged, viz. Virāj, Hiraṇya-garbha and Īśvara. The Absolute conceived as it is in itself, independent of any creation, is called Brahman. When it is thought of as having manifested itself as the universe, it is called Virāj; when it is thought of as the spirit moving everywhere in the universe, it is called Hiraṇya-garbha; when it is thought of as a personal God creating, protecting and destroying the universe, it is called Īśvara. Īśvara becomes Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva when his three functions are taken separately.¹ The real is not a sum of these. It is an ineffable unity in which these conceptual distinctions are made. These are fourfold to our mental view, separable only in appearance. If we identify the real with any one definable state of being, however pure and perfect, we violate the unity and divide the indivisible. The different standpoints are consistent with each other, complementary to each other and necessary in their unknowable Absolute is mediated to us through the Divine Intelligence. This Intellectual principle of Plotinus is the Īśvara of the Upaniṣads. This universal intelligence makes possible the multiple universe. For Plotinus this principle is the totality of divine thoughts or Ideas in Plato's sense. These Ideas or Thoughts are real beings, powers. They are the originals, archetypes, intellectual forms of all that exists in the lower spheres. All the phases of existence down to the lowest ultimate of material being or the lowest forms of being in the visible universe are ideally present in this realm of divine thoughts. This divine intellectual principle has both being and non-being. It has, for Plotinus, two acts, the upward contemplation of the One and generation towards the lower. (iii) One and Many. The soul of the All is the third, which fashions the material universe on the model of divine thoughts, the Ideas laid up within the Divine Mind. It is the eternal cause of the cosmos, the creator and therefore the vital principle of the world. God is envisaged as something apart from the world, its creator or artificer. Human ideas of God are centred round him. Plotinus does not make the sensible world a direct emanation from the Intelligible World. It is the product or the creation of the World-soul, the third person of the Neo-Platonic trinity, herself an emanation from the Intelligible World, the Nous. Our souls are parts or emanations of the World-soul. The three hypostases form collectively, for Plotinus, the one transcendent being. The All-Soul is the expression of the energy of the Divine, even as the Intellectual principle is the expression of the thought or vision of the godhead. (iv) The many alone. It is the world-body, the world of matter without form. It is the possibility of manifested form.

totality for an integral view of life and the world. If we are able to hold them together, the conflicting views which are emphasised exclusively by certain schools of Indian Vedānta become reconciled.

Absolute being is not an existing quality to be found in the things. It is not an object of thought or the result of production. It forms an absolute contrast to, and is fundamentally different from, things that are, as is in its way nothingness. It can be expressed only negatively or analogically. It is that from which our speech turns back along with the mind, being unable to comprehend its fullness.¹ It is that which the tongue of man cannot truly express nor human intelligence conceive. Śaṅkara in his commentary on the *Brahma Sūtra*² refers to an Upaniṣad text which is not to be found in any of the extant Upaniṣads. Bāhva, asked by Bāṣkali to expound the nature of Brahman, kept silent. He prayed, 'Teach me, sir.' The teacher was silent, and when addressed a second and a third time he said: 'I am teaching but you do not follow. The self is silence.'³

We can only describe the Absolute in negative terms. In the words of Plotinus, 'We say what he is not, We cannot say what he is.' The Absolute is beyond the sphere of predication. It is the śūnyatā of the Buddhists. It is 'not gross, not subtle, not short, not long, not glowing, not shadowy, not dark, not attached, flavourless, smell-less, eye-less, ear-less, speech-less, mind-less, breath-less, mouth-less, not internal, not external, consuming nothing and consumed by nothing.'⁴ It cannot be truly designated. Any description makes It into something. It is nothing among things. It is non-dual, advaita. It denies duality. This does not mean, however, that the Absolute is non-being. It means only that the Absolute is all-inclusive and nothing exists outside it.

Plato says that the unfathomable ground of the universe, the absolute, is 'beyond essence and truth.' Plotinus describes the utter transcendence of the One thus: 'Since the Nature or Hypostasis of The One is the engenderer of the All, it can Itself be none of the things in the All; that is, It is not a thing; It does not possess quality or quantity; It is not an Intellectual Principle, not a soul; It is not in motion and not at rest; not in space, not in time; It is essentially of a unique form or rather of no-form, since it is prior to form, as it is prior to movement and to rest; all these categories hold only in the realm of existence and constitute the multiplicity characteristic of that lower realm.' Enneads VI. 9. 3. 'This wonder, this One, to which in verity no name may be given.' ibid. VI. 9. 5.

'Our way then takes us beyond knowing; there may be no wandering from unity, knowing and knowable must all be left aside. Every object of thought, even the highest, we must pass by, for all that is good is later than this. . . . No doubt we should not speak of seeing; but we cannot help talking in dualities, seen and seer, instead of boldly, the achievement of unity. In this seeing, we neither hold an object nor trace distinction; there is no two. The man is changed, no longer himself nor self belonging; he is merged with the supreme, sunken into it, one with it. Only in separation is there duality. That is why the vision baffles telling. We cannot detach the supreme to state it; if we have seen something thus detached, we have failed of the supreme.' Enneads. VI. 9. 4 and 10.

Pseudo-Dionysius, whose utterances were once accepted as almost apostolic authority, observes: 'For it is more fitting to praise God by taking away than by ascription. Here we take away all things from Him, going up from particulars to universals, that we may know openly the unknowable which is hidden in and under all things that may be known. And we behold that darkness beyond being, concealed under all natural light.'

Chuang Tzu's vision of the boundless world has this: 'You cannot explain the sea to a frog in a well—the creature of a narrow sphere. You cannot explain ice to a grasshopper—the creature of a season. You cannot explain Tao to a pedant—This view is too limited.' Waley:

inclusive of the whole empirical world. The Absolute is described as full both of light and not-light, of desire and not-desire, of anger and not-anger, of law and not-law, having verily filled all, both the near and the far off, the this and the that.¹ Negative and positive characterisations are given to affirm the positivity of being.

To say that the nature of Brahman cannot be defined does not mean that it has no essential nature of its own. We cannot define it by its accidental features, for they do not belong to its essence. There is nothing outside it. As no inquiry into its nature can be instituted without some description, its svarūpa or essential nature is said to be sat or being, cit or consciousness and ānanda or bliss.² These are different phrases for the same being. Self-being, self-consciousness and self-delight are one. It is absolute being in which there is no nothingness. It is absolute consciousness in which there is no non-consciousness. It is absolute bliss in which there is no suffering or negation of bliss. All suffering is due to a second, an obstacle; all delight

² They are not so much qualities of Brahman as the very nature of Brahman. Commenting on the passage Brahman is truth, wisdom and infinity, satyaṃ jñānaṃ anantaṃ brahma, Ś. writes:

arises from the realisation of something withheld, by the overcoming of obstacles, by the surpassing of the limit. It is this delight that overflows into creation. The self-expression of the Absolute, the creation of numberless universes is also traced to Brahman. All things that exist are what they are, because of the nature of Brahman as sat, cit and ānanda. All things are forms of one immutable being, variable expressions of the invariable reality. To describe Brahman as the cause of the world is to give its taṭastha or accidental feature.¹ The defining characteristics are in both cases due to our logical needs.² When the Absolute is regarded as the basis and explanation of the world, he is conceived as the lord of all, the knower of all, the inner controller of all.³ God has moved out everywhere: sa paryagāt. The Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad speaks of the one God, beside whom there is no second, who creates all the worlds and rules with His powers, and at the end of time rolls them up again.⁴ He lives in all things⁵ and yet transcends them. The Universal Self is like the sun who is the eye of the whole universe and is untouched by the defects of our vision.⁶ He is said to fill the whole world and yet remain beyond its confines. 'Verily motionless like a lone tree does the God stand in the heaven, and yet by Him is this whole world filled.'⁷

The distinction between Brahman in itself and Brahman in the universe, the transcendent beyond manifestation and the transcendent in manifestation, the indeterminate and the determinate, nirguṇo guṇī, is not exclusive.⁸ The two are like two sides of one reality. The Real is at the same time being realised.

sonal is said to be superior to the superpersonal:¹ puruṣān na paraṁ kiñcit, there is nothing beyond the person. It is doubtful whether the author of the Brahma Sūtra accepted the distinction of saguṇa and nirguṇa in regard to Brahman. Even the nirguṇa Brahman is not without determinations. The Sūtrakāra makes a distinction between the super-personal (apuruṣa-vidha) and the personal (puruṣa-vidha), i.e. between Brahman and Īśvara. The latter is not a human fancy or a concession to the weak in mind. The nirākāra (formless), and the sākāra (with form), are different aspects of the same Reality. The seeker can choose either in his spiritual practices. In III. 3 we find that the author maintains that the aṅgāra texts which describe Brahman negatively as 'not this, not this' are 'not useful for meditation.'² He holds that Brahman is unaffected by the different states, of waking, dream, sleep. The view that Brahman undergoes changes is refuted on the ground that they relate to the effects due to the self-concealment of Brahman. Bādarāyaṇa denies reality to a second principle.

Hiranya-garbha, the World-soul is the divine creator, the supreme lord Īśvara at work in this universe. A definite possibility of the Absolute is being realised in this world. In the Upaniṣads the distinction between Īśvara and Hiranya-garbha, between God and the World-soul is not sharply drawn. If the World-soul is ungrounded in Īśvara, if he is exclusively temporal, then we cannot be certain of the end of the cosmic process. When the Upaniṣads assert that the individual ego is rooted in the universal self or ātman, it would be preposterous to imagine that the World-soul is unrelated to Īśvara or Brahman.³

³ Valentinus whose activity may be assigned to A.D. 130-150, teaches a similar view. The primordial essence is the Deep (Bythos). With it dwelt a thought called also Grace (for it was not conditioned) and Silence (for it made no sign of its existence). Professor Burkitt writes: 'Somehow the immeasurable Deep made its own thought fecund and so Mind (Nous) came into being; although it was called unique, it had a correlative side to it called Truth . . . Nous, Mind is an intelligent understanding, the inevitable counterpart of which is Truth; for, if there be nothing true to understand, there can be no intelligent understanding.' Cambridge Ancient History, Vol. XII (1939), p. 470.

Eckhart refers to the World-soul and not to the Supreme God in the passage, where he asserts that 'God becomes and disbecomes.'

Hiraṇya-garbha who has in him the whole development in germ acts on the waters. As we have seen, the image of waters is an ancient one by which human thought attempts to explain the development of the universe. The waters are initially at rest and so free from waves or forms. The first movement, the first disturbance, creates forms and is the seed of the universe. The play of the two is the life of the universe. When the development is complete, when what is in germ is manifest, we have the world-consummation. Hiraṇya-garbha creates the world according to the eternal Veda, which has within itself eternally the primary types of all classes of things; even as the God of the mediaeval scholastics creates according to the eternal archetype of Ideas which He as the eternal Word eternally possesses. Brahman is the unity of all that is named.¹ Hiraṇya-garbha or Brahmā is the World-soul² and is subject to changes of the world. He is kārya Brahmā or effect Brahman as distinct from Īśvara who is kāraṇa Brahmā or causal Brahman. Hiraṇya-garbha arises at every world-beginning and is dissolved at every world-ending. Īśvara is not subject to these changes. For both Śaṅkara and Rāmānuja, Hiraṇya-garbha has the place of a subordinate and created demi-urge. Īśvara is the eternal God who is not drawn into but directs the play of the worlds that rise and perish and is Himself existing transcendentally from all eternity. The Vedic deities are subordinate to Īśvara and hold a similar position to Him in the formation and control of the world that the angelic powers and directors maintain in the heavenly hierarchy of scholasticism and of Dante.

We have thus the four sides of one whole: (i) the transcendental universal being anterior to any concrete reality; (ii) the causal principle of all differentiation; (iii) the innermost essence of the world; and (iv) the manifest world. They are co-existent and not alternating poises where we have either a quiescent Brahman or a creative Lord. These are simultaneous sides of the one Reality.

ULTIMATE REALITY: ĀTMAN

The word 'ātman' is derived from an 'to breathe.' It is the breath of life.¹ Gradually its meaning is extended to cover life, soul, self or essential being of the individual. Śaṅkara derives ātman from the root which means 'to obtain' 'to eat or enjoy or pervade all.'² Ātman is the principle of man's life, the soul that pervades his being, his breath, prāṇa, his intellect, prajñā, and transcends them. Ātman is what remains when everything that is not the self is eliminated. The Rg Veda speaks of the unborn part, ajo bhāgaḥ.³ There is an unborn and so immortal element in man,⁴ which is not to be confused with body, life, mind and intellect. These are not the self but its forms, its external expressions. Our true self is a pure existence, self-aware, unconditioned by the forms of mind and intellect. When we cast the self free from all outward events, there arises from the inward depths an experience, secret and wonderful, strange and great. It is the miracle of self-knowledge, ātma-jñāna.⁵ Just as, in relation to the universe, the real is Brahman, while name and form are only a play of manifestation, so also the individual egos are the varied expressions of the One Universal Self. As Brahman is the eternal quiet underneath the drive and activity of the universe, so Ātman is the foundational reality underlying the conscious powers of the individual, the inward ground of the human soul. There is an ultimate depth to our life below the plane of thinking and striving. The Ātman is the super-reality of the jīva, the individual ego.

The Chāndogya Upaniṣad gives us a story, where gods and demons both anxious to learn the true nature of the Self approach Prajā-pati who maintains that the ultimate self is free from sin, free from old age, free from death and grief, free from hunger and thirst, which desires nothing and imagines nothing. It is the persisting spirit, that which remains constant in all the vicissitudes of waking, dream and sleep, death, rebirth and deliverance. The whole account assumes that there is consciousness even in the apparently unconscious states, when we sleep, when we are drugged or stunned. The gods sent Indra and the demons Virocana as their representatives to learn the truth. The first suggestion is that the self is the image that we see in the eye, in water or in a mirror. The conception of the self as the physical body is inadequate. To indicate that what we see in another's eye, a pail of water or a mirror is not the true self, Prajā-pati asked them to put on their best clothes and look again. Indra saw the difficulty and said to Prajā-pati that as this self (the shadow in the water) is well adorned when the body is well adorned, well dressed when the body is well dressed, well cleaned when the body is well cleaned, so that self will also be blind if the body is blind, lame if the body is lame, crippled if the body is crippled, and will perish in fact as soon as the body perishes. Such a view cannot be accepted. If the self is not the body, may it be the dreaming self? The second suggestion is that the true self is "he who moves about happy in dreams." Again a difficulty was felt. Indra says that, though it is true that this dreaming self is not affected by the changes of the body, yet in dreams we feel that we are struck or chased, we experience pain and shed tears. We rage in dreams, storm with indignation, do things perverted, mean and malicious. Indra feels that the self is not the same as dream-consciousness. The self is not the composite of mental states, however independent they may be of the accidents of the body. Dream states are not self-existent. Indra again approaches

Prajā-pati who gives him another suggestion that the self is the consciousness in deep sleep. Indra feels that, in that state, there is consciousness neither of the self nor of the objective world. Indra feels that he does not know himself nor does he know anything that exists. He is gone to utter annihilation. But the self exists even in deep sleep. Even when the object is not present, the subject is there. The final reality is the active universal consciousness, which is not to be confused with either the bodily, or the dreaming consciousness or the consciousness in deep sleep. In the state of deep, dreamless sleep, the self wrapped round by the intellect has no consciousness of objects, but is not unconscious. The true self is the absolute self, which is not an abstract metaphysical category but the authentic spiritual self. The other forms belong to objectified being. Self is life, not an object. It is an experience, in which the self is the knowing subject and is at the same time the known object. Self is open only to self. The life of the self is not set over against knowledge of it as an objective thing. Self is not the objective reality, nor something purely subjective. The subject-object relationship has meaning only in the world of objects, in the sphere of discursive knowledge. The Self is the light of lights, and through it alone is there any light in the universe. It is perpetual, abiding light. It is that which neither lives nor dies, which has neither movement nor change and which endures when all else passes away. It is that which sees and not the object seen. Whatever is an object belongs to the not-self. The self is the constant witness-consciousness.¹

The four states stand on the subjective side for the four kinds of soul, Vaiśvānara, the experiencer of gross things, Taijasa, the experiencer of the subtle, Prājña, the experiencer of the unmanifested objectivity, and the Turiya, the Supreme Self. The Māṇḍūkya Upaniṣad, by an analysis of the four modes of consciousness, waking, dream, deep sleep and illumined consciousness, makes out that the last is the basis of the other three.

Pañca-dāśī I. 7.

On the objective side we have the cosmos, Virāj, the World-soul Hiranya-garbha, the Supreme God, Īśvara, and the Absolute, Brahman.¹ By looking upon Īśvara as prājña, it is suggested that the supreme intelligence who dwells in the sleeping state holds all things in an unmanifested condition. The divine wisdom sees all things, not as human reason does in parts and relations, but in the original reason of their existence, their primal truth and reality. It is what the Stoics call spermatikos or the seed Logos which is manifested in conscious beings as a number of seed logoi.

In treatises on Yoga, the potential all-consciousness of the state of sleep is represented in the form of a radiant serpent called Kuṇḍalinī or Vāg-devī. We come across this representation in earlier treatises also. In the Rg Veda, Vāc is said to be the serpent queen, śarpa-rājñī.² The process of Yoga consists in rousing the radiant serpent and lifting it up from the lowest sphere to the heart, where in union with prāṇa or life-breath its universal nature is realised and from it to the top of the skull. It goes out through an opening called brahma-randhra to which corresponds in the cosmic organism the opening formed by the sun on the top of the vault of the sky.

¹ Cp. William Law: 'Though God is everywhere present, yet He is only present to thee in the deepest and most central part of thy soul. The natural senses cannot possess God or unite thee to Him; nay, thy inward faculties of understanding, will and memory can only reach after God, but cannot be the place of His habitation in thee. But there is a root or depth of thee from whence all these faculties come forth, as lines from a centre, or as branches from the body of the tree. This depth is called the centre, the fund or bottom of the soul. This depth is the unity, the eternity—I had almost said the infinity of thy soul; for it is so infinite that nothing can satisfy it or give it rest but the infinity of God.' Quoted in Perennial Philosophy by Aldous Huxley (1944), p. 2. Again, 'My Me is God, nor do I recognise any other Me except my God Himself.' St. Catherine of Genoa (ibid., p. 11.)

Eckhart: 'To gauge the soul we must gauge it with God, for the Ground of God and the Ground of the soul are one and the same.' (ibid., p. 12) Again 'The highest part of the soul stands above time and knows nothing of time.' 'There is a principle in the soul altogether spiritual. I used to call it a spiritual light or a spark. But now I say that it is free of all names, void of all forms. It is one and simple, as God is one and simple.'

BRAHMAN AS ĀTMAN

In the early prose Upaniṣads, ātman is the principle of the individual consciousness and Brahman the superpersonal ground of the cosmos. Soon the distinction diminishes and the two are identified. God is not merely the transcendent numinous other, but is also the universal spirit which is the basis of human personality and its ever-renewing vitalising power. Brahman, the first principle of the universe, is known through ātman, the inner self of man. In the *Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa*¹ and the *Chāndogya Upaniṣad*² it is said: 'Verily this whole world is Brahman,' and also 'This soul of mine within the heart, this is Brahman.' 'That person who is seen in the eye, He is ātman, that is Brahman.'³ God is both the wholly other, transcendent and utterly beyond the world and man, and yet he enters into man and lives in him and becomes the inmost content of his very existence.⁴

Nārāyaṇa is the God in man who lives in constant association with nara, the human being. He is the immortal dwelling in the mortals.⁵ The human individual is more than the universe. He lives independently in his own inexpressible infinity as well as in the cosmic harmonies. We can be one with all cosmic existence by entering into the cosmic consciousness. We become superior

³ B.U. I. 4. 10. Cp. Keith: 'It is impossible to deny that the Ātman-Brahman doctrine has a long previous history in the Brāhmaṇas and is a logical development of the idea of unity of the Ṛg Veda.' The Religion and Philosophy of the Veda and the Upaniṣads, p. 494. Heraclitus says 'I searched myself.' The Logos is to be sought within, for man's nature is a microcosm and represents the nature of the whole.

Cp. Plotinus: 'One that seeks to penetrate the nature of the Divine Mind must see deeply into the nature of his own soul, into the Divinest point of himself. He must first make abstraction of the body, then of the lower soul which built up that body, then of all the faculties of sense, of all desires and emotions and every such triviality, of all that leans towards the mortal. What is left after this abstraction is the part which we describe as the image of the Divine Mind, an emanation preserving some of that Divine Light.' Enneads V. 3. 9.

to all cosmic existence by entering into the world-transcending consciousness. Answering to the four grades of consciousness, waking, dream, deep sleep, spiritual consciousness, we have the four states of the individual, sthūla (gross), sūkṣma (subtle), kāraṇa (causal) and the pure self. As Īśvara is the cause of the world, so the causal self is the source of the development of the subtle and the gross bodies.¹

THE STATUS OF THE WORLD: MĀYĀ AND AVIDYĀ

The ecstasy of divine union, the bliss of realisation tempts one to disregard the world with its imperfections and look upon it as a troubled and unhappy dream. The actual fabric of the world, with its loves and hates, with its wars and battles, with its jealousies and competitions as well as its unasked helpfulness, sustained intellectual effort, intense moral struggle seems to be no more than an unsubstantive dream, a phantasmagoria dancing on the fabric of pure being. Throughout the course of human history, men have taken refuge from the world of stresses, vexations and indignities in the apprehension of a spirit beyond. The prayer to 'lead us from unreality to reality, from darkness to light, from death to immortality' assumes the distinction between reality, light and immortality and unreality, darkness and death. The Kaṭha Upaniṣad warns us not to find reality and certainty in the unrealities and uncertainties of this world.² The Chāndogya Upaniṣad tells us that a covering of untruth hides from us the ultimate truth even as the surface of the earth hides from us the golden treasure hidden under it.³ The truth is covered by untruth, anṛta. The Bṛhad-āraṇyaka and the Īśa Upaniṣads speak to us of the veiling of truth by a disc of gold and invoke the grace of God for removing the veil and letting us see the truth.¹ According to the Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad, we can achieve the cessation of the great world-illusion, viśva-māyā-nivṛttiḥ by the worship of God.² If this aspect of spiritual experience were all, the world we live in, that of ignorance, darkness and death would be quite different from the world of underlying reality, the world of truth, light and life. The distinction would become one of utter opposition between God and the world. The latter would be reduced to an evil dream from which we must wake up as soon as possible.³

¹ The first tattva is the root of manifestation, called mahat or the great principle. In ahamkāra we find individual consciousness which proceeds from the intellectual principle by an individualising determination. Sometimes, citta is said to be the first product of prakṛti, with its triple character of buddhi or discrimination, ahamkāra or self-sense and manas or mind.

Indifference to the world is not, however, the main feature of spiritual consciousness. Brahman, the completely transcendent, the pure silence has another side. Brahman is apprehended in two ways. Śaṅkara says: dvirūpaṁ hi brahmā-vagamyate, nāma-rūpa-vikāra-bhedopādhi-viśiṣṭam, tad viparītaṁ sarvopādhi-varjitaṁ. Both the Absolute and the Personal God are real; only the former is the logical prius of the latter. The soul when it rises to full attention knows itself to be related to the single universal consciousness, but when it turns outward it sees the objective universe as a manifestation of this single consciousness. The withdrawal from the world is not the conclusive end of the spiritual quest. There is a return to the world accompanied by a persistent refusal to take the world as it confronts us as final. The world has to be redeemed and it can be redeemed because it has its source in God and final refuge in God.

There are many passages where the world of duality is suggested to be only seeming.⁴ The existence of duality is not admitted to be absolutely real. In the passage of the Chāndogya Upaniṣad regarding the modifications of the three fundamental constituents of being, fire, water and food, it is said that just as all that is made of clay, copper or iron is only a modification, a verbal expression, a simple name, the reality being clay, copper or iron, even so all things can be reduced to three primary forms of reality. It is suggested that all things are reducible to reality, being mere modifications. All this is to be understood as meaning that the Absolute stands above becoming and passing away which it transcends.

In the Maitrī Upaniṣad, the Absolute is compared to a spark, which, made to revolve, creates apparently a fiery circle, an idea expanded by Gauḍapāda in his Kārikā on the Māṇḍūkya Upaniṣad. This may suggest that the world is a mere appearance. Even here the intention may well be to contrast the reality of the Absolute with empirical reality without making the latter an illusion.

The assertion that with the knowledge of the Self all is known¹ does not exclude the reality of what is derived from the Self. When the Aitareya Upaniṣad asserts that the universe is founded in consciousness and guided by it, it assumes the reality of the universe and not merely its apparent existence. To seek the one is not to deny the many. The world of name and form has its roots in Brahman, though it does not constitute the nature of Brahman.² The world is neither one with Brahman nor wholly other than Brahman. The world of fact cannot be apart from the world of being. From one being no other being is born. It exists only in another form, saṁsthānāntareṇa.³

Māyā in this view states the fact that Brahman without losing his integrity is the basis of the world. Though devoid of all specifications, Brahman is the root cause of the universe.⁴ 'If a thing cannot subsist apart from something else, the latter is the essence of that thing.' The cause is logically prior to the effect.⁵ Questions of temporal beginning and growth are subordinate to this relation of ground and consequent. The world does not carry its own meaning. To regard it as final and ultimate is an act of ignorance. So long as the erroneous view of the independence of the world does not disappear, our highest good will not be realised.

The world is the creation of God, the active Lord. The finite is the self-limitation of the infinite. No finite can exist in and by itself. It exists by the infinite. If we seek the dynamic aspect we are inclined to repudiate the experience of pure consciousness. It is not a question of either pure consciousness or dynamic consciousness. These are the different statuses of the one Reality. They are present simultaneously in the universal awareness.

The dependence of the world on God is explained in different ways. In the Chāndogya Upaniṣad, Brahman is defined as tajjalān as that (ta) which gives rise to (ja), absorbs (lā) and sustains (an) the world.¹ The Brhad-āraṇyaka Upaniṣad argues that satyam consists of three syllables, sa, ti, yam, the first and the last being real and the second unreal, madhyato anṛtam. The fleeting is enclosed on both sides by an eternity which is real.² The world comes from Brahman and returns to Brahman. Whatever exists owes its being to Brahman.³ The different metaphors are used to indicate how the universe rises from its central root, how the emanation takes place while the Brahman remains ever-complete, undiminished.⁴ 'As a spider sends forth and draws in (its thread), as herbs grow on the earth, as the hair (grows) on the head and the body of a living person, so from the Imperishable arises here the universe.'⁵ Again, 'As from a

One of the dukes compared the life of man on earth with the flight of a sparrow through a banquet hall in winter, 'a good fire in the midst, whilst the storms of rain and snow prevail abroad; the sparrow, I say, flying in at one door, and immediately out at another, whilst he is within, is safe from the wintry storm; but after a short space of fair weather, he immediately vanishes out of your sight, into the dark winter from which he had emerged. So this life of man appears for a short space, but of what went before, or what is to follow we are utterly ignorant.' blazing fire sparks of like form issue forth by the thousands even so, many kinds of beings issue forth from the Immutable and they return thither too.¹ The many are parts of Brahman even as waves are parts of the sea. All the possibilities of the world are affirmed in the first being, God. The whole universe before its manifestation was there. The antecedent of the manifested universe is the non-manifested universe, i.e. God. God does not create the world but becomes it. Creation is expression. It is not a making of something out of nothing. It is not making so much as becoming.* It is the self-projection of the Supreme. Everything exists in the secret abode of the Supreme.² The primary reality contains within itself the source of its own motion and change.

The Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad mentions the different views of creation held at the time of its composition, that it is due to time, to nature, to necessity, to chance, to the elements, to the Person or the combination of these. It repudiates all these views and traces the world to the power of the Supreme.³

The Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad describes God as māyin, the wonder-working powerful Being, who creates the world by His devasyaiṣa svabhāvo'yaṁ āpta-kāmasya kā sṛṣṭhā. Kārikā I. 6-9.

³ Gauḍapāda mentions different theories of creation. Some look upon creation as the manifestation of the superhuman power of God, vibhūti; others look upon it as of the same nature as dream and illusion, svapna-māyā-svarūpā; others trace it to the will of God icchā-mātram prabhoḥ sṛṣṭiḥ. Still others look upon kāla or time as the source; some look upon creation as intended for the enjoyment of God (bhoga); still others attribute it to mere sport (kṛidā), but Gauḍapāda's own view is that creation is the expression of the nature of the Supreme, 'for what desire is possible for Him whose desire is always fulfilled.'

The world is the revelation of God's nature. To the question, why does perfect being instead of remaining eternally concentrated in itself suffer the accident of manifesting this world, the answer is that manifesting is of the very nature of God. We need not seek a cause or a motive or a purpose for that which is, in its nature, eternally self-existent and free. The sole object of the dance of Śiva is the dance itself.

powers.¹ Here māyā is used in the sense in which the Ṛg Veda employs it, the divine art or power by which the divinity makes a likeness of the eternal prototypes or ideas inherent in his nature. Indra is declared to have assumed many shapes by his māyā.² Māyā is the power of Īśvara from which the world arises. He has made this world, 'formed man out of the dust of the ground and breathed into him a living soul.' All the works of the world are wrought by Him. Every existence contained in time is ontologically present in creative eternity. The Supreme is both transcendent and immanent. It is the one, breathing breathless, tad ekam, anūd avātām. It is the manifest and the unmanifest, vyaktāvryaktāḥ, the silent and the articulate, śabdāśabdāḥ. It is the real and the unreal, sad-asat.³

While the world is treated as an appearance in regard to pure being, which is indivisible and immutable, it is the creation of Īśvara who has the power of manifestation. Māyā is that which measures out, moulds forms in the formless. God has control

tataḥ parispshuraty ādau sarge tailam tilād iva.*

The power is Śakti or Māyā. We speak in inadequate ways when we speak of Śakti as Māyā. Nārada tells Rāma in the Devī Bhāgavata, that this power is eternal, primeval, and everlasting:

śṛṇu rāma sadā nityā śaktir ādyā sanātani.

Nothing is able to stir without its aid:

tasyāḥ śaktim vinā ko'pi spanditum na kṣamo bhavet.

When we distinguish the creation, preservation and dissolution in the form of Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva, their power is also this Śakti:

kartṛ-śaktiḥ pitur mama rudrasya nāśa-śaktis sā tvanya-śaktiḥ parā śivā.*

The energy of everyone is a part of the divine śakti. The Supreme with its power created the creator Brahmā, pūrvam saṃsrjya brahmādin.

In regard to Rāma and Sitā, Sitā becomes Śakti. In the Sītā U. she is said to be mūla-prakṛti.

sītā bhagavatī jñeyā mūla-prakṛti-samjñitā.

In the Devī U. Durgā's name is accounted for. 'Beyond whom there is none she is called Durgā. Because she saves from crisis therefore she is called Durgā.'

of māyā; he is not subject to it. If God were subject to māyā he would not be infinite supreme existence. Any being compelled to manifest itself is not free. Īśvara has in him the power of manifestation, non-manifestation and other-manifestation, kartum, a-kartum, anyathā-kartum. Brahman is logically prior to Īśvara who has the power of manifestation, and takes him over into His transcendental being when He is not manifesting His nature.

This dual nature of the Supreme provides the basis for the reality of personality in God and man, and so for authentic religious experience. This world, far from being unreal, is intimately connected with the Divine Reality. This complex evolving universe is a progressive manifestation of the powers of the Supreme Spirit from matter to spiritual freedom, from anna to ānanda. The purpose of the cosmic evolution is to reveal the spirit underlying it. God lives, feels and suffers in every one of us, and in course of time His attributes, knowledge, beauty and love will be revealed in each of us.

When the Kaṭha Upaniṣad says that the Supreme Lord experiences the results of deeds,¹ it suggests that we are the images and likenesses of God, and when we experience the results of our deeds, He does also. There is an intimate connection between God and the world of souls.²

Deussen holds that the idealistic monism of Yājñavalkya is the main teaching of the Upaniṣads and the other doctrines of theism, and cosmogonism are deviations from it caused by the inability of man to remain on the heights of pure speculative thought. The view which regards the universe as actually real, the Ātman as the universe which we know, and the theistic developments are said to be departures from the exalted idealism of Yājñavalkya. It is not necessary to look upon the theism emphasised in the Kaṭha and the Svetāśvatara Upaniṣads

² Cp. Angelus Silesius: 'I know that without me God cannot live an instant.'

Eckhart: 'God needs me as much as I need him.'

as a declension from the pure monistic idealism. It is in the direct line of development of Upaniṣad thought.

The Absolute is not a metaphysical abstraction or a void of silence. It is the absolute of this relative world of manifestation. What is subject to change and growth in the world of becoming reaches its fulfilment in the world of the Absolute. The Beyond is not an annulling or a cancellation of the world of becoming, but its transfiguration. The Absolute is the life of this life, the truth of this truth.

If the world were altogether unreal, we cannot progress from the unreal to the Real. If a passage is possible from the empirical to the Real, the Real is to be found in the empirical also. The ignorance of the mind and the senses and the apparent futilities of human life are the material for the self-expression of that Being, for its unfolding. Brahman accepts world existence. The Ultimate Reality sustains the play of the world and dwells in it. That is why we are able to measure the distance of the things of the world from the Absolute and evaluate their grades of being.¹ There is nothing in this world which is not lit up by God. Even the material objects which lack the intelligence to discover the nature of the divine ground of their being are the emanations of the creative energy of God and they are able to reveal to the discerning eye the divine within their material frames. What is not possible for inanimate and non-rational beings is open to the rational human being. He can attain to a knowledge of the divine ground of his being. He is not coerced into it, but has to attain it by the exercise of his choice. The unchangeableness of the Supreme does not mean that the universe is a perfectly articulated mechanism in which everything is given from the beginning. The world is real as based on Brahman; it is unreal by itself.

Cosmic existence partakes of the character of the real and the unreal. It is aspiring to become completely real.¹ The Chāndogya Upaniṣad rejects the view that the world was originally a-sat or non-being, and from it all existence was produced.² It affirms: 'In the beginning this world was just being, one only without a second.'³

The Supreme is described as a kavi, a poet, an artist, a maker or creator, not a mere imitator. Even as art reveals man's wealth of life, so does the world reveal the immensity of God's life. The Brahma Sūtra refers to the creation of the world as an act of līlā, play, the joy of the poet, eternally young.

If immutability is the criterion of reality, then the world of manifestation has no claim to reality. Change is the pervading feature of the world. Changing things imply non-existence at the beginning and non-existence at the end.⁴ They are not constantly present. Mortality is imprinted on all beings who are subject to birth, decay, dissolution and death. This very planet will decline and dissolve. While change is the mark of the relative world, this changing world reaches its fulfilment in the Absolute. What is incomplete in the relative world of becoming is completed in the absolute world of being.

Māyā is also used for prakṛti, the objective principle which the personal God uses for creation. All nature, even in the lowest, is in ceaseless movement, aspiring to the next higher stage, of which it is itself an image or lower manifestation. Prakṛti, not-self, matter all but cast out from the sphere of being, is tending feebly to get back to the self, receives form and is thus linked up with Absolute Being. Even matter is Brahman.⁵ Prakṛti by itself is more a demand of thought than a fact of existence. Even the lowest existence has received the impress of the Creative Self. It is not utter non-existence. Absolute non-being is non-existent. It is impossible in a world which flows freely from the bounty of being. Prakṛti is called non-being. It is not strictly correct. This description indicates its distance from being. It is the ultimate possibility on the side of descent from the Divine, almost non-being, but not utter non-being.

While prakṛti is said to be the māyā of God, its forms seem to us individual souls to be external to us. It is the source of our ignorance of its real nature.

While the world is created by the power of māyā of Īśvara, the individual soul is bound down by māyā in the sense of avidyā or ignorance. The manifestation of Primordial Being is also a concealment of His original nature. The self-luminous moves about clothed in the splendours of the cosmic light which are not His real nature. We must tear the cosmic veil and get behind the golden brightness which Savitṛ has diffused. The Upaniṣad says: 'Two birds, inseparable friends cling to the same tree. One of them eats the sweet fruit, the other looks on without eating. On the same tree man sits, grieving, immersed, bewildered by his own impotence (an-īśa). But when he sees the other lord (īśa), contented and knows his glory, then his grief passes away.'¹ We mistake the multiplicity for ultimate reality. If we overlook the unity, we are lost in ignorance.

When we get to the concept of prakṛti we are in the realm of Hiraṇya-garbha. The similes employed by the Upaniṣads, salt and water, fire and sparks, spider and thread, flute and sound assume the existence of an element different from being. Into the original stillness of prakṛti, Hiraṇya-garbha or Brahmā sends sound, nāda-brahma. By his ecstatic dance the world evolves. This is the meaning of the symbol of Naṭa-rāja. His dance is not an illusion. It is a timeless fact of the Divine Reality. The forms are manifestations of the Real, not arbitrary inventions out of nothing. Form, rūpa, is the revelation of the formless a-rūpa. Nāma, name, is not the word by which we describe the object, but it is the power or the character of reality which the form of a thing embodies. The Infinite is nameless for it includes all names. The emphasis right through is on the dependence of the world on Brahman. The relative rests in the Absolute. There can be no echo without a noise. The world is not self-explanatory; it is not the cause of itself. It is an effect. The Īśa Upaniṣad indicates that the basic reality is the One, and the derivative and dependent reality is the many.¹ When the Kena Upaniṣad says that Brahman is the mind of mind, the life of life, it does not assert the unreality of mind and life, but affirms the inferiority, the incompleteness of our present existence. All that we find in the world is an imperfect representation, a divided expression of what is eternally in the Absolute Being.

The world depends on Brahman, and not Brahman on the world. 'God is the dwelling-place of the universe; but the universe is not the dwelling-place of God' is a well-known Rabbinic dictum. The world of experience with its three states of waking, dream and deep sleep is based on the subject-object relation. This duality is the principle of all manifestation. The objects are perceived in both dream and waking and the distinction of seer and seen is present in both. The world of manifestation is dependent on the Absolute. The Absolute Spirit which transcends the distinction between the subject and the object is logically prior to the manifested world.² The world is a process of becoming; it is not being.

The Upaniṣads make it clear that the waking state and the dream state are quite distinct. The objects of the dream state are illusory; not so those of waking experience. 'There are no chariots in that state (of dreaming), no horses, no roads. He himself creates chariots, horses, roads.'³ Imaginary objects exist only during the time we imagine them, kalpana-kāla, but factual objects exist not only when we perceive them but also when we do not perceive them, bāhyās ca dvaya-kālāḥ.⁴ The spatio-temporal order is a fact, not a state of mind or a phase of consciousness.

Avidyā is mentioned in the Upaniṣads as the source of delusion. The Kaṭha Upaniṣad speaks of people living in ignorance and thinking themselves wise, who move about wandering in search of reality, like blind men following the blind. If they had lodged themselves in vidyā, wisdom, instead of avidyā, ignorance, they would easily have seen the truth.¹ The Chāndogya Upaniṣad distinguishes between vidyā or knowledge which is power and avidyā or ignorance which is impotence.² While māyā is more cosmic in significance, avidyā is more subjective. We are subject to avidyā when we look upon the multiplicity of objects and egos as final and fundamental. Such a view falsifies the truth. It is the illusion of ignorance. The world of multiplicity is out there, and has its place, but if we look upon it as a self-existing cosmos, we are making an error.³ While the world process reveals certain possibilities of the Real, it also conceals the full nature of the Real. Avidyā breeds selfishness and becomes a knot in the heart which we should untie before we can get possession of the Self in the recesses of our heart.⁴ The Praśna Upaniṣad tells us that we cannot reach the world of Brahman unless we have shaken off the crookedness in us, the falsehood (anṛtam) in us, the illusion (māyā) in us.⁵

The world has the tendency to delude us into thinking that it is all, that it is self-dependent, and this delusive character of the world is also designated māyā in the sense of avidyā. When we are asked to overcome māyā, it is an injunction to avoid worldliness. Let us not put our trust in the things of this world. Māyā is concerned not with the existence of the world but with its meaning, not with the factuality of the world but with the way in which we look upon it.

There are passages in the Upaniṣads which make out that the world is an appearance, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāmadheyam, while Reality is pure being. There are others which grant reality to the world, though they maintain that it has no reality apart from Brahman. Śaṅkara tells us that the former is the true teaching of the Upaniṣads, while the latter view is put forward only tentatively as a first step in the teaching to be later withdrawn. The reality conceded to the world is not ultimate. It is only empirical.

If we keep in mind the fourfold character of the Supreme, we shall avoid confusion in regard to the status of the world. If we concentrate attention on Brahman, the Absolute, we feel that the world is not independent of Brahman but rests in Brahman. The relationship between the two cannot be logically articulated. If we turn to the personal Īśvara, we know that the world is the creation of Brahman and not its organic expression. The power of creation is called māyā. If we turn to the world process which is a perpetual becoming, it is a mixture of being and non-being, sat and asat, the divine principle and prakṛti. Hiranya-garbha and his world are both subject to time, and should be distinguished from the eternal. But the temporal becoming is by no means false.

As to why the Supreme has this fourfold character, why it is what it is, we can only accept it as the given reality. It is the ultimate irrationality in the sense that no logical derivation of the given is possible. It is apprehended by us in spiritual consciousness, and accounts for the nature of experience in all its aspects. It is the only philosophical explanation that is possible or necessary.

THE INDIVIDUAL SELF

Jīva is literally, 'that which breathes,' from jīv 'to breathe.' It referred originally to the biological aspect of man's nature which goes on throughout life, in waking, dream and sleep. It is called puruṣa in the sense of puri-śaya or 'that which dwells in the citadel of the heart.' This means that the biological serves the ends of another, the soul or psyche. It is this soul which reaps the fruits of deeds and survives the death of the physical body. It is the bhoktṛ, the enjoyer, kartṛ, the doer.* It is the viñāna-maya ātmā. The jīva consists of a material body, the principle of breath (prāṇa), regulating the unconscious activities of the individual, and the principle of conscious activities (manas) which uses the five sensory organs (indriyas) of sight, hearing, touch, smell and taste and the five organs of action, viz. speech, hands, feet, excretory and generative organs. All these are organised by viññāna or buddhi. The basis of the individuality of the ego is viññāna or intelligence which draws round itself mind, life and body.¹ The ego belongs to the relative world, is a stream of experience, a fluent mass of life, a centre round which our experiences of sense and mind gather. At the back of this whole structure is the Universal Consciousness, Ātman, which is our true being.

The human individual is a complex of five elements, anna, prāṇa, manas, viññāna and ānanda. The Highest Spirit which is the ground of all being, with which man's whole being should get united at the end of his journey, does not contribute to his self-sense. Life and matter are organised into the gross physical body, sthūla-śarīra, mind and life into the subtle body, śūkṣma-śarīra, intelligence into the causal body, kāraṇa-śarīra and Ātman, the Universal Self is the supreme being sustaining the others. The ego is the manifestation of the Universal Self using memory and moral being which are changing formations. Puruṣa is sometimes used for the Ātman which is higher than buddhi. Buddhi belongs to the objective hierarchy of being. Puruṣa is the subjective light of consciousness that is reflected in all beings.

The natural sciences, physics and chemistry, anatomy and physiology, psychology and sociology treat man as an object of inquiry. They show that man is a link in the chain of living beings, one among many. He has a body and a mind which belong to him, but his self is not derived from any of these, though it is at the root of them all. All empirical causalities and biological processes of development apply to his outer being, but not to his self. The physical, the biological, the psychological and the logical aspects are aspects of his nature, his kośas, as the Taittirīya Upaniṣad calls them. There are great possibilities of empirical investigation, but man is more than what he knows about himself.

The ego is a unity of body, life, mind and intelligence. It is not a mere flux, as some early Buddhists and Hindus thought. Intelligence which is the unifying principle gives us the ego-consciousness. Memory is one factor which helps to preserve the continuity of the ego which is also influenced by a number of factors which are not present to our memory and are hardly grasped by our surface consciousness. The sub-conscious plays a great part in it. The nature of the ego depends on the principle of organisation and the experience to be organised. As we have an enormous variety of experiences with which we can identify ourselves, an infinite number of objects which we can pursue, fame, career, possessions or power, we have an infinite number of individuals marked out by their past and present experiences, their education and environment. What we are depends on what we have been. The ego is a changing formation on the background of the Eternal Being, the centre round which our mental and vital activities are organised. The ego is perpetually changing, moving up and down, up towards union with the divine godhead or down to the fiendish extremes of selfishness, stupidity and sensuality. The self-transcending capacity of the jīva is the proof that it is not the limited entity it takes itself to be.

The hierarchies of existence and value correspond. The order of phenomena which has the lowest degree of reality in the existential scale has the lowest degree of value in the ethical or spiritual scale. The human individual is higher than the animal, plant or mineral.

What is the relation of the Universal Self to the individual selves? Different views are held on the matter. Śaṅkara believes that the Universal Self is identical with the individual self. The individual self is eternally one with and also different from the Universal Self, says Rāmānuja. The individual self is

When the soul is said to be an aṁśa or fragment of the Divine mind, it is to indicate that it is subsequent to the Divine mind, as a recipient of the Divine idea. The souls therefore serve as matter for the Divine Forms. This is the truth indicated in the Sāṁkhya theory of the multiplicity of selves. Though the self is one in all, in the manifested world, there is an aṁśa, fragment, part or ray of the self which presides over the movements of our personal lives through the ages. This persistent divine form is the real individuality which governs the mutations of our being. This is not the limited ego, but the Infinite Spirit reflecting itself in our personal experience. We are not a mere flux of body, life and mind thrown on the screen of a Pure Spirit which does not affect us in any way. Behind this flux there is the stable power of our being through which the Infinite Spirit manifests itself. The Divine has many modes of manifestation, and at many levels, and the fulfilment of the purposes of these modes constitutes the supreme scope of the eternal kingdom. In the world of manifestation the ground of created being is God's idea of it, which, because it is divine, is more real than the creature itself. The soul, therefore, represents an idea of the divine mind, and the different souls are the members of the Supreme. The soul draws its idea of perfection from the Divine Creator who has given it existence. The soul's substantial existence derives from the Divine mind, and its perfection consists in the vision of the Divine mind, in its effectuating the divine pattern for it in its consciousness and character.

There does not seem to be any suggestion that the individual egos are unreal. They all exist only through the Self and have no reality apart from It. The insistence on the unity of the Supreme Self as the constitutive reality of the world and of the individual souls does not negate the empirical reality of the latter. The plurality of individual souls is admitted by the Upaniṣads. The individuals do not resolve themselves in the Universal Absolute so long as the world of manifestation is functioning. The released individuals know themselves as the Self and not as the psycho-physical vehicles which are animated by the Self and so are incarnations of the Self. These vehicles are causally determined and are subject to change.

The individual is, in a sense, created by God after His own image and in His own likeness, but he has his creaturely form. We do not know our own possibilities. The individual ego is subject to avidyā or ignorance when it believes itself to be separate and different from all other egos. The result of this separatist ego-sense, aḥamkāra, is failure to enter into harmony and unity with the universe. This failure expresses itself in physical suffering and mental discord. Selfish desire is the badge of subjection or bondage. When the individual shakes off this avidyā, he becomes free from all selfishness, possesses all and enjoys all.¹

The unity of the Self does not make the distinctions of the individual souls irrelevant. There is no mixing up of the fruits of action, as the different individual selves are kept distinct by their association with buddhi.² Our lives become meaningful in so far as they partake of the divine logos. The logos is seen in close connection with the logical or rational element in us. The Divine Reason is immanent in our reason. The ego's possession of intelligence gives it the capacity for moral choice. It may either turn to the Indwelling Spirit or pursue the separate interests of the ego. It may open itself to the Self or shut itself away from It. One leads to light and life, the other to darkness and death. We have the seeds of both in us. We may live a life controlled by flesh and blood and earth-born intellect or we may lay ourselves open to God and let Him work in us. As we choose the one or the other, we are led to death or immortality.³ When

'In each human body the two principles of immortality and death are we forget our true nature and lose ourselves in the things of the world, we have evil and suffering.

Alienation from our true nature is hell, and union with it is heaven. There is a perpetual strain in human life, an effort to reach from the arbitrary into an ideal state of existence. When we divinise our nature, our body, mind and spirit work flawlessly together and attain a rhythm which is rare in life.

Without the individual there is neither bondage nor liberation. The Eternal in His transcendent form as Brahman or cosmic being as Īśvara does not arrive at immortality. It is the individual who is subject to ignorance and who rises to self-knowledge. The self-expression of the Supreme through the individuals will continue until it is completed. The Divine possesses always its unity, and Its aim in the cosmic process is to possess it in an infinite experience through many conscious selves. So long as we are subject to ignorance, we stand away from God and are immersed in our limited egos. When we rise to self-knowledge, we are taken up into the Divine Being and become aware of the Infinite, Universal Consciousness in which we live.

INTUITION AND INTELLECT:

VIDYĀ (KNOWLEDGE) AND AVIDYĀ (IGNORANCE)

If buddhi, vijñāna, intelligence, has its being turned towards the Universal Self it develops intuition or true knowledge, Wisdom. But ordinarily, intelligence is engaged in discursive reasoning and reaches a knowledge which is, at best, imperfect, through the processes of doubt, logic and skilful demonstration. It reflects on the data supplied by manas or the sense-mind with its knowledge rooted in sensations and appetites. At the intellectual level we grope with an external vision of things, where objects are extrinsically opposed to one another. We are besieged by error and incapacity. Integral knowledge possesses its object truly and securely. Nothing is external to it. Nothing is other than itself. Nothing is divided or in conflict within its established. By the pursuit of delusion we reach death; by the pursuit of truth we attain immortality.'

all-comprehensive self-awareness. It is the means of knowledge and knowledge itself.

Intuitive knowing is immediate as distinct from the discursive and mediate knowledge. It is more immediate than sensory intuition, for it overcomes the distinction between the knower and the known which subsists in sense-intuition. It is the perfect knowledge, while all other knowledge is incomplete and imperfect in so far as it does not bring about an identification between subject and object. All other knowledge is indirect and has only symbolic or representative value. The only generally effective knowledge is that which penetrates into the very nature of things. But in lower forms of knowledge this penetration of the subject into the object is limited and partial. Scientific understanding assumes that an object can be known only if it is broken up into its simpler constituents. If anything organic is handled in this manner, its significance is lost. By employing intuitive consciousness we know the object with less distortion and more actuality. We get close to perceiving the thing as it is.

Knowledge presupposes unity or oneness of thought and being, a unity that transcends the differentiation of subject and object. Such knowledge is revealed in man's very existence.¹ It is unveiled rather than acquired. Knowledge is concealed in ignorance and when the latter is removed the former manifests itself. What we are, that we behold, and what we behold, that we are. Our thought, our life and our being are uplifted in simplicity and we are made one with truth. Though we cannot understand or describe, we taste and we possess. We become new.² When the beatific vision of Absolute Being has

² Cp. Plotinus: 'And one that shall know this vision—with what passion of love shall he not be seized, with what pang of desire, what longing to be molten into one with this, what wondering delight! If he that has never seen this Being must hunger for It as for all his welfare, he that has known must love and reverence It as the very Beauty; he will be flooded with awe and gladness stricken by a salutary terror; he loves with a veritable love, with sharp desire; all other loves than this he must despise, and disdain all that once seemed fair.' Enneads E.T. MacKenna. Vol. I (1917), p. 86.

The report which the mind and the senses give, so long as they are unenlightened by the spirit in us, is a misleading report. Yet that report is the basis from which we have to proceed. What the world and the individual seem to be are a distortion of what they really are, and yet through that distortion we arrive at the reality. Even as the conclusions of common sense are corrected by those of scientific understanding, the conclusions of the latter require to be corrected by the light of the spirit in us. The abstractions of the intellect require to be converted into the actuality of spiritual experience and the concrete vision of the soul.

If the real is misconceived as an object of knowledge, it cannot be known. Empirical objects may be known by outer observation or inner introspection. But the self cannot divide itself into the knower and the known. Logical reasoning is incapable of comprehending the living unity of God and man, the absolute and the relative. Logical incapacity is not evidence of actual impossibility. Reality unites what discursive reason is incapable of holding together. Every atom of life is a witness to the oneness and duality of God and the world. Being can never be objectified or externalised. It is co-inherent and co-existent in man. It is unknowable because we identify existence with objectivity. This is true, to a limited extent, of purely external things like tables and chairs. They are not to be reduced to sensations or concepts arising in the knowing mind. But spiritual reality is not revealed in the way in which objects of the natural world or principles of logic are apprehended. Yājñavalkya tells us that the self is its own light when the sun has set, when the moon has set, when the fire is put out, ātmaivāśya jyotir bhavati.¹ It is our deepest being behind the vestures of body, life, mind and intellect. Objectivity is not the criterion of reality, but the criterion is reality itself revealed in our very being. We ask for a criterion of knowledge on the assumption of a duality between the knowing subject and the known object. If the object appears alien and impenetrable, then the question of knowing it becomes a problem. But no object can be set in opposition to the spirit and so the question of criterion does not arise. True knowledge is an integral creative activity of the spirit which does not know anything external at all. For it everything is its own life. Here there is identity, possession, absorption of the object at the deepest level. Truth in spiritual life is neither the reflection nor the expression of any other reality. It is reality itself. Those who know the truth become the truth. brahma-vid brahmaiva bhavati. It is not a question of having an idea or a perception of the real. It is just the revelation of the real. It is the illumination of being and of life itself. It is satyam, jñānam. Knowledge and being are the same thing, inseparable aspects of a single reality, being no longer even distinguishable in that sphere where all is without duality.

Where there is duality, there one sees another, hears another. We have objective knowledge.¹ While viññāna deals with the world of duality, ānanda implies the fundamental identity of subject and object, non-duality. Objectification is estrangement. The objective world is the 'fallen' world, disintegrated and enslaved, in which the subject is alienated from the object of knowledge. It is the world of disruption, disunion, alienation. In the 'fallen' condition, man's mind is never free from the compulsion exercised by objective realities. We struggle to overcome disunion, estrangement, to become superior to the objective world with its laws and determinations.

We cannot, however, become aware of the true life in its unity and multiplicity, in its absoluteness and relativity, if we do not free ourselves from the world of divided and isolated objects. In the objective world where estrangement and limitations prevail, there are impenetrable entities, but in the knowledge where we have fullness and boundlessness of life nothing is external, but all is known from within. Intellect moves from object to object. Unable to comprehend them all it retains their multiplicity. Intellectual knowledge is a scattered, broken movement of the one undivided infinite life which is all-possessing and ever satisfied. Intuitive knowing is un-imprisoned by the divisions of space, successions of time or sequences of cause and effect. Our intellectual picture is a shadow cast by the integral knowledge which possesses the object truly and securely.

Reality is a fact, and facts are apprehended by intuition, whether perceptual or non-perceptual. The divine primordial reality is not a fact of the empirical world, and yet as the central spiritual fact we must have a direct apprehension of it. Our logical knowledge can give us indirect approximation to it but not a direct grasp of it.¹ The seers of the Upaniṣads not only have deep vision but are able to translate their visions into intelligible and persuasive speech. They can do so only through hints and images, suggestions and symbols, for they are not susceptible of adequate expression.

The Upaniṣads distinguish between a-parā vidyā, lower knowledge and parā vidyā or higher wisdom. While the former gives us knowledge of the Vedas and the sciences, the latter helps us to gain the knowledge of the Imperishable.² The first principle disguises itself.³ In the Bṛhad-āraṇyaka Upaniṣad, the self is seen as the reality of reality.⁴ The reality of the world is the empirical; the true reality is the ātman; the self which the empirical reality conceals. A distinction is made between the knower of texts and the knower of the self in the Chāndogya Upaniṣad.⁵ Śvetaketu cannot understand the question of

William Law writes: 'To find or know God in reality by any outward proofs, or by anything but by God Himself made manifest and self-evident in you, will never be your case either here or hereafter. For neither God, nor heaven, nor hell, nor the devil, nor the flesh, can be any otherwise knowable in you or by you, but by their own existence and manifestation in you. And all pretended knowledge of any of these things, beyond and without this self-evident sensibility of their birth within you, is only such knowledge of them as the blind man hath of the light that hath never entered into him.'

rebirth, despite much Vedic learning. The Taittirīya Upaniṣad reduces the knowledge of the Vedas to an inferior position by assigning it to mano-maya (mind-made) self which has to be surmounted before final truth is attained.¹ The self is perceived, according to the Kaṭha Upaniṣad, not by logical reason but by spiritual contemplation, adhyātma-yoga.² The real is not attained by force of intellect or by much learning but is revealed to the aspirant whose will is at rest in Him.³ We realise God by the clarity of illumination. jñāna-prasādena.⁴

The Bṛhad-āraṇyaka Upaniṣad teaches that, while those who put their trust in the intellect cannot attain to a knowledge of Brahman, yet there is an apprehension of His being by those who are childlike.⁵ Bālyā includes humility, receptivity or teachableness and an earnest search. The writer asks us to give up the pride of learning, pāṇḍitya. A self-denial which includes our intellectual pride and power is demanded. Purity of intellect is different from congestion of it. To attain purity of vision, we require a childlike nature which we can get by tranquillising the senses, simplifying the heart and cleaning the mind.

It is through quietening the strivings of the will and the empirical intellect that the conditions are realised for the revelation of the Supreme in the individual soul. 'Therefore having become calm, subdued, quiet, patiently enduring and collected, one sees the Self just in the self.'⁶

Even as we have an intellectual discipline for the theoretical understanding of the world, we have a moral and spiritual discipline for the direct apprehension of truth. Even as we cannot understand the art of swimming by talking about it and can learn it only by getting into the water and practising swimming, so also no amount of theoretical knowledge can serve as a substitute for the practice of the life of spirit. We can know God only by becoming godlike. To become godlike is to become aware of the light in us, by returning consciously to the divine centre within us, where we have always been without our knowing it. Detachment (vairāgya) is the essential means for the attainment of wisdom (jñāna).¹ Only the pure in heart can see God.

We must cultivate a religious disposition. God is revealed only to those who believe that He is.² When in doubt, later tradition asks us to give the benefit of the doubt to the theist. For if there is no God, there is no harm in believing in Him; if there is, the atheist would suffer.³ Faith, as trust in the universe, in its reliability, in its essential soundness and decency, is the starting-point of spiritual development.

Spiritual inclination is essential for the pursuit of spiritual life. In the Bṛhad-āranyaka Upaniṣad, Yājñavalkya offers to divide all his earthly possessions between his two wives, Kātyāyanī and Maitreyī. The latter asks whether the whole world filled with wealth can give her life eternal. Yājñavalkya says: 'No, your life will be just like that of people who have plenty of things, but there is no hope of life eternal through wealth.' Maitreyī spurns the riches of the world remarking, 'What shall I do with that which will not make me immortal?' Yājñavalkya recognises the spiritual fitness of his wife and teaches her the highest wisdom.

Ethical preparation is insisted on. If we do not abstain from wrong-doing, if we are not composed in our minds, we cannot attain to spiritual wisdom.⁴ Our moral being must be purged of all evil. The Svetaśvatara Upaniṣad tells us that we should cleanse our natures to reach the goal, since even a mirror can reflect an image properly only if it is cleansed of its impurities.⁵ We must renounce selfish desire, surrender material possessions, become bereft of egotism. The path is 'sharp as the edge of a razor and hard to cross, difficult to tread.'⁶

A teacher who has attained the goal may help the aspiring soul.⁷ Truth has not only to be demonstrated but also communicated. It is relatively easy to demonstrate a truth, but it can be communicated only by one who has thought, willed and felt the truth. Only a teacher can give it with its concrete quality. He that has a teacher knows, ācāryavān puruṣo veda.¹ Only he must be a proper teacher who embodies truth and tradition. Only those who have the flame in them can stir the fire in others.

The individual should develop the habit of introversion, of abstracting from the outside world and looking within himself. By a process of abstraction we get behind knowing, feeling and willing to the essential Self, the God within. We must silence our speech, mind and will. We cannot hear the voice of the still spirit in us, so long as we are lost in vain talk, mental rambling and empty desires. The mind must strip away its outer sheaths in complete detachment, return to its inward quiet and fix its attention on the essential Self which is the ground and reality of the whole universe. The Mundaka Upaniṣad brings out the need for concentrated attention and undistracted effort.² An ordered, disciplined training of all our powers, a change of mind, heart and will is demanded.

Several forms of meditation are advised. Symbols (pratīka) are used as supports for meditation. We are free to use the symbols which are most in conformity with our personal tendencies. Meditation on the pranava is suggested in the Māṇḍūkya Upaniṣad.

It is said that the Self cannot be realised except by those whom the Self chooses.³ Self-realisation is possible through the grace of the Divine. God-vision is the fruit of strenuous effort and Divine grace.⁴ Only the Spirit in us can raise us to the spiritual status. The Real, which is the basis of this manifold world of things and minds, can be apprehended directly and immediately only by those who fulfil certain conditions and submit to the leadings of the spirit. We do not so much hold the idea of the Real as the idea holds us. We are possessed by it.

⁴ Cp. St. Bernard: 'Grace is necessary to salvation, free will equally so, but grace in order to give salvation, free will in order to receive it. Therefore we should not attribute part of the good work to grace and part to free will; it is performed in its entirety by the common and inseparable action of both; entirely by grace, entirely by free will, but springing from the first in the second.'

Both are forms of relative knowledge and belong to the manifested universe. Knowledge formulated logically is not equivalent to a direct and immediate apprehension of the Real. Whatever words we use, whatever concepts we employ, fall short of reality.¹ The anubhava is beyond all manifestation and is complete in itself. Vidyā stresses the harmony and interconnections of elements which make up the world; avidyā the separateness, mutual independence and strife. Vidyā helps us to appreciate intellectually the intelligible ideas about the nature of the Divine ground and the nature of the direct experience of it in relation to other experiences. It indicates the means by which we can attain Brahman. Such a system of theological doctrine points out that there is nothing intrinsically self-contradictory about the postulate of religion, viz. the divine reality, and that it is also empirically verifiable if only we are willing to submit to a discipline. The theological knowledge or vidyā is different from the experience or anubhava of it. The experience is recorded as a pure and direct intellectual intuition in śruti. When we reflect on the experiences or their records and reduce them to a rational order we have smṛti. While the first is the domain of metaphysical principles, the second applies these principles to individual and social conduct. Vidyā is nearer the truth than avidyā.

But vidyā is also understood as jñāna which is of the essential nature of the Divine Reality. It is then eternal wisdom which is not the knowledge possessed by any individual. It is the wisdom hidden beneath the sheaths of ignorance. It is one with the Supreme Self, which is self-evident and needs no proof, svataḥ-siddha, self-valid certainty.

Though intuitive wisdom is different from knowledge of the senses or anything we can achieve by logical reflection, it is not to be confused with occultism, obscurantism, or extravagant emotion. It is not magical insight or heavenly vision, or special revelation obtained through supernatural powers. What we attain by vision, empirical or trans-empirical, belongs to the objective world. It is a distinction within the objective world, between the physical and the super-physical, between what we reach by the five senses and a sixth sense. Wisdom is pure reason, capacity for fundamental truth. It is the possession of the soul or it is the soul that penetrates into its own ground and depth and becomes essential being. It springs from it of necessity when it meditates on itself. This wisdom is eternal, universal and necessary for Śaṅkara. It cannot be destroyed though it may be obscured.

All the same, the tradition of thought has been strong in the Upaniṣads. We lead up to experience through intellectual knowledge. For those who are incapable of integral insight, perception and inference are the only available means.¹ Even men of experience do not contradict rational thought, though they go beyond it.

ETHICS

The Upaniṣads insist on the importance of ethical life.² They repudiate the doctrine of the self-sufficiency of the ego and emphasise the practice of moral virtues. Man is responsible for his acts. Evil is the free act of the individual who uses his freedom for his own exaltation. It is fundamentally the choice which affirms the finite, independent self, its lordship and acquisitiveness against the universal will. Evil is the result of our alienation from the Real. If we do not break with evil, we cannot attain freedom.³

¹ Cp. Vākya-paṭīya. 'For those who cannot see, the reason which is not in contradiction with the Vedas and the scriptures is the eye.'

² M.U. III. 2. 4. B.U. IV. 4. 23.

³ Commenting on Kaṭha I. 2. 2-3, Rāmānuja writes: 'This verse teaches that meditation which should become more perfect day by day, cannot be accomplished without the devotee having broken with all evil.' R.B. IV. 1. 13.

'The Vedas do not purify the ethically unworthy.'

acāra-hīnam na punanti vedāḥ. Vasiṣṭha-Dhārma-Śāstra. VI. 3.

Man is of the divine race, but he has in him the element of non-being, which exposes him to evil. As a spiritual being he can burst the revolving circle of nature and become a citizen of another world in unity with Absolute Being who is his creative source. Man is the mediator between God and nature and has to complete the work of creation by the incarnation of wisdom. He must illumine what is dark and strengthen what is weak in him. His entire being should labour to become one with the Divine. Our fallen nature, sunk in sin, is felt as contrary to the Real and yet as existent. The self feels itself to be in contradiction to all that is supremely real. There is the pain of discord between the existent and the Real. In moral life the self feels itself divided against itself. And yet the struggle itself is impossible unless we look upon the desire for the divine and the consciousness of rebellion as belonging to the same self. The felt contradiction is possible only through the reality which is above the discord. The antithesis between what we wish to be and what we are is implicitly their unity. The divine consciousness and will must become our consciousness and will. This means that our actual self must cease to be a private self; we must give up our particular will, die to our ego, by surrendering its whole nature, its consciousness and character to the Divine.¹

The freedom of the human individual is assumed, though the limitations of karma are mentioned. 'He fetters himself by himself, as a bird by its nest.'² The freedom of the individual increases to the extent to which he identifies himself with the Absolute in him, the antar-yāmin. If we leave the world after having known the true self, then our life in all worlds is the life of freedom.

Some theistic Upaniṣads say that the inner power, the Divine, caused the man whom He will lead on high from these worlds to do good works and He causes the man whom He will lead downwards to do evil works.³ In theism the stress is on Divine providence. In the Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad, the Self is the overseer of all actions, who apportions to each person his qualities, who executes justice, who restrains the evil, allots good fortune and brings to maturity the actions of the individual souls.¹

The general impression that the Upaniṣads require world-denial is not quite correct. They insist on a spirit of detachment, vairāgya, which is not indifference to the world. It is not abandonment of objects but non-attachment to them. We do not raise ourselves above the world by contempt for the world. It is the spirit of equanimity which is insisted on. To be tranquil is to envy no man, to have no possessions that another can take from us, to fear none. When the Hindu thinkers ask us to adopt saṁnyāsa or relinquishment of home and possessions, to accept the three great renunciations, consecrated in the three vows, evangelical counsels of poverty, obedience and chastity, they point to self-denial as the root of spiritual life.

Spirit of renunciation does not mean neglect of social duties. Samnyāsa does not mean that we owe no duties to the world; we free ourselves only from ritualistic duties. Rare fruits of spirit ripen on the soil of detachment.² There is a popular verse which makes out that one should give up attachment, but if one is not capable of it, let him cultivate attachment; only it should be attachment to all.³

We should release ourselves from selfish likes and dislikes. The Divine cannot use our mind and body so long as we wish to use them for our own ends.⁴

Detachment is opposed to attachment, not to enjoyment.

² When Ernest Renan described St. Francis as 'the one perfect Christian' it was felt to be an exaggeration. Hardly anyone else in the Christian world comes so close to the ideal set forth in the Gospels. 'He that renounceth not everything that he hath, he cannot be my disciple.' We feel that these demands are excessive and even fantastic. We excuse ourselves by saying that Jesus did not mean all that he is reported to have said or that his words were not of general application. We make compromises, while St. Francis did not allow any compromises.

kartavyo mama-kāraṇ kimtu sarvatra kartavyaḥ.*

⁴ Cp. St. John of the Cross: 'The soul that is attached to anything, however much good there may be in it, will not arrive at the liberty of divine union. For whether it be a strong wire rope or a slender and delicate thread that holds the bird, it matters not, if it really holds it fast; for until the cord be broken the bird cannot fly. So the soul, held by the bonds of human affections, however slight they may be, cannot, while they last, make its way to God.'

Enjoy through renunciation is the advice of the Īśa Upaniṣad.¹ Good and evil do not depend on the acts one does or does not, but on the frame of mind one has. The good man is he who concurs with the divine purpose, and the bad man is he who resists it. If one's mind is good, one's acts will be good. Our attempt should be not so much external conformity as inward cleansing. From goodness of being good will and good works flow.² When the soul is at peace, the greatest sorrows are borne lightly. Life becomes more natural and confident. Changes in outer conditions do not disturb. We let our life flow of itself as the sea heaves or the flower blooms.

Work by itself does not give us liberation. It cleanses the mind, purifies the heart and produces the illumination which is the immediate condition of salvation. Śaṅkara argues that the knowledge of Brahman, as it relates to an existent being, cannot be contingent on what a person does or does not.³

Contemplation is the way to cleanse one's mind and heart. It means rest, suspension of mental activity, withdrawal into the interior solitude in which the soul is absorbed in the fruitful silence of God. We cannot stop there; we must overflow with a love that communicates what it knows to others. Saints with abundant power and tireless energy work for the transfiguring of men and the changing of the course of secular history. Different methods are suited for different temperaments, and they are all permitted.⁴

¹ Eckhart tells us: 'It is permissible to take life's blessings with both hands, provided thou dost know thyself prepared in the opposite event to leave them just as gladly.'

² Cp. Eckhart: 'Men should not think so much of what they ought to do, as of what they ought to be. Think not to lay the foundation of thy holiness upon doing, but rather upon being. For works do not sanctify us, but we should sanctify the works. Whoever is not great in his essential being will achieve nothing by works, whatever he may do.' *a-sādhyāḥ kasyacid yogaḥ kasyacit jñāna-niścayaḥ:

To some yoga is impossible; to others the ascertainment of truth. Viewing thus God has revealed two paths.

Cp. St. Thomas Aquinas: 'A thing may belong to the contemplative life in two ways essentially or as a predisposition. The moral virtues

The ethical virtues we are called upon to adopt are mentioned in several passages. Life is compared to a sacrifice where the fee shall be asceticism, liberality, integrity, non-injury to life and truthfulness.¹ The Taittirīya Upaniṣad gives a list of students' duties. He should not be negligent of truth, virtue, welfare, prosperity, study and teaching. He should perform only those acts which are irreproachable. In case of doubt concerning any act of conduct, the student should follow the practice of those Brāhmaṇas who are competent to judge, apt, devoted, not harsh lovers of virtue. In one passage all the virtues are brought together under the three da's which are heard in the voice of the thunder, namely, dama, or self-restraint, dāna or self-sacrifice, and dayā or compassion. Prajā-pati conveys it to the three classes of his creation, gods (deva), men (manuṣya) and demons (asura).² Śāṅkara makes out that gods have desires (kāma), men suffer from greed belong to the contemplative life as a predisposition. For the act of contemplation, in which the contemplative life essentially consists, is hindered both by the impetuosity of the passions and by the outward disturbances. Now the moral virtues curb the impetuosity of the passions and quell the disturbance of outward occupations. Hence moral virtues belong to the contemplative life as a predisposition.' St. Thomas taught there were three vocations, that to the active life, that to the contemplative and a third to the combination of both and the last is superior to the other two. There are statements to the effect that the contemplative life in itself by its very nature is superior to the active life. Vita contemplativa, he remarks, simpliciter est melior quam activa, for the contemplative life directly and immediately occupies itself with the love of God than which there is no act more perfect or more meritorious. The contemplative life establishes man in the very heart of all spiritual fecundity. When St. Thomas admits that the active life can be more perfect in certain circumstances, he qualifies it a great deal. (i) Action will only be more perfect than the joy and rest of contemplation, if it is undertaken as the result of an overflow of love for God in order to fulfil His will. (ii) It is not to be continuous but only an answer to a temporary emergency. (iii) It is purely for God's glory, it does not dispense us from contemplation. It is an added obligation and we but return as soon as we can to the fruitful silence of recollection that disposes our souls to the Divine Union.

In the Bhāgavata the Lord says that anyone who does not care for the people who are in need of care and simply takes to the worship of God, his effort is wasted.

(lobha) and demons from anger (krodha). By the practice of the three injunctions we free ourselves from the sway of craving, greed and anger. When the Buddha asks us to put out in our hearts the monstrous fires of infatuation, greed and resentment, he is emphasising the three virtues enjoined by the Upaniṣads.

Dama is self-control. We should reduce our wants and be prepared to suffer in the interests of truth.¹ Austerity, chastity, solitude and silence are the ways to attain self-control.

Tapas is severe self-discipline undertaken for spiritual ends. It is exercised with reference to the natural desires of the body and the distractions of the outer world. It consists of exercises of an inward kind, prayers offered in the heart, self-analysis and outer acts like fasting, self-mortification, sexual abstinence or voluntary poverty. Strength is developed by a resisting force. The power gained by resisting one temptation helps us in overcoming the next. To evade discipline is to empty life of its significance. Nothing is more tranquil than to be unshaken by the troublous motions of the flesh. Renunciation, nyāsa, is superior to tapas or austerity or asceticism. The latter is a means to the former. It is not to be made into an end in itself.² Ethical

Through (the power of) mind he should protect the eyes and the ears and through conduct he should protect mind and speech. life includes moral uprightness though many minds feel only the need for mechanical ritual.

Brahmacarya is not sex-destruction. There is no gulf between flesh and spirit, but only between the fallen and the transfigured flesh. Ancient Indian thinkers were of the opinion that the seed within man and woman is intended for the purpose of creating a body by which another soul may come into physical embodiment. When thus controlled, brahmacarya helps creative work of every description. When the seed is wasted in sex excesses, the body becomes weak and crippled, the face lined, the eyes dull, hearing impaired and the brain inactive. If brahmacarya is practised, the physical body remains youthful and beautiful, the brain keen and alert, the whole physical expression becomes the image and likeness of the Divine.

Mauna or silence is advised as leading the soul forward to contemplation.¹ By the discipline of silence we curb the excesses which flow from the tongue, heresy, backbiting, flattery. We cannot listen to the voice of God when our minds are dissipated, given to restless activity and are filled externally and internally with noise. Progress in silence is progress to the realisation of spirit. When silence descends on the soul, its activities are joined to the silent creative power of God.²

Dāna enjoins gifts. It is negatively freedom from greed and positively assistance to those in need. 'There is no hope of immortality by wealth.'³ Possessiveness is condemned. The

¹ Cp. Isaiah: 'The tillage of righteousness is silence.' 'In silence and in hope shall be your strength.'

³ B.U. II. 4. 2. Cp. Jalāl-Uddīn Rūmī:

Once the noble Ibrahim, as he sat on his throne,
Heard a clamour and noise of cries on the roof,
Also heavy footsteps on the roof of his palace.
He said to himself, 'Whose heavy feet are these?'
He shouted from the window, 'Who goes there?'
The guards, filled with confusion, bowed their heads, saying,
'It is we going the rounds in search.'
He said, 'What seek ye?' 'They said 'Our camels.'
He said, 'Whoever searched for camels on a housetop?'
They said, 'We follow thy example,
Who seekest union with God, while sitting on a throne.'

Taittirīya Upaniṣad regulates the art of giving.¹ One should give with faith, one should not give without faith, one should give liberally, with modesty, with fear, with sympathy.

Dayā is karuṇā, compassion. We should try to be at peace with all, abhor all cruelty and ill-will.² Enmity means misunderstanding. A forgiving attitude frees the individual. We should grudge none, forgive all. So long as we remember an injustice, we have not forgiven either the person or the action. If only we know that there is more suffering than wickedness in the world, we would be kindly. It is by compassion, which shrinks from no sacrifice, that we can overcome the ravages of selfishness. We must be patient. God himself is unimaginably patient.³ Tolerance, long suffering, patience are the fruits of spirit.

The ethical individual is required to become like a child.⁴ The perfect man is a divine child, accepting the divine play, without fear or reserve, care or grief, in utter purity. A child is not entangled with things that seem important to grown-ups, whose occupations are mainly paltry and whose professions petrified. A child's wise incomprehension is linked with living and is more than defensiveness or disdain. We cannot return to childhood. We have to gain the state which is unconstricted by temporal purpose, but purposeful, a state in which time and eternity coincide.

When it is said that the Upaniṣads adopt a spiritual view of life, it does not mean that they despise body, life and mind. The latter are the conditions or instruments for the life of spirit in man. They are not ends in themselves, but are means or opportunities for the expression of the Universal Spirit in us. Spirit and life are not to be separated.

The ritualistic practices are reinterpreted. They are to prepare the mind for spiritual realisation, to spur it on to pierce the veil of the finite and to seek deliverance in identification with the Supreme Reality. If rites are performed without the knowledge of their meaning, they are not only useless but dangerous.¹ The presumptuous performer may have his head cut off.² He who knows a particular rite and he who knows it not both perform a rite, but when performed with knowledge the act becomes more effective.³ Meditation on the meaning of the sacrifice sometimes took the place of the actual sacrifice. 'Suppose,' Janaka asks Yājñavalkya, 'you had no milk or rice or barley to perform the fire-sacrifice, agnihotra, with what would you sacrifice?' 'With the fruits of trees and whatever herbs there were.' 'If there were none?' 'Then with water.' 'If there were no water?' 'Then, indeed, there would be nothing here, yet, this would be offered, the truth in faith.'⁴ When the heart is fully persuaded, there is little sense of sacrifice. Sacrificial life becomes a natural manifestation of the new spirit. Self-conscious sacrifice, with its burden of self-righteousness and expectation of reward, is not of much use.⁵

The caste divisions are mentioned in some of the Upaniṣads.⁶ They did not, however, harden into a rigid social system. In the Chāndogya Upaniṣad five learned Brāhmaṇas who approach Uddālaka Āruṇi for instruction in regard to Vaiśvānara Ātman are taken by him to King Aśvapati Kaikeya, who gives them instruction after first demonstrating the imperfections of their views. Ajātaśatru of Kāśi teaches Gārgya Bālāki the nature of Brahman, after pointing out the defects of the twelve views

The doctrine of rebirth is taught by Pravāhaṇa Jaivali to Āruṇi with the remark that the Brāhmaṇas had never before had this knowledge.¹ Among the students of the Upaniṣads is Satyakāma, of unknown origin, whose mother Jabālā could not tell who his father was.²

The four āśramas or stages of life are recognised. While the usual rule is that one has to pass through successive stages of life, exceptions are permitted. Jābāla Upaniṣad asks us to renounce whenever we feel a call to it. Besides, even in a householder's stage one can attain spiritual freedom.³

'The temporal world seems to emulate in part that which it cannot fully obtain or express, tying itself to whatever presence there is in this exiguous and fleeting moment, a presence which, since it carries a certain image of that abiding presence, gives to whatever may partake of it the quality of seeming to have being. But because it could not stay, it undertook an infinite journey of time; and so it came to pass that, by going, it continued that life, whose plenitude it could not comprehend by staying.'

laws. If we neglect the laws of health, we injure our health; if we neglect the laws of morality, we wreck our higher life. Any rational conception of the universe, any spiritual conception of God requires us to recognise the utter and unquestionable supremacy of law in shaping our conduct and character.

The law of Karma is not external to the individual. The judge is not without but within. The law by which virtue brings its triumph and ill-doing its retribution is the unfolding of the law of our being.¹ The world order is a reflection of the Divine Mind. The Vedic gods were regarded as the maintainers of the order, ṛta of the world. They were the guardians of ṛta. God, for the Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad, is the ordainer of karma, karmādhyakṣaḥ, God is law as well as love.² His love is through law. The working of karma is wholly dispassionate, just, neither cruel nor merciful. Though we cannot escape from the workings of this principle, there is hope, for if man is what he has made himself, he may make himself what he will. Even the soul in the lowest condition need not abandon all hope. If we miss the right path, we are not doomed to an eternity of suffering. There are other existences by which we can grow into the knowledge of the Infinite Spirit with the complete assurance that we will ultimately arrive there. If there is a fundamental difference between Christianity and Hinduism, it is said that it consists in this, that while the Hindu to whatever school he belongs believes in a succession of lives, the Christian believes that 'it is appointed to men once to die, but after this the judgment.'³

 Dream you that men's misdeeds fly up to Heaven
 And then some hand inscribes the record of them Upon God's tablets; and God, reading them,

 Could not find room to write the crimes of earth,
 Nor God himself avail to punish them:
 Justice is here on earth, had ye but eyes.

³ John McKenzie: Two Religions (1950), p. 112. Some Western philosophers and early Christian theologians accept the principle of rebirth.

Belief in rebirth has persisted, at any rate, from the time of the Upaniṣads. It is a natural development from the views of the Vedas and the Brāhmaṇas and receives articulate expression in the Upaniṣads.¹ After mentioning the dispersal of the members of the human body at death—the eye of man goes to the sun, the breath to the wind, speech to fire, the mind to the moon, the ear to the quarters of heaven, the body to the earth, the soul to the ether, the hair to the plants and trees, the blood and seed to the waters—Yājñavalkya is asked as to what remains of the individual. He takes the questioner apart, discusses with him in secret about the nature of work. In truth, a man becomes good by good works and evil by evil works.² Our lives incarnate our characters.

The future of the soul is not finally determined by what it has felt, thought and done in this one earthly life. The soul has chances of acquiring merit and advancing to life eternal. Until the union with the timeless Reality is attained, there will be some form of life or other, which will give scope to the individual soul to acquire enlightenment and attain life eternal. Even as non-being is only an abstract lower limit of the existential order, absolute evil is also such a lower limit. Non-being, if it existed in itself diametrically opposed to being, would be completely destroyed. Such non-being is non-existent. Therefore as every existent thing has the form of the Divine, it has also the promise of good.

The Upaniṣads give us detailed descriptions of the manner in which a man dies and is born again.³ The transition is illustrated by certain examples. As a grass-hopper, when it has come to the end of a blade of grass, finds another place of support, and then draws itself towards it, similarly this self, after reaching the end of this body, finds another place of support and then draws himself towards it. As a goldsmith, after taking a piece of gold, gives it another, newer and more beautiful shape, similarly does this self, after having thrown off this body, and dispelled ignorance, take another, newer and more beautiful form, whether it be of the manes, or demigods or gods or of Prajā-pati or Brahmā or of any other beings.¹ These passages bring out several aspects of the theory of rebirth. The soul finds out its future body before it leaves the present one. The soul is creative in the sense that it creates a body. At every change of body, the soul takes a newer form. The state of each existence of the soul is conditioned and determined by its knowledge (vidyā), its conduct (karma)² in the previous existence. From the Bṛhad-āranyaka Upaniṣad it appears that all the organs accompany the departing soul, which enters into the saṃjñāna and becomes possessed of knowledge and consciousness³, viññāna. The results of learning and conduct cling to the soul.⁴

The ignorant, the unenlightened go after death to sunless demoniac regions.⁵ The good are said to go up to regions which are sorrowless, through the air, sun, and moon.⁶ The Chāndogya Upaniṣad speaks of two ways open to mortals, the bright and the dark, the way of the gods⁷ and the way of the fathers.⁸ Those who practise penance and faith enter the path of light, and they never return to the cycle of human existence. Those who are only ethical, performing works of public utility, travel by the path of smoke, dwell in the world of the fathers till the time comes for them to fall down, then they are born again according to their deserts.⁹ The descriptions may be fictitious, but the principle of the ascent and the descent of the soul is what the Upaniṣads insist on. Beautiful characters attain covetable births and ugly ones miserable births.¹⁰ Heaven and hell belong to the world of time.

Rebirth is the lot of man until he obtains true knowledge. By virtuous acts he furthers his evolution. The reward of goodness is to grow in goodness. The reward of growing in purity of heart is to gain a clearer vision of reality. Knowledge of Reality leads to salvation.

It is sometimes suggested that the soul before undergoing rebirth experiences reward or punishment for its deeds in appropriate places. The original Vedic belief of reward in heaven or punishment gets mixed up with the doctrine of rebirth.¹

The soul is said to be a very minute entity residing in the cavity of the heart and resembling in every respect, except size, the visible man.

LIFE ETERNAL

The fact that the individual consciousness has for its essential reality the Universal Self implies the possibility that every human being can rend the veil of separateness and gain recognition of his true nature and oneness with all beings. The Upaniṣads develop this character of life eternal.

In the Ṛg Veda, what is aimed at is length of days on earth and life in the world of heaven in the company of gods. In the Brāhmaṇas, the performers of various rites are promised the reward of community of being, companionship and fellowship with the gods.² When the Absolute Brahman was recognised, the gods became intermediaries through whose influence the end of unity with the Absolute is obtained. When Brahman and Ātman are identified, the highest goal is declared to be unity with the Self. Deliverance is different from existence in svarga or paradise. The latter is a part of the manifested world. The soul may live there for ages and yet return to earth, a heir to its deeds. Deliverance, on the other hand, is a state of permanent union with the Highest Self. Life in paradise is a prolongation of self-centred life, while life eternal is liberation from it. While the former is time extended, the latter is time transcended.

Enlightenment does not mean a departure in space to a new abode. Arrival and departure have no meaning in the context of liberation. The passages where the soul is said to go by the veins to the rays of the sun and to the sun¹ or from the moon through the worlds of fire, wind, Varuṇa, Indra and Prajā-pati, to *Brahman*² speak of the soul on the pathway to perfection. The Chāndogya Upaniṣad states that the soul of the emancipated, at death, goes out by the hundred and first vein through the crown of the head, fire, wind and sun to Brahman.³

He who knows Brahman becomes Brahman.⁴ Perfection is a state of mind, not contingent on change of time or place. It is an experience of the present, not a prophecy of the future. Temporal distinctions do not apply to it, but if any temporal terms are to be used, they will be words like 'now,' 'presently,' 'When all desires that dwell in the human heart are cast away, then a mortal becomes immortal and (even) here he attaineth to Brahman.'⁵ Freedom is not a future state on whose coming we wait in expectation. It is life in the spirit, in God who is the foundation and power of life.⁶

Kaṭha VI. 14. Cp. Kabīr:

O Friend, hope for Him whilst you live, understand whilst you live; for in life deliverance abides.

Is mokṣa or liberation life with the Supreme Person whom we love and worship in this life?¹ Is it personal immortality with absolute likeness to God in the world of Brahmā?² Is it an impersonal absorption in the Divine Transcendent?³ All these views are to be found in the Upaniṣads. There are four aspects of release distinguished as sāmīpya or intimacy with the divine, sārūpya or sādharmya, similarity of nature with the divine, reflecting his glory, sālokya or conscious co-existence with the divine in the same world and sāyujya or communion with the divine bordering on identity.

There are certain general characteristics of the state of mokṣa or freedom. It is conceived as freedom from subjection to time.⁴ As birth and death are the symbols of time, life eternal or mokṣa is liberation from births and deaths. It is the fourth state of consciousness beyond the three worlds, what the Bhagavad-gītā calls paramam brahma or brahma-nirvāṇa.⁵ It is freedom from subjection to the law of karma. The deeds, good or bad, of the released cease to have any effect on him.⁶ Even as a horse shakes its mane, the liberated soul shakes off his sin; even as the moon comes out entire after having suffered

If your bonds be not broken, whilst living, what hope of deliverance in death?

It is but an empty dream that the soul shall have union with Him because it has passed from the body;

If He is found now, He is found then;

If not, we do but go to dwell in the city of Death.

E.T. by Rabindranath Tagore.

'What then is our course, what the manner of our flight (to the Fatherland whence we have come?') asks Plotinus and answers: 'This is not a journey for the feet; the feet bring us only from land to land; nor need you think of coach or ship to carry you away; all this order of things you must set aside and refuse to see; you must close the eyes and call instead upon another vision which is to be waked within you, a vision, the birthright of all, which few turn to use.' Enneads I. 6. 8.

an eclipse from Rāhu, so does the liberated individual free himself from mortal bondage.¹ His works consume themselves like a reed stalk in the fire.² As water does not stop on the lotus leaf, works do not cling to him.³ Works have a meaning only for a self-centred individual. Liberation is the destruction of bondage, which is the product of ignorance.⁴ Ignorance is destroyed by knowledge and not by works.⁵ Freedom is not a created entity; it is the result of recognition.

Knowledge takes us to the place where desire is at rest, a-kāma, where all desires are fulfilled, āpta-kāma, where the self is the only desire, ātma-kāma.⁶ He who knows himself to be all can have no desire. When the Supreme is seen, the knots of the heart are cut asunder, the doubts of the intellect are dispelled and the effects of our actions are destroyed.⁷ There can be no sorrow or pain or fear when there is no other. The freed soul is like a blind man who has gained his sight, a sick man made whole. He cannot have any doubt for he is full and abiding knowledge. He attains the highest bliss for which a feeble analogy is married happiness. He can attain any world he may seek.⁸

The law of Karma prevails in the world of saṁsāra, where our deeds lead us to higher or lower stations in the world of time. If we obtain knowledge of the eternal reality, Brahman or Ātman, deeds have no power over us. The state of life eternal is said to be beyond good and evil. The knower of the self ceases to be stained by action.⁹ He goes beyond the ethical, though rooted in it,¹⁰ anyatra dharmāt, anyatrādharmāt. The path of virtue and vice is a means, not an end. The end is beyond the law of injunction and prohibition of good and evil.¹ Our activities, being inspired by the divine cannot be wrong'; 'Nous is never wrong,' says Aristotle.² The life of a free spirit is not bound by any formulas. It breaks its bonds and finds its own way to a development of its own which could never have been charted in advance. The liberated spirit conforms spontaneously to the ethical rules. 'To one who has knowledge of the self, non-hatred and other virtues come off naturally without any effort'.³ Every religion sets before us the goal of liberation, which has a sense of exaltation, a sense of freedom and victory over the world, over evil and death.

When we are delivered in life, our condition is that of the jīvan-mukta, who is freed from the bonds of conditioned existence.⁴ His appearance continues without much outer change. His embodied state does not affect the being whom it clothes, as he has complete control over the bodily frame and knows its externality. Though tossed in the welter he retains his vision. While jīvan-mukti is deliverance during life, videha-mukti is the mystic, has 'strictly speaking no moral side; for morality, in the ordinary sense, is left behind. As the anonymous French mystic who wrote The Mirror of Simple Souls puts it: "Virtues, I take leave of you. Henceforth I shall be more free and more at peace. Once I was your servant, now I am delivered from your thralldom!" . . . What he means is that in the higher stage morality has become autonomous and spontaneous. . . . God's service has become perfect freedom.' Church Family Newspaper. July 6, 1923.

deliverance after death, when out of bodily form. In either case the soul is freed from conditioned existence.

There is the suggestion about krama-mukti or gradual release. When the release is only partial and temporary, the individual soul descends again into the egoistic life and the higher consciousness is withdrawn from him. The memory of that experience, however, will work its way, until the impurities are removed.

The different emphases we find in the Upaniṣads, in regard to the state of freedom, can be understood if we bear in mind the integral or fourfold character of Brahman. In some passages oneness with Brahman is stressed; in others communion with the Supreme Person and in still others devotion to the Cosmic Spirit and participation in the work of the world. Union with God may take many forms. When the outer self is hushed, the deeper layers of consciousness are released into activity, the self may enter into the silence of the Absolute Brahman or into communion with the Eternal Person or be transported into the beatific embrace of the Cosmic Spirit. The soul may pass through various realms of spirit, bathing in their light and feeding on their bliss.

Yājñavalkya centres his attention on oneness with the Absolute Brahman, a state where there is no desire, there is no passion, not even any consciousness, pretya saṁjñā nāsti.¹ When honey is prepared by the collection of various juices, the latter cannot discriminate from which trees they were drawn; even so when the souls are merged in the Real, they cannot discriminate from which bodies they come.² The self rises above the distinction of subject and object which characterises all empirical consciousness. It is altogether time-transcending. This is impersonal immortality where the soul achieves absoluteness, unconditioned being.³ It is illumined consciousness and not oblivion of consciousness. It is not a void of immobile peace where all is lost and everything is extinct. This is only one aspect of deliverance.

There is also the account where the self becomes one with the Supreme Person. He who knows 'I am Brahman,' becomes the universe. Even the gods cannot prevent him from becoming the universe for he is its soul.¹ Man has potential universality which he actualises in the state of liberation. We are one with the indeterminate pure silence in essence and with the personal Lord in the liberty of cosmic manifestation. Out of the peace and poise of Brahman arises the free activity of the liberated individual. Essential unity with God is unity with one another through God. In the sense of heightened awareness we do not forget the world, which seems strangely of one piece. We are lifted out of provincialism into perspective, as we become aware of something vaster, profounder, more ultimate than the world.²

Rule over oneself, svārājya, becomes rule over the world, sāmvrājya. Salvation is sarvātma-bhāva.¹

When the mind assumes the form of the Supreme through the power of meditation we have samprajñāta-samādhi, when the individual is aware that his consciousness has assumed the nature of Brahman.² But when all consciousness of external objects in the waking state due to the functioning of the senses, of internal objects in the dream state due to the functioning of mind, or of the unmanifested in the state of dreamless sleep is absent, we have a-samprajñāta-samādhi.³ While in the former our awareness is of God, in the latter it is of the Absolute.

There are passages⁴ which suggest that the released self retains its own form freed from the imperfections of the empirical ego and untouched by worldly pleasure and pain.⁵ Yet other passages affirm the presence of such qualities. They cannot therefore be incompatible with pure intelligence. Such is the view of Bādarāyaṇa.⁶ The liberated self's desires are fulfilled by its mere will.⁷ The self is spoken of as sinless and one with the highest Person. suggested in many passages.¹ Non-separation is not absolute identity. The liberated self has no other overlord, anyādhipatiḥ.² There are passages where the self is said to possess adjuncts, which make for individuality and others where these are denied. Bādarāyaṇa reconciles the two views by affirming that the assumption or non-assumption of individual form is entirely a matter of option for the released soul.³ It can, if it so chooses, enter into many bodies created by its own will even as the flame of a lamp can convert itself into several flames.⁴

In the Aitareya Āraṇyaka it is said that Vāmadeva ascended from this world and attained immortality in yonder world of heaven.⁵ The Kauṣītaki Upaniṣad gives us an account of the world of Brahmā with the Aparājita palace, the tree Ilya, the Sālajya city and the sea Ara. The passages of the Upaniṣads which make out that the reward of enlightenment is heaven in one form or another have in mind co-residence with Brahmā or Hiranya-garbha.⁶ The Brahma Sūtra discusses the question whether those who go by the path of the gods reach the world of Hiranya-garbha Brahmā or become one with Īśvara. Bādari holds that they reach the world of Hiranya-garbha, for only to his world is going possible. Śaṅkara says, 'The created Brahmā has a specific locality and so can be the goal of a journey but not the Supreme Brahman who is present everywhere and is the inner self of the travelling individual selves.'⁷ When we reach brahma-loka, we continue to function there until the end of the process, when along with Brahmā, we enter the Supreme Brahman.⁸ Śaṅkara thinks that all this refers to gradual release, krama-mukti.¹ Jaimini holds that the liberated souls enter the highest Brahman.² Bādarāyaṇa is of the view that those who meditate on symbols go to the world of the symbols and not to the world of Brahman.

Even as we have the fourfold nature of the Supreme, the liberated individual has different aspects of utter peace, pure energy, devotion to the Cosmic Spirit and participation in the world. He looks at the world and is lost in it, as it is a perpetual striving to raise itself above itself.³

When we refer to Absolute Brahman, we emphasise the illumined quiescence, the non-objective consciousness in which there is a total extinction of sorrow and evil, the pure bliss infinitely surpassing all human joys, far exceeding the power of man to conceive. This very insight makes the self one with the Supreme and all existences. Only we are no more bound to them in a false relation. In our transfigured consciousness where our egoistic individuality is absent, we are not divided from others but feel one with them. Our real self is no more the individual, mental being, but is one with the Self behind the mental forms of all other selves. Our body, life, mind are no more binding, but become the transparent vehicle of our divine consciousness. When that end is reached we are a true becoming of the Divine, a free movement of the Universal Spirit. Our body, life and mind, we feel, are one with the cosmic body, life and mind.⁴ Our spirit fills the whole world. By knowing the eternal we understand the true nature of God, the world and the individual.

Spiritual wisdom (vidyā) does not abolish the world, but removes our ignorance (avidyā) of it. When we rise to our true being, the selfish ego falls away from us and the true integral self takes possession of us. We continue to live and act in the world, though with a different outlook. The world also continues, though it is no more alien to us. To live permanently in this new consciousness is to live in eternity.

⁴ Cp. Traherne: 'You never enjoy the world aright till the sea itself floweth in your veins, till you are clothed with the heavens and crowned with the stars; and perceive yourself to be the sole heir of the whole world, and more than so, because men are in it who are everyone sole heirs as well as you. . . .'

Possessing the immortality of non-birth, the redeemed self still assumes, by free volition an individual form in the manifested world. Birth is a becoming of the Supreme in the cosmic being. This becoming is not inconsistent with Being. It becomes a means and not an obstacle to the enjoyment of life eternal. To be released from the chain of birth and death is not to flee from the world of becoming. Bondage does not consist in the assumption of birth or individuality, but in the persistence of the ignorant sense of the separate, selfish ego. It is not the embodiment that creates the bondage but the frame of mind. To the free spirit life has no terrors. He wishes to conquer life for God. He uses the world as the mould and condition for the manifestation of his spiritual freedom. He may assume birth for the purpose of helping the world.¹ There will be individualisation without an ego-sense. The play of the individual consciousness can take many forms, assume many aspects and poises. All through, however, he lives in the truth of the cosmic play with no delusion, released from ego, in full control of the manifested being.

The individual soul is eternal. It endures throughout the cosmic process. It commences at birth as the inheritor of the previous person and survives physical death in an altered form. For the self that has realised perfection the body ceases to be a burden. He lives in the flesh but not after the flesh.

The individual is an aspect of the Transcendent in the universe and when liberated from all limitations, he acts with his centre in the Supreme. The inner peace is manifested in the joyous freedom of outer activity. He will be at work in the world though he cannot wish to do any evil.² He can do any action, for he does it disinterestedly.³ The desires of those whose thoughts are fixed on the Supreme do not bind.⁴ The freed soul does not aim at the improvement of humanity, but his life itself is a service. His renunciation has become the natural consequence of his wisdom. The Chāndogya Upaniṣad distinguishes desires that bind from the desires that liberate, and speaks of the Supreme Self as desiring and purposing truth.¹

Śaṅkara argues that the co-existence of karma or work, involving, as it does, the distinction of doer and the thing done, with the knowledge of the identity of the individual self with the Supreme, which negatives all such distinctions, is inconceivable.² It is only self-centred action that becomes impossible. The liberated individual becomes active in God. God is born in us, i.e. becomes active in us, when all powers of the soul, which hitherto have been bound and imprisoned, become liberated and set free. 'For we are his offspring.'³ God becomes the centre of the free man's life so that love is radiated and good works spring forth spontaneously. He is as unconscious of the power of his life as life itself, which springs, blossoms and puts forth its life's work in a free outpouring with no reflection on the why or the wherefore. He lives out of his own depths, and life wells up out of itself. In a sense, he is not the doer. He has become one with the Universal Self, possessed by the Transcendent; he is udāsīna or unattached. The Universal Self has taken sovereign possession of the individual soul. When the individual soul ascends into the silence it becomes vast, tranquil, actionless. It observes the actions of prakṛti without taking part in them. There is no personal factor, and therefore there is no bondage.

Those who have attained life eternal live and wander about

¹ satyak-āmah, satya-amkalpaḥ. VIII. 1. 3. 6. 'This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God.' Richard of St. Victor says: 'The soul utterly puts off itself (i.e. its self-centred desires) and puts on divine love; and being conformed to that beauty which it has beheld, it utterly passes into that other glory.'

² Introduction to Kena.

³ 'I do nothing of myself' (John VIII. 18). 'Not what I will but what thou wilt' (Mark XIV. 36). Boehme said: 'Thou shalt do nothing but forsake thy own will, viz. that which thou callest "I" or "thyself." By which means all thy evil properties will grow weak, faint and ready to die; and then thou wilt sink down again into that one thing, from which thou art originally sprung.' Discourse between Two Souls.

in the world, to all appearance, like ordinary mortals. They wear no special signs. Only their activities are centred in the highest being and are completely under their control, which is not so for those who live in the world of saṁsāra. They are tolerant, sympathetic and respectful to the unliberated who are struggling with unsatisfied minds to diminish the evil and imperfection in the world. These are helped by the seers who accept the conventions with the idea of refining them. They live and suffer and rejoice and die as other mortals do, but they have no doubt in their minds, no fear in their hearts. For the liberated soul, saṁsāra and mokṣa or nirvāṇa as the Buddhists call it, time and eternity, the phenomenal and the real, are one. Though the liberated soul lives in the world of becoming, he lives with his consciousness centred in the Divine ground of all being. As a matter of fact, his consciousness, because it is centred in God, is intensified, and so his life in the world is more vital. Holy calm, supreme self-mastery and righteous action characterise the lives of saints. They become a light, a power of the Truth to which they have struggled and attained, and help the development of others.¹ They will be engaged in the work of the world,² sustained by their rare vision, until the struggle with evil and imperfection is altogether overcome and the world is restored to spirit.

Whether after liberation one takes an active interest in the world or renounces it is a matter of temperament. Yājñavalkya chooses to retire to the forest, while Janaka rules a state. Whatever they do, they help those like us who are lost in the world of sorrow and suffering. Though embodiment or dis-embodiment makes no difference to the liberated souls, as they are filled with compassion, they take up the burden of the world. According to Viveka-cūḍamāṇi, 'Themselves having crossed over, they remain out of compassion for men and in

jītvā dustara-saṁgrāmaṁ tūrayed aparāṇ api.*

order to help them also to make the crossing.¹ Until all people are redeemed, the liberated work in the world assuming individual forms which are the vestures of spiritual life. Spirit and material existence, ānanda and anna, are the highest and lowest rungs of a continuous series. There is a link between the two. Even as the eternal Divine is able to hold the whole universe within itself while remaining pure spirit, the soul that is one with the Eternal possesses the same poise, with reference to the individual setting. It is no more ignorantly immersed in the mutable creation. It exists consciously in its true being while using the psycho-physical apparatus, which it does not any more mistake for its true being. While the liberated retain the consciousness of the transcending, self-existent, timeless, they identify their being with the Infinite God in whom all existences dwell.

Again and again, the Upaniṣads stress that we should see all existences in the Self and the Self in all existences. Even as the Supreme is all these existences, we also should acquire the right relation to the world. Perfect fulfilment of our individuality means the perfect fulfilment of our relations with the world and the other individuals. We are called upon to overcome not only our separate egoistic existence but also our life in a paradise of self-absorbed bliss. The perfected soul cannot look with indifference on the sufferings of the imperfect, for they are also his own self. He would work to lift them into freedom. It is not now a function of altruism but is the life divine, the integral way. He will work until all beings in the manifested world are fulfilled. The liberated individuals are released from their individuality at the close of creation.

Brahma-loka is the widest possible integration of cosmic experience, the farthest limit of manifested being. Brahmā is the soul that ensouls this great dwelling. He is the true life of every being. He endures during the whole period of the cosmos. Beyond it there is nothing in the manifested world. It is not ¹ According to Vyāsa's Yoga Bhāṣya (1. 24), God is permanently associated with suddhāntaḥ-karaṇa. If God who is the eternally free can have an inner organ, the freed men can also have it.

Cp. Chuang Tzu: 'The sages of old first got Tao for themselves, then got it for others.'

the eternal beyond the empirical. It is the farthest limit of manifestation. When the world receives its consummation, when it is delivered from time to eternity, then there is the flight of the alone to the Alone. The plan of God for the world, which was before creation is carried out, for He is the beginning and the end of the world.¹ The Cosmic Lord has his exteriorised existence and his interior life. When he turns outward the cosmos is evolved; when he turns his attention inward, the cosmos retreats into latency and the manifested world terminates. When the world is redeemed, the Supreme Lord becomes the Absolute One, alone, and knows nothing else.

In the Brahma-loka the liberated individuals present to each other as one. They are manifold in the cosmic process. Their consciousness of the Supreme which is lodged in the buddhi is one and not divided among the bodily forms. This identical consciousness is associated with different bodies. This manifoldness does not take away from the unity of the divine being. Until the final return of the whole universe into the Absolute, until the purpose of God before the creation is carried out, the individuals, freed from bondage to matter, will retain their distinctiveness without being sundered by boundaries. When the two poles of being are reconciled, when all individuals rise above the plane of quality, with its ego sense, struggling aspiration and imperfect love, the world lapses into the Absolute.²

The Upaniṣads use the inherited forms of religious worship as means for the realisation of the Supreme. The Vedic mantras are addressed to various powers, symbolic of important aspects, of the Supreme Reality. They teach the religion of śraddhā, faith and upāsana, worship. The Brāhmaṇas deal with rites, and by their performance we are said to gain our ends. Both these methods are taken up by the Upaniṣads and reinterpreted.

¹ Cp. The Cosmic Christ speaking through Jesus, 'I am the Alpha and the Omega, the first and the last; for what was first comes at last and the last is the first.'

While the Upaniṣads recognise that deliverance is the supreme end of life, they are aware that many are not ready for the supreme sacrifice, the dying to their ego. They need some preparation for it. They ask for emotional satisfactions, and for their sake devotional and ritualistic practices are tolerated. They are not useless, for they lead us on by the upward path by directing our minds and hearts to the reality of the Eternal Being and gradually take us out of ourselves into the true religion of the spirit.¹ Till the goal is reached, the law of Karma works, and we get the rewards for our worship and piety according to the intensity of our faith and devotion.

The different forms of śraddhā or faith, upāsana or worship, and practices of yoga are treated as means to the supreme end, of self-knowledge or ātma-dārśana, which is at once a union with the one transcendent Being beyond all the worlds and a union with all beings in the world.

Again and again the Upaniṣads speak of the God who is hidden, nihitam guhāyām. God is not easily comprehended. There is a certain element of reserve in God as distinct from His revelation. The reserve is there because man has to put forth effort to know the Divine. God does not wish to relieve us of our responsibility. As His purpose is the development of free human personalities, He does not disclose himself to us easily and openly. He remains shrouded in mystery, and yields only when our total self yearns for God.²

¹ A second century Christian apologist said: 'Among us you will find uneducated persons and artisans and old women, who, if they are unable in words to prove the benefit of our doctrine, yet by their deeds exhibit the benefit arising from their persuasion of its truth; they do not rehearse speeches but exhibit good works; when struck they do not strike again; when robbed they do not go to law; they give to those that ask of them, and love their neighbours as themselves.' Quoted in Cambridge Review. February 14, 1948, p. 348.

Three stages are mentioned as preparatory to God-vision (brahma-sākṣātkāra), śravaṇa or hearing, manana or reflection, and nididhyāsana or contemplation. The first step is to learn what has been thought and said about the subject from teachers. We should listen to them with śraddhā or faith.¹ Faith is an act of will, a yearning of the heart rather than an intellectual disposition. It is faith in the existence of the beyond, āstikya-buddhi as Śaṅkara calls it.² We should have faith in the integrity of the seers whose selflessness has enabled them to know the nature of Ultimate Reality by direct acquaintance. The propositions they have formulated from out of their personal experience give us knowledge by description, as we do not yet have direct vision of the truth. Yet the knowledge we acquire by hearsay or report is not unverifiable. The truth of the Vedic propositions can be verified by us, if we are prepared to fulfil the necessary conditions.

In the second stage of manana or reflection we attempt to form clear ideas by the logical processes of inference, analogy, etc. So long as faith is firm, the need for philosophy is not felt. With the decline of faith, the spirit of inquiry increases. Unquestioning belief in the inherent power of knowledge underlies the whole intellectual fabric of the Upaniṣads. The truth of the Vedic propositions can, however, be inferred by us by logical processes. Hearing of the scriptures is not devoid of intellectual content. He who hears understands up to a point. But when he reflects on what he hears, he adds to faith a knowledge which increases faith. There is great insistence on the need for logical inquiry.³ Without it faith will degenerate into credulity. Without the material supplied by faith, logical reason may become mere speculation. While the scriptures declare the truth by enunciation, philosophy establishes it by argument.

Śaṅkara says, 'When the two, scripture and reasoning, demonstrate the unity of the self it is seen clearly as a bael fruit in the palm of one's hand.¹ There are many for whom the Supreme is not an immediately experienced fact; nor are they willing to accept its validity on the authority of the scriptures. For them logical arguments are necessary.

The distinction between śruti, what is heard, and smṛti, what is remembered, between direct experience and traditional interpretation, is based on the distinction between śravaṇa and manana. The deposit of experience is not the same as the conclusions of theology. The primary data are the śruti: they are experiential; the formulated conclusions are secondary interpretations. The one represents the evidence, the other records a doctrine. When there is a dispute between the two we get back to the evidence. It is always open to review the evidence afresh. The doctrinal statements are conditioned by the historical situations in which they are produced. We must be able to get behind the propositions to the events they describe, stand in the tension between the data and the interpretations, if we are to understand the significance of the doctrines. The defect of all scholasticism, Indian or European, is that it tends to regard itself as a cold, bloodless logic which moves from one position to another with a remorseless rigour. Life is the master of thought and not thought of life.

Logical knowledge acquired by a study of the scriptures and reflection on their teaching is only indirect knowledge. It is not a direct grasp of reality. Thought must pass into realisation. The ideas of the Upaniṣads should be imaginatively and inwardly apprehended. They should be allowed to sink deep and simmer before they are re-created in life. Nididhyāsana is the process by which intellectual consciousness is transformed into a vital one. We give up the pride of learning and concentrate on the truth.² Faith becomes

Nididhyāsana or contemplation is different from upāsana or worship. Worship is an aid to contemplation, though it is not itself contemplation. In worship there is the distinction between the worshipping self and the worshipped object, but in contemplation this distinction is held in suspense. There is a stillness, a calm, in which the soul lays itself open to the Divine. Intellect, becomes like a calm sea without a ripple on its surface.

Meditation is not argument. It is just holding oneself steadily in front of the truth.² The whole energy of the mind is centred on the object to the exclusion of all else. We let the full flavour of the idea meditated on expand in the mind. Even upāsana is defined as the continued flow of an identical current of thought.³ It is also of the nature of meditation.⁴ We can practise meditation in any direction, place or time in which we can concentrate our mind.⁵ Here the process of abstraction, isolating the self from the objective, is employed. Concentration is the condition of prayer. More than condition it is itself prayer. In prayer we must dismiss all distracting ideas, disturbing influences and retire within oneself. We are asked to retire to a field or a forest where the world and its noise are out of sight and far away, where the sun and the sky, the earth and the water all speak the same language, reminding the seeker that he is here to develop like the things that grow all around him.

In all the three stages, a teacher may be found useful. Only those who act in the right way are the ācāryas.¹ Śaṅkarānanda distinguishes three kinds of disciples. He who understands what is taught along with the proof, when he hears only once, is the good pupil; he who understands it only after hearing many times and after giving himself and his teacher much trouble is the bad pupil. He who understands what the teacher says but cannot control his own mind, he is the middling. The last are to be led to firm conviction by various means.²

The truth can be taught only up to a point. It has to be assimilated by personal effort, by self-discipline. Yoga is a term that signifies the method of concentration³ by which we attain to unity with the Eternal.⁴ The practice of yoga is mentioned in the Upaniṣads. In the Kaṭha we are asked to suppress speech and mind, merge the latter in the knowledge self, that in the great self, that in the tranquil self, the Absolute. The highest stage is attained when the five senses, mind and intellect are at rest.⁵ The Śvetāśvatara Upaniṣad gives detailed directions on

'Cultivate unity,' replied Confucius. 'You do your hearing, not with your ears, but with your mind; not with your mind, but with your very soul. But let the hearing stop with the ears. Let the working of the mind stop with itself. Then the soul will be a negative existence, passively responsive to externals. In such a negative existence, only Tao can abide. And that negative state is the fasting of the heart.'

In the Vedas we have vivid belief in powerful gods who are not mere abstractions. Adoration of personal gods, along with a sense of dependence on and trust in them, which is a marked tendency in the religion of the Veda, becomes prominent in the Kaṭha and the Śvetāśvatara Upaniṣads. The Kaṭha Upaniṣad makes out that saving knowledge is not a matter of learning but is revealed to the fortunate man by the highest Reality itself. Even the doctrine of predestination is suggested.

Unfortunately different aspects have been exclusively emphasised so as to give rise to the impression that the Upaniṣads do not give us any single coherent view. It is suggested that in the Upaniṣads the true doctrine is that the Real, the thing-in-itself, is empty of content and all positive views are deviations from it caused by the inability of man to remain at the high level of abstract thought, postulated by the distinction between the thing-in-itself and the appearance and the natural tendency to apply empirical categories to the thing-in-itself. The absolutistic and theistic views of the Upaniṣads are not exclusive of each other. Śaṅkara and Rāmānuja emphasise different aspects of the teaching of the Upaniṣads.

Upāsana or worship is the basis of the doctrine of bhakti or devotion. As Brahman is not described in the early Upaniṣads in sufficiently personal terms, the later ones like the Kaṭha and the Śvetāśvatara look upon the Supreme as personal God who bestows grace. Devotion to the personal God is recommended as a means for attaining spiritual enlightenment.⁴

The Upaniṣads give us different modes of devotional exercises, by which we are trained to fix our minds on a single object. Gradually we get prepared for the contemplation of absolute truth.¹

The prevalent theistic creeds were assimilated to the teaching of the Upaniṣads. The later sectarian Upaniṣads identify the Supreme with Viṣṇu, Śiva or Śakti, which are regarded as different phases of the One Reality. The Supreme is conceived as a person in relation to persons, and symbols taken from social life, lord, father, judge are employed. Sometimes dynamic symbols like the power of life, the spirit of truth, the glowing fire that penetrates and pervades are used.

Symbols belong to an order of reality different from that of the Reality which they symbolise. They are used to make the truth intelligible, to make the unheardable audible. They are meant to be used as tangible supports for contemplation. They help us to reach awareness of the symbolised reality. Some of these symbols employed by religions are common. Fire and light are usually adopted to signify the Ultimate Reality. It means that the minds of people are formed similarly and experiences of people do not differ much from one part of the world to another. Even conceptions about the origin and nature of the world often agree, though they arise quite independently. The images are all framed to mediate between the Supreme Absolute and the finite intelligence. The individual is free to select for worship any form of the Supreme. This freedom of choice iṣṭa-devatārādhana means that the different forms are all included in the Supreme. The acceptance of one form does not mean the rejection of others.

¹ Rābī'a, a woman mystic of the 8th century, says: 'Oh my Lord, if I worship Thee from fear of Hell, burn me in hell; and if I worship Thee from hope of paradise, exclude me thence; but if I worship Thee for Thine own sake, then withhold not from me Thine eternal beauty.'

The Supreme is to be comprehended only by a supreme effort of consciousness. This knowledge cannot be expressed at the level of thought except through symbols. The symbols are not entirely subjective. The relativity of the symbols does not destroy either our capacity to discover the truth or our faith in the existence of objective reality. It is true that different objects appear differently from different points of view, but the validity of the different points of view need not be denied. Statements about reality are definitions of the relationship between those making them and the reality which they are describing. Symbols have a meaning, and this meaning is objective and shared. The bearers of the meaning may be psychological states, separate existences, not even identical in their qualitative content, but meanings can be studied and understood.

The Upaniṣads do not speak to us of limited dogmas. The life of spirit is wider than any particular religious formulation. Religion deals with man's seeking for the eternal, the sources of truth and joy, and particular formulations are but approximations to the Unutterable. Our minds are not detached from the circumstances of time and place. Full truth can be known only by a mind of transcendent rationality. The conception and expression by men of the reality which is universal, can only be partial according to the diversities of race and character. As the Upaniṣads lay stress on spiritual experience and psychological discipline, they do not insist on any one set of dogmas, rites or codes. They are also aware that we may touch different aspects of the spiritual experience when we attempt to define it. We may use any symbols and methods which help to bring about a change of consciousness, a new birth.[†]

The one Supreme who dwells in us is conceived externally. 'The vulgar look for their gods in water, men of wider know-

The images are conceived for the sake of contemplation by the ignorant.'² The soul of man is the home of God. God is in every one of us ready to help us though we generally ignore Him.³ Whatever be the form we start with, we grow to the worship of the one Universal Spirit immanent in all.⁴ The worship of the determinate form is recommended as a preparation for the apprehension of non-determined Reality.⁵ Nārada Bhakti Sūtra tells us that the true devotee becomes a fulfilled being, immortal and content.¹ Even the released perform image worship by way of sport.² There is a danger that the emotions of awe and reverence are likely to be treated as ends in themselves. They prepare for spirituality.³ Devotion ultimately leads to the knowledge of one's essential nature.⁴ For Rāmānuja bhakti is a type of knowledge.⁵

Spiritual training begins with the external, with word and gesture in order to produce the answering spiritual content, but we should not stop at any stage short of life in God.⁶ There are those who regard the forms they worship as final, though the Upaniṣads make out that the Real has aspects of both

The highest form of worship is the realisation of the Supreme in all, the meditation of the Supreme is the middling state; prayers to and praises of him with the silent repetition of his name is the lowest and external worship is the lowest of all. Again:

tranquil transcendence and cosmic universality. The advocates of bhakti look upon the worship of the personal God as the highest bliss,¹ though those who regard the Absolute as super-personal declare that it is somewhat lower than the highest, that those who do not get beyond the stage of the worship of the Personal God, enter, on death, into a heavenly state of existence. This survival in the worlds of the blessed belongs to the process of time or saṁsāra. It is not emancipation from time or timeless union with reality.

Any form of worship which falls short of complete self-naughting will not take us to the unitive life. Faith, devotion, surrender are the means to it. Each individual has to achieve insight by his own effort after long and persistent practice.² When the veil of intellectual knowledge, of avidyā, is swept aside, a flood of light breaks upon the awakened soul and a vision of the Universal Self is achieved. This self is present, real and concrete even as a physical object is present to the physical eye. The Supreme is not so much an immanent God as an experienced God, felt as an inward principle of power and new being in life. When we rise in contemplation, when there is the vision of the Supreme which is entirely beyond the power of the soul to prepare for or bring about, we feel that it is wholly the opera-

² Cp. St. Paul: 'Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure.' Epistle to the Philippians II. 12-13.

The seventeenth-century Platonist, Norris, writes: 'The solitary and contemplative man sits as safe in his retirement as one of Homer's heroes in a cloud, and has this only trouble from the follies and extravagances of men, that he pities them. I think it advisable for every man that has sense and thoughts enough to be his own companion (for certainly there is more required to qualify a man for his own company than for other men's), to be as frequent in his retirements as he can, and to communicate as little with the world as is consistent with the duty of doing good, and the discharge of the common offices of humanity.'

tion of God working on the soul by extraordinary grace. In a sense all life is from God, all prayer is made by the help of God's grace, but the heights of contemplation which are scaled by few are attributed in a special degree to divine grace. After the vision the light may fade, darkness may afflict the soul, but the soul can never lose altogether what it has once seen. Our effort thereafter shall be to renew the experience, make it the constant centre of all our activities until the completely real is completely known.

There are references to visions and auditions which sometimes accompany the soul's ascent to God. They are really an embarrassment to the aspiring soul. They distract its attention and sometimes tempt it to remain on the wayside without pressing forward to the goal. These visions and auditions are not an essential part of the religious intuition. These are symbols on the natural and historical plane of the mysteries of spiritual life. All objects in the natural world are reflections of the happenings in the spiritual world. The events of the life of spirit are reflected symbolically in the world of space, time and matter.

The paradoxes of mystical language are resolved when they are taken over into vital consciousness. The mystery-filled figures of the Upaniṣads are abstractions to those who look upon them from outside. The Upaniṣads speak to us of different forms of genuine religious experience. Whether it is contemplation of the Absolute, or meditation on the Supreme Person or worship of the Cosmic Spirit, or absorption in the world of nature, they are all genuine forms, as they aim at the same ultimate conclusion of self-transcendence. Man must be surpassed. There are different regions in the realm of spirit in which the consciousness of man freed from the finitude of self and enlarged finds fulfilment.

In other religions, too, we have these varieties of mystic experience. There are some who wish to establish contact with God regarded strictly as a person, and live a life in ever complete accord with the divine will and at long last reach the most intimate union with God. There are others who wish to go beyond union to unity, a state of consciousness which is above subject-object relationship. Naturally the Upaniṣads do not adopt an attitude of dogmatism.¹ This attitude of acceptance of all forms of worship has been a persistent character of India's religious life.² The word of God is not bound by languages in which it is spoken.³ It is the one voice that is heard in all religions.

We are heirs of a richer heritage than most of us are aware of. The life of the people of spirit, from the beginning until now, has a great deal to offer us. If we cut ourselves away from the rich treasury of wisdom about man's aspirations on this earth which is available to us from our own past, or if we are satisfied

¹ St. Paul's remarkable words that all nations 'seek the Lord if haply they might feel after him and find him, though he be not far from everyone of us' (Acts of the Apostles XVII. 27) indicate the right attitude.

C. Majumdar, H. C. Ray Chaudhuri and K. Datta (1946), p. 379.

³ Cp. Virgil's passionate outburst: 'Blessed is he who has won to the heart of the universe; he is beyond good and evil. But that is too much for ordinary humanity to attain; it is a very good second best to know the gods of the country, to live the life of the country.' Georgics II. 490 ff.

'If any born in barbarous nations, do what lieth in him, God will reveal to him that which is necessary to salvation either by inspiration or by sending him a teacher.' St. Thomas Aquinas 2. Sent Dist 28 q. 1, a4, ad 4.

with our own inadequate tradition and fail to seek for ourselves the gifts of other traditions, we will gravely misconceive the spirit of religion. Loyalty to our particular tradition means not only concord with the past but also freedom from the past. The living past should serve as a great inspiration and support for the future. Tradition is not a rigid, hidebound framework which cripples the life of spirit and requires us to revert to a period that is now past and beyond recall. It is not a memory of the past but a constant abiding of the living Spirit. It is a living stream of spiritual life.

BRHAD-ĀRANYAKA UPANIṢAD

The Brhad-āranyaka-Upaniṣad which is generally recognised to be the most important of the Upaniṣads forms part of the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. It consists of three Kāṇḍas or sections, the Madhu Kāṇḍa which expounds the teaching of the basic identity of the individual and the Universal Self, the Yājñavalkya or the Muni Kāṇḍa which provides a philosophical justification of the teaching and the Khila Kāṇḍa, which deals with certain modes of worship and meditation, upāsana, answering roughly to the three stages of religious life, śravaṇa, hearing the upadeśa or the teaching, manana, logical reflection, upapatti and nididhyāsana or contemplative meditation. Of the two rescensions of the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa, the Kāṇva and the Mādhyandina, Śaṅkara follows the former, and the text adopted here is the same.

CHAPTER I

First Brāhmaṇa

THE WORLD AS A SACRIFICIAL HORSE

I. aum. uṣā vā aśvasya medhyasya śiraḥ, sūryas cakṣuḥ, vātaḥ prāṇaḥ, vyāttam agnir vaiśvānaraḥ; samvatsara ātmāśvasya medhyasya, dyauḥ prṣṭham, antarikṣam udaram, pṛthivī pājasyam, diśaḥ pāśūc, avāntaradiśaḥ pāśavaḥ, ṛtavāṅgāni, māsāś cārddhamāsāś ca parvāni, ahorātrāṇi pratiṣṭhāḥ, nakṣa-trāṇy asthīni, nabho māmsāni; ūvadyaṁ sikatāḥ, sindhavo gudāḥ, yakṛc ca kломānaś ca parvatāḥ, oṣadhayaś ca vanaspatayaś ca lomāni. uḍyan pūrvārddhaḥ, nimlocaṁ jaghanārdhaḥ, yad vijṛmbhate tad vidyotate, yad vidhūnute tat stanayati, yan mehati tad varṣati; vāg evāśya vāk.

I. Aum, the dawn, verily, is the head of the sacrificial horse, the sun the eye, the wind the breath, the open mouth the Vaiśvānara fire; the year is the body of the sacrificial horse, the sky is the back, the atmosphere is the belly, the earth the hoof, the quarters the sides, the intermediate quarters the ribs, the seasons the limbs, the months and the half-months the joints, days and nights the feet, the stars the bones, the clouds the flesh; the food in the stomach is the sand, the rivers are the blood-vessels, the liver and the lungs are the mountains, the herbs and the trees are the hair. The rising (sun) is the forepart, the setting (sun) the hind part, when he yawns then it lightens, when he shakes himself, it thunders, when he urinates then it rains; voice, indeed, is his voice.

aśvamedha: In this sacrifice a horse is let loose and a guard of three hundred follows his track. If any one hinders the horses' progress, the guard will have to fight. When the horse completes a victorious circuit of the earth and returns to the capital, he is offered as a sacrifice and the king who performs the sacrifice assumes the title of sovereign, emperor.

The horse sacrifice described at length in Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (XIII, 1-5) is given here a cosmic interpretation. It is used as a vehicle of religious truth.

The idea of sacrifice as a means to account for creation goes back to the Puruṣa Sūkta of the R.V. (X. 90. 129), where from each of the members of the primeval person, Puruṣa, some part of the world is made.

aśvasya medhyasya: of the sacrificial horse, medhārhasya. Ś.

vyātam: open mouth, vyrtam mukham. Ś.

ātmā: body, śarīraṁ cātmā. Ś.

pājasyam: hoof, pādasyam, pādāsana-sthānam. Ś. See M.U. II. 1. 4.

The earth is his footing. The supra-physical can be reached only when we have a firm hold of the physical. The thinkers of the Upaniṣads reach their conclusions by a study of the sensible fact, of the concrete realities of the physical world.

parvāṇi: joints, sandhayaḥ. Ś.

nabhāḥ: clouds, nabhasthā meghāḥ.

ūvadyam: half-digested food in the stomach, udarastham ardha-jīrṇam aśanam. Ś.

gudāḥ: blood-vessels, nādyah. Ś.

viṣṛmbhate: yawns. gātrāṇi vināmayati, vikṣīpa ti. Ś. viṣṛmbhaṇam mukha-vidāraṇam.

vidhūnute: shakes, gātrāṇi kampaṇyati. Ś.

mehati: urinates, mūtram karoti. Ś.

2. ahar vā aśvam purastān mahimā nvajāyata. tasya pūrve samudre yoniḥ, rātrir enam pascān mahimā nvajāyata, tasyāpare samudre yoniḥ, etau vā aśvam mahimānāv abhitaḥ sambabhūvatuḥ hayo bhūtva devān avahat, vājī gandharvān, arvāsurān, aśvo manusyān; samudra evāsya bandhuḥ, samudro yoniḥ.

2. The day, verily, arose for the horse as the vessel called mahiman appeared in front (of the horse). Its source is in the eastern sea. The night, verily, arose for the horse as the vessel called mahiman appeared behind (the horse). Its source is in the western sea. These two vessels, verily, arose on the two sides of the horse as the two sacrificial vessels. Becoming a steed he carried the gods, as a stallion the Gandharvas, as a runner the demons, as a horse men. The sea, indeed, is his relative, the sea is his source.

At the horse sacrifice, aśva-medha, two vessels are placed one in front of and the other behind the horse, made of gold and silver, to hold the sacrificial libations. They are here interpreted cosmically as the eastern (Bay of Bengal) and the western (the Arabian sea). mahimā: greatness, mahattvam. Ś.

The two vessels are made of gold and silver. The gold vessel is the day because both are bright, dipti-sāmānyāt; the silver vessel is the night, both the words rājata and rātri begin with the same syllable rā. Silver and night may have a common nature if the night is a moonlit one, candrikā-dhavalatva-sāmnyāt.

The sea is taken by Ś as the Supreme Self: paramātmā, samutpadya bhūtāni dravanty asminn iti vyutpattyā parama-gambhīrasy eśvarasya samudra-śabdatām āha. See Ā.

Second Brāhmaṇa

CREATION OF THE WORLD

1. naiveha kimcanāgra āsīt. mṛtyunaivedam āvṛtam āsīt, aśanāyayā, aśanāyā hi mṛtyuh; tan mano'kuruta, ātmanvī syām iti. so'rcann acarat, tasyārcata. āpo'jāyanta arcate vai me kam abhūd iti; tad evārkasya arkatvam; kam ha vā asmai bhavati, ya evam etad arkasya arkatvam veda.

1. There was nothing whatsoever here in the beginning. By death indeed was this covered, or by hunger, for hunger is death. He created the mind, thinking 'let me have a self' (mind). Then he moved about, worshipping. From him, thus worshipping, water was produced. 'Verily,' he thought, 'while I was worshipping water appeared, therefore water is called arka (fire). Water surely comes to one who thus knows the reason why water is called arka (fire).'

All this was non-being covered by death who is Hiranya-garbha. By his thought the universe is produced.

Death is Hiranya-garbha. It is the matter with which he interacts. It is tamas or darkness which is represented as his body: cp. Subāla U. yasyāvyaktaṁ śarīram yasyākṣaram śarīram, yasya mṛtyuś śarīram eṣa sarva-bhūtāntarātmā apahata-pāpmā divyo devaḥ eko nārāyaṇaḥ.

Hiranya-garbha is tamaś śarīraka-paramātmā, the Supreme Self with the body of darkness.

He thought, 'let me have a self,' i.e. let me develop a world of conscious and unconscious objects:

cetanācetana-prapañca-śarīrakas-syām iti saṁkalpa manah kṛtavān. R. kam: water or happiness. kam udakam sukham vā. Ś.

2. āpo vā arkaḥ. tad yad apān sara āsīt, tat samahanyata, sā pṛthivy abhavat, tasyām aśrāmyat. tasya śrāntasya taptasya tejo raso niravartatāgniḥ.

2. Water, verily, is arka. That which was the froth of the water became solidified; that became the earth. On it he rested. From him thus rested and heated (from the practice of austerities) his essence of brightness came forth (as) fire.

After the production of the earth Prajā-pati rested: sarvo hi lokāḥ kāryam kṛtvā śrāmyati, prajāpateś ca tan mahat kāryam yat prthivī-sargah. Ś.

tejo-rasaḥ: essence of brightness, tejas-sāra-bhūtaḥ. R.

3. sa tredhātmānam vyakuruta, ādityam tṛtīyam, vāyurṇ tṛtīyam, sa eṣa prāṇas tredhā vihitah. tasya prācī dik śirah, asau cāsau cairmanu; athā asya prācī dik puccham, asau cāsau ca sakthyau; dakṣiṇā codicī ca pārśve, dyauḥ pṛṣṭham, antarikṣam udaram, iyaṁ uraḥ, sa eṣo'psu pratiṣṭhitah, yatra kva caiti tad eva pratiṣṭhaty evaṁ vidvān.

3. He divided himself threefold (fire is one-third), the sun one-third and the air one-third. He also is life divided threefold, the eastern direction is his head and his arms are that and that (the left and the right sides). Likewise the western direction is his tail and his two hip-bones are that and that. The southern and the northern directions are his sides. The sky is the back, the atmosphere the belly. This (earth) is the chest. Thus he stands firm in the waters. He who knows this stands firm wherever he goes.

4. so'kāmayata, dvitīyo ma ātmā jāyete, sa manasā vācam mithunam samabhavad aśanāyā mṛtyuḥ, tad yad reta āsīt, sa samvatsaro 'bhavat; na ha purā tataḥ samvatsara āsa. tam etāvantam kalam abhibhaḥ. yāvān samvatsarah, tam etāvataḥ, kālasya parastād asṛjata; tam jātam abhivyādādāt sa bhāṇ akarot saiva vāg abhavad.

4. He desired, let a second self (body or form) be born of me. He, hunger or death, brought about the union of speech by mind. What was the seed there became the year. Previous to that there was no year. He reared him for as long as a year and after that time he sent him forth. When he was born he (Death) opened his mouth (to devour him). He (the babe) cried, bhāṇ. That, indeed, became speech.

Life is the result of previous knowledge and conduct. reto bijam jñāna-karma-rūpaṁ janmāntara-kṛtam. Ś.

5. sa aikṣata: yadi vā imam abhimānsye, kanīyo'nnam kariṣya iti: sa tayā vācā tenātmanedam sarvam asṛjata yad idam kim ca, ṛco yajūṁṣi sāmāni chandāmṣi yajñān prajāḥ paśūn. sa yad yad evāsṛjata, tat tad attum adhriyata; sarvaṁ vā attīti tad

aditer adititvam, sarvasyaitasyāttā bhavati, sarvam asyānnam bhavati, ya evam etad aditer adititvam veda.

5. He thought, 'If I kill him I shall make very little food.' With that speech, with that self he brought forth all this whatsoever exists here, (the hymns of) the Rg Veda, (the formulas of) the Yajur Veda and (the chants of) the Sāma Veda, the metres, the sacrifices, men and cattle. Whatever he brought forth that he resolved to eat. Verily, because he eats everything, therefore the aditi-nature of Aditi (i.e. Aditi is so called). He who knows thus the aditi-nature of Aditi becomes an eater of everything here, and everything becomes food for him.

In the previous passage, it is said that Death brought forth, by the union of speech and mind, year &c; here it is said that he again brought forth Vedas &c. Ś. explains that while the previous union was of an unmanifested character, avyakta, the present one is manifested, bāhya.

Ś. quotes R.V. (I. 59. 10) 'Aditi is the sky, Aditi is the atmosphere, Aditi is the mother, she is the father.'

6. so'kāmayata, bhūyasā yajñena bhūyo yajeyeti; so'srāmyat, sa tapo'tapyata: tasya śrāntasya taptasya yaśo vīryam ud-akrāmat. prāṇā vai yaśo vīryam; tat prāṇesūtkrānteṣu śarīraṁ śvayitum adhrīyata, tasya śarīra eva mana āsīt.

6. He desired: 'let me sacrifice again with a greater sacrifice.' He rested himself, he practised austerity. While he was thus rested and heated, fame and vigour went forth. The vital breaths, verily, are fame and vigour. So when the vital breaths departed, his body began to swell, but the mind was set on the body.

bhūyah: again, punar api. Ś. explains that Prajā-pati had performed a horse sacrifice in his previous life and those thoughts were in his mind now.

sa tapo'tapyata: He practised austerity. tapas is literally 'burning.' It is the glow caused by the concentration of mental energy. Through tapas is all creation effected. The ardour of mind, restrained and concentrated, has power over things. (See R.V. X. 190.) Slowly it is extended to cover the practice of austerities. To make ourselves pure metal we have to pass through fierce fires. We cannot be made anew unless we first become ashes. God strips us of everything that we possess that we may draw near to him.

7. so'kāmayata, medhyam ma idaṁ syāt, ātmanvy anena syām

iti; tato 'śvaḥ samabhavat, yad aśvat, tan medhyam abhūd iti tad evāśva-medhasyāśva-medhatvam; eṣa ha vā aśva-medhaṁ veda, ya enam evaṁ veda. tam anavarudhyaivāmanyata; tam samvatsarasya parastād ātmana ālabhata: paśūn devatābhyaḥ pratyauhat. tasmāt sarva-devatyam prokṣitam prajāpatyam ālabhante; eṣa ha vā aśva-medho ya eṣa tapati: tasya samvatsara ātmā, ayam agnir arkaḥ, tasyeme lokā ātmānah; tāv etāv arkāśvamedhau. so punar ekaiva devatā bhavati, mṛtyur eva; apa punar-mṛtyum jayati, nainam mṛtyurm āpnoti, mṛtyur asyātmā bhavati, etāsām devatānām eko bhavati.

7. He desired, let this (body) of mine be fit for sacrifice and let me have a self (body) through this. Thereupon it became a horse, because it swelled, it has become fit for sacrifice (he thought). Therefore the horse-sacrifice came to be known as aśva-medha. He who knows it thus, verily, knows the aśva-medha. Letting it remain free, he reflected; and at the end of a year he offered it to himself (sacrificed him for himself). He gave up the (other) animals to the divinities. Therefore (men, priests) offer to Prajā-pati the sanctified (horse) dedicated to all the gods. Verily, that (sun) which gives forth heat is the horse-sacrifice. His body is the year. This (earthly) fire is the arka and these worlds are his bodies. So these are two, the sacrificial fire (arka) and the horse-sacrifice. Yet again they are one divinity, even death. He (who knows this) overcomes repeated death, death cannot get hold of him, death becomes his body, and he becomes one with these divinities.

ālabhata: offered, sacrificed it to himself, ālambham kṛtavān.

prokṣitam: sanctified, mantra-saṁskṛtam. Ā.

He overcomes death, assumes the body of death. He becomes superior to time.

Third Brāhmaṇa

THE SUPERIORITY OF BREATH AMONG THE BODILY FUNCTIONS

1. dvayā ha prajāpatyāḥ, devāś cāsurāś ca. tataḥ kāmīyasā eva devāḥ, jyāyasā asurāḥ, ta eṣu lokeṣu aspārdhanta, te ha devā ūcuḥ, hantāsurān yajña udgṛthenātīyāyāmeti.

1. There were two classes of the descendants of Prajā-pati, the gods and the demons. Of these, the gods were the younger and the demons the elder ones. They were struggling with each other for (the mastery of) these worlds. The gods said, come, let us overcome the demons at the sacrifice through the udgātha.

The gods and the demons refer to the organs, speech and the rest. They are inclined to sacred or worldly objects, to good or evil, then become divine or demoniac, śāstra-janita-jñāna-karma-bhāvitāḥ dyotanāt devā bhavanti, ta eva svābhāvika-pratyakṣānumāna-janita-dṛṣṭa-prayojana-karma-jñāna-bhāvitā asurāḥ. Ś. They become gods when they shine under the influence of thoughts and actions as taught by the scriptures. These very organs become demons when they are influenced by their natural thoughts and actions based (only) on perception and inference and directed to visible (secular) ends. It is a distinction of life, not of beings. Ś also says that the gods were less numerous and less strong than the demons.

Cp. Plato's Sophist, where a stranger from southern Italy who has studied the Eleatic logic of Parmenides likens the philosophy of his own and earlier times to the mythical battle of the gods and the giants. 'What we shall see is something like a battle of gods and giants going on between them over their quarrel about reality. One party is trying to drag everything down to earth, out of heaven and the unseen, literally grasping rocks and trees in their hands; for they lay hold upon every stock and stone and strenuously affirm that real existence belongs only to that which can be handled and offers resistance to the touch. They define reality as the same thing as body, and as soon as one of the opposite party asserts that anything without a body is real, they are utterly contemptuous and will not listen to another word. Accordingly their adversaries are very wary in defending their position somewhere in the heights of the unseen, maintaining with all their force that true reality consists in certain intelligible and bodiless forms. In the clash of argument they shatter and pulverise those bodies which their opponents wield, and what those others allege to be true reality they call, not real being, but a sort of moving process of becoming. On this issue an interminable battle is always going on between the two camps.' E.T. by F. M. Cornford. See his Plato's Theory of Knowledge (1935). The dispute between idealists and materialists is still with us. See C.U. VIII. 7-12.

2. te ha vācam ūcuḥ, tvam na udgāya iti, tatheti. tebhyo vāḡ udagāyat. yo vāci bhogas tam devebhya āgāyat, yat kalyānam vadati tad ātmane; te vidur, anena vai na udgātrātyeṣya ntīti tam abhidrutya pāpmanāvidhyan, sa yaḥ sa pāpmā yad evedam apratirūpaṁ vadati sa eva sa pāpmā.

2. They said to speech, chant (the udgūtha) for us; 'So be it,' said speech and chanted for them. Whatever enjoyment there is in speech, it secured for the gods by chanting: that it spoke well was for itself. The demons knew, verily, by this chanter, they will overcome us. They rushed upon it and pierced it with evil. That evil which consists in speaking what is improper, that is that evil.

3. Then they said to the life-breath, chant (the udgūtha) for us. 'So be it,' said the life-breath and chanted for them. Whatever enjoyment there is in the life-breath, it secured for the gods by chanting; that it smelt well was for itself. The demons knew, 'verily, by this chanter, they will overcome us.' They rushed upon it and pierced it with evil. That evil which consists in smelling what is improper, that is that evil.

prāṇam: life-breath, here used for ghrāṇam, the organ of smelling, the nose.

4. atha ha cakṣur ūcuḥ, tvaṁ na udgāya iti, tatheti: tebhyaḥ cakṣur udagāyat. yaḥ cakṣuṣi bhogas taṁ devebhya āgāyat, yat kalyāṇaṁ paśyati tad ātmane; te vidur anena vai na udgātrātyeṣyantīti. tam abhidrutya pāpmanāvidhyan, sa yaḥ sa pāpmā yad evedam apratirūpaṁ paśyati, sa eva sa pāpmā.

4. Then they said to the eye: Chant (the udgūtha) for us. 'So be it,' said the eye and chanted for them. Whatever enjoyment there is in the eye it secured for the gods by chanting; that it saw well was for itself. The demons knew, 'verily, by this chanter they will overcome us.' They rushed upon it and pierced it with evil. That evil which consists in seeing what is improper, that is that evil.

5. atha ha śrotram ūcuḥ, tvaṁ na udgāya iti, tatheti: tebhyaḥ śrotram udagāyat. yaḥ śrotre bhogas taṁ devebhya āgāyat, yat kalyāṇaṁ śṛṇoti tad ātmane; te vidur anena vai na udgātrātye- śyantīti. tam abhidrutya pāpmanāvidhyan; sa yaḥ sa pāpmā yad evedam apratirūpaṁ śṛṇoti, sa eva sa pāpmā.

5. Then they said to the ear: Chant (the udgītha) for us. 'So be it,' said the ear and chanted for them. Whatever enjoyment there is in the ear, it secured for the gods by chanting; that it heard well was for itself. The demons knew, 'verily, by this chanter, they will overcome us.' They rushed upon it and pierced it with evil. That evil which consists in hearing what is improper, that is that evil.

6. Then they said to the mind: Chant (the udgītha) for us. 'So be it,' said the mind and chanted for them. Whatever enjoyment there is in the mind, it secured for the gods by chanting; that it thought well was for itself. The demons knew, 'verily, by this chanter, they will overcome us.' They rushed upon it and pierced it with evil. That evil which consists in thinking what is improper, that is that evil. Likewise they also affected these (other) divinities with evil, they pierced them with evil.

All these organs were found to be incapable of chanting the udgītha as they had contracted evil on account of their attachment to doing well (seeing well, hearing well or thinking well), for themselves: kalyāṇa-viśaya-viśeṣātma-sambandha-saṅga-hetoḥ. Ś.

7. atha hemam āsanyam prāṇam ūcuḥ, tvam na udgāya iti, tatheti: tebhya eṣa prāṇa udagāyat; te vidur anena vai na udgātrātyeśyantīti. tam abhidrutya pāpmanāvitsan; sa yathā aśmānam ṛtvā loṣṭo vidhvamseta, evam haiva vidhvamsamānā viśvaṇco vineśuḥ, tato devā abhavan, parāsurāḥ; bhavaty ātmanā parāśya dviṣan bhrātṛvyo bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

7. Then they said to the vital breath in the mouth: 'Chant (the udgītha) for us.' 'So be it,' said this breath and chanted for them. They (the demons) knew, 'verily, by this chanter, they will overcome us.' They rushed upon him and desired to pierce him with evil. But as a clod of earth would be scattered by striking against a rock, even so they were scattered in all directions and perished. Therefore the gods became (increased) and the demons were crushed. He who knows this becomes his true self and the enemy who hates him is crushed.

avitsan: desired to pierce him, vedhanam kartum iṣṭavantaḥ. Ś.
parāḥ: crushed, parābhūtāḥ, vinātāḥ. Ś.

8. te hocyā, kva nu so'bhūḍ yo na ittham asakteti, ayam āsyē'ntar iti, so'yāsyā āṅgirasah, āṅgānām hi rasah.

8. Then they said, what, pray, has become of him who struck to us then? Here he is within the mouth. He (the vital breath) is called Ayāsyā Āṅgirasa (rasa) for he is the essence, of the limbs (anga, members of the body).

9. sā vā eṣā devatā dūr nāma, dūram hy asyā mṛtyuḥ, dūram ha vā asmān mṛtyur bhavati ya evam veda.

9. That divinity, verily, is dūr by name, because death is far (dūra) from it. From him who knows this, death is far off.

10. sā vā eṣā devataitāsām devatānām pāpmānam mṛtyum apahatya, yatrāsām diśām antaḥ, tad gamayāmcakāra, tad āsām pāpmāno vinyadadhāt, tasmān na janam iyāt, nāntam iyāt, net pāpmānam mṛtyum anvavāyanīti.

10. That divinity, verily, after having struck off the evil of these divinities, even death, made this go to where the end of the quarters is. There he set down their evils. Therefore one should not go to people (of that region), one should not go to the end (of the quarters), lest he meet there with evil, with death.

11. sā vā eṣā devataitāsām devatānām pāpmānam mṛtyum apahatya athainā mṛtyum atyavahat.

11. That divinity, verily, having struck off the evil, the death, of those divinities, next carried them beyond death.

12. sa vai vācam eva prathamām atyavahat, sā yadā mṛtyum atyamucyata, so'gnir abhavat, so'yam agniḥ pareṇa mṛtyum atikrānto dīpyate.

12. Verily, it carried speech across first. When that (speech) was freed from death it became fire. This fire, when it crosses beyond death, shines forth.

13. atha prānam atyavahat, sa yadā mṛtyum atyamucyata, sa vāyur abhavat, so'yam vāyuh pareṇa mṛtyum atikrāntaḥ pavate

13. Then it carried across (the organ of) smell. When that was freed from death, it became air. This air, when it crosses beyond death, blows prāṇo ghrāṇaḥ. Ś.

14. atha cakṣur atyavahat, tad yadā mṛtyum atyamucyata, sa ādityo'bhavat, so'sāv ādityaḥ pareṇa mṛtyum atikrāntas tapati.

14. Then it carried across the eye. When that was freed from death, it became the sun. This sun, when it crosses beyond death, glows.

15. atha śrotram atyavahat, tad yadā mṛtyum atyamucyata, tā diśo'bhavan, tā imā diśaḥ pareṇa mṛtyum atikrāntāḥ.

15. Then it carried across the ear. When that was freed from death, it became the quarters. These quarters have crossed beyond death.

16. atha mano'tyavahat, tad yadā mṛtyum atyamucyata, sa candramā abhavat, so'sau candraḥ pareṇa mṛtyum atikrānto bhāti, evaṁ ha vā enam eṣā devatā mṛtyum ativahati, ya evaṁ veda.

16. Then it carried across the mind. When that was freed from death, it became the moon. That moon, when it crosses beyond death, shines. Thus, verily, that divinity carries beyond death him who knows this.

Cp. Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa. X. 5. 2. 20. One becomes what one meditates on: tam yathā yathopāsate, tad eva bhavati.

17. athātmane'nnādyam āgāyat, yadd hi kiṁ cānnam adyate, anenaiva tad adyate, iha pratitiṣṭhati.

17. Then it (the breath) chanted food for itself (obtained food by chanting). For whatever food is eaten is eaten by him alone. In it (breath) is established.

ādyam: eatable, adanārham, bhakṣaṇārham. R.

anenaiva: by him alone, by the vital breath alone. Ś refers to the meaning of the word ana as vital breath, ana iti prāṇasyākhyā prasiddhā.

18. te devā abruvan, etāvad vā idam sarvaṁ yad annam, tad ātmana āgāsīḥ, annu no'sminn anna ābhajasveti, te vai mā' bhisamviśateti; tatheti: tam samantam parinyaviśanta, tasmād yad adanenānnam atti, tenaitās trpyanti; evaṁ ha vā enam svā abhisamviśanti, bhartā svānām śreṣṭhaḥ, pura etā bhavaty annādo' dhipatiḥ, ya evaṁ veda; ya u haivaṁvidam sveṣu prati-pratir bubhūṣati, na haivālaṁ bhāryebhyo bhavati; atha ya evaitam anubhavati, yo vaitam anu bhāryān bubhūrṣati, sa haivālaṁ bhāryebhyo bhavati.

18. These divinities said, 'Verily, just this much is whatever food there is and that you have obtained for yourself by chanting. Now let us have a share in this food.' He said, 'then sit around, facing me (or enter into me). 'So be it.' They sat around (entered into) him on all sides. Therefore, whatever food one eats by this breath, they are satisfied by it. So do his relations come to him who knows this, he becomes the supporter of his people, their chief, their foremost leader, an eater of food and their lord. Whoever among his people desires to be the equal of him who has this knowledge, he is not able to support his own dependents. But whoever follows him and whoever, following him, desires to support his dependents, he, indeed, will be able to support his dependents.

desires to support: bubhūrṣati, bhartum icchati. Ś.

19. so'yāśya āṅgīrasaḥ, āṅgānām hi rasaḥ, prāṇo vā āṅgānām rasaḥ, prāṇo hi vā āṅgānām rasaḥ, tasmād yasmāt kasmāc cāṅgāt prāṇa utkrāmati, tad eva tat śuśyati; eṣa hi vā āṅgānām rasaḥ.

19. He is (called) Ayāśya Āṅgīrasa for he is the essence of the limbs. Verily, life-breath is the essence of the limbs, yes, life-breath is the essence of the limbs. Therefore, from whatever limb life-breath departs, that, indeed, dries up; for, it is, verily, the essence of the limbs.

20. eṣa u eva bṛhaspatiḥ, vāg vai bṛhatī tasyā eṣa patiḥ, tasmād u bṛhaspatiḥ.

20. And this is also Bṛhaspati. The bṛhatī is speech and this is its lord. Therefore this is Bṛhaspati.

bṛhatī: The metre with 36 syllables used in the R.V. Here it is used for the R.V. itself.

21. eṣa u eva brahmanas-patiḥ, vāg vai brahma, tasyā eṣa patiḥ, tasmād u brahmanas-patiḥ.

21. And this is also Brahmanas-pati. Speech is Brahman, and this is its lord. Therefore, this is Brahmanas-pati.

Brahman refers to the Yajur Veda.

A EULOGY OF THE CHANT ON BREATH

22. eṣa u eva sāma, vāg vai sāma, eṣa sā cāmaśceti, tat sāmnaḥ sāmātvam; yad veva samah pluṣiṇā, samo maśakena, samo nāgena, sama ebhis tribhir lokaiḥ, samo' nena sarveṇa, tasmād veva sāma, aśnute sāmnaḥ sāyujyam salokatām, ya evam etat sāma veda.

22. And this is also the Sāma Veda; speech, verily, is the chant. It is sā (she) and ama (he). That is why sāman is called sāman or because he is equal to a white ant, equal to a mosquito, equal to an elephant, equal to these three worlds, nay, equal to this universe, therefore indeed is it the Sāma Veda. He who knows this Sāma Veda to be such, attains union with it or lives in the same world with it.

See C.U. V. 2. 6.

sā is speech, and ama is vital breath.

23. eṣa u vā udgīthaḥ, prāṇo vā ut, prāṇena hīdaṁ sarvam uttabdham, vāg eva gīthā, uc ca gīthā ceti, sa udgīthaḥ.

23. And this is also the udgītha. The vital breath, verily, is ut, for by vital breath is this whole (world) upheld. Song, verily, is speech. This is udgītha, for it is ut and gīthā.

24. taddhāpi brahmadattaś caikitāneyo rājānam bhakṣayann uvāca, ayam tyasya rājā mūrdhānam vipātayatāt, yad ito'yāsya āngiraso' nyenodagāyad iti, vācā ca hy eva sa prāṇena codagāyad iti.

24. As to this also, Brahmadatta Caikitāneya, while drinking King (Soma) said: Let this King strike off this man's (my) head (if I say) that Ayāsya Āngirasa chanted the udgītha with any other means than this (vital breath and speech); for, said he, only with speech and with vital breath did he chant the udgītha.

Caikitāneya: the great grandson of Cikitāna.
rājānam: yajñe somam. Ś.

25. tasya haitasya sāmno yah svam veda, bhavati hāsya svam; tasya vai svara eva svam; tasmād ārtviṣyam kariṣyan vāci svaram iccheta; tayā vācā svara-sampannayārtviṣyam kuryāt; tasmād yajñe svaravantam didṛkṣanta eva; atho yasya svam bhavati; bhavati hāsya svam, ya evam etat sāmnaḥ, svam veda.

25. He who knows the wealth of that Sāman has that wealth. Its wealth, indeed, is tone. Therefore, one who is about to perform the duties of a Ṛtvij priest desires to have a rich tone in his voice. Being possessed of such a voice, he performs the duties of a Ṛtvij priest. Therefore, people desire to see at a sacrifice a priest with a good voice, as one who has wealth. He who knows the wealth of Sāman to be such attains wealth.

26. tasya haitasya sāmno yaḥ suvarṇam veda, bhavati hāsya suvarṇam, tasya vai svara eva suvarṇam, bhavati hāsya suvarṇam, ya evam etat sāmnaḥ suvarṇam veda.

26. He who knows what is the gold (correct sound) of this Sāman obtains gold. The tone, verily, is its gold. He who thus knows the gold of that Sāman obtains gold.

suvarṇa: correct sound or gold: su, varṇa.

27. tasya haitasya sāmno yaḥ pratiṣṭhām veda, prati ha tiṣṭhati, tasya vai vāg eva pratiṣṭhā, vāci hi khalv eṣa etat prāṇaḥ pratiṣṭhito gīyate. anna ity u haika āhuḥ.

27. He who knows the support of this Sāman is, indeed, supported. Speech, verily, is its support; for, when supported on such, the vital breath chants. But some say it is (supported) on food (body).

28. Now next the repetition only of the purificatory hymns, verily, the Prastotr priest recites the chant and while he recites it, let the sacrificer recite these (three yajus verses): 'from the unreal lead me to the real, from darkness lead me to light, from death lead me to immortality.' When he says 'from the unreal lead me to the real,' the unreal, verily, is death, the real is immortality. 'From death lead me to immortality'; 'make me immortal,' that is what he says. 'From darkness lead me to light'; darkness, verily, is death, the light is immortality. From death lead me to immortality, make me immortal, that is what he says. 'From death lead me to immortality,' there is nothing here that is hidden (or obscure and so requires explanation). Now whatever other verses (there are) in the hymns of praise, in them one should secure food by chanting. And therefore in them he should choose a boon whatever desire he may desire. That udgātr priest who knows this, whatever desire he desires, either for himself or for the sacrificer, that he obtains by chanting. This, indeed is (called) world-conquering. He who thus knows this chant, for him there is no fear of his being without a world.

abhyāroha: ascension. It is so called because the performer reaches the divinity he worships.

Fourth Brāhmaṇa

THE CREATION OF THE WORLD FROM THE SELF

1. ātmaivedam agra āsīt puruṣavidhaḥ, so'nuvīkṣya nānyad ātmano'paśyat, so'ham asmīty agre vyāharat; tato'ham nāmābhavat, tasmād apy etarhy āmantritah; aham ayam ity evāgra uktvā, athānyan nāma prabrūte yad asyābhavati. sa yat pūrvo'smāt sarvasmāt sarvān pāpmana auśat, tasmāt puruṣah; oṣati ha vai sa tam, yo'smāt pūrvo bubhūṣati, ya evaṁ veda.

1. In the beginning this (world) was only the self, in the shape of a person. Looking around he saw nothing else than the self. He first said, 'I am.' Therefore arose the name of I. Therefore, even to this day when one is addressed he says first 'This is I' and then speaks whatever other name he may have. Because before all this, he burnt all evils, therefore he is a person. He who knows this, verily, burns up him who wishes to be before him.

aham: derived from the root as 'to be' means the existence of I.

anuvīkṣya: the person who sees and creates himself (sr̥ṣṭvā), in the very act of seeing enters into the creation (anuprāviśat), into all things, beings and selves.

2. so'bībhet, tasmād ekākī bibheti, sa hāyam īkṣām cakre, yan mad anyan nāsti, kaśmān nu bibhemūti, tata evāsya bhayam vīyāya kasmād hy abheśyat, dvitīyād vai bhayam bhavati.

2. He was afraid. Therefore one who is alone is afraid. This one then thought to himself, 'since there is nothing else than myself, of what am I afraid?' Thereupon his fear, verily, passed away, for, of what should he have been afraid? Assuredly it is from a second that fear arises.

3. He, verily, had no delight. Therefore he who is alone has no delight. He desired a second. He became as large as a woman and a man in close embrace. He caused that self to fall into two parts. From that arose husband and wife. Therefore, as Yājñavalkya used to say, this (body) is one half of oneself, like one of the two halves of a split pea. Therefore this space is filled by a wife. He became united with her. From that human beings were produced.

samabhavat: became united, maithunam upagataṽn. Ś.

Hiraṇya-garbha or Prajā-pati divided himself into two. Both are his elements: The two are not separate and the theory is not one of final dualism. Cp. Viṣṇu Purāṇa.

śata-rūpāṃ ca tām nārīm tapo-nirdhūta-kalmaṣām svāyambhuvo manur devaḥ patnīve jagrhe prabhuḥ.

Because the woman was born of Virāj, she is said to be his daughter also: prajāpatir manvākhyas śata-rūpākhyām ātmano dukhitarām patnīvena kalpitām. Ś.

The original being, ātman or self looks around and sees nothing else but himself. When he realises his loneliness, he has two feelings, one of fear and the other of a desire for companionship. His fear is dispelled when he realises that there is nothing else of which he has to be afraid. His desire for companionship is satisfied by his dividing himself into two parts which are then called husband and wife.

Compare this with Plato's myth of the androgynous man in Symposium 189c.

From the union of the two, the race of human beings is produced. A series of transformations of the original human pair into animal forms is mentioned in the next passage.

4. sā heyam iṅśāṃ cakre, katham nu mātmana eva janayitvā sambhavati, hanta tiro'sānīti; sā gaur abhavat, ṛṣabha itaras tām sam evābhavat, tato gāvo jāyanta; vaḍavetarābhavat, āśva-ṛṣa itarah, gardhabhitarā gardabha itarah, tām sam evābhavat, tata eka-śapham ajāyata; ajetarābhavat, vasta itarah, avir itarā, meṣa itarah, tām sam evābhavat, tato'jāvayo' jāyanta; evam eva yad idam kim ca mithunam, ā-pīpīlikābhyah tat sarvam asṛjata.

4. She thought, 'How can he unite with me after having produced me from himself?' Well, let me hide myself. She became a cow, the other became a bull and was united with her and from that cows were born. The one became a mare, the other a stallion. The one became a she-ass, the other a he-ass and was united with her; and from that one-hoofed animals were born. The one became a she-goat, the other a he-goat, the one became a ewe, the other became a ram and was united with her and from that goats and sheep were born. Thus, indeed, he produced everything whatever exists in pairs, down to the ants.

5. so'vet, aham vāva sṛṣṭir asmi, aham hīdam sarvam asṛkṣīti; tataḥ sṛṣṭir abhavat, sṛṣṭyām hāsyaitasyām bhavati ya evam veda.

5. He knew, I indeed am this creation for I produced all this. Therefore he became the creation. He who knows this as such comes to be in that creation of his.

He who knows this becomes himself a creator like Prajā-pati: etasmin jagati sa prajāpatiṣat sṛṣṭā bhavati.

In the next verse we have the creation of the gods, Agni, Fire, and Soma, Moon.

6. athety abhyamanthat, sa mukhāc ca yoner hastābhyām cāgnim asṛjata, tasmād etad ubhayam alomakam antarataḥ, alomakā hi yonir antarataḥ, tad yad idam āhur amum yajā, amum yajety ekaikam devam, etasyaiva sā visṛṣṭih, eṣa u hy eva sarve devāḥ. atha yat kim cedam ārdram, tad retaso asṛjata, tad u somaḥ. etāvad vā idam sarvam annam caivānnādaś ca, soma evānnam, agnir annādaḥ. saiṣā brahmaṇo'tisṛṣṭih, yac chreyaso devān asṛjata: atha yan martyaḥ sann amṛtān asṛjata, tasmād atisṛṣṭih. atisṛṣṭyām hāsyaitasyām bhavati ya evam veda.

6. Then he rubbed back and forth and produced fire from its source, the mouth and the hands. Both these (mouth and the hands) are hairless on the inside for the source is hairless on the inside. When they (the people) say 'sacrifice to him,' 'sacrifice to the other one,' all this is his creation indeed and he himself is all the gods. And now whatever is moist, that he produced from semen, and that is Soma. This whole (world) is just food and the eater of food. Soma is food and fire is the eater of food. This is the highest creation of Brahmā, namely, that he created the gods who are superior to him. He, although mortal himself, created the immortals. Therefore it is the highest creation. Verily, he who knows this becomes (a creator) in this highest creation.

soma: moon, the lord of medicinal plants. oṣadhīpati. Cp. Deuteronomy XXXIII. 14: 'The precious fruits brought forth by the sun and the precious things put forth by the moon.'

Ś refers to two views of Hiranya-garbha, that he is the transcendent Brahman and that he is the transmigrating 'self,' para eva hiranya-garbha ity eke, samsārity apare. Ś accounts for it by the difference of the presence and absence of limitations, upādhi-vaśāt samsāritvam, paramārthatas svato'samsāry eva.

7. At that time this (universe) was undifferentiated. It became differentiated by name and form (so that it is said) he has such a name, such a shape. Therefore even today this (universe) is differentiated by name and shape (so that it is said) he has such a name, such a shape. He (the self) entered in here even to the tips of the nails, as a razor is (hidden) in the razor-case, or as fire in the fire-source. Him they see not for (as seen) he is incomplete, when breathing he is called the vital force, when speaking voice, when seeing the eye, when hearing the ear, when thinking the mind. These are merely the names of his acts. He who meditates on one or another of them (aspects) he does not know for he is incomplete, with one or another of these (characteristics). The self is to be meditated upon for in it all these become one. This self is the foot-trace of all this, for by it one knows all this, just as one can find again by foot-prints (what was lost). He who knows this finds fame and praise.

nāma-rūpa: name and shape which together make the individual. The nāma is not the name but the idea, the archetype, the essential character, and the rūpa is the existential context, the visible embodiment of the idea. In every object there are these two elements, the principle which is grasped by the intellect and the envelope which is apprehended by the senses. While nāma is the inner power, rūpa is its sensible manifestation. If we take the world as a whole, we have the one nāma or all-consciousness informing the one rūpa, the concrete universe. The different nāma-rūpas are the differentiated conditions of the one nāma, the world consciousness. While the world form is mūrta, its soul is a-mūrta. The former is shaped corporeal, sa-śarīram, the latter is incorporeal a-śarīram. B.U. II. 3; C.U. VIII. 12. 1. In B.U. III. 2. 12, the part that does not leave the individual soul at death is nāma, which is not accessible to the senses. Ākāśa is nāma, and in the human individual the space in the heart hṛdy-ākāśa, is the domain of nāma, the principle of consciousness. as a razor in a razorcase: He is hidden in all things as a razor in its case or as fire in wood. The ignorant do not know him who is hidden behind all names and forms. See R.V. I. 164. 5.

viśvam-bhara: He who sustains the world. Vaiśvānara viśvam bibharti vaiśvānarāgni-rūpeneti viśvam-bharaḥ. R.

karma-nāmāni: names of his acts. These are functional names which conceal his undivided nature. We must realise the self not in its several aspects but as these are unified in the self.

akṛtsnah: incomplete, a-pūrṇa-svarūpaḥ. R. Sense or intellectual knowledge which does not involve the functioning of the whole self is incomplete knowledge. Wholeness is integral insight.

We trace out lost cattle by following their footsteps, so will we find everything if we know the Self.

8. tad etat preyaḥ putrāt, preyo vittāt, preyo'nyasmāt sarvasmāt, antarataram, yad ayam ātmā. sa yo'nyam ātmanah priyam bruvānam brūyāt, priyam rotsyatīti, īśvaro ha tathaiiva syāt. ātmānam eva priyam upāsīta, sa ya ātmānam eva priyam upāste na hāsyā priyam pramāyukam bhavati.

8. That self is dearer than a son, is dearer than wealth, is dearer than everything else and is innermost. If one were to say to a person who speaks of anything else than the Self as dear, he will lose what he holds dear, he would very likely do so. One should meditate on the Self alone as dear. He who meditates on the self alone as dear, what he holds dear, verily, will not perish.

īśvaraḥ: able, capable, samarthaḥ. Ś.

pramāyukam: perishable, pramaraṇasītam. Ś.

9. tad āhuh, yad brahma-vidyayā sarvaṁ bhaviṣyanto manuṣyā manyante, kim u tad brahmāvet, yasmāt tat sarvaṁ abhavad iti.

9. They say, 'since men think that, by the knowledge of Brahman, they become all, what, pray, was it that Brahman knew by which he became all?

10. Brahman, indeed; was this in the beginning. It knew itself only as 'I am Brahman.' Therefore it became all. Whoever among the gods became awakened to this, he, indeed, became that. It is the same in the case of seers, same in the case of men. Seeing this, indeed, the seer Vāma-deva knew, 'I was Manu and the Sun too.' This is so even now. Whoever knows thus, 'I am Brahman,' becomes this all. Even the gods cannot prevent his becoming thus, for he becomes their self. So whoever worships another divinity (than his self) thinking that he is one and (Brahman) another, he knows not. He is like an animal to the gods. As many animals serve a man so does each man serve the gods. Even if one animal is taken away, it causes displeasure, what should one say of many (animals)? Therefore it is not pleasing to those (gods) that men should know this.

See R.V. IV. 26. 1. Vāma-deva is the seer of the fourth book of the R.V. Being is self-knowledge.

pratyabudhyata: became awakened. Cp. Buddhist bodhi sambodhi; Kena 12.

The gods are not pleased that men should know the ultimate truth, for then they would know the subordinate place the gods hold and give up making them offerings.

II. brahma vā idam āgra āsīt, ekam eva; tad ekam san na vyabhavat. tac chreyo rūpam atyasṛjata kṣatram, yāny etāni devatrā kṣatrāṇi, indro varuṇaḥ soma rudraḥ parjanya yama mṛtyur iśāna iti. tasmāt kṣatrāt paraṁ nāsti, tasmāt brāhmaṇaḥ kṣatriyam adhistād upāste rājasūye, kṣatra eva tad yaśo dadhāti; saiśā kṣatrasya yonir yad brahma. tasmād yady api rājā paramatām gacchati, brahmaivāntata upaniṣrayati svām yonim. ya u enam hinasti, svām sa yonim ṛcchati, sa pāpīyān bhavati, yathā śreyāmsam himsitvā.

II. Verily, in the beginning this (world) was Brahman, one only. That, being one, did not flourish. He created further an excellent form, the Kṣatra power, even those who are Kṣatras (rulers) among the gods, Indra, Varuṇa, Soma (Moon), Rudra, Parjanya, Yama, Mṛtyu (Death), Iśāna. Therefore there is nothing higher than Kṣatra. Therefore at the Rājasūya sacrifice the Brāhmaṇa sits below the Kṣatriya. On Kṣatrahood alone does he confer this honour. But the Brāhmaṇa is nevertheless the source of the Kṣatra. Therefore, even if the king attains supremacy at the end of it, he resorts to the Brahmana as his source. Therefore he who injures the Brāhmaṇa strikes at his own source. He becomes more evil as he injures one who is superior.

At the beginning there was only one caste or class, the Brāhmaṇa: differentiations were not, nāsīt-kṣatrādi-bhedah. Ś.

kṣatra: power or dominion, used to designate the princely or the military class.

rāja-sūya: the ceremonial anointing of a King.

12. sa naiva vyabhavat. sa viśam asṛjata, yāny etāni deva-jātāni gaṇaśa ākhyāyante, vasavo rudrā ādityā viśvedevā maruta iti.

12. Yet he did not flourish. He created the viś (the commonalty), these classes of gods who are designated in groups. the Vasus, Rudras, Ādityas, Viśvedevās and Maruts.

The Brāhmaṇa represents knowledge, the Kṣatriya temporal power. They are not enough. We require a class for increasing production and acquiring wealth.

13. sa naiva vyabhavat, sa śaudraṁ varṇam asṛjata pūṣanam; iyaṁ vai pūṣā, iyaṁ hīdaṁ sarvaṁ puṣyati yad idaṁ kiṁ ca.

13. He did not still flourish. He created the Śudra order, as Pūṣan. Verily, this (earth) is Pūṣan (the nourisher), for she nourishes everything that is.

Society requires, in addition to wisdom, power, and wealth, service and work. Wisdom conceives the order, power sanctions and enforces it, wealth and production provide the means for carrying out the order, and work carries out. These are the different functions essential for a normal well-ordered society. These distinctions are found among both gods and men.

14. Yet he did not flourish. He created further an excellent form, justice. This is the power of the Kṣatriya class, viz. justice. Therefore there is nothing higher than justice. So a weak man hopes (to defeat) a strong man by means of justice as one does through a king. Verily, that which is justice is truth. Therefore they say of a man who speaks the truth, he speaks justice or of a man who speaks justice that he speaks the truth. Verily, both these are the same.

dharmā: lāw or justice is that which constrains the unruly wills and affections of people.

Even kings are subordinate to dharma, to the rule of law. Law or justice is not arbitrary. It is the embodiment of truth. 'That which is known and that which is practised are justice.' jñāyamānam anuṣṭhīyamānam ca tad dharma eva bhavati. Ś.
hopes to defeat: jetum āsāmsate. R.

From early times kings are said to act out the truth, satyaṁ kṛvānah. R.V. X. 109. 6, or take hold of the truth satyaṁ grhṇānah. Atharva Veda V. 17. 10; satya and dharma, truth and justice are organically related.

praiti, sa enam avidito na bhunakti, yathā vedo vānanūktāḥ anyad vā karmākṛtam. yad iha vā apy anevamīd mahat-puṇyam karma karoti, taddhāsyāntataḥ kṣīyata eva, ātmānam eva lokam upāsita; sa ya ātmānam eva lokam upāste, na hāsy karma kṣīyate, asmādd hy eva ātmano yad yat kāmāyate tat tat sṛjate.

15. So these (four orders were created) the Brāhmaṇa, the Kṣatriya, the Vaiśya and the Sūdra. Among the gods that Brahmā existed as Fire, among men as Brāhmaṇa, as a Kṣatriya by means of the (divine) Kṣatriya, as a Vaiśya by means of the (divine) Vaiśya, as a Sūdra by means of the (divine) Sūdra. Therefore people desire a place among the gods through fire only, and among men as the Brāhmaṇa, for by these two forms (pre-eminently) Brahmā existed. If anyone, however, departs from this world without seeing (knowing) his own world, it being unknown, does not protect him, as the Vedas unrecited or as a deed not done do not (protect him). Even if one performs a great and holy work, but without knowing this, that work of his is exhausted in the end. One should meditate only on the Self as his (true) world. The work of him who meditates on the Self alone as his world is not exhausted for, out of that very Self he creates whatsoever he desires.

See C.U. VIII. 2.

Ś quotes Manu II. 87 that a Brāhmaṇa is one who is friendly to all, to justify the aspiration of human beings to attain to the order of Brāhmaṇahood: sarveṣu bhūteṣu abhaya-pradaḥ. Ā.

A Brāhmaṇa grants freedom from fear to all beings.

"It is a common saying in mediaeval writers that society consists of those who work, those who guard, and those who pray. It is worth while to note in passing that these writers mean by the workers those who work on the land, and that the classification omits entirely the merchant and the dweller in the towns." Legacy of the Middle Ages, 1926, p. 11, C. G. Crump.

16. Now this self, verily, is the world of all beings. In so far as he makes offerings and sacrifices, he becomes the world of the gods. In so far as he learns (the Vedas), he becomes the world of the seers. In so far as he offers libations to the fathers and desires offspring, he becomes the world of the fathers. In so far as he gives shelter and food to men, he becomes the world of men. In so far as he gives grass and water to the animals, he becomes the world of animals. In so far as beasts and birds, even to the ants find a living in his houses he becomes their world. Verily, as one wishes non-injury for his own world, so all beings wish non-injury for him who has this knowledge. This, indeed, is known and well investigated.

lokaḥ: world, object or enjoyment, loko hi nāma prāṇi-bhoga-sthāna-viśeṣaḥ. R.

anubrūte: learns the Vedas, svādhyāyam adhīte. Ś.

The interdependence of man and the world including deities, seers, fathers, animals, is brought out. The same idea is elaborated in the theory of the five great sacrifices, pañca-mahāyajñāḥ, bhūta-yajña, manuṣya-yajña, pitṛ-yajña, deva-yajña and brahma-yajña for animals, men, manes, gods and seers.

ariṣṭam: non-injury. riṣṭam: nāśaḥ, ariṣṭam, anāśam. R.

17. ātmaivedam agra āsīt, eka eva; so'kāmayata, jāyā me syāt atha prajāyeya; atha vittam me syād, atha karma kurvīyeti. etāvān vai kāmāḥ: necchāṁś ca na ato bhūyo vindet. tasmād apy etarhy ekākī kāmayate, jāyā me syāt, atha prajāyeya, atha vittam me syād atha karma kurvīyeti. sa yāvad apy eteṣāṁ ekaikam na prāpnoti, a-kṛtsna eva tāvan mānyate. tasyo kṛtsnatā: mana evāśya ātmā, vāg jāyā, prāṇaḥ prajā, cakṣur mānuṣaṁ vittam, cakṣuṣā hi tad vindate, śrotam daivam, śrotreṇa hi tac chr̥ṇot. ātmaivāśya karma, ātmanā hi karma karoti. sa eṣa pāṅkto yajñāḥ, pāṅktaḥ paśuḥ, pāṅktaḥ puruṣaḥ, pāṅktaṁ idaṁ sarvaṁ yad idaṁ kim ca. tad idaṁ sarvaṁ āpnoti, ya evaṁ veda.

17. In the beginning this (world) was just the self, one only. He desired, 'would that I had a wife, then I may have offspring. Would that I had wealth, then I would perform rites.' This much indeed is the (range of) desire. Even if one wishes, one cannot get more than this. Therefore, to this day, a man who is single desires, 'would that I had a wife, then I may have offspring. Would that I had wealth, then I would perform rites.' So long as he does not obtain each one of these, he thinks himself to be incomplete. Now his completeness (is as follows), mind truly is his self, speech his wife, breath is his offspring, the eye is his human wealth, for he finds it with the eye, the ear his divine wealth, for he hears it with his ear. The body, indeed, is his work, for with his body he performs work. So this sacrifice is fivefold, fivefold is the animal, fivefold is the person, fivefold is all this world, whatever there is. He who knows this as such obtains all this.

The ignorant man thinks that he is incomplete without wife, children and possessions.

a-kṛtsnaḥ: incomplete, a-sampūrṇaḥ. Ś.

Fifth Brāhmaṇa

PRAJĀ-PATI'S PRODUCTION OF THE WORLD AS FOOD FOR HIMSELF

1. *yat saptānnāni medhayā tapasā janayat pitā, ekam asya sādḥāraṇam, dve devān abhājayat;
trīṇy ātmane' kuruta, paśubhya ekam prāyacchat.
tasmin sarvam pratiṣṭhitam, yac ca prāṇiti yac ca na.
kasmāt tāni na kṣīyante adyamānāni sarvadā?
yo vaitām akṣitam veda, so' mnam atti pratikena;
sa devān apigacchati, sa ūrjam upajīvati.*

1. When the Father (of creation) produced by knowledge and austerity seven kinds of food, one of his (foods) was common to all beings, two he assigned to the gods, three he made for himself, one he gave to the animals. In it everything rests, whatsoever breathes and what does not. Why then do they not decline when they are being eaten all the time? He who knows this imperishableness, he eats food with his mouth. He goes to the gods, he lives on strength. Thus the verses.

tapasā: by austerity or the performance of rules, karmanā; jñāna-karmanī eva hi medhā-tapaś-śabda-vācye. Ś.

2. 'yat saptānnāni medhayā tapasā janayat pitā' iti medhayā hi tapasā janayat pitā. 'ekam asya sādḥāraṇam' iti, idam evāsya tat sādḥāraṇam annam, yad idam adyate, sa ya etad upāste na sa pāpmano vyāvartate, miśraṁ hy etat. 'dve devān abhājayat' iti,

hutaṁ ca prahutaṁ ca; tasmād devebhyo juhvati ca pra ca juhvati, atho āhuḥ, darśapūrṇamāsāv iti; tasmān neṣṭi-yājukaḥ syāt. 'paśubhya ekam prāyacchat' iti. tat payaḥ, payo hy evāgre manuṣyāś ca paśavaś copajīvanti. tasmāt kumāraṁ jātam ghṛtaṁ vai vāgre pratilehayanti, stanaṁ vānudhāpayanti; atha vatsam jātam āhuḥ, 'atrnāda' iti; 'tasmin sarvaṁ pratiṣṭhitam yac ca prāṇiti yac ca na' iti, payasi hīdaṁ sarvaṁ pratiṣṭhitam, yac ca prāṇiti yac ca na. tad yad idam āhuḥ samvatsaram payasā juhvaḥ apa punarmṛtyum jayātīti, na tathā vidyāt. yad ahar eva juhoti, tad ahaḥ punarmṛtyum apajayaty evam vidvān; 'sarvaṁ hi devebhyo 'nnādyam prayacchati. 'kasmāt tāni na kṣīyante adyamānāni sarvadā 'iti, puruṣo vā akṣītiḥ, sa hīdam annam punaḥ punar janayate. 'yo vai tām akṣītiṁ veda 'iti, puruṣo vā akṣītiḥ, sa hīdam annaṁ dhiyā dhiyā janayate karmabhīḥ, yaddhaitan na kuryāt kṣīyeta ha. 'so'nnam atti pratīkena' iti, mukham pratīkam, mukhenety etat. sa devān apigacchati, sa ūrjam upajīvati 'iti prasaṁsā.

2. 'When the Father produced by knowledge and austerity seven kinds of food' means that the Father produced them by knowledge and austerity. 'One of his foods was common to all beings' means that the food of his which is eaten is that which is common to all. He who worships (eats) that (common food) is not freed from evil for, verily, that (food) is mixed. 'Two he assigned to the gods' means they are the fire sacrifice (huta) and the offering. Therefore one sacrifices and offers to the gods. But they also say that they are the new-moon and the full-moon sacrifices. Therefore one should not offer sacrifice for material ends. 'One who gave to the animals' 'that is milk' for, at first, men and animals live on milk alone. Therefore they make a newborn babe first lick clarified butter or put it to the breast; likewise they speak of a newborn calf as one that does not eat grass. 'In it everything rests whatsoever breathes and what does not' means that on milk everything rests whatsoever breathes and what does not. This is said that by making offerings with milk for a year one conquers further death. One should not think so. For he who knows this conquers further death the very day he makes the offering, for he offers all his food to the gods. 'Why then do they not decline when they are being eaten all the time,' means verily, the person is imperishable, for he produces this food again and again. 'He who knows this imperishableness' means that the Person is imperishable, for he produces this food as his work by his continuous meditation. Should he not do this, his food would be exhausted. 'He eats food with his mouth.' The pratīka is the mouth, he eats it with his mouth.' He goes to the gods; he lives on strength; this is praise.

Ś makes out that desire is possible only when we are ignorant of the truth of things. When we realise the truth, there can be no desire: brahma-vidyā-viśaye ca sarvaikatvāt kāmānupapatteḥ.

The eater is the subject which is constant, imperishable: the food eaten is the object, it is changing.

mukham: mouth, pre-eminence, mukhyatvam, prādhānyam Ś.

R. makes out that the Supreme Person produces food for the needs of creatures. paramātmā praty aham annāni punaḥ punaḥ prāṇi-kar-mānusāreṇa janayati.

3. 'trīṇy ātmane' kuruta iti, mano vācam prāṇam, tāny ātmane 'kuruta': anyatra manā abhūvaṁ nādarśam, anyatra manā abhūvaṁ nāśrauṣam iti, manasā hy eva paśyati, manasā śṛṇoti, kāmāḥ saṁkalpo vicikitsā, śraddhā 'śraddhā, dhṛtir adhṛtir hrīr dhīr bhīr ity etat sarvaṁ mana eva. tasmād api prṣṭhata upasprṣṭo manasā vijānāti; yaḥ kaś ca śabdo, vāg eva sā; eṣā hi āntam āyattā, eṣā hi na prāṇo 'pāno vyāna udānaḥ samāno' na ity etat sarvaṁ prāṇa eva. etanmayo vā ayam ātmā, vān-mayaḥ, mano-mayaḥ, prāṇa-mayaḥ.

3. 'Three he made for himself.' Mind, speech, breath, these he made for himself. '(They say) my mind was elsewhere, I did not see it, my mind was elsewhere, I did not hear.' It is with the mind, truly, that one sees. It is with the mind that one hears. Desire, determination, doubt, faith, lack of faith, steadfastness, lack of steadfastness, shame, intellection, fear, all this is truly mind. Therefore even if one is touched on his back, he discerns it with the mind. Whatever sound there is, it is just speech. Verily, it serves to determine an end (object), but is not itself (determined or revealed). The in-breath, the out-breath, the diffused breath, the up-breath, the middle-breath, all that breathes is breath only. Verily, the self consists of speech, mind and breath.

See Maitrī VI. 30.

Mere presentation is not enough for perception. Mind must be attentive. We often say that we did not see it or hear it because we were absent-minded. It is through the mind that we see and hear. saṁkalpa: determination, determining the nature of a thing presented to us, whether it is white or blue, etc. pratyupasthita-viśaya- vikalpanam śukla-nīlādibhedena. Ś. According to Amara, it is a mental act, mānasam karma.

Prāṇa is the general term for breath, in or out.

Apāna is the downward breath, Vyāna is the bond of union of the two. It is the breath which sustains life when there is neither expiration nor inspiration. Samāna is common to both expiration and inspiration. Udāna leads the soul in deep sleep to the central Reality or conducts the soul from the body on death.

Speech reveals things but is not revealed by others of the same class.

4. trayo lokā eta eva, vāg evāyaṁ lokah, mano'ntarikṣa lokah, prāṇo' sau lokah.

4. These same are the three worlds. Speech is this world (the earth), Mind is the atmospheric world (the sky), Breath is that world (heaven).

5. trayo vedā eta eva, vāg eva ṛg vedah, mano yajur vedah, prāṇah sāma vedah.

5. These same are the three Vedas. Speech, verily, is the Ṛg Veda. Mind is the Yajur Veda. Breath is the Sāma Veda.

6. devāḥ pitaro manuṣyā eta eva, vāg eva devāḥ, manah pitaraḥ, prāṇo manuṣyāḥ.

6. These same are the gods, manes and men. Speech, verily, is the gods. Mind is the manes. Breath is the men.

7. pitā mātā prajā eta eva, mana eva pitā, vān mātā, prāṇah prajā.

7. These same are father, mother and offspring, Mind, verily, is the father. Speech is the mother. Breath is the offspring.

8. viññātam vijijñāsyam aviññātam eta eva; yat kiṁ ca viññātam, vacas tad rūpam, vāgg hi vijñātā, vāg enaṁ tad bhūtvāvati.

8. These same are what is known, what is to be known and what is unknown. Whatever is known is a form of speech, for speech is the knower. For speech by becoming that (which is known) protects him (the knower).

9. yat kiṁ ca vijijñāsyam, manasas tad rūpam, mano hi vijñāsyam, mana enaṁ tad bhūtvāvati.

9. Whatever is to be known is a form of mind for mind is to be known. For mind by becoming that protects him.

The mind protects him by becoming that which is to be known.

10. yat kim cāviññātam, prāṇasya tad rūpam; prāṇo hy aviññātaḥ, prāṇa evaṃ tad bhūtoāvati.

10. Whatever is unknown is a form of breath for breath is what is unknown. For breath by becoming that protects him.

11. tasyai vācaḥ pṛthivī śarīram, jyotī-rūpam ayam agniḥ: tad yāvaty eva vāk, tāvatī pṛthivī, tāvaṃ ayam agniḥ.

11. Of this speech, the earth is the body. Its light-form is this (terrestrial) fire. As far as speech extends, so far extends the earth, so far (extends) this fire.

12. athaitasya mānaso dyauḥ śarīram, jyotī-rūpam asāv ādityaḥ, tad yāvād eva manas, tāvatī dyauḥ, tāvaṃ asāv ādityaḥ. tau mithunam samaitām: tataḥ prāṇo ajāyata sa indraḥ, sa eṣo'sapatnaḥ: dvitīyo vai sapatnaḥ: nāsyā sapatno bhavati, ya evaṃ veda.

12. Now of this mind, heaven is the body and its light-form is that sun. As far as the mind extends, so far extends the heaven, so far (extends) that sun. These two (the fire and the sun) entered into union and from that was born breath. He is Indra (the supreme lord). He is without a rival. Verily, a second person is a rival. He who knows this has no rival.

Indra: the supreme lord, paramēśvaraḥ. Ś.

13. athaitasya prāṇasyāpāḥ śarīram, jyotī-rūpam asau candraḥ, tad yāvān eva prāṇaḥ, tāvatya āpāḥ, tāvaṃ asau candraḥ, ta ete sarva eva samāḥ, sarve'nantāḥ: sa yo haitān antavata upāste antavantam sa lokam jayati. atha yo haitān anantān upāste, anantam sa lokam jayati.

13. Next, of this breath, water is the body. Its light-form is that moon. As far as the breath extends so far extends water and so far (extends) that moon. These are all alike, all endless. Verily, he who meditates on them as finite, wins a finite world. But he who meditates on them as infinite wins an infinite world.

SELF IDENTIFIED WITH THE SIXTEENFOLD PRAJĀ-PATI

14. sa eṣa samvatsaraḥ prajā-patiḥ, ṣoḍaśa-kalāḥ; tasya rātraya eva pañcadaśa-kalāḥ, dhruvavāsyā ṣoḍaśi kalā. sa rātribhir eva ca pūryate, apa ca kṣīyate; so'māvāsyām rātrim etayā ṣoḍasyā kalayā sarvam idam prāṇabhrd amupraviśya, tataḥ prātar jāyate. tasmād etām rātrim prāṇa-bhṛtaḥ prāṇam na vicchindydā api kṛkatā sasya, etasyā eva devatāyā apacityai.

14. That Prajā-pati is the year and has sixteen parts. His nights, indeed, have fifteen parts, the fixed point his sixteenth part. He is increased and diminished by his nights alone. Having on the new-moon night entered with that sixteenth part into everything here that has breath, he is born thence in the (following) morning. Therefore on that night let no one cut off the breath of any breathing things, not even of a lizard, in honour of that divinity.

apacityai: in honour of, pūjārtham. Ś.

15. yo vai sa saṁvatsarah prajāpatiḥ ṣoḍaśa-kalah, ayam eva sa yo'yam evam-vit puruṣaḥ. tasya vittam eva pañcadaśa-kalāḥ, ātmaivāśya ṣoḍaśī kalā, sa vittenaivā ca pūryate apa cakṣīyate. tad etan nabhyam yad ayam ātmā, pradhīr vittam. tasmād yady api sarvaśyānīm jīyate, ātmanā cej jīvati, pradhināgād .ity evāhuḥ.

15. Verily, the person here who knows this is himself that Prajā-pati with the sixteen parts who is the year. His wealth is the fifteen parts, the sixteenth part is his self. In wealth alone is one increased and diminished. That which is the self is a hub, wealth a felly. Therefore even if one loses everything but he himself lives, people say that he has lost only his felly (which can be restored again).

Wealth is compared to the spokes of a wheel. It is something external. If one loses wealth he loses only his outer trappings. He can regain wealth. It is the distinction between being and having, to use Gabriel Marcel's words.

The superscription at Delphi, 'Know thyself' is, according to Plutarch, an injunction addressed by God to all who approach him: Moralia 384 D.f. In Alcibiades I. 130 E.f. Socrates says that he who orders 'Know thyself' bids us 'Know the soul,' and he who knows only what is of the body 'knows the things that are his but not himself.'

THE THREE WORLDS AND THE MEANS OF WINNING THEM

16. atha trayo vāva lokāḥ, manuṣya-lokaḥ, pitr-lokaḥ. deva-loka iti. so'yam manuṣya-lokaḥ putrenaiva jayyah, nānyena karmanā. karmanā pitr-lokaḥ, vidyayā deva-lokaḥ, deva-loko vai lokānām śreṣṭhak: tasmād vidyām praśamsanti.

16. Now, there are, verily, three worlds, the world of men, the world of the fathers, and the world of the gods. This world of men is to be obtained through the son alone, not by any other work, the world of the fathers by works (rites), the world of the gods by knowledge. The world of gods is, verily, the best of worlds. Therefore they praise knowledge.

vidyā: knowledge, vidyā-śabdasya brahma-vidyā-paratvam. R.

FATHER'S BENEDICTION AND TRANSMISSION OF CHARGE

17. Now therefore the transmission. When a man thinks that he is about to depart, he says to his son, 'you are Brahman, you are the sacrifice and you are the world.' The son answers, 'I am Brahman, I am the sacrifice, I am the world.' Verily, whatever has been learnt, all that taken as one is knowledge (Brahman). Verily, whatever sacrifices have been made, all those, taken as one are the world. All this is indeed, this much. Being thus the all, let him (the son) preserve me from (the ties of) this world, thus, (the father thinks). Therefore they call a son who is instructed 'world-procuring' and therefore they instruct him. When one who knows this departs from this world he enters into his son together with his breaths. Whatever wrong has been done by him, his son frees him from it all, therefore he is called a son. By his son a father stands firm in this world. Then into him enter those divine immortal breaths.

See K.U. II. 15.

samprattiḥ: transmission. It is so called because the father in this manner transmits his own duties to his son: putre hi svātma-vyāpāra-sampradānam karoty anena prakāreṇa pitā. Ś.

putra: from pur, 'to fil,' and tra 'to deliver,' a deliverer who fills the holes left by the father: yaḥ pituś chidram pūrayitvā trāyati. Ś. Others derive it from put 'a hell,' and trā, 'to save.' See Manu IX. 138.

In the R.V. a son is called ṛnacyuta, one who removes debts. See Taittirīya Saṁhitā VI. 3. 10. 5.

18. prthivyai cainam agneś ca daivī vāg āviśati, sā vai daivī vāg, yayā yad yad eva vadati, tad tad bhavati.

18. From the earth and from the fire the divine speech enters him. Verily, that is the divine speech by which whatever one says comes to be (is fulfilled).

His speech becomes infallible and irresistible: amoghā pratibaddhā asya vāg bhavati. Ś.

19. divaś cainam ādityāc ca daivam mana āviśati, tad vai daivam mano yenānandya eva bhavati, atho na śocati.

19. From the heaven and the sun the divine mind enters him. Verily, that is the divine mind by which one becomes only joyful and sorrows not.

He sorrows not because he is not connected with the sources of grief: śokādi-nimittāsamyogāt. Ś

20. adbhyas cainam candramasas ca daivaḥ prāṇa āviśati: sa vai daivaḥ prāṇo, yaḥ saṁcaramś cāsaṁcaramś ca na vyathate, atho na riṣyati. sa evaṁ-vit sarveśām bhūtānām ātmā bhavati. yathaiśā devatā, evaṁ saḥ. yathaitām devatām sarvāni bhūtāny avanti, evaṁ haivaṁ-vidām sarvāni bhūtāny avanti. yad u kiṁ cemāḥ prajāḥ śocanti, amaivāsām tad bhavati, punyam evāmuṁ gacchati. na ha vai devān pāpam gacchati.

20. From water and the moon the divine breath enters him. Verily, that is the divine breath, whether moving or not moving, is not perturbed nor injured. He who knows this becomes the self of all beings. As is this divinity (Hiraṇya-garbha), so is he. As all beings regard that divinity, so do all beings regard him who knows this. Whatever sufferings creatures may undergo, these remain with them. But only merit goes to him. No evil ever goes to the gods.

Individuals suffer because one causes suffering to another, but in the Universal Spirit where all individuals are one, the sufferings of the individuals do not affect the whole.

THE UNFAILING BREATH

21. athāto vrata-mīmāṃsā. prajā-patir ha karmāṇi sasṛje, tāni sṛṣṭāni anyo'nyenāspardhanta. vadisyāmy evāham iti vāg dadhre; drakṣyāmy aham iti cakṣuh; śroṣyāmy aham iti śrotram; evam anyāni karmāṇi yathā karma; tāni mṛtyuh śramo bhūtvā upayame; tāny āpnōt; tāny āptvā mṛtyur avārundha; tasmāt śrāmyaty eva vāk, śrāmyati cakṣuh, śrāmyati śrotram. athenam eva nāpnōt yo'yaṁ madhyamaḥ prāṇaḥ. tāni jñātum dadhṛire. ayam vai naḥ śreṣṭho yaḥ samācaramś cāsamācaramś ca na vyathate, atho na riṣyati, hantāsyaiṣa sarve rūpam asāmeti: ta etasyaiṣa sarve rūpam abhavan, tasmād eta etainākhyāyante prāṇā iti. tena ha vāva tat kulam ācakṣate, yasmin kule bhavati ya evaṁ veda. ya u haivaṁ vidā spardhate, anuśuṣyati, anuśuṣya haivāntato mriyate, iti adhyātman.

21. Now next a consideration of the observances. Prajā-pati produced the active senses. They, when they were produced, quarrelled with one-another. Speech resolved 'I will go on speaking.' The eye 'I will go on seeing.' The ear 'I will go on hearing.' And thus the other organs, each according to its function. Death, having become weariness, laid hold of them. It took possession of them; having taken possession of them, death held them back from their work. Therefore speech becomes weary (gets tired), the eye becomes weary, the ear becomes weary. But death did not take possession of him who was the middle breath. They (the senses) sought to know him and said, 'This is, verily, the greatest among us, since (it) whether moving or not moving, is not perturbed, is not injured, let us all assume his form': of him indeed they became a form. Therefore they are called after him 'breath.' In whatever family there is a man who knows this they call that family after him. And whoever strives with one who knows this shrivels away and after shrivelling dies in the end. This, with reference to the self.

karmāṇi: active senses, instruments of activity.

dadhre resolved, dṛṭavān. R.

THE UNFAILING AIR

22. athādhidaivatam: jvalisyāmy evāham ity agnir dadhre; tapasyāmy aham ity ādityah; bhāsyāmy aham iti candramāḥ; evam anyā devatā yathā-devatam; sa yathaiśāṁ prāṇānām madhyamaḥ prāṇaḥ, evam etāsāṁ devatānām vāyuh. nimlocanti hy anyā devatāḥ, na vāyuh. saīśānastamitā devatā yad vāyuh.

22. Now with reference to the gods. Fire resolved 'I will go on burning.' The sun 'I will go on warming.' The moon 'I will go on shining'. So said the other gods each according to his divine function. As breath holds the central position among the vital breaths, so does air among these divinities; for other divinities have their decline but not air. Air is the divinity that never sets (never goes to rest).

23. athaiśa śloko bhavati:

yataś codeti sūryaḥ

astam yatra ca gacchati

iti prāṇād vā eṣa udeti, prāṇe'stam eti, taṁ devāś cakrire dharmaṁ

iti yad vā ete'murhy adhriyanta tad evāpy adya kurvanti. tasmād ekam eva vrataṁ caret, prāṇyāc caiva, apāṇyāc ca, na mā pāpmā mṛtyur āpnuvad iti; yady u caret samāpīpayiṣet. teno etasyai devatāyai sāyujyaṁ salokatāṁ jayati.

23. On this there is this verse: 'From whom the sun rises and in whom it sets; in truth from breath it rises and in breath it sets. Him the divinities made the law, he only is today and he tomorrow also. (Whatever the divinities observed then they observe till today.)' Verily, what those (functions) undertook of old, even that they accomplish today. Therefore let a man perform one observance only. He should breathe in and breathe out wishing, 'Let not the evil of death get me.' And when he performs it, let him try to complete it. Thereby he wins complete union with that divinity and residence in the same world with him.

Sixth Brāhmaṇa

THREE-FOLD CHARACTER OF THE WORLD

1. trayaṃ vā idam, nāma rūpaṃ karma; tesāṃ nāmnām vāg ity etad eṣāṃ uktham, ato hi sarvāṇi nāmāny uttiṣṭhanti; etad eṣāṃ sāma; etadd hi sarvair nāmaḥśiḥ samam; etad eṣāṃ brahma, etadd hi sarvāṇi nāmāni bibharti.

1. Verily, this (world) is a triad of name, shape and work. Of these as regards names, speech is the source, for from it all names arise. It is their common feature for it is common to all names. It is their Brahman, for it sustains all names.

Ś distinguishes the world of name, shape, work as non-self from Brahman the self: nātmā yat sāksād aparokṣād brahma.

vāk: speech, sound in general, śabda-sāmānyam. Ś.

sama: common. satatvāt sāma sāmānyam. Ś.

2. atha rūpāṇām cakṣur ity etad eṣāṃ uktham, ato hi sarvāṇi rūpāny uttiṣṭhanti, etad eṣāṃ sāma, etadd hi sarvai rūpaḥśiḥ samam, etad eṣāṃ brahma; etadd hi sarvāṇi rūpāni bibharti.

2. Now, of shapes eye is the source, for from it all shapes arise. It is their common feature for it is common to all shapes. It is their Brahman, for it sustains all shapes.

3. atha karmaṇām ātmety etad eṣāṃ uktham, ato hi sarvāṇi karmāny uttiṣṭhanti, etad eṣāṃ sāma, etadd hi sarvaiḥ karmabhiḥ samam, etad eṣāṃ brahma, etadd hi sarvāṇi karmāni bibharti. tad etad trayaṃ sad ekam ayam ātmā, ātmā ekaḥ sann etat trayaṃ. tad etad amṛtaṃ satyena channam, prāṇo vā amṛtam, nāma-rūpe satyam; tābhyām ayam prāṇas channah.

3. Now of works, the body is the source for from it all works arise. It is their common feature for it is common to all works. It is their Brahman, for it sustains all works. These three together are one, this self; the self, though one, is this triad. This is the immortal veiled by the real. Breath, verily, is the immortal, name and shape are the real. By them this breath is veiled.

CHAPTER II

First Brāhmaṇa

PROGRESSIVE DEFINITION OF BRAHMAN

1. ḍṛpta-bālākir hānūcāno gārgya āsa, sa hovāca ajātaśatruṃ kāśyam, brahma te bravānūti, sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, sahasram etasyām vāci dadmaḥ. janakah, janaka iti vai janā dhāvanūti.

1. There lived formerly Ḍṛpta-bālāki of the Gārgya clan, who was an expositor. He said to Ajātaśatru of Kāśī, 'I will tell you about Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said, 'I give you a thousand (cows) for this proposal.' People, indeed, rush, saying Janaka, Janaka.

See K.U. IV.

In this dialogue Ḍṛpta-bālāki, though a Brāhmaṇa, represents the imperfect knowledge of Brahman, while Ajātaśatru, though a Kṣatriya, represents advanced knowledge of Brahman. While Ḍṛpta-bālāki worships Brahman as the sun, the moon, etc., as limited, Ajātaśatru knows Brahman as the self.
ḍṛptah: proud, garvitah. Ś.

Kāśī: Kāśī is one of the seven sacred places reputed to confer final emancipation.

ayodhyā mathurā māyā kāśī kāñcī avantikā purī dvāravatī caiva saptaitā mokṣa-dāyikāḥ.

anūcānaḥ: expositor, anuvacana-samarthaḥ, vaktā. Ś. Being exceedingly vain, Gārgya accosted Ajātaśatru with boastful speech. In accepting his kind proposal Ajātaśatru offers a reward of a thousand cows.

Janaka was a well-known learned king. Ajātaśatru feels that he has also some of his qualities.

2. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāsāv āditye puruṣaḥ, etam evāhaṃ brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin sarvadiṣṭhāḥ. atiṣṭhāḥ sarveṣāṃ bhūtānāṃ mūrdhā rājeti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam upāste, atiṣṭhāḥ sarveṣāṃ bhūtānāṃ mūrdhā rājā bhavati.

2. Gārgya said: 'The person who is yonder in the sun, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said, 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him as all-surpassing, as the head and king of all beings. He who meditates on him as such becomes all-surpassing, the head and king of all beings.'

atīṣṭhāḥ: all-surpassing, atītya sarvāni bhūtāni tiṣṭhati. Ś.
rājā: king, resplendent; dīpti-guṇopetadvāt. Ś.

The results of meditation correspond to the forms meditated upon according to the view, tam yathā yathopāsate tad eva bhavati.
Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. X. V. 2. 20.

3. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ; ya evāsau candre puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāḥ. brhan pāṇḍara-vāsāḥ somo rājeti vā aham etam upāsa iti. sa ya etam evam upāste, ahar ahar ha sutaḥ prasuto bhavati, nāsyānnaṁ kṣiyate.

3. Gārgya said: 'The person who is yonder in the moon, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him as the great white-robed king Soma. He who meditates on him as such, for him soma is poured out (in the principal) and poured forth (in the subsidiary sacrifices) every day. His food does not get short.'

Soma is the name for the moon and the juice from the creeper which is used in the sacrifices. yajña-sādhana-bhūta-somarāja-śabditalatā-viśeṣa. R.

pāṇḍara-vāsāḥ: white-robed. The white rays of the moon flood the earth. R. quotes Vyāsārya, pāṇḍarair amśubhir jagac-chāḍakatvāt pāṇḍara-vāsastvam

4. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ; ya evāsau vidyuti puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāḥ, tejasvīti vā aham etam upāsa iti. sa ya etam evam upāste, tejasvī ha bhavati, tejasvinī hāsya prajā bhavati.

4. Gārgya said: 'The person who is yonder in lightning, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as the radiant. He who meditates on him as such becomes radiant, and his offspring, too, become radiant.'

5. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ; ya evāyam ākāśe puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāḥ, pūrṇam apravartiti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, pūryate prajāyā paśubhiḥ nāsyāsmāl lokāt prajodvartate.

5. Gārgya said: 'The person who is here in the ether, on him indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not speak to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as the full and the unmoving. He who meditates on him as such is filled with offspring and cattle, and his offspring does not depart from this world.'

The continuity of his line is preserved in this world.

6. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam vāyau puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāḥ, indro vaikunṭhoparājitā seneti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, jiṣṇur hāparājiṣṇur bhavaty anyatastyajāyī.

6. Gārgya said: 'The person who is here in air, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him, I meditate on him, verily, as the lord, as the irresistible and as the unvanquished army. He who meditates on him as such becomes, indeed, victorious, unconquerable, and a conqueror of enemies.'

7. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam agnau puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāḥ, viśāsahir iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste viśāsahir ha bhavati, viśāsahir hāsya prajā bhavati.

7. Gārgya said: 'The person who is here in fire, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as the forbearing. He who meditates on him as such becomes, indeed, forbearing and his offspring, too, becomes forbearing.'

viśāsahir: forbearing, marṣayitā pareṣām. Ś.

8. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam apsu puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāḥ, pratirūpa iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, pratirūpaṁ haivainam upagacchati, nāpratirūpaṁ, atho pratirūpo'smāj jāyate.

8. Gārgya said: 'The person, who is here in water, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as the likeness. He who meditates on him as such, to him comes what is like (him), not what is unlike (him), also from him is born what is like (him).'

pratirūpaḥ: likeness, reflection, pratibimbah.

9. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam ādarśe puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadi-

diṣṭhāḥ. rociṣṇur iti vā aham etam upāsa iti. sa ya etam evam upāste rociṣṇur ha bhavati, rociṣṇur hāsya prajā bhavati, atho ya iḥ saṁnigacchati, sarvāṁs tān atirocate.

9. Gārgya said: 'The person who is here in a mirror, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as the shining one. He who meditates on him as such becomes shining indeed. His offspring, too, becomes shining. He also outshines all those with whom he comes in contact.'

rociṣṇuḥ: shining, dīpti-svabhāvaḥ. Ś.

10. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam yantam paścāt śabdo' nūdeti; etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ; mā maitasmin saṁvadiṣṭhāḥ, asur iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, sarvaṁ haivāsmiṁl loka āyur eti, nainam purā kālāt prāṇo jahāti.

10. Gārgya said: 'The sound here which follows one as he walks, on that, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about that. I meditate on him, verily, as life. He who meditates on him as such attains a full term of life in this world. Breath does not depart from him before (the completion of) his time.'

11. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam dikṣu puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvadiṣṭhāḥ, dvitīyo'napaga iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, dvitīyavān ha bhavati, nāsmād gataś chidyate.

11. Gārgya said: 'The person who is here in the quarters (of heaven) on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as the second who never leaves us. He who meditates on him as such becomes possessed of a second. His company is not cut off from him.'

His friends do not desert him. He is never lonely.

12. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam chāyāmayāḥ puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvadiṣṭhāḥ, mṛtyur iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, sarvaṁ haivāsmiṁl loka āyur eti, naivam purā kālān mṛtyur āgacchati.

12. Gārgya said: 'The person here who consists of shadow, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said:

'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as death. He who meditates on him as such attains a full term of life in this world. Death does not come to him before (the completion of) his time.'

13. sa hovāca gārgyaḥ, ya evāyam ātmani puruṣaḥ, etam evāham brahmopāsa iti. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvadiṣṭhāh, ātmanvīti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa ya etam evam upāste, ātmanvī ha bhavati atmanvinī hāsya prajā bhavati. sa ha tūṣṇīm āsa gārgyaḥ.

13. Gārgya said: 'The person here who is in the self, on him, indeed, do I meditate as Brahman.' Ajātaśatru said: 'Please do not talk to me about him. I meditate on him, verily, as self-possessed. He who meditates on him as such he becomes self-possessed. His offspring becomes self-possessed.' Gārgya became silent.

Self-possession is the quality of those who are cultivated: ātma-tattvam vaśyātmakatvam. A.

14. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, etāvan nv iti, etāvad-dhīti; naitāvatā vīditam bhavātīti: sa hovāca gārgyaḥ upa tvāyānīti.

14. Ajātaśatru said: 'Is that all?' 'That is all' (said Gārgya). (Ajātaśatru said) 'With that much only it is not known.' Gārgya said, 'Let me come to you as a pupil.'

15. Ajātaśatru said: 'Verily, it is contrary to usual practice that a Brāhmaṇa should approach a Kṣatriya, thinking that he will teach me Brahman. However, I shall make you know him clearly.' Taking him by the hand he rose. The two together came to a person who was asleep. They addressed him with these names: Great, White-robed, Radiant, Soma. The man did not get up. He woke him by rubbing him with his hand. He then got up.

pratilomam: contrary to usual practice, viparītam. Ś.

16. sa hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, yatraiṣa etat supto 'bhūt, ya eṣa vijñānamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, kvaiṣa tadābhūt, kuta etad āgād iti. tad u ha na mene gārgyaḥ.

16. Ajātaśatru said: 'When this person who consists of intelligence fell asleep thus, where was it and whence did it come back.' And this also Gārgya did not know.

The fact that a man recovers his consciousness after deep sleep means that it was present even in sleep, though we are not conscious of it. In deep sleep the self perceives nothing whatever and is of the nature of inactive consciousness.

17. Ajātaśatru said: 'When this being fell asleep thus, then the person who consists of intelligence, having by his intelligence taken to himself the intelligence of these breaths (sense organs) rests in the space within the heart. When the person takes in these (senses), he is said to be asleep. When the breath is restrained, speech is restrained, the eye is restrained, the ear is restrained, the mind is restrained.

ākāśa: space. Ś identifies it with the Supreme Self: ākāśa-śabdena para eva sva ātmocyate.

prāṇa: breath. Ś means by it nose, prāṇa iti ghrāṇendriyam.

When the organs are restrained, the self rests in its own self: tasmād upasamhṛteṣu vāgādīṣu kriyā-kāraka-phalātmatābhāvāt svātmasiḥ evātmā bhavatiṭy avagamyate. Ś. kāraṇāvastha svaśarīraḥ paramātmāny apita iti svapiti śabdārtho' bhīpretaḥ. R.

18. sa yatrāitaya svapnāyācarati, te hāsya lokāḥ: tad uta iva mahārājo bhavati, uta iva mahā-brāhmaṇaḥ, uta iva uccāvacam nigacchati: sa yadā mahārājo, jānapadān gṛhītvā sve janapade yathā-kāmam parivarteta, evam evaiṣa etat prāṇān gṛhītvā sve śarīre yathā-kāmam parivartate.

18. 'When he moves about in dream these are his worlds. Then he becomes as it were a great king, a great Brāhmaṇa as it were. He enters, as it were, states, high and low. Even as a great king, taking his people, moves about in his country as he pleases, so also here, this one, taking his breaths (senses), moves about in his own body as he pleases.

kumāro vā mahārājo vā mahā-brāhmaṇo vātighnīm ānandasya gatvā śayīta, evam evaiṣa etac chete.

19. 'Again, when one falls sound asleep, when he knows nothing whatsoever, having come through the seventy-two thousand channels called hitā which extend from the heart to the pericardium, he rests in the pericardium. Verily, as a youth or a great king or a great Brāhmaṇa might rest when he has reached the summit of bliss, so does he then rest.'

Round the heart are the veins 72,000 in number. These are of five colours uniting with the rays of the sun similarly coloured. The sun and the heart are said to be connected with each other. In deep sleep the soul glides into the veins and through them it becomes one with the heart. At death the soul is said to pass out by the veins and the rays of the sun which the wise find open to them while they are closed to the ignorant. See also IV. 2. 3; IV. 3. 20. C.U. VIII. 6. 1; M.U. I. 2. 11. There is another suggestion that only one vein leads to the sun out of 101, the vein in question leading to the head. This refers to the suture, the brahma-randhra (A.U. I. 3. 12) through which in the process of creation Brahman is said to enter the body as spirit. The two versions of 72,000 and 101 are mixed up in later accounts.

20. sa yathorṇanābhiś tantunoccaret, yathāgneḥ kṣudrā visphu-liṅgā vyuccaranti, evam evāsmād ātmanaḥ sarve prāṇāḥ, sarve lokāḥ, sarve devāḥ. sarvāni bhūtāni vyuccaranti: tasyopaniṣat, satyasya satyam iti prāṇā vai satyam, teṣām eṣa satyam.

20. 'As a spider moves along the thread, as small sparks come forth from the fire, even so from this Self come forth all breaths, all worlds, all divinities, all beings. Its secret meaning is the truth of truth. Vital breaths are the truth and their truth is It (Self).'

satyasya satyam: the truth of truth. The world is not to be repudiated as false. It is true, but it is true only derivatively. It is sustained by the Ultimate Truth.

Second Brāhmaṇa

BREATH EMBODIED IN A PERSON

1. yo ha vai śīsum sa-ādhānaṁ sa-praty-ādhānaṁ sasthūnaṁ sa-dāmaṁ veda, sapta ha dviṣato bhrātṛvyān avaruṇaddhi: ayam

vāva śiśur yo'yam madhyamaḥ prāṇaḥ, tasyaidam evādhānam, idam pratyādhānam, prāṇaḥ sthūnā, annam dāma.

1. Verily, he who knows the new-born babe with his abode, his covering, his post and his rope keeps off his seven hostile kinsmen. Verily, this babe is breath in the middle. His abode is this (body). His covering is this (head). His post is breath, His rope is food.

The babe is the subtle body (lingātman) which has entered the body in five ways.

madhyamaḥ: in the middle, śarīra-madhy-avartī ayam, pañca-vṛttir yaḥ prāṇaḥ. R.

Seven hostile kinsmen are said to be the seven organs, the eyes, ears, nostrils and mouth. They are said to be hostile, because they hinder the perception of the inner self. See Kaṭha. IV. 1. By these man becomes attached to the world.

Even as a calf is bound by the rope, the subtle body is supported by food, yathā vatsaḥ pāśena baddho'vatiṣṭhate, evam annena pāśena baddho hi prāṇo'vatiṣṭhate. Food binds the subtle to the gross body, sthūla-śarīra.

2. tam etaḥ saptākṣitaya upatiṣṭhante. tad yā imā akṣan lohinyo rājayaḥ, tābhīr enaṁ rudro'nvāyattaḥ; atha yā akṣanm āpas tābhīḥ parjanyaḥ; yā kanīnakā, tayā ādityaḥ; yat kṛṣṇam, tena agniḥ; yat śuklam; tena indraḥ; adharayainam vartanyā prthivy anvāyattā; dyaur uttarayā; nāsyānnam kṣīyate ya evaṁ veda.

2. The seven imperishable ones stand near him (to serve). Thus, there are these red streaks in the eye and by them Rudra is united with him. Then there is the water in the eye, by it Parjanya (is united with him). There is the pupil of the eye, by it Āditya (the sun is united with him). By the black (of the eye), fire (is united with him), by the white (of the eye), Indra (is united with him), by the lower eyelash earth is united with him, by the upper eyelash the heaven (is united with him). He who knows this, his food does not diminish.

The seven imperishable ones are so called because they produce imperishableness by supplying food for the subtle body.

3. tad eṣa śloko bhavati:

*arvāg-bilaś camasa ūrdhva-budhnaḥ, tasmin yaśo nihitaṁ viśva-rūpam:
tasyāsata ṛṣayaḥ sapta-tīre, vāg aṣṭamī brahmaṇā samvidāna iti.*

'arvāg-bilaś camasa ūrdhva-budhnaḥ' itīdam tac chirah, eṣa hy arvāgbilaś camasa ūrdhva-budhnaḥ. tasmin yaśo nihitam viśva-rūpam' iti, prāṇā vai yaśo nihitam viśva-rūpam, prāṇān etad āha. 'tasyāsata ṛṣayaḥ sapta-tīre' iti, prāṇā vā ṛṣayaḥ prāṇān etad āha. 'vāg aṣṭamī brahmaṇā samvidānā' iti, vāg aṣṭamī brahmaṇā samvitte.

3. On this there is the following verse: 'There is a bowl with its mouth below and bottom up. In it is placed the glory of manifold forms. On its rim sit seven seers, and speech as the eighth communicates with Brahman.' What is called 'the bowl with its mouth below and bottom up' is the head, for it is the bowl with its mouth below and bottom up. 'In it is placed the glory of manifold forms'; breaths, verily, are where the glory of manifold forms is placed: thus he says breaths. 'On its rim sit seven seers,' verily, the breaths are the seers; thus he says breaths. 'Speech as the eighth communicates with Brahman,' for speech as an eighth communicates with Brahman.

viśva-rūpam: manifold forms, nānā-rūpam. Ś.

4. imāv eva gotama-bharadvājau, ayam eva gotamaḥ, ayam bharadvājaḥ; imāv eva viśvāmitra-jamadagnī, ayam eva viśvāmitraḥ, ayam jamadagniḥ; imāv eva vasiṣṭha-kaśyapau, ayam eva vasiṣṭhaḥ, ayam kaśyapaḥ; vāg evātriḥ, vācā hy annam adyate, attir ha vai nāmaitad yad atrir iti; sarvasyāttā bhavati, sarvam asyānnam bhavati, ya evaṁ veda.

4. These two (ears) here are Gotama and Bharadvāja. This is Gotama, and this is Bharadvāja. These two (eyes) here are Viśvāmitra and Jamadagni. This is Viśvāmitra, this is Jamadagni. These two (nostrils) here are Vasiṣṭha and Kaśyapa. This is Vasiṣṭha, this is Kaśyapa. The tongue is Atri, for by the tongue food is eaten. Verily, eating is the same as the name Atri. He who knows this becomes the eater of everything: everything becomes his food.

Third Brāhmaṇa

THE TWO FORMS OF REALITY

1. dve vāva brahmaṇo rūpe, mūrtam caivāmūrtam ca, martyam cāmrtam ca, sthitam ca, yac ca, sac ca, tyac ca.

1. Verily, there are two forms of Brahman, the formed and the formless, the mortal and the immortal, the unmoving and the moving, the actual (existent) and the true (being).

See Maitrī VI. 3.

2. tad etan mūrtam yad anyad vāyoś cāntarikṣāc ca, etan martyam, etat sthitam, etat sat, tasyaitasya mūrtasya, etasya martyasya etasya sthitasya, etasya sata eṣa raso ya eṣa tapati, sato hy eṣa rasaḥ.

2. This is the formed Brahman, whatever is different from the air and the atmosphere. This is mortal. This is unmoving, this is actual. The essence of this formed, this mortal, this unmoving, this actual is the yonder sun which gives forth warmth, for that is the essence of the actual.

3. athāmūrtam vāyuś cāntarikṣam ca, etad amṛtam etad yat, etat tyat, tasyaitasyāmūrtasya, etasyāmṛtasya, etasya yataḥ etasya tasyaiṣa raso ya eṣa etasmin maṇḍale puruṣaḥ, tasya hy eṣa rasaḥ, ity adhidaivatam.

3. Now the formless is the air and the atmosphere. This is immortal, this is the moving and this is the true. The essence of this unformed, this immortal, this moving, this true is this person who is in the region of the sun for he is the essence (of true). This, with reference to the divinities.

4. athādhyātmam: idam eva mūrtam yad anyat prāṇāc ca yaś cāyam antarātmann ākāśaḥ, etan martyam, etat sthitam, etat sat, tasyaitasya mūrtasya, etasya martyasya, etasya sthitasya, etasya sata eṣa raso yac cakṣuḥ, sato hy eṣa rasaḥ.

4. Now with reference to the self; just this is the formed, what is different from the breath and from the space which is within the self. This is mortal, this is unmoving, this is actual (existent). The essence of this formed, this mortal, this unmoving, this actual is the eye, for it is the essence of the actual.

5. athāmūrtam prāṇaś ca yas cāyam antar-ātmann ākāśaḥ; etad amṛtam, etad yat, etat tyam, tasyaitasyāmūrtasya, etasyāmṛtasya, etasya yataḥ, etasya tyasyaiṣa raso yo'yaṁ dakṣiṇe'kṣan puruṣaḥ, tyasya hy eṣa rasaḥ.

5. Now the formless is the breath and the space which is within the self. This is immortal, this is moving, this is the true. The essence of this unformed, immortal, moving, true is this person who is in the right eye, for he is the essence of the true.

6. tasya haitasya puruṣasya rūpam yathā māhārajanam vāsaḥ, yathā pāṇḍu-āvīkam, yathendragopah, yathāgnyarcīh, yathā puṇḍarikam, yathā sakṛd-vidyuttam; sakṛd-vidyutteva ha vā asya śrīr bhavati, ya evaṃ veda. athāta ādeśaḥ na iti na iti, na hy etasmād iti, na ity anyat param asti; atha nāma-dheyam satyasya satyam iti. prāṇā vai satyam, tesām eṣa satyam.

6. The form of this person is like a saffron-coloured robe, like white wool, like the Indragopa insect, like a flame of fire, like a white lotus, like a sudden flash of lightning. He who knows it thus attains splendour like a sudden flash of lightning. Now therefore there is the teaching, not this, not this for there is nothing higher than this, that he is not this. Now the designation for him is the truth of truth. Verily, the vital breath is truth, and He is the truth of that.

See also III. 9. 26; IV. 2. 4; IV. 4. 22; IV. 5. 15.

like a sudden flash of lightning: enlightenment is said to be instantaneous. Truth flashes suddenly like lightning.
not this, not this:

Māṛceta speaks of the Buddha thus 'Only you yourself can know yourself who are beyond measure, beyond number, beyond thought, beyond comparison.'

aprameyam asarīkhyeyam acintyam anīdarśanam svayam evātmanātmānam tvam eva jñātum arhasi

151. D. R. Shackleton Bailey's ed. (1951), pp. 148, 180.

In the Republic, there is the impersonal form of the good and in the Timaeus there is the self-moving spirit fit to receive the name of God. This section of the Upaniṣad suggests that the two cannot be left unreconciled but are to be treated as two forms of one Reality.

The Fourth Gospel insists that God 'works' in the world, but he works through the Logos who is himself God though not the Godhead. Plotinus though he believes in heaven as the rich intelligible or spiritual world in which our individuality is preserved, affirms that on certain rare occasions the human soul may transcend even the realm of spirit, and enter into communion with the one, 'beyond existence,' of whom nothing positive can be affirmed. While there is a realm which consists in the duality of subject and object, which is perceived by the intelligence to be coextensive and reciprocally necessary, there is an absolute unity from which all dualities proceed, which is itself above duality. The pseudo-Dionysius called God 'The absolute No-thing which is above all existence' and declares that 'no monad or triad can express the all-transcending hiddenness of the all-transcending superessentially superexisting superdeity.' Scotus Erigena says: 'God because of his excellence may rightly be called Nothing.' Hooker says wisely: 'Dangerous it were for the feeble brain of man to wade far into the doings of the Most High; whom although to know be life and joy to make mention of his name, yet our soundest knowledge is to know that we know him not as indeed he is . . . our safest eloquence concerning him is our silence.' Many systems of thought distinguish between the absolutely transcendent Godhead 'who dwelleth in the light which no man can approach unto' and the Creator God. In this famous passage, the Upaniṣad speaks to us of the Absolute transcendent non-empirical Godhead. This is Ś's view.

Rāmānuja, however, thinks that since there can be no object without qualities, this passage negates only some attributes and not all of them. For Rāmānuja, knowledge is possible only of a determined or qualified object. He argues that the passage does not mean that Brahman has no qualities at all, but only that there are no evil qualities in Brahman.

Fourth Brāhmaṇa

THE CONVERSATION OF YĀJÑAVALKYA AND MAITREYĪ ON THE ABSOLUTE SELF

1. maitreyi, iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, ud yāsyān vā are 'ham asmāt sthānād asmi; hanta, te 'nayā kātyāyanyāntam karavāṇīti.

1. 'Maitreyi,' said Yājñavalkya, 'verily, I am about to go forth from this state (of householder). Look, let me make a final settlement between you and that Kātyāyani.'

sthānād: from the state. i.e. the stage in his life. Yājñavalkya wishes to renounce the stage of the householder, gṛhastha and enter that of the anchorite, vānaprastha.

2. sa hovāca maitreyī, yan nu ma iyam, bhagoḥ, sarvā prthivī vittena pūrṇā syāt, katham tenāmṛtā syām iti. na, iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ: yathaivopakaraṇavatām jīvitam, tathaiva te jīvitam syād amṛtatvasya tu nāśāsti vitteneti.

2. Then said Maitreyī: 'If, indeed, Venerable Sir, this whole earth filled with wealth were mine, would I be immortal through that?' 'No,' said Yājñavalkya: 'Like the life of the rich even so would your life be. Of immortality, however, there is no hope through wealth.'

3. sa hovāca maitreyī, yenāham nāmṛtā syām, kim aham tena kuryām, yad eva bhagavān veda tad eva me brūhīti.

3. Then Maitreyī said: 'What should I do with that by which

I do not become immortal? Tell me that, indeed, Venerable Sir, of what you know (of the way to immortality).'

Venerable Sir: Bharata says that gods, sages, monks and saints are to be called bhagavan:

devās ca munayaś caiva liṅginaḥ sādhanvās ca ye bhagavān iti te vācyaḥ sarvaiḥ stri-puṁ-napuṁsakaiḥ.

the way to immortality: kevalam amṛtatva-sādhanaṁ. Ś.

4. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, priyā bata are naḥ satī priyaṁ bhāṣase; ehi, āsava, vyākhyāsyāmi te; vyācakṣānasya tu me nididhyāsasva iti.

4. Then Yājñavalkya said: 'Ah, dear, you have been dear (even before), and you (now) speak dear words. Come, sit down, I will explain to you. Even as I am explaining reflect (on what I say).'

priyā: dear. You are dear because you wish to learn of that truth which is nearest my heart.

bata: batety anukampyāha. It shows tenderness.

reflect: vākyāny arthato niścayena dhyātum icchati. Ś.

Those who recite the Vedas without understanding their meaning are compared by Sāyana to lifeless pillars which bear the weight of the roof:

sthānur ayam bhāra-hāraḥ kilābhūd, adhitya vedam na vijānāti yo'rtham.

Cp. what Kṛṣṇa says to Arjuna in the Uttara-gītā:

ya hā kharas candana-bhāra-vāhī bhārasya vettā na tu saurabhasya tathā hi viprah śruti-sāstra-pūrnaḥ, jñānena hīnaḥ paśubhiḥ samānaḥ.

Just as a donkey bearing the weight of sandal-wood knows its weight but not its fragrance, so also is a Brāhmaṇa who knows the texts of the Vedas and scriptures but not their significance.

There is another version of this verse:

yathā hā kharas candana-bhāra-vāhī bhārasya vettā na tu candanasya, tathāiva śāstrāṇi bahūny adhitya, saram na jānan kharavad vahet sah.

It is said that some people are clever only at expounding, while others have the ability to practise what they learn. The hand carries the food to the mouth but only the tongue knows the flavours.

Verily, not for the sake of the beings are the beings dear but the beings are dear for the sake of the Self. Verily, not for the sake of all is all dear but all is dear for the sake of the Self. Verily, O Maitreyī, it is the Self that should be seen, heard of, reflected on and meditated upon. Verily, by the seeing of, by the hearing of, by the thinking of, by the understanding of the Self, all this is known.

All objects of the world, earthly possessions, romantic delights, provide opportunities for the realisation of the Self.

the Self should be seen, heard of, reflected on and meditated upon:

śrotavyaḥ śruti-vākyaebhyaḥ, mantavyaś copapattibhiḥ.

matvā ca satatam dhyeya, ete darśana-hetavaḥ. Vivaraṇa-prameya-saṁgraha.

The Śruti, the text, is the basis for intellectual development, manana. It is a means subordinate and necessary to true knowledge; nididhyāsana is the opposite of thoughtless diffusion. It prepares for integral purity.

Contemplation is not mere philosophic thought. It is a higher stage of spiritual consciousness. It secures the direct conviction of the reality. While a teacher can help, personal effort alone can take us to the goal of realisation.

The Jaina and the Buddhist systems also recognise the three stages of religious development. The three jewels of the Jainas, ratna-traya, are right belief, right knowledge and right conduct. Mātṛceta says in Satapañcāśatka (90):

āgamasyartha-cintāya bhāvanopāsanasya ca kāla-traya-vibhāgo'sti nānyatra tava śāsanāt.

Nowhere except in your teaching is there the threefold division of time into hearing the Scriptures, reflection on their meaning and the practise of meditation.

The worlds ignore one who knows them as different from the Self. The gods ignore one who knows them as different from the Self. The beings ignore one who knows them as different from the Self. All ignores one who knows it as different from the Self. This Brāhmaṇa, this Kṣatriya, these worlds, these gods, these beings and this all are this Self.

12. 'As a lump of salt thrown in water becomes dissolved in water and there would not be any of it to seize forth as it were, but wherever one may take it is salty indeed, so, verily, this great being, infinite, limitless, consists of nothing but knowledge. Arising from out of these elements one vanishes away into them. When he has departed there is no more knowledge. This is what I say, my dear': so said Yājñavalkya.

saindhava: salt, *sindhora vikāraḥ saindhavaḥ, sindhu-śabdenodakam samjñā: detailed knowledge, viśeṣa-samjñā Ś.

13. sā hovāca maitreyī, atraiva mā bhagavān amūmuhat, na pretya samjñāstīti. sa hovāca, na va are'ham moham bravīmi, alam vā ara idam vijñānāya.

13. Then said Maitreyī: 'In this, indeed, you have bewildered me, Venerable Sir, by saying that, "when he has departed there is no more knowledge."' Then Yājñavalkya said: 'Certainly I am not saying anything bewildering. This is enough for knowledge (or understanding).'

The confusion is due to the seeming contradiction that the Self is pure intelligence, and, again, when one has departed there is no more knowledge. The same fire cannot be both hot and cold. Ś points out that Brahman, the pure intelligence, remains unchanged, that it does not pass out with the destruction of the elements, but the individual existence due to avidyā is overcome: katham vijñāna-ghana eva, katham vā na pretya samjñāstīti, na hy uṣṇas śītas cāgnir evaiko bhavati . . . sa ātmā sarvasya jagataḥ paramārthato bhūta-nāśān na vināśi, vināśi tv avidyā-kṛta-khilyabhāvaḥ. Ś.

The goal seems to be like the state of dreamless sleep a state of utter annihilation. Maitreyī protests against such a bewildering prospect.

14. yatra hi dvaitam iva bhavati, tad itara itaram jighrati, tad itara itaram paśyati, tad itara itaram śṛṇoti, tad itara itaram abhivadati, tad itara itaram mamute, tad itara itaram vijānāti. yatra tv asya sarvam ātmaivābhūt, tat kena kam jighret, tat kena kam paśyet, tat kena kam śṛṇuyāt, tat kena kam abhivadet, tat kena kam manvīta, tat kena kam vijānīyāt? yenedam sarvaṁ vijānāti, tam kena vijānīyāt, vijñātāram are kena vijānīyād iti.

14. 'For where there is duality as it were, there one smells another, there one sees another, there one hears another, there one speaks to another, there one thinks of another, there one understands another. Where, verily, everything has become the Self, then by what and whom should one smell, then by what and whom should one see, then by what and whom should one hear, then by what and to whom should one speak, then by what and on whom should one think, then by what and whom should one understand? By what should one know that by which all this is known? By what, my dear, should one know the knower?'

See C.U. VII. 24. 1. The reference here is to the Absolute Brahman.

Whatever is known is an object. As the Self is the subject, it cannot be known.

This section indicates that the later subjection of women and their exclusion from Vedic studies do not have the support of the Upaniṣads.

Fifth Brāhmaṇa

THE COSMIC AND THE INDIVIDUAL

1. iyam prthivī sarveṣāṁ bhūtānām madhu, asyai prthivyai sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asyām prthivyām tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmaṁ śārīras tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo'yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvaṁ.

1. This earth is (like) honey for all creatures, and all creatures are (like) honey for this earth. This shining, immortal person who is in this earth and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person who is in the body, he, indeed, is just this self. This is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

The earth and all living beings are mutually dependent, even as bees and honey are. The bees make the honey and the honey supports the bees: parasparam upakāryopakāraka-bhāve phalitam āha. Ā.

Brahman is the self in each, in the earth and in the individual.

2. imā āpaḥ sarveṣām bhūtānām madhu, āsām apām sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu, yaś cāyam āsu apsu tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmaṁ raitasas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

2. This water is (like) honey for all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this water. This shining, immortal person who is in this water and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person existing as the seed (in the body), he is, indeed, just this self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

In the body it exists, specially in the seed: adhyātmaṁ retasy apām viśeṣato 'vasthānam. Ś. retaso jala-vikāratvāt. R.

3. ayam agniḥ, sarveṣām bhūtānām madhu; asyāgneḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asminn agnau tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmaṁ vān-mayas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

3. This fire is (like) honey to all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this fire. This shining, immortal person who is in this fire and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person who is made of speech, he is just this self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

4. ayam vāyuḥ sarveṣām bhūtānām madhu; asya vāyoḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmin vāyau tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmaṁ prāṇas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

4. This air is (like) honey to all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this air. This shining, immortal person who is in this air and with reference to oneself this shining, immortal person who is breath (in the body), he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

See I. 5. II.

5. ayam ādityaḥ sarveṣām bhūtānām madhu; asyādityasya sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asminn āditye tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmaṁ cākṣuṣas tejomayo'

mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

5. This sun is (like) honey for all beings and all beings, are (like) honey for this sun. This shining, immortal person who is in this sun and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person who is in the eye, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

6. imā diśaḥ sarveṣāṃ bhūtānām madhu; āsāṃ diśāṃ sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam āsu dikṣu tejomayo 'mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmam śrotṛaḥ prātiśrutkas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

6. These quarters are (like) honey to all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for these quarters. This shining, immortal person who is in these quarters and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person who is in the ear and the time of hearing, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

time of hearing: śabda-prati-śravaṇa-velāyām sannihito bhavatīti prātiśrutkah. S.

7. ayam candraḥ sarveṣāṃ bhūtānām madhu; asya candrasya sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmiṃs candre tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmam manasas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

7. This moon is like (honey) to all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this moon. This shining, immortal person who is in this moon and with reference to one self, this shining, immortal person who is in the mind, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

8. iyam vidyut sarveṣāṃ bhūtānām madhu, asyai vidyutah sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asyām vidyuti tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmam taijāsas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo' yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

8. This lightning is (like) honey to all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this lightning. This shining, immortal person who is in this lightning and with reference to this self, this shining, immortal person who is in the light, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

9. ayam stanayitnuḥ sarveṣāṃ bhūtānām madhu; asya stanayitnoḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmin stanayitnau tejomayo 'mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmam śābdāḥ sauvaras tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo'yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

9. This cloud is (like) honey to all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this cloud. This shining, immortal person who is in this cloud and with reference to one self, this shining, immortal person who is in the sound and in tone, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

stanayitnu: cloud, parjanya or thunder. megha-garjanam. R.

10. This space is (like) honey for all beings and all beings are (like) honey for this space. This shining, immortal person who is in this space and with reference to one self, this shining, immortal person who is in the space in the heart, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

II. ayam dharmāḥ sarveṣāṃ bhūtānām madhu; asya dharmasya sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmin dharme tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yaś cāyam adhyātmam dhārmas tejomayo' mṛtamayaḥ puruṣaḥ, ayam eva sa yo'yam ātmā, idam amṛtam, idam brahma, idam sarvam.

II. This law is (like) honey for all beings and all beings are (like) honey for this law. This shining, immortal person who is in this law and with reference to one self, this shining, immortal person who exists as lawabidingness, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

this law: though law is not directly perceived, it is described by the word 'this,' as though it were directly perceived, because the effects produced by it are directly perceived: ayam ity apratyakṣo'pi dharmāḥ kāryeṇa tat-prayuktena pratyakṣeṇa, vyapadiśyate; ayam dharmā iti pratyakṣavāt. Ś. The self and dharma or righteousness are regarded as equivalent. Cp. 'Live you (viharatha) having self as light and refuge and none other, having dharma as light and refuge and none other.' Dīgha Nikāya II. 100. The end of the way is to become what we are, to become Brahman or the Buddha. The arhats are said to become one with Brahman, brahma-bhūta.

12. idaṁ satyam sarveṣāṁ bhūtānām madhu; asya satyasya sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmin satye tejomayo' mrtamayah puruṣah, yaś cāyam adhyātmanī sātyas tejomayo' mrtamayah puruṣah, ayam eva sa yo'yam ātmā, idaṁ amṛtam, idaṁ brahma, idaṁ sarvam.

12. This truth is (like) honey for all beings, and all beings are (like) honey for this truth. This shining, immortal person who is in this truth and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person who exists as truthfulness, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

13. idaṁ mānuṣaṁ sarveṣāṁ bhūtānām madhu; asya mānuṣasya sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmin mānuṣe tejomayo' mrtamayah puruṣah, yaś cāyam adhyātmanī mānuṣas tejomayo' mrtamayah puruṣah, ayam eva sa yo'yam ātmā, idaṁ amṛtam, idaṁ brahma, idaṁ sarvam.

13. This mankind is (like) honey for all beings, and all beings are like honey for this mankind. This shining, immortal person who is in this mankind and with reference to oneself, this shining, immortal person who exists as a human being, he is just this self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

14. ayam ātmā sarveṣāṁ bhūtānām madhu; asyātmanaḥ sarvāṇi bhūtāni madhu; yaś cāyam asmin ātmani tejomayo' mrtamayah puruṣah, yaś cāyam ātmā tejomayo' mrtamayah puruṣah, ayam eva sa yo'yam ātmā, idaṁ amṛtam, idaṁ brahma, idaṁ sarvam.

14. This self is (like) honey for all beings and all beings are (like) honey for this self. This shining, immortal person who is in this self and the shining, immortal person who is in this (individual) self, he is just this Self, this is immortal, this is Brahman, this is all.

The cosmic self and the individual self are referred to.

15. sa vā ayam ātmā sarveṣāṁ bhūtānām adhipatiḥ; sarveṣāṁ bhūtānām rājā; tad yathā ratha-nābhau ca ratha-nemau cārāḥ sarve samarpitāḥ, evaṁ evāsminn ātmani sarvāṇi bhūtāni sarve devāḥ sarve lokāḥ sarve prānāḥ sarva eta ātmanaḥ samarpitāḥ.

15. This self, verily, is the lord of all beings, the king of all beings. As all the spokes are held together in the hub and felly of a wheel, just so, in this self, all beings, all gods, all worlds, all breathing creatures, all these selves are held together.

MADHU-VIDYĀ: THE HONEY DOCTRINE

16. idam vai tan madhu dadhyaṇī ātharvaṇo 'śvibhyām uvāca. tad etad ṛṣiḥ paśyann avocat:

tad vām narā sanaye dāmśa ugram.

aśvasya śiṛṣṇā pra yad im uvāca iti.

16. This, verily, is the honey which Dadhyaṇ, versed in the Atharva Veda, declared unto the two Aśvins. Seeing this the seer said: 'O Aśvins in human form, I make known that terrible deed of yours which you did out of greed, even as thunder (makes known) the coming rain, even the honey which Dadhyaṇ, versed in the Atharva Veda, declared to you through the head of a horse.'

See R.V. I. 116. 12. Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa. XIV. I. 1 and 4. The two Aśvins desired instruction from Dadhyaṇ, but he was unwilling to impart it as Indra had threatened Dadhyaṇ that he would cut off his head, if he taught this madhu-vidyā, honey doctrine to any one else. So the Aśvins took off Dadhyaṇ's head and substituted for it a horse's head. Dadhyaṇ declared the honey doctrine. Indra carried out his threat, and the Aśvins restored to Dadhyaṇ his own head. This story illustrates the extreme difficulty which even the gods had to secure the knowledge originally possessed by Indra. Aśvins in human form, narākārau aśvinau. Ś.

18. This, verily, is the honey which Dadhyaṁ, versed in the Atharva Veda, declared unto the two Aśvins. Seeing this the seer said: 'He made bodies with two feet and bodies with four feet. Having first become a bird, he the person entered the bodies.' This, verily, is the person dwelling in all bodies. There is nothing that is not covered by him, nothing that is not pervaded by him.

purah: bodies, purāṇi, śarīrāṇi. Ś.

pakṣī: bird, subtle body, līṅga-śarīram.

Cp. pura-samjñe śarīresmin śayanāt puruṣo hariḥ, quoted by R. There is nothing which is not filled by the Supreme, inside or outside.

Cp. 'This city (pur) is these worlds, the person (puruṣa) is the spirit (yo'yam pavate, vāyu), who because he inhabits (śete) this city is called the citizen (puruṣa).' Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa XIII. 6. 2. 1.

See also Atharva Veda X. 2. 30, where 'he who knoweth Brahma's city, whence the Person (puruṣa) is so called, him neither sight nor the breath of life desert ere old age.' Philo says: 'As for lordship, God is the only citizen.' Cher. 121.

19. idaṁ vai tan madhu dadhyaṁ ātharvano 'śvibhyāṁ uvāca, tad etad ṛṣiḥ paśyann avocat:

19. This, verily, is the honey which Dadhyañ, versed in the Atharva Veda, declared unto the two Aśvins. Seeing this the seer said: 'He transformed himself in accordance with each form. This form of him was meant for making him known. Indra (the Lord) goes about in many forms by his māyās (magical powers), for to him are yoked steeds, hundreds and ten. He, verily, is the steeds. He, verily, is tens and thousands, many and countless. This Brahman is without an earlier and without a later, without an inside, without an outside. This Brahman is the self, the all-perceiving. This is the teaching.'

See R.V. VI. 47. 18.

praticakṣaṇāya: for making him, known. Creation is for the manifestation of the glory of god.

māyābhiḥ: prajñābhiḥ. Ś. By his wisdom he manifests himself. saṃkalpa-rūpa-jñānaih. R. The Lord reveals himself through many forms by his māyā, to reveal his thoughts. Indra assumes one form after another, makes round himself wonderful appearances: Sāyaṇa says, yad rūpam kāmayate tad rūpātmake bhavati. nānā-vidhāni śarīrāṇi nirmimite.

harayaḥ: steeds, sense-organs, indriyāṇi.

Sanaga from Parameṣṭhin. Parameṣṭhin from Brahmā. Brahmā is self-born. Salutation to Brahmā.

Parameṣṭhin is Virāj. Brahmā is Hiranya-garbha.

The tradition of the Veda is traced to the Supreme. It is expressed or formulated by individuals but they are not its authors. The tradition belongs to the supra-individual order and is said to be apauruṣeya or non-personal. It is timeless though its apprehension is possible at any time.

CHAPTER III

First Brāhmaṇa

SACRIFICIAL WORSHIP AND ITS REWARDS

1. janako ha vaideho bahu-dakṣiṇena yajñeneje. tatra ha kuru-pāñcālānām brāhmaṇā abhisametā babhūvuh. tasya ha janakasya vaidehasya vijijñāsā babhūva: kaḥ svid eṣām brāhmaṇānām anūcānatama iti. sa ha gavāṃ sahasram avarurodha: daśa daśa pādā ekaikasyāḥ śṛṅgayor ābaddhā babhūvuh.

1. Janaka (King) of Videha performed a sacrifice at which many presents (were offered to the priests). Brahmanas of the Kurus and the Pāñcālas were gathered together there. In this Janaka of Videha arose a desire to know which of these Brahmanas was the most learned in scripture. He enclosed (in a pen) a thousand cows. To the horns (of each cow) were fastened ten coins (of gold).

Though this states the same doctrine as the previous madhuvidyā, Ś makes out that while the previous section depended on scripture, āgama-pradhānam, the present one is based on reasoning, upapatti-pradhānam. When the two, scripture and reasoning, demonstrate the unity of the Self, it is seen clearly as a bael fruit in the palm of one's hand: āgamopapattiḥ hy ātmaikatva-prakāśanāya pravṛtte śaknutaḥ kara-tala-gata-bilvam iva darśayitum. Ś.

2. tān hovāca: brāhmaṇā bhagavantah, yo vo brahmiṣṭhaḥ, sa etā gā udajatām iti. te ha brāhmaṇā na dadhṛsuh. atha ha yājñavalkyah svam eva brahmacāriṇam uvāca: etāḥ, saumya, udaja, sāmaśrava iti. tā hodācakāra, te ha brāhmaṇās cukrudhuh: katham nu no brahmiṣṭho bruviteti. atha ha janakasya vaidehasya hotāśvalo babhūva: sa hainam papraccha, tvam nu khalu naḥ, yājñavalkyah, brahmiṣṭho 'sīti. sa hovāca: namo vyaṃ brahmiṣṭhāya kurmaḥ; gokāmā eva vyaṃ sma iti. tam ha tata eva praṣṭum dadhre hotāśvalaḥ.

2. He said to them: 'Venerable Brahmanas, let him of you who is the wisest Brahmana among you, take away these cows.' Those Brahmanas did not dare (to take the cows). Then Yājñavalkyah said to his pupil 'Sāmaśravas, my dear, drive them away.' He drove them away. The Brahmanas were enraged (and said): 'How can he declare himself to be the wisest Brahmana among us?' Now, there was Aśvala, the hotṛ priest of Janaka of Videha. He asked him, 'Yājñavalkya, are you, indeed, the wisest Brahmana among us?' He replied, 'We bow to the wisest Brahmana but we just wish to have these cows.' Therefore, Aśvala, the hotṛ priest, decided to question him.

Yājñavalkya is a teacher of the Yajur Veda but his pupil chants the Sāman which is the Rg Veda set to music, and the Ātharva Veda is subsidiary to the other three. So Yājñavalkya is learned in all the four vedas.

3. Yājñavalkya, iti hovāca. yad idam sarvam mrtyunāptam, sarvam mrtyunābhipannam, kena yajamāno mrtyor āptim atimucyata iti: hotṛa ṛtvijā, agninā, vācā: vāg vai yajñasya hotā, tad yeyam vāk. so' yam agnih, sa hotā, sā muktih, sātimumktiḥ.

3. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'since everything here is pervaded by death, since everything is overcome by death, by what means does the sacrificer free himself from the reach of death?' (Yājñavalkya said) 'By the hotṛ priest, by fire, by speech. Verily, speech is the hotṛ of sacrifice. That which is this speech is this fire. This (fire) is hotṛ. This is freedom, this is complete freedom.'

āptam: pervaded, vyāptam. Ś.

abhipannam: overcome, swayed, vaśīkṛtam. Ś.

By the knowledge of the identity of the sacrificer, the fire and the ritual speech one gets beyond death.

4. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yad idam sarvam ahorātrābhyām āptam, sarvam ahorātrābhyām abhipannam, kena yajamāno 'horātrayor āptim atimucyata iti. adhvaryunā ṛtvijā, cakṣuṣā, ādityena, cakṣur vai yajñasya adhvaryuḥ, tad yad idam cakṣuḥ, so' sāv ādityaḥ; so' dhvaryuḥ, sā muktih sātimumktiḥ.

4. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'since everything here is pervaded by day and night, since everything is overcome by day and night, by what means does the sacrificer free himself from the reach of day and night?' 'By the adhvaryu priest, by the eye, by the sun. Verily, the eye is the adhvaryu of the sacrifice. That which is his eye is the yonder sun. This is the adhvaryu. This is freedom. This is complete freedom.'

Day and night are symbolic of time, which is the source of all change: vipariṇāma-hetuḥ kālaḥ. Ś.

5. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yad idam sarvam pūrva-pakṣa-apara-pakṣābhyām āptam, sarvam pūrvapakṣa-āparapakṣābhyām abhipannam. kena yajamānaḥ pūrvapakṣa-āparapakṣayor āptim atimucyata iti: udgātrā ṛtvijā, vāyunā, prāṇena, prāṇo vai yajñasya udgātā, tad yo yam prāṇah. sa vāyuḥ, sa udgātā, sū muktīḥ sātīmuktīḥ.

5. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'since everything here is overtaken by the bright and dark fortnights, since everything is overcome by the bright and dark fortnights, by what means does the sacrificer free himself from the reach of the bright and the dark fortnights?' 'By the udgātr priest, by the air, by the breath. Verily, the breath is the udgātr priest of the sacrifice. That which is this breath is the air. This is the udgātr priest. This is freedom. This is complete freedom.'

6. Yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yad idam antarikṣam anārambamam iva kenākramena yajamānaḥ svargaṁ lokam ākramata iti: brahmaṇā ṛtvijā, manasā, candrena; mano vai yajñasya brahmā, tad yad idam manah, so' sau candrah, sa brahmā, sa muktīḥ, sātīmuktīḥ ity atimokṣāḥ, atha sampadaḥ.

6. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'since the sky is, as it were, without a support, by what means of ascent does a sacrificer reach the heavenly world?' By the Brahmā priest, by the mind, by the moon. Verily, mind is the Brahmā of the sacrifice. That which is this mind is the yonder moon. This is the Brahman. This is freedom. This is complete freedom. This is concerning freedom; and now the achievements.

sampadaḥ: achievements of results acquired, phala-prāptiḥ.

7. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, katibhir ayam adya ṛgbhir hotāsmiṁ yajñe kariṣyātīti: tisṛbhir iti: katamās tās tisra iti. puro'nuvākya ca yājyā ca śasyaiva tṛtīyā: kim tābhir jayatīti: yat kim cedam prāṇabhyd iti.

7. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'how many (kinds of) Ṛg. verses will the hotṛ priest use today in this sacrifice?' 'Three.' 'Which are these three?' 'The introductory verse, the verse accompanying the sacrifice and the benedictory as the third.' 'What does one win by these?' 'Whatever that is here that has breath.'

8. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, kasy ayam adyādhvaryur asmiṁ yajña āhutiḥ hoṣyātīti: tisra iti: katamās tās tisra iti: yā hutā ujjvalanti, yā hutā atinedante, yā hutā adhiśerate: kim tābhir jayatīti: yā hutā ujjvalanti deva-lokam eva tābhir jayati, dīpyata iva hi deva-lokaḥ; yā hutā atinedante, pitṛ-lokam eva tābhir jayati, atīva hi pitr-lokaḥ; yā hutā adhiśerate, manuṣya-lokam eva tābhir jayati, adha iva hi manuṣya-lokaḥ.

8. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'how many (kinds of) oblations will the Adhvaryu priest offer today in this sacrifice?' 'Three.' 'Which are these three.' 'Those which, when offered, blaze upward, those which, when offered, make a great noise and those which, when offered, sink downward.' 'What does one win by these?' 'By those which, when offered, blaze upward, one wins the world of the gods for the world of the gods burns bright, as it were. By those which, when offered, make a great noise one wins the world of the fathers for the world of the fathers is excessively (noisy). By those which, when offered, sink downwards, one wins the world of men for the world of men is down below, as it were.'

The three kinds of oblations are said to be wood and clarified butter, flesh, milk and soma juice. Ś. The first flares up, the second makes a hissing noise, the third sinks down into the earth.

Those who are in the world of the fathers cry to be delivered out of it.

atinedante: make a great noise, atīva śabdam kurvanti. Ś.

9. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, katibhir ayam adya brahmā yajñam dakṣinato devatābhir gopāyatīti: ekayeti: katamā saiketi: mana eveti, anantaṁ vai manaḥ anantā viśve-dēvāḥ, anantaṁ eva sa tena lokam jayati.

9. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'with how many divinities does the Brahmā priest on the right protect the sacrifice today?' 'With one.' 'Which is that one?' 'The mind alone.' Verily, the mind is infinite; the Viśve-dēvās are infinite. An infinite world he wins thereby.

Through mind we meditate and it is said to be infinite on account of its modifications.

10. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, katy ayam adyodgātāsmiṁ yajñe śtotriyāḥ stoṣyatīti: tisra iti: katamās tā tisra iti: puro' nuvākyā ca yājyā ca śasyaiva tṛtīyā: katamās tā yā adhyātman iti: prāna eva puro' nuvākyā, apāno yājyā, vyānaḥ śasyā: kim tābhir jayatīti: pṛthivī-lokam eva puro' nuvākyayā jayati, antarikṣa-lokam yājyayā, dyu-lokam śasyayā. tato ha hotāśvala upararāma.

10. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'how many hymns of praise will the udgātri priest chant today in the sacrifice?' 'Three.' 'Which are these three?' 'The introductory hymn, the hymn accompanying the sacrifice and the benedictory as the third.' 'Which are these three with reference to the self?' 'The introductory hymn is the inbreath, the hymn accompanying the sacrifice is the outbreath. The benedictory hymn is the diffused breath.' 'What does one win by these?' 'By the introductory hymn one wins the world of the earth, by the accompanying hymn the world of the atmosphere, by the benedictory hymn one wins the world of heaven.' Thereupon the Hotṛ priest Aśvala kept silent.

upararāma: kept silent, tūṣṇīm babhūva. R.

Second Brāhmaṇa

THE MAN IN BONDAGE AND HIS FUTURE AT DEATH

1. atha hainam jāratakārava ārtabhāgaḥ papraccha: yājñavalkya iti hovāca, kati grahāḥ kati atigrahā iti. aṣṭau grahāḥ aṣṭāv atigrahā iti. ye te' ṣṭau grahāḥ, aṣṭāv atigrahāḥ, katame ta iti.

1. Then Jāratakārava Ārtabhāga questioned him, 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'how many perceivers are there, how many over-perceivers?' 'Eight perceivers. Eight over-perceivers.' 'Those eight perceivers and eight over-perceivers, which are they?'

The grahas are the organs of perception, graspers or apprehenders and the atigrahas are the objects of perception.

2. prāṇo vai grahaḥ, so 'pānenātigrāheṇa grhītaḥ, apānena hi gandhān jighrati.

2. 'The nose is the organ of perception. It is seized (controlled) by the outbreath as an over-perceiver, for by the outbreath one smells an odour.

prāṇa iti ghrāṇam ucyate. Ś.

3. vāg vai grahaḥ, sa nāmnātigrāheṇa grhītaḥ, vācā hi nāmāny abhivādati.

3. 'Speech, verily, is the organ of perception. It is seized by name as an over-perceiver, for by speech one utters names.

4. jihvā vai grahaḥ, sa rasenātigrāheṇa grhītaḥ, jihvayā hi rasān vijānāti.

4. 'The tongue, verily, is the organ of perception. It is seized by taste as an over-perceiver, for by tongue one knows tastes.

5. cakṣur vai grahaḥ, sa rūpenātigrāheṇa gṛhītaḥ, cakṣuṣā hi rūpāṇi paśyati.

5. 'The eye, verily, is the organ of perception. It is seized by form as an over-perceiver, for by the eye one sees forms.

6. śrotam vai grahaḥ, sa śabdenātigrāheṇa gṛhītaḥ, śrotreṇa hi śabdān śṛṇoti.

6. 'The ear, verily, is the organ of perception. It is seized by sound as an over-perceiver, for by the ear one hears sounds.

7. mano vai grahaḥ, sa kāmenātigrāheṇa gṛhītaḥ, manasā hi kāmān kāmayate.

7. 'The mind, verily, is the organ of perception; it is seized by desire as an over-perceiver, for through the mind one desires desires.

8. hastau vai grahaḥ, sa karmanātigrāheṇa gṛhītaḥ, hastābhyām hi karma karoti.

8. 'The hands, verily, are the organ of perception. They are seized by action as an over-perceiver, for by the hands one performs actions.

9. tvag vai grahaḥ, sparśenātigrāheṇa gṛhītaḥ, tvacā hi sparśān vedayate: ity ete'ṣṭau grahaḥ, aṣṭāv atigrāhaḥ.

9. 'The skin, verily, is the organ of perception, it is seized by touch as an over-perceiver, for by the skin one feels touch. These are the eight organs of perception, and the eight over-perceivers.'

10. yājñavalkya iti hovāca, yad idaṁ sarvaṁ mṛtyor annam, kā sūt sā devatā, yasyā mṛtyur annam iti: agnir vai mṛtyuḥ, so'pām annam, apa punar mṛtyuṁ jayati.

10. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'since everything here is food for death, what, pray, is that divinity for whom death is food?' 'Fire, verily, is death. It is the food of water. He (who knows this) overcomes further death.'

Everything is the food of death as everything is born and is imperilled by and is subject to death: sarvaṁ jāyate vipadyate . . . mṛtyunā grastam. Ś.

11. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yatrāyam puruṣo mriyate, ud asmāt prāṇāḥ krāmanty āho neti. na iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, atraiva samavanīyante, sa ucchvayati, ādhmāyati, ādhmāto mṛtaḥ śete.

11. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'when such a person (a liberated sage) dies, do the vital breaths move up from him or do they not?' 'No,' replied Yājñavalkya. 'They are gathered together in him. He (the body) swells up, he is inflated and thus inflated the dead man (body) lies.'

The liberated man, when his bondage is destroyed, does not go anywhere: bandhana-nāśe muktasya na kvacid gamanam. Ś.

12. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yatrāyam puruso mriyate, kim enaṁ na jahātīti: nāma iti, anantaṁ vai nāma, anantā viśve-devāḥ, anantaṁ eva sa tena lokam jayati.

12. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'when such a person dies, what is it that does not leave him?' 'The name. The name is infinite and infinite are the Viśve-devās. Thereby he (who knows this) wins an infinite world.'

What remains is name, nāma. It is the name which does not perish at death. Cp. with this the Buddhist doctrine that the element which is reborn is nāma-rūpa, nāma and shape. Cp. Rūmī: 'Every shape you see has its archetype in the placeless world and if the shape perished, no matter, since its original is everlasting.' Shams-i-Tabriz: XII, Nicholson's E.T.

13. 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'when the speech (voice) of this dead person enters into fire, the breath into air, the eye into the sun, the mind into the moon, hearing into the quarters, the self into the ether, the hairs of the body into the herbs, the hairs on the head into the trees and the blood and the semen are deposited in water, what then becomes of this person?' 'Ārtabhāga, my dear, take my hand. We two alone shall know of this, this is not for us two (to speak of) in public.' The two went away and deliberated. What they said was karman and what they praised was karman. Verily one becomes good by good action, bad by bad action. Therefore, Ārtabhāga of the line of Jaratkāru kept silent.

lohitam: blood, lohito rohitāḥ raktāḥ, Amara-kośa I. 5. 15.

What then becomes of this person? What is the support by which he again takes birth? The results of action, Karma, produce rebirth.

This view finds a parallel in the Buddhist doctrine, that while, at death, the different parts of the individual are scattered to their different sources, karma remains to cause a new existence. See also R.V. X. 16. 3.

Third Brāhmaṇa

THE RESORT OF THE PERFORMERS OF THE HORSE-SACRIFICE

1. atha hainam bhujyur lāhyāyaniḥ paṇḍitaḥ yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, madreṣu carakāḥ, paryavrajāma, te patañcalasya kāpyasya gṛhān aimā; tasyāśīd dūhitā gandharvagrhitā; tam aprcchāma ko 'sīti, so'bravīt, sudhanvāṅgīrasa iti, tam yadā lokānām antān aprcchāma, athainam abrūma, kva pāriṣitā abhavann iti, kva pāriṣitā abhavan, sa tvā prcchāmi, yājñavalkya, kva pāriṣitā abhavann iti.

1. Then Bhujyu Lāhyāyani asked him: 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'we were travelling around as wanderers among the Madra tribe and came to the house of Patañcala Kāpya. He had a daughter who was possessed by a gandharva. We asked him "Who are you?" He said, "I am Sudhanvan, a descendant of Aṅgīras." When we were asking him about the ends of the earth, we said to him, "What has become of the Pāriṣitas? What has become of the Pāriṣitas?" And I ask you, Yājñavalkya, what has become of the Pāriṣitas?'

The questioner who obtained the knowledge of the limits of the earth from a gandharva asks Yājñavalkya about the descendants of Pāriṣit. The writer believes in the fact of possession. Patañcala's daughter was possessed by a gandharva, an aerial spirit, and so served as a medium. She was asked about the actual extent of the world and the place where the sons of Pāriṣit were.

Modern para-psychology is investigating phenomena of possession and mediumship, as these cannot be explained on principles of psychology which are generally recognised.

dvātriṃśataṁ vai deva-ratha-ahnyāny ayaṁ lokah, taṁ samantam prthivī dviṣ tāvat paryeti; tāṁ samantam prthivīm dviṣ tāvat samudraḥ paryeti, tad yāvati kṣurasya dhārā, yāvad vā makṣikāyāḥ pattram, tāvān antareṇākāśah; tān indraḥ suparṇo bhūtvā vāyave prāyacchat, tān vāyur ātmani dhritvā tatrāgamayad, yatrāśva-medha-yājino 'bhavann iti; evam iva vai sa vāyur eva praśaṁsa, tasmād vāyur eva vyaṣṭiḥ, vāyur samaṣṭiḥ: apa punar mṛtyuṁ jayati, ya evaṁ veda. tato ha bhujyur lāhyāyanir upararāma.

2. Yājñavalkya said, 'He (the gandharva) evidently told (you) that they went where those who perform horse-sacrifices go.' 'And where do the performers of the horse sacrifices go?' 'Thirty-two times the space covered by the sun's chariot in a day makes this world. Around it covering twice the area is the earth. Around it covering twice the area is the ocean. Now there is just that much interspace as large as the edge of a razor or the wing of a mosquito. Indra, having become a bird, delivered them to the air. Air, placing them in itself led them to the place where the performers of the horse sacrifice were. Thus did he (the gandharva) praise the air. Therefore, air is the separate individuals and air is the totality of all individuals. He who knows it as such, conquers further death.' After that Bhujya Lāhyāyani kept silent.

Fourth Brāhmaṇa

THE THEORETICAL UNKNOWABILITY OF BRAHMAN

1. atha hainam uṣastas cākrāyaṇaḥ papraccha: yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yat sāṅśād aparokṣād brahma, ya ātmā sarvāntaraḥ, tam me vyācakṣveti. eṣa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ. katamaḥ, yājñavalkya, sarvāntaraḥ. yaḥ prāṇena prāṇiti, sa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ yo'pānenāpāniti, sa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ, yo vyānena vyāniti, sa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ; ya udānena udāniti, sa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ, eṣa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ.

1. Then Uṣasta Cākrāyaṇa asked him: 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'explain to me the Brahman that is immediately present and directly perceived, who is the self in all things?' 'This is your self. That is within all things.' 'Which is within all things, Yājñavalkya?' 'He who breathes in with your breathing in is the self of yours which is in all things. He who breathes out with your breathing out is the self of yours which is in all things. He who breathes about with your breathing about is the self of yours which is in all things. He who breathes up with your breathing up is the self of yours which is in all things. He is your self which is in all things.'

2. sa hovāca uṣastas cākrāyaṇaḥ: yatha vibrūyād, asau gauḥ, asāv aśva iti, evam evaitad vyapadiṣtam bhavati, yad eva sākṣād aparokṣād brahma ya ātmā sarvāntaraḥ tam me vyācakṣva iti: eṣa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ. katamaḥ yājñavalkya, sarvāntaraḥ. na dṛṣter draṣṭāraṁ paśyeḥ, na śruter śrotāraṁ śṛṇuyāḥ, na mater mantāraṁ manvīthāḥ, na vijñāter vijñātāraṁ vijñānīyāḥ, eṣa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ, ato'nyad ārtam. tato ha uṣastas cākrāyaṇa upararāma.

2. Uṣasta Cākrāyaṇa said: 'This has been explained by you as one might say "This is a cow," "this is a horse." Explain to me the Brahman that is immediately present and directly perceived, that is the self in all things.' 'This is your self that is within all things.' 'Which is within all things, Yājñavalkya?' 'You cannot see the seer of seeing, you cannot hear the hearer of hearing, you cannot think the thinker of thinking, you cannot understand the understander of understanding. He is your self which is in all things. Everything else is of evil.' Thereupon Uṣasta Cākrāyaṇa kept silent.

RENUNCIATION, THE WAY TO KNOW BRAHMAN

1. atha hainaṁ kaholaḥ kauṣītakeyaḥ papraccha: yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yad eva sākṣād aparokṣād brahma ya ātmā sarvāntaraḥ, tam me vyācakṣva iti. eṣa ta ātmā sarvāntaraḥ-katamaḥ, yājñavalkya, sarvāntaraḥ. yo'sanāyā-pipāse śokam moham jarām mṛtyum atyeti. etaṁ vai tam ātmānam viditvā, brāhmaṇaḥ putraiṣaṇāyās ca vittaiṣaṇāyās ca lokaiṣaṇāyās ca vyutthāya, atha bhikṣācāryaṁ caranti. yā hy eva putraiṣaṇā sā vittaiṣaṇā yā vittaiṣaṇā sā lokaiṣaṇā, ubhe hy ete eṣaṇe eva bhavataḥ;

tasmād brāhmaṇaḥ, pāṇḍityaṁ nirvidya bālyena tiṣṭhāset; bālyam ca pāṇḍityaṁ ca nirvidya, atha muniḥ; amaunaṁ ca maunaṁ ca nirvidya, atha brāhmaṇaḥ. sa brāhmaṇaḥ kena syāt. yena syāt tena īdṛśa eva ato'nyad ārtam. tato ha kaholaḥ kauṣṭakeya upavararāma.

1. Now Kahola Kauṣṭakeya asked him, 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'explain to me the Brahman that is immediately present and directly perceived, that is the self in all things.' 'This is your self which is in all things.' 'Which is within all things, Yājñavalkya.' 'It is that which transcends hunger and thirst, sorrow and delusion, old age and death. The Brāhmaṇas, having known that self, having overcome the desire for sons, the desire for wealth, the desire for worlds, live the life of mendicants. That which is the desire for sons is the desire for wealth; that which is the desire for wealth is the desire for the worlds for both these are but desires. Therefore let a Brāhmaṇa, after he has done with learning, desire to live as a child. When he has done (both) with the state of childhood and with learning, then he becomes silent meditator. Having done with (both) the non-meditative and the meditative states, then he becomes a Brāhmaṇa (a knower of Brahman).' 'How does the Brāhmaṇa behave?' 'Howsoever he may behave, he is such indeed. Everything else is of evil.' Thereupon Kahola Kauṣṭakeya kept silent.

hunger: aśitum icchā aśanāyā. Ś.

thirst: pātum icchā pīpāsā. Ś.

sorrow: desire, śoka iti kāmāḥ. Ś. Desire or hankering after desirable objects is the cause of sorrow.

delusion: mistake or confusion arising from wrong perception viparīta-pratyaya-prabhavo'viveko dhramāḥ. Ś.

eśanā: desire. kāmāḥ. All desires are of one type, since they are directed towards results, and all means are adopted towards that end: sarvaḥ phalārtha-prayukta eva hi sarvaṁ sādhanam upādatte. Ś.

The knowers embrace the life of a monk and wander as mendicants. They give up even the signs of a monk's life prescribed by the scriptures, which are sometimes merely the means of livelihood for those who have taken to that life: paramahansa-pārvirājyaṁ pratipadya bhikṣā-caryaṁ caranti, bhikṣārthaṁ caranam, bhikṣācaryaṁ caranti tyaktvā smṛtaṁ līgaṁ kevalam āśrama-mātra-saṁnānām jivana-sādhanaṁ pārvirājya-vyañjakam. Ś.

nirvidya: having done with, having known all about: niḥśeṣam veditvā. Ś.

bālyā: state of the child. Deussen and Gough adopt this interpretation. Immediacy and lack of reflection as in a child give us the experience of the real. See Subāla U. 13.

It is not a question of remaining as children, but becoming as children. It involves the sacrifice of intellectual conceit, a 'sacrificium intellectus.' We must be able to acquire naïveté. It is what Lao Tzu calls 'returning to the root.' St. Paul says: 'Thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad': Acts xxvi. 24. Cp. 'St. Francis once said that a great scholar when he joined the Order, ought in some sort to resign even his learning, in order that, having stripped himself of such a possession he might offer himself to the arms of the Crucified': A. G. Little, Franciscan Papers. Lists and Documents (1943), p. 55.

Certain things are hidden from the learned and revealed to the babes. 'In this hour Jesus rejoiced, saying, I thank Thee, Heavenly Father because Thou hast hidden these things from the wise and prudent and revealed them unto babes.' 'Except ye become like little children, ye shall not see the Kingdom of God.' To become like little children is not easy. It takes much effort to acquire the grace and meekness of the child-like; to measure our littleness against the greatness of the Supreme.

bāhya: strength which is the total elimination of the perception of objects of self-knowledge. jñāna-bala-bhāva. Ś. This view is different from what is stated above.

Mauṇa is abstinence from speech. It is regarded as helpful for meditation. We must turn away from the world of noise into the inward stillness, the interior silence to become aware of the reality which transcends time and space. Cp. Kierkegaard: 'The present condition of the world is diseased. If I were a doctor and was asked for my advice, I should answer, Create silence, bring men to silence—the word of God cannot be heard in the world today. And if it is blazoned forth with all the panoply of noise so that it can be heard even in the midst of all other noise, then it is no longer the word of God. Therefore, create silence.'

The true knower of Brahman devotes himself exclusively to the contemplation of the self and shuns all other thoughts as distractions.

Sixth Brāhmaṇa

BRAHMA, THE WORLD GROUND

1. atha hainam gārgī vācakanvī papraccha, yājñavalkya, iti hovāca, yad idam sarvam apsu otam ca protam ca, kasmin nu khalv āpa otās ca protās ceti. vāyau, gārgī, iti. kasmin nu khalu vāyur, otās ca protās ceti. antarikṣa-lokeṣu, gārgī, iti. kasmin

1. Then Gārgī Vācaknavī asked him: 'Yājñavalkya,' said she, 'since all this here is woven, like warp and woof, in water, on what, pray, is water woven, like warp and woof?' 'On air, O Gārgi.' 'On what, then is air woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of the sky, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of the sky woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of the gandharvas, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of the gandharvas woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of the sun, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of the sun woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of the moon, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of the moon woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of the stars, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of the stars woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of the gods, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of the gods woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of Indra, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of Indra woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of Prajā-pati, O Gārgi.' 'On what, then, pray, are the worlds of Prajā-pati woven, like warp and woof?' 'On the worlds of Brahmā, O Gārgi.' 'On what then, pray, are the worlds of Brahmā woven, like warp and woof?' He (Yājñavalkya) said, 'Gārgi, do not question too much lest your head fall off. Verily, you are questioning too much about a divinity about which we are not to ask too much. Do not, O Gārgi, question too much.' Thereupon Gārgī Vācaknavī kept silent.

The basis of this whole universe is said to be brahma-loka.

Seventh Brāhmaṇa

AIR, THE PRINCIPLE OF THE WORLD. THE INNER CONTROLLER

1. atha hainam uddālaka āruṇiḥ papraccha: yājñavalkya, iti hovāca madreṣu avasāma, patañcalasya kāpyasya gr̥heṣu, yajñam adhīyānāḥ. tasyāsīd bhāryā, gandharva-gr̥hītā, tam apr̥cchāma, ko'sīti: so'bravīt, kabandha ātharvaṇa iti. so'bravīt, patañcalam kāpyam yājñikāms ca; vettha nu tvam, kāpya, tat sūtram yasminn (v: yena) ayam ca lokāḥ, paraś ca lokāḥ, sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni saṁdr̥bdhāni, bhavanīti. so'bravīt patañcalāḥ kāpyaḥ, nāham tad, bhagavan, vedeti. so'bravīt patañcalam kāpyam yājñikāms ca. vettha nu tvam, kāpya, tam antaryāminam, ya imam ca lokam param ca lokam sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni yo'ntaro yamayāti. so'bravīt patañcalāḥ kāpyaḥ, nāham tam, bhagavan, vedeti. so'bravīt patañcalam kāpyam yājñikāms ca, yo vai tat, kāpya, sūtram vidyāt, tam cāntaryāminam iti, sa brahma-vit, sa loka-vit, sa deva-vit, sa veda-vit, sa bhūta-vit, sa ātma-vit, sa sarva-vit, iti tebhyo'bravīt tad aham veda; tac cet tvam, yājñavalkya, sūtram avidvāms tam cāntaryāminam brahmagavīr udajase, mūrdhā te vipatīṣyāti. veda vā aham, gautama, tat sūtram tam cāntaryāminam iti. yo vā idam kaś cid brūyāt, veda vedeti: yathā vettha, tathā brūhīti.

1. Then Uddālaka Āruṇi asked him, 'Yājñavalkya,' said he, 'we lived in the house of Patañcala Kāpya among the Madras, studying the scriptures on the sacrifices. He had a wife who was possessed by a gandharva. We asked him, "Who are you?" He said, "I am Kabandha Ātharvaṇa." He said to Patañcala Kāpya and those who studied the scriptures on the sacrifices, "Do you know, O Kāpya, that thread by which this world, the other world and all beings are held together?" Patañcala Kāpya said: "I do not know it, Venerable Sir." He said to Patañcala Kāpya and those who studied the scriptures on the sacrifices: "Do you know, Kāpya, that inner controller from within who controls this world and the next and all things." Patañcala Kāpya said, "I do not know it, Venerable Sir." He said to Patañcala Kāpya and those who studied the scriptures on the sacrifices. "He who knows that thread, O Kāpya, and that inner controller, indeed knows Brahman, he knows the worlds, he knows the gods, he knows the Vedas, he knows beings, he knows the self, he knows everything." Thus he explained it to them. I know it. If you, Yājñavalkya, do not know that thread, that inner controller and still take away the cows that belong only to the knowers of Brahman, your head will fall off.' 'I know, O Gautama, that thread and that inner controller.' 'Anyone might say, "I know, I know." Tell us what you know.'

Here is a description of the world spirit, brahma-lokānām antaratamam sūtram. Ś. It is that which binds together all beings from the highest to the lowest, brahmādi-stamba-paryantāni samdṛbdhāni saṁgrathitāni, Ś. All things are strung like a garland with a thread. Reference here is to the sūtrātman. Cp. Maitrī. I. 4. Śataśślokī 12, 55. Man is a bead strung on the thread of the conscious self, and just as wooden puppets are worked by strings, so the world is operated by the sūtrātman, the thread spirit.

2. sa hovācā vāyur vai, Gautama, tat sūtram; vāyunā vai, Gautama, sūtrenāyaṁ ca lokāḥ paraś ca lokāḥ sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni samdṛbdhāni bhavanti, tasmād vai, Gautama, puruṣam pretam āhuḥ vyaśraṁśiṣatāsyāṅgānūti; vāyunā hi, Gautama, sūtreṇa samdṛbdhāni bhavantīti. evam etat, yājñavalkya, antaryāminam brūhīti.

2. He said, 'Air, verily, O Gautama, is that thread. By air, verily, O Gautama, as by a thread this world, the other world and all beings are held together. Therefore, verily, O Gautama, they say of a person who dies that his limbs have been loosened, for they are held together, O Gautama, by air as by a thread.' 'Quite so, Yājñavalkya, describe the inner controller.'

19. 'He who dwells in the ear, yet is within the ear, whom the ear does not know, whose body the ear is, who controls the ear from within, he is your self, the inner controller, the immortal.'

20. yo manasi tiṣṭhan manaso'ntarah, yaṁ mano na veda, yasya manaḥ śarīram, yo mano'ntaro yamayati, eṣa ta ātmāntaryāmy amṛtaḥ.

20. 'He who dwells in the mind, yet is within the mind, whom the mind does not know, whose body the mind is, who controls the mind from within, he is your self, the inner controller, the immortal.'

21. yaś tvaci tiṣṭhaṁś tvaco'ntarah, yaṁ tvañ na veda, yasya tvak śarīram, yaś tvacam antaro yamayati, eṣa ta ātmāntaryāmy amṛtaḥ.

21. 'He who dwells in the skin, yet is within the skin, whom the skin does not know, whose body the skin is, who controls the skin from within, he is your self, the inner controller, the immortal.'

22. yo vijñāne tiṣṭhan, vijñānād antarah, yaṁ vijñānaṁ na veda, yasya vijñānaṁ śarīram, yo vijñānam antaro yamayati, eṣa ta ātmāntaryāmy amṛtaḥ.

22. 'He who dwells in the understanding, yet is within the understanding, whom the understanding does not know, whose body the understanding is, who controls the understanding from within, he is your self, the inner controller, the immortal.'

Ś discusses the text in S.B. I. 2. 18-20. Both the Kāṇva and the Mādhyandina recensions speak of the universal and the individual selves as different from each other, the former being the ruler and the latter the ruled. The Kāṇva speaks of the embodied self as the understanding and the Mādhyandina speaks of it as the self: yo vijñāne tiṣṭhan iti kāṇvaḥ, atra vijñāna-śabdena śarīrah ucyate; ya ātmani tiṣṭhan iti mādhyandinah, atra ātma-śabdaḥ śarīrasya vācakah.

For Rāmānuja this passage is important as a support for his doctrine of viśiṣṭādvaita.

Madhva uses this text in support of his theory of the absolute distinction between Brahman and the individual soul.

23. yo retasi tiṣṭhan retaso'ntarah, yaṁ reto na veda, yasya retah śarīram, yo reto'ntaro yamayati, eṣa ta ātmāntaryāmy amṛtaḥ: adṛṣṭo draṣṭā, aśrutaḥ śrotā, amato mantā, avijñāto vijñātā. nānyo'to'sti draṣṭā, nānyo'to'sti śrotā, nānyo'to'sti

mantā, nānyo'to'sti vijñātā: eṣa ta ātmāntaryāmy amṛtaḥ: ato'nyad ārtam. tato hoḍḍālaka āruṇir uparavāma.

23. He who dwells in the semen, is other than the semen, whom the semen does not know, whose body the semen is, who controls the semen from within, that is your self, the inner controller, the immortal. He is never seen but is the seer, he is never heard but is the hearer. He is never perceived, but is the perceiver. He is never thought but is the thinker. There is no other seer but he, there is no other hearer but he, there is no other perceiver but he, there is no other thinker but he. He is your self, the inner controller, the immortal. Everything else is of evil. After that Uddālaka Āruṇi kept silent.

Everything that is not the self perishes.

Though he is free from all the empirical qualities, he still controls them all.

Eighth Brāhmaṇa

THE UNQUALIFIED BRAHMAN

1. atha ha vācaknavy uvāca, brāhmaṇā bhagavantah, hanta, aham imaṁ dvau praśnau prakṣyāmi; tau cen me vakṣyati, na vai jātu yuṣmākam imaṁ kaś cid brahmodyaṁ jeteti. prccha, gārgī.

1. Then Vācaknavī said: 'Venerable Brāhmaṇas, I shall ask him two questions. If he answers me these, none of you can defeat him in arguments about Brahman.' 'Ask, Gārgī.'

Vācaknavī is also Gārgī but she is not the Gārgī, who is the wife of Yājñavalkya.

brahmodya: discussion about Brahman which often accompanied the sacrifices.

2. sā hovāca: ahaṁ vai tvā, yājñavalkya, yathā kāśyo vā vaideho vā ugra-putraḥ, vijjyaṁ dhanur adhiyaṁ kṛtvā, dvau bāṇavantau sapatna-ativyādhinau haste kṛtvā upottiṣṭhet, evam evāham tvā dvābhyāṁ praśnābhyāṁ upodasthām, tau me brūhīti. prccha, gārgi, iti.

2. She said, 'As a warrior son of the Kāśis or the Videhas might rise up against you, having strung his unstrung bow and having taken in his hand two pointed foe-piercing arrows, even so, O Yājñavalkya, do I face you with two questions. Answer me these.' 'Ask, Gārgi' (said he)

3. sā hovāca: yad ūrdhvam, yājñavalkya, divaḥ, yad avāk pṛthivyāḥ, yad antarā dyāvāpṛthivī ime, yad bhūtaṁ ca bhavac ca bhaviṣyac cety ācakṣate; kasmīns tad otaṁ ca protaṁ ceti.

3. She said: 'That, O Yājñavalkya, of which they say, it is above the heaven, it is beneath the earth, that which is between these two, the heaven and the earth, that which the people call the past, the present and the future, across what is that woven, like warp and woof?'

4. sa hovāca, yad ūrdhvam, gārgi, divaḥ, yad avāk pṛthivyāḥ, yad antarā dyāvāpṛthivī ime, yad bhūtaṁ ca bhavac ca bhaviṣyac cety ācakṣate, ākāśe tad otaṁ ca protaṁ ceti.

4. He said: 'That which is above the heaven, that which is beneath the earth, that which is between these two, heaven and earth, that which the people call the past, the present and the future, across space is that woven, like warp and woof.'

5. sā hovāca, namas te'stu, yājñavalkya, yo na etaṁ vyavocaḥ: aparasmai dhārayasveti. pṛccha, gārgi, iti.

5. She said, 'Adoration to you, Yājñavalkya, who have answered this question for me. Prepare yourself for the other.' 'Ask, Gārgi.'

6. sā hovāca, yad ūrdhvam, yājñavalkya, divaḥ, yad avāk pṛthivyāḥ, yad antarā dyāvāpṛthivī ime, yad bhūtaṁ ca bhavac ca bhaviṣyac cety ācakṣate: kasmīns tad otaṁ ca protaṁ ceti.

6. She said: 'That, O Yājñavalkya, of which they say, it is above the heaven, it is beneath the earth, that which is between these two, the heaven and the earth, that which the people call the past, the present and the future, across what is that woven like warp and woof?'

7. sa hovāca, yad ūrdhvam, gārgi, divaḥ, yad avāk pṛthivyāḥ, yad antarā dyāvāpṛthivī ime, yad bhūtaṁ ca bhavac ca bhaviṣyac cety ācakṣate ākāśa eva tad otaṁ ca protaṁ ceti; kasmin nu khalv ākāśa otaś ca protaś ceti.

7. He said: 'That which is above the sky, that which is beneath the earth, that which is between these two, sky and earth, that which the people call the past, the present and the future, across space is that woven like warp and woof. Across what is space woven like warp and woof?’

It is a difficult question. If Yājñavalkya does not explain it because he thinks it inexplicable, he lays himself open to the charge of non-comprehension, a-pratīpatti; if, on the other hand, he attempts to explain what is inexplicable he would be guilty of contradiction, vi-pratīpatti.

8. He said: ‘That, O Gārgi, the knowers of Brahman, call the Imperishable. It is neither gross nor fine, neither short nor long, neither glowing red (like fire) nor adhesive (like water). (It is) neither shadow nor darkness, neither air nor space, unattached, without taste, without smell, without eyes, without ears, without voice, without mind, without radiance, without breath, without a mouth, without measure, having no within and no without. It eats nothing and no one eats it.’

This passage brings out that the Imperishable is neither a substance nor a possessor of attributes.

akṣara: It is not the letter but the Supreme Self, akṣaram paramātmā eva, na varṇaḥ. S.B. I. 3. 10. It is the changeless reality.

9. etasya vā akṣarasya praśāsane, gārgi, sūryācandramasau vidhrtau tiṣṭhataḥ; etasya vā akṣarasya praśāsane, gārgi, dyāvāpṛthivyau vidhṛte tiṣṭhataḥ; etasya vā akṣarasya praśāsane, gārgi, nimesā, muhūrtā, ahorātrāṇy ardhmāsā, māsā, ṛtavah, samvatsara iti. vidhṛtās tiṣṭhanti; etasya vā akṣarasya praśāsane, gārgi, prācyo’ nyā nadyaḥ syandante śvetebhyaḥ parvatebhyaḥ, pratīcyo’ nyāḥ, yām yām cā diśam anu; etasya vā akṣarasya praśāsane, gārgi, dadato manuṣyāḥ praśamsanti; yajamānaṃ devāḥ, darvīm pītaro’nvāyattāḥ.

9. ‘Verily, at the command of that Imperishable, O Gārgi, the sun and the moon stand in their respective positions. At the command of that Imperishable, O Gārgi, heaven and earth stand in their respective positions. At the command of that Imperishable, O Gārgi, what are called moments, hours, days and nights, half-months, months, seasons, years stand in their respective positions. At the command of that Imperishable, O

Gārgi, some rivers flow to the east from the white (snowy) mountains, others to the west in whatever direction each flows. By the command of that Imperishable, O Gārgi, men praise those who give, the gods (are desirous of) the sacrificer and the fathers are desirous of the darvī offering.'

Inferential evidence from the orderliness of the world is here given: anumānam pramānam upanyasyati. Ś.

The maintenance of the respective positions of heaven and earth is not possible without the guidance of an intelligent transcendent ruler: cetanāvantam praśāsītāram asaṁsārīṇam antareṇa naitad yuktam. Ś.

10. yo vā etad akṣaram, gārgi, aviditvāsmiml loke juhōti, yajate, tapas tapyate, bahūni varṣa-sahasrāṇy antavad evāsyā tad bhavati; yo vā etad akṣaram, gārgi, aviditvāsmāl lokāt praiti, sa kṛpānaḥ; atha ya etad akṣaram, gārgi, viditvāsmāl lokāt praiti, sa brāhmaṇaḥ.

10. 'Whosoever, O Gārgi, in this world, without knowing this Imperishable performs sacrifices, worships, performs austerities for a thousand years, his work will have an end; whosoever, O Gārgi, without knowing this Imperishable departs from this world, is pitiable. But, O Gārgi, he who knowing the Imperishable departs from this world is a Brāhmaṇa (a knower of Brahman).'

yad ajñānāt saṁsāra-prāptiḥ, yad jñānāt cāmṛtatva-prāptiḥ. R.

11. tad vā etad akṣaram, gārgi, adṛṣtam draṣṭṛ, aśrutam, śrōṭṛ, amatam manṭṛ, aviññātām viññātṛ, nānyad ato'sti draṣṭṛ, nānyad ato'sti śrōṭṛ, nānyad ato'sti manṭṛ, nānyad ato'sti viññātṛ; etasmin nu khalv akṣare, gārgi, ākāśa otaś ca protaś ca.

11. 'Verily, that Imperishable, O Gārgi, is unseen but is the seer, is unheard but is the hearer, unthought but is the thinker, unknown but is the knower. There is no other seer but this, there is no other hearer but this, there is no other thinker but this, there is no other knower but this. By this Imperishable, O Gārgi, is space woven like warp and woof.'

12. sā hovāca; brāhmaṇā bhagavantaḥ, tad eva bahu manye-dhvam yad asmān namaskāreṇa mucyēdhvam; na vai jātu yuṣmākam imam kaścid brahmodyam jētetī. tato ha vācakanavy upa-rarāma.

12. She said: 'Venerable Brāhmaṇas, you may think it a great thing if you get off from him though bowing to him. Not one of you will defeat him in arguments about Brahman.' Thereupon (Gārgī) Vācakanvī kept silent.

Ś says that the same Brahman on account of the differences in limiting adjuncts, upādhibhedena is called differently: tasmān nirupādhikasyātmāno nirupākhyatvān nirviśeṣatvād ekatvāc ca neti netīti vyapadeśo bhavati, avidyā-kāma-karma-viśiṣṭa-kārya-karano-pādhir ātmā saṁsārī jīva ucyate; nitya-niratiśaya-jñāna-śakty-upādhir ātmāntaryāmīśvara ucyate; sa eva nirupādhīḥ kevalaḥ śuddhaḥ svena-svabhāvenākṣaram param ucyate:

Therefore the unconditioned Self, being beyond speech and mind, undifferentiated and one, is defined as 'not this,' 'not this'; when it has the limiting adjuncts of the body and the organs, the products of ignorance, desire and work, it is called the individual ego; when the self has the limiting adjunct of eternal knowledge and power, it is called the inner controller, the Supreme Lord. The same self, absolute, alone, pure is called the Imperishable Supreme Self. The self is everywhere assuming different forms. For Ś the differences are all traceable to limiting adjuncts and to nothing else, upādhibhedenaivaiṣām bhedaḥ, nānyathā.

Ninth Brāhmaṇa

MANY GODS AND ONE BRAHMAN

1. *atha hainam vidagdhaḥ śākalyaḥ paṇḍitaḥ: kati devāḥ, yājñavalkya, iti. sa haitayaiva nividaḥ pratīpede, yāvanto vaiśva-devasya nividy ucyante; trayaś ca trī ca śatā, trayaś ca trī ca sahasreṭi. aum iti. hovāca, katy eva devāḥ, yājñavalkya iti. trayaś trimśad iti. 1. Then Vidagdha Śākalya asked him: 'How many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' He answered, in accord with the following nivid (invocation of the gods). 'As many as are mentioned in the nivid of the hymn of praise to the Viśve-devas, namely, three hundred and three, and three thousand and three.' 'Yes,' he said, 'but how many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' 'Thirty three.' 'Yes,' he said, 'but how many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' 'Six.' 'Yes,' said he, 'but how many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' 'Three.' 'Yes,' said he, 'but how many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' 'Two.' 'Yes,' said he, 'but how many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' 'One and a half.' 'Yes,' said he, 'but how many gods are there, Yājñavalkya?' 'One.' 'Yes,' said he, 'but which are those three hundred and three and three thousand and three?'

nivid: group of verses giving the number of the gods which are recited in the hymns of praise to the Viśve-devas. devatā-samkhyā-vā-cakāni mantra-padāni kānicid vaiśva-deve śastre śasyamte. Ś.

2. He (Yājñavalkya) said, 'They are but the manifestations of them, but there are only thirty-three gods.' 'Which are these thirty-three?' 'The eight Vasus, the eleven Rudras, and the twelve Ādityas, these are thirty-one, Indra and Prajā-pati (make up) thirty-three.'

mahimānaḥ: manifestations: vibhūtaḥ. Ś.

3. katame vasava iti. agniś ca pṛthivī ca vāyuś cāntarikṣaṁ cādityaś ca dyauś ca candraṁś ca nakṣatrāṇi ca, ete vasavaḥ, eteṣu hidaṁ sarvaṁ hitam iti, tasmād vasava iti.

3. 'Which are the Vasus?' 'Fire, the earth, the air, the sky, the sun, the heaven, the moon, the stars, these are the Vasus for in them all this is placed: therefore they are called Vasus.'

The Vasus transform themselves into bodies and organs of all beings which serve as the support for their work and its fruition as also into their dwelling-places. They help other beings to live and they themselves live; prāninām karma-phalāśrayatvena kārya-karaṇa-saṁghāta-rūpeṇa tan nivāsatvena vipariṇam anto jagad idaṁ sarvaṁ vāsayanti vāsanti ca. Ś.

Because they help others to live they are called Vasus: te yasmād vāsayanti, tasmād vasava iti. Ś.

4. 'Which are the Rudras?' 'These ten breaths in a person with the mind as the eleventh. When they depart from this mortal body, they make us (his relatives) weep. So because they make us weep, therefore they are called Rudras.'

ten breaths: the ten sensory and motor organs. jñāna-karmendriyāni daśa puruṣasthāni. R.

6. 'Which is Indra? Which is Prajā-pati? 'Indra is the thunder, Prajā-pati is the sacrifice.' 'Which is the thunder?' 'The thunderbolt.' 'Which is the sacrifice?' 'The (sacrificial) animals.'

aśaniḥ: thunderbolt. vajram Ś.

Animals are called sacrifices as the latter depend on animals. yajñasya hi sādhanāni paśavaḥ. Ś.

7. katame ṣaḍ iti. agniś ca pṛthivī ca vāyus cāntarikṣaṁ cādityas ca dyauś ca, ete ṣaṭ; ete hīdaṁ sarvaṁ ṣaḍ iti.

7. 'Which are the six?' 'Fire, the earth, the air, the sky, the sun and the heaven, these are the six, for the six are all this.'

8. katame te trayo devā iti. īma eva trayo lokāḥ, eṣu hīme sarve devā iti. katamau tau dvau devāv iti, annaṁ caiva prāṇas ceti. katamo dhyardha iti. yo yam pavata iti.

8. 'Which are the three gods?' 'They are, verily, the three worlds, for in them all these gods exist.' 'Which are the two gods?' 'Food and breath.' 'Which is the one and a half?' 'This one here who blows (the air).'

The earth and the fire make one god, the sky and the air another, the sun and the heaven a third: pṛthivīm agniṁ caikikṛtyaiko devaḥ, antarikṣaṁ vāyūṁ caikikṛtya dvitīyaḥ, divaṁ ādityaṁ caikikṛtya tṛtīyaḥ, ta eva trayo devā iti. Ś.

Out of matter and life the rest develops: annaṁ caiva prāṇas caitau devau, anayos sarveṣāṁ uktānām antarbhāvāḥ. Ś.

9. tad āhuḥ, yad ayam eka ivaiva pavate, atha katham adhyardha iti. yad asminn idam sarvam adhyārdhnot, tenādhyardha iti, katama eko deva iti. prāṇa iti, sa brahma, tyad ity ācakṣate.

9. 'Regarding this, some say, since he who blows is like one, how then is he one and a half? (The answer is) because in him (when he blows) all this grew up.' 'Which is the one God?' 'The Breath. He is Brahman. They call him tyat (that).'

adhyardhnot: grew up, attains great growth, adhiruddhim prāpnoti. Ś.

The one God has different names, forms, activities, attributes and powers owing to differences of function: devasyaikasya nāma-rūpa-karma-guṇa-śakti-bhedo' dhikāra-bhedāt. Ś.

'Verily, I know that person who is the ultimate support of every soul, of whom you speak. This very person who is in water is he. Tell me, Śākalya, who is his god?' 'Varuna,' said he.

very person who is made of a son is he. Tell me, Śākalya, who is his god?' 'Prajā-pati,' said he.

18. Śākalya, iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, tvām svid ime brāhmaṇā aṅgārāvaksyaṇam akratā u iti.

18. 'Śākalya,' said Yājñavalkya, 'have these Brāhmaṇas made you their remover of burning coals?'

'Have these Vedic scholars thrown you to me to be burnt or consumed by me?'

FIVE DIRECTIONS IN SPACE, THEIR DEITIES AND SUPPORTS

19. yājñavalkya, iti hovāca śākalyaḥ, yad idam kuru-pañcālānām brāhmaṇān atyavādīḥ, kiṁ brahma vidvān iti, diśo veda sadevāḥ sapraṭiṣṭhā iti. yad diśo vettha sa devāḥ sapraṭiṣṭhāḥ.

19. 'Yājñavalkya,' said Śākalya, 'What is the Brahman you know, that you have talked down the Brāhmaṇas of the Kuru-pañcālas?' 'I know the quarters with their deities and supports.' 'If you know the quarters with their deities and supports,

20. 'What deity have you in this eastern quarter?' (Yājñavalkya said): 'the deity sun.' 'That sun, on what is it supported?' 'On the eye.' 'On what is the eye supported?' 'On forms, for one sees forms with the eye.' 'On what are forms supported?' 'On the heart,' said he (Yājñavalkya), 'for one knows the forms through the heart; on the heart only are the forms supported.' 'Even so, Yājñavalkya.'

Whatever forms we meditate upon, we become identified with them: yam yam devatām upāste ihaiva, tad bhūtas taṁ taṁ pratipadyate. Ś.

hṛdaya: heart. It refers to the intellect and the mind taken together: hṛdayam iti buddhi-manaśī ekīkṛtya nirdeśaḥ. Ś.

21. 'What deity have you in this southern quarter?' (Yājñavalkya said) 'The deity Yama,' 'That Yama, on what is he supported?' 'On the sacrifice.' 'On what is the sacrifice supported?' 'On the offerings to the priests.' 'And on what are the offerings to the priests supported?' 'On faith, for when one has faith, he gives offerings to the priests. Therefore it is on faith that the offerings to the priests are supported.' 'On what is faith supported?' 'On the heart,' he (Yājñavalkya) said, 'for through the heart one knows faith; verily, on the heart alone is faith supported.' 'Even so, Yājñavalkya.'

faith: faith in the Vedas accompanied by devotion, āstikya-buddhir bhakti-sahitā. Ś.

22. kim-devato'syām prāṇīyām diśy asīti. varuṇa-devata iti, sa varuṇaḥ kasmin pratiṣṭhita iti. apsu iti. kasmin nu āpaḥ pratiṣṭhitā iti. retasīti, kasmin nu retasḥ pratiṣṭhitam iti. hṛdaye iti, hovāca; tasmād api prāṇirūpam jātam āhuh, hṛdayād iva srptaḥ, hṛdayād iva nirmīta iti, hṛdaye hy eva retasḥ pratiṣṭhitam bhavatīti. evam evaitat, yājñavalkya.

22. 'What deity have you in this western quarter?' 'The deity Varuṇa.' 'That Varuṇa, on what is he supported?' 'On water.' 'On what is water supported?' 'On semen.' 'On what is semen supported?' 'On the heart,' he said. 'Therefore they say of a new-born child who resembles (the father) that he seems as if he slipped out of his heart, he is built out of his heart; for on the heart alone is semen supported.' 'Even so, Yājñavalkya.'

Semen is said to be an effect of the heart, for sex desire is a modification of the heart and semen issues when the heart of man is under the influence of sex desire: hṛdayasya kāryam retasḥ, kāmo hṛdayasya vṛttiḥ, kāmīno hi hṛdayād reto' dhiskandati. Ś.

23. 'What deity have you in this northern quarter?' 'The deity Soma.' 'That Soma, on what is he supported?' 'On the initiatory rite.' 'On what is initiation supported?' 'On truth, therefore, they say to one who is initiated, "speak the truth" for on truth alone is the initiation supported.' 'On what is truth supported?' 'On the heart,' he (Yājñavalkya) said, 'for through the heart one knows truth, therefore it is on the heart that the truth is supported.' 'Even so, Yājñavalkya.'

24. kim-devato'syāṁ dhruvāyāṁ diśy asīti. agni-devata iti. so'gniḥ kasmin pratiṣṭhita iti. vāci iti. kasmin nu vāk pratiṣṭhitā iti. hṛdaya iti. kasmin nu hṛdayam pratiṣṭhitam iti.

24. 'What deity have you in this fixed quarter (zenith)?' 'The deity, fire.' 'On what is fire supported?' 'On speech.' 'On what is speech supported?' 'On the heart.' 'On what is the heart supported?'

25. ahallika iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, yatra itad anyatrāśman manyāśai, yaddhy etad anyatrāśmat śyāt, śvāno vainad adyuh vayāmsi vainad vimathnīrann iti.

25. 'You ghost,' said Yājñavalkya, 'that you think that it (the heart) would be elsewhere than in ourselves, for if it were anywhere else than in ourselves, the dogs might eat it (the body) or the birds tear it to pieces.'

Cp. Sumsumāra Jātaka.

ahallika: ghost, that which disappears by day, ahani liyate. Ā.

Madhva means a fool, one who has his knowledge, ahar, in a potential, lika, condition. His knowledge is not developed.

When the heart leaves the body, the body becomes dead.

26. Śākalya said: 'On what are you (your body) and yourself (the heart) supported?' (Yājñavalkya said): 'On the prāṇa (life-breath—inbreath).' 'On what is prāṇa supported?' 'On the apāna (the outbreath).' 'And on what is the outbreath supported?' 'On the vyāna (the diffused breath).' 'And on what is the diffused breath supported?' 'On the samāna (the equalising or middle breath). That self is not this, not this. It is incomprehensible for it is not comprehended. It is indestructible for it is never destroyed. It is unattached for it does not attach itself. It is unfettered. It does not suffer. It is not injured. These are the eight abodes, the eight worlds, the eight gods, the eight persons. He who takes apart and puts together these persons and passes beyond them, that is the person taught in the Upaniṣads about whom I ask you. If you do not explain him to me your head will fall off.' Śākalya did not know him, and his head fell off. Indeed robbers took away his bones, thinking they were something else.

Brahman is incomprehensible because it goes beyond the attributes of effects: sarva-kārya-dharmātītaḥ. Ś. asītaḥ: unfettered, abaddhaḥ. Ś.

na riṣyati: not destroyed na vinaśyati. Ś.

parimoṣiṇaḥ: robbers, taskarāḥ, Ś. See Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. XI. 6. 3. II.

MAN COMPARED TO A TREE

27. atha hovāca, brāhmaṇā bhagavanto, yo vaḥ kāmāyate sa mā prcchatu, sarve vā mā prcchata, yo vaḥ kāmāyate, tam vaḥ prcchāmi, sarvān vā vaḥ prcchamīti. te ha brāhmaṇā na dadhṛṣuḥ.

27. Then he (Yājñavalkya) said: 'Venerable Brāhmaṇas whosoever among you wishes to do so, may question me or you may all question me or I will question him of you who wishes (to be questioned) or I will question all of you.' Those Brāhmaṇas, however, did not dare (to say anything).

28. tan haitaiḥ ślokaḥ papraccha:

7. jāta eva na jāyate, konvenan janayet punaḥ; vijñānam ānandam brahma, rātir dātuh parāyaṇam, tiṣṭhamānasya tadvidah.

28. He questioned them with the following verses:

1. 'As is a mighty tree so, indeed, is a man; his hairs are leaves and his skin is its outer bark.

2. 'From his skin blood flows forth and sap from the skin (of the tree). Therefore when a man is wounded blood flows as sap from a tree that is struck.

3. 'His flesh is its inner bark, his nerves are tough like inner fibres. His bones are the wood within and the marrow is made resembling the pith.

4. 'A tree when it is felled springs up from its root in a newer form; from what root does man spring forth when he is cut off by death?

5. 'Do not say "from the semen" for that is produced from what is alive (men). A tree springs also from the seed. After it is dead it certainly springs again.

6. 'If a tree is pulled up with the root, it will not spring again. From what root does a mortal spring forth when he is cut off by death?

7. 'When born, he is not born (again) for who should create him again? Brahman who is knowledge, bliss is the final goal of him who offers gifts as well as of him who stands firm and knows (Brahman):'

See T.U. I. 10; II. 1.

amṛṣā: indeed, satyam. Ś.

From what root does man spring forth when he is cut off by death? See also Job XIV. 7-10. A man struck down by death does not come to life from seed, because human seed comes from the living only while trees springing from grain are seen to come to life after the tree is dead.

jīvatas: what is alive. Philo Judaeus says: 'Are not the parents, as it were, concomitant causes only, while Nature is the highest, elder and true cause of the begetting of children?' Quis rerum divinarum heres. 115. Cp. St. Thomas Aquinas, 'The power of the soul which is in the semen through the spirit enclosed therein fashions the body.' Summa Theologica. III. 32. 11.

dhānāḥ: seed, bījam, bījarūho'pi vrkṣo bhavati, na kevalam kāṇḍa-ru-ha eva. Ś.

añjasā: certainly, sākṣāt. R.

tadvidah, brahmavidah. R. Brahman is the principle or the root of a new life both for those who practise works and for those who, having relinquished works, stand firm in knowledge.

2. 'Let me hear what any (of your teachers) may have told you.' 'Jitvan Śailini told me that "speech, verily, is Brahman."
As one who has a mother, father and teacher should say, so did Śailini say that speech is Brahman, for what can one have who cannot speak?' 'But did he tell you the abode and the support (of the Brahman)?' 'He did not tell me.' 'This Brahman is only one-footed, Your Majesty.' 'Verily, Yājñavalkya, do tell us.' 'Its abode is just speech, its support space. One should worship it as intelligence.' 'What is the nature of that intelligence, Yājñavalkya?' 'Just speech, Your Majesty,' said he (Yājñavalkya). 'Verily, by speech, Your Majesty, a friend is recognised. By speech alone, Your Majesty, are the Rg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharvāṅgīrasa, history, ancient lore, arts, the upaniṣads, verses, aphorisms, explanations, commentaries, (the effects of) sacrifices, oblations, food and drink, this world and the other and all beings are known. The higher Brahman, Your Majesty, is, in truth, speech. Speech does not desert him who, knowing thus, worships it as such. All beings approach him. Having become a god he goes even to the gods.' Janaka (King) of Videha said, 'I shall give you a thousand cows with a bull as large as an elephant.' Yājñavalkya said, 'My father thought that one should not accept gifts without having instructed.'

prajñā: intelligence. Vāk is Logos, wisdom.

Vijñāna is discrimination, thought, excogitation. It is logical knowledge which is a preparation for prajñā or intuitive wisdom. Prajñā is the wisdom that sets free, that shatters the bondage of suffering and desire. It is related to the Greek prognosis, knowledge a priori as distinct from saṁjñā or knowledge by observation. Cp. the Buddhist Prajñāpāramitā.

saṁjñā: means for Ś, consciousness of one's personality: viśeṣajñāna:

'But did he tell you the abode and the support?' 'He did not tell me.' 'This Brahman is only one-footed, Your Majesty.' 'Verily, Yājñavalkya, do tell us.' 'Life, verily, is its abode and space its support. Verily, one should worship it as the dear.' 'What is the nature of that dearness, Yājñavalkya?' 'The vital breath itself, Your Majesty,' said he. 'Verily, out of love for life, Your Majesty, one offers sacrifices for him for whom one should not offer sacrifices, one accepts gifts from one from whom they should not be accepted. Out of just love for life, Your Majesty, there arises fear of being in whatever direction one goes. Life is, in truth, Your Majesty, the highest Brahman. Life does not desert him, who, knowing thus, worships it as such. All beings approach him. Having become a god, he goes even to the gods.' Janaka (King) of Videha said, 'I shall give you a thousand cows with a bull as large as an elephant.' 4. 'Let me hear what any one (of your teachers) may have told you.' 'Barku Vārṣṇa told me that the eye, verily, is Brahman. As one who has a mother, father, teacher should say, so did that Vārṣṇa say that the eye, verily, is Brahman for what can one have who cannot see?' 'But did he tell you the abode and the support?' 'He did not tell me.' 'This Brahman is only one-footed, Your Majesty.' 'Verily, Yājñavalkya, do tell us.' 'The eye, verily, is its abode and space its support, verily one should worship it as truth.' 'What is the nature of truth, Yājñavalkya?' 'The eye itself, Your Majesty,' said he (Yājñavalkya). 'Verily, Your Majesty, when they say to a man who sees with his eyes, "have you seen?" and he answers, "I have seen": that is the truth; verily, Your Majesty, the eye is the highest Brahman. The eye does not desert him, who knowing thus, worships it as such. All beings approach him. Having become a god, he goes even to the gods.' Janaka (King) of Videha said, 'I shall give you a thousand cows with a bull as large as an elephant.' Yājñavalkya said, 'My father thought that one should not accept (gifts) without having instructed.'

What is seen with the eye is regarded as more authoritative than what is perceived by the other senses, so it is said to be true: yat tu cakṣuṣā dṛṣṭam tad avyabhicārāt satyam eva bhavati. Ś; cakṣuṣā dṛṣṭam na vismarati. R.

'But did he tell you the abode and the support?' 'He did not tell me.' 'This Brahman is only one-footed, Your Majesty.' 'Verily, Yājñavalkya, do tell us.' 'The heart, verily, is its abode and the space its support. One should worship it as the stable.' 'What is the nature of stability, Yājñavalkya?' 'Just the heart, Your Majesty,' he (Yājñavalkya) said; 'the heart, Your Majesty, is the abode of all things and the heart, Your Majesty, is the support of all beings. On the heart, Your Majesty, all beings are supported. The heart, verily, Your Majesty, is the Supreme Brahman. The heart never deserts him who knowing thus, worships it as such. All beings approach him. Having become a god, he goes even to the gods.' Janaka (King) of Videha said, 'I shall give you a thousand cows with a bull as large as an elephant.' Yājñavalkya said, 'My father thought that one should not accept (gifts) without having instructed.'

Second Brāhmaṇa

CONCERNING THE SOUL

1. janako ha vaidehaḥ kūrcaḍ upāvasarpann uvāca: namas te'stu yājñavalkya, anu mā śādhīti. sa hovāca: yathā vai, samrāt, mahāntam adhvānam eṣyan ratham vā nāvaṁ vā samādadīta, evaṁ evaitābhir upaniṣadbhiḥ samāhitātmāsi, evaṁ bṛndāraka ādhyah sann adhīta-veda ukta-upaniṣatkah, ito vimucyamānaḥ kva gamiṣyasīti. nāhaṁ tad, bhagavan, veda, yatra gamiṣyāmīti; aha vai te'haṁ tad vakṣyāmi, yatra gamiṣyasīti, bravitu, bhagavān, iti.

1. Janaka (King) of Videha, descending from his lounge and approaching said: 'Salutations to you, Yājñavalkya, please instruct me.' He (Yājñavalkya) said: 'As one who wishes to go a long distance, Your Majesty, would secure a chariot or a ship, even so you have a mind well equipped with the teachings of the Upaniṣads. You are likewise honoured and wealthy, you have studied the Vedas and heard the Upaniṣads. Where will you go when you are released (from this body)?' (Janaka said) 'Venerable Sir, I do not know where I shall go.' (Yājñavalkya said) 'Then truly I shall tell you that, where you will go.' (Janaka said) 'Tell me, Venerable Sir.'

kūrcaḍ: from the lounge, āsana-viśeṣāt. Ś.

ādhyah: wealthy, īśvaraḥ, na daridraḥ. Ś.

The theoretical knowledge of the Vedas and the Upaniṣads is not enough, for it does not remove fear. We require knowledge of Self or Brahman for salvation: evaṁ sarva-vibhūti-sampanno'pi sa bhaya-madhyasīha eva paramātmajñānena vinā akṛtārtha eva tāvat. Ś.

2. indho ha vai nāmaiṣa yo'yaṁ dakṣiṇe'kṣaṇ puruṣaḥ: taṁ vā etam indhaṃ santam indra ity ācakṣate parokṣeṇaiva, parokṣa-priyā iva hi devāḥ, pratyakṣa-dviṣaḥ.

2. 'Indha by name is this person who is in the right eye. Him, verily, who is that Indha people call Indra, indirectly, for the gods are fond of the indirect, as it were, they dislike the direct (or the evident).

Indha is the self, identified with the physical self.

3. athaitad vāme'kṣaṇi puruṣa-rūpam, eṣāsya patnī virāj; tayor eṣa samstāvo ya eso'ntar-hṛdaya ākāśaḥ, athainayor etad annam ya eṣo'ntar-hṛdaye lohita-piṇḍaḥ, athainayor etat prāvaranam yad etad antar-hṛdaye jālakam iva; athainayor eṣa sṛtiḥ samcaranī yaiṣā hṛdayād ūrdhvā nāḍy uccarati. yathā keśaḥ sahasradhā bhinnāḥ evam asyaitā hitā nāma nāḍyo'ntar-hṛdaye pratiṣṭhitā bhavanti; etābhir vā etad āsravad āsravati; tasmād eṣa praviviktā-hārātara ivaiva bhavaty āsmāc cārīrād ātmanāḥ.

3. Now that which is in the form of a person in the left eye is his wife Virāj. Their place of union is the space within the heart. Their food is the red (of blood) lump in the heart. Their covering is the net-like structure in the heart. Their path for moving is that channel which goes upward from the heart; like a hair divided a thousandfold, so are the channels called hitā which are established within the heart. Through these flows that which flows on. Therefore that (self composed of Indha and Virāj) is, as it were, an eater of finer food than the bodily self.

Indra is Vaiśvānara and Virāj or matter is said to be his wife, for it is the object of enjoyment, bhogyatvād eva. Ś.

samstāva: place of union, literally the place where they sing praises together, the meeting-place.

sṛtiḥ: path, mārgaḥ. Ś.

The subtle body is nourished by finer food than the gross: tasmāc cārīrād ātmanāḥ vaiśvānarāt taijasaḥ suksmānnopacito bhavati.

In the dream state the self is identified with the subtle body.

4. tasya prācī dik prāñcaḥ prāṇaḥ, dakṣiṇā dig dakṣiṇe prāṇaḥ, pratīcī dik pratyañcaḥ prāṇaḥ, udīcī dig udañcaḥ prāṇaḥ, ūrdhvā dig ūrdhvāḥ prāṇaḥ, avācī dig avāñcaḥ prāṇaḥ; sarvā diśaḥ, sarve prāṇaḥ, sa eṣa neti nety ātmā agrhyaḥ na hi grhyate; aśīryaḥ, na hi śīryate; asaṅgaḥ na hi sajjate; asito na vyathate; na riṣyati abhayaṃ vai, janaka, prāpto'si, iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ. sa hovāca janako vaidehaḥ, abhayaṃ tvā gacchatāt, yājñavalkya, yo naḥ, bhagavan, abhayaṁ vedāyase; namas te'stu; ime videhāḥ ayam aham asmīti.

4. 'Of him the eastern direction is the eastern breaths, the southern direction is the southern breaths, the western direction is the western breaths, the northern direction is the northern breaths, the upper direction is the upper breaths, the lower direction is the lower breaths, all the quarters are all the breaths. But the self is not this, not this. He is incomprehensible for he is never comprehended. He is undestructible for he cannot be destroyed. He is unattached for he does not attach himself. He is unfettered, he does not suffer, he is not injured. Verily, Janaka, you have reached (the state of) fearlessness,' thus said Yājñavalkya. Janaka (King) of Videha said: 'May fearlessness come unto you, Yājñavalkya, to you, Venerable Sir, who make us to know (the state of) fearlessness. Salutations to you. Here are the people of Videha, here am I (at your service).'

See III. 9. 26.

Third Brāhmaṇa

THE LIGHT OF MAN IS THE SELF

1. janakam ha vaideham yājñavalkyo jagāma: sa mene: na vadisya iti. atha ha yaj janakaś ca vaideho yājñavalkyaś cāgnihotre samudāte, tasmai ha yājñavalkyo varam dadau: sa ha kāma-praśnam eva vavre, tam hāsmāi dadau. tam ha samrād eva pūrvah papraccha.

1. Yājñavalkya came to Janaka (King) of Videha. He thought (to himself) 'I will not talk.' But when (once) Janaka (King) of Videha and Yājñavalkya discussed together at an agnihotra ceremony, Yājñavalkya granted the former a boon. He chose to ask any question he wished. He granted it to him. So (now) His Majesty first asked him.

Though Yājñavalkya did not wish to say anything, Janaka asked him a question, for on a former occasion Yājñavalkya permitted Janaka to ask him any questions he liked. See Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. XI. 6. 2. 10.

Sometimes sa mene na vadisya iti is read as sam enena vadisya

iti. Yājñavalkya came to Janaka intending to speak with him. This is only an ingenious conjecture.

2. yājñavalkya, kim-jyotir ayam puruṣa iti. āditya-jyotiḥ, samrāt, iti hovāca, ādityenaivāyaṁ jyotiṣāste, palyayate, karma kurute, vipalyetīti. evam evaitat, yājñavalkya.

2 'What light does a person here have? (What serves as the light for man?)' 'He has the light of the sun, Your Majesty,' he said, 'for with the sun indeed as the light, one sits, moves about, does one's work and returns.' 'Just so, Yājñavalkya.'

3. astam ita āditye, yājñavalkya, kim-jyotir evāyaṁ puruṣa iti. candramā evāsya jyotir bhavati, candramasaivāyaṁ jyotiṣāste, palyayate, karma kurute, vipalyetīti. evam evaitat, yājñavalkya.

3. When the sun has set, Yājñavalkya, what light does a person here have?' 'The moon, indeed, is his light, for with the moon indeed as the light, one sits, moves about, does one's work and returns.' 'Just so, Yājñavalkya.'

4. astam ita āditye, yājñavalkya, candramasy astam ite, kim-jyotir evāyaṁ puruṣa iti. agnir evāsya jyotir bhavati, agni-naivāyaṁ jyotiṣāste, palyayate, karma kurute, vipalyetīti. evam evaitat, yājñavalkya.

4. When the sun has set, Yājñavalkya, and the moon has set, what light does a person here have?' The fire, indeed, is his light, for with the fire, indeed as the light, one sits, moves about, does one's work and returns.' 'Just so, Yājñavalkya.'

5. astam ita āditye, yājñavalkya, candramasi astam ite, śānte agnau, kim-jyotir evāyaṁ puruṣa iti. vāg evāsya jyotir bhavati, vācaivāyaṁ jyotiṣāste, palyayate, karma kurute, vipalyeti, tasmād vai, samrāt, api yatra pāṇir na vinirjñāyate, atha yatra vāg uccarati, upaiva tatra nyetīti. evam evaitat, yājñavalkya.

5. 'When the sun has set, Yājñavalkya, and the moon has set and the fire has gone out, what light does a person here have?' 'Speech, indeed, is his light for with speech, indeed, as the light, one sits, moves about, does one's work and returns. Therefore, Your Majesty, even where one's own hand is not discerned there when speech is uttered one goes towards it.' 'Just so, Yājñavalkya.'

speech: sound, vāg iti śabdaḥ parigrhyate. Ś.

6. astam ita āditye, yājñavalkya, candramasy astam ite, śānte agnau, śāntāyāṁ vāci, kim-jyotir evāyaṁ puruṣa iti. ātmaivāsya jyotir bhavati, ātmanaivāyam jyotiṣāste, palyayate, karma kurute, vipalyeti iti.

6. 'When the sun has set, Yājñavalkya, and the moon has set, and the fire has gone out and speech has stopped, what light does a person here have?' 'The self, indeed, is his light,' said he, 'for with the self, indeed, as the light, one sits, moves about, does one's work and returns.'

¶ This self is present in all the states of waking, dream and sleep. It is the light different from one's body and organs and illumines them though it is itself not illumined by anything else: kārya-karana-svāvayava-saṅghāta-vyatiriktam, kārya-karāṇāvabhāsakam, ādityādi bāhya-jyotiroat svayam anyenānavabhāsyamānam abhidhīyate jyotiḥ. Ś.

THE DIFFERENT STATES OF THE SELF

7. katama ātmeti. yo'yaṁ vijñānamāyaḥ prāṇeṣu, hr̥dy antarjyotiḥ puruṣaḥ, sa samānaḥ sann ubhau lokāu anusañcarati, dhyāyatiṣa lelayatiṣa, sa hi swapno bhūtvā, imaṁ lokam atikrāmati, mṛtyo rūpāni.

7. 'Which is the self?' 'The person here who consists of knowledge among the senses, the light within the heart. He remaining the same, wanders along the two worlds seeming to think, seeming to move about. He on becoming asleep (getting into dream condition), transcends this world and the forms of death.

seeming to think: he does not really think but only witnesses the acts of thought.

seeming to move about: Thought and action do not belong to the real nature of the self. The universal self appears limited on account of the conjunction of the self, with buddhi or understanding, with its modifications of desire and aversion, pleasure and pain. In the state of liberation the connection with understanding terminates. yāvād ayam ātmā saṁsāri bhavati, tāvad eva asya buddhi-samyogaḥ, na tu paramārthataḥ, ātmanaḥ saṁsāritvam buddhi-samyogād iva. S. B. II. 3. 30.

who consists of knowledge. Ś argues that the self is so called because we fail to discriminate its association with the limiting adjunct: buddhi-vijñānopādhi-samparkāvivekāḍ vijñānamāya ity ucyate.

swapno bhūtvā: swapnāvastho bhūtvā. R.

8. sa vā ayam puruṣo jāyamānaḥ, śarīram, abhisampadyamānaḥ pāpmabhiḥ saṁsṛjyate, sa utkrāman, mriyamānaḥ pāpmano vijahāti.

8. 'Verily, this person, when he is born and obtains a body, becomes connected with evils. When he departs, on dying he leaves all evils behind.

evils: sources of good and evil, body and the organs: pāpmasama-vāyibhir dharmādharmāśrayaiḥ kārya-karaṇaiḥ. Ś.
saṁsṛjyate: becomes connected, saṁyujyate. Ś.
vijahāti: leaves behind, parityajati. Ś.

9. tasya vā etasya puruṣasya dve eva sthāne bhavataḥ: idaṁ ca para-loka-sthānaṁ ca; sandhyam tṛtīyam svapna-sthānam; tasmin sandhye sthāne tiṣṭhann, ubhe sthāne paśyati, idaṁ ca paraloka-sthānaṁ ca atha yathākramo'yaṁ para-loka-sthāne bhavati, tam ākramaṁ ākrāmya, ubhayān pāpmana ānandānś ca paśyati. sa yatra prasvapiti, asya lokasya sarvāvato mātṛm apādāya, svayam vihatya, svayam nirmāya, svena bhāsā, svena jyotiṣā prasvapiti; atrāyam puruṣaḥ svayam-jyotir bhavati.

9. 'Verily, there are just two states of this person (the state of being in) this world and the state of being in the other world. There is an intermediate third state, that of being in sleep (dream). By standing in this intermediate state one sees both those states, of being in this world and of being in the other world. Now whatever the way is to the state of being in the other world, having obtained that way one sees both the evils (of this world) and the joys (of the other world). When he goes to sleep he takes along the material of this all-embracing world, himself tears it apart, himself builds it up; he sleeps (dreams) by his own brightness, by his own light. In that state the person becomes self-illuminated.

ākrama: the way, that by which one proceeds, support or outfit. ākramaty anenety ākramaḥ āśrayaḥ, avaṣṭambhaḥ. Ś. He provides himself with whatever knowledge, work and previous experience he may have for the attainment of the next world. para-loka-pratipatti-sādhanaena vidyā-karma pūrva-prajñā-lakṣaṇena yukto bhavati. Ś.
prasvapiti: sleeps, dreams, svapnam anubhavati. R.

10. na tatra rathāḥ, na ratha-yogāḥ, na panthāno bhavanti; atha rathān, ratha-yogān, pathaḥ sṛjate; na tatrānandāḥ, mudāḥ pramudo bhavanti, athānandān, mudāḥ, pramudāḥ sṛjate; na tatra veśāntāḥ puṣkarinyāḥ sravantyo bhavanti; atha veśāntān, puṣkarinīḥ sravantiḥ sṛjate. sa hi kartā.

10. 'There are no chariots there, nor animals to be yoked to them, no roads but he creates (projects from himself) chariots, animals to be yoked to them and roads. There are no joys there, no pleasures, no delights, but he creates joys, pleasures and delights. There are no tanks there, no lotus pools, no rivers, but he creates tanks, lotus-pools and rivers. He, indeed, is the agent (maker or creator).

According to Ś the agency attributed to the self is only figurative. The light of the self, which is pure intelligence, illumines the body and organs through the internal organ and they perform their functions being illumined by it: yac caitanyātma-jyotiḥ-āntaḥkaraṇa-dvāreṇāvabhāsayati kārya-karaṇāni . . . tatra kartṛtvam upacaryata ātmanah.

According to R, the agent is the Supreme Lord, sakala-prapañca-nāṭaka-sūtradhāraḥ sarveśvaraḥ khalu tatra kartā.

II. tad ete ślokā bhavanti:

*svapnena śārīram abhiprahatyāsuptaḥ suptān abhicākaśīti;
śukram ādāya punar aiti sthānam, hiraṇmayāḥ puruṣa eka-hamsaḥ.*

II. 'On this there are the following verses. Having struck down in sleep what belongs to the body, he himself sleepless looks down, on the sleeping (senses). Having taken to himself light he goes again to his place, the golden person, the lonely swan (the one spirit).

While one is in the state of dream, the self makes the body to sleep, but the self remains awake and notices the impressions of the deeds, that have been left upon the mind. By associating himself with the consciousness of the sense-organs, the self causes the body to awake. the golden person: the light that is pure intelligence, hiraṇya-maya iva caitanya-jyotiḥ svabhāvaḥ. Ś.

Sleep is the indispensable condition of physical health and mental sanity. In sound sleep there is a respite from craving and aversions, fears and anxieties. In that state the individual is obscurely at one with the divine ground of all being.

the lonely swan: he moves alone in the waking and dream states, in this world and the next. eko jāgrat svapnehaloka-para-lokāḍin gacchatīti eka-hamsaḥ. Ś. saḥ aham so'ham. 'That I am', hamsa, a swan, the symbol of the spirit of the universe.

12. prāṇena rakṣann avaraṁ kulāyam bahiḥ kulāyād amṛtaḥ caritvā, sa iyate amṛto yatra kāmam, hiraṇ-mayaḥ puruṣa ekahamsaḥ.

12. Guarding his low nest with the vital breath, the immortal moves out of the nest. That immortal one goes wherever he likes, the golden person, the lonely bird.

avaram: low, nikṣṭam. anekāśuci-saṁghātāt vād atyanta-bībhatsam. Ś. kulāyam: nest, nīḍam, śarīram. Ś.

iyate: goes, gacchati. Ś. The eternal self goes wherever he desires.

13. svapnānta uccāvacam iyamāno rūpāni devaḥ kurute bahūni uteva strībhiḥ saha modamānaḥ jakṣat, utevāpi bhayāni paśyan.

13. 'In the state of dream going up and down, the god makes many forms for himself, now as it were enjoying himself in the company of women or laughing or even beholding fearful sights.

svapnānte: in the state of dream, svapna-sthāne. Ś. in the middle of a dream, svapna-madhye, anta-śabdo madhya-vacanaḥ. R.

14. ārāmam asya paśyanti, na taṁ paśyati kaś cana: iti. taṁ nāyatam bodhayed ity āhuḥ; durbhīṣajyam hāsmāi bhavati, yam eṣa na pratīpadyate. atho khalv āhuḥ, jāgarita-dēśa evāsyaiśah; yāni hi eva jāgrat paśyati, tāni supta iti. atrāyam puruṣaḥ svayam-jyotir bhavati. so'ham bhagavate sahasraṁ dadāmi; ata ūrdhvaṁ vimokṣāya brūhīti.

14. 'Everyone sees his sport but himself no one ever sees. Therefore they say that one should not wake him (the sleeping person) suddenly; for it is difficult to cure if he does not get back (rightly to his body). Others, however, say that (the state of sleep) is just his waking state for whatever objects he sees when awake, those too, he sees, when asleep; (not so) for in the dream state the person is self-illuminated.' Janaka said, 'I give you a thousand (cows), Venerable Sir, please instruct me further, for the sake of my liberation.'

himself no one ever sees: everyone is aware of the experiences but no one sees the experiencer; regret is expressed that the self so near to us is yet unperceived by us: yac-chakya-darśanam apy ātmānam taṁ na paśyati, lokam praty anukrośam darśayati śrutiḥ. Ś. one should not wake the sleeping person suddenly: this has reference to the popular belief that the self leaves the body in the dream state. āyatam: sleeping, gāḍha-suptam. R.

To disprove the theory of self-illumination it is said that the state of dream is the same as that of waking as we see in dreams what we see in the waking state. This is wrong because in dreams the senses cease to function; so only the light inherent in the self is active in the dream state.

15. sa vā eṣa etasmin samprasāde ratvā caritvā dṛṣṭvaiva punyam ca pāpaṁ ca, punaḥ pratinyāyam pratiyony ādravati svapnāyaiva; sa yat tatra kiṁ cit paśyati ananvāgatas tena bhavati; asaṅgo hy ayam puruṣa iti. evam evaitat, yājñavalkya. so'ham bhagavate sahasraṁ dadāmi, ata ūrdhvaṁ vimokṣāyaiva brūhīti.

Ś says that svapnānta may also be interpreted as deep sleep suṣupti. The self is unaffected in all the three states of waking, dream and sleep. avasthā-traye'pi, asaṅgatvam ananvāgatatvam cātmanah siddham cet. Ā.

18. 'Even as a large fish moves along both banks of a river, the hither and the further, so also this person moves along both these states, the state of dream (or sleep) and the state of waking.

The self is different from the body and the organs. In the waking state it appears, through ignorance, as connected with attachments and death; in the dream state as connected with desire but free from the forms of death; in the state of deep sleep it is perfectly serene and unattached. The sense of this passage is that the Self is by nature, eternal, free, enlightened and pure. Ś. Even as a large fish moves from one bank of a river to another, so does the self move between dreaming and waking.

THE SELF IN DEEP SLEEP

19. tad yathāsminn ākāśe śyeno vā suparno vā viparipatya śrāntaḥ samhatya pakṣau samlayāyaiva dhriyate, evam evāyam puruṣa etasmā antāya dhāvati yatra na kaṁ cana kāmam kāmāyate, na kaṁ cana svapnam paśyati.

19. 'As a falcon or any other (swift) bird having flown around in the sky becomes weary, folds its wings and is borne down to its nest, even so this person hastens to that state (of self) where he desires no desires and sees no dream.

samlayaḥ: nest. nīḍaḥ. Ś.

The fatigue theory of sleep is suggested here.

20. tā vā asyaitā hitā nāma nādyah, yathā keśaḥ sahasradhā bhinnah, tāvatānimnā tiṣṭhanti, śuklasya, nīlasya, piṅgalasya, haritasya, lohitasya pūrṇāḥ; atha yatraimam ghnatīva, jinantīva, hastīva vicchāyayati, gartam iva patati, yad eva jāgrad bhayam paśyati, tad atrāvidyayā manyate, atha yatra deva iva rājeva; aham evedam, sarvo 'smṛti manyate; so'sya paramo lokah.

20. 'In him, verily, are those channels called hitā, which are as fine as a hair divided a thousandfold and filled with white, blue, yellow, green and red (fluids). Now when (he feels) as if he were being killed, as if he were being overpowered, as if he were pursued by an elephant, as if he were falling into a well, he thinks (imagines) through ignorance whatever fear he has seen (experienced) in the waking state. But when he thinks that he is a god, as it were, that he is a king, as it were, that I am all this, that is his highest world.

hitā: See II. 1. 19; IV. 2. 3. The subtle body is said to be in these channels.

The place where the two selves unite is the heart. They have a path in common. The vein sūṣumnā leads upwards from the heart to the top of the skull. See C.U. VIII. 6. 6. When their union takes place, self-consciousness disappears as well as the distinction between the outer and the inner world. The highest reality, the all-consciousness, free from fear and grief is reached.

Dream states are traced to impressions of waking experiences. Ignorance avidyā is not natural to the self; if so it cannot be removed even as heat and light cannot be removed from the sun: na ātma-dharmo'vidyā na hi svābhāvikaśyocchittih kadācid apy upapadyate savitur ivauṣṇya-prakāśaḥ. Ś.

21. This, verily, is his form which is free from craving, free from evils, free from fear. As a man when in the embrace of his beloved wife knows nothing without or within, so the person when in the embrace of the intelligent self knows nothing without or within. That, verily, is his form in which his desire is fulfilled, in which the self is his desire, in which he is without desire, free from any sorrow.

beyond desires: chandaḥ kāmaḥ atigataḥ chando yasmāt rūpāt tad aticchandaṁ rūpam. Ś.

śokāntaram: free from any sorrow. śoka-varjitam Ś.

The analogy of man and wife is given to show that it is not a state of unconsciousness.

We get on earth to the Kingdom of heaven. In sex intercourse when it is rightly conceived, we have an act of pure delight which is not mere physical satisfaction but a psycho-spiritual communion. The rich deep fulfilment of love between a man and a woman is a condition of earthly beatitude so simple, so natural and so real, that it is the happiest of all earthly conditions and many mystics employ this as the symbol of divine communion. The mystic union of the finite and the divine is compared in this passage to the self-oblivion of earthly lovers where each is the other. It is a fuller identity than the mere sympathetic understanding of two individuals.

In Vaiṣṇava literature the soul pining for union with God is said to be the bride and the divine love which sanctifies, purifies and elevates the soul to itself is said to be the bridegroom.

St. Bernard speaks of the highest contemplation as spiritual marriage which impels the soul to go forth to bear spiritual offspring to the Lord. Richard of St. Victor, St. Bernard's contemporary, dwells upon four phases of spiritual marriage—espousals, marriage, wedlocks, child-bearing. John Ruysbroeck's chief work is called The Adornment of the Spiritual Marriage. St. John of the Cross says: 'The end I have in view is the divine embracing, the union of the soul with the divine substance. In this loving obscure knowledge God unites Himself with the soul eminently and divinely.' Ascent of Carmel. II. 24.

God, for some Sufis, is the Eternal Feminine. The Muslim poet Wali of Delhi composed love poems in which the lover is God and the loved one sought is the human soul invited to unite with God.

22. atra pitā'pitā bhavati, matā'mātā, lokāḥ alokāḥ, devā adevāḥ, vedā avedāḥ; atra steno'steno bhavati bhrūṇahābhrūṇahā, cāṇḍālo'cāṇḍālah, paulkaso'paulkasaḥ, śramaṇo'sramaṇah, tāpas'o'tāpasāḥ, ananvāgataṁ punyena, ananvāgataṁ pāpena, tīrṇo hi tadā sarvān śokān hṛdayasya bhavati.

22. 'There (in that state) a father is not a father, a mother is not a mother, the worlds are not the worlds, the gods are not the gods, the Vedas are not the Vedas. There a thief is not a thief, the murderer is not a murderer, a cāṇḍāla is not a cāṇḍāla, a paulkasa is not a paulkasa, a mendicant is not a mendicant, an ascetic is not an ascetic. He is not followed (affected) by good, he is not followed by evil for then he has passed beyond all the sorrows of the heart.

The state is beyond empirical distinctions, avidyā-kāma-karma-vinirmuktah. Ś.

It exceeds the limitations of caste and stages of life.

bhrūṇahā: murderer of a noble Brāhmaṇa, variṣṭha-brahma-hantā. Ā.

It also refers to one who kills an embryo, one who produces an abortion.

The Self is untouched either by good or by evil and the sorrows of the heart cease to be sorrows and are turned into joy.

23. Verily, when there (in the state of deep sleep) he does not see, he is, verily, seeing, though he does not see for there is no cessation of the seeing of a seer, because of the imperishability (of the seer). There is not, however, a second, nothing else separate from him that he could see.

Even in the state of deep sleep when the eye and the other senses are at rest, the self is the seer, though he does not see with the eyes. The seer can never lose the character of seeing, even as fire cannot lose the character of burning so long as it is fire. The self sees, by its own light, like the sun, even when there is no second, no object but the self that could be seen, the seer is.

31. 'Verily, when there is, as it were, another there one might see the other, one might smell the other, one might taste the other, one might speak to the other, one might hear the other, one might think of the other, one might touch the other, one might know the other

He does not see or smell or taste or speak or hear or think or touch or know, for there is nothing separate from him, there is no second to him; yet he sees, smells, tastes, speaks, hears, thinks, touches, knows for he is one with seeing, smelling, tasting, speaking, hearing, thinking, touching and knowing.

The dying man separates himself from his gross body even as a fruit separates itself from its stalk. He goes back to his new abode the same way he came and there assumes another body in which to begin a new life.

The subjection of the body to old age and disease is mentioned to induce the spirit of renunciation, vairāgyārtham. Ś.

38. Just as policemen, magistrates, chariot-drivers, leaders of the village gather round a king who is departing, even so do all the breaths (or senses) gather round the self at the end, when one is breathing with difficulty (when he is about to die).

Fourth Brāhmaṇa

THE SOUL OF THE UNRELEASED AFTER DEATH

I. sa yatrāyam atmā-abalyam nyetya sammoham iva nyeti, athainam ete prāṇā abhisamāyanti; sa etās tejomātrāḥ sambhīyādadāno hṛdayam evānvavākrāmati, sa yatraiṣa cākṣuṣaḥ puruṣaḥ parāṇ paryāvartate, athārūpaḥ bhavati.

I. 'When this self gets to weakness, gets to confusedness, as it were, then the breaths gather round him. He takes to himself those particles of light and descends into the heart. When the person in the eye turns away, then he becomes non-knowing of forms.

When his body grows weak and he becomes apparently unconscious, the dying man gathers his senses about him, completely withdraws their powers and descends into the heart.

gets to weakness: it is the body that becomes weak. Weakness is figuratively applied to the self, which, being formless, cannot become weak: yad dehasya daurbalyam, tad ātmanā eva daurbalyam ity upacaryate: na hy asau svato' mūrtatvād abala-bhāvaṁ gacchati. Ś.

So also the self does not get confused for it is the eternal self-luminous intelligence, nitya-caitanya-jyotis-svabhāvatvāt. Ś.

At the moment of death the person in the eye, i.e. prāṇa, departs. So one ceases to perceive forms. The dying man becomes single. The principle of intelligence (viññāna) after having absorbed all the functions of consciousness proceeds to continue in a new life.

2. ekī-bhavati, na paśyati, ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati, na jighrati ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati na rasayati, ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati, na vadati, ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati na śṛnoti, ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati, na manute, ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati, na spṛśati, ity āhuḥ; ekī-bhavati, na vijānāti, ity āhuḥ. tasya haitasya hṛdayasyāgram pradyotate, tena pradyotenaiṣa ātmā niṣkrāmati, cakṣuṣo vā mūrdhno vā anyebhyo vā śarīra-deśebhyaḥ; tam utkrāmantam prāṇo'nutkrāmati, prāṇam anūtkrāmantam sarve prāṇā anūtkrāmanti; sa viññāno bhavati, sa viññānam evānvavakrāmati; tam vidyā-karmanī samanvārabhete pūrva-prajñā ca.

2. 'He is becoming one, he does not see, they say; he is becoming one, he does not smell, they say; he is becoming one, he does not taste, they say; he is becoming one, he does not speak, they say; he is becoming one, he does not hear, they say; he is becoming one, he does not think, they say; he is becoming one, he does not touch, they say; he is becoming one, he does not know, they say. The point of his heart becomes lighted up and by that light the self departs either through the eye or through the head or through other apertures of the body. And when he thus departs, life departs after him. And when life thus departs, all the vital breaths depart after it. He becomes one with intelligence. What has intelligence departs with him. His knowledge and his work take hold of him as also his past experience.

Every organ becomes united with the subtle body, lingātman. Ś. pūrva-prajñā: past experience, former intelligence, the results of his past life, pūrvānubhūta-viśaya-prajñā, atīta karma-phalānubhava-vāsanā. Ś. Ś refers to those who are clever in painting though they had no practice in this life and traces their skill to past experience. These impressions of the past, under the control of knowledge and work, stretch out like a leech from the body and build another body in accordance with past work. vidyā-karma-pūrva-vāsanā-lakṣaṇam etat tritayam śākatika sambhāra-sthānīyam para-loka-pātheyam. R.

The individual is born according to the measure of his understanding. Aitareya Āraṇyaka II. 3. 2. See also Praśna IV. 11.

Kālidāsa in his Śākuntalā, Act IV, says that when a being who is

(in all other respects) happy becomes conscious of an ardent longing, when he sees beautiful objects or hears sweet sounds, then in all probability, without being aware of it, he remembers with his mind the friendships of former lives, firmly rooted in his heart.

3. Just as a leech (or caterpillar) when it has come to the end of a blade of grass, after having made another approach (to another blade) draws itself together towards it, so does this self, after having thrown away this body, and dispelled ignorance, after having another approach (to another body) draw itself together (for making the transition to another body).

4. 'And as a goldsmith, taking a piece of gold turns it into another, newer and more beautiful shape, even so does this self, after having thrown away this body and dispelled its ignorance, make unto himself another, newer and more beautiful shape like that of the fathers or of the gandharvas, or of the gods or of Prajā-pati or of Brahmā or of other beings.

goldsmith: peśaḥ suvarṇam, tat karoti peśaskārī. Ś.

another form: samsthāna-viśeṣam, dehāntaram. Ś.

kalyāṇataram: more beautiful. Beauty of form indicates beauty of soul. We cannot have beauty of form with an evil nature.

pāpa-vṛttaye na rūpam: Kālidāsa's Kumāra-sambhava V. 36. Mallinātha cites other passages. Beauty of form and good qualities go together: yatra ākṛtiḥ tatra guṇā bhavanti. Those of good form do not behave in evil ways, na surūpāḥ pāpa-samācārā bhavanti. In Daśa-kumāra-carita, it is said: seyam ākṛtiḥ na vyabhicarati śīlam, such is the form, the character cannot be different.

Beauty is a symbol of the divine. Ānanda, the beloved disciple of the Buddha, said to the Master: 'Half of the holy life, O Lord, is friendship with the beautiful, association with the beautiful, communion with the beautiful.' 'It is not so, Ānanda, it is not so,' said the Master. 'It is not half of the holy life; it is the whole of the holy life.' Samyutta Nikāya. V. 2.

5. 'That self is, indeed, Brahman, consisting of (or identified with) the understanding, mind, life, sight, hearing, earth, water, air, ether, light and no light, desire and absence of desire, anger and absence of anger, righteousness and absence of righteousness and all things. This is what is meant by saying, (it) consists of this (what is perceived), consists of that (what is inferred). According as one acts, according as one behaves, so does he become. The doer of good becomes good, the doer of evil becomes evil. One becomes virtuous by virtuous action, bad by bad action. Others, however, say that a person consists of desires. As is his desire so is his will; as is his will, so is the deed he does, whatever deed he does, that he attains.

deed, being attached to it alone. Exhausting the results of whatever works he did in this world he comes again from that world, to this world for (fresh) work." This (is for) the man who desires. But the man who does not desire, he who is without desire, who is freed from desire, whose desire is satisfied, whose desire is the self; his breaths do not depart. Being Brahman he goes to Brahman.

Desire is the root of empirical existence: saṁsāra-mūla.

The subtle body is called mind because mind is the chief factor of the subtle body. manah pradhānatvāt līngasya mano līngam ity ucyate. Ś.

He who has desires continues subject to rebirth.

The man free from desires realises Brahman even here: sa ca vidvān āpta-kāmaḥ ātma-kāmatayā ihaiva brahmabhūtaḥ. Ś. What the blind need is to receive sight. Sight is not change of place or transporting into another world. One need not wait for the death of the body, na śarīra-pātottara-kālam. Freedom is the cessation of ignorance, avidyā-nivṛtti. 'I give you, Venerable Sir, a thousand cows,' said Janaka (King) of Videha.

See Kaṭha VI. 14.

pratyasta: cast away, pratikṣipta.

anuḥ: narrow, being difficult to comprehend, *sūkṣmaḥ durvijñey-vitataḥ: stretching far away, vistīrṇaḥ vispaṣṭa-taraṇa-hetuvād vā.

V is vitaraḥ. leading across.

The teachers are the path-finders. The Buddha speaks of the ancient way, the wayfarer bound for home 'from which there is no coming back again.' Rūmī attributes to Jesus, the Logos, 'For the true believers I become a bridge across the river.' Mathnawī IV. 10. 70. The Bodhisattva makes of himself a bridge, attānaṁ saṅkamaṁ katvā, by which we cross. Having first crossed over himself, he serves as a bridge for others. 'I am the way.' John XIV. 6. touched by me: found by me, mayā-labdhaḥ. Ś.

Cp. Taittiriya Brāhmaṇa: 'He who makes the self (ātman) his wayfinder is no longer stained by evil action.' III. 12. 9. 8.

Sometimes the verse is interpreted differently. They go beyond the heavenly world. There is a reading to this effect:
tena dhīrā api yanti brahma-vida utkrāmya svargam lokam ito vimuktāḥ.

9. "'On that path they say there is white, blue, yellow, green and red. That path was found by a Brāhmaṇa and by it goes the knower of Brahman, the doer of right and the shining one."

These colours do not affect the path of realisation darśana-mārgasya ca śuklādi-varṇāsambhavāt. These paths belong to the world of empirical existence, na te mokṣa-mārgāḥ, saṁsāra-viśaya eva hi te. Ś. brāhmaṇā: by a Brāhmaṇa. *parātma-svarūpeṇaiva brāhmaṇena tyakthe doer of right: Ś finds it difficult to uphold his view that spiritual wisdom and practical activity are incompatible. He cites a number of passages from M.B., which support his view:

apunya-puṇyo paramēyam punar-bhava-nirbhayāḥ śāntas samñyāsino yānti tasmai mokṣātmane namaḥ. XII. 46. 56.

'Salutation to that embodiment of liberation whom serene monks, fearless about rebirth, attain after the cessation of the effects of their good and bad deeds.'

'For a knower of Brahman, there is no wealth comparable to the sense of oneness, the sense of equality, truthfulness, virtue, steadfastness, non-injury, integrity and withdrawal from all activities.'

That the knowers of Brahman are doers of good is said by way of eulogy. This view of Ś is not the obvious meaning of the text which seems to suggest jñāna-karma-samuccaya.

The Eternal may be realised even while we live in the ephemeral body. To fail to realise him is to live in ignorance, to be subject to birth and death. The knowers of Brahman are immortal; others continue in the region of sorrow.

Cp. the words in the Homeric hymn to Demeter written about the beginning of the sixth century B.C. in Attica: 'Blessed among men who dwell on earth is he who has seen these things; but he who is uninitiated and has no part in the rites has never an equal lot when he has died and passed beneath the dank darkness.' Lines 480 ff. Plutarch quotes from Sophocles: 'Thrice blessed are those mortals who have seen these mysteries before they come to Hades, for to them alone is granted true life. 22. Verily, he is the great unborn Self who is this (person) consisting of knowledge among the senses. In the space within the heart lies the controller of all, the lord of all, the ruler of all. He does not become greater by good works nor smaller by evil works. He is the bridge that serves as the boundary to keep the different worlds apart. Him the Brāhmaṇas seek to know by the study of the Veda, by sacrifices, by gifts, by penance, by fasting. On knowing Him, in truth, one becomes an ascetic. Desiring Him only as their worlds, monks wander forth. Verily, because they know this, the ancient (sages) did not wish for offspring. What shall we do with offspring (they said), we who have attained this Self, this world. They, having risen above the desire for sons, the desire for wealth, the desire for worlds, led the life of a mendicant. For the desire for sons is the desire for wealth and the desire for wealth is the desire for worlds; both these are, indeed, desires only. This Self is (that which has been described as) not this, not this. He is incomprehensible for He is never comprehended. He is indestructible for He cannot be destroyed. He is unattached for He does not attach himself. He is unfettered, He does not suffer, He is not injured. Him (who knows this) these two (thoughts) do not overcome, for some reason he has done evil or for some reason he has done good. He overcomes both. What he has done or what he has not done does not burn (affect) him.

See III. 5. 1; III. 9. 26; IV. 2. 4.

setu: bridge. Agni (Fire) is spoken of as bridge: tvan nas tantur uta setur agne: Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa. II. 4. 2. 6. Agni becomes the path of deva-yāna.

Ceremonial observances are treated as means for purification. See B.G. XVIII. 5.

Fasting is restraint, not abstinence, not starvation which will mean death: kāmānaśanam anāśakam, na tu bhojana-nivṛttiḥ bhojana-nivṛttau mriyata eva. Ś.

The monastic orders which developed in Buddhism and Jainism are forecast here.

23. This very (doctrine) has been expressed in the hymn. This eternal greatness of the knower of Brahman is not increased by work nor diminished. One should know the nature of that alone. Having found that, one is not tainted by evil action. Therefore he who knows it as such, having become calm, self-controlled, withdrawn, patient and collected sees the Self in his own self, sees all in the Self. Evil does not overcome him, he overcomes all evil. Evil does not burn (affect) him, he burns (consumes) all evil. Free from evil, free from taint, free from doubt he becomes a knower of Brahmā. This is the world of Brahmā, Your Majesty, you have attained it, said Yājñavalkya. Janaka (King) of Videha said, 'Venerable Sir, I give you the (empire of) Videhas and myself also to serve you.'

pada-vit: he who knows the nature: padasya vettā, padyate gamyate jñāyata iti mahimnas-svarūpam eva padam. Ś.

1. Now then, Yājñavalkya had two wives, Maitreyī and Kātyaṇi. Of these (two) Maitreyī was a discourser on Brahma-knowledge, while Kātyaṇi possessed only such knowledge as women have. Now then, Yājñavalkya when he wished to get ready for another mode of life—

Ś holds that in this dialogue between Yājñavalkya and Maitreyī, logical argument is advanced in support of scriptural statements: tarka-pradhānam hi yājñavalkyīyaṁ kāṇḍam. discourser on Brahma-knowledge: brahma-vadana-śīlā. Ś.

2. maitreyi, iti hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, pravrajīṣyan vā are'ham asmāt sthānād asmi; hanta te' nayā kātyaṇyāntam karavānīti.

2. 'Maitreyi,' said Yājñavalkya, 'lo, verily, I am getting away from this state (into the forest). Forsooth, let me make a settlement for you and that Kātyaṇi,

3. sā hovāca maitreyī: yan nu ma iyam, bhagoḥ, sarvā pṛthivī vittena pūrṇā syāt, syām nu aham tenāmṛtā: āho na iti, na iti, hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ; yathaiṣopakaraṇavatām jīvitam, tathaiṣa te jīvitam syāt; amṛtatvasya tu nāśāsti vitteneti.

3. Then said Maitreyī: 'My Lord, if, indeed, this whole earth filled with wealth were mine, do I become immortal by it or not?' 'No,' replied Yājñavalkya. 'As the life of people who have plenty of things will your life be, but there is no hope of immortality through wealth.'

4. sā hovāca maitreyī: yenāhaṁ nāmṛtā syām, kim ahaṁ tena kuryām. yad eva bhagavān veda, tad eva me brūhīti.

4. Then Maitreyī said: 'What shall I do with that by which I do not become immortal? What you know (of the way to immortality), Venerable Sir, that, indeed explain to me.'

5. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ: priyā vai khalu no bhavatī satī priyam avṛdhat. hanta tarhi, bhavati, etad vyākhyāsyāmi te, vyācakṣāṇasya tu me nididhyāsasveti.

5. Then Yājñavalkya said: 'You have been truly dear to me (even before), now you have increased your dearness. Therefore, if you wish, my dear, I will explain it to you. As I am expounding to you, seek to meditate on it.'

priyaiva pūrvam khalu naḥ, asmabhyam bhavatī, bhavanti satī priyam evāvṛdhat, vardhitavati, nirdhāritavaty asi. Ś.

6. Then, he (Yājñavalkya) said: 'Verily, not for the sake of the husband is the husband dear but for the sake of the Self

11. As from a fire kindled with damp fuel various kinds of smoke issue forth, so, verily, from this great being has been breathed forth that which is the Ṛg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the hymns of the Atharvans and the Āngīrasas, legend, ancient lore, sciences, sacred teachings, verses, aphorisms, explanations, commentaries, sacrifice, oblation, food, drink, this world and the other and all beings. 13. 'As a mass of salt is without inside, without outside, is altogether a mass of taste, even so, verily, is this Self without inside, without outside, altogether a mass of intelligence only. Having arisen out of these elements (the Self) vanishes again in them. When he has departed there is no more (separate or particular) consciousness. Thus, verily, say I', said Yājñavalkya.

Particular consciousness is due to association with elements; when this association is dissolved through knowledge, knowledge of oneness is obtained and particular consciousness disappears.

14. sā hovāca maitreyī: atraiva mā bhagavān mohāntam āpīpāt; na vā aham imam vijānāmīti. sa hovāca; na vā are'ham moham bravīmi, avināśī vā are'yam ātmā, an-ucchitti-dharmā.

14. Then Maitreyī said: 'Here, indeed, Venerable Sir, you have caused me to reach utter bewilderment. Indeed, I do not at all understand this (the Self).' He replied, 'I do not say anything bewildering. This Self, verily, is imperishable and of indestructible nature.

15. 'For where there is duality as it were, there one sees the other, one smells the other, one tastes the other, one speaks to the other, one hears the other, one thinks of the other, one touches the other, one knows the other. But where everything has become just one's own self, by what and whom should one see, by what and whom should one smell, by what and whom should one taste, by what and to whom should one speak, by what and whom should one hear, by what and of whom should one think, by what and whom should one touch, by what and whom should one know? By what should one know him by whom all this is known? That self is (to be described as) not this, not this. He is incomprehensible for he cannot be comprehended. He is indestructible for He cannot be destroyed. He is unattached for He does not attach himself. He is unfettered, He does not suffer, He is not injured. Indeed, by what would one know the knower? Thus you have the instruction given to you, O Maitreyī. Such, verily, is life eternal.' Having said this, Yājñavalkya went away (into the forest).

See III. 9. 26; IV. 2. 4; IV. 4. 22.

vijahāra: went into the forest, pravrajitavān. Ś. by what would one know the knower? The suggestion is that the knower cannot be known in the usual way. He can only be experienced.

Ś makes out that all the four chapters had the one end in view, knowledge of Brahman culminating in renunciation: brahma-vidyā samnyāsa-paryavasānā, etāvān upadeśa, etad vedānuśāsanam, eṣā parama-niṣṭhā, eṣa puruṣārtha-kartavyatānta iti. Ś.

This is the instruction, this is the teaching of the Vedas, this is the ultimate goal, this is the end of man's effort to achieve his highest good.

Different views are expressed according to the B.S., about the relation of the individual and the universal Self. Āśmarathya holds that the unity of the two is emphasised to indicate that when the Universal Self is seen all else is seen. I. 4. 20. Auḍulomi thinks that the identity taught here refers to the state which the individual finally attains when he is released from all limitations. I. 4. 21. Kāśakṛtsna holds that the identity is taught because the individual is the form in which the Universal exists. I. 4. 22.

CHAPTER V

First Brāhmaṇa

BRAHMAN THE INEXHAUSTIBLE

1. pūrṇam adah, pūrṇam idam, pūrṇāt pūrṇam udacyate pūrṇasya pūrṇam ādāya pūrṇam evāvaśiṣyate.

Aum kham brahma, kham purāṇam, vāyuram kham, iti ha smāha kauravyāyaṇī-putrah, vedo'yam brāhmaṇā viduḥ, vedainaena yaḍ veditavyam.

1. That is full, this is full. From fullness fullness proceeds. If we take away the fullness of fullness, even fullness then remains. (The syllable) Aum is Brahman (who) is the ether, the primeval ether, the ether that blows. Thus, verily, the son of Kauravyāyaṇī used to say. This is the Veda which the knowers of Brahman know; through it one knows what is to be known.

that is full: the reference is to the Absolute.

this is full: the reference is to the manifested world presided over by the Personal Lord.

While this world in infinite, it has its roots in the Absolute. The manifestation of this world does not take away from the fullness or integrity of the Absolute.

veda: the knowledge by which whatever is to be known is known, vi-jānāty anena yaḍ veditavyam tasmād vedaḥ. Ś.

Second Brāhmaṇa

THE THREE PRINCIPAL VIRTUES

1. trayāḥ prajāpatiṣṭhāḥ prajāpatau pitari brahma-caryam ūsuh, devā manusyā asurāḥ, uṣitvā brahmacaryam devā ūcuḥ; bravītu no bhavān iti; tebhyo haitad akṣaram uvāca; da iti, vyajñāsiṣṭā iti; vyajñāsiṣma iti hocuḥ, dāmyata, iti na āttheti, aum iti hovāca, vyajñāsiṣṭeti.

1. The threefold offspring of Prajā-pati, gods, men and demons, lived with their father Prajā-pati as students of sacred knowledge. Having completed their studentship the gods said, 'Please tell (instruct) us, sir.' To them then, he uttered the syllable da (and asked) 'Have you understood?' They (said) 'We have understood, you said to us "dāmyata," "control yourselves".' He said, 'Yes, you have understood.'

The gods are said to be naturally unruly and so are asked to practise self-control. adāntā yūyam svabhāvataḥ ato dāntā bhavateṭi. Ś. ūcuḥ: usitavantaḥ. R. aum: yes, samyak. Ś, anujñām eva vibhajate. Ā, satyam. R.

2. atha hainam manuṣyā ūcuḥ: bravītu no bhavān iti; tebhyo haitad evākṣaram uvāca; da iti; vyajñāsiṣṭā iti, vyajñāsiṣma iti hocuḥ, datta iti na āttheti; aum iti hovāca vyajñāsiṣṭeti.

2. Then the men said to him, 'Please tell (instruct) us, sir.' To them he uttered the same syllable da (and asked) 'Have you understood?' They said, 'We have understood. You said to us "give".' He said, 'Yes, you have understood.'

Men are naturally avaricious and so they should distribute their wealth to the best of their ability.
svabhāvato lubdhā yūyam, ato yathāśaktyā sarvavibhajata. Ś.

3. Then the demons said to him, 'Please tell (instruct) us, sir.' To them he uttered the same syllable da and asked, 'Have you understood?' They said, 'We have understood, you said to us, "dayadhvam," "be compassionate." He said, 'Yes, you have understood.' This very thing the heavenly voice of thunder repeats da, da, da, that is, control yourselves, give, be compassionate. One should practise this same triad, self-control, giving and compassion.

The demons are cruel, given to inflicting injury on others, they should have compassion and be kind to all: krūrā yūyam himsādi-parāḥ, ato dayadhvam prāṇiṣu dayām kuruteṭi. Ś.

It is suggested that there are no gods or demons other than men. If they are lacking in self-control while endowed with other good qualities, they are gods; if they are particularly greedy they are men; if they are cruel and given to inflicting injury on others, they are demons. Men themselves are distinguished into these three classes according to their lack of self-control and the possession of other defects or according to the tendencies of the three guṇas.

na devā asurā vā' nre kecana vidyante manuṣyebhyaḥ. manuṣyānām evādāntā ye 'nyair uttamair guṇais sampannāḥ, te devāḥ; lobha-pradhānā manuṣyāḥ, tathā himsāparāḥ krūrāḥ asurāḥ. ta eva manuṣyā adāntatvādi-doṣa-trayam apekṣya devādi-śabda-bhājo bhavanti, itarāms ca guṇān sattva-rajas-tamānsy apeksya ato manuṣyair eva hi śikṣitavyam etat trayam iti. Ś.

See B.G. XVI. 21.

Cp. Yājñavalkya Smṛti. I. 4. 122.

ahimsā satyam āsteyam śaucam indriya-nigrahaḥ dānam damo dayā śāntiḥ sarveśām.

Gautama the Buddha is described as the embodiment of compassion, karuṇā, and non-injury, ahimsā. Mātṛceta in his Śata-pañcaśatka says:

kaṁ nu prathamato vande tvām mahā-karuṇām uta yayaivam api doṣajñās tvam samsāre dhṛtas cīram.

Which shall I first extol, you or the great compassion by which you are held so long in saṁsāra, though knowing its faults so well? 59.

viruddheṣu api vātsalyam pravṛttiḥ patiteṣvapi raudreṣu api kṛpālulvam kā nāmeyam tavāryatā.

You have affection even for the hostile, benevolence even to the fallen, tenderness even to the cruel, wonderful is your greatness. 105.

akroṣtāro jītaḥ kṣāntiā drugdhāḥ svastyanena ca, satyena capavaktāras trayā māitryā jīghāmsavaḥ.

You overcame the revilers by forbearance, the malicious by blessing, the slanderers by truth, the wicked by kindness. 122.

The three injunctions require us to go about doing good even though we find ourselves in a world of evil. Self-control is necessary for we must not be elated by success or deterred by failure. Dayā or compassion is more than sympathy or intellectual and emotional feeling. It is love in action, fellowship in suffering. It is feeling as one's own the circumstances and aspirations to self-perfection which we find in others. The practice of these virtues will preserve, promote and enhance the values of life.

Third Brāhmaṇa

BRAHMAN AS THE HEART

I. eṣa prajā-patir yad hṛdayam, etad brahma, etat sarvam. tad etat try-akṣaram; hṛ-da-yam iti. hṛ ity ekam akṣaram; abhiharanty asmai svāś cānye ca, ya evam veda; da ity ekam akṣaram, dadatyasmai svāś cānye ca ya evam veda; yam, ity ekam akṣaram; eti svargam lokam ya evam veda.

I. This is Prajā-pati (the same as) this heart. It is Brahman. It is all. It has three syllables, hṛ, da, yam. Hṛ is one syllable. His own people and others bring (presents) to him who knows this. Da is one syllable. His own people and others give to him who knows this. Yam is one syllable. He who knows this goes to the heavenly world.

hrdayam: heart, that is the seat of intelligence, hrdayasthā buddhir ucyate. Ś.

Fourth Brāhmaṇa

BRAHMAN AS THE TRUE OR THE REAL

1. tad vai tat, etad eva tad āsa, satyam eva. sa yo haṭṭan mahad yakṣam prathamajam veda; satyam brahmeti, jayati māml lokān: jita in nv asāv asat, ya evam etan mahad yakṣam prathamajam veda; satyam brahmeti. satyam hy eva brahma.

1. This, verily, is that. This indeed was that, the true. He who knows that wonderful being, the first born as the Brahman, conquers these worlds, and conquered likewise may that (enemy) be and become non-existent he (for him) who knows that wonderful being, the first born as the true Brahman.

satya: the true, the real, sat and tyat, the formed and the formless elements.

jita: conquered, vaśikṛta. Ś. and R.

asau: of the enemy, śatrur upāsakasya. R.

Fifth Brāhmaṇa

THE REAL EXPLAINED

1. āpa evedam agra āsuh, tā āpaḥ satyam asṛjanta, satyam brahma, brahma prajāpatim, prajāpatir devān. te devāḥ satyam evopāsate, tad etat try-akṣaram: sa-ti-yam iti. sa ity ekam akṣaram; ti ity ekam akṣaram, yam iti ekam akṣaram: prathama uttame akṣare satyam, madhyato'ṇṛtam; tad etad aṇṛtam ubhayataḥ satyena pariḡrhitam satyabhūyam eva bhavati. naivam vidvāmsam aṇṛtam hinasti.

1. In the beginning this universe was just water. That water produced the true (or the real), Brahman is the true. Brahman (produced) Prajā-pati and Prajā-pati (produced) the gods. Those gods meditated on the real. That consists of three syllables, sa, ti, yam: sa is one syllable, ti is one syllable, and yam is one syllable. The first and the last syllables are the truth; in the middle is untruth. This untruth is enclosed on both sides by truth; it partakes of the nature of truth itself. Him who knows this, untruth does not injure.

Water is the seed of the universe and in the beginning it is in an undifferentiated form: āpo bīja-bhūtā jagato vyākṛtātmanā 'vas-thitāḥ. Ś.

In commenting on Thales' choice of water as the first principle, Aristotle suggests that 'he got the notion perhaps from seeing that the nutriment of all things is moist, and that heat itself is generated by the moist and kept alive by it . . . and that the seed of all creatures has a moist nature, and water is the origin of the nature of moist things.' See W. K. C. Guthrie: The Greeks and their Gods (1950), p. 134.

There is a play on the letter. sa and ya have nothing in common with mṛtyu and anṛta whereas t occurs in the syllable tī. Untruth leads to death.

2. tad yat tat satyam asau sa ādityaḥ. ya eṣa etasmin maṇḍale puruṣo yaś cāyaṁ dakṣiṇe'kṣaṇ puruṣaḥ. tāv etāv anyo'nyasmin pratiṣṭhitau; raśmibhir eṣo'smin pratiṣṭhitaḥ prāṇair ayam amuṣmin, sa yadotkramiṣyan bhavati. śuddham evaitan maṇḍalam paśyati. nainam ete raśmayāḥ pratyāyanti.

2. Now what is the true that is the yonder sun. The person who is there in that orb and the person who is here in the right eye, these two rest on each other. Through his rays that one rests in this one; through the vital breaths this one on that. When one is about to depart, he sees that orb as clear. Those rays no more come to him.

śuddham: clear, raśmi-pratiṣṭhāta-rahitam. R.

3. ya eṣa etasmin maṇḍale puruṣaḥ, tasya bhūr iti śiraḥ; ekam śiraḥ, ekam etad akṣaram; bhuva iti bāhū; dvau bāhū, dve ete akṣare; svar iti pratiṣṭhā; dve prathisthe dve ete akṣare. tasyopaniṣad ahar iti; hanti pāpmānam jahāti ca, ya evaṁ veda.

3. Of the person in that orb, the syllable bhūh is the head; for the head is one and this syllable is one. Bhuvaḥ is the arms. There are two arms and these are two syllables. Svaḥ is the feet. There are two feet and these are two syllables. His secret name is day. He who knows this destroys evil and leaves it behind.

pratiṣṭhā: feet, pāda. R.

upaniṣat: secret name, rahasya-nāma. R.

4. yo'yam dakṣiṇe'kṣan puruṣaḥ, tasya bhūr iti śiraḥ, ekam śiraḥ, ekam etad akṣaram; bhuva iti bāhū; dvau bāhū, dve ete akṣare; svar iti pratiṣṭhā; dve pratiṣṭhe, dve ete akṣare. tasyo-paniṣad aham iti; hanti pāpmānaṁ jahāti ca ya evaṁ veda.

4. Of this person who is in the right eye, the syllable bhūh is the head. The head is one and the syllable is one. Bhuvaḥ is the arms. There are two arms and these are two syllables. Svaḥ is the feet. There are two feet and these are two syllables. His secret name is 'I.' He who knows this destroys evil and leaves it behind.

In some cosmogonic hymns Satyam or Skambha is represented as turned upside down, his head being bhūh, his arms bhuvas and his feet svaḥ.

Sixth Brāhmaṇa

THE PERSON

1. manomayo'yam puruṣaḥ, bhāḥ satyaḥ tasminn antar-hṛdaye yathā vrīhir vā yāvo vā. sa eṣa sarvasyeśanaḥ, sarvasyādhipatiḥ, sarvam idam praśāsti yad idam kim ca.

1. This person who consists of mind is of the nature of light, is within the heart like a grain of rice or of barley. He is the ruler of all, the lord of all and governs all this whatever there is.

of the nature of light: bhā eva satyam, sad-bhāvaḥ, svarūpam yasya so'yam bhāḥ satyaḥ, bhāsvaraḥ. Ś.

By meditating on Brahman in the form of mind, we attain identity with Him as such, for one becomes what one meditates on: taṁ yathā yathopāsate tad eva bhavati. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. X. V. 2. 20.

Seventh Brāhmaṇa

BRAHMAN AS LIGHTNING

1. vidyud brahma ity āhuḥ; vidānād vidyut, vidyaty enam pāpmanah, ya evaṁ veda, vidyud brahmeti, vidyud hy eva brahma.

1. Lightning is Brahman, they say. It is called lightning because it scatters (darkness). He who knows it as such that lightning is Brahman, scatters evils (that are ranged against him), for lightning is, indeed, Brahman.

scatters: destroys, avakhaṇḍayati, vināśayati. Lightning cuts through the darkness of clouds as the knowledge of Brahman cuts through the darkness of ignorance and evil.

Eighth Brāhmaṇa

SPEECH SYMBOLISED AS A COW

I. vācam dhenum upāsita. tasyāś catvāraḥ stanāḥ; svāhā-kāro vaṣaṭ-kāro hanta-kāraḥ svadhā-kāraḥ; tasyai dvau stanau devā upajīvanti, svāhā-kāraṁ ca, vaṣaṭ-kāraṁ ca; hanta-kāraṁ manu-ṣyāḥ, svadhā-kāraṁ pitarāḥ. tasyāḥ prāṇa ṛṣabhaḥ, mano vatsaḥ.

I. One should meditate on speech as a milch cow. She has four udders which are the sounds, svāhā, vaṣaṭ, hanta and svadhā. The gods live on two of her udders, the sounds svāhā and vaṣaṭ; men on the sound hanta, and the fathers on the sound svadhā. The vital breath is her bull, and mind the calf.

Ninth Brāhmaṇa

THE UNIVERSAL FIRE

I. āyam agnir vaiśvānaro yo'yam antaḥ puruṣe, yenedam annam pacyate yad idam adyate; tasyaiṣa ghoṣo bhavati yam etat karnāv apidhāya śṛṇoti, sa yadotkramiṣyan bhavati, nainam ghoṣam śṛṇoti.

I. This fire which is here within a person is the Vaiśvānara (the universal fire) by means of which the food that is eaten is cooked (digested). It is the sound thereof that one hears by covering the ears thus. When one is about to depart (from this life) one does not hear this sound.

thus: by closing with the fingers, aṅgulibhyām apidhānam kṛtvā. Ś.

Tenth Brāhmaṇa

1. yadā vai puruṣo'smāl lokāt praiti, sa vāyūm āgacchati; tasmai sa tatra vijihīte yathā ratha-cakrasya kham; tena sa ūrdhva ākramate, sa ādityam āgacchati; tasmai sa tatra vijihīte yathā lambarasya kham; tena sa ūrdhva ākramate, sa candramasam āgacchati, tasmai sa tatra vijihīte yathā dundubheḥ kham; tena sa ūrdhva ākramate. sa lokam āgacchaty aśokam ahimam; tasmin vasati śāśvatīḥ samāḥ.

1. Verily, when a person departs from this world, he goes to the air. It opens out there for him like the hole of a chariot wheel. Through that he goes upwards. He goes to the sun. It opens out there for him like the hole of a lambara. Through that he goes upwards. He reaches the moon. It opens out there for him like the hole of a drum. Through that he goes upwards. He goes to the world free from grief, free from snow. There he dwells eternal years.

lambara: a kind of musical instrument, vāditra-viśeṣa. Ś.

aśokam: free from grief, free from mental troubles. mānasa duḥkkena vivarjitam. Ś.

ahimam: free from snow, free from physical sufferings, śarīra-duḥkha-varjitam. Ś.

eternal years: He lives there during the lifetime of Hiranya-garbha: anantān samvatsarān. R.

Eleventh Brāhmaṇa

THE SUPREME AUSTERITIES

1. etad vai paramam tapo yad vyāhitas tapyate; paramam haiva lokam jayati, ya evam veda; etad vai paramam tapo yam pretam aranyam haranti; paramam haiva lokam jayati, ya evam veda etad vai paramam tapo yam pretam agnāv abhyādadhati. paramam haiva lokam jayati, ya evam veda.

1. Verily, this is the supreme austerity which a man laid up with illness suffers. He who knows this wins the supreme world. Verily, this is the supreme austerity when they carry a dead person into the forest. He who knows this wins the supreme world. Verily, this is the supreme austerity when they lay a dead person on the fire. He who knows this wins the supreme world.

laid up with illness: vyāthitah, jvarādi-parigrhītas san. Ś.

Suffering is to be endured. We do not condemn it, anindato 'viśīdatah. sa eṣa ca tena vijñāna-tapasā dagdha-kilbiṣaḥ. Ś.

Retirement to the forest from the village is also an austerity, grāmād aranya-gamanam paramam tapa iti hi prasiddham. Ś.

Twelfth Brāhmaṇa

I. annam brahma ity eka āhuḥ, tan na tathā, pūyati vā annam ṛte prāṇāt; prāṇo brahma ity eka āhuḥ, tan na tathā, śuśyati vai prāṇa ṛte'nnāt, ete ha tv eva devate, ekadhābhūyam bhūtvā, paramatām gacchataḥ tadd ha smāha prātrdaḥ pitarām, kim svid evaivam viduṣe sādhu kuryām, kim evāsmā asādhu kuryām iti. sa ha smāha pāninā: mā prātrda, kas tv enayor ekadhā bhūyam bhūtvā paramatām gacchatīti. tasmā u haitad uvāca; vi, iti; annam vai vi; anne hīmāni sarvāṇi bhūtāni viṣṭāni; ram iti, prāṇo vai ram, prāṇe hīmāni sarvāṇi bhūtāni ramante; sarvāṇi ha vā asmin bhūtāni viśanti, sarvāṇi bhūtāni ramante, ya evam veda.

I. 'Brahman is food' say some. This is not so, for, verily, food becomes putrid without life. 'Life is Brahman' say some. This is not so, for life dries up without food. But these two deities when they become united attain their highest state. So Prātrda said to his father: 'What good, indeed, can I do to one who knows this, or what evil, indeed, can I do to him?' The father said to him with (a gesture of) his hand, 'Oh, no, Prātrda, who attains the highest state (merely) by entering into unity with these two?' Then he said to him this. 'This is vi. Food is vi, for all these beings rest in food. This is ram. The vital breath is ram, for all these beings delight in life. Verily, indeed, all beings enter into him, all beings delight in him who knows this.'

The mutual dependence of life and matter, prāṇa and anna, is brought out.

Thirteenth Brāhmaṇa

MEDITATION ON LIFE-BREATH

I. uktham. prāṇo vā uktham, prāṇo hīdam sarvam utthāpayati. uddhāsmād uktha-vid vīras tiṣṭhati, ukthasya sāyujyam salokatām jayati, ya evam veda.

1. The uktha. The life breath, verily, is the uktha for it is the life breath that raises up all this. From him there rises up a son who knows the uktha. He who knows this wins union with and abode in the same world as the uktha.

uktha: a hymn of praise, śaṣṭram. Ś. One should meditate on the life-breath as the uktha.

For uktha as the principal part of the mahā-vrata sacrifice, see Aitareya Āraṇyaka II. 1. 2 and K.U. III. 3.

No man without life ever rises: na hy aprāṇaḥ kaścid uttiṣṭhati. Ś.

2. yajuh. prāṇo vai yajuh, prāṇe hīmāni sarvāṇi bhūtāni yujyante; yujyante hāsmāi sarvāṇi bhūtāni śraīṣṭhyāya. yajuṣaḥ sāyujyaṁ salokatām jayati, ya evaṁ veda.

2. The Yajus: The life-breath, verily, is the yajus for in life-breath are all beings here united. United, indeed, are all beings for (securing) his eminence. He who knows this wins union with and abode in the same world as the Yajus.

One should meditate on the life-breath as the yajus. It is the name of one of the Vedas, but here is used for the principle of union. No one without life has the strength to unite with another: na hy asati prāṇe kenacit kasyacid yoga-sāmarthyam. Ś.

3. sāma. prāṇo vai sāma, prāṇe hīmāni sarvāṇi bhūtāni samyañci; samyañci hāsmāi sarvāṇi bhūtāni śraīṣṭhyāya kalpante. sāmnah sāyujyaṁ salokatām jayati, ya evaṁ veda.

3. The Sāman: The life-breath, verily, is the sāman for in life do all these beings meet. All beings here meet for securing his eminence. He who knows this wins union with and abode in the same world as the Sāman.

kalpante: samarthyante. Ś.

4. kṣatram. prāṇo vai kṣatram. prāṇo hi vai kṣatram; trāyate hainam prāṇaḥ kṣanitoḥ. pra kṣatram atram āpnoti. kṣatrasya sāyujyaṁ salokatām jayati, ya evaṁ veda.

4. The Kṣatra: The life-breath, verily, is the rule, for verily, life-breath is rule. The life-breath protects one from being hurt. He attains a rule that needs no protection. He who knows this wins union with and abode in the same world as the Kṣatra.

kṣanitoḥ: Life protects the body from wounds. It has the property of self-repair. śaṣṭrādi-himsitāt punar māmsenāpūrayati yasmāt. Ś.
kṣatram atram: V kṣatramātram, obtains identity with the kṣatra or becomes the life-breath, prāṇo bhavati. Ś.

Fourteenth Brāhmaṇa

THE SACRED GĀYATRĪ PRAYER

1. bhūmir antarikṣam dyaauh ity aṣṭāv akṣarāni; aṣṭākṣaram ha vā ekaṁ gāyatrīyai padam, etad u haivāsyā etat, sa yāvad eṣu triṣu lokeṣu, tāvadāha jayati, yo'syā etad evam padam veda.

1. The earth, the sky and heaven (make) eight syllables. Of eight syllables, verily, is one foot (line) of the Gāyatrī. This (one foot) of it is that. He who knows the foot of the Gāyatrī to be such wins as far as the three worlds extend.

The Gāyatrī (or Sāvitrī) is a sacred verse of the R.V. It reads:—tat savitūṛ vareṇyam, bhargo devasya dhīmahi, dhiyo yo naḥ prachodayāt: 'We meditate on the adorable glory of the radiant sun; may he inspire our intelligence,' III. 57. 10. There is a metre called Gāyatrī which has three feet of eight syllables each. The Gāyatrī verse is in this metre.

2. ṛco yajūmṣi sāmāni, ity aṣṭāv akṣarāni; aṣṭākṣaram ha vā ekaṁ gāyatrīyai padam. etad u haivāsyā etat. sa yāvatīyam trayī vidyā, tāvad ha jayati, yo'syā etad evam padam veda.

2. Ṛcaḥ (verses) Yajūmṣi (sacrificial formulas) Sāmāni (chants) (make) eight syllables. Of eight syllables, verily, is one foot of the Gāyatrī. This (one foot of it) is that (series). He who knows the foot of the Gāyatrī to be such wins as far as this threefold knowledge extends.

The three Vedas constitute the second foot of the Gāyatrī.

3. prāno'pāno vyānaḥ, ity aṣṭāv akṣarāni; aṣṭākṣaram ha vā ekaṁ gāyatrīyai padam. etad u haivāsyā etat. sa yāvad idam prāni, tāvad ha jayati, yo'syā etad evam padam veda. athāsya etad eva turīyam darśatam padam parorajā ya eṣa tapati; yad vai caturtham tat turīyam; darśatam padam iti, dadṛśa iva hy eṣaḥ; parorajā iti, sarvam u hy evaiṣa raja upari upari tapati. evam haiva śrīyā, yaśasā tapati, yo'syā etad evam padam veda.

3. Prāna (in-breath), apāna (out-breath), vyāna (diffused breath) (make) eight syllables. Of eight syllables, verily, is one foot of the Gāyatrī. This (one foot of it) is that series. He who knows the foot of the Gāyatrī to be such wins as far as his breathing extends. Of this (the Gāyatrī) this, indeed, is the fourth, the visible foot, above the dark skies (the sun) who glows yonder. This fourth is the same as the turīya. It is called the visible foot because it has come into sight as it were.

He is called above the dark skies, because he glows yonder far higher and higher than everything dark. He who knows that foot of it to be such, he glows with prosperity and fame.

4. That Gāyatrī rests on that fourth, the visible foot, above the dark skies. That again rests on truth. Verily, truth is sight; for, verily, truth is sight. Therefore, if now, the two persons come disputing, one saying, 'I saw,' and the other 'I heard,' we should trust the one who says, 'I saw.' Verily, that truth rests on strength. Life-breath, verily, is strength. Truth rests on life-breath. Therefore they say that strength is more powerful than truth. Thus is that Gāyatrī based with regard to the self. The Gāyatrī protects the gayās; the gayās are the life-breaths and it protects the life-breaths. Now because it protects the life-breath, therefore it is called the Gāyatrī. That Sāvitrī verse which (the teacher) teaches, it is just this. And whomsoever he teaches, it protects his life-breaths.

The three-footed Gāyatrī consisting of the gross and the subtle worlds, rests with its three feet on the sun: yathā mūrtāmūrtātmakam jagat tri padā gāyatrī āditye pratiṣṭhitā.

ogīyah: ogīyah, more powerful, ojastaram.

gayāḥ: life-breaths. prāṇāḥ. or the organs such as that of speech which produce sound: gāyantīti gayāḥ vāg upalakṣitās cakṣur-ādayah. Ā. gaya-trāṇāt gāyatrī.

5. tām haitām eke sāvitrīm anuṣṭubham anvāhuh: vāg anuṣṭup; etad vācam anubrūma iti. na tathā kuryāt. gāyatrīm eva sāvitrīm anubrūyāt. yadi ha vā apy evaṁ-vid bahv iva pratigrhṇāti, na haiva tad gāyatrīyā ekam cana padam prati.

5. Some teach (to the pupil) this Sāvitrī verse as an anuṣṭubh metre (saying) that speech is anuṣṭubh and that we impart (teach) that speech to him. One should not do like that. One should teach the Sāvitrī which is the Gāyatrī. Verily, if one who knows thus receive very much (as gifts) that is not at all equal to a single foot of the Gāyatrī.

There is no such thing as too much for him for he is identified with the universe: na hi tasya sarvātmano bahu-nāmāsti kiṃ cit. Ś.

6. If one receives these three worlds full (of wealth) he would accept the first foot of it (the Gāyatrī). If he receives as much as in this threefold knowledge (of the Vedas) he would receive the second foot of it. If he receives as much as there is breathing here, he would receive the third foot of it. But that fourth, the visible foot, above the dark skies, who glows yonder is not attainable by anyone whatsoever. How could anyone receive such (a gift)?

The purport is that the Gāyatrī should be meditated upon in its entire form. tasmād gāyatrī evam-prakāropāsyety arthaḥ. Ś.

7. tasyā upasthānam: gāyatri, asy eka-padī dvi-padī tri-padī catuṣ-pady a-pad asi, na hi padyase. namas te turīyāya darśatāya padāya parorajase; asāv ado mā prāpad iti; yaṃ dviṣyāt, asāv asmaī kāmo mā samṛddhīti vā; na haivāsmai sa kāmāḥ samṛddhyate yasmā evam upatiṣṭhate; aham adaḥ prāpam iti vā.

7. The salutation of it: O Gāyatri, you are one-footed, two-footed, three-footed, four-footed. You are footless for you do not go about. Salutation to you, the fourth, the visible foot, above the dark skies. May he not attain this (may the enemy never attain his object). (Should the knower of the Gāyatrī bear hatred towards anyone (he should) either (use this verse) 'may his wish not prosper.' Indeed that wish is not prospered for him in regard to whom one salutes thus or 'may I attain that (cherished wish) of his.'

upasthāna: salutation. upetya sthānam, namas-karanam. Ś, going near and staying or saluting. The act of approaching the gods with a request. The request may be imprecatory against another or auspicious for oneself. dvi-vidham upasthānam, ābhicārikam, ābhyudāyikam ca. Ā.

footless; in his own unconditioned form, atah param-pareṇa nirupādhikena svenātmanā'padasi. Ś.

8. etadd ha vai taj janako vaiḍeho buḍilam āśvatarāśvim uvāca: yan nu ho tad gāyatrī-vid abhūthāh, atha katham hastī bhūto vahasīti. mukham hy asyāh, samrāt, na vidān cakāra, iti hovāca; tasyā agnir eva mukham: yadi ha vā api bahu ivāgnau abhyādadhāti, sarvam eva tat samdahati; evaṁ haivaivaṁ-vid yady api bahu iva pāpaṁ kurute, sarvam eva tat sampsāya śuddhaḥ pūto'jaro'mṛtaḥ sambhavati.

8. On this point, verily, Janaka (King) of Videha said to Buḍila Aśvatarāśvi: 'Ho, how is it that you who spoke of yourself as the knower of Gāyatrī, have come to be an elephant and are carrying?' 'Because, Your Majesty, I did not know its mouth,' said he. Fire is, indeed, its mouth. Verily, indeed, even if they lay a large quantity of fuel on the fire it burns it all. Even so, (though) one who knows this commits very much evil, burns it all and becomes clean and pure, ageless and immortal.

'Why then being a fool like an elephant dost thou carry (the burden of sin of accepting gifts)?' Madhva.

Fifteenth Brāhmaṇa

PRAYER TO ADITYA BY A DYING PERSON

- I. *hiraṇmayena pātreṇa satyasyāpihitam mukham:
tat tvam, pūṣan, apāvṛṇu, satya-dharmāya dṛṣṭaye.*

I. The face of truth is covered with a golden disc. Unveil it, O Pūṣan, so that I who love the truth may see it.

See Maitrī VI. 35.

apihitam: hidden, for no one whose mind is not concentrated can see it, a-samāhita-cetasām adṛśyato'vāt. Ś. 'Verily, thou art a god that hidest thyself.' Isaiah. XLV. 15.

mukham: face, essential nature; mukha-sadṛśam mana ily arthaḥ. Kūranārāyaṇa.

pūṣan: the sun, the god of light, who is the protector of the world:

jagataḥ poṣanāt pūṣā raviḥ. Ś. āśrita-poṣana-svabhāva, whose nature is the protection of those who seek refuge in him. Vedānta Deśika.

apāvṛṇu: remove the cause of obstruction to the vision, darśana-pratibandha-kāraṇam apanayet. Ś. Reality, Heraclitus observed, likes to hide. Fragment 123. Being remains essentially concealed and hidden. It is the primary mystery. We are said to behold the truth when the real stands naked before us. When we break down the surface of appearances, reality is uncovered.

satya-dharmāya: to me who have been worshipping truth or who have been practising virtue as enjoined. Ś. to me whose principle is truth. The connection of truth with liberation is traditional in Indian thought.

The many, if it is divorced from the one, becomes the obscuring veil of the one. We must get rid of the opposition of the one and the many, look upon the one as the manifold one which is itself the expression of the Absolute One.

2. pūṣann, ekarṣe, yama, sūrya, prājā-patya, vyūha raśmīn samūha-tejah yat te rūpam kalyānatamam, tat te paśyāmi yo sāv asau puruṣas, so'ham asmi.

2. O Pūṣan, the sole seer, O Controller, O Sun, offspring of Prajā-pati, spread forth your rays and gather up your radiant light that I may behold you of loveliest form. Whosoever is that person (yonder), that also am I.

ekarṣiḥ: One who travels alone, eka eva ṛṣati gacchati ity ekarṣiḥ. Ś. The sun moves alone, sūrya ekākī carati. Taittirīya Saṃhitā VII.

4. 18. 1.

yama: the controller. sarvasya saṃyamānād yamaḥ. Ś.

rūpam kalyānatamam: of loveliest form. St. John of the Cross. 'The soul prays to see the Face of God, which is the essential communication of His Divinity to the soul, without any intervening medium, by a certain knowledge thereof in divinity.' Dom Cuthbert Butler: Western Mysticism (1922), p. 72.

so'ham asmi: refers to a form of worship in which the worshipper contemplates the immanent God as one with himself. He who dwells in the Sun is one with the light in one's deepest nature. In these verses, the seeker wishes to have God-realization, a direct perception of the Reality. 'Like as a hart desireth the water-brooks, so longest my soul after thee, O God.' Psalm XLI.

3. vāyur anilam amṛtam athedam bhasmāntam śarīram:

aum krato smara, kṛtam smara, krato smara, kṛtam smara.

3. May this life enter into the immortal breath; then may this body end in ashes. O Intelligence, remember, remember what has been done. Remember, O Intelligence, what has been done. Remember.

Now that I am dying, may my life (vāyu) abandoning its bodily adjunct enter the immortal breath. B.U. III. 2. 13. R.V. X. 16. 3. Satapatha Brāhmaṇa X. 3. 3. 8. Aitareya Brāhmaṇa II. 6. According to his physician Eustochius, the last words of Plotinus which he heard were: 'I was waiting for you, before the divine principle in me departs to unite itself with the divine in the universe.'

krato: O Intelligence—the Intelligence has purposes and plans:

samkalpātmaka: Cp. 'Now verily, a person consists of purpose.' kratu-maya. C.U. III. 14. 1. At the hour of death, we have to remember our past and also meditate on the Supreme.

kṛtam: what has been done; may mean the perfected. 'Remember perfection.'

kratu: is also sacrifice. The Supreme is the lord of sacrifice.

By meditating on the Supreme who is the lord of sacrifice, by surrendering to Him, we pray for the revelation of His Supreme presence: kraturūpinam bhagavantam jñāna-yajña-gocaram abhimukhā kurvān tad-anugraham yācate: Vedānta Deśika.

4. agne naya supathā, rāye asmān; viśvāni, deva, vayunāni vidvān;

yuyodhy asmaj juharāṇam eno: bhūyīṣṭhām te nama-uktim vidhema.

4. O Agni (Fire), lead us, along the auspicious path to prosperity, O God, who knowest all our deeds. Take away from us deceitful sin. We shall offer many prayers unto thee.

See R.V. I. 189. 1.

who knowest all our deeds: It is an expression of humility born of the sense that we are always in God's presence, that all our thoughts and actions are open to His sight. He is at all times present with us. take away from us deceitful sin: It is an imploring or supplication concerning sins. God is a searcher not of words but of hearts.

CHAPTER VI

First Brāhmaṇa

THE SIX BODILY FUNCTIONS AND THE IMPORTANCE OF LIFE-BREATH

1. yo ha vai jyeṣṭham ca śreṣṭham ca veda, jyeṣṭhaś ca śreṣṭhaś ca svānām bhavati, prāṇo vai jyeṣṭhaś ca, śreṣṭhaś ca, jyeṣṭhaś ca śreṣṭhaś ca svānām bhavati; api ca yeṣāṃ bubhūṣati, ya evaṃ veda.

1. Verily, he who knows the oldest and the greatest becomes the oldest and the greatest of his own people. Life-breath is, indeed, the oldest and the greatest. He who knows this becomes the oldest and the greatest of his own people as well as of those of whom he wishes so to become.

See C.U. V. 1; K.U. III. 3; Praśna II. 3.

Oldest and greatest are the attributes of priority in age and excellence. The oldest is not necessarily the greatest. The vital force is, however, the first in time as well as in importance.

2. yo ha vai vasiṣṭhām veda, vasiṣṭhaḥ svānām bhavati. vāg vai vasiṣṭhā. vasiṣṭhaḥ svānām bhavati. api ca yeṣāṃ bubhūṣati ya evaṃ veda.

2. Verily, he who knows the most excellent becomes the most excellent of his own people. Speech is, indeed, the most excellent. He who knows this becomes the most excellent of his own people as well as of those of whom he wishes so to become.

vasiṣṭha: literally, that which helps one to dwell or covers one splendidly. Ś. atiśayena vasumattvaṃ vasiṣṭhatvam. R.

3. yo ha vai pratiṣṭhām veda, pratitiṣṭhati same, pratitiṣṭhati durge; cakṣur vai pratiṣṭhā; cakṣuṣā hi same ca durge ca pratiṣṭhati. pratitiṣṭhati same, pratitiṣṭhati durge, ya evaṃ veda.

3. Verily, he who knows the firm basis has a firm basis on even ground, has a firm basis on uneven ground. The eye, indeed, is the firm basis for with the eye one has a firm basis on even and on uneven ground. He who knows this has a firm basis on even ground, has a firm basis on uneven ground.

4. yo ha vai sampadam veda, saṃ hāsmāi padyate, yaṃ kāmāṃ kāmāyate; śrotam vai sampat; śrotre hīme sarve vedā abhiṣam-pannāḥ. saṃ hāsmāi padyate, yaṃ kāmāṃ kāmāyate, ya evaṃ veda.

4. Verily, he who knows prosperity, for him, indeed is attained whatever desire he desires. The ear, indeed, is prosperity for in the ear are all these Vedas attained. For him who knows this, whatever desire he desires is attained.

Only he who has the organ of hearing can study the Vedas.

5. yo ha vā āyatanam veda, āyatanam svānām bhavati, āyatanam janānām. mano vā āyatanam, āyatanam svānām bhavati, āyatanam janānām, ya evam veda.

5. Verily, he who knows the abode becomes the abode of his own people as well as of (other) people. The mind, indeed, is the abode. He who knows this becomes the abode of his own people as well as of (other) people.

6. yo ha vai prajātim veda, prajāyate ha prajāyā paśubhiḥ. reto vai prajātiḥ, prajāyate ha prajāyā paśubhiḥ, ya evam veda.

6. Verily, he who knows procreation procreates himself with offspring and cattle. Semen, verily, is procreation. He who knows this, procreates himself with progeny and cattle.

By semen is meant the organ of generation; retasā prajānanendriyam upalakṣyate. Ś.

7. te heme prānāḥ, aham śreyase vivadamānāḥ brahma jagmuḥ; tadā hocuḥ; ko no vasiṣṭha iti. tadā hovāca, yasmin va utkrānta idam śarīram pāpīyo manyate, sa vo vasiṣṭha iti.

7. These vital breaths, disputing among themselves about their self-superiority went to Brahmā and said, 'Which of us is the most excellent?' He then said, that one of you is the most excellent after whose departure this body is thought to be worse off.

vasiṣṭha: V, śreṣṭha.

8. vāg ghoccakrāmā: sā samvatsaram proṣya, āgatya, uvāca. katham aśakata madṛte jīvītum iti; te hocuḥ; yathā kalāḥ avadanto vācā, prānantaḥ prānena, paśyantas cakṣuṣā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, vidvāṁso manasā, prajāyamānā retasā, evam ajīviṣmeti. praviveśa ha vāk.

8. (The organ of) speech departed and having remained absent for a year came back and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' They said, 'As the dumb, not speaking with speech but breathing with the breath, seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, knowing with the mind, procreating with the semen. Thus have we lived.' Then speech entered in.

9. cakṣur hoccakrāma. tat saṁvatsaram proṣya, āgatya, uvāca katham aśakata mad ṛte jīvītum iti. te hocuḥ yathāhādhāḥ, apaśyantaś cakṣuṣā, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, vidvāṁso manasā, prajāyamānā retasā, evam ajīviṣmeti. praviveśa ha cakṣuḥ.

9. The eye departed and having remained absent for a year came back and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' They said: 'As the blind not seeing with the eye, but breathing with the breath, speaking with the speech, hearing with the ear, knowing with the mind, procreating with the semen. Thus have we lived.' Then the eye entered in.

10. śrotam hoccakrāma. tat saṁvatsaram proṣya, āgatya, uvāca, katham aśakata mad ṛte jīvītum iti. te hocuḥ yathā badhirāḥ aśṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, paśyantaś cakṣuṣā, vidvāṁso manasā, prajāyamānā retasā, evam ajīviṣmeti. praviveśa ha śrotam.

10. The ear departed and having remained absent for a year came back and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' They said, 'As the deaf not hearing with the ear, but breathing with the breath, speaking with the speech, seeing with the eye, knowing with the mind, procreating with semen. Thus have we lived.' Then the ear entered in.

11. mano hoccakrāma. tat saṁvatsaram proṣya, āgatya, uvāca, katham aśakata mad ṛte jīvītum iti. te hocuḥ yathā mugdhāḥ avidvāṁso manasā, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, paśyantaḥ cakṣuṣā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, prajāyamānā retasā, evam ajīviṣmeti. praviveśa ha manah.

11. The mind departed and having remained absent for a year came back and said: 'How have you been able to live without me?' They said, 'As the stupid not knowing with the mind but breathing with the breath, speaking with the speech, seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, procreating with the semen. Thus have we lived. Then the mind entered in.

12. reto hoccakrāma. tat saṁvatsaram proṣya, āgatya, uvāca: katham aśakata mad ṛte jīvītum iti. te hocuḥ yathā klībāḥ, aprajāyamānā retasā, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, paśyantaś cakṣuṣā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, vidvāṁso manasā, evam ajīviṣmeti praviveśa ha retah.

12. Then semen (the organ of generation) departed and having remained absent for a year came back and said: 'How have you been able to live without me?' They said, 'As the impotent not procreating with semen, but breathing with the breath, speaking with the speech, seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, knowing with the mind. Thus have we lived.' Then the semen entered in.

13. atha ha prāṇa utkramiṣyan, yathā mahā-suhayaḥ saindhavaḥ paḍviśa-śaṅkhūn samvṛhet, evaṁ haivemaṁ prāṇān samvavarha. te hocyāt mā bhagavaḥ utkramiḥ, na vai śakṣyāmas tvad ṛte jīvītum iti, tasyo me baliṁ kuruteti, tatketi.

13. Then as the life breath was about to depart, even as a large fine horse of the Sindhu land might pull up the pegs to which his feet are tied, even so did it pull up those vital breaths together. They said: 'Venerable Sir, do not go out, verily, we shall not be able to live without you.' 'If I am such make me an offering.' 'So be it.'

to which his feet are tied: pāda-bandhana-śaṅkhūn. R.

14. sā ha vāg uvāca: yad vā ahaṁ vasiṣṭhāsmi, tvam tad vasiṣṭho'siti. yad vā ahaṁ pratiṣṭhāsmi, tvam tat pratiṣṭho 'sī ti cakṣuḥ. yad vā ahaṁ sampad asmi, tvam tat sampad asi, iti śrotram. yad vā ahaṁ āyatanam asmi, tvam tad āyatanam asi, iti manah; yad vā ahaṁ prajātir asmi, tvam tat prajātir asi, iti retah. tasyo me kiṁ annam, kiṁ vāsa iti. yad idaṁ kiṁ ca, ā svabhyah, ā krimibhyah, ā kṛta-pataṅgebhyah, tat te annam; āpo vāsa iti. na ha vā asyān annaṁ jagdhaṁ bhavati, nānannaṁ pratigrhītam, ya evaṁ etad anasyānnaṁ veda. tad vidvāṁsaḥ śrotriyā aśiṣyanta ācāmantī, aśitvācāmantī, etam eva tad anam anagmam kurvanto manyante.

14. Speech said, 'Verily, that in which I am most excellent in that are you the most excellent.' 'Verily that in which I am a firm basis in that are you a firm basis,' said the eye. 'Verily, that in which I am prosperity; in that are you prosperity,' said the ear. 'Verily, that in which I am an abode, in that are you an abode,' said the mind. 'Verily, that in which I am procreation, in that are you procreation,' said the semen. 'If such I am, what is my food, what my dwelling?' 'Whatever there is here, even unto dogs, worms, insects and birds, that is your food; water is your dwelling. He who knows that as the food of breath, by him nothing is eaten that is not food, nothing is received that is not food.' Therefore wise men who are versed in the Vedas when they are about to eat, take a sip (of water); after they have eaten they take a sip. So indeed, they think they make that breath not naked (they remove its nakedness).

my excellence is yours: mama vasiṣṭhatvaṁ tvad-adhīnam.

even unto dogs: whatever is food for the dogs, etc., is food for you.
yat kiṁ cit prāṇibhir adyamānam annam, tat sarvaṁ tavānnam. Ś.

Second Brāhmaṇa

LIFE AFTER DEATH

1. śvetaketuḥ ha vā āruṇeyaḥ pañcālānām pariśadam ājagāma. sa ājagāma jaivalim pravāhaṇam paricārayamānam. tam udīksya, abhyuvāda, kumāra iti. sa, bhoh, iti pratiśuśrāva anuśiṣṭo nū asi pītreti, aum iti hovāca.

1. Verily, Śvetaketu Āruṇeya went up to an assembly of the Pañcālās. He went up to Pravāhaṇa Jaivali who was having his servants wait on him. Seeing him, he addressed him, 'Young man.' He answered, 'Sir.' Then (the King said) 'Have you been taught by your father?' 'Yes,' he said.

See C.U. V. 3. 10.

*dve sṛti aśṛṇavaṁ pītrṇām ahaṁ devānām uta martyānām;

iti. nāham ata ekam cana veda, iti hovāca.

2. 'Do you know how people here on departing (from this life) separate in different directions?' 'No,' said he. 'Do you know how they come back again into this world?' 'No,' said he. 'Do you know why the yonder world is not filled up with the many who, again and again, go there?' 'No,' said he. 'Do you know in which oblation that is offered the water becomes the voice of a person, rises up and speaks?' 'No,' said he. 'Do you know the means of access to the path leading to the gods or of the one leading to the fathers? i.e. by doing what the people go to the path of the gods or the path of the fathers? For we have heard even the saying of the seer: I have heard of two paths for men, the one that leads to fathers and the one that leads to the gods. By these two all that lives moves on, whatever there is between father (heaven) and mother (earth).' 'Not a single one of them do I know,' said he.

viśvam: all, samastam. Ś.

This (earth) is the mother and that (heaven) is the father iyam vai mātū asau pitā: Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa XIII. 2. 9. 7; Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa III. 8. 9. 1. Heaven and earth are the two halves of the shell of the universe, dyāvā-pṛthivīyāv aṇḍa-kapāle. Ś.

3. athainam vasatyopamantrayām cakre. anādrtya vasatiṁ kumāraḥ pradudrāva. sa ājagāma pitaram, taṁ hovāca. iti vāva kila no bhavān purānuśiṣṭān avocad iti; katham sumedha, iti. pañca mā praśnān rājanya-bandhur aprākṣit; tato naikam cana vedeti: katame ta iti. ima iti ha pratikāny udājahāra.

3. Then he (the King) gave him an invitation to stay. Disregarding the invitation to stay the young man ran off. He went to his father. To him he said, 'Verily, you have, before, spoken of me as well instructed.' 'What then, wise one?' (said the father). 'Five questions, that fellow of the princely class asked me. Not a single one of them do I know.' 'What are these (questions)?' 'These,' and he repeated the topics.

4. He (the father) said: 'My child, you should know me as such, that whatsoever I myself know, all that I have told you. But come, let us go there and live as students of sacred knowledge.' 'You may go, sir,' said the son. Then Gautama went forth to where (the place) Pravāhaṇa Jaivali was. (The King) brought him a seat and had water brought for him. He gave him a respectful welcome. Then he said to him. 'A boon we offer to the revered Gautama.'

5. sa hovāca: pratijñato ma eṣa varah; yām tu kumārasyaṅte vācam abhāṣathāh, tām me brūhīti.

5. Then he said: 'You have promised me this boon. Please tell me the speech you uttered in the presence of the young man.'

6. sa hovāva: daiveṣu vai, gautama, tad varesu; mānuṣāṇām brūhīti.

6. He (the King) said, 'Verily, Gautama, that is among divine boons. Please state some human boon.'

7. sa hovāca: vijñāyate ha asti hiranyasyāpāttam, go-aśvānām dāsīnām pravārānām paridhānasya; mā no bhavān bahor anantasyāparyantasyābhyavadānyo bhūd iti. sa vai, gautama, tīrthenecchāsā iti. upaīmy aham bhavantam. iti vācā ha smaiva pūrva upayanti. sa hopāyana-kīrtiyovāsa.

7. Then he said: 'It is well known that I have abundance of gold, of cows and horses, maid servants, retinue and apparel. Be not ungenerous towards me, sir, in regard to that which is the abundant, the infinite, the unlimited.' 'Then, verily, O Gautama, you should seek it in the usual form.' 'I come to you, sir, as a pupil.' With this declaration, verily, indeed, the ancients approached as pupils. So with the announcement of coming as a pupil he remained.

pravārānām: retinue, parivārānām. Ś.

tīrthena: in the usual prescribed form, nyāyena śāstra-vihitena. Ś.

Tīrtha is a place of pilgrimage generally on the bank of a sacred stream or near a holy spring. It is derived from the root, 'to cross over.' Those who cross over the stream wash their sins and become purified.

According to the tradition, seekers belonging to higher castes have become pupils to teachers of a lower caste, by living with them. It is not necessary for them to touch the feet of the teacher or serve them. A simple declaration will do.

8. sa hovāca: tathā na tvām, gautama, māparādhās tava ca pīṭamahāh yathā, iyaṁ vidyetaḥ pūrvam na kasmimś cana brāhmaṇa uvāsa; tām tv aham tubhyaṁ vakṣyāmi. ko hi tvaivaṁ bruvantam arhati pratyākhyātum iti.

8. Then he (the King) said: 'Please do not be offended with us even as your paternal grandfathers did not (with ours). This knowledge has never hitherto dwelt with any Brāhmaṇa whatsoever. But I shall teach it to you, for who can refuse you when you speak like this.'

9. asau vai loko agniḥ, gautama. tasyāditya eva samit, raśmayo dhūmah, ahar arcīḥ, diśo'ṅgārāḥ, avāntaradiśo viṣphulingāḥ; tasminn etasminn agnau devāḥ śraddhām juhvati; tasyā āhutyai somo rājā sambhavati.

9. 'Yonder world, Gautama, is (sacrificial) fire. The sun itself is its fuel, the rays its smoke; the day the flame, the quarters the coals, the intermediate quarters the sparks. In this fire the gods offer faith. Out of that offering King Soma arises.

10. 'Parjanya (the god of rain), Gautama, is fire. The year itself is its fuel, the clouds its smoke, the lightning the flame, the thunder-bolt the coals, the thundering the sparks. In this fire the gods offer the king Soma. Out of that offering rain arises.

parjanya: rain god vṛṣṭi-pravartako devaḥ. R.

13. 'The woman, verily, Gautama, is fire. The sexual organ itself is its fuel; the hairs the smoke, the vulva the flame, when one inserts, the coals; the pleasurable feelings the sparks; In this fire the gods offer semen. Out of this offering a person arises. He lives as long as he lives. Then when he dies,

Sexual intercourse is treated as a kind of soma sacrifice, where the household fire is identified with the wife. The sacrificial fire is the divine womb into which one pours (śiñcati) himself and from which a solar rebirth ensues.

A person living in the world of Brahmā sent forth, created by Brahmā, by the mind. brahma-loka-vāsi puruṣo brahmaṇā manasā sṛṣṭaḥ. parāḥ: exalted. niratiśayānandaiśvarya-śālinah. R. parāvato: V parāvanto. R.

16. 'But those who by sacrificial offerings, charity and austerity conquer the worlds, they pass into the smoke (of the cremation fire), from the smoke into the night, from the night into the half-month of the waning moon, from the half-month of the waning moon into the six months during which the sun travels southward, from these months into the world of the fathers, from the world of the fathers into the moon. Reaching the moon they become food. There the gods, as they say to king Soma, increase, decrease, even so feed upon them there. When that passes away from them, they pass forth into this space, from space into air, from air into rain, from rain into the earth. Reaching the earth they become food. Again, they are offered in the fire of man. Thence they are born in the fire of woman with a view to going to other worlds. Thus do they rotate. But those who do not know these two ways, become insects, moths and whatever there is here that bites.'

This Brāhmaṇa, C.U. III. 10; K.U. I give different versions of the two ways after death, but they all agree that there is repeated return to rebirth in forms determined by the deeds of the past. This process will continue until saving knowledge is attained, which frees the soul from the necessity of rebirth.

1. Whoever may wish, 'I would attain greatness in the northern course of the sun or on an auspicious day of the half-month of the waxing moon, having performed one upasad ceremony for twelve days, having collected in a dish made of the wood of the sacred fig tree or in a cup, all herbs and their fruits, having swept around, having smeared around, having built up a fire, having strewn it around, having purified the melted butter in the prescribed manner, having compounded the offering on a day presided over by a male star, makes an offering, saying: O fire (all-knower), to all those gods under you who spitefully slay the desires of a person, I offer them a share. Let them, being satisfied satisfy me with all desires: Hail. To that deity who turns out spiteful under your protection, saying I support all, I offer this stream of melted butter: Hail.

'To all (things), hail,' (saying this) he offers an oblation in the fire and pours the remainder in the mixed potion. 'To Prajā-pati, hail,' (saying this) he offers an oblation in the fire and pours the remainder in the mixed potion.

4. athainam abhimṛṣati; bhramad asi, jvalad asi, pūrṇam asi, prastabdham asi, eka-sabham asi, hīṁkṛtam asi, hīṁkriyamānam asi, udgītham asi, udgīyamānam asi śrāvitam asi, pratyāśrāvitam asi, ārdre samdīptam asi, vibhūr asi, prabhūr asi, annam asi, jyotir asi, nidhanam asi, samvargo'sti.

4. Then he touches it (the mixed potion) saying: 'you are the moving (as breath), you are the burning (as fire), you are the full (as the sky), you are the steadfast (as the sky), you are the one resort (as the earth), you are the sound hin that is made (at the beginning of the sacrifice by the prastotr). You are the making of the sound hin. You are the loud chant (sung by the udgātr at the beginning of the sacrifice). You are the chanting. You are recited (by the adhvaryu) and are recited back (by the āgnīdhra). You are the glowing in the moist (cloud). You are the pervading, you are the ruler. You are food (as the moon). You are light (as fire). You are the end. You are that in which all things merge.'

prastabdham: steadfast, niṣkampam: still. Ā.

ārḍre: in the cloud, meghodare. Ā.

nīdhanam: end, layaḥ. Ā.

5. athainam udyacchati: āmanṣi, āmaṁ hi te mahi, sa hi rājeśāno'dhipatiḥ, sa mām rājeśāno'dhipatiṁ karotv iti.

5. Then he raises it (saying), 'You know all. We too are aware of your greatness. He is, indeed, the King, the Ruler, the Highest Lord. May he make me the king, the ruler and the highest lord.'

See C.U. V. 2. 6.

āmanṣi: You know all, tvam sarvaṁ vijānāsi. Ā.

he: the vital breath, prāṇo rājādi-guṇaḥ. Ā.

6. Then he sips it (saying) 'On that adorable light: The winds blow sweetly for the righteous, the rivers pour forth honey. May the herbs be sweet unto us. To earth, hail. Let us meditate on the divine glory: May the night and the day be sweet. May the dust of the earth be sweet. May heaven, our father, be sweet to us. To the atmosphere, hail. May he inspire (illumine) our understanding: May the tree be sweet unto us. May the sun be sweet, may the cows be filled with sweetness for us. To the heaven, hail. He repeats the whole Sāvitrī hymn and all the verses about the honey (saying), May I indeed be all this, hail to the earth, atmosphere and heaven. Having thus sipped all, having washed his hands, he lies down behind the fire with his head towards the east. In the morning he worships the sun (saying) of the quarters (of heaven), 'you are the one lotus flower. May I become the one lotus flower among men.' Then he goes back the same way (by which he came), sits behind the fire (on the altar) and recites the (genealogical) line (of teachers).

See R.V. III. 62. 10; I. 90. 6-8.

varenyam: adorable, varaṇīyam. Ā.

naktam: rātriḥ. Ā.

utośasaḥ: divasāḥ. Ā.

7. taṁ haitam uddālaka ārunir vājasaneyāya yājñavalkyā-yāntevāsina uktvovāca; api ya enam śuṣke sthānau niṣīncet, jāyeraṇ śākhāḥ, praroheyuḥ palāśānīti.

7. Then Uddālaka Āruṇi told this to his pupil, Vājasaneya Yājñavalkya and said, 'If one should sprinkle this even on a dry stump, branches would grow and leaves spring forth.'

leaves: patrāṇi. R.

8. etam u haiva vājasaneyo yājñavalkyo madhukāya paingyā-yāntevāsina uktvovāca, api ya enam śuṣke sthānau niṣīncet jāyeraṇ śākhāḥ praroheyuḥ palāśānīti.

8. Then Vājasaneya Yājñavalkya told this to his pupil Madhuka, the son of Paingī and said: 'If one should sprinkle this even on a dry stump, branches would grow and leaves spring forth.'

9. etam u haiva madhukah paingyas cūlāya bhāgavittaye ntevāsina uktvovāca, api ya enam śuṣke sthānau niṣīncet jāyeraṇ śākhāḥ, praroheyuḥ palāśānīti.

9. Then Madhuka Paingya told this to his pupil Cūla Bhāgavitti and said: 'If one should sprinkle this even on a dry stump, branches would grow and leaves spring forth.'

10 etam u haiva cūlo bhāgavittir jānakāya āyasthūnā-yāntevāsina uktvovāca, api ya enam śuṣke sthānau niṣīncet jāyeraṇ śākhāḥ praroheyuḥ palāśānīti.

10. Then Cūla Bhāgavitti told this to his pupil Jānaki Āyasthūṇa and said: 'If one should sprinkle this even on a dry stump, branches would grow and leaves spring forth.'

11. etam u haiva jānakir āyasthūṇaḥ satyakāmāya jābālā yāntevāsina uktvovāca, api ya enam śuṣke sthāṇau niṣiñcet, jāyeraṇ śākhāḥ, praroheyuḥ palāśānīti.

11. Then Jānaki Āyasthūṇa told this to his pupil Satyakāma Jābāla and said: 'If one should sprinkle this even on a dry stump, branches would grow and leaves spring forth.'

12. etam u haiva satyakāmo jābālo'ntevāsibhya uktvovāca, api ya enam śuṣke sthāṇau niṣiñcet, jāyeraṇ śākhāḥ praroheyuḥ palāśānīti. tam etam nāputrāya vānante'vāsine vā brūyāt.

12. Then Satyakāma Jābāla told this to his pupils and said: 'If one should sprinkle this even on a dry stump, branches would grow and leaves spring forth. One should not tell this to one who is not a son or to one who is not a pupil.'

For a similar prohibition about teaching sacred knowledge, see S.U. VI. 22; Maitrī VI. 29.

Ś. mentions that the two, the son and the pupil are declared to be eligible to receive sacred knowledge. They are chosen out of the six qualified learners. vidyādhigame saṭ tīrthāni.

Ā. mentions the six, a pupil, a knower of the Vedas, an intelligent person, one who pays, a dear son and one who exchanges another branch of learning. śiṣyaḥ śrotriyo medhāvī dhanadāyī priyaḥ putro vidyayā vidyā-dāteli saṭ tīrthāni.

13. catur audumbaro bhavati; audumbaraḥ sruvaḥ, audumbaraś camasaḥ, audumbara idhmaḥ, audumbaryā upamanthanyau; daśa grāmyāṇi dhānyāṇi bhavanti: vrīhi yavās tila-māsā anu-priyaṃgavo godhūmās ca masūrās ca khalvās ca khalakḥkulās ca; tān piṣṭān dadhīni madhuni ghṛta upasiñcati, ājyasya juhōti.

13. Fourfold is the wood of the sacred fig tree (four things are made of it); the spoon is of the wood of the sacred fig tree, the bowl is of the wood of the sacred fig tree, the fuel is of the wood of the sacred fig tree and the two churning rods are of the wood of the sacred fig tree. There are ten cultivated grains (used), viz. rice and barley, sesasum and beans, millet, and panic seeds, wheat, lentils, pulse and vetches. They should be ground and soaked in curds, honey and clarified butter. And (he) offers melted butter as an oblation.

PROCREATION CEREMONIES

I. eṣāṃ vai bhūtānāṃ pṛthivī rasah, pṛthivyā āpah, apām oṣadhayaḥ, oṣadhīnām puṣpāṇi, puṣpāṇām phalāni, phalānām puruṣaḥ, puruṣasya retah.

1. The earth, verily, is the essence of all these beings; of earth (the essence is) water; of water (the essence is) plants; of plants (the essence is) flowers; of flowers (the essence is) fruits; of fruits (the essence is) the man; of man (the essence is) semen.

The ceremony for obtaining a son of right qualities is given here.

2. sa ha prajā-patir īkṣāṃ cakre: hanta, asmai pratiṣṭhām kalpayānīti; sa striyaṃ sasṛje; tāṃ sṛṣṭvādha upāsta; tasmāt striyaṃ adha upāsīta, sa etam prāñcam grāvāṇam ātmana eva samudapārayat, tenainām abhyasṛjat.

2. And Prajā-pati thought (within himself): 'Come, let me make a firm basis (abode) for him.' So he created woman. Having created her, he revered her below. So one should revere woman below. He stretched out for himself that which projects. With that he impregnated her.

grāvāṇam: a stone for pressing out soma juice:

somādhiṣavopala-sthānīyaṃ kāthinya-sāmānyāt prajānanendriyam. Ś.

3. tasyā vedir upasthaḥ, lomāṇi barhiḥ, carmādhiṣavane, samiddho madhyatastau muṣkau; sa yāvān ha vai vājapeyena yajamānasya loko bhavati (tāvān asyaloko bhavati), ya evaṃ vidvān adhopahāsam carati, āsām strīnām sukṛtaṃ vṛñkte. atha ya idam avidvān adhopahāsam carati, āsya striyaḥ sukṛtaṃ vṛñjate.

3. Her lower part is the (sacrificial) altar: (her) hairs the (sacrificial) grass, her skin the soma-press. The two labia of the vulva are the fire in the middle. Verily, as great as is the world of him who performs the Vājapeya sacrifice (so great is the world of him) who, knowing this, practises sexual intercourse; he turns the good deeds of the woman to himself but he, who without knowing this, practises sexual intercourse, his good deeds women turn into themselves.

vedi: vedikā viśrama-sthānam, place of rest.

These passages indicate the intimate connection between the Atharva Veda and the Upaniṣads. Some practices in the latter are treated in the manner of the Atharva Veda. They include even love charms to compel a woman to yield her love, charms to prevent conception or bring it about when desired. Even here the knowledge motive is dominant.

The sexual act is explained as a kind of ritual performance, the elements of which are identified with the parts of the woman's body. We are told that if a man practises sex intercourse with the knowledge of this, he gains a world as great as he who sacrifices with the Vājapeya rite and takes to himself the merit of the women; but if he practises it without this knowledge, women take to themselves his merit.

4. etadd ha sma vai tad vidvān uddālaka āruṇir āha; etadd ha sma vai tad vidvān nāko maudgalya āha; etadd ha sma vai tad vidvān kumāra-hārīta āha; bahavo marya brāhmaṇāyanā nirindriyā visukṛto'smāl lokāt prayanti; ya idam avidvāmso'dhopa-hāsaṁ carantīti, bahu vā idam suptasya vā jāgrato vā retah skandati.

4. This, verily, is what Uddālaka Āruṇi knew when he said: this, verily, is what Nāka Maudgalya knew when he said: this, verily, is what Kumāra-hārīta knew when he said: many mortal men, Brāhmaṇas by descent, go forth from this world impotent and devoid of merit, namely, those who practise sexual intercourse without knowing this. If even this much semen is spilled of one asleep or of one awake, maryāḥ: mortal men, marāṇa-dharmiṇo manuṣyāḥ. Ś.

brāhmaṇāyanāḥ: brāhmaṇaḥ ayanam yeṣāṁ. R.

nirindriyāḥ: impotent, nirviryāḥ jñāna-karma-bala-hīnāḥ. R.

5. tad abhimṛśet, anu vā mantrayeta:

yan me'dya retah pṛthivīm askāntsīt, yad oṣadhīr apy asarat, yad apaḥ, idam ahaṁ tad reta ādāde, punar mām aitu indriyam, punas tejah, punar bhagaḥ.

punar agnir dhiṣṇyāḥ yathāsthānam kalpantām ity anāmikāṅguṣṭābhyām ādāya, antareṇa stanau vā bhruvau vā nimirjyāt.

5. Then he should touch it or (without touching) recite: 'Whatever semen of mine has spilt on earth, whatever has flowed to the plants, whatever to water, I reclaim this very semen, let vigour come to me again, let lustre (come to me) again; let glow (come to me) again. Let the fire and the altars be found again in their usual place; (having said this) he should take it with his ring finger and thumb and rub it between his breasts or his eyebrows.

6. atha yady udaka ātmānam paśyet, tad abhimanirayeta: mayi teja indriyam yaśo draviṇam sukṛtam iti-śrīr ha vā eṣā strīṇām yan malodvāsāḥ. tasmān malodvāsasam yaśasvinīm abhikramyopamantrayeta.

6. Now if one should see himself (his reflection) in water he should recite (the following) hymn. In me (may the gods bestow) lustre, vigour, fame, wealth and merit. This, verily, is loveliness among women, when she has removed her soiled clothes. Therefore when she has removed her soiled clothes and is lovely, he should approach and speak to her.

7. sā ced asmai na dadyāt, kāmam enām avakrīṇīyāt; sa ced asmai naiva dadyāt, kāmam enām yaṣṭyā vā pāṇinā vopahat-yātikrāmet, indriyeṇa te yaśasā yaśa ādade, ity ayaśā eva bhavati.

7. If she does not grant him his desire, he should buy her (with presents). If she still does not grant him his desire he should beat her with a stick or his hand and overcome her (saying) with (manly) power and glory, 'I take away your glory.' Thus she becomes devoid of glory.

buy her: ābharanādīnā vaśi-kuryāt. R.

8. sā ced asmai dadyāt: indriyeṇa te yaśasā yaśa ādadhāmi iti: yaśasvināu eva bhavataḥ.

8. If she grants (his desire), he says, 'With power and glory,' 'I give you glory.' Thus the two become glorious.

9. sa yām icchet, kāmayeta meti, tasyām artham niṣṭhāya, mukhena mukham saṁdhāya, upastham asyā abhimṛśya, jāpet:

āṅgād āṅgāt sambhavasi, hṛdayād adhiḥjāyase sa tvam āṅga-kaṣāyo'si: dīgḍha-viddhām iva mādaya imām amum mayi

9. If one desires a woman (with the thought) may she enjoy love with me, after inserting the member in her, joining mouth to mouth and stroking her lower part, he should recite, 'You that have come from every limb, who have sprung from the heart, you are the essence of the limbs. Distract this woman here in me, as if pierced by a poisoned arrow.'

artham: member prajananendriyam. Ś.

10. aiha yām icchet; na garbham dadhīti, tasyām artham niṣṭhāya, mukhena mukham samdhāya abhiprānyāpānyāt, indriyeṇa te retasā reta ādada iti; aretā eva bhavati.

10. Now the woman whom one desires (with the thought) 'may she not conceive,' after inserting the member in her, joining mouth to mouth, he should first inhale and then exhale and say, 'with power, with semen I reclaim the semen from you.' Thus she comes to be without semen (seed).

Apparently, birth control is not a modern device.

11. aiha yām icchet; garbham dadhīti, tasyām artham niṣṭhāya, mukhena mukham samdhāya apānyābhiprānyāt; indriyeṇa te retasā reta ādadhāmi, ity, garbhṇy eva bhavati.

11. Now the woman whom one desires (with the thought) 'may she conceive'; after inserting the member in her, joining mouth to mouth he should first exhale and then inhale and say 'with power, with semen I deposit semen in you.' Thus she becomes pregnant.

12. If a man's wife has a lover and he hate him (wishes to injure him), let him put fire in an unbaked earthen vessel, spread out a layer of reed arrows in an inverse order, and let him offer (in sacrifice) in inverse order these reed arrows soaked in clarified butter, (saying) 'You have sacrificed in my fire, I take away your in-breath and out-breath, you so and so. You have sacrificed in my fire, I take away your sons and cattle, you so and so. You have sacrificed in my fire. I take away your sacrifices and meritorious deeds, you so and so. You have sacrificed in my fire. I take away your hope and expectation, you so and so. Verily, he departs from this world impotent and devoid of merit, he whom a Brāhmaṇa who knows this curses. Therefore one should not wish to play with the wife of one who is learned in the Vedas, who knows this, for indeed he who knows this becomes preëminent.

See Kaṭha I. 8; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa I. 6. 1. 18; Pāraskara Gṛhya Sūtra I. 11. 6.

Spells and incantations were familiar practices in the age when the Upaniṣad was composed.

13. atha yasya jāyām ārtavam vindet, try aham kamse na pibet ahata-vāsāḥ; nainām vṛśalaḥ na vṛśaly upahanyāt, trivā-trānta āplutya vrīhīm avaghātayet.

13. Now, when the monthly sickness comes upon one's wife, for three days she should not drink from a bronze cup nor put on fresh clothes. Neither a low-caste man nor a low-caste woman should touch her. At the end of three nights after bathing she should be made to pound rice.

Sometimes it is interpreted kamsena pibet; she should drink from a bronze cup.

āplutya: after bathing, snātvā. Ś.

The rice is intended for the sthālī-pāka ceremony.

After three nights she should bathe, put on new clothes and prepare the rice for the ceremony.

14. sa ya icchet, putro me śuklo jāyeta, vedam anubruvīta, sarvaṃ āyur iyād iti, kṣīraudanam pācayitvā sarpiṣmantam aśnīyātām; īśvarau janayita vai.

14. If one wishes that his son should be born of a fair complexion, that he should study the Veda, that he should attain a full term of life, they should have rice cooked with milk and eat it with clarified butter, then they should be able to beget (him).

īśvarau: should be able to, samarthau. R.

15. atha ya icchet, putro me kapilaḥ pīṅgalo jāyeta, dvau vedāv anubruvīta, sarvaṃ āyur iyād iti, dadhy-odanam pācayitvā sarpiṣmantam aśnīyātām; īśvarau janayita vai.

15. Now if one wishes that his son should be born of a tawny or brown complexion, that he should study the two Vedas, that he should attain a full term of life, they should have rice cooked in curds and eat it with clarified butter, then they should be able to beget (him).

16. atha ya icchet, putro me śyāmo lohitaśo jāyeta, trīṇ vedān anubruvīta, sarvaṃ āyur iyād iti, udodanam pācayitvā, sarpiṣmantam aśnīyātām; īśvarau janayita vai.

16. Now if one wishes that his son should be born of a dark complexion with red eyes, that he should study the three Vedas, that he should attain a full term of life, they should have rice cooked in water and eat it with clarified butter, then they should be able to beget (him).

17. atha ya icchet, duhitā me paṇḍitā jāyeta, sarvām āyur iyād iti, tilodanam pācayitvā sarpiṣmantam aśnīyātām, īśvarau janayita vai.

17. Now if one wishes that his daughter should be born, who is learned, that she should attain a full term of life, they should have rice cooked with sesamum and eat it with clarified butter, then they should be able to beget (her).

While the Upaniṣad seems to grant the privilege of learning and scholarship to women, Ś points out that this learning is limited to domestic affairs: duhituḥ pāṇḍityam grha-tantra-viśayam eva, vede' nadhikārāt. Ś.

The other commentators follow Ś whose view conflicts with ancient beliefs and practices.

18. atha ya icchet putro me paṇḍito vigītaḥ, samitiṁ-gamaḥ, śusrūṣitām vācam bhāṣitā jāyeta, sarvān vedān anubruvīta, sarvām āyur iyād iti, māmsodanam pācayitvā sarpiṣmantam aśnīyātām; īśvarau janayita vai, aukṣṇena vārṣabheṇa vā.

18. Now if one wishes that a son, learned, famous, a frequenter of assemblies, a speaker of delightful words, that he should study all the Vedas, that he should attain a full term of life, they should have rice cooked with meat and eat it with clarified butter, then they should be able to beget (such a son)—either veal or beef.

vigītaḥ: famous, vividham gītaḥ, prakhyātaḥ. Ś.

śusrūṣitām: delightful, śrotum iṣṭām, ramanīyām. Ś.

veal or beef: ukṣa, secana-samarthaḥ puṅgavaḥ, ṛṣabhaḥ tato py adhikavayāḥ. Ś.

Evidently meat was permitted on certain occasions. Ā points out that this permission was due to local conditions. deśa-viśeṣāpekṣayā kāla-viśeṣāpekṣayā vā māmsa-niyamaḥ.

Prenatal conditioning of the child's character is advised.

19. athābhiprātar eva sthālī-pākāvṛtjāyam ceṣṭitvā, sthālī-pākasyopaghātam juhoti: agnaye svāhā, anumataye svāhā, devāya savitre satya-prasavāya svāhā, iti; hutvā uddhṛtya prāśnāti, prāśyetarasyāḥ prayacchati; prakṣālyā pānī, udapātram pūrayitvā tenainām trir abhyukṣati;

uttiṣṭhāto viśvāvaso,

saṁ jāyām patyā saha, iti.

19. Now, toward morning, after having prepared clarified butter according to the mode of the sthālī-pāka he takes of the sthālī-pāka and makes an offering (saying), to fire, hail, to Anumati, hail, to the radiant sun, the creator of truth, hail. After having made the offering, he takes up (the remnants of the cooked food) and eats. Having eaten he offers (the rest) to the other (his wife). After having washed his hands and filled the water vessel, he sprinkles her thrice with it (water) (saying), 'Get up from here, Viśvāvasu; seek another young woman, a wife with her husband.'

sthālī-pāka: literally, a pot of cooked food.

anumati: the feminine personification of divine favour. See R.V. X. 59. 6; X. 167. 3.

viśvāvasu: gandharva. Ā. God of love. See R.V. X. 25. 22.

prapūrvyām: young girl, tarunīm. Ā.

20. athainām abhipadyate:

amo'ham asmi, sā tvam;

sā tvam asi, amo'ham;

sāmāham asmi, ṛk vām;

dyaur aham, pṛthivī tvam;

tāv ehi samrabhāvahai,

saha reto dadhāvahai

pumse putrāya vittaye iti.

20. Then he embraces her, (saying), 'I am the vital breath and you are speech; you are speech and I am the vital breath. I am the Sāman and you are the Ṛg. I am the heaven and you are the earth. Come, let us strive together, let us mix semen that we may have a male child.'

abhipadyate: embraces. abhipattiḥ ālīnganam. Ā.

amah: vital breath. prāṇa. Ā.

Sāman rests on Ṛg, while it is chanted. ṛg-ādihāram hi sāma gīyate. Ā.

samrabhāvahai: let us strive together, udyaman karavāvahai. Ā.

21. athāsyā ūrū vihāpayati: vijihūthām dyāvāpṛthivī, iti tasyām arthaṁ niṣṭhāya, mukhena mukham samdhāya, triv enām anulomām anumārṣti:

garbhaṁ dhehi, sinīvāli; garbhaṁ dhehi, pṛthustuke, garbhaṁ te aśvinau devau ādhattām puṣkara-srajan.

21. Then he spreads apart her thighs, (saying) 'Spread yourselves apart, Heaven and Earth. After having inserted the member in her, after having joined mouth to mouth, he strokes her three times as the hair lies, (saying), 'Let Viṣṇu make the womb prepared. Let Tvaṣṭr shape the (various) forms. Let Prajā-pati pour in. Let Dhātṛ place the germ (the seed) for you. O Sinīvālī, give the seed; give the seed, O broad-tressed dame. Let the two Āśvins crowned with lotus wreaths place the seed.'

anulomam: as the hair lies, mūrdhānam ārabhya pādāntam.
kalpayatu: make prepared, putrotpatti-samarīhām karotu. Ā.
sinīvālī: the deity delightful to see: darśanārḥā devatā. Ā.

'When the human father thus emits him as seed into the womb, it is really the sun that emits him as seed into the womb . . . thence is he born, after that seed, that breath.' Jaiminīya-Upaniṣad-Brāhmaṇa III. 10. 4. see also Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa XVI. 14. 5. In Buddhist canonical literature three things are said to be necessary for conception, the union of father and mother, the mother's period and the presence of the gandharva: Majjhima Nikāya. I. 265-266; see also Pañcaviṃśa Brāhmaṇa IX. 3. 1. The gandharva corresponds to the divine nature which is the primary cause of generation, while the parents are only the concomitant causes. See Philo: Heres. 115. For Aristotle, 'Man and the Sun generate man.' Physics II. 2. Rūmī says: 'When the time comes for the embryo to receive the vital spirit, at that time the sun becomes its helper. This embryo is brought into movement by the sun, for the sun is quickly endowing it with spirit. From the other stars this embryo received only an impression, until the sun shone upon it. By which way did it become connected in the womb with the beauteous sun? By the hidden way that is remote from our sense-perception.' Mathnawī I. 3775-3779. In a very real sense, the commandment is significant; 'Call no man your father on earth; for one is your Father, which is in heaven.' John VI. 6. 3.

22. 'The (two) Āśvins twirl forth a flame with the (two) attrition sticks of gold. It is such a germ that we beg of you to be brought forth in the tenth month. As the earth contains the germ of fire and as the heaven is pregnant with the storm, as the air is the germ of quarters, even so I place a germ in you, so and so.'

See R.V. X. 184. also Atharva Veda V. 25. 3; V. 25. 5.

23. When she is about to bring forth he sprinkles her with water (saying): 'Even as the wind agitates a lotus pond on every side, even so let your foetus stir and come out along with its chorion. This Indra's fold has been made with a covering enclosed around. O Indra, cause him to come forth the after-birth along with babe.

See R.V. V. 78. 7-8. Pāraskara Grhya Sūtra I. 16 ff. This hymn is uttered for successful parturition, prasava-kāle sukha-prasavanārtham. Ś.

jarāyūnā: with its chorion, garbha-veṣṭana-māṁsa-khaṇḍena. Ā.
come out: nirgacchatu. Ā.

24. jāte'gnim upasamādhāya, anka ādhāya kamse prṣad-ājyam

24. When (the son is) born, after having prepared the fire, after having taken (the baby) in his lap and having put curds and clarified butter in a bronze cup, he makes an oblation again and again with those curds and clarified butter (saying), 'May I increase in this (son) and nourish a thousand in my home. May fortune never depart from his line with offspring and cattle. Hail. I offer to you mentally the vital forces that are in me. Whatever in my work I have done too much or whatever I have done here too little, let Agni the all-knowing, the beneficent, make it fit and good for us. Hail.

See Āśvalāyana Grhya Sūtra I. 13 ff: Pāraskara Grhya Sūtra I. 11 ff.; Sāṅkhāyana Grhya Sūtra I. 19 ff.

prṣad-ājyam: curds and clarified butter mixed, ghṛta-miśram dadhi prṣad-ājyam ity ucyate. Ā.

puṣyāsam: aneka-manuṣya-poṣako bhūyāsam. Ā.

25. athāsya dakṣiṇam kaṇam abhinihāya; vāg vāg iti trih. atha dadhi madhu ghṛtaṁ samnīya anantarhitena jāta-ūpeṇa prāśayati; bhūḥ te dadhāmi, bhuvas te dadhāmi, svas te dadhāmi bhūr bhuvaḥ svaḥ sarvaṁ tvayi dadhāmīti.

25. Then putting his mouth near the child's right ear, he says thrice, 'speech,' 'speech.' Then mixing curds, honey and clarified butter he feeds him out of a spoon of gold which is not placed within (the mouth) saying, 'I place in you the earth, I place in you the atmosphere, I place in you the heaven. I place in you everything, earth, atmosphere and heaven.'

jāta-rūpeṇa: hiraṇyena. Ś.

26. athāsya nāma karoti: vedo' sūti; tad asya tad guhyam eva nāma bhavati.

26. Then he gives him a name (saying), 'You are Veda.' So this becomes his secret name.

For a description of the two ceremonies, āyusya-karman and medhā-janana, see, Pāraskara Gṛhya Sūtra I. 16. 3; I. 17. 1-4; Āśvalāyana Gṛhya Sūtra I. 15. 1-8, Sāṅkhāyana Gṛhya Sūtra; I. 24; Gobhila Gṛhya Sūtra II. 8. 14-17; Manu II. 30-33.

27. athainam mātṛe pradāya stanam prayacchati;

yas te stanah śaśayo yo mayobhūh, yo ratnadhā vasuvid yaḥ sudatrah, yena viśvā puṣyasi vāryāni, sarasvati, tam iha dhātave kah.

27. Then he presents him to the mother and gives him her breast saying: 'Your breast which is unfailing and refreshing, wealthy, abundant, generous with which you nourish all worthy beings, Sarasvati, give it here (to my wife for my baby) to suck from.'

See R.V. I. 164. 49.

śaśayah: unfailing, śayah phalam, tena saha vartamānaḥ. Ā.

28. athāsya mātaram abhimantrayate:

28. Then he addresses the mother (of the baby): 'You are Ilā, descended from Mitra and Varuṇa. Being a heroine, you have brought forth a hero. You who have given us a hero for a son, be you the mother of (many) heroes.' Of such a son they say, 'You have gone beyond your father; you have gone beyond your grandfather.' Verily, he has reached the highest point in prosperity, fame and radiance of spirit, who is born as the son of a Brāhmaṇa who knows this.

ila: adorable. stutyābhogyāsi. Ā.

vīravatī: bahu-putrā bhava. Ā.

vīre: may be taken either in vocative or locative, mayi nimitta bhūte. brahmavarcasa: radiance of spirit shining in the face. No contempt for the body is indicated. Porphyry's statement of his master: 'Plotinus, the philosopher of our time was like one ashamed of being in a body,' will not get the support of the Upaniṣads.

CHĀNDOGYA UPANIṢAD

The Chāndogya Upaniṣad belongs to the Sāma Veda. Chandoga is the singer of the Sāman.¹ The Upaniṣad that belongs to the followers of the Sāma Veda is the Chāndogya Upaniṣad. It is a part of the Chāndogya Brāhmaṇa which has ten chapters. The first two chapters of the Brāhmaṇa deal with sacrifices and other forms of worship. The other eight constitute the Chāndogya Upaniṣad.

The first and the second chapters discuss the problems of liturgy and doctrine such as the genesis and significance of Aum and the meaning and names of Sāman.

VII 7.86

CHAPTER I

Section I

THE SYLLABLE AUM AS THE UDGĪTHA

1. aum ity etad akṣaram udgītham upāsīta, aum iti hr̥d gāyati tasyopavyākhyānam.

1. Aum. One should meditate on this syllable, the udgītha, for one sings the loud chant beginning with aum. Of this (follows) the explanation.

The syllable aum, with which every recital of the Vedic chants begins, is here represented as the symbol of the Supreme and therefore the means of the meditation of the Supreme: arcādivat para-syātmanah pratīkaṁ sampadyate; evaṁ nāmatvena pratīkatvena ca paramātmopāsana-sādhanaṁ śreṣṭhaṁ iti sarva-vedānteṣu avagatam. Ś. Before we attain to the supreme vision of God, the contemplative realisation, we have to resort to prayer and meditation. We may chant and sing with devout mind, with fervour of spirit, with an inmost longing for the things above, with a purity of soul. We strive to keep the soul unembarrassed and at rest from all thoughts. We direct our attention lovingly and continuously towards God.

In meditation, the soul is furnished with a symbol on which we fix our gaze, on which we concentrate all our imagination and reasoning. When meditation reaches its end, when there is no distraction or disquiet, when there is calm repose, sweet tranquillity, there is the vision. Any name may raise us to perfect contemplation. We start with prayer, we pass on to meditation. When the discursive acts cease, we have contemplation. The Upaniṣad opens with this instruction to concentrate on the syllable aum, to draw our thoughts away from all other subjects, to develop ekāgratā or one-pointedness. Symbol cannot be taken as final. It has a number of aspects. When it is transposed into the words of ordinary language it becomes dim and rigid. We then tend to confine the meaning within narrow dogmatic frames. Even though the syllable aum like all symbols covers the reality as by a veil, to those who know how to look, the veil becomes transparent.

2. eṣāṁ bhūtānāṁ pṛthivī rasah, pṛthivyā āpo rasah, apām oṣadhayo rasah, oṣadhīnāṁ puruṣo rasah, puruṣasya vāg rasah, vāca ṛg rasah, ṛcaḥ sāmā rasah, sāmna udgītho rasah.

2. The essence of these beings is the earth; the essence of the earth is water. The essence of water is plants; the essence of plants is a person. The essence of a person is speech. The essence of speech is the R̥k (hymn). The essence of the R̥k is the Sāman (chant). The essence of the Sāman (chant) is the udgītha.

rasa: essence, literally flavour.

Most of the hymns of the Sāma Veda are taken from the R.V.

3. sa eṣa rasānām rasatamaḥ paramaḥ parārdhyo'ṣtamo yad udgīthaḥ.

3. That is the quintessence of the essences, the Supreme, the highest, the eighth, namely the udgītha.

parārdhya: highest, from para highest and ardha place.

4. katamā katamā ṛk, katamat katamat sāma, katamaḥ katama udgītha iti vimṛṣtam bhavati.

4. Which one is the Ṛk? Which one is the Sāman? Which one is the udgītha? This is what is (now) considered.

5. vāg eva ṛk, prānaḥ sāmomyi etad akṣaram udgīthaḥ, tad vā etan mithunam yad vāk ca prānaś ca ṛk ca sāma ca.

5. Speech, indeed, is Ṛk; breath is Sāman, the syllable aum is the udgītha. Now, this is a pair, namely speech and breath, and also the Ṛk and the Sāman.

6. tad etan mithunam aum ity etasminn akṣare saṁsṛjyate; yadā vai mithunau samāgacchata, āpayato vai tāv anyo'nyasya kāmam.

6. This pair is joined together in the syllable aum. Verily, whenever a pair come together, they fulfil each other's desire.

7. āpayitā ha vai kāmānām bhavati ya etad evaṁ vidvān akṣaram udgītham upāste.

7. He, who knowing this thus, meditates on the syllable as the udgītha, becomes, verily, a fulfiller of desires.

8. tad vā etad anujñākṣaram, yaddhi kiṁ cānujānāty aum ity eva tad āha; eṣā eva samṛddhir yad anujñā, samardhayitā ha vai kāmānām bhavati ya etad evaṁ vidvān akṣaram udgītham upāste.

8. Verily, this syllable is of assent, for whenever one assents to anything he says simply 'aum.' What is assent is fulfilment. He, who knowing this thus, meditates on the syllable as the udgītha, becomes, verily, a fulfiller of desires.

9. teneyam trayī vidyā vartata, aum ity āśrāvayati, aum iti śaṁsati, aum ity udgāyati, etasyaivākṣarasyāpacityai mahimnā rasena.

9. By this does the threefold knowledge proceed. Saying aum, one recites: saying aum, one orders: saying, aum, one sings aloud, in honour of that syllable, with its greatness and its essence.

Threefold knowledge relates to the three orders of priests in the sacrificial rites. Ś thinks that the reference is to the Soma sacrifice.

10. tenobhau kuruto yaścaitad evaṃ veda yaś ca na veda: nānā tu vidyā cāvidyā ca; yad eva vidyayā karoti śraddhāyopanīṣadā, tad eva vīryavattaram bhavātīti, khalv etasyaivākṣarasyo paryākhyānam bhavati.

10. He who knows this thus, and he who knows not, both perform with it. Knowledge and ignorance, however, are different. What, indeed, one performs with knowledge, faith and meditation, that, indeed, becomes more powerful. This, verily, is the explanation of this syllable.

Vidyā is right knowledge, śraddhā is faith and upanīṣad is meditative insight: upanīṣadā yogena. Ś.

We must perform the sacrifice with knowledge and not ignorantly. We must understand what we are doing. God is the inspector of our hearts as much as the judge of our acts. Our acts must be accompanied by the devotion of our minds.

Section 2

LIFE (BREATH) AS THE UDGĪTHA

1. devāsura ha vai yatra samyetira ubhaye prājā-patyās tadd ha devā udgītham ājāhrur anenainān abhibhaviṣyāma iti.

1. When the gods and the demons, both descendants of Prajā-pati, contended with each other, the gods took hold of the udgītha, thinking, with this, we shall overcome them.

See B.U. I. 3. 1.

devāsura: gods and demons. Since the word deva is derived from a root denoting illumination, the 'gods' stand for such functions of the senses as are illuminated (regulated) by scriptures. śāstrodhbhāsītā indriya-vṛttayaḥ. And 'demons,' opposed to the former, stand for such functions of the senses as delight in activity towards all sensual objects appertaining to them and are naturally of the nature of darkness: tama ātmikā indriya-vṛttayaḥ. . . . Thus in the body of all beings there is a perpetual fight between the two: sarva-prāṇiṣu prati-deham devāsura-saṁgrāmo anādi-kāla-pravṛtta ity abhi-prāyaḥ.

2. te ha nāsikyam prāṇam udgītham upāsāmcakrire, tam hāsuraḥ pāpmanā vividhuḥ; tasmāt tenobhayam jighrati surabhi ca durgandhi ca, pāpmanā hy eṣa viddhaḥ.

2. Then they meditated on the udgītha as the breath in the nose. The demons afflicted that with evil. Therefore, with it one smells both the sweet smelling and the foul smelling, for it is afflicted with evil.

3. atha ha vācam udgītham upāsāmcakrire, tam hāsuraḥ, pāpmanā vividhuḥ; tasmāt tayobhayam vadati satyam cānṛtam ca, pāpmanā hy eṣa viddhā.

3. Then they meditated on the udgītha as speech. The demons afflicted that with evil. Therefore with it one speaks both the true and the false, for it is afflicted with evil.

4. atha ha cakṣur udgītham upāsāmcakrire, taddhāsuraḥ pāpmanā vividhuḥ; tasmāt tenobhayam paśyati darśanīyam cādarśanīyam ca, pāpmanā hy etad viddham.

4. When they meditated on the udgītha as the eye, the demons afflicted that with evil. Therefore with it one sees both the sightly and the unsightly, for it is afflicted with evil.

5. atha ha śrotam udgītham upāsāmcakrire, taddhāsuraḥ pāpmanā vividhuḥ; tasmāt tenobhayam śṇoti śravaṇīyam cāśravaṇīyam ca, pāpmanā hy etad viddham.

5. Then they meditated on the udgītha as the ear. The demons afflicted that with evil. Therefore with it one hears both what should be listened to and what should not be listened to, for it is afflicted with evil.

6. atha ha mana udgītham upāsāmcakrire, taddhāsuraḥ, pāpmanā vividhuḥ; tasmāt tenobhayam saṁkalpayate saṁkalpanīyam cāsaṁkalpanīyam ca, pāpmanā hy etad viddham.

6. Then they meditated on the udgītha as the mind. The demons afflicted that with evil. Therefore with it one imagines both what should be imagined and what should not be imagined, for it is afflicted with evil.

7. atha ha ya evāyam mukhyah prāṇas tam udgītham upāsāmcakrire, tam hāsuraḥ ṛtvā vidadhvamsur, yathāsmānam ākhaṇam ṛtvā vidhvamseta.

7. Then they meditated on the udgītha as the breath in the mouth. When the demons hit against it they were destroyed, just as (a ball of earth) hitting against a solid stone is destroyed.

mukhya prāṇa: breath in the mouth or the principal breath.
a ball of earth: nṛt-piṇḍa.

8. evam yathāśmānam ākhaṇam rtvā vidhvāṁsate, evam haiva sa vidhvāṁsate ya evamvidi pāpaṁ kāmāyate, yaś cainam abhidāṣati: sa eṣo'śmākhaṇaḥ.

8. Just as (a ball of earth) striking against a solid rock is destroyed, so will one be destroyed who wishes evil to one who knows this, as also one who injures him, for he is a solid rock.

9. naivaitena surabhiḥ na durgandhi vijānāty-apahata-pāpmā hy eṣa, tena yad aśnāti yat pibati tenetarān prāṇān avatī, etam u evāntato'vit votkrāmati, vyādadāty evāntata iti.

9. With this (breath) one discerns neither the sweet-smelling nor the foul smelling for this is free from evil. With this, whatever one eats or whatever one drinks, he protects the other vital breaths. And, not finding this (breath in the mouth) one finally departs; one finally leaves his mouth open.

10. taṁ hāṅgirā udgītham upāsāṁcakra, etam u evāṅgirasam manyante'ṅgānāṁ yad rasaḥ.

10. Āṅgiras meditated on this as the udgītha. People think that it is, indeed, Āṅgiras, because it is the essence of the limbs.

11. tena taṁ ha bṛhaspatir udgītham upāsāṁcakra etam u eva bṛhaspatim manyante, vāgghi bṛhatī tasyā eṣa patiḥ.

11. Bṛhaspati meditated on this as the udgītha. People think that it is, indeed, Bṛhaspati, because speech is great and it is the lord thereof.

12. tena taṁ hāyāsyā udgītham upāsāṁcakra, etam u evāyāsyam manyanta āsyād yat ayate.

12. Ayāsyā meditated on this as the udgītha. People think that it is, indeed, Ayāsyā, because it comes from the mouth.

13. tena taṁ ha baka dāl̥bhyo vidāṁcakāra, sa ha naimiṣīyānām udgātā babhūva, sa ha smaibhyaḥ kāmān āgāyati.

13. Baka Dāl̥bhya knew it. He became the udgātṛ priest of the people of Naimiṣa. He sang out for them their desires.

Baka Dāl̥bhya is mentioned in the M.B. as having performed a sacrifice for punishing Dhṛta-rāṣṭra for his rude behaviour: Śalya Parva 41.

14. āgātā ha vai kāmānām bhavati, ya etad evaṁ vidvān akṣaram udgītham upāsta ity adhyātmam.

14. He obtains wishes by singing, who knowing this thus, meditates on the udgītha as the syllable. This, with regard to the self.

These verses relate to the body and not the self.

Section 3

VARIOUS IDENTIFICATIONS OF THE UDGĪTHA AND ITS SYLLABLES

1. athādhidāivatam. ya evāsau tapati tam udgītham upāsītodyan vā eṣa prajābhya udgāyati, udyamś tamo-bhayam apahanti, apahantā ha vai bhayasya tamaso bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

1. Now, with reference to the divinities. Him who glows yonder (the Sun) one should meditate as the udgītha. Verily, on rising, he sings aloud for creatures. On rising, he dispels darkness and fear. He, verily, who knows this, becomes the dispeller of fear and darkness.

'As the sun arises, he removes the darkness of night and the fears of living beings consequent on it. One who knows the sun with these qualities, becomes the destroyer of all fears of the self in the shape of birth, death, etc., and also of the cause of fear, darkness in the shape of ignorance.' Ś.

2. samāna u evāyaṁ cāsau, coṣṇo'yam, uṣṇo'sau, svāra itīmam ācakṣate, svāra iti pratyāsvāra ity amuṁ tasmād vā etam imam amuṁ codgītham upāsīta.

2. This (breath) in the mouth and that (sun) are alike. This is warm. That is warm. This, they call sound and that, they call sound as the reflecting sound. Verily, one should meditate on this and on that as the udgītha.

3. atha khalu vyānam evodgītham upāsīta; yadvai prāṇiti sa prāṇo, yad apāṇiti so'pānaḥ; atha yaḥ prāṇāpānayoḥ sandhik sa vyāno, yo vyānaḥ sā vāk; tasmād aprāṇam anapānam vācam abhivyaḥharati.

3. But one should meditate on the diffused breath as the udgītha. That which one breathes in, that is the in-breath; that which one breathes out, that is the out-breath. The junction of the in-breath and the out-breath is the diffused breath. The diffused breath is the speech. Therefore one utters speech, without in-breathing and without out-breathing.

When we speak, we neither breathe in nor breathe out.

4. yā vāk sā ṛk, tasmād aprāṇan anapānan ṛcam abhivṛyāharati; yā ṛk tat sāma, tasmād aprāṇan anapānan sāma gāyati; yat sāma sa udgītha tasmād aprāṇan anapānan udgāyati.

4. Speech is Ṛk. Therefore one utters the Ṛk without in-breathing and without out-breathing. The Ṛk is the Sāman. Therefore one sings the Sāman, without in-breathing and without out-breathing. The Sāman is the udgītha. Therefore one chants the udgītha, without in-breathing and without out-breathing.

5. ato yāny anyāni vīryavanti karmāṇi, yathāgner manthanam, ājeḥ saraṇam, dṛdhasya dhanuṣa āyamanam, aprāṇan anapānam tāni karoti; etasya hetor vyānam evodgītham upāsīta.

5. Therefore, whatever other actions there are that require strength, such as the kindling of fire by friction, the running of a race, the bending of a strong bow, one performs (them) without in-breathing and without out-breathing. Therefore one should meditate on the diffused breath as the udgītha.

Whenever we do an action which involves effort and attention we hold our breath.

6. atha khalūdḡgīthākṣarāṇy upāsītodgītha iti prāṇa evot-prāṇena hy uttiṣṭhati; vāg gīr vāco ha gira ity ācakṣate'nnam tham anne hīdam sarvaṁ sthitam.

6. Now one should meditate on the syllables of the udgītha, ut, gī, tha. ut is breath, for through breath one rises. gī is speech, for speeches are called giras; tha is food, for on food is all this established.

7. d'yaur evot, antarikṣam gīh, pṛthivī tham; āditya evot, vāyur gīr, agnis tham; sāmaveda evot, yajurvedo gīr, ṛgvedas tham; dugdhe'smai vāg doham, yo vāco doho'nnavān annādo bhavati, ya etāny evaṁ vidvān udgīthākṣarāṇy upāsta, udgītha iti.

7. Heaven is ut, atmosphere is gī and the earth, tha. The sun is ut, the air, gī and the fire, tha. The Sāmaveda is ut, the Yajurveda, gī and the Rg Veda, tha. Speech yields milk and the milk is speech. For him, he becomes rich in food, an eater of food, who knows and meditates on the syllables of the udgītha thus, ut, gī, tha.

8. atha khalv āśīḥ samṛddhir upasaraṇānīty upāsita yena sāmṇā stoṣyan syāt tat sāmopadhāvet.

8. Now then, the fulfilment of wishes: One should meditate on the places of refuge. One should reflect on the Sāman with which one is about to sing a praise.

upasaraṇāni: places of refuge. Ś means by it objects contemplated. upasartavyāni, upagantavyāni, dhyeyāni.

9. yasyām ṛci tām ṛcam, yad āṛṣyaṁ tam ṛṣim, yām devatām abhiṣtoṣyan syāt, tām devatām upadhāvet.

9. One should reflect on the Rk in which the Sāman occurs, on the seer by whom it was seen, on the divinity to whom he is about to sing a praise.

10. yena chandasā stoṣyan syāt tac chanda upadhāvet. yena stomena stoṣyamāṇaḥ syāt tam stomam upadhāvet.

10. One should reflect on the metre in which he is about to sing a praise. One should reflect on the hymn-form in which he is about to sing a praise.

11. yām diśam abhiṣtoṣyan syāt tām diśam upadhāvet.

11. One should reflect on the quarter of space in the direction of which he is about to sing a praise.

12. ātmanam antata upasṛtya stuvīta; kāmam dhyāyann apramatto'bhyāśo ha yad asmai sa kāmam samṛdhyeta, yat-kāmam stuvītetī, yat-kāmam stuvītetī.

12. Finally, one should enter into oneself and sing a praise, meditating carefully on one's desire. Quickly will be fulfilled for him the desire, desiring which he may sing the praise, yea, desiring which he may sing the praise.

abhyāśa: quickly. Be sure, depend on it that it will be fulfilled.

Section 4

THE SUPERIORITY OF AUM

1. aum ity etad akṣaram udgītham upasītom iti hy udgāyati, tasyopavyākhyānam.

1. Aum. One should meditate on the udgītha as this syllable, for one sings the loud chant, beginning with aum. (Now follows) its explanation.

2. devā vai mṛtyor bibhyatas trayīm vidyām praviśams te chandobhir acchādayan, yad ebhir acchādayams tac chandasām chandas tvam.

2. Verily, the gods, when they were afraid of death, took refuge in the threefold knowledge. They covered themselves with metres. Because they covered themselves with these, therefore the metres are called chandas.

trayīm vidyām: threefold-knowledge, the three Vedas.

3. tān u tatra mṛtyur yathā matsyam udake pariṣāsyet; evaṁ paryapaśyad ṛci sāmni yajuṣi, te nu viditvordhvā ṛcaḥ sāmno yajuṣaḥ, svaram eva praviśan.

3. Death saw them there in the Rg, in the Sāman and in the Yajus just as one might see a fish in water. When they found this out, they rose out of the Rg, out of the Sāman, out of the Yajus and took refuge in sound.

svaram: sound, the syllable aum.

4. yadā vā ṛcam āpnoty aum ity evātisvaraty evaṁ sāmāivam yajur eṣa u svaro yad etad akṣaram etad amṛtam abhayam tat praviśya devā amṛtā abhayā abhavan.

4. Verily, when one learns the R̥k, one sounds out aum. (It is) the same with Sāman; (it is) the same with Yajus. This sound is that syllable, the immortal, the fearless. Having entered this, the gods become immortal, fearless.

5. sa ya etad evaṁ vidvān akṣaram prāṇaty etad evākṣaram svaram amṛtam abhayam praviśati, tat praviśya yad amṛtā devās tad amṛto bhavati.

5. He, who knowing it thus, praises this syllable, takes refuge in that syllable, in the immortal, fearless sound, and having entered it, he becomes immortal, even as the gods become immortal.

There is no difference of degree between the immortality of the gods and that of freed men. Ś.

Section 5

THE UDGĪTHA IDENTIFIED WITH THE SUN AND THE BREATH

1. atha khalu ya udgīthaḥ sa praṇavo yaḥ praṇavaḥ sa udgītha ity asau vā āditya udgītha, eṣa praṇava, aum iti hy eṣa svarann eti.

1. Now, verily, what is the udgītha is the Aum. What is Aum is the udgītha. And so verily, the udgītha is the yonder sun and the Aum, for (the sun) is continually sounding Aum.

svaṛann: sounding or going. Ś.

2. etam u evāham abhyagāśiṣam, tasmān mama tvam eko'sīti ha kauṣītakiḥ putram uvāca, rasmīns tvam paryāvartayād bahavo vai te bhaviṣyantiṭi adhidaivatam.

2. 'I sang praise to him alone; therefore you are my only (son).' Thus said Kauṣītaki to his son. 'Reflect on the (various) rays; verily, you will have many sons.' This, with reference to the divinities.

3. athādhyātmanā ya evāyam mukhyaḥ prāṇas tam udgītham upāsītom iti hy eṣa svarann eti.

3. Now with reference to the body. One should meditate on the breath in the mouth as the udgītha, for it is continually sounding aum.

4. etam u evāham abhyagāśiṣam, tasmān mama tvam eko'sīti ha kauṣītakiḥ putram uvāca, prāṇāns tvam bhūmānam abhigāyatād bahavo vai me bhaviṣyantiṭi.

4. 'I sang praise to him alone. Therefore you are my only (son).' Thus said Kauṣītaki to his son: 'Sing praise unto the breaths as manifold; verily, you will have many (sons).'

5. atha khalu ya udgīthaḥ sa praṇavaḥ, yaḥ praṇavaḥ sa udgītha iti hotṛ-śadanādd haivāpi durudgītam anusamāharatīty anusamāharatīti.

5. Now, verily, what is the udgītha is the aum. What is aum is the udgītha. (If one knows this), verily, from the seat of the Hotṛ priest, all wrong singing is corrected, yea is corrected.

hotṛ-śadana: the place from which the Hotṛ priest gives instructions.

Section 6

THE ṚG. AND THE SĀMA VEDAS

1. iyam eva ṛg, agniḥ sâma, tad etad etasyâm ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma gīyate, iyam eva sāgnir amas tat sâma.

1. This (earth) is the Ṛk and fire is the Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. This (earth) is sā, and fire is ama and that makes sāman.

2. antarikṣam eva ṛg, vāyuh sâma, tad etad etasyâm ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma gīyate. antarikṣam eva sâ, vāyur amas tat sâma.

2. The atmosphere is the Ṛk and the air is Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. The sky is sā and the air is ama, and that makes sāman.

3. dyaus eva ṛg ādityas sâma, tad etad etasyâm ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma gīyate, dyaus eva sādityo'mas tat sâma.

3. The heaven is Ṛk and the Sun is Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. Heaven is sā and the sun is ama and that makes sāman.

4. nakṣatrāṇy eva ṛk, candramāḥ sâma, tad etad etasyâm ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma gīyate, nakṣatrāṇy eva sâ, candramā amas tat sâma.

4. The stars are Ṛk and the moon is Sāma. This Sāma rests on that Ṛk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. The stars are sā and the moon ama and that makes sāma.

5. atha yad etad ādityasya śuklam bhāḥ saiva ṛg, atha yan nīlam parah kṛṣṇam tat sâma, tad etad etasyâm ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sâma gīyate,

5. Now, the white light of the sun is Ṛk; the blue exceeding darkness is Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk; therefore this Sāman is sung as resting on that Ṛk.

6. atha yad evaitad ādityasya śuklam bhāḥ saiva sâtha yan nīlam parah kṛṣṇam tad amas tat sāmātha ya eṣo'ntar āditye hiraṇmayah puruṣo dṛśyate, hiraṇya-śmaśrur hiraṇya-keśa āpra-nakhāt sarva eva suvarṇah.

6. Now, the white light of the Sun is sā and the blue, exceeding darkness, is ama. That makes Sāman. Now that golden person who is seen within the sun, has a golden beard and golden hair. All is golden to the tips of the nails.

sūvarṇa: gold, used to symbolise light, life and immortality.

7. tasya yathā kapyāsam puṇḍarikam evam akṣiṇī, tasyoditi nāma; sa eṣa sarvebhyaḥ pāpmabhyā uḍiti; uḍeti ha vai sarvebhyaḥ pāpmabhyo ya evaṁ veda.

7. His eyes are even as a red lotus flower. His name is high (ut). He has risen above all evil. Verily, he who knows this, rises above all evil.

The colour of the lotus is described by a comparison with the kapyāsa or the seat of the monkey.

8. tasya ṛk ca sāma ca geṣṇau, tasmād udgīthaḥ, tasmāt tvevōdgātaitasya hi gātā; sa eṣa ye cāmuṣmāt parāṇico lokās teṣāṁ ceṣṭe deva kāmānaṁ cety adhidaivatam.

8. His songs are the Rk and the Sāman. Therefore (they are called) the udgītha. Hence the udgātr priest (is so called) for he is the singer of this. He is the lord of the worlds which are beyond that (sun) and also of the desires of the gods. This, with reference to the divinities.

geṣṇau: songs. Ś means by it 'joints.' 'As the God is the self of all, in as much as He is the lord of the desires of all the worlds, high and low, it is only reasonable that He should have Rk and Sāman, in the shape of earth and fire, for his joints.' Ś.

Section 7

I. athādhyātmam: vāg eva ṛk, prāṇaḥ sāma, tad etad etasyām ṛcy adhyūḍhaṁ sāma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍhaṁ sāma gīyate, vāg eva sā prāṇo' mas tat sāma.

I. Now with reference to the body. Speech is the Rk: breath is the Sāman. This Sāman rests upon that Rk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on that Rk. Speech is sā and breath, ama and that makes sāman.

2. caḥsur eva ṛg ātmā sāma, tad etad etasyām ṛcy adhyūḍham sāma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sāma gīyate, caḥsur eva sāt'lmā'mas tat sāma.

2. The eye is the Ṛk; the soul is the Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk; therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. The eye is sā and the soul ama and that makes sāman.

3. śrotram eva ri manah sāma, tad etad etasyām ṛcy adhyūḍham sāma, tasmād ṛcy adhyūḍham sāma gīyate, śrotram eva sā mano'mas tat sāma.

3. The ear is the Ṛk and the mind is the Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. The ear is sā and the mind ama and that makes sāman.

4. atha yad etad akṣṇaḥ śuklam bhāh saiva ṛk, atha yan nīlam paraḥ kṛṣṇam tat sāma, tad etad etasyām ṛcy adhyūḍham sāma, tasmāt ṛcy adhyūḍham sāma gīyate, atha yad evaitad akṣṇaḥ śuklam bhāh saiva sāt'ha yan nīlam paraḥ kṛṣṇam tad amas tat sāma.

4. Now, the white light of the eye is Ṛk and the blue, exceeding darkness is Sāman. This Sāman rests on that Ṛk. Therefore the Sāman is sung as resting on the Ṛk. The white light of the eye is sā and the blue, exceeding darkness, ama and that makes sāman.

5. atha ya eṣo'ntar-akṣiṇī puruṣo drśyate saiva ṛk, tat sāma, tad uktham, tad yajuh, tad brahma, tasyaitasya tad eva rūpam yad amuṣya rūpam, yāv amuṣya geṣṇau tau geṣṇau, yan nāma tan nāma.

5. Now, this person who is seen within the eye is the hymn (ṛk), the chant (the sāman), is the recitation (uktha), is the sacrificial formula (yajus), is the prayer (brahman). The form of this one is the same as the form of that (person seen in the sun). The songs of the former are the songs of this. The name of the one is the name of the other.

6. sa eṣa ye caitasmād arvāṇco lokās teṣām ceṣṭe manuṣya-kāmānām ceti, tad ya ime vīṇāyām gāyanty etam te gāyanti, tasmāt te dhana-saṇayah.

6. He is the lord of the worlds which are under this one and also of men's desires. So those who sing on the vīṇā sing of him. Therefore they are winners of wealth.

Vīṇā is a musical instrument which has had a long history in India.

7. atha ya etad evaṁ vidvān sāma gāyaty ubhau sa gāyati, so'munaiva sa eṣa ye cāmuṣmāt parāṅco lokās tāms cāpnoti deva-kāmāms ca.

7. Now, he, who knowing this, sings the Sāman, sings of both. Through the former (person in the sun) he obtains the worlds which are beyond that (the sun) as also the desires of the gods.

8. athānenaiva ye caitasmād, arvāṅco lokās tāms cāpnoti manuṣya-kāmāms ca tasmād u haivaṁ-vid udgātā brūyāt.

8. And through this (person in the eye) he obtains the worlds which are under the latter and also the desires of men. Therefore an udgātṛ priest, who knows this, should say (the following).

9. kaṁ te kāmam āgāyāntīy eṣa hy eva kāmāgānasyeṣṭe, ya evaṁ vidvān sāma gāyati, sāma gāyati.

9. What desire may I win for you by singing? 'He, truly, becomes capable of obtaining desires by singing, he, who knowing this sings the Sāman, yea, sings the Sāman.'

Section 8

THE IDENTIFICATION OF UDGĪTHA

1. trayo hodgeṭhe kuśalā babbhūvuh, śilakaḥ śālāvatyas caikitā-yano dālhbhyaḥ, pravāhaṇo jaivalir iti, te hocur udgṭhe vai kuśalāḥ smo hantodgeṭhe kathām vadāma iti.

1. There were three persons well-versed in the udgītha, Śilaka the son of Śālāvat, the son of Cikitāna of the Dalbha clan, and Pravāhaṇa, son of Jīvala. They said: 'We are, indeed, well-versed in the udgītha. Well, let us have a discussion on the udgītha.'

2. tatheti ha samupaviviśuh, sa ha pravāhaṇo jaivalir uvāca, bhāgavatāv agre vadatām, brāhmaṇayor vadator vācam śroṣ-yāmīti.

2. 'So be it' said they and sat down. Then, Pravāhaṇa, son of Jīvala, said: 'You two, sirs, speak first. I will listen to the words of the two Brāhmaṇas discussing.'

From this it appears that Pravāhaṇa was a Kṣatriya. See C.U. V. 3. 5, where he is said to be rājanya-bandhuh. Even though he is not a Brāhmaṇa, he happens to be the one who knows the true meaning of udgītha.

3. sa ha śilakah śālāvatyas'caikitāyanam dālbyam uvāca, hanta tvā prcchānti; prccheti hovāca.

3. Then, Śilaka, son of Śālāvat said to the son of Cikitāna of the Dalbha clan, 'Well, may I question you?' He replied, 'Question.'

4. kā sāmno gatiṛ iti, svāra iti hovāca; svarasya kā gatiṛ iti, prāṇa iti hovāca; prāṇasya kā gatiṛ ity, annam iti hovāca annasya kā gatiṛ ity, āpa iti hovāca.

4. He asked, 'What is the goal of the Sāman?' He replied, 'It is sound.' He asked, 'What is the goal of sound?' He replied, 'Breath.' He asked, 'What is the goal of breath?' He replied, 'Food.' He asked, 'What is the goal of food?' He replied, 'Water.'

gatiḥ: goal. substratum or basis or final principle: gatiṛ āśrayaḥ parāyaṇam ity etat. Ś.

5. apām kā gatiṛ iti, asau loka iti hovācāmuṣya lokasya kā gatiṛ iti, na svargaṁ lokam atinayed iti hovāca, svargaṁ vāyam lokam sāmābhisamsthāpayāmaḥ svarga-samsthāvaṁ hi sāmēti.

5. (He asked) 'What is the goal of water?' He replied, 'Yonder world.' (He asked) 'What is the goal of the yonder world?' He replied, 'One should not lead beyond the heavenly world.' We established the Sāman in the world of heaven, for the Sāman is praised in heaven.

Cp. The Sāma Veda is the world of heaven: svargo vai lokaḥ sāma vedāḥ.

6. tam ha śilakah śālāvatyas'caikitāyanam dālbyam uvāca: apratiṣṭhitam vai kila te, dālbya, sāma; yas tv 'etarhi brūyān mūrdhā te vipatiṣyatīti mūrdhā te vipated iti.

6. Then Śilaka, son of Śālāvat said to Cikitāna of the Dalbha clan: 'Verily, indeed, your Sāman, of you of the Dalbha clan, is unestablished. If now, someone were to say, your head will fall off, surely your head would fall off.'

The enormity of the error is suggested by the statement that your head will fall off if one utters a curse like that.

7. hantāham etad bhagavato vedānti, viddhīti hovācāmuṣya lokasya kā gatiṛ ity ayaṁ loka iti hovācāsyā lokasya kā gatiṛ iti na pratiṣṭhām lokam atinayed iti hovāca pratiṣṭhām vayam lokam sāmābhisaṁsthāpayāmaḥ pratiṣṭhā-saṁstāvaṁ hi sāmeti.

7. He said, 'Well, I would like to know this from you; sir, 'Know it,' said he. (He asked) 'What is the goal of the yonder world?' He replied, 'One should not lead beyond this world-support. We establish the Sāman on the world as support for the Sāman is praised as the support.'

8. taṁ ha pravāhaṇo jaivalir uvācāntavaddhai kila te śālāvatya sāma-yastvetarhi brūyān mūrdhā te vipatiṣyatīti mūrdhā te vipated iti. hantāham etad bhagavato vedānīti viddhīti hovāca.

8. Then Pravāhaṇa, son of Jivala, said to him, 'Verily, indeed, your Sāman, O son of Śālāvat, has an end. If someone now were to say, "Your head will fall off," surely your head would fall off.' He said, 'Well, I would like to know this from you, Sir.' He replied, 'Know it.'

Section 9

THE UDGĪTHA IDENTIFIED WITH SPACE

1. asya lokasya kā gatir ity ākāśa iti hovāca. sarvāṇi ha vā imāni bhūtāny ākāśād eva samutpadyante, ākāśam pratyastam yanty ākāśo hy evaibhyo jyāyān, ākāśaḥ parāyaṇam.

1. 'What is the goal of this world?' He replied, 'Space, for all these creatures are produced from space. They return back into space. For space is greater than these. Space is the final goal.'

See VII. 12. 1.

Space is said to be the origin, support and end of all.

The theory that space is the ultimate ground of the world is regarded as more satisfactory than the view which traces it to sound, breath, food, water, yonder world or this world.

2. sa eṣa paro-varīyān udgīthaḥ, sa eṣo'nantaḥ, paro-varīyo hāsya bhavati, paro-varīyaso ha lokān jayati ya etad evaṁ vidvān parovarīyān sam udgītham upāste.

2. This is the udgītha, highest and best. This is endless. He who, knowing this, meditates on udgītha, the highest and best, becomes the highest and best and obtains the highest and best worlds.

3. taṁ haitam atidhanvā śaunaka udara-śāṇḍilyāyoktvovāca. yāvat ta enam prajāyām udgītham vedīsyante, paro-varīyo haibhyas tāvad asminloke jīvanam bhaviṣyati.

3. When Atidhanvan Śaunaka taught this Udgītha to Udara Śāṇḍilya, he also said: 'As long as they shall know this Udgītha among your descendants, so long their life in this world will be the highest and best.

4. tathā'muṣmimloke loka iti; sa ya etad evaṁ viādvān upāste parovariya eva hāsyāsmiml loke jīvanam bhavati, tathā'muṣmiml loke loka iti, loke loka iti.

4. And so will their state in that other world be. One who thus knows and meditates—his life in this world becomes the highest and best and so his state in that other world, yea, in that other world.'

Section 10

THE DIVINITIES CONNECTED WITH THE SACRIFICES

1. maṭaci hateṣu kuruv āṭikyā saha jāyayoṣastir ha cākṛāyaṇa ibhya-grāme pradrāṇaka uvāsa.

1. Among the Kurus, when they (crops) were destroyed by hailstorms,¹ there lived in the village of the possessor of elephants a very poor man, Uṣasti Cākṛāyaṇa, with his young wife, Āṭiki.

The story is intended to make the comprehension easier. ibhya-grāme—in the village of the possessor of elephants or in the village belonging to Ibhya.

2. sa hebhyaṁ kulmāśān khādantam bibhikṣe, taṁ hovāca, neto'nye vidyante yac ca ye ma ima upanihitā iti.

2. He begged (food) of the possessor of elephants, while he was eating beans. He (the possessor) said to him: 'I have no other than these which are set before me.'

The rich man said that the beans were in the plate from which he was eating and therefore they were impure.

3. eteśāṁ me dehīti hovāca, tān asmai pradadau, hantānupānam ity, ucchiṣṭhaṁ vai me pītaṁ syād iti hovāca.

3. He said: 'Give me some of them.' He gave them to him and said, 'Here is water (to drink).' He replied, 'That would be for me to drink something left by another (and hence impure).'

4. na svid ete'py ucchiṣṭhāḥ iti, na vā ajīviṣyam imān akhādann iti hovāca, kāmo ma udaka-pānam iti.

4. Are not these (beans) also left over (and so impure)? 'Verily,' said he, 'I could not live if I did not eat these. The drinking of water is at my will.'

'One who is endowed with knowledge and fame and capable of helping himself and others, if such a one, falling into a state of distress should do such a thing (eat unclean food), no demerit touches him. A wrong action is faulty only when it is performed while other courses that are not wrong are open and would as easily save one's life.' Ś.

5. sa ha khāditvā'tiśeṣāṁ jāyāyā ājahāra, sāgra eva subhikṣā babbhūva, tān pratigṛhya nidadhau.

5. When he had eaten, he gave what still remained to his wife. She had eaten well even before. After taking them, she kept them safe.

6. sa ha prātaḥ samjīhāna uvāca, yad batānnasya labhemahi, labhemahi dhana-mātrām: rājāsau yakṣyate, sa mā sarvair ārtvij-yair vṛṇīte.

6. Next morning, he arose and said, 'Oh, if I could get something to eat, I might make a little money. The king over there is having a sacrifice performed for himself. He might choose (select) me to perform all the priestly offices.'

7. taṁ jāyovāca, hanta eta ima eva kulmāṣā iti: tān khāditvāmum yajñam vitatam eyāya.

7. His wife said to him: 'Here, my lord, are the beans.' Having eaten them, he went over to the sacrifice that was being performed.

In addition to personal religion, the Vedas advocated public worship by means of sacrifices. In the period of the Veda, there were no temples. Public worship was needed in view of the social nature of man. In a crowd, emotions are more easily excited. In every religion, social worship of God is recognised, in which music, singing and ritual are employed to evoke religious feeling and actions. Yajñas or sacrifices are solemn and stately social acts.

8. tatrodgātīṁ āstāve stosyamāṇān upopaviveśa, sa ha prastotāram uvāca.

8. Then he sat down near the Udgātr priests as they were about to sing the hymn in the place (assigned) for singing. Then he said to the Prastotr priest:

9. prastotar yā devatā prastāvam anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān prastosyasi, mūrdhā te vipatiṣyati.

9. 'O Prastotr priest, if you sing the introductory praise without knowing the divinity that belongs to it, your head will fall off.'

10. evam evodgātāram uvācodgātar yā devatodgītham anvāyattā tām ced avidvān udgāyasi, mūrdhā te vipatiṣyati.

10. In the same manner he said to the Udgātr priest, 'Oh, Udgātr priest, if you chant the udgītha without knowing the divinity that belongs to it, your head will fall off.'

11. evam eva pratihartāram uvāca, pratihartar yā devatā pratihāram anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān pratihariṣyasi, mūrdhā te vipatiṣyati: te ha samāratās tūṣṇīm āsāmcakrīre.

11. In the same manner, he said to the Pratihartṛ priest, 'Oh, Pratihartṛ priest, if you take up the response without knowing the divinity that belongs to it, your head will fall off' They stopped and sat down in silence.

In performing sacrifices we should have a knowledge of their meaning.

Section II

1. atha hainam yajamāna uvāca, bhagavantam vā aham vividiṣāṇīti; uṣastir asmi cākrāyaṇa iti hovāca.

1. Then, to him, the institutor of the sacrifice said, 'Verily, I would wish to know you, sir.' He replied, 'I am Uṣasti Cākrāyaṇa.'

2. sa hovāca, bhagavantam vā aham ebhiḥ sarvair ārtviṣyaiḥ paryaiṣiṣam, bhagavato vā aham avittiyā-anyaṇ avṛṣi.

2. Then, he said, 'I looked for you for all these priestly offices. Verily, not finding you, sir, I have chosen others.'

3. bhagavāns tv eva me sarvair ārtviṣṭair iti; tatheti; aha tarhy eta eva samatiṣṭāḥ stuvatām; yāvat tv ebhyo dhanam dadyās, tāvan mama dadyā iti. tatheti ha yaṣamāna uvāca.

3. But now, sir, please take up all the priestly offices. 'So be it,' he said, 'let these with my permission, sing the praises. But as much wealth as you give to them, so much give to me also.' The institutor of the sacrifice said, 'So be it.'

4. atha hainam prastotopasasāda: prastotar yā devatā prastāvam anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān prastoṣyasi, mūrdhā te vipatiṣyatīti: mā bhagavān avocat. katamā sā devateti.

4. Then the Prastotr priest approached him (and said), 'You, sir, said unto me, "Oh Prastotr priest, if you sing the introductory praise without knowing the divinity that belongs to it, your head will fall off." Which is that divinity?'

5. prāṇa iti hovāca, sarvāṇi ha vā imāṇi bhūtāṇi prāṇam evābhisamviśanti, prāṇam abhyujjihate, saiṣā devatā prastāvam anvāyattā: tām ced avidvān prastoṣyo mūrdhā te vyapatiṣyat tathoktasya mayeti.

5. 'Breath,' said he. 'Verily, indeed, all beings here enter (into life) with breath, and depart (from life) with breath. This is the divinity belonging to the Prastāva. If you had sung the Prastāva without knowing it, after you had been told so by me, your head would have fallen off.'

See T.U. III. 3.

6. atha hainam udgātopasasādodgātar yā devatodgūtham anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān udgāsyasi, mūrdhā te vipatiṣyatīti: mā bhagavān avocat. katamā sā devateti.

6. Then the Udgātr priest approached him (and said), 'You, sir, said unto me: "O Udgātr priest, if you sing the udgūtha without knowing the divinity that belongs to it, your head will fall off." Which is that divinity?'

7. āditya iti hovāca, sarvāṇi ha vā imāṇi bhūtāṇy ādityam uccaiḥ santam gāyanti; saiṣā devatodgūtham anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān udgāsyas, mūrdhā te vyapatiṣyat tathoktasya mayeti.

7. 'The sun,' said he. 'Verily, indeed, all beings here sing of the sun, when he is up. This is the divinity connected with the udgūtha. If, without knowing this, you had chanted the udgūtha, after you had been told so by me, your head would have fallen off.'

8. atha hainam pratihartopasasāda, pratihartar yā devatā pratihāram anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān pratiharīṣyasi, mūrdhā te vipatiṣyati; mā bhagavān avocat. katamā sa devateti.

8. Then the Pratihartṛ priest approached him (and said), 'You sir, said unto me, "Oh Pratihartṛ priest, if you take up the response without knowing the divinity that belongs to it, your head will fall off." Which is that divinity?'

9. annam iti hovāca, sarvāṇi ha vā imāni bhūtāny annam eva pratiharamāṇāni jīvanti, saiṣā devatā pratihāram anvāyattā, tām ced avidvān pratyaharīṣyaḥ, mūrdhā te vyapatiṣyat tathoktasya mayeti, tathoktasya mayeti.

9. 'Food,' said he. 'Verily, indeed, all beings here live, when they partake of food. This is the divinity that belongs to the Pratihāra, and if, without knowing this, you had taken up the Pratihāra, after you had been told so by me, your head would have fallen off.'

Cp. T.U. III. 2.

Meditation without knowledge is barren of results.

Section 12

A SATIRE ON PRIESTLY RITUAL

1. athātaḥ śauva udgīthaḥ. tadd ha bako dālbyho glāvo vā maitreyaḥ svādhyāyam udvavrāja.

1. Now, next, the udgītha of the dogs. Baka Dālbyha or Glāva Maitreya went forth for the study of the Veda.

Here are two names for one person, svādhyāya: study of the Vedas.

Cp. Patañjali's definition of niyama:
śauca-santoṣa-tapaḥ-svādhyāyeśvara-pramīdhānāni. Yoga Sūtra, II. 32.

It is the study of the scriptures and recitation of mantras which lead to purity of mind.

vedānta-śatarudrīya-pranavādi japam budhāḥ.

sattva-buddhi-karam pumsām svādhyāyam paricakṣate.

Svādhyāya is the study of the scriptures dealing with liberation or the repetition of the praṇava.

svādhyāyo mokṣasāstrāṇām adhyayanam praṇava-japo vā.

2. tasmai śvā svetaḥ prādur-babhūva: tam anye śvāna upa-sametyocur annam no bhagavān āgāyatu aśanāyāma vā iti.

2. Unto him there appeared a white dog. Other dogs gathered round this (one) and said, 'Obtain food for us by singing. Verily, we are hungry.'

3. tān hovācchaiva mā prātar upasamīyāte; tadd ha bako dālbhya glāvo vā maitreyaḥ pratipālayām cakāra.

3. Then he said to them: 'Come to me here tomorrow morning.' So Baka Dālbhya or Glāva Maitreya kept watch.

4. te ha yathaivedam bahiṣpavamānena stoṣyamānāḥ sanirab-dhāḥ, sarpaṇtīty evam āsaṣṛpus te ha samupaviśya him cakruḥ.

4. Just as the priests, when they are about to chant with the bahiṣpavamāna hymn of praise, move along, joined to one another, so did the dogs move along. Then they sat down together and made the noise 'him.'

5. aum adāma, aum pibāma, aum devo varuṇaḥ prajāpatiḥ savitānnam ihāharat. anna-pate annam ihāhara, āhara, aum iti.

5. (They sang), 'Aum, let us eat, Aum, let us drink, Aum, may the god Varuṇa, Prajā-pati and Savitr bring food here. O Lord of food, bring food here, yea, bring it here. Aum.'

This section is a satirical protest against the externalism of the sacrificial creed, in the interests of an inward spiritual life.

Madhva attributes the hymn to Vāyu, who assumed the form of a dog.

Section 13

THE MYSTICAL MEANING OF CERTAIN SOUNDS

1. ayam vāva loko hāu-kāraḥ, vāyur hāi-kāraś candramā atha-kāraḥ, ātmeha-kāro'gnir i-kāraḥ.

1. This world is the syllable hāu. The air is the syllable hāi, the moon is the syllable atha. The self is the syllable iha. The fire is the syllable i.

The syllables mentioned are the sounds used in the recitation of Sāman hymns.

2. āditya ū-kāro nihava e-kāro viśvedevā au-ho-yi-kāraḥ, prajā-patir him-kāraḥ; prāṇaḥ svarō'nnam yā, vāg virāṭ.

2. The sun is the syllable u. Invocation is the syllable e. The Viśvedevas is the syllable au-ho-i. Prajā-pati is the syllable him. Breath is sound. Food is ya. Virāj is speech.

yā vāg virāt. Cp. R.V. X. 189. 3. trīṃśad-dhāmā virājati vāk.

Her character is prajñā or prajñātman, only partially actual in the individual self-consciousness, distinguishing the I from the not-I, the inner world from the outer one. In ordering life, the potential all-consciousness lies asleep in the depths of the human body. It may be awakened by the discipline of yoga.

3. aniruktas trayodaśaḥ stobhaḥ saṁcaro hum-kārah.

3. The undefined is the variable, thirteenth, interjectional sound hum.

4. dugdhe'smai vāg doham, yo vāco doho'nnavān annādo bhavati: ya etām evaṁ sāmnam upaniṣadam vedopaniṣadam veda.

4. Speech yields to him the milk, which is the milk of speech itself. He becomes rich in food, an eater of food—one who knows thus this mystic meaning of the Sāmans, yea, who knows the mystic meaning.

CHAPTER II

Section I

THE CHANT IS GOOD IN VARIOUS WAYS

1. auri samastasya khalu sāmna upāsanaṁ sādhu, yat khalu sādhu tat sāmety ācakṣate, yad asādhu tad a-sāmeti.

1. Aum, Meditation on the entire Sāman is good. Whatever is good, people call Sāman and whatever is not good a-sāman.

2. tad utāpy āhuḥ sāmnaṁ nam upāgād iti sādhuṁ nam upāgād ity eva tad āhuḥ asāmnaṁ nam upāgād ity asādhuṁ nam upāgād ity eva tad āhuḥ.

2. So also people say, 'He approached with Sāman'; that is they say, 'he approached him in a kindly way.' They say, 'He approached him with no Sāman,' i.e. they say 'he approached him in no kindly way.'

Sāman is understood as the good, as the dharma.

3. athotāpy āhuḥ sāma no bateti yat sādhu bhavati sādhu batety eva tad āhuḥ, asāma no bateti yad asādhu bhavaty asādhu batety eva tad āhuḥ.

3. And they say 'this, verily, is Sāman for us.' Where they say 'this is good for us' when anything is good. And they say 'this is a sāman for us,' where they say, 'this is not good' when anything is not good.

4. sa ya etad evaṁ vidvān sādhu sāmety upāste' bhyāśo ha yad evaṁ sādhuḥ dharmā ā ca gaccheyur upa ca nameyuh.

4. He who, knowing this, meditates on the Sāman as good, all good qualities would quickly approach him and accrue to him.

Section 2

SOME ANALOGIES TO THE FIVEFOLD CHANT IN THE WORLDS

1. lokeṣu pañca-vidhaḥ sāmopāsitaḥ: prthivī him-kāraḥ, agniḥ prastāvo'ntarikṣaḥ udgīthaḥ, ādityaḥ pratihāro dyaur nidhanam ity ūrdhveṣu.

1. In the worlds, one should meditate on the Sāman as fivefold; the earth as the syllable him, fire as the prastāva, the atmosphere as the udgītha, the sun as the pratihāra and the sky as the nidhana (conclusion). This, among the higher (ascending).

The sky is said to be nidhana, inasmuch as those that depart from this world are deposited (nidhīyante) in the sky.

2. athāvṛtteṣu, dyaur him-kāra, ādityaḥ prastāvo'ntarikṣam udgītho'gniḥ pratihāraḥ, pṛthivī nidhanam.

2. Now in the reverse (descending order) the sky as the syllable him, the sun as the prastāva, the atmosphere as the udgītha, the fire as the pratihāra and the earth as the nidhana.

The earth is the nidhana as the people that come back to the earth are deposited here.

3. kalpante hāsmāi lokā ūrdhvās cāvṛttās ca ya etad evaṁ vidvāṁl lokeṣu pañca-vidham sāmopāste.

3. The worlds, in the ascending and reverse orders, belong to him, who, knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in the worlds.

In different ways the importance of the meditation is indicated.

Section 3

IN THE RAINSTORM

1. vṛṣṭau pañca-vidham sāmopāsita, puro-vāto him-kāro, megho jāyate sa prastāvaḥ, varṣati sa udgīthaḥ, vidyotate stanayati sa pratihāraḥ.

1. One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman in the rain. The preceding wind as the syllable him; the formation of the cloud is the prastāva. What rains is the udgītha; the lightning and the thunder as the pratihāra.

2. udgrhṇāti tan nidhanam, varṣati hāsmāi varṣayati ha ya etad evaṁ vidvān vṛṣṭau pañca-vidham sāmopāste.

2. The cessation as the nidhana. It rains for him and he causes it to rain, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in rain.

Section 4

IN THE WATERS

1. sarvāsv apsu pañca-vidhaṁ sāmopāsīta, megho yat samplavate sa him-kāro yad varṣati sa prastāvo, yāḥ prācyah syandante sa udgīthaḥ, yāḥ pratīyah sa pratihārah, samudro nidhanam.

1. One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman in all the waters. When a cloud forms, that is the syllable him, when it rains, that is a prastāva; when (the waters) flow to the east, they are udgītha. When they flow to the west they are pratihāra. The ocean is the nidhana.

2. na hāpsu praity apsumān bhavati ya etad evāṁ vidvān sarvāsv apsu pañca-vidhaṁ sāmopāste.

2. He does not die in water, he becomes rich in water, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in all the waters.

Section 5

IN THE SEASONS

1. ṛtuṣu pañca-vidhaṁ sāmopāsīta vasanto him-kāro, grīṣmaḥ prastāvaḥ, varṣā udgīthaḥ, śarat pratihārah, hemanto nidhanam.

1. One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman, among the seasons, the spring as the syllable him, the summer as the prastāva, the rainy season as the udgītha, the autumn as the pratihāra and the winter as the nidhana.

2. kalpante hāsmā ṛtava ṛtumān bhavati ya etad evaṁ vidvān ṛtuṣu pañca-vidhaṁ sāmopāste.

2. The seasons belong to him and he becomes rich in seasons, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman in the seasons.

Section 6

IN THE ANIMALS

1. paśuṣu pañca-vidhaṁ sāmopāsīta, ajā him-kāro'vayah prastāvaḥ, gāva udgītho'śvāḥ pratihārah, puruṣo nidhanam.

1. One should meditate on the fivefold Sāman among the animals, the goats as the syllable him, the sheep as the prastāva, the cows as the udgītha, the horses as the pratihāra and the human being as the nidhana.

The human being is the culmination of animal development.

2. bhavanti hāsya paśavaḥ paśumān bhavati ya etad evaṁ vidvān paśuṣu pañca-vidham sāmopāste.

2. Animals belong to him and he becomes rich in animals, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the fivefold Sāman among the animals.

Section 7

AMONG THE VITAL BREATHS

1. prāṇesu pañca-vidham paro-varīyaḥ sāmopāsīta, prāṇo him-kāro, vāk prastāvaḥ, cakṣur udgīthaḥ, śrotram pratihāraḥ, mano nidhanam paro-varīyāmsi vā etāni.

1. One should meditate on the most excellent fivefold Sāman among the vital breaths, breath as the syllable him, speech as the prastāva, the eye as the udgītha, the ear as the pratihāra and the mind as the nidhana. These, verily, are the most excellent.

prāṇa; breath. It is used to include the senses also.
prāṇa is also explained as ghrāṇa, smell.

That which is higher than the high is called paro (para u). He who is higher than this is paro-varam. He who is higher than this paro-varam is called paro-varīyaḥ. Madhva.

2. paro-varīyo hāsya bhavati paro-varīyaso ha lokān jayati ya etad evaṁ vidvān prāṇesu pañca-vidham paro-varīyaḥ sāmopāsta, iti tu pañca-vidhasya.

2. The most excellent belongs to him, he wins the most excellent worlds, he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the most excellent Sāman among the vital breaths.

Section 8

SOME ANALOGIES TO THE SEVENFOLD
CHANT : SPEECH

1. atha sapta-vidhasya, vāci sapta-vidhaṁ sāmopāsita, yat kim ca vāco hum iti sa himkāro, yat preti sa prastāvaḥ, yad eti sa ādih.

1. Now for the sevenfold. One should meditate on the sevenfold Sāman in speech. Whatsoever of speech is hum, that is the syllable him; whatsoever is pra, that is prastāva; and the syllable a as the first (or the beginning).

2. yad uditi sa udgīthaḥ, yat pratīti sa pratihārah, yad upeti sa upadravaḥ, yan nīti tan nidhanam.

2. Whatsoever is ut, that is an udgītha; whatsoever is prati, that is a pratihāra; whatsoever is upa, that is an upadrava (or approach to the end); whatsoever is ni, that is nidhana (or conclusion).

3. dugdhe'smai vāg doham yo vāco doho'nnavān annādo bhavati, sa etad evaṁ vidvān vāci sapta-vidhaṁ sāmopāste.

3. For him speech yields milk, which is the milk of speech and he becomes rich in food and eater of food; he, who knowing this thus, meditates on the sevenfold Sāman in speech.

Section 9

THE SUN

1. atha khalv anum ādityaṁ sapta-vidhaṁ sāmopāsita, sarvadā samastena sāma, mām prati mām pratīti sarveṇa samastena sāma.

1. One should meditate on the sevenfold Sāman in the sun. He is Sāma because he is always the same. He is the same with everyone since people think 'He faces me.' 'He faces me.'

2. tasminn imāni sarvāni bhūtāny anvāyattānīti vidyāt tasya yat purodayāt sa him-kāras tadasya paśavo'nvāyattās tasmāt te him kurvanti him-kāra-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ.

2. One should know that all beings here depend on him. What he is before rising is the syllable him. On this depend the animals. Therefore they utter the syllable him. Truly they are partakers in the syllable him of the Sāman.

3. atha yat prathamodite sa prastāvas tad asya manuṣyā anvāyattās, tasmāt te prastuti-kāmāḥ praśamsā-kāmāḥ prastāva-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ.

3. Now when it is just after sunrise, that is a prastāva. On this men depend. Therefore they are desirous of praise, desirous of laudation. Truly they are partakers in the prastāva of that Sāman.

Men are generally lovers of name and fame.

4. atha yat saṅgava-velāyām sa ādīḥ. tad asya vāyāṁsy anvāyattāni, tasmāt tāny antarikṣe'nārambaṇāny ādāyā'tmānam paripatanty ādi-bhājini hy etasya sāmnaḥ.

4. Now when it is the saṅgava (cowgathering) time, that is ādi. On this depend the birds. Therefore they hold themselves without support, in the atmosphere and fly about. Truly, they are partakers in the ādi of the Sāman.

5. atha yat samprati madhyan-dine sa udgīthaḥ, tad asya devā anvāyattāḥ, tasmāt te sattamāḥ prājāpatyānām udgītha-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ.

5. Now, when it is just midday, that is an udgītha. On this the gods depend. Therefore they are the best of Prajāpati's offspring. Truly they are partakers in the udgītha of that Sāman.

6. atha yad ūrdhvam madhyan-dināt prāg aparāhnāt sa pratihāras, tad asya garbhā anvāyattāḥ, tasmāt te pratihṛtā nāvapadyante, pratihāra-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ.

6. Now when it is past midday and before the afternoon—that is a pratihāra. On this all foetuses depend. Therefore they are held up and do not drop down. Truly, they are partakers in the pratihāra of that Sāman.

7. atha yad ūrdhvam aparāhnāt prāg astamayāt, sa upadravaḥ, tad asyāranyā anvāyattāḥ, tasmāt te puruṣam dṛṣtvā kaksam śvabhram ity upadravanty upadrava-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ.

7. Now when it is past afternoon and before sunset, that is an upadrava. On this the wild animals depend. Therefore when they see a man, they run to a hiding-place as their hole. Truly they are partakers in the upadrava of that Sāman.

8. atha yat prathamāstamite tan nidhanam, tad asya pitaro'nvāyattāḥ, tasmāt tān nidadhati nidhana-bhājino hy etasya sāmnaḥ, evam khalv amum ādityam sapta-vidham sāmopāste.

8. Now when it is just after sunset, that is the nidhana. On this the fathers depend. Therefore the people lay aside the fathers. Truly they are partakers of the nidhana of that Sāman. Thus does one meditate on the sevenfold Sāman in the sun.

Section 10

THE MYSTICAL MEANING OF THE NUMBER OF SYLLABLES IN THE CHANT

1. atha khalv ātma-sammitam atimṛtyu sapta-vidhaṁ sāmo pāsīta; him-kāra iti try-akṣaram prastāva iti try-akṣaram tat samam.

1. Now, then, one should meditate on the sevenfold Sāman which is uniform in itself and leads beyond death. The syllable him has three letters, prastāva has three letters. That is the same.

Though in English they are syllables, in Sanskrit each English syllable is represented by one letter.

2. ādir iti dvya-akṣaram pratihāra iti catur-akṣaram tata ihaikam, tat samam.

2. Ādi has two letters. Pratihāra has four letters. (If we take one) one from there here, that is the same.

3. udgītha iti try-akṣaram upadrava-iti catur-akṣaram tribhis tribhiḥ samam bhavati akṣaram atīṣīyate; try-akṣaram tat samam.

3. Udgītha has three letters; upadrava has four letters. Three and three, that is the same, one letter left over. Having three letters, that is the same.

What is left over is supposed to have three letters.

4. nidhanam iti try-akṣaram, tat samam eva bhavati tāni ha vā etāni dvā-vimśatir akṣarāṇi.

4. Nidhana has three letters. That is the same too. These indeed, are the twenty-two letters.

5. eka-vimśaty ādityam āpnoti, eka-vimśo vā ito'sāv ādityo, dvā-vimśena param ādityāj jāyati; tan nākam, tad viśokam.

5. With the twenty first, one obtains the sun. Verily, the sun is the twenty-first from here. With the twenty-second he conquers what is beyond the sun. That is bliss. That is sorrowless.

Ś quotes 'The twelve months, the five seasons (taking the whole of winter as one) and the three worlds (earth, atmosphere and sky) (make up twenty) and the sun is the twenty-first.'

6. āpnoti hādityasya jayam, paro hāsyāditya-jayāj jayo bhavati, ya etad evaṁ vidvān ātma-sammitam ati-mṛtyu sapta-vidham sāmopāste, sāmopāste.

6. He obtains the victory of the sun, indeed a victory higher than the victory of the sun is his, who, knowing this thus, meditates on the sevenfold Sāman, uniform in itself, which leads beyond death, yea, who meditates on the (sevenfold) Sāman.

Section II

GĀYATRA CHANT

1. mano him-kāro vāk prastāvaḥ, cakṣur udgīthaḥ, śrotram pratihāraḥ, prāṇo nidhanam, etad gāyatram prāṇeṣu protam.

1. The mind is the syllable him, speech is the prastāva, the eye is the udgītha, the ear is the pratihāra, the breath is the nidhana. This is the Gāyatra-chant woven in the vital breaths.

2. sa ya evaṁ etad gāyatram prāṇeṣu protam veda prāṇi bhavati, sarvaṁ āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajāyā paśubhir bhavati, mahān kīrtiyā mahāmanāḥ syāt, tad vratam.

2. He who knows thus this Gāyatra chant as woven in the vital breaths, becomes the possessor of vital breaths, reaches the full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and in cattle, great in fame. One should be great-minded. That is the rule.

mahāmanāḥ: great-minded. He will not be petty-minded. akṣudra cittāḥ. Ś.

Section 12

RATHANTARA CHANT

1. abhimanthati sa him kāraḥ, dhūmo jāyate sa prastāvaḥ, jvalati sa udgītho'ngārā bhavanti sa pratihāraḥ, upasāmyati tan

nidhanam; samśāmyati tan nidhanam; etad rathantaram agnau protam.

1. One rubs the fire-sticks together—that is the syllable him. Smoke is produced, that is the prastāva. It blazes. That is the udgītha. Coals are produced, that is the pratihāra. It becomes extinct, that is the nidhana. This is the Rathantara as woven on fire.

2. sa ya evam etad rathantaram agnau protam veda, brahmarvācasy annādo bhavati, sarvām āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajāyā paśubhir bhavati, mahān kīrtyā; na pratyann agnim ācāmen na niṣthīvet, tad vratam

2. He who knows thus this Rathantara chant as woven on fire becomes radiant with sacred wisdoms, an eater of food, reaches the full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and in cattle, great in fame. One should not take a sip of water or spit before the fire. That is the rule.

VĀMADEVYA CHANT

1. upamantrayate sa him-kārah, jñāpayate sa prastāvah, striyā saha śete sa udgīthah, prati strīm saha śete sa pratihārah, kālām gacchati tan nidhanam, pāram gacchati tan nidhanam: etad vāmadevyam mithune protam.

1. One summons, that is the syllable him. He makes request, that is a prastāva. Along with the woman, he lies down, that is the udgītha. He lies on the woman, that is the pratihāra. He comes to the end, that is the nidhana. He comes to the finish, that is the nidhana. This is the Vāmadevyā chant woven on sex intercourse.

2. sa ya evam etad vāmadevyam mithune protam veda mithunī bhavati, mithunān mithunāt prajāyate, sarvām āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajāyā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtyā, na kāñcana pariharet, tad vratam.

2. He who knows thus this Vāmadevyā chant as woven on sex intercourse, comes to intercourse, procreates himself from every act, reaches a full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and in cattle, great in fame. One should not despise any woman. That is the rule.

Section 14

BRĤAT CHANT

1. udyan him-kārah, uḍitah prastāvah, madhyan-dina udgītho' parāhṇah pratihāro'stam yan nidhanam: etad bṛhad āditye protam.

1. When the sun rises, it is the syllable him. When the sun has risen, it is the prastāva; when it is midday, it is the udgītha. When it is afternoon, it is the pratihāra. When (the sun) is set, it is the nidhana. This is the Bṛhat chant as woven on the sun.

2. sa ya evam etad bṛhad āditye protam veda, tejasvī annādo bhavati, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtyā: tapantam na nindet, tad vratam.

2. He who knows thus this Bṛhat chant as woven on the sun becomes refulgent, an eater of food, reaches a full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and in cattle, great in fame. One should not decry the burning sun. That is the rule.

Section 15

VAIRŪPYA CHANT

1. abhrāṇi samplavante sa himkārah, meghe jāyate sa prastāvah, varṣati sa udgīthah, vidyotate stanayati sa pratihārah, udgrhṇati tan nidhanam, etad vairūpam parjanya protam.

1. The mists come together, that is the syllable him. A cloud is formed, that is the prastāva. It rains, that is the udgītha. It flashes and thunders, that is the pratihāra. It holds up. That is the nidhana. This is the Vairūpya chant woven on rain.

2. sa ya evam etad vairūpam parjanya protam veda, virūpāmś ca surūpāmś ca paśūn avarundhe, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati, mahān kīrtyā, varṣantam na nindet, tad vratam.

2. He who thus knows this Vairūpya as woven on rain, acquires cattle, of various form and of beautiful form, reaches a full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and in cattle, great in fame. One should not decry when it rains. That is the rule.

Section 16

VAIRĀJA CHANT

1. vasanto him-kārah, grīṣmaḥ prastāvaḥ, varṣā udgīthaḥ, śarat pratihārah, hemanto nidhanam, etat vairājam ṛtuṣu protam.

1. Spring is the syllable him, summer is the prastāva, rainy season is the udgītha; autumn is the pratihāra; winter is the nidhana. This is the Vairāja chant as woven on the seasons.

2. sa ya evam etad vairājam ṛtuṣu protam veda, virājati prajayā paśubhir brahma-varcasena, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtiyā; ṛtūn na nindet, tad vratam.

2. He who knows thus this Vairāja chant as woven on the seasons shines with children, cattle and the lustre of sacred wisdom, reaches a full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not decry the seasons. That is the rule.

Section 17

ŚAKVARĪ CHANT

1. prthivī him-kāro'ntarikṣam prastāvaḥ, dyaur udgīthaḥ, diśaḥ pratihārah, samudro nidhanam, etāḥ śakvārya lokeṣu protāḥ.

1. The earth is the syllable him. The atmosphere is the prastāva. The sky is the udgītha, the quarters of space are pratihāra. The ocean is the nidhana. These are the verses of the Śakvarī chant woven on the worlds.

2. sa ya evam etāḥ śakvārya lokeṣu protā veda, lokī bhavati, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtiyā; lokān na nindet, tad vratam.

2. One who knows these verses of the Śakvarī chant as woven on the worlds becomes possessed of the worlds, reaches a full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not decry the worlds. That is the rule.

Section 18

REVATĪ CHANT

1. ajā him-kāro'vayaḥ prastāvaḥ, gāva udgītho'svāḥ pratihāraḥ, puruṣo nidhanam, etā revatyāḥ paśuṣu protāḥ.

1. The goats are the syllable him. The sheep are the prastāva. The cows are the udgītha. The horses are the pratihāra. The human being is the nidhana. These are the verses of the Revatī chant woven on the animals.

2. sa ya evam etā revatyāḥ paśuṣu protā veda, paśumān bhavati, sarvaṃ āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtiyā; paśūn na nindet, tad vratam.

2. He who knows thus these verses of the Revatī chant as woven on the animals becomes the possessor of animals, reaches the full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not decry animals. That is the rule.

Section 19

YAJÑĀYAJÑĪYA CHANT

1. loma him-kārah, tvak prastāvaḥ, māmsam udgītho'sthi pratihārah, majjā nidhanam, etad yajñāyajñīyam aṅgeṣu protam.

1. Hair is the syllable him. Skin is the prastāva. Flesh is the udgītha. Bone is the pratihāra. Marrow is nidhana. This is the Yajñāyajñīya chant woven on the members of the body.

2. sa ya evam etad yajñāyajñīyam aṅgeṣu protam vedāṅgī bhavati, nāṅgeṇa vihūrchatī, sarvaṃ āyur eti, jyog jīvati mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtiyā, samvatsaram majjño nāśnīyāt, tad vratam; majjño nāśnīyāt iti vā.

2. He who thus knows this Yajñāyajñīya chant as woven on the members of the body becomes equipped with limbs; does not become defective in any limb, reaches the full length of life, lives well, great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not eat of marrow for a year. That is the rule. Rather, one should not eat of marrow at all.

The plural number majjño is used to include fish also. Ś.

Section 20

RĀJANA CHANT

1. agnir him-kārah, vāyuh prastāvah, āditya udgīthah, nakṣatrāṇi pratihārah, candramā nidhanam; etad rājanam devatāsu protam.

1. Fire is the syllable him; Air is the prastāva. Sun is the udgītha. Stars are the pratihāra and moon is the nidhana. This is the Rājana chant woven on the divinities.

2. sa ya evam etad rājanam devatāsu protam vedaitāsām eva devatānām salokatām sārṣṭitām sāyujyam gacchati, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, mahān prajayā paśubhir bhavati mahān kīrtiyā; brāhmaṇān na nindet, tad vratam.

2. He who knows thus this Rājana chant as woven on the divinities goes to the same world, to equality and to complete union with these very divinities, reaches the full length of life, lives well, becomes great in offspring and cattle, great in fame. One should not decry the Brāhmaṇas. That is the rule.

He is lifted to the region of the deity whom he has loved and worshipped during life. Salvation does not consist in absorption with the Absolute or assimilation to God but in getting near His presence and participating in His glory.

Section 21

THE SĀMAN REGARDING THE ALL

1. trayī vidyā him-kārah, traya ime lokāḥ sa prastavo'gnir vāyur ādityaḥ sa udgīthah, nakṣatrāṇi vāyāmsi maricayaḥ sa pratihārah, śarpā gandharvāḥ pitaras tan nidhanam, etat sāma sarvasmin protam.

1. The threefold knowledge is the syllable him. The three worlds here are the prastāva. Fire, air and sun are the udgītha; stars, birds and the light rays are the pratihāra; serpents, gandharvas and the fathers are the nidhana. This is the chant as woven in all.

2. sa ya evam etat sāma sarvasmin protam veda, sarvam ha bhavati.

2. He who knows thus this chant as woven on all becomes all.

3. tad eṣa ślokaḥ: yāni pañcadhā trīṇi trīṇi tebhyo na jyāyāḥ param anyad asti.

3. On this, there is this verse. There are triple things which are fivefold. Greater than these, there is nothing else besides.

4. yas tad veda sa veda sarvaṁ sarvā diśo balim asmai haranti, sarvaṁ asmīty upāsīta; tad vratam, tad vratam.

4. He who knows that, knows all. All the quarters of space bring him gifts. One should meditate (on the thought) 'I am the All.' That is the rule, yea, that is the rule.

Section 22

DIFFERENT MODES OF CHANTING

1. *vinardi sāmno vrne paśavyam ity agner udgītho'niruktaḥ prajāpateḥ, niruktaḥ somasya, mṛdu ślakṣṇaṁ vāyoḥ, ślakṣṇam balavad indrasya, krauñcam bṛhaspateḥ, apadhvāntam varuṇasya:
tān sarvān evopaseveta, vāruṇaṁ tv eva varjayet.*

1. Of the Sāman, I choose the high-sounding one as good for cattle, this is the song sacred to Fire. The undefined one belongs to Prajā-pati, the defined one to Soma; the soft and the smooth to Vāyu, the smooth and strong to Indra; the heron-like to Bṛhaspati, the ill-sounding to Varuṇa. Let one practise all these but one should avoid that belonging to Varuṇa.

2. amṛtatvaṁ devebhya āgāyānīty āgāyet svadhām pitrbhya āśām manuṣyebhyas triṇḍakam paśubhyaḥ svargam lokam yajamānāyannam ātmana āgāyānīty etāni manasā dhyāyann apramattaḥ stuvīta.

2. 'Let me secure immortality for the gods by singing' thus should one sing. 'Let me secure offerings for the fathers by singing hope for men, grass and water for the cattle, the world of heaven for the sacrificer and food for myself.' Thus reflecting in his mind on all these, one should sing the praises carefully.

3. sarve svarā indrasyātmānaḥ sarva uṣmānaḥ prajāpater ātmānaḥ sarve sparsā mṛtyor ātmānaḥ, tam yadi svaṛeṣūpālabhetendram śaraṇam prapaṇno'bhūvam sa tvā prati vakṣyati enam brūyāt.

3. All vowels are the embodiments of Indra; all spirants are the embodiments of Prajā-pati; all consonants are the embodiments of Death. If one should reproach a person for his vowels, he should tell that one, 'I have taken my refuge in Indra. He will answer you.'

4. atha yady enam ūśmasūpālabheta, prajāpatiṁ śaraṇam praṇanno' bhūvam, sa tvā prati pekṣyatīty enam bhūyāt. atha yady enam sparśesūpālabheta: mṛtyuṁ śaraṇam, praṇanno' bhūvam sa tvā prati dhakṣyatīty enam brūyāt.

4. So if one should reproach a person for his spirants he should tell that one 'I have taken refuge in Prajā-pati. He will smash you.' And if one should reproach a person for his consonants he should tell that one, 'I have taken refuge in Death. He will burn you up.'

5. sarve svarā ghoṣavanto balavanto vaktavyā indre balam dadānīti, sarva ūśmāno'grastā anirastā vivṛtā vaktavyāḥ prajā-pater ātmānam paridadānīti, sarve sparśā leśenānabhinihitā vaktavyā mṛtyor ātmānam pariharānīti.

5. All the vowels should be pronounced resonant and strong, (with the thought) 'May I impart strength to Indra.' All the spirants should be pronounced well open, without being slurred over, without being elided, (with the thought) 'May I give myself to Prajā-pati.' All the consonants should be pronounced slowly, without merging them together (with the thought) 'May I withdraw myself from Death.'

Section 23

DIFFERENT MODES OF VIRTUOUS LIFE

1. trayo dharma-skandhāḥ; yajño'dhyayanam dānam iti, prathamā tapa eva, dvitīyo brahmacāryācārya-kula-vāsī, tṛtīyo'tyantam ātmānam ācāryakule'vasādayan: sarva ete puṇya-lokā bhavanti, brahma-samsthō mṛtatvam eti.

1. There are three branches of duty, sacrifice, study and almsgiving—Austerity, indeed, is the first. The second is the pursuit of sacred wisdom, dwelling in the house of the teacher. Absolutely controlling his body in the house of the teacher, is the third. All these attain to the worlds of the virtuous. He who stands firm in Brahman attains life eternal.

tapah: austerity. It is used sometimes to comprehend all forms of the pursuit of self-control.

ṛtaṁ tapas, satyaṁ tapaś, śrutam tapaś, śāntaṁ tapo, dānaṁ tapo, yajñas tapo bhūr bhuvas svar brahmaitad upāsyaicit tapah. Nārāyaṇīya. 8.

brahmacarya: the practice of continence.

Brahman is also used for tapas or austerity. Cp. bhagavān kāśyapaḥ śāśvate brahmaṇi vartate. Kalidāsa: Śākuntalā Act I. The commentators interpret Brahman as tapas.

brahma-saṁstha: He who stands firm in Brahman.

Ś suggests that this refers to the parivrāṭ or the monk who alone obtains eternal life, while others who practise active virtues obtain the worlds of the virtuous. He, however, points out that there is another view held by the Vṛttikāra, that anyone who stands firm in the eternal obtains the life eternal. He need not be a saṁnyāsin. Ś argues that the true brahma-saṁstha is the saṁnyāsin who gives up all actions: karma-nivṛtti-lakṣaṇam parivrāṇyam brahma-saṁsthatvam. Ś.

THE SYLLABLE AUM

2. prajā-patir lokān abhyatapat; tebhyo abhitaptēbhyas trayī vidyā samprāsravat, tām abhyatapat, tasyā abhitaptāyā etāny akṣarāṇi samprāsravanta bhūr bhuvaḥ svar iti.

2. Prajā-pati brooded on the worlds. From them, thus brooded upon, issued forth the threefold knowledge. He brooded on this. From it, thus brooded upon, issued forth these syllables, bhūh, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ.

threefold knowledge: three Vedas.

bhūh, earth; bhuvaḥ, atmosphere; svaḥ, sky.

3. tām abhyatapat, tebhyo'bhitaṭṭēbhyā aumkāraḥ samprāsravat, tad yathā saṅkunā sarvāṇi parṇāni saṁtrṇṇāny evam aumkāreṇa sarvā vāk saṁtrṇṇaumkāra evedaṁ sarvam, aumkāra evedaṁ sarvam.

3. He brooded on them and on them, thus brooded upon, issued forth the syllable Aum. As all leaves are held together by a stalk, so is all speech held together by Aum. Verily, the syllable Aum is all this, yea, the syllable Aum is all this.

Section 24

THE DIFFERENT REWARDS FOR THE OFFERERS OF OBLATIONS

1. brahmavādino vadanti yad vasūnām prātaḥ savanam, rudrāṇām mādhyān-dinam savanam, ādityānām ca viśveṣām ca devānām tṛtīya-savanam.

1. The expounders of sacred wisdom declare that the morning offering belongs to the Vasus, the midday offering to the Rudras and the third (evening) offering to the Ādityas and the Viśve-devas.

2. kva tarhi yajamānasya loka iti, sa yas tam na vidyāt katham kuryād, atha vidvān kuryāt.

2. Where then is the world of the sacrificer? If he knows not (this), how can he perform (sacrifices)? So, let him, who knows, perform.

3. purā prātar anuvākasyopākaraṇāj jaghanena gārhapatyasyodaṇmukha upaviśya sa vāsavaṁ sāmābhigāyati.

3. Before the commencement of the morning litany, he sits behind the gārhapatya fire, facing the north and sings the chant sacred to the Vasus.

In Śrauta sacrifices, three fires are recognised, āhavanīya, dākṣiṇa and gārhapatya, corresponding to heaven, sky and earth. They are dedicated to the worlds of gods, ancestors and men respectively.

4. loka-dvāram apāvṛṇu, paśyema tvā vayanṁ rājyāya iti.

4. Open the door of this world, that we may see thee for the obtaining of the sovereignty.

5. atha juhoti namo'gnaye pṛthivī-kṣite loka-kṣite lokam me yajamānāya vindaiṣa vai yajamānasya loka etāsmi.

5. Then he makes the offering (reciting) 'Adoration to Fire, who dwells on earth, who dwells in the world. Obtain the world for me, the sacrificer. To this world of the sacrificer, I will go.'

6. atra yajamānaḥ parastād āyusaḥ svāhā' pajahi parigham ity ukvotiṣṭhati; tasmai vāsavaḥ prātaḥ savanam samprayacchanti.

6. Thither will the sacrificer, after life, go. Hail, take away the bolt. Having said this, he rises. For him the Vasus fulfil the morning offering.

7. purā mādhyān-dinasya savanasyopākaraṇāj jaghanena agnādhṛtyasyodaṇmukha upaviśya, sa raudraṁ sāmābhigāyati.

7. Before the commencement of the mid-day offering, he sits behind the Āgnīdhṛīya fire, and facing the north, he sings the chant sacred to the Rudras.

8. loka-dvāram apāvṛṇu, paśyema tvā vyaṁ vairājyāya iti.

8. Open the door of this world that we may see thee for the obtaining of sovereignty.

9. atha juhōti, namo vāyave'ntarikṣa-kṣite loka-kṣite lokam, me yajamānāya vinda, eṣa vai yajamānasya lokah, etāsmi.

9. Then he makes the offering (reciting) 'Adoration to Air, who dwells in the sky and dwells in the world. Obtain the world for me, the sacrificer. To this world of the sacrificer I will go.'

10. atra yajamānaḥ parastād āyusaḥ svāhā'pajahi parigham ity uktvottiṣṭhati, tasmai rudrā mādhyān-dinaṁ savanaṁ sampracyacchanti.

10. Thither, will the sacrificer, after life, go. Hail, take away the bolt. Having said this, he rises. For him, the Rudras fulfil the midday offering.

11. purā tṛtīya-savanasyopakaraṇāj jaghanenāhavanīyasyo-danmukha upaviśya sa ādityaṁ sa vaiśvadevaṁ sāmābhigāyati.

11. Before the commencement of the third offering, he sits behind the Āhavanīya fire, facing the north, he sings the chant sacred to the Ādityas and Viśve-devas

12. loka-dvāram apāvṛṇu, paśyema tvā vyaṁ svārājyāya iti.

12. Open the door of this world that we may see thee for the obtaining of sovereignty.

13. ādityaṁ, atha vaiśvadevaṁ, loka-dvāram apāvṛṇu paśyema tvā vyaṁ sāmārājyāya iti.

13. Thus the chant to the Ādityas: now the chant to the Viśvedevas: Open the door to this world that we may see thee for the obtaining of sovereignty.

14. atha juhōti, nama ādityebhyaś ca viśvebhyaś ca devebhyo divi-kṣīdbhyo loka-kṣīdbhyaḥ lokam me yajamānāya vindata.

14. Then he makes the offering (reciting) 'Adoration to the Ādityas and to the Viśve-devas, who dwell in heaven and dwell in the world, obtain the world for me, the sacrificer.'

15. eṣa vai yajamānasya lokah, etāsmy atra yajamānaḥ parastād āyusaḥ svāhā'pahata parigham ity uktvottiṣṭhati.

15. 'Verily, to this world of the sacrificer will I go. Thither will the sacrificer after life go. Hail, take away the bolt.' Having said this, he rises.

16. tasmā ādityāś ca viśve ca devās tṛtīya-savanam sampracyacchanti, eṣa ha vai yajñasya mātṛāṁ veda, ya evaṁ veda, ya evaṁ veda.

16. For him, the Ādityas and the Viśve-devas fulfil the third offering. He, who knows this, knows the fulness of the sacrifice, yea, he who knows this.

CHAPTER III

Section I

THE SUN AS THE HONEY OF THE GODS: ṚG VEDA

1. aum: asau vā ādityo deva-madhu; tasya dyaur eva tiraś-cīna-vamśo'ntarikṣam apūpaḥ, marīcayaḥ putrāḥ.

1. Verily, yonder sun is the honey of the gods. Of this the sky is the cross-beam; the atmosphere is the honeycomb; the particles of light are the brood.

The sun is treated as the object of meditation. The sky is the crossbeam from which the honeycomb hangs.

2. tasya ye prāñco raśmayāḥ tā evāsya prācya madhunādyāḥ ṛca eva madhukṛtāḥ ṛgveda eva puṣpam, tā amṛtā āpaḥ tā vā etā ṛcaḥ.

2. The eastern rays of that sun are its eastern honey cells. The Ṛks are the producers of honey. The Ṛg Veda is the flower and those waters are the nectar and those very Ṛks indeed (are the bees).

'Just as the bees produce honey by extracting the juices of flowers, so do the ṛks make their honey by extracting the juices of actions prescribed in the Ṛg Veda.' Ś.

3. etam ṛg vedam abhyatapaṁs, tasyābhitaptasya yaśas teja indriyam vīryam annādyam raso'jāyata.

3. These brooded on the Ṛg Veda; from it, thus brooded upon, issued forth as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health.

4. tad vyākṣarat, tad ādityam abhito'srayat, tad vā etad yad etad ādityasya rohitam rūpam.

4. It flowed forth; it went towards the sun. Verily, that is what the red appearance of the sun is.

Section 2

YAJUR VEDA

1. atha ye'sya dakṣiṇā raśmayas tā evāsya dakṣiṇā madhu-nādyo yaḥṁsy eva madhu-kṛto yajur veda eva puṣpam, tā amṛtā āpaḥ.

1. Now its southern rays are its southern honey-cells. The Yajus formulae are the producers of honey. The flower is the Yajur Veda and these waters are the nectar.

2. tāni vā etāni yajūṁsy etam yajurvedam abhyatapaṁs, tasyā-bhitaptasya yaśas, teja, indriyam, vīryam, annādyam, raso' jāyata.

2. Verily, these yajus formulae brooded on the Yajur Veda; from it, thus brooded upon, issued forth as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health.

3. tad vyakṣarat, tad ādityam abhito'śrayat, tad vā etad yad etad ādityasya śuklam rūpam.

3. It flowed forth; it went towards the sun. Verily, that is what the white appearance of the sun is.

Section 3

SĀMA VEDA

1. atha ye'sya pratyañco raśmayas tā evāsya prātīcyo madhu-nā-dyaḥ sāmāny eva madhu-kṛtaḥ sāma veda eva puṣpam, tā amṛtā āpaḥ.

1. Now, its western rays are its western honey-cells. The Sāman chants are the producers of honey. The flower is the Sāma Veda and these waters are the nectar.

2. tāni vā etāni sāmāny etam sāma vedam abhyatapaṁs tasyābhitaptasya yaśas, teja, indriyam, vīryam, annādyam, raso' jāyata.

2. Verily, these Sāman chants brooded on the Sāma Veda; from it, thus brooded upon, issued forth, as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health.

3. tad vyakṣarat, tad ādityam abhito'śrayat, tad vā etad yad etad ādityasya kṛṣṇam rūpam.

3. It flowed forth. It went towards the sun. Verily, that is what the dark appearance of the sun is.

Section 4

ATHARVA VEDA

1. atha ye'syodañco raśmayas tā evāsyodīcyo madhu-nāḍyo' tharvāṅgīrasa eva madhu-kṛtaḥ, itihāsa-purāṇam puṣpam, tā amṛtā āpaḥ.

1. Now its northern rays are its northern honey-cells. (The hymn of the) Atharvans and the Āṅgīrasas are the honey producers. The flower is legend and ancient lore. These waters are the nectar.

The stories from the Epics and the Purāṇas were repeated at some sacrifices. They are mentioned in the Brāhmaṇas, and later collected in the Mahābhārata and the Purāṇas.

2. te vā ete'tharvāṅgīrasa etad itihāsa-purāṇam abhyatapaṁs, tasyābhitaptasya yaśas, teja, indriyam, vīryam, annāḍyam, raso' jāyata.

2. Verily, these (hymns) of the Atharvans and Āṅgīrasas brooded upon that legend and ancient lore. From them, thus brooded upon, issued forth, as their essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, virility, food and health.

3. tad vyakṣarat, tad ādityam abhito'srayat, tad vā etad yad etad ādityasya param kṣṇam rūpam.

3. It flowed forth. It went towards the sun. Verily, that is what the extremely dark appearance of the sun is.

Section 5

BRAHMAN

1. atha ye'syordhvā raśmayas tā evāsyordhvā madhu-nāḍyo guhyā evā' deśā madhu-kṛto, brahmaiva puṣpam, tā amṛtā āpaḥ.

1. Now, its upward rays are its upper honey cells. The hidden teachings (the Upaniṣads) are the honey producers. Brahman is the flower. These waters are the nectar.

Brahman, according to Ś, here signifies the praṇava, i.e. the syllable aum.

2. te vā ete guhyā ādeśā etad brahmābhyatapaṁs tasyābhita-ptasya yaśas, teja, indriyam, vīryam, annāḍyam, raso' jāyata.

2. These hidden teachings brooded on Brahman, and from it thus brooded upon, issued forth, as its essence, fame, splendour, (vigour of the) senses, food and health.

3. taḍ vyakṣarat, taḍ ādityam abhito'śrayat, taḍ vā etad yad etad ādityasya madhye kṣobhata iva.

3. It flowed forth. It went towards the sun. Verily, that is what seems to be the trembling in the middle of the sun.

4. te vā ete rasānām rasāḥ. vedā hi rasāḥ, teṣām ete rasāḥ, tāni vā etāny amṛtānām amṛtāni, vedā hy amṛtāḥ, teṣām etāny amṛtāni.

4. Verily, these are the essences of the essences, for the Vedas are the essences and these are their essences. Verily, these are the nectars of the nectars for the Vedas are the nectars and these are their nectars.

According to Ś all these are meant to emphasise the importance of eulogised actions: karma-stutir eṣaḥ.

Section 6

THE KNOWER OF THE COSMIC SIGNIFICANCE OF THE VEDAS REACHES THE WORLD OF THE VASUS

1. taḍ yat prathamam amṛtam taḍ vasava upajīvanty agninā mukhena, na vai devā aśnanti na pibanty etad evāṁṛtam dṛṣtvā tṛpyanti.

1. That which is the first nectar, on that live the Vasus, through fire as their mouth. Verily the gods neither eat nor drink. They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2. ta etad eva rūpam abhisamviśanty etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2. They retire into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour).

3. sa ya etad evam amṛtam veda, vāsūnām evaiko bhūtvāgninaiva mukhenaitad evāṁṛtam dṛṣtvā tṛpyati, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamviśati, etasmād rūpād udeti.

3. He who knows thus this nectar becomes one of the Vasus and through the fire as his mouth is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).

4. sa yāvad ādityaḥ purastād udetā paścād astam etā, vasūnām eva tāvad ādhipatyaṁ svārājyaṁ paryetā.

4. As long as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, so long does he attain the worship and sovereignty of the Vasus.

Section 7

OF THE RUDRAS

1. atha yad dvitīyam amṛtam, tad rudrā upajīvantiṅdrena mukhena, na vai devā aśnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmṛtam dr̥ṣṭvā tṛpyanti.

1. Now that which is the second nectar, on that live the Rudras, through Indra as their mouth, Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink. They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2. ta etad eva rūpam abhisamviśanti, etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2. They retire into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour).

3. sa ya etad evam amṛtam veda rudrāṇām evaiko bhūtvendrenaiva mukhenaitad evāmṛtam dr̥ṣṭvā tṛpyati, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamviśati, etasmād rūpād udeti.

3. Who knows thus this nectar becomes one of the Rudras and with Indra as his mouth is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).

4. sa yāvad-ādityaḥ purastād udetā, paścād astam etā, dvīs tāvad dakṣināta udetottarato'stam etā, rudrāṇām eva tāvad ādhipatyaṁ svārājyaṁ paryetā.

4. As long as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west, twice as long does it rise in the south and set in the north and just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Rudras.

Section 8

OF THE ĀDITYAS

1. atha yat tṛtīyam amṛtam, tad ādityā upajīvanti varuṇena mukhena, na vai devā aśnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmṛtam dr̥ṣṭvā tṛpyanti.

1. Now, that which is the third nectar, on that live the Ādityas through Varuṇa as their mouth. Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink. They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2. ta etad eva rūpam abhisamviśanty etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2. They retire into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour).

3 sa ya etad evam amṛtaṁ vedādityānām evaiko bhūtvā varuṇenaiva mukhenaitad evāmṛtaṁ dr̥ṣṭvā tṛpyati, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamviśati, etasmād rūpād udeti.

3. He who knows thus this nectar, becomes one of the Ādityas and with Varuṇa as his mouth, is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).

4. sa yāvad ādityo dakṣiṇata udetottarato'stam etā, dviṣ tāvad paścād udetā purastād astam etā, ādityānām eva tāvad ādhipatyam svārājyam paryetā.

4. As long as the sun rises in the east and sets in the west twice as long does it rise in the west and set in the east and just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Ādityas.

Section 9

OF THE MARUTS

1. atha yac caturtham amṛtam, taṁ maruta upajīvanti somena mukhena, na vai devā aśnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmṛtaṁ dr̥ṣṭvā tṛpyanti.

1. Now that which is the fourth nectar, on that live the Maruts, through Soma as their mouth; Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink. They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2. ta etad eva rūpam abhisamviśanti, etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2. They retire from this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour).

3. sa ya etad evam amṛtaṁ veda, marutām evaiko bhūtvā somenaiva mukhenaitad evāmṛtaṁ dr̥ṣṭvā tṛpyati, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamviśati, etasmād rūpād udeti.

3. He who knows thus this nectar, becomes one of the Maruts and through Soma as his mouth, is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).

4. sa yāvad ādityaḥ paścād udetā, purastād astam etā, dviṣ tāvad uttarata udetā, dakṣiṇato'stam etā, marutām eva tāvad ādhipatyam svārājyaṁ paryetā.

4. As long as the sun rises in the west and sets in the east, just that twice as long does the sun rise in the north and set in the south just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Maruts.

Section 10

OF THE SĀDHYAS

1. athā yat pañcamam amṛtaṁ tat sādhyā upajīvanti brahmaṇā mukhena, na vai devā aśnanti, na pibanti, etad evāmṛtaṁ drṣtvā tṛpyanti.

1. Now, that which is the fifth nectar, on that live the Sādhyas, through Brahmā as their mouth. Verily, the gods neither eat nor drink. They are satisfied merely with seeing that nectar.

2. ta etad eva rūpam abhisamvīśanti, etasmād rūpād udyanti.

2. They retire into this form (colour) and come forth from this form (colour).

3. sa ya etad evam amṛtaṁ veda, sādhyānām evaiko bhūtvā brahmaṇaiva mukhenaitad evāmṛtaṁ drṣtvā tṛpyanti, sa etad eva rūpam abhisamvīśati, etasmād rūpād udeti.

3. He, who knows thus this nectar, becomes one of the Sādhyas and through Brahmā as his mouth, is satisfied merely with seeing the nectar. He retires into this form (colour) and comes forth from this form (colour).

4. sa yāvad āditya uttarata udetā, dakṣiṇato'stam etā, dviṣ tāvad ūrdhva udetārvān astam etā, sādhyānām eva tāvad ādhipatyam svārājyaṁ paryetā.

4. As long as the sun rises in the north and sets in the south, twice as long does it rise in the zenith and set in the nadir, just that long does he attain the lordship and sovereignty of the Sādhyas.

Section II

THE WORLD OF BRAHMĀ

1. atha tata ūrdhva udetya naivodetā nāstam etā, ekala eva madhye sthātā, tad esa ślokaḥ:

1. Henceforth, after having risen in the zenith, he will no more rise nor set. He will stand alone in the middle. On this, there is this verse:

The movements of the sun are intended to help the creatures to experience the results of their actions, and when these experiences have ended the sun takes the creatures unto himself. prāṇināṃ sva-karma-phala-bhoga-nimittam anugrahaṃ tat karma-phalopabhogakṣaye tāni prāṇi-jātāny ātmani samṛtya. Ś.

The question is raised whether the sun in the regions of Brahmā moves along nights and days. The reply is given in the next verse.

2. na vai tatra na nimloca nodiyāya kadācana, devās tenāhaṃ satyena mā virādhīṣi brahmaṇā iti.

2. It is not so there. The sun has not set; nor has he ever risen. O ye gods, by this truth, may I not fall from Brahmā.

He calls the gods to bear witness to the truth of his statement.

3. na ha vā asmā udeti, na nimlocati, sakṛd divā haivāsmāi bhavati, ya etāṃ evaṃ brahmopaniṣadam veda.

3. Verily, for him, who knows thus, this mystic doctrine of Brahmā, the sun neither rises nor sets. For him it is day for ever.

'The knower becomes the eternal inborn Brahman, unconditioned by time marked by the rising and setting of the sun.' vidvān udāyāsta-maya-kālāparicchedyam nityam ajam brahma bhavati. Ś.

4. tadd haitad brahmā prajāpataya uvāca, prajāpatir manave, manuḥ prajābhyaḥ, tadd haitad uddālakāyā'rūṇaye jyeṣṭhāya putrāya pitā brahma provāca.

4. Brahma told this to Prajā-pati; Prajā-pati to Manu; Manu to his descendants. To Uddālaka Āruṇi, the eldest son, his father declared this Brahma.

5. idam vāva taj jyeṣṭhāya putrāya pitā brahma prabrūyāt prañāyyāya vāntevāsine.

5. Verily, a father may teach this Brahma to his eldest son or to a worthy pupil.

6. nānyasmai kasmai cana, yady apy asmā imām adbhiḥ pariḡrhitām dhanasya pūrṇām dadyād, etad eva tato bhūya ity etad eva tato bhūya iti.

6. And to no one else. Even if one should offer him the whole of this (earth) encompassed by water and filled with treasure. (He should say) 'This, truly, is greater than that—yea, greater than that.'

Section 12

THE GĀYATRĪ

1. gāyatrī vā idam sarvam bhūtam yad idam kin ca, vāg vai gāyatrī, vāg vā idam sarvam bhūtam gāyati ca trāyate ca.

1. Verily, the Gāyatrī is all this that has come to be, whatsoever there is here. Speech, verily, is Gāyatrī. Verily, the Gāyatrī sings of and protects everything here that has come to be.

As Brahman is incomprehensible by itself, these symbols are employed. For Madhva Gāyatrī is not the metre of that name but Viṣṇu.

2. yā vai sā gāyatrīyam vāva sā yeyam pṛthivī, asyām hīdam sarvaṁ bhūtam pratiṣṭhitam. etām eva nātiśīyate.

2. Verily, what this Gāyatrī is, that, verily, is what this earth is, for on it everything here that has come to be is established. It does not go beyond it.

3. yā vai sā pṛthivīyam vāva sā yad idam asmin puruṣe śarīram, asmin hīme prāṇāḥ pratiṣṭhitāḥ, etad eva nātiśīyante.

3. Verily, what this earth is, that, verily, is what the body in man here is: for on it these vital breaths are established. They do not go beyond it.

4. yad vai tat puruṣe śarīram idam vāva tad yad idam asmin antaḥ puruṣe hṛdayam, asmin hīme prāṇāḥ pratiṣṭhitāḥ, etad eva nātiśīyante.

4. Verily, what the body in man is, that, verily, is what the heart within man here is: for on it these vital breaths are established. They do not go beyond it.

5. saṣṣā catuṣpadā ṣaḍvidhā gāyatrī, tad etad ṛcā'bhyanūktam.

5. This Gāyatrī has four feet and is sixfold. This is also declared by a Rk verse.

The Gāyatrī is a metre with four feet, each foot having four syllables. It is sixfold in the shape of speech, creatures, earth, body, heart and vital breath. Ś.

6. etāvān asya mahimā, tato jyāyānś ca pūruṣaḥ pādo'sya sarvā bhūtāni, tripād asyāmṛtaṁ divi.

6. Its greatness is of such extent, yet Puruṣa is greater still. All beings are one fourth of him. The three fourths, immortal, is in the sky.

The Puruṣa is so called because it fills everything and lies in the body: sarva-pūraṇāt pūri śayanāc ca. Ś.

7. yad vai tad. brahmetīdam vāva tadyo'yam bahirdhā puruṣād ākāśo yo vai sa bahirdhā puruṣād ākāśaḥ.

7. Verily, what is called Brahman, that is what the space outside of a person is. Verily, what the space outside of a person is.

8. ayaṁ vāva sa yo'yam antaḥ puruṣa ākāśo yo vai so'ntaḥ puruṣa ākāśaḥ.

8. That is what the space within a person is. Verily, what the space within a person is.

9. ayaṁ vāva sa yo'yam antar-hṛdaya ākāśaḥ, tad etat pūrṇam apṛavartī, pūrṇam apravartinīm śriyaṁ labhate ya evaṁ veda.

9. That is the same as what the space here within the heart is. That is the full, the non-active. He who knows thus, obtains full and non-active prosperity.
non-active: unchanging.

Section 13

THE FIVE DOORKEEPERS OF THE WORLD OF HEAVEN

1. tasya ha vā etasya hṛdayasya pañca deva-susāyah, sa yo'sya prāṇ suśiḥ sa prāṇaḥ, tac cakṣuḥ, sa ādityaḥ, tad etat tejo' nnādyam ity upāṣīta, tejasvy annādo bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

1. Verily, indeed, this heart here has five openings for the gods. Its eastern opening is the prāṇa (up-breath). That is the eye; that is the sun. One should meditate on this as glow and as health. He who knows this becomes glowing and healthy.

2. atha yo'sya dakṣiṇaḥ suṣiḥ sa vyānaḥ, tac chrotram, sa candramāḥ, tad etat chrīś ca yaśaś cety upāsīta śrīmān yaśasvī bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

2. Now its southern opening is vyāna (the diffused breath). That is the ear: that is the moon. One should meditate on this as prosperity and fame. He who knows this becomes prosperous and famous.

3. atha yo'sya pratyāṇ suṣiḥ so'pānaḥ, sā vāk so'gniḥ tad etad brahma-varcasam annādyam ity upāsīta brahma-varcasy annādo bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

3. Now, its western opening is apāna (downward breath). That is speech, that is fire. One should meditate on it as the lustre of sacred wisdom and health. He who knows this becomes possessed of the lustre of sacred wisdom and health.

4. atha yo'syodan suṣiḥ sa samānaḥ, tan manaḥ, sa parjanyaḥ, tad etat kīrtiś ca vyuṣṭiś cety upāsīta, kīrtimān vyuṣṭimān bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

4. Now, this northern opening is samāna (equalised breath). That is mind, that is rain; one should meditate on it as fame and beauty. He who knows this becomes famous and beauteous.

kīrtiḥ: fame; celebrity, due to the knowledge of the mind: manaso jñānasya kīrti-hetutvāt, ātma-parokṣaṁ viśrutatvaṁ kīrtiḥ, yaśaḥ sva-karaṇa-samivedyam viśrutatvaṁ.

vyuṣṭiḥ: beauty; self-recognised beauty of the body, vyuṣṭiḥ kāntir deha-gataṁ lāvanyam.

5. atha yo'syordhvaḥ suṣiḥ sa udānaḥ, sa vāyuh, sa ākāśaḥ, tad etad ojaś ca mahāś cety upāsīta, ojasvī mahasvān bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

5. Now, the upper opening is udāna (out-breath). That is air, that is space. One should meditate on it as strength and greatness. He who knows this becomes strong and great.

6. te vā ete pañca brahma-puruṣāḥ svargasya lokasya dvāra-pāḥ, sa ya etān evaṁ pañca brahma-puruṣān svargasya lokasya dvāra-pān veda, asya kule vīro jāyate, pratipadyate svargam lokam, ya etān evaṁ pañca-brahma-puruṣān svargasya lokasya dvāra-pān veda.

6. These, verily, are the five Brahma-persons, the doorkeepers of the world of heaven. He who knows these five Brahma-persons, the doorkeepers of the world of heaven, in his family a hero is born. He who knows these five Brahma-persons, the doorkeepers of the world of heaven, himself reaches the world of heaven.

By controlling the eye, ear, speech, mind and breath through meditation, by checking their outward activities, we are enabled to reach the Brahma in the heart.

THE SUPREME EXISTS WITHIN ONESELF

7. atha yad atah paro divo jyotir dīpyate viśvataḥ prṣṭheṣu, sarvataḥ prṣṭheṣu anuttameṣūttameṣu lokeṣu, idaṁ vāva tad yad idaṁ asminn antaḥ puruṣe jyotiḥ.

7. Now the light which shines above this heaven, above all, above everything, in the highest worlds beyond which there are no higher, verily, that is the same as this light which is here within the person.

8. tasyaiṣā dṛṣṭiḥ, yatraitad asmiṁ śarīre saṁsparsenoṣṇi-mānam vijānāti, tasyaiṣā śrutiḥ yatraitat karnāv apigrhya ninadam iva nadathur ivāgner iva jvalata upaśrnoti, tad etad dṛṣṭam ca śrutam cety upāsīta: cakṣuṣyaḥ śruto bhavati ya evaṁ veda, ya evaṁ veda.

8. There is this seeing of it, as when, in this body, one perceives the warmth by touch. There is this hearing of it, as when, on closing the ears, one hears as it were a sound, as it were a noise, as of a fire blazing. One should meditate on this that has been seen and heard. One who knows this becomes one beautiful to see and heard of in renown, yea, one who knows this.

The writer here refers to visions and voices of which some mystic seers speak.

Section 14

THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL IS ONE WITH THE SUPREME BRAHMAN

1. sarvam khalv idam brahma, tajjalān iti, śānta upāsīta; atha khalu kratumayaḥ puruṣaḥ, yathā-kratur asmīn lōke puruṣo bhavati tathetah pretya bhavati, sa kratuṁ kurvīta.

1. Verily, this whole world is Brahman, from which he comes forth, without which he will be dissolved and in which he breathes. Tranquil, one should meditate on it. Now verily, a person consists of purpose. According to the purpose a person has in this world, so does he become on departing hence. So let him frame for himself a purpose.

All this is Brahman: Cp. Maitrī IV. 6. brahma khalv idam vāva sarvam. Brahman is prior to all this and produces all this.

The word tajjalān is explained by Ś as 'beginning, ja, ending, la, and continuing, an,' in it: tasmāt brahmaṇo jātam—atas tajjam, tathā tenaiva janana-krameṇa pratilomatayā tasmīn eva brahmaṇi tiyate, tad-ātmatayā śliṣyata iti tallam; tathā tasmīn eva sthītikālē'nīti prāṇīti ceṣṭata iti.

As we will, so will our reward be: kratu-amurūpam phalam. Ś.

2. mano-mayaḥ prāṇa-śarīro bhā-rūpaḥ satya-saṁkalpa ākāś-ātmā sarva-karmā sarva-kāmaḥ sarva-gandhaḥ sarva-rasaḥ sarvam idam abhyātto'vāky anādarah.

2. He who consists of mind, whose body is life, whose form is light, whose conception is truth, whose soul is space, containing all works, containing all desires, containing all odours, containing all tastes, encompassing this whole world, being without speech and without concern.

Ś means by prāṇa-śarīra, the subtle body. prāṇa-śarīraḥ prāṇo līngātmā vijñāna-kriyā-śakti-dvaya-sammūrchi-tah. Ś.

3. eṣa ma ātmāntar hṛdaye'nīyān vrīher vā, yavād vā, sarṣapād vā, śyāmākād vā, śyāmāka-taṇḍulād vā; eṣa ma ātmāntar hṛdaye jyāyān pṛithivyāḥ, jyāyān antarīkṣāj jāyān divaḥ, jyāyān ebhyo lokebhyaḥ.

3. This is my self within the heart, smaller than a grain of rice, than a barley corn, than a mustard seed, than a grain of millet or than the kernel of a grain of a millet. This is myself within the heart, greater than the earth, greater than the atmosphere, greater than the sky, greater than these worlds.

4. sarva-karmā sarva-kāmaḥ sarva-gandhaḥ, sarva-rasaḥ, sarva-vam idam abhyātlo'vāky anādarah, eṣa ma ātmāntar hṛdaye etad brahma, etam itaḥ pretyābhisambhavitāsmīti, yasya syāt addhā na vicikitsāstīti ha smāha śāṇḍilyaḥ, śāṇḍilyaḥ.

4. Containing all works, containing all desires, containing all odours, containing all tastes, encompassing this whole world, without speech, without concern, this is the self of mine within the heart; this is Brahman. Into him, I shall enter, on departing hence. Verily, he who believes this, will have no more doubts. Thus used to say Śāṇḍilya, yea Śāṇḍilya.

This is the famous Śāṇḍilya vidyā which affirms the oneness of the individual soul and the Supreme Brahman. For Śāṇḍilya (1) the Absolute is that from which things are born, to which they repair and by which they live, (2) our next life depends on what we do in this life, (3) Ātman is both the transcendent and the immanent, and (4) the end of man is union with the Self.

Section 15

THE UNIVERSE AS A TREASURE CHEST

1. antarikṣodaraḥ kośo bhūmi budhno na jīryati, diśo hy asya sraktayo dyaur asyottaram bilam, sa eṣa kośo vasu-dhānas tasmin viśvam idam śritam.

1. The chest, having the atmosphere for its inside, and the earth for its bottom does not decay. The quarters of space are its corners and its upper lid is the sky. This chest is one containing wealth and within it rests everything here.

2. tasya prācī dig juhūr nāma, sahamānā nāma dakṣinā, rājñī nāma pratīcī, subhūtā nāmodīcī, tāsām vāyur vatsaḥ, sa ya etam evaṁ vāyur diśām vatsam veda, na putra-rodan roditi, so'ham etam evaṁ vāyur diśām vatsam veda, mā putra-rodan rudam.

2. The eastern quarter is named juhū; its southern quarter is named sahamāna; its western quarter is called rājñī; its northern quarter is called subhūta. The child of these is air. He who knows this air thus as the child of the quarters of space weeps not for a son. I here know this air thus as the child of the quarters of space, let me not weep for a son.

sahamāna is 'the region of Yama in which people suffer the results of evil deeds.' Ś.

rājñī is so called 'because it is lorded over by the king (rājan) Varuṇa or because it is red (rāga) with the colours of evening.' Ś.

subhūta is 'the region presided over by Kubera, the god of wealth.'

mā putra-rodam rudam: May I not weep for the death of my son, may I have no occasion to weep for the death of my son: putra-maraṇa-nimittam putra-rodo mama mābhūt. Ś.

If the promise made in III. 13-16, in his family a hero is born is to be fulfilled, this kośa-vijñāna or knowledge of the treasure chest is needed.

3. ariṣṭam kośam prapadye 'munā'munā'munā, prāṇam prapadye, 'munā'munā'munā; bhūh prapadye'munā'munā'munā; bhuvah prapadye 'munā'munā'munā; svah prapadye'munā'munā'munā.

3. I take refuge in the imperishable chest with this one, with this one, with this one. I take refuge in the breath, with this one, with this one, with this one. I take refuge in bhūh, with this one, with this one, with this one. I take refuge in bhuvah, with this one, with this one, with this one. I take refuge in svah, with this one, with this one, with this one.

The son's name, Ś says, is to be uttered thrice, when praying to the different deities.

4. sa yad avocam: prāṇam prapadya iti prāṇo vā idam sarvaṁ bhūtam yad idam kiñ ca, tam eva tat prāpatsi.

4. When I said, 'I take refuge in breath,' breath, verily, is everything here that has come to be, whatsoever there is. So it was in this I took refuge.

5. atha yad avocam: bhūh prapadya iti prthivīm prapadye'ntarikṣam prapadye, divam prapadya ity eva tad avocam.

5. So when I said, 'I take refuge in bhūh,' what I said was 'I take refuge in earth, I take refuge in atmosphere, I take refuge in sky.'

6. atha yad avocam: bhuvāh prapadya ity agnim prapadye, vāyum prapadye, ādityam prapadya ity eva tad avocam.

6. So when I said, 'I take refuge in bhuvah,' what I said was, 'I take refuge in Fire, I take refuge in Air, I take refuge in Sun.'

7. atha yad avocam: svah prapadya ity ṛg vedam prapadye, yajur vedam prapadye, sāma vedam prapadya ity eva tad avocam, tad avocam.

7. So when I said, 'I take refuge in svaḥ,' What I said was, 'I take refuge in the Rg Veda, I take refuge in the Yajur Veda, I take refuge in the Sāma Veda. That was what I said.'

This section points out how symbols are used for worship and the objects prayed for are this-worldly.

THE WHOLE LIFE IS SYMBOLICALLY A SACRIFICE

1. puruṣo vāva yajñāḥ, tasya yāni catur-vimśati varṣāṇi, tat prātaḥ-savanam, catur-vimśaty-akṣarā gāyatrī, gāyatrām prātaḥ-savavam, tad asya vasavo'nvāyattāḥ, prāṇā vāva vasavaḥ, ete hīdaṁ sarvaṁ vāsyaṁti.

1. Verily, a person is a sacrifice. His (first) twenty-four years are the morning libation, for the Gāyatrī (metre) has twenty-four syllables and the morning libation is offered with a gāyatrī hymn. With this (part of the sacrifice) the Vasus are connected. Verily, the vital breaths are the Vasus, for they cause everything here to endure.

2. taṁ ced etasmin vayasi kiṁ cid upatapet, sa brūyāt, prāṇā vasavaḥ, idam me prātaḥ-savanam mādhyān-dinam-savanam anu samtanuteti, māham prāṇānām vasūnām madhye yajño vilop-sīyati, udd haiva tata ety agado ha bhavati.

2. If in this period of life any sickness should overtake him, let him say, 'O ye vital breaths, ye Vasus, let this morning libation of mine continue over to the midday libation. Let not me, the sacrifice, be broken off in the midst of the vital breaths, of the Vasus.' He arises from it; he becomes free from sickness.

While the previous section dealt with the long life of the son, this deals with one's own long life.

3. atha yāni catuṣcatvāriṁśad varṣāṇi, tan mādhyān-dinam-savanam catuṣ-catvāriṁśad-akṣarā triṣṭup, triṣṭubham mādhyān-dinam-savanam, tad asya rudrā anvāyattāḥ, prāṇā vāva rudrāḥ, ete hīdaṁ sarvaṁ rodayaṁti.

3. Now the (next) forty-four years are the midday libation for the Triṣṭubh (metre) has forty-four syllables and the midday libation is offered with a Triṣṭubh hymn. With this (part of the sacrifice) the Rudras are connected. Verily, the vital breaths are the Rudras for (on departing) they cause everything here to weep.

4. taṁ ced etasmin vayasi kiṁ cid upatapet sa brūyāt, prāṇā rudrāḥ idam me mādhyān-dīnam-savanam trītiya-savanam anu samtanuteti, māham prāṇānām rudrānām madhye yajño vilop-sīyati, udd haiva tata ety agado haiva bhavati.

4. If, in this period of life, any sickness should overtake him, let him say, 'O ye vital breaths, ye Rudras, let this midday libation of mine continue over to the third libation. Let not me, the sacrifice, be broken off in the midst of the vital breaths, of the Rudras.' He arises from it; he becomes free from sickness.

5. atha yāny aṣṭā-catvāriṁśad varṣāṇi, tat trītiya-savanam, aṣṭā-catvāriṁśad-akṣarā jagatī, jāgataṁ trītiya-savanam, tad asyā dityā anvāyattāḥ, prāṇā vāvādityāḥ, ete hīdam sarvaṁ ādadate.

5. Now the (next) forty-eight years are the third libation for the jagatī (metre) has forty-eight syllables and the third libation is offered with a jagatī hymn. With this (part of the sacrifice) the Ādityas are connected. Verily, the vital breaths are the Ādityas for (on departing) they take everything to themselves.

6. taṁ ced etasmin vayasi kiṁ cid upatapet sa brūyāt prāṇā ādityā idam me trītiya-savanam āyur anu samtanuteti, māham prāṇānām ādityānām madhye yajño vilop-sīyety, udd haiva tata ety agado haiva bhavati.

6. If, in this period of life, any sickness should overtake him, let him say, 'O ye vital breaths, ye Ādityas, let this third libation of mine continue to a full length of life. Let not me, the sacrifice, be broken off in the midst of the vital breaths, the Ādityas.' He arises from it; he becomes free from sickness.

7. etadd ha sma vai tad vidvān āha mahidāsa aitareyaḥ; sa kiṁ ma etad upatapasi, yo'ham anena na preṣyāmīti; sa ha ṣoḍaśaṁ varṣa-śatam ajīvat; pra ha ṣoḍaśaṁ varṣa-śatam jīvati, ya evaṁ veda.

7. Verily, it was knowing this that Mahidāsa Aitareya used to say, 'Why do you afflict me with this sickness, me, who am not going to die by it?' He lived a hundred and sixteen years. He, too, who knows this lives to a hundred and sixteen years.

Mahidāsa Aitareya was a dāsa or a śūdra by birth. According to Sāyaṇa's Introduction to the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, he was the son of a Brāhmaṇa seer by Itarā, a low-caste woman. As he was not given the same treatment as other sons, his mother prayed to Mahī or the goddess Earth, who granted her prayers. The son was enabled to compose the Brāhmaṇas and the Āraṇyakas. This story implies a protest against the injustice of the caste system.

Section 17

MAN'S LIFE A SACRIFICE

1. sa yad aśiṣiṣati yat pīpāsati, yan na ramate, tā asya dīkṣāḥ.

1. When one hungers and thirsts and abstains from pleasures these constitute the initiatory rites.

The writer gives an account of a sacrifice which can be performed without any ceremonial and in spirit even by hermits.

Privation is equated with initiation, enjoyments with the sacrificial sessions and chantings, the virtues with the offerings, generation with regeneration and death with the last ritual the final bath.

2. atha yad aśnāti, yat pībati, yad ramate, tad upasadaḥ etī.

2. And when one eats and drinks and enjoys pleasures, then he joins in the Upasada ceremonies.

upasada: a particular class of sacrificers who are happy because they take only milk: upasadām ca payo-vratatva-nimittam sukham asti. Ś.

3. atha yadd hasati yaj jakṣati, yan maithunam carati, stuta-sastrair eva tad etī.

3. And when one laughs and eats and indulges in sexual intercourse, then he joins in the chant and recitation.

4. atha yat tapo dānam ārjavam ahimsā satya-vacanam iti, tā asya dakṣiṇāḥ.

4. And austerity, almsgiving, uprightness, non-violence, truthfulness, these are the gifts for the priests.

5. tasmād āhuḥ soṣyaty asoṣṣeti punar utpādanam evāsya, tan maraṇam evāvabhṛtāḥ.

5. Therefore they say 'He will procreate.' He has procreated—that is his new birth. Death is the final bath (after the ceremony).

6. tadd haitad ghora āṅgirasah kṛṣṇāya devakī-putrāyoktvo-vāca, a-pīpāsa eva sa babhūva so'ntavelāyām etat trayam prati- padyet: akṣitam asi, acyutam asi, prāṇa-saṁśitam asīti: tatraithe dve rcāu bhavataḥ.

6. When Ghora Āṅgīrasa, after having communicated this to Kṛṣṇa, the son of Devakī, he also said, as he had become free from desire, 'In the final hour, one should take refuge in these three (thoughts). Thou art the indestructible; thou art the unshaken, thou art the very essence of life.' On this point, there are these two Rg verses

Ś points out that the references are to the Yajus verses beginning with (i) akṣitam asi, (ii) acyutam asi, and (iii) prāṇa-saṁśitam asi. See Bhagavad-Gītā, p. 28.

7. ād it pratnasya retasaḥ, ud vayan̄ tamasas-pari jyotiḥ paśyanta uttaram svaḥ paśyanta uttaram, devaṁ devatrā sūryam aganma jyotir uttamam iti, jyotir uttamam iti.

7. Proceeding from the primeval seed, they see the morning light that shines higher than the sky. Seeing beyond darkness, the higher light, seeing the higher light, we attain to the sun god among the gods, the highest light, yea, the highest light.

In some texts, after retasaḥ, we find jyotiḥ paśyanti vāsaram, paro yad idhate divā.

'Those that know Brahman, with their eyes turned aside, with their hearts purged by the restrictions of the ascetic life like brahmacharya see the light all round': niṛvṛta-cakṣuso brahma-vido brahmacharyādi-niṛvṛti-sādhanaīḥ śuddhāntaḥkaraṇā ā samantato jyotiḥ paśyanti. Ś.

THE FOURFOLD NATURE OF THE INDIVIDUAL AND THE WORLD

1. mano brahmety upāsītety adhyātman, athādhidaivatam ākāśo brahmety (upāsīta), ubhayam ādiṣṭam bhavaty adhyātman cādhidaivatam ca.

1. One should meditate on the mind as Brahman—this with regard to the self. Now with reference to the divinities one should meditate on space as Brahman. This is the twofold instruction, that which refers to the body and that which refers to the divinities.

ākāśa or space is used as it is 'all-pervading, subtle and free from limitations': sarva-gatatvāt sūkṣmatvāt, upādhi-hīnatvāt. Ś.

2. tad etac catuspād brahma, vāk pādaḥ, prāṇaḥ pādaś cakṣuḥ pādaḥ śrotam pāda ity adhyātman; athādhidaivatam, agniḥ pādo vāyuh pādaḥ, ādityaḥ pādo diśaḥ pāda ity ubhayam evādiṣṭam bhavaty adhyātman caivādhidaivatam ca.

2. That Brahman has four quarters. Speech is one quarter, breath is one quarter, the eye is one quarter, the ear is one quarter. This with reference to the self. Now with reference to the divinities. Fire is one quarter, air is one quarter, the sun is one quarter and the directions are one quarter. This is the two-fold instruction with reference to the self and with reference to the divinities.

3. vāg eva brahmaṇaś caturthaḥ pādaḥ, so'gninā jyotiṣā bhāti ca tapati ca, bhāti ca tapati ca kīrtiyā yaśasā brahma-varcasena, ya evam veda.

3. Speech, verily, is a fourth part of Brahman. It shines and warms with the light of fire. He who knows this shines and warms with fame, with renown, and with the radiance of Brahma-knowledge.

4. prāṇa eva brahmaṇaś caturthaḥ pādaḥ, sa vāyunā jyotiṣā bhāti ca tapati ca, bhāti ca tapati ca kīrtiyā yaśasā brahma-varcasena, ya evam veda.

4. Breath, verily, is a fourth part of Brahman. It shines and warms with the light of air. He who knows this shines and warms with fame, with renown, and with the radiance of Brahma-knowledge.

5. cakṣur eva brahmaṇaś caturthaḥ pādaḥ, sa ādityena jyotiṣā bhāti ca tapati ca, bhāti ca tapati ca kīrtiyā yaśasā brahma-varcasena, ya evam veda.

5. The eye, verily, is a fourth part of Brahman. It shines and warms with the light of the sun. He who knows this shines and warms with fame, with renown, and with the radiance of Brahma-knowledge.

6. śrotam eva brahmaṇaś caturthaḥ pādaḥ, sa digbhir jyotiṣā bhāti ca tapati ca, bhāti ca tapati ca kīrtiyā yaśasā brahma-varcasena, ya evam veda, ya evam veda.

6. The ear is a fourth part of Brahman. It shines and warms with the light of the directions. He who knows this shines and warms with fame, with renown, and with the radiance of Brahma-knowledge.

Section 19

THE COSMIC EGG

1. ādityo brahmety ādeśaḥ, tasyopavyākhyānam: asad evedam agra āsit, tat sad āsit, tat samabhavat, tad āṇḍam niravartata, tat samvatsarasya mātṛām aśayata, taṁ nirabhidya, te āṇḍakapāle rajataṁ ca suvarṇam cābhavatām.

1. The Sun is Brahman—this is the teaching. An explanation thereof (is this). In the beginning this (world) was non-existent. It became existent. It grew. It turned into an egg. It lay for the period of a year. It burst open. Then came out of the egg-shell, two parts, one of silver, the other of gold.

See R.V. X. 129; Manu I. 12.

asad: non-existent, it does not mean absolute non-being. It is a state in which name and form were not manifested: avyākṛta-nāma-rūpam. Ś. See also T.U. II. 7.

In C.U. VI. 2, the view that in the beginning there was only non-being is combated.

2. tad yad rajataṁ soyaṁ pṛthivī, yat suvarṇam sā dyauh; yaj jarāyu te parvatāḥ, yad ulbāṁ sa meghe nīhāraḥ, yā dhamanayas tā nadyaḥ, yad vāsteyam udakam sa samudraḥ.

2. That which was of silver is this earth; that which was of gold is the sky. What was the outer membrane is the mountains; that which was the inner membrane is the mist with the clouds. What were the veins were the rivers. What was the fluid within is the ocean.

In the Orphic Cosmogony, Chronos andAdrastea produce a gigantic egg which is divided into two, the upper half forming the sky and the lower the earth.

3. atha yat tad ajāyata so'sāv ādityaḥ; taṁ jāyamānaṁ ghoṣā ulūlavo' nūdatiṣṭhan, sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni, sarve ca kāmāḥ; tasmāt tasyodayam prati pratyāyanam prati ghoṣā ulūlavo' nūtiṣṭhanti, sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni sarve ca kāmāḥ.

3. And what was born from it is the yonder sun. When he was born, shouts and hurrays as also all beings and all desires arose. Therefore at his rise and his every return, shouts and hurrahs as also all beings and all desires arise.

4. sa ya etam evaṁ vidvān ādityam brahmety upāste' bhyāso ha yaḥ enaṁ sādhaso ghoṣā ā ca gaccheyur upa ca nimreḍeran nimreḍeran.

4. He, who knowing thus, meditates on the sun as Brahman, pleasant shouts will come unto him and delight him, yea, delight him.

CHAPTER IV

Section I

THE STORY OF JĀNAŚRUTI AND RAIKVA

1. aum. jānaśrutir ha pautrāyaṇaḥ śraddhādeyo bahudāyī bahu-pākyā āsa, sa ha sarvata āvasathān māpayām cakre, sarvata eva me'tsyantīti.

1. Aum. There was the descendant of Janaśruta, his great grandson, a pious giver, a liberal giver, a preparer of much food. He had rest houses built everywhere, with the thought 'everywhere people will be eating of my food.'

2. atha ha hamsā niśāyām atipetuh, tadā haivam hamso hamsam abhyuvāda: ho ho'yi bhallākṣa, bhallākṣa, jānaśruteh pautrāya-nasya samam divā jyotir ātatam, tan mā prasāṅkṣīs tat tvā mā pradhākṣīd iti.

2. Then once at night, some swans flew past and one swan spoke to another thus, 'Hay, Ho, Shortsighted, Shortsighted. The light of Janaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) has spread like the sky. Do not touch it, lest it burn you.'

v. pradhākṣīr for pradhākṣīd.

3. tam u ha paraḥ praty uvāca kam vara enam etat santam sayugvānam iva raikvam āttheti. Ko nu katham sayugvā raikva iti.

3. To it, the other one replied, 'Who is that man of whom you speak, as if he were Raikva, the man with the cart?' 'Pray, how is it with Raikva, the man with the cart?'

Ś quotes Raikva in S.B. III. 4. 36 as one of the sages who attained brahma-jñāna or divine wisdom though they did not observe the rules of castes and stages of life: anāśramitvena vartamāno'hi vidyāyām adbhikriyate, kutah tad, dr̥ṣṭeh, raikva-vācaknavi-prabhṛtīnām evam-bhūtānām api brahmavitvaśrutirupalabdhēh.

4. yathā kṛtāya vijitāyādhareyāḥ samyanti, evam enam sarvam tad abhisameti, yat kiñ ca prajāḥ sādhu kurvanti, yas tad veda yat sa veda, sa mayaitad ukta iti.

4. Even as all the lower throws of dice go to the winner with the highest throw, so whatever good men do, all goes to him. He also who knows what he knows, is thus spoken by me.

5. tad u ha jānaśrutir pautrāyaṇa upaśuśrāva, sa ha samji- hāna eva kṣattāram uvāca, aṅgāre ha sa-yugvānam iva raikvam āttheti, ko nu katham sa-yugvā raikva iti.

5. Now, Jānaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) overheard this. Then when he rose, he said to the attendant, 'O friend, you speak to me in the same way as to Raikva with the cart.' (He asked) 'How is it with Raikva, the man with the cart?'

He overheard the conversation of the swans and spent the night brooding over it. When he woke up, listening to the eulogistic chants of the bards, he turned to his attendant and said, 'You speak of me as of Raikva with the cart.' Ś.

6. yathā kṛtāya vijitāyādhareyāḥ samyanti, evam enaṁ sarvaṁ tad abhisameti, yat kiṁ ca prajāḥ sādhu kurvanti, yas tad veda yat sa veda, sa mayaitad ukta iti.

6. Even as all the throws of the dice go to the winner with the highest throw, so whatever good men do, all goes to him. He also who knows what he knows is thus spoken of by me.

7. sa ha kṣattānviṣya, nāvidam iti pratyeyāya, taṁ hovāca yatrāre brāhmaṇasyānveṣanā tad enaṁ arcchati.

7. The attendant searched for him and returned saying 'I did not find him.' Then he said to him, 'O where a Brāhmaṇa is searched for, there look for him.'

The Brāhmaṇas are generally to be found in solitary places in the forests or on the banks of rivers. ekānte'raṇye nadī-pulinādaṁ vivikte deśe. Ś. The attendant was instructed to search in such places.

8. so'dhastāc chakatasya pāmānaṁ kaṣamānaṁ upopaviveśa, taṁ hābhyuvāda, tvaṁ nu bhagavaḥ sa-yugvā raikva iti; ahaṁ hy are; iti ha pratiyajñe; sa ha kṣattā, avidam iti pratyeyāya.

8. He approached a man scratching the itch underneath a cart, and said to him, 'Pray, Sir, are you Raikva, the man with the cart?' He replied: 'Yes, I am he.' The attendant returned saying, 'I have found him out.'

1. tad u ha jānaśrutiḥ pautrāyaṇaḥ śat-śatāni gavāṁ niṣkam aśvatarī-rathaṁ tad ādāya praticakrame, taṁ hābhyuvāda.

1. Then Jānaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) took with him six hundred cows, a gold necklace, and a chariot with mules and said to him:

2. raikvemāni śaṭ śatāni gavām, ayaṁ niṣko'yam aśvatarī-rathaḥ, anu ma etām bhagavo devatām śādhi, yām devatām upāssa iti.

2. 'Raikva, here are six hundred cows, a gold necklace and a chariot with mules. Now Sir, please teach me the deity whom you worship.'

3. tam u ha paraḥ pratyuvāca, ahahāre tvā, śūdra, tavaiva saha gobhir astu iti; tad u ha punar eva jānaśrutiḥ pautrāyaṇaḥ sahasraṁ gavām niṣkam aśvatarī-ratham duhitaraṁ tad ādāya praticakrame.

3. And to him, then, the other replied, 'Oh, necklace and carriage along with the cows be yours, O Śūdra.' And then again, Jānaśruti, the great grandson (of Janaśruta) taking a thousand cows, a gold necklace and a chariot with mules, and his daughter too, went up to him.

Śūdra. The king is not a Śūdra. Ś explains it, thus: 'The old teachers have explained this point thus: by addressing him as Śūdra, the sage Raikva shows that he already knows what is passing in the king's mind: The word Śūdra meaning "one who is melting with sorrows at hearing the greatness of Raikva, as spoken of by the swans." Or it may be that the king is addressed as Śūdra because he comes for instruction with an offering of riches like a Śūdra and not with proper obeisance and attendance as befits the higher castes, and it does not mean that the king is a Śūdra by caste. Others, however, explain that Raikva addressed him thus, because he was enraged at his offering him so little, because it is also said that riches are to be accepted when plenty of it is offered.'

4. taṁ hābhyuvāda, raikvedaṁ sahasraṁ gavām, ayaṁ niṣko'yam aśvatarī-rathaḥ, iyaṁ jāyāyaṁ grāmaṁ yasmin āsse: anu eva mā, bhagavaḥ, śādhi.

4. He said to him: 'Raikva, here are a thousand cows, here is a gold necklace, here is a chariot with mules, here is a wife and here is a village in which you dwell. Pray, revered Sir, teach me.'

5. tasyā ha mukham upodgrhṇann uvāca: ahahāremāḥ śūdra anenaiva mukhenālāpayiṣyathā iti; te haite raikva-parṇā nāma mahāvṛṣeṣu yatrāsmā uvāsa sa tasmai hovāca.

5. Then, lifting up her (the daughter's) face toward himself, he (i.e. Raikva) said, 'He has brought these (cows) along, Śūdra, merely by this face you would make me speak.' These are the villages called Raikva-parṇa, among the people of the Mahāvṛṣas, where he lived. Then he said to him:

Ś quotes a verse to the effect that a life of studentship, gift of wealth, intelligence, knowledge of the Veda, love and knowledge are the six ways to the attainment of knowledge.

vidyayā vā vidyām prāha, tāni tīrthāni śaṇ mama.*

RAIKVA'S TEACHING

1. vāyur vāva samvargah, yadā vā agnir udvāyati, vāyur evāpyeti, yadā sūryo'stam eti vāyur evāpyeti, yadā candro'stam eti vāyur evāpyeti.

1. Air, verily, is the absorbent; for when a fire goes out, it goes into the air. When the sun sets, it goes into the air, and when the moon sets, it goes into the air.

For Anaximenes air is theos; it is the primary substance. His follower, Diogenes of Apollonia (fifth century B.C.) makes out that air is not only the one original and permanent substance but is also in its purest form the substance of all psyche in the universe. It has special affinities with the soul in animals and human beings. Simplicius quotes from his book, On Nature, 'Mankind and the other animals live on air, by breathing; and it is to them both soul and mind. The soul of all animals is the same, namely, air, which is warmer than the air outside, in which we live, though much colder than that near the sun. In my opinion that which has intelligence is what men call air, and by it everything is directed and it has power over all things; for it is just this substance which I hold to be God.' See W. K. C. Guthrie: The Greeks and their Gods (1950), pp. 135-36.

The connection of life with breath and so with air seems obvious. The Latin word for soul, anima, means both air and breath.

2. yadāpa ucchuṣyanti, vāyur evāpiyanti, vāyur hy evaitān sarvān samvṛṇkte, ity adhidivatam.

2. When water dries up, it goes into the air. For air, indeed, absorbs them all. This, with regard to the divinities.

3. athādhyātmam: prāṇo vāva saṁvargaḥ, sa yadā svāpiti prāṇam eva vāg apyeti, prāṇam cakṣuḥ, prāṇam śrotam, prāṇam manaḥ, prāṇo hy evaitān sarvān saṁvrynkte iti.

3. Now, with reference to the self: Breath, indeed, is the absorbent. When one sleeps, speech just goes into breath; sight goes into breath; hearing goes into breath; the mind goes into breath. For breath, indeed, absorbs all this.

4. tau vā etau dvau saṁvargau, vāyur eva deveṣu, prāṇaḥ prāṇeṣu.

4. These two, verily, are the two absorbents, air among the gods, breath among the breaths.

5. atha ha śaunakaḥ ca kāpeyam abhipratārinam ca kākṣasenim pariviśyamāṇau brahmacārī bibhikṣe, tasmā u ha na dadatuḥ.

5. Once upon a time, when Śaunaka Kāpeya and Abhipratārin Kākṣaseni were being served with food, a student of sacred knowledge begged of them. They did not give to him anything.

6. sa hovāca:

*mahātmanaś caturo deva ekaḥ kaḥ sa jagāra bhuvanasya gopāḥ.
tam, kāpeya, nābhipaśyanti martyāḥ abhipratārin bahudhā vasantam.*

yasmai vā etad annam, tasmā etan na dattam iti.

6. Then he said, 'The one god has swallowed up four great ones, he who is the guardian of the world. Him, O Kāpeya, mortals do not see, though he abides in manifold forms, O Abhipratārin. Verily, this food has not been offered to him to whom it belongs.'

The food you have refused to me, you have really refused to Brahman.

The one god is said to be Prajā-pati.

7. *tad u ha śaunakaḥ kāpeyaḥ pratimanvānaḥ pratyeyāya ātmā devānām janitā prajānām, hiranya-damśtro babhaso'nasūriḥ:
mahāntam asya mahimānam āhuḥ, anadyamāno yad anannam attī*

iti vai vayan brahmacārin, idam upāsmahe, dattāsmāi bhikṣām iti.

7. Then Śaunaka Kāpeya, reflecting on this, replied. 'It is the self of gods, the creator of all beings, with golden teeth, the eater, the truly wise one. They speak of his magnificence as very great indeed, because he eats what is not food, without being eaten. Thus, verily, O student of sacred knowledge, do we meditate on this.' (Then he said to his attendants) 'give him food.'

hiranya: golden, undecaying, undamaged. amṛta, abhagna. Ś.
anasūriḥ: truly wise: sūrir eva. Ś.

8. tasma u ha daduḥ; te vā ete pañcānye pañcānye daśa santas tat kṛtam, tasmāt sarvāsu diṣṣv annam eva daśa kṛtam, saiṣā virāḍ annādi, tayedam sarvaṁ dṛṣṭam, sarvaṁ asyedam dṛṣṭam bhavati, annādo bhavati ya evaṁ veda, ya evaṁ veda.

8. Then they gave (food) to him. These five and the other five make ten and that is the highest throw in dice. Therefore in all directions, these ten are the food and the highest throw. This is Virāj, the eater of food. Through it, this whole world becomes seen. One who knows this, sees all this and becomes an eater of food, yea, one who knows this.

The first five are air, fire, sun, moon and water. The second five are breath, speech, eye, ear and mind.

CHAPTER IV

Section 4

THE STORY OF SATYAKĀMA

1. satyakāmo ha jābālo jābālām mātaram āmantrayām cakre, brahmacaryam, bhavati, vivatsyāmi, kiṁ gotro nū aham asmīti.

1. Once upon a time Satyakāma Jābāla addressed his mother Jābālā, 'Mother, I desire to live the life of a student of sacred knowledge. Of what family am I?'

2. sā hainam uvāca, nāham etad veda, tāta, yad gotras tvam asi, bahv aham carantī paricārini yauvane tvām alabhe, sāham etan na veda yad-gotras tvam asi, jābālā-tu nāmāham asmi, satyakāmo nāma tvam asi, sa satyakāma eva jābālo bruvītha iti.

2. Then she said to him: 'I do not know, my child, of what family you are. In my youth, when I went about a great deal, as a maid servant, I got you. So I do not know of what family you are. However, I am Jābālā by name and you are Satyakāma by name. So you may speak of yourself as Satyakāma Jābāla (the son of Jābālā).

Ś says that she had no time to ascertain about her gotra or family as she had to move about much in her husband's house, attending upon guests.

3. sa ha haridrumataṁ gautamaṁ etyovāca, brahmacaryam bhagavati vatsyāmi, upeyāṁ bhagavantam iti.

3. Then he went to Gautama, the son of Haridrumat and said, 'I wish to become a student of sacred knowledge. May I become your pupil, Venerable Sir.'

4. taṁ hovāca, kiṁ-gotro nu, saumya, asīti; sa hovāca, nāhametaḍ veda, bhoḥ, yad-gotro'ham asmi, aprccham mātaram, sā mā pratyabravīt, bahu ahaṁ carantī paricārīṇī yauvane tvāṁ alabhe, sāhaṁ etan na veda yad-gotras tvam asi, jābālā tu nāmāham asmi, satyakāmo nāma tvam asīti, so'haṁ satyakāmo jābālo'smi, bhoḥ, iti.

4. He said to him 'Of what family are you, my dear?' He replied, 'I do not know this, sir, of what family I am. I asked my mother. She answered me, "In my youth, when I went about a great deal as a maid-servant, I got you. So I do not know of what family you are. I am Jābālā by name and you are Satyakāma by name." So I am Satyakāma Jābāla, Sir.'

5. He then said to him, 'None but a Brāhmaṇa could thus explain. Bring the fuel, my dear, I will receive you, as a pupil. Thou hast not departed from the truth. Having initiated him, he separated out four hundred lean, weak cows and said, 'Go with these, my dear.' While taking them away, he said, 'I may not return without a thousand.' He lived away a number of years. When they came to be a thousand.

Section 5

THE FOUR QUARTERS OF BRAHMAN

1. atha hainam ṛṣabho'bhyuvāda, satyakāma iti, bhagavaḥ iti ha pratiśuśrāva; prāptāḥ, saumya, sahasraṁ smaḥ, prāpaya na ācārya-kulam.

1. Then the bull spoke to him, saying, 'Satyakāma!' He replied, 'Revered Sir.' 'We have reached a thousand, my dear, take us to the teacher's house.'

'him, thus equipped with faith and austerity, the deity of the air, connected with the directions, having become satisfied, entered into the bull': tam etam śraddhā-tapobhyām siddham vāyu-devatā dik-sambandhinī tuṣṭā saty ṛṣabham anupraviśya. Ś.

2. brahmaṇas ca te pādāṁ bravānūti, bravātu me, bhagavān, iti, tasmai hovāca: prācī dik kalā, pratīcī dik kalā, dakṣiṇā dik kalodīcī dik kalaiṣa vai, saumya, catuṣ-kalāḥ pādo brahmaṇaḥ prakāśavān nāma.

2. 'And let me declare to you a quarter of Brahman.' 'Tell me, Revered Sir.' To him, it then said, 'The east is one quarter, the west is one quarter, the south is one quarter, and the north is one quarter. This, verily, my dear, is Brahman's four-quartered foot named the Shining.

3. sa ya etam evaṁ vidvāṁś catuṣ-kalāṁ pādāṁ brahmaṇaḥ prakāśavān ity upāste prakāśavān asmīn lōke bhavati, prakāśavato ha lokāṁ jayati, ya etam evaṁ vidvāṁś catuṣ-kalāṁ pādāṁ brahmaṇaḥ prakāśavān ity upāste.

3. 'He who, knowing it thus, meditates on this four quartered foot of Brahman named the Shining becomes shining in this world. Then he wins shining worlds, who, knowing it thus, meditates on the fourquartered foot of Brahman, named the Shining.'

Section 6

1. agniṣ te pādāṁ vakteti, sa ha śvo bhūte gā abhiprasthāpāyāṁ cakāra, tā yatrābhi-sāyam babhūvuh, tatrāgnim upasamād- hāya, gā uparudhya, samidham ādhāya, paścād agneḥ prāṇ upopaviveśa.

1. 'Fire will declare to you the other quarter of Brahman.' He, then, when it was the morrow, drove the cows on. When they came, at evening, he lighted a fire, penned the cows, laid on fuel, and sat down to the west of the fire, facing the east.

2. tam agnir abhyuvāda, satyakāma iti; bhagavaḥ, iti ha pratiśuśrāva.

2. The Fire said to him, 'Satyakāma.' He replied, 'Revered Sir.'

3. brahmaṇaḥ, saumya, te pādāṁ bravānīti, bravītu me, bhagavān iti; tasmai hovāca; pṛthivī kalā'ntarikṣaṁ kalā, dyauḥ kalā, samudraḥ kalā, eṣa vai, saumya, catus-kalāḥ pādo brahmaṇo' nantavān nāma.

3. 'Let me declare to you, my dear, a quarter of Brahman.' 'Tell me, Revered Sir.' To him, it then said, 'The earth is one quarter, the atmosphere is one quarter, the sky is one quarter, the ocean is one quarter. This, verily, my dear, is Brahman's fourquartered foot, named the Endless.

4. sa ya etam evaṁ vidvāṁś catus-kalāṁ pādāṁ brahmaṇo anantavān ity upāste, anantavān asmimlloke bhavati, anantavato ha lokāṁ jayati, ya etam evaṁ vidvāṁś catus-kalāṁ pādāṁ brahmaṇo anantavān ity upāste.

4. 'He, who knowing it thus, meditates on this fourquartered foot of Brahman as the Endless becomes endless in this world. Then, he wins endless worlds, who knowing it thus, meditates on the fourquartered foot of Brahman as the Endless.'

1. hamsas te pādāṁ vakteti, sa ha śvobhūte gā abhiprasthāpayāṁ cakāra, tā yatrābhisāyam babhūvuh, tatrāgnim upasamādhāya, gā uparudhya, samidham ādhāya paścād agneḥ prāṇ upopaviveśa.

1. 'A swan will tell you (another) quarter.' He, then, when it was the morrow, drove the cows on. When they came at evening, he lighted a fire, penned the cows, laid on the fuel, and sat down to the west of the fire, facing the east.

2. taṁ haṁsa upanipatyābhyuvāda, satyakāma iti, bhagavaḥ, iti ha pratiśuśrāva.

2. A swan flew down to him and said, 'Satyakāma,' He replied 'Revered Sir.'

3. brahmaṇaḥ, saumya, te pādaṁ bravānti, bravītu me bhagavan, iti, tasmai hovāca agniḥ kalā, sūryaḥ kalā, candraḥ kalā, vidyut kalā, eṣa vai, saumya, catuṣ-kalaḥ, pādo brahmaṇo jyotiṣmān nāma.

3. 'Let me declare to you, my dear, a quarter of Brahman.' 'Tell me, Revered Sir.' To him, it then said, 'Fire is one quarter, the sun is one quarter, the moon is one quarter and the lightning is one quarter'. This, verily, my dear, is Brahman's four-quartered foot named the Luminous.

4. sa ya etam evaṁ vidvāṁś catuṣ-kalaṁ pādam brahmaṇo jyotiṣmān ity upāste, jyotiṣmān asmiml loke bhavati, jyotiṣmato ha lokān jayati ya etam evaṁ vidvāṁś catuṣ-kalaṁ pādam brahmaṇo jyotiṣmān ity upāste.

4. 'He, who, knowing it thus, meditates, on this fourquartered foot of Brahman as the Luminous becomes luminous in the world. Then he wins luminous worlds, who, knowing it thus, meditates on the fourquartered foot of Brahman as the Luminous.'

Section 8

1. madguṣ te pādaṁ vakteti, sa ha śvobhūte gā abhiprasthāpayām cakāra, tā yatrābhi sāyam babhūvuh, tatrāgnim upasamādhāya, gā uparudhya, samīdham ādhāya, paścād agneḥ prān upopariveśa.

1. 'A diver-bird will tell you (another) quarter. He, then, when it was the morrow, drove the cows on. When they came at evening, he lighted a fire, penned the cows, laid on the fuel and sat down to the west of the fire, facing the east.

2. tam madgur upanipatyābhyuvāda, satyakāma, iti bhagavaḥ, iti ha pratiśuśrāva.

2. A diver-bird flew down to him and said, 'Satyakāma.' He replied: 'Yes, Sir.'

3. brahmaṇaḥ, saumya, te pādāṃ bravāṇīti, bravītu me bhagavān iti, tasmai hovāca, prāṇaḥ kalā, cākṣuḥ kalā śrotraṃ kalā, manāḥ, kata eṣa vai, saumya, catuṣ-kalāḥ pādo brahmaṇa āyatanavān nāma.

3. 'Let me declare to you, my dear, a quarter of Brahman.' 'Tell me, Revered Sir.' To him it then said, 'Breath is one quarter, the eye is one quarter, the ear is one quarter, and the mind is one quarter. This, verily, my dear, is the fourquartered foot of Brahman named Possessing a support.'

4. sa ya etam evaṃ vidvāṃś catuṣ-kalam pādāṃ brahmaṇa āyatanavān ity upāste, āyatanavān asmīṃl loke bhavati, āyatanavato ha lokāṃ jayati, ya etam evaṃ vidvāṃś catuṣ-kalam pādāṃ brahmaṇa āyatanavān ity upāste.

4. 'He, who, knowing it thus, meditates on this fourquartered foot of Brahman as possessing a support, comes to possess a support in this world. Then he wins worlds possessing a support, who, knowing it thus, meditates on the fourquartered foot of Brahman as 'possessing a support.'

Section 9

SATYAKĀMA RETURNS TO THE TEACHER

1. prāpa hācārya-kulam, tam ācāryo'bhuyuvāda, satyakāma iti; bhagavaḥ, iti ha pratiśuśrāva.

1. Then he reached the teacher's house. The teacher said, 'Satyakāma.' He replied, 'Yes, Revered Sir.'

2. brahma-vid iva vai, saumya, bhāsi, ko nu tvānuśāseti, anye manuṣyebhya iti ha pratijajñe, bhagavāṃś tv eva me kāme brūyāt.

2. 'Verily, my dear, you shine like one knowing Brahman. Who has taught you?' He replied, 'Others, than men. But I wish, Revered Sir, that you teach me.'

Cp. St. Bernard: 'What I know of the divine sciences and Holy Scripture, I learnt in woods and fields. I have had no other masters than the beeches and the oaks.'

One who knows Brahman has his senses tranquillised, wears a smiling face, is free from anxiety and is of fulfilled purpose: prasannendriyaḥ prahasita-vadanaś ca niścintaḥ kṛtārtho brahma-vid bhavati. Ś.

3. śrutam hy eva me bhagavad-dṛṣebhyaḥ, ācāryādd haiva vidyā viditā sādhiṣṭham prāpatīti, tasmai haitad evovāca atra ha na kiñ cana vīyāyeti, vīyāyeti.

3. 'For I have heard from persons like you, Revered sir, that the knowledge which has been learned from a teacher best helps one to attain his end.' To him, he then declared it. In it nothing whatsoever was left out, yea, nothing was left out.

Section 10

BRAHMAN AS LIFE, JOY AND ETHER

1. upakosalo ha vai kāmālāyanaḥ satyakāme jābāle brahmacyam uvāsa, tasya ha dvādaśa varṣāny agnīm paricacāra, sa ha smānyān antevāsinaḥ samāvartayams taṁ ha smaiva na samāvartayati.

1. Now, verily, Upakosala, the son of Kamala dwelt with Satyakāma Jābāla, as a student of sacred wisdom. He tended his fires for twelve years. But the teacher, though he allowed other pupils (after they learnt the sacred wisdom) to return to their homes, did not allow him (Upakosala) to depart.

2. taṁ jāyovāca, tupto brahmacārī, kuśalam agnīm paricacārīn, mā tvāgnayaḥ paripravocan, prabrūhy asmā iti, tasmai ha aprocyaiḥ pravāsāmcakre.

2. His wife said to him, '(this) student of sacred wisdom has performed his penance and tended the fires well. Let not the fires blame you. Give him the teaching.' But he went away without teaching him.

3. saha vyādhinānaśitum dadhre, tam ācārya-jāyovāca, brahmācārīn, aśāna, kiṁ nu nāśnāsi iti. sa hovāca, bahava ime'smīn puruṣe kāmā nānātyayāḥ, vyādhībhiḥ pratīpurno'smi, nāśiṣyāmi iti.

3. Then, on account of sickness (grief), he resolved not to eat.

The teacher's wife said to him. 'O student of sacred wisdom, please eat. Why, pray, do you not eat?' Then he said, 'Many are the desires in this person which proceed in different directions. I am filled with sicknesses (griefs). I will not eat.'

4. atha hāgnayah samūdire, tapto brahmacārī, kuśalam naḥ paryacārīt, hantāsmāi prabravāmeti: tasmai hōcuḥ, prāṇo brahma, kaṁ brahma, kham brahmeti.

4. Then the fires said among themselves: 'This student of sacred wisdom has performed his penance and tended us well. Let us teach him then.' They then said to him. 'Life is Brahman, Joy is Brahman, Ether is Brahman.'

ākāśa: ether or space.

5. sa hovāca vijānāmy aham yat prāṇo brahma, kaṁ ca tu kham ca na vijānāmīti: te hōcuḥ, yad vāva kaṁ tad eva kham, yad eva kham tad eva kaṁ iti, prāṇam ca hāsmāi tad ākāśam cocuḥ.

5. Then he said, 'I understand that life is Brahman. But joy and ether I do not understand.' They said (to him), 'Joy, verily, that is the same as ether. Ether, verily, that is the same as joy.' Then they explained to him life and ether.

Section II

THE SAME PERSON IS IN THE SUN, AND IN THE HOUSEHOLD FIRE

1. atha hainam gārhapatyō'nuśaśāsa, prthivy agnir annam āditya iti, ya eṣa āditye puruṣo dṛśyate so'ham asmi, sa evāham asmīti.

1. Then the Gārhapatya fire instructed him, 'Earth, Fire, Food and Sun (are forms of me), the person that is seen in the Sun, I am he, I am he, indeed.

gārhapatya: the fire in the household.

2. sa ya etam evam vidvān upāste, apahate pāpa-kṛtyām, lokī bhavati, sarvam āyur eti, jyog jīvati, nāsyāvāra-puruṣāḥ kṣīyante, upa vayan tam bhuñjāmo'sminś ca loke'muṣminś ca, ya etam evam vidvān upāste.

2. 'He who knowing this meditates (on the fire) destroys sinful actions, becomes possessor of (this) world, reaches full life, lives brightly. His descendants do not perish. Both in this world and in the yonder we serve him who knowing this meditates (on the fire).'

jyog: brightly, conspicuously: ujjvalam. Ś.

Section 12

THE SAME PERSON IS IN THE MOON AND IN THE SACRIFICIAL FIRE (INTENDED FOR THE MANES)

1. atha hainam anvāhāryapacano'nuśāśāsa: āpo diśo nakṣatrāṇi candramā iti, ya eṣa candramasi puruṣo dṛśyate so'ham asmi sa evāham asmīti.

1. Then, the anvāhāryapacana instructed him. 'Water, the quarters, the stars, the moon (are forms of me); the person that is seen in the moon, I am he, I am he, indeed.'

2. sa ya etam evaṁ vidvān upāste'pahate pāpakṛtyāṁ lokī bhavati, sarvaṁ āyur eti, jyog jīvati, nāsyāvāra puruṣaḥ kṣīyante, upa vayan taṁ bhuñjāmo'smimś ca loka'muṣmimś ca, ya etam evaṁ vidvān upāste.

2. 'He who knowing this meditates (on the fire) destroys sinful actions, becomes possessor of (this) world, reaches full life, lives brightly, His descendants do not perish. Both in this world and in the yonder we serve him, who knowing this, meditates on (the fire).'

Section 13

THE SAME PERSON IS IN THE LIGHTNING AND THE FIRE

1. atha hainam āhavanīye'nuśāśāsa, prāṇa ākāśo dyaur vidyud iti, ya eṣa vidyuti puruṣo dṛśyate, so'ham asmi, sa evāham asmīti.

1. Then the āhavanīya (fire) instructed him. Breath, space, sky and lightning (are forms of me); the person that is seen in the lightning. I am he, I am he, indeed.

While the anvāhārya fire is that on the altar on the southern side, the āhavanīya fire is that on the altar on the eastern side.

2. sa ya etam evaṃ vidvān upāste'pahate pāpakṛtyām, lokī bhavati, sarvaṃ āyur eti, jyog jīvati, nāsyāvarapurusāḥ kṣīyante, upa vayaṃ tam bhuñjāmo'sminīs ca loka'muṣmimīs ca ya etam evaṃ vidvān upāste.

2. 'He who knowing this meditates (on the fire) destroys sinful actions, becomes possessor of (this) world, reaches full life, lives brightly. His descendants do not perish. Both in this world and in the yonder we serve him, who, knowing this, meditates (on the fire).'

Section 14

KNOWLEDGE OF THE SELF

1. te hocuḥ upakosala, eṣā, saumya, te'smad-vidyātma-vidyā ca. ācāryas tu te gatiṃ vakteti. ājagāma hāsyācāryaḥ, tam ācāryo 'bhyuvādo'pakosala iti.

1. Then they (the fires) said, 'Upakosala dear, you have this knowledge of our selves and knowledge of the self. But the teacher will tell you the way.' Then the teacher returned. The teacher spoke to him 'Upakosala.'

2. bhagavaḥ, iti ha pratiśuśrāva; brahma-vid iva, saumya, te mukham bhāti, ko nu tvā'nuśaśseti, ko nu mā'nuśiṣyād bhoḥ, iti iha apeva nihnuta, ime nūnam idṛśā, anyādrśā itihāgnīm abhyūde. kim nu, saumya, kila te'vocann iti.

2. 'Revered Sir,' he answered. 'Dear, your face shines like that of one who knows Brahman. Who has instructed you?' 'Who should instruct me, sir,' said he. Here he conceals it as it were. And he said (pointing to the fires), 'They are of this form now, but they were of a different form.' The teacher said, 'What dear, did they indeed tell you?'

3. idam, iti ha pratiyajñe, lokān vāva kila, saumya te'vocan, ahaṃ tu te tad vakṣyāmi yathā puṣkara-palāśa āpo nā śliṣyante, evam evaṁ-vidi pāpaṁ karma na śliṣyata iti, bravītu me bhagavān iti, tasmai hovāca.

3. 'This,' he replied. 'They, dear, have indeed spoken to you about the worlds, but I will tell you this and as water does not cling to the lotus leaf, so evil deed does not cling to one who knows it.' 'Tell me, revered sir.' To him, he then said.

Section 15

THE WAY TO BRAHMALOKA

1. ya eṣo'kṣiṇi puruṣo dṛśyate, eṣa ātmā iti hovāca, etad amṛtam abhayaṁ, etad brahmeti, tad yady apy asmiṁ sarpīr vodakaṁ vā siñcati, vartmaṇī eva gaṇhati.

1. He said, 'The person who is seen in the eye, he is the self. This is the immortal, the fearless, this is Brahman. So even if one drops melted butter or water into this (eye), it goes away by the sides.

We can see the self in the eye, only if we are pure of heart. nivṛtta-cakṣu-bhir brahmacaryādi-sādhana-saṁpannāḥ śāntaiḥ viveki-bhir dṛṣṭer draṣṭā. Ś.

2. etaṁ samyad-vāma ity ācakṣate, etaṁ hi sarvāṇi vāmāṇy abhisamyanti, sarvāṇy eṁaṁ vāmāṇy abhisamyanti, ya evaṁ veda.

2. This they call samyad-vāma for all desirable things go towards him. All desirable things go to him who knows this.

vāmāṇi: desirable things: vananīyāṇi sambhajanīyāṇi śobhanāṇi. Ś.

3. eṣa u eva vāmanīḥ, eṣa hi sarvāṇi vāmāṇi nayati, sarvāṇi vāmāṇi nayati, ya evaṁ veda.

3. He is also Vāmāṇī for he brings all desirable things. He who knows this brings all desirable things.

4. eṣa u eva bhāmanīḥ, eṣa hi sarveṣu lokeṣu bhāti, sarveṣu lokeṣu bhāti, ya evaṁ veda.

4. He is also bhāmanī for he shines in all worlds. He who knows this shines in all worlds.

5. atha yad u caivāsmiṁ chavyaṁ kurvanti yadi ca na arcīṣaṁ evābhisambhavanti, arcīṣo'har ahna āpūryamāṇa-pakṣaṁ, āpūryamāṇa-pakṣād yān ṣaḍ udanṁ eti māsāṁs tān, māsebhyaḥ saṁvatsaram, saṁvatsarād ādityam, ādityāc candramasam, candramaso vidyutam, tat puruṣo'mānavah, sa enam brahma gamayati, eṣa deva-patho brahma-patihah, etena pratipadyamānā imam mānavam āvartam nāvartanta iti, nāvartanta iti.

5. Now for such a one whether they perform the cremation obsequies or not, he goes to light, from light into the day, from the day into the half-month of the waxing moon; from the half-month of the waxing moon into the six months when the sun moves northwards, from the months into the year, from the year into the sun, from the sun into the moon, from the moon into lightning. Then there is a person, not human. He leads them to Brahman. This is the way to the gods, the way to Brahman. Those who proceed by it do not return to the human condition, yea they do not return.

The reference here is to Brahman who resides in the regions of satya: satya-loka-stham. Ś.

The followers of the ceremonial code pass along the path called pitṛ-yāna and they return to this world. Those who live in the forests practise austerities, go along the path called deva-yāna and do not return to this world.

Section 16

SILENCE AND SPEECH IN SACRIFICES

1. eṣa ha vai yajño yo'yam pavate, eṣa ha yann idam sarvam punāti, yad eṣa yann idam sarvam punāti, tasmād eṣa eva yajñas tasya manas ca vāk ca vartanī.

1. Verily, that which purifies here (i.e. the wind) is the sacrifice for he, moving along, purifies all this. And because moving along he purifies all this, he is the sacrifice. Of that mind and speech are the ways.

2. tayor anyatarām manasā saṁskaroti brahmā, vācā hotā'-dhvanyur udgātā anyatarām; sa yatropākṛte prātar-anuvāke purā paridhānīyāyā brahmā vyavavadati.

2. Of these the Brahmā priest performs one with his mind; by speech the Hotṛ, the Adhvaryu and the Udgātṛ priests the other. When the morning litany has commenced and before the concluding recitation, the Brahmā priest has to speak.

Generally the Brahmā priest follows the sacrifice with his mind, i.e. in silence. When he breaks the silence, then the mental exercise is interrupted, for he also resorts to speech. The performance of the Brahmā priest should be an act of meditation.

3. anyatarām eva vartanīm saṁskaroti, hīyate' nyatarā, sa yathaikapād vrajan ratho vaikena cakreṇa vartamāno riṣyati, evam asya yajño riṣyati, vajñam riṣyantam yajamāno' nuriṣyati, sa iṣṭvā pāpīyān bhavati.

3. He performs one way only (that by words) but the other is injured. Even as a one-footed man walking or as a one-wheeled chariot moving is injured, even so is his sacrifice injured. When the sacrifice is injured, the sacrificer is injured. By having sacrificed he becomes worse off.

saṁskarana: remaking, reintegration. See Aitareya Brāhmaṇa. VI. 27; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, VII. 1. 2. 1; Aitareya Āraṇyaka, III, 2. 6.

4. atha yatropākṛte prātar-anuvāke na purā paridhānīyāyā brahmā vyavavadati, ubhe eva vartanī saṁskurvanti, na hīyate' nyatarā.

4. But when after the morning litany has begun and before the concluding recitation the Brahmā priest does not speak, they perform both ways and neither is injured.

5. sa yathobhayapād vrajan ratho vobhābhyām cakrābhyām vartamānaḥ pratitiṣṭhati, evam asya yajñāḥ pratitiṣṭhati, yajñam pratitiṣṭhantam yajamāno' nupratitiṣṭhati, sa iṣṭvā śreyān bhavati.

5. As a two-footed man walking or as a two-wheeled chariot moving is well-supported, even so is his sacrifice well supported. When the sacrifice is well supported the sacrificer is well supported. By having sacrificed he becomes better off.

The Brahmā priest knows the wisdom of silence: mauna-vijñānam Ś.

Section 17

HOW THE BRAHMĀ PRIEST CORRECTS MISTAKES IN THE SACRIFICIAL RITUAL

1. prajāpatir lokān abhyatapat, teṣāṁ tapyamānānām rasān prāvṛhat, agnim pṛthivyāḥ vāyum antarikṣāt, ādityaṁ divaḥ.

1. Prajā-pati brooded on the worlds. As they were brooded on, he extracted their essences, fire from the earth, air from the atmosphere, the sun from the sky.

2. sa etās tisro devatā abhyatapat, tāsām tapyamānānām rasān prāvṛhat agner ṛcaḥ, vāyor yajūmṣi, sāmāny ādityāt.

2. On these three deities he brooded. As they were brooded on, he extracted their essences, the Ṛg verses from the fire, the Yajuṣ formulas from the air, the Sāman chants from the sun.

3. sa etām trayīm vidyām abhyatapat, tasyās tapyamānāyā rasān prāvṛhat, bhūr ity ṛgbhayaḥ, bhuvar iti yajurbhayaḥ, svar iti sāmabhayaḥ.

3. On this threefold knowledge he brooded. As it was brooded upon he extracted its essences; bhūr from the Ṛg verses; bhuvas from the Yajuṣ formulas; svaḥ from the Sāman chants.

4. tad yady ṛkto riṣyed bhūḥ svāheti gārhapatye juhuyāt, ṛcām eva tad rasena ṛcām vīryeṇa ṛcām yajñasya viriṣṭam saṁdadhāti.

4. If (the sacrifice) is injured from the Ṛg verses, one should make an oblation in the householder's fire with the words bhūḥ, hail. So by the essence of the Ṛg verses themselves, by the power of the Ṛg verses, he binds together (heals) the injury to the Ṛg sacrifice.

5. atha yadi yajuṣṭo riṣyed bhuvaḥ svāheti dakṣiṇāgnau juhuyāt. yajuṣām eva tad rasena yajuṣām vīryeṇa yajuṣām yajñasya viriṣṭam saṁdadhāti.

5. Again, if (the sacrifice) is injured by the Yajuṣ formulas one should make an oblation in the southern fire with the words 'bhuvaḥ' hail. So by the essence of the Yajuṣ formulas themselves, by the power of the Yajuṣ formulas he binds together (heals) the injury to the Yajuṣ sacrifice.

6. atha yadi sāmato riṣyet, svaḥ svāhety āhavanīye juhuyāt, sāmnam eva tad rasena sāmnam vīryeṇa sāmnam yajñasya viriṣṭam saṁdadhāti.

6. Again, if (the sacrifice) is injured by the Sāma chants, one should make an oblation in the āhavanīya fire with the words 'svaḥ' hail. So by the essence of the Sāma chants themselves, by the power of the Sāma chants, he binds together (heals) the injury to the Sāman sacrifice.

If the injury be with regard to Brahmā, Ś says, one should make an oblation in all the three fires, pronouncing all the three, bhūh, bhuvaḥ, svaḥ, as the injury relates to all the three Vedas.

7. tad yathā lavaṇena suvarṇaṁ saṁdadhyāt, suvarṇena rajatam, rajatena trapu, trapuṇā sīsam, sīsenā loham, lohena dāru, dāru carmaṇā.

7. Just as one would bind together gold with (borax) salt, silver with gold, tin with silver, lead with tin, iron with lead, wood with iron or wood with leather.

loha: iron or brass.

8. evam eṣāṁ lokānāṁ āsāṁ devatānāṁ asyās trayyā vidyāyā vīryeṇa yajñasya viriṣṭaṁ saṁdadhāti, bheṣaja-krto ha vā eṣa yajñah. yatraivam-vid brahmā bhavati.

8. So does one bind together (heal) any injury to the sacrifice with the power of these worlds, of these gods, and of the three Vedas. Verily, such a sacrifice is well healed when there is a Brahmā priest knowing this.

healed: bheṣaja-krto ha vā eṣa yajñah, rogārta iva pumām cikitsakena suśikṣitenaiva yajño bhavati.

9. eṣa ha vā udak-pravaṇo yajñah, yatraivam-vid brahmā bhavati, evam-vidam ha vā eṣā brahmāṇam anu gāthā: yato yata āvartate, tat tad gacchati mānavaḥ.

9. Verily, that sacrifice is inclined to the north, in which there is a Brahmā priest who knows this. And with regard to such a Brahmā priest there is this song. Wherever it falls, thither the man goes.

mānava: silent from mauna, silence; or thoughtful, from manana. Whenever mistakes are committed, he breaks his silence and corrects them, for it is said, 'Whenever it fails, thither the man goes.'

10. brahmaivaika ṛtvik kurūṁ aśvābhirakṣati, evam vidd ha vai brahmā yajñam yajamānaṁ sarvāmś ca ṛtvijo' bhirakṣati, tasmād evam-vidam eva brahmāṇam kurvīta, nānevaṁ-vidam, nānevaṁ-vidam.

10. The Brahmā priest as a Ṛtvik priest protects the sacrificers like a mare, i.e. the Brahmā priest knowing this protects the sacrifice, the sacrificer and all the Ṛtvik priests. Therefore one should make one who knows this as his Brahmā priest, not one who does not know it, yea, not one who does not know it.

CHAPTER V

Section I

ON BREATH, THE SOUL AND THE UNIVERSAL SELF.
THE FIVE BODILY FUNCTIONS AND THE IMPORT-ANCE OF BREATH

1. yo ha vai jyeṣṭham ca śreṣṭham ca veda, jyeṣṭhaś ca ha vai śreṣṭhaś ca bhavati, prāṇo vāva jyeṣṭhaś ca śreṣṭhaś ca.

1. Verily, he who knows the oldest and the best becomes himself the oldest and the best. Breath indeed is the oldest and the best.

Ś explains that breath is the oldest because it functions prior to the sense activities, even when the child is in the womb.

2. yo ha vai vasiṣṭham veda, vasiṣṭho ha svānām bhavati, vāg vāvā vasiṣṭhaś.

2. Verily, he who knows the most prosperous becomes the most prosperous of his own (people). Speech, indeed, is the most prosperous.

3. yo ha vai pratiṣṭhām veda, prati ha tiṣṭhaty asmimś ca loke 'muṣmimś ca, cakṣur vāva pratiṣṭhā.

3. Verily, he who knows the firm basis becomes firm in this world and in the yonder. The eye, indeed, is the firm basis.

4. yo ha vai sampadam veda, sa hāsmāi kāmāḥ padyanṭe daivās ca mānuśās ca, śrotram vāva sampat.

4. Verily, he who knows success, his desires succeed, both human and divine. The ear, indeed, is success.

5. yo ha vā āyatanam vedāyatanam ha svānām bhavati, mano ha vā āyatanam.

5. Verily, he who knows the abode becomes the abode of his people. The mind, indeed, is the abode.

manah: mind, for all objects are perceived by the mind. indriyopahrtānām viśayānām bhoktr-arthānām pratyaya-rūpānām manā āyatanam āśrayaḥ. Ś.

6. atha ha prāṇā ahaṁ-śreyasi vyūdire: ahaṁ śreyān asmi, ahaṁ śreyān asmīti.

6. Now the (five) senses disputed among themselves as to who was superior saying (in turn) 'I am superior.' 'I am superior.'

Cp. Praśna II. 3; A.U. II. 4; B.U. VI. 1. 1-14; K.U. III. 3.

7. te ha prāṇāḥ prajā-patiṃ pitaram etyocuh, bhagavan, ko naḥ śreṣṭha iti; tān hovāca, yasmin va utkrānte śarīraṃ pāpiṣṭhataram iva dṛśyeta, sa vaḥ śreṣṭha iti.

7. Those senses went to Prajā-pati, (their) father and said, 'Venerable sir, who is the best of us?' He said to them, 'He on whose departing the body looks the worst, he is the best among you.'

8. sā ha vāg uccakrāma, sā saṁvatsaram prośya paryetyovāca, katham aśakata rte maj jīvītum iti, yathā kalā avadantaḥ prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, paśyantaś cakṣuṣā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, dhyāyanto manasaivam iti; praviveśa ha vāk.

8. Speech departed and having stayed away for a year returned and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' (They replied) 'Like the dumb not speaking, but breathing with the breath, seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, thinking with the mind. Thus (we lived).' Speech entered in.

9. cakṣur hoccakrāma, tat saṁvatsaram prośya paryetyovāca, katham aśakata rte maj jīvītum iti, yathāndhā apaśyantaḥ, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotreṇa, dhyāyanto manasaivam iti; praviveśa ha cakṣuḥ.

9. The eye departed and having stayed away for a year returned and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' (They replied) 'like the blind not seeing but breathing with the breath, speaking with speech (the tongue), hearing with the ear, thinking with the mind. Thus (we lived).' The eye entered in.

10. śrotram hoccakrāma, tat saṁvatsaram prośya paryetyovāca, katham aśakata rte maj jīvītum iti, yathā badhirā aśṛṇvantaḥ, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, paśyantas cakṣuṣā, dhyāyanto manasaivam iti; praviveśa ha śrotram.

10. The ear departed and having stayed away for a year returned and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' (They replied) 'like the deaf not hearing, but breathing with the breath, speaking with speech (the tongue), seeing with the eye and thinking with the mind. Thus (we lived).' The ear entered in.

II. mano hoccakrāma, tat samvatsaram proṣya paryetyovāca, katham aśakata r̥te maj jīvītum iti, yathā bālā amanasaḥ, prāṇantaḥ prāṇena, vadanto vācā, paśyantaś cakṣuṣā, śṛṇvantaḥ śrotrenaivam iti; praviveṣa ha manah.

II. The mind departed and having stayed away for a year returned and said, 'How have you been able to live without me?' (They replied) 'Like the children mindless but breathing with the breath, speaking with speech (the tongue), seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear. Thus (we lived).' The mind entered in.

bālā amanasaḥ: children mindless, rather undeveloped minds. aprarūḍha-manasaḥ. Ś.

12. atha ha prāṇa uccikramiṣan, sa yathā suhayaḥ padvīṣa śankūn samkṛhidet, evam itarān prāṇān samakṛhidat; tam hābhi-sametyocuh, bhagavann edhi, tvam naḥ śreṣṭho'si, motkramīr iti.

12. Now when breath was about to depart, tearing up the other senses, even as a spirited horse, about to start might tear up the pegs to which he is tethered, they gathered round him and said, 'Revered Sir, remain, you are the best of us, do not depart.'

remain our lord. naḥ svāmī. Ś.

13. atha hainam vāg uvāca, yad aham vasiṣṭho'smi, tvam tad vasiṣṭho'siti; atha hainam cakṣur uvāca, yad aham pratiṣṭhā'smi, tvam tat pratiṣṭhā'siti.

13. Then speech said to him, 'If I am the most prosperous, so are you the most prosperous.' Then the eye said to him, 'If I am the firm basis, so are you the firm basis.'

14. atha hainam śrotram uvāca, yad aham sampad asmi, tvam tat sampad asīti; atha hainam mana uvāca, yad aham āyatanam asmi, tvam tad āyatanam asīti.

14. Then the ear said to him, 'If I am success, so are you the success.' Then the mind said to him, 'If I am the abode, so are you the abode.'

15. na vai vāco na cakṣuṃṣi na śrotrāṇi na manāṃsīty ācakṣate, prāṇā ity evācakṣate, prāṇo hy evaitāni sarvāṇi bhavati.

15. Verily, they do not call them speeches or eyes or ears or minds. They call them breaths, for all these are breath.

See K.U. III. 3.

Section 2

THE MEANING OF THE MANTHA RITE

1. sa hovāca, kim me annam bhaviṣyatīti; yat kim cid idam ā svabhya ā śakunibhyaḥ, iti hōcuḥ: tad vā etad anasyānnam ano ha vai nāma pratyakṣam, na ha vā evamīdī kimcana anannam bhavati.

1. He (Breath) said, 'What will be my food?' They said, 'Whatever there is here, even unto dogs and birds.' So this, verily, is the food of breath. Verily, breath (ana) is his evident name. For one who knows this, there is nothing whatever that is not food.

prāṇa: consists of pra and ana. ana is breath and pra indicates the direction of the motion.

2. sa hovāca, kim me vāso bhaviṣyatīti; āpaḥ, iti hōcuḥ; tasmād vā etad aśiṣyantāḥ purastāc copariṣtāc cādbhiḥ paridadhati; lambhuko ha vāso bhavati, anagno ha bhavati.

2. He said, 'What will be my clothing?' They said, 'Water.' Therefore it is that, when people are about to eat, they cover it (the breath) with water, both before and after. He thus obtains clothing and becomes clothed (is no longer naked).

This verse refers to the usual Indian practice of rinsing the mouth both before and after a meal.

3. tadd haitat satyakāmo jābālo gośrutaye vaiyāghrapadyāyokt-vovāca, yady apy etac chuṣkāya sthāṇave brūyāt, jāyerann evāsmiñ-śākhāḥ, praroheyaḥ palāśānīti.

3. Satyakāma Jābāla, after telling this to Gośruti, the son of Vyāghrapāda, said to him, 'Even if one should tell this to a dried up stump, branches would be produced on it and leaves would spring forth.'

son of Vyāghrapāda: vyāghrapādo 'patyam. Ś.

4. atha yadi mahaj jigamiṣet, amāvāsyāyām dīkṣitvā paurṇamāsyām rātrau sarvaṣuśadhasya mantham dadhi-madhunor upamathya, jyesthāya śreṣṭhāya svāhā, ity agnāv ājyasya hutvā, manthe sampātam avanayet.

4. Now if one wishes to reach greatness, let him perform the initiatory rite on the new moon night and then on the night of the full moon, let him stir with curds and honey a mash of all kinds of herbs and pour melted butter on the fire saying,

'Hail to the oldest, hail to the best.' And then let him throw the residue into the mash.

See B.U. VI. 3-2.

On the day of initiation, dīkṣā, the agent should have passed through the ethical preparation, austerity, truthfulness and chastity: bhūmi-śayanādi-niyamaṁ kṛtvā tapo-rūpaṁ satya-vacanam brahmācāryam ity ādīdharmavān bhūtvety arthaḥ.

5. vasiṣṭhāyai svāhā, ity agnāv ājyasya hutvā, manthe sampātam avanayet, pratiṣṭhāyai svāhā ity agnāv ājyasya hutvā manthe sampātam avanayet, sampade svāhā, ity agnāv ājyasya hutvā manthe sampātam avanayet, āyatanāya svāhā, ity agnāv ājyasya hutvā manthe sampātam avanayet.

5. 'Hail to the most prosperous,' with these words, let him pour melted butter on the fire and then let him throw the residue into the mash. 'Hail to the firm basis,' with these words let him pour melted butter on the fire and then let him throw the residue into the mash. 'Hail to success,' with these words let him pour melted butter on the fire and then let him throw the residue into the mash. 'Hail to the abode,' with these words let him pour melted butter on the fire and then let him throw the residue into the mash.

6. atha pratisrpyāñjalau mantham ādhāya japati: amo nāmāsi, amā hi te sarvam idam, sa hi jyeṣṭhaḥ śreṣṭho rājādhipatiḥ, sa mā jyaiṣṭhyam śraiṣṭhyam rājyam ādhipatyam gamayatv aham evedam sarvam asānīti.

6. Then moving away and holding the mash in his hands, he recites, 'Thou art amā by name for all this rests in thee. He is the oldest and the best, the king and the overlord. May he lead me to old age, to the best (position), to kingship, to overlordship. May I be all this.'

7. atha khalv etayā ṛcā paccha ācāmati, tat savitur vṛṇīmaha ity ācāmati, vayam devasya bhojanam ity ācāmati, śreṣṭham sarvadhātāmam ity ācāmati, turam bhagasya dhīmahi iti sarvam pībati, nirṇijya kaṁsam camasaṁ vā paścād agneḥ samviśati carmaṇi vā sihaṇḍile vā vācam-yamo'prasāhaḥ; sa yadi striyam paśyēt samiddham karmeti vidyāt.

7. Then he takes a sip with this Rk verse at each foot, (saying) 'we desire the Śavitr' he sips a little: (saying) 'the food of the gods,' he sips a little (saying) 'the best and all sustaining,' he sips a little (saying) 'we meditate on the strength of the god,' he drinks up the whole. Having cleansed the vessel or the cup, he sits down behind the fire either on a skin or on the bare ground with speech restrained and with self-possession. If he now sees a woman let him know that his effort has reached fruition.

Ś says that he lies down behind the fire and if, in the dream, he sees a woman, that is a sign that his effort has succeeded.

8. tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

yadā karmasu kāmyeṣu striyaṁ svapneṣu paśyati, samṛddhiṁ tatra jānīyāt tasmīn svapna-nidarśane iti tasmīn svapna-nidarśane.

8. As to this, there is this verse: 'If during rites performed for (the fulfilment of certain) wishes, he (the performer) sees a woman in a dream, let him recognise fulfilment in such a vision in a dream, in such a vision in a dream.'

The Vedic rite is enlarged in its significance.

Section 3

THE COURSE OF THE SOUL AFTER DEATH

1. śvetaketuḥ hāruṇeyaḥ pañcālānāṁ samitiṁ eyāya, taṁ ha pravāhaṇo jaivalir uvāca: kumāra anu tvāṣiṣat piteti; a nuhi, bhagava iti.

1. Śvetaketu Āruṇeya went to an assembly of the Pañcālas. Then Pravāhaṇa Jaivali said to him: 'Young man, has your father instructed you?' 'Yes, indeed, Venerable Sir' (said he in answer).

āruṇeya: the grandson of Aruṇa.

2. vettha yad ito'dhi prajāḥ prayantīti? na, bhagava, iti; vettha yathā punar āvartanta iti? na, bhagava iti; vettha pathor deva-yānasya pīṭryānasya ca vyāvartanam iti? na, bhagava iti.

2. 'Do you know to what place men go from here?' 'No, Venerable Sir.' 'Do you know how they return again?' 'No, Venerable Sir.' 'Do you know where the paths leading to the gods and leading to the fathers separate?' 'No, Venerable Sir.'

3. vettha yathāsau loko na sampūryata iti? na bhagava iti;

vettha yathā pañcamyām āhutāv āpaḥ puruṣa-vacaso bhavantīti, naiva, bhagava iti.

3. 'Do you know how that (yonder) world never becomes full?' 'No, Venerable Sir.' 'Do you know how in the fifth libation water comes to be called a person.' 'Indeed, Venerable Sir, no.'

4. atha nu kim anuśiṣṭo'vocathāḥ, yo hīmāni na vidyāt, katham so' nuśiṣṭo bruvīte. sa hāyastah pitur ardham eyāya; tam hovāca: ananuśiṣya vāva kila mā, bhagavān, abravīt anu tvāsiṣam iti.

4. 'Then why did you say that you had been instructed? Indeed how could any one who did not know these things speak of himself as having been instructed?' Distressed, he went to his father's place and said to him, 'Venerable Sir, you said, indeed, that you had instructed me without having instructed me.'

5. pañca mā rājanya-bandhuh praśnān aprākṣīt, teṣāṃ naikam canāśakam vivaktum iti; sa hovāca: yathā mā tvam tāta, etān avadaḥ, tathāham eṣam naikam ca na veda yady aham imān aveḍiṣyam, katham te nāvakṣyam iti.

5. 'That fellow of the princely class asked me five questions and I could not understand even one of them.' He (the father) said, 'As you stated to me these (questions) I do not know even one of them. If I had known them, how should I not have told them to you?'

6. sa ha gautamo rājño'rdham eyāya, tasmai ha prāptāyārham cakāra; sa ha prātaḥ sabbhāga udeyāya; tam hovāca: mānuṣasya, bhagavan gautama, vittasya varam vrnīthā iti, sa hovāca tavaiva, rājan, mānuṣam vittam, yam eva kumārasyānte vācam abhāṣ-athāḥ, tām eva me brūhīti; sa ha kṛcchrī babhūva.

6. Then Gautama went over to the king's place. To him, when he arrived, he (the king) had proper respect shown. In the morning he went up to the audience hall (where) the king said to him, 'Venerable Gautama, choose a boon out of the wealth that belongs to the world of men.' Then he replied, 'Thine be the wealth of the world of men, O King; tell me that speech which you spoke to the young man.' The king was perplexed.

7. tam ha, ciram vasety ājñāpayām cakāra; tam hovāca: yathā mā tvam, gautama, avadaḥ, yatheyam na prāk tvattah purā vidyā brāhmaṇān gacchati, tasmād u sarveṣu lokeṣu kṣatrasyaiva praśāsanam abhūd iti; tasmai hovāca.

7. 'Stay for some time' he commanded him. Then he said to him, 'As to what you have told me, Gautama, this knowledge has never reached the Brāhmaṇas before you; therefore in all the worlds the rule (this teaching) belonged to the Kṣatriya class only.' Then he said to him.

Section 4

THE COURSE OF THE SOUL

I. asau vāva lokah, gautama, agnih, tasyāditya eva samit, raśmayo dhūmah, ahar arcih, candramā āngārāḥ, nakṣatrāṇi viśphuliṅgāḥ.

I 'That world, verily, O Gautama, is a (sacrificial) fire, the sun itself is its fuel, the rays the smoke, the day the flame, the moon the coals, the stars the sparks.

The analogy of the heavenly region to the sacrificial fire is worked out. The sun is the fuel as the world shines only when it is lighted up by the sun. The rays are the smoke because they rise from it even as the smoke rises from the fuel. The day is the flame because it is bright and is the effect of the sun. The moon is the coals or the embers, for even as the moon becomes visible when the day has ceased, the embers become visible when the flame is put out. The stars are the sparks; they are like parts of the moon. Ś.

2. tasminn etasminn agnau devāḥ śraddhām juhvati, tasyā āhuteḥ somo rājā sambhavati.

2. In this fire the gods offer (the oblation of) faith. From this offering arises Soma (the moon) the king.

Water is offered as the offering of faith.

The king answers the last question why the water in the fifth libation is called man. V. 3. 3. The sacrificers rise through their offerings to heaven and attain there as their reward a nature like that of Soma.

Section 5

1. parjanya vāva, gautama, agniḥ, tasya vāyur eva samit, abhram dhūmah, vidyud arcīḥ, āsanir āṅārāḥ, hrādanayo visphulingāḥ.

1. The god of rain, O Gautama, is the (sacrificial) fire, the air itself is its fuel, the cloud is the smoke, the lightning is the flame, the thunder the coals and the thunderings the sparks.

hrādani, generally explained as 'hail', but here it means 'rumblings.'

2. tasminn etasminn agnau devāḥ somaṁ rājānaṁ juhvati, tasyā āhuter varṣaṁ sambhavati.

2. In this fire the gods offer (the libation of) Soma the King. From this offering arises rain.

1. prthivī vāva, gautama, agniḥ; tasyāḥ sarivatsara eva samit, ākāśo dhūmah, rātrir arcīḥ, diśo'ṅārāḥ, avāntara diśo visphulingāḥ.

1. The earth, verily, O Gautama, is the (sacrificial) fire; of this the year is the fuel, space is the smoke, the night is the flame, the quarters the coals, the intermediate quarters the sparks.

2. tasminn etasminn agnau devā varṣaṁ juhvati. tasyā āhuter annaṁ sambhavati.

2. In this fire the gods offer (the libation of) rain. From this offering arises food.

1. puruṣo vāva, gautama, agniḥ; tasya vāg eva samit, prāṇo dhūmah, juhvā'rcīḥ, cakṣur āṅārāḥ, śrotraṁ visphulingāḥ.

1. Man, verily, O Gautama, is the (sacrificial) fire; of this speech is the fuel, breath the smoke, the tongue the flame, the eyes the coals and the ears the sparks.

2. tasminn etasminn agnau devā annaṃ juhvati, tasyā āhute retaḥ sambhavati.

2. In this fire the gods offer (the libation of) food; from this offering arises semen.

1. yoṣā vāva, gautama, agniḥ; tasyā upastha eva samit, yad upamantrayate sa dhūmaḥ, yonir arcīḥ, yad antaḥ karoti te aṅgārāḥ, abhinandā visphuliṅgāḥ.

1. Woman, verily, O Gautama, is the (sacrificial) fire; of this the sexual organ is the fuel, what invites is the smoke, the vulva is the flame, what is done inside is the coals, the pleasures the sparks.

2. tasminn etasminn agnau devā reto juhvati, tasyā āhuter garbhaḥ sambhavati.

2. In this fire the gods offer (the libation of) semen; from this offering arises the foetus.

From water, through intermediate developments the foetus arises and in all these developments water is the predominating element. drava-bāhulyam. Ś. So it is that water comes to be called man in the fifth oblation.

1. iti tu pañcamyām āhutāv āpaḥ puruṣa-vacaso bhavanti, sa ulbāvṛto garbhaḥ, daśa vā nava vā māsān antaḥ sayitvā yāvad vā'tha jāyate.

1. For this (reason) indeed, in the fifth oblation water comes to be called man. This foetus enclosed in the membrane, having lain inside for ten or nine months or more or less, then comes to be born.

Water, by which the self is enveloped on departing from life, means the subtle parts of the elements which constitute the seed of the body: ap-śabdena sarveṣām eva deha-bījānām bhūta-sūkṣmānām kathanam siddham. S.B. III. 1. 2.

2. sa jāto yāvad āyusam jīvati, tam pretam diṣṭam ito'gnaya eva haranti, yata eveto yataḥ sambhūto bhavati.

2. When born, he lives whatever the length of his life may be. When he has departed, they (his friends) carry him to the appointed place for the fire (of the funeral pile), from which indeed he came, from which he arose.

diṣṭam: karmanā nirdiṣṭam. Ś.

Section 10

THE PATH OF THE GODS

1. tad ya ittham viduḥ, ye ceme'ranye śraddhā tapa ity upāsate, te'rciṣam abhisambhavanti, arciṣo'haḥ, ahna āpūryamāṇa-pakṣam, āpūryamāṇa-pakṣād yān śaḍ udanī etī māsānīs tān.

1. So those who know this, and those who in the forest meditate on faith as austerity (or with faith and austerity) go to light and from light to day, from day to the bright half of the month (of the waxing moon), from the bright half of the month to those six months during which the sun moves northward.

The question as to the place to which men go from here is taken up. See C.U. IV. 15. 5. those who know this. The doctrine of the five fires. Ś makes out that this refers to the householders, as the next clause refers to the recluses in the forest.

2. māsebhyaḥ saṁvatsaram, saṁvatsarād ādityam, ādityāc candramasam, candramaso vidyutam; tat puruṣo'mānavah, sa enān brahma gamayati, eṣa deva-yānaḥ panthā iti.

2. From these months to the year, from the year to the sun, from the sun to the moon, from the moon to the lightning. There, there is a person who is non-human. He leads them on to Brahmā. This is the path leading to the gods.

The earliest conception of the path of the gods is to be found in the R.V., where Agni who serves as the intermediary between gods and men, as bearing the offerings to the gods is addressed thus: 'Knowing the ways by which the gods go, thou (Agni) hast become the unwearied messenger, the bearer of oblations.' I. 72. 7; see also II. 2. 4. The path on which the sacrifices were taken to the heavenly world becomes the path by which the sacrificer himself ascended to the world of the gods. See Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, I. 9. 3. 2. The stations on the path need not be taken literally. They represent stages of progressive knowledge and light while those of pitṛ-yāna of progressive darkness and corruption. See IV. 15. 5. B.U. VI. 2. 15.

3. atha ya ime grāma iṣṭāpūrte dattam ity upāsate, te dhūmam abhisambhavanti, dhūmād rātrim, rātrēr अपरा-पक्षम्, अपरा-पक्षād yān śad daksinaiti māsāns tān, narite samvatsaram abhiprāpnuvanti.

3. But those, who in the village practise (a life of) sacrifices, (and perform) works of public utility and almsgiving they pass into the smoke, from smoke to night, from night to the latter (dark) half of the month, from the latter (dark) half of the month to the six months in which the sun moves southwards, but they do not reach the year.

4. māsebhyaḥ pitṛ-lokam, pitṛ-lokāḍ ākāśam, ākāśac candra-masam, eṣa somo rājā, tad devānām annam, tam devā bhakṣayanti.

4. From those months to the world of the fathers, from the world of the fathers to space, from space to the moon. That is the king Soma. That is the food of the gods. That the gods eat.

annam.—food. They become the servants of the gods: upakaraṇa-mātram devānām bhavanti te strī-paśu-bhṛtyādivat. Ś. The gods love them and they love the gods. They live with and rejoice in gods.

Three kinds of future are indicated. The performers of sacrifices reach the moon by passing along the path of the fathers, pitṛ-yāna, and after having experienced the fruits of their works these return again with a residuum of their karma. The non-performers of sacrifices go to the kingdom of Yama. Those who adopt the way of enlightenment go by the path of gods, deva-yāna. There is no return for them from the latter. The distinction between the pitṛ-yāna and the deva-yāna is one of two different systems of culture, the way of works and the way of knowledge resulting in two different spiritual conditions.

5. tasmin yāvat sampātam uṣitvā'thaitam evādhvānam punar nivartante yathetam ākāśam, ākāśād vāyum, vāyur bhūtvā dhūmo bhavati, dhūmo bhūtvā'bhram bhavati.

5. Having dwelt there as long as there is residue (of good works) they return again by that course by which they came to space, from space into air; and after having become the air they become the smoke; after having become smoke, they become mist.

It is not possible, Ś remarks, for all actions to have their effects in one life: na-caikasmīn janmani sarva-karmaṇām kṣaya upapadyate. Ś.

6. abhram bhūtvā megho bhavati, megho bhūtvā pravaraṣati, ta iha vrīhi-yavā oṣadhi vanaspatayas tīla-māśā iti jāyante, ato vai khalu durniṣprapataram, yo yo hy annam atti yo retak siñcati, tad bhūya eva bhavati.

6. After having become mist they become cloud, after having become cloud he rains down. They are born here as rice and barley, herbs and trees, as sesamum plants and beans. From thence the release becomes extremely difficult for whoever eats the food and sows the seed he becomes like unto him.

Release is easy from human condition.

7. tad ya iha ramaṇīya-caraṇāḥ, abhyāśo ha yat te ramaṇīyām yonim āpadyeran, brāhmaṇa-yonim vā kṣatriya-yonim vā, vaiśya-yonim vā; atha ya iha kapūya-caraṇāḥ abhyāśo ha yat te kapūyām yonim āpadyeran śva-yonim vā sūkara-yonim vā caṇḍāla-yonim vā.

7. Those whose conduct here has been good will quickly attain a good birth (literally womb), the birth of a Brāhmin, the birth of a Kṣatriya or the birth of a Vaiśya. But those whose conduct here has been evil, will quickly attain an evil birth, the birth of a dog, the birth of a hog or the birth of a Caṇḍāla.

8. athaitayoḥ pathor na katarena cana tānīmāni kṣudrāṇy asakṛd-āvarīṇi bhūtāni bhavanti, jāyasva, mriyasveti, etat tṛtīyam sthānam, tenāsau loko na sampūryate, tasmāj jugupseta, tad eṣa ślokaḥ.

8. But on neither of these ways are those small creatures (which are) continually revolving (those of whom it is said), be born and die. Their's is a third state. By this (it comes about) that that world becomes full. Therefore let one seek to guard himself. To this end, there is this verse.

If we pursue wisdom, we travel by the path of the gods. If we perform good works we travel by the path of the fathers. If we do neither, we will continually revolve like little creatures.

9. *steno hiranyasya surām pibāms ca guros talpam āvasan brahma hā ca-ete patanti catvāraḥ.
pañcamas cācarāms taiḥ.*

9. He who steals gold, he who drinks wine, he who dishonours the teacher's bed, he who kills a Brāhmaṇa, these four do fall as also the fifth who consorts with them.

10. atha ha ya etān evaṁ pañcāgnīn veda, na saha tair apy ācaran pāpmanā lipyate, śuddhaḥ pūtaḥ puṇya-loko bhavati ya evaṁ veda, ya evaṁ veda.

10. But he who knows these five fires thus is not stained by evil, even though he consorts with these people. He becomes pure, clean, obtains a virtuous world, he who knows this, yea he who knows this.'

The five questions raised in V. 3, 2-3 are answered.

Section II

UNIVERSAL SELF

1. prācīna-śāla aupamanyavaḥ, satya-yajñāḥ pauluṣiḥ, indra-dyumno bhāllaveyaḥ, janāḥ sārkarākṣyaḥ, budhila āśvatarāśvi te hy ete mahāśālā mahāśrotriyaḥ sametya mīmāṃsām cakruḥ, ko na ātmā, kim brahmeti.

1. Prācīnaśāla Aupamanyava, Satyayajña Pauluṣi, Indradyumna Bhāllaveya, Jana Sārkarākṣya and Budhila Āśvatarāśvi, these great householders, greatly learned in sacred lore, having come together, undertook an investigation as to what is our self and what is Brahman.

See Satapatha Brāhmaṇa, X. 6. 1. 1.

2. te ha sampādayāṃcakruḥ, uddālako vai bhagavanto'yam āruṇiḥ sampratīmam ātmānam vaiśvānaram adhyeti, tam hantābhyāgacchāmeti; tam hābhyājagmuḥ.

2. They then reflected among themselves, 'Venerable Sirs, Uddālaka Āruṇi studies at present this Universal Self; well let us go to him.' Then they went over to him.

3. sa ha sampādayāṁcakāra, prakṣyanti mām ime mahāśālā mahāśrotriyaḥ, tebhyo na sarvaṁ iva pratipatsye, hantāham anyam abhyanuśāsānti.

3. He then reflected, 'These great householders and greatly learned in sacred lore will question me. I shall not be able to tell them all. Therefore, I shall direct them to another (teacher).'

4. tān hovāca aśvapatiḥ vai, bhagavanto, yaṁ kaikeyaḥ, sampratīmam ātmānam vaiśvānaram adhyeti, taṁ hantābhyā-gacchāmeti; taṁ hābhyājagmuḥ.

4. He said to them, 'Venerable sirs, Aśvapati Kaikeya studies at present this Universal Self, well, let us go to him.' Then they went over to him.

5. tebhyo ha prāptebhyaḥ prthag arhāṇi kārāyāṁcakāra, sa ha prātaḥ samjihāna uvāca;

na me steno janapade na kadāryo na madyapaḥ, nānāhitāgnir nāvidvān, na svairī svairiṇī kutāḥ:

yakṣyamāṇo vai bhagavantaḥ, aham asmi. yāvad ekaikasmā rtviḥ dhanam dāsyāmi, tāvad bhagavadbhyo dāsyāmi, vasantu bhagavanta iti.

5. Then, when they answered, he (the king) had proper attentions shown to them severally. After rising the next morning, he said. 'In my kingdom there is no thief, no miser, no drunkard, no man without a sacrificial fire, no ignorant person, no adulterer, much less an adulteress.' I am going to perform a sacrifice, Venerable Sirs, and as much wealth as I give to each Rtvig priest, I shall give to you, please stay, Venerable Sirs.'

Aśvapati is an expert in Brahma-knowledge and also a wise administrator. Wisdom and work go together in him.

Ś says that as the visitors did not accept the presents, he invited them to a sacrifice.

6. te hocuḥ, yena haivārthena puruṣaś caret, taṁ haiva vadet; ātmānam evemaṁ vaiśvānaram sampratya adhyeṣi, taṁ eva no brūhīti.

6. Then they said, 'The purpose for which a man comes, that indeed he should speak. At present, you know the Universal Self. Tell us indeed about that.'

7. tān hovāca: prātar vaḥ prativaktāsmīti; te ha samit-pāṇayaḥ pūrvāhne praticakramire, tān hānupanīyavaitad uvāca.

7. He then said to them, 'Tomorrow I will give you an answer.' Therefore on the next morning, they approached him with fuel in their hands. Then, without having first received them as pupils, he said to them.

He did not insist on the preparatory rites of initiation for he was impressed by their humility.
fuel in their hands. This is a token of discipleship.

Section 12

THE SKY AS THE HEAD OF THE UNIVERSAL SELF

1. aupamanyava, kam tvam ātmānam upāssa iti: divam eva bhagavo rājan, iti hovāca: eṣa vai sutejā ātmā vaiśvānaraḥ yaṁ tvam ātmānam upāsse, tasmāt tava sutam prasutam āsutam kule dṛśyate.

1. Aupamanyava, on what do you meditate as the self? (He replied) 'Heaven only, Venerable King.' He said, 'The self you meditate on is the Universal Self (called) the good light. Therefore in your family is seen the suta libation as also the prasuta and the āsuta.'

The Soma libation is given these names of suta, prasuta and āsuta in the different sacrifices.

The good light: śobhanam tejo yasya so'yam sutejā. Ś.

Those born in the family will be devoted to work: atīva karminas tvat-kulinā iti. Ś.

2. atsy annam, paśyasi priyam, atty annam, paśyati priyam, bhavaty asya brahma-varcasam kule, jā etam evam ātmānam vaiśvānaram upāste, mūrdhā tv eṣa ātmanaḥ, iti hovāca, mūrdhā te vyapatiṣyat, yaṁ mām nāgamiṣya iti.

2. You eat food; you see what is pleasing. He eats food; he sees what is pleasing. In the family of him who meditates on the Universal Self thus, there arises eminence in brahma-knowledge. 'That, however, is only the head of the self,' said he, 'Your head would have fallen off if you had not come to me.'

The development of thought is effected gradually. Aśvapati elicits from these seekers their conceptions of the Universal Self. Their conceptions of sky, sun, air, space, water and earth are accepted as partially true. The Vaiśvānara self is the whole, the all-comprehending Infinite of which natural objects and individual selves are parts. It is wrong to identify a particular deity, one conceived as presiding over a limited part of the world, with the Universal Self.

Section 13

THE SUN AS THE EYE OF THE UNIVERSAL SELF

1. atha hovāca satya-yajñam pauluṣim: prācīna-yogya, kam tvam ātmānam upāssa iti: ādityam eva, bhagavo rājan, iti hōvaca: eṣa vai viśva-rūpa ātmā vaiśvānarah, yaṁ tvam ātmānam upāsse, tasmāt tava bāhu viśvarūpaṁ kule dṛśyate.

1. Then he said to Satyayajña Pauluṣi: 'Prācīnayogya, on what do you meditate as the self?' (He replied) 'The sun only, Venerable King.' He said, 'The self you meditate on is the Universal Self called the Universal Form. Therefore is seen in your family much and manifold (wealth).'

2. pravṛtto' śvatarī-ratho dāsī niṣkaḥ, atsy annam paśyasi priyam, atty annam, paśyati priyam, bhavaty asya brahma-varcasam kule, ya etam evam ātmānam vaiśvānaram upāste, cakṣus tv etad ātmanah, iti hovāca andho bhaviṣyaḥ, yaṁ mām nāgamīṣya iti.

2. '(for example) there is the chariot with mules, female servants and gold necklaces. You eat food, you see what is pleasing. He eats food, he sees what is pleasing. In the family of him who meditates on the Universal Self thus, there arises eminence in brahma-knowledge. That, however, is the eye of the self,' said he, 'and you would have become blind if you had not come to me.'

pravṛtti: literally, a course of action, tendency.

Section 14

AIR AS THE BREATH OF THE UNIVERSAL SELF

1. atha hōvācendra-dyumnam bhāllaveyam: vaiyāghrapadya, kam tvam ātmānam upāssa iti: vāyūm eva, bhagavo rājan, iti

hovāca: eṣa vai prthag-vartmātmā vaiśvānaraḥ yaṁ tvam ātmānam upāsse tasmāt tvam prthag balaya āyanti, prthag rathasreṇayo' nuyanti.

1. Then he said to Indra-dyumna Bhāllaveya, 'Vaiyāghrapadya, on what do you meditate as the self?' (He replied) 'Air only, Venerable King.' He said, 'The self you meditate on is the Universal Self of varied courses (prthag-varتمان). Therefore offerings come to you in various ways and rows of chariots follow you in various ways.'

2. atsy annam, paśyasi priyam, atty annam, paśyati priyam, bhavaty asya brahma-varcasam kule, ya etam evam ātmānam vaiśvānaram upāste prāṇas tv eṣa ātmanah, iti hovāca, prāṇas ta udakramiṣyat, yaṁ mām nā'gamiṣya iti.

2. 'You eat food, you see what is pleasing. He eats food, he sees what is pleasing. In the family of him who meditates on the Universal Self thus, there arises eminence in brahma-knowledge. That, however, is only the breath of the self,' said he, 'your breath would have departed, if you had not come to me.'

Section 15

SPACE AS THE BODY OF THE UNIVERSAL SELF

1. atha hovāca janam śārkarākṣya: kaṁ tvam ātmānam upāssa iti: ākāśam eva bhagavo rājan, iti hovāca: eṣa vai bahula ātmā vaiśvānaraḥ, yaṁ tvam ātmānam upāsse, tasmāt tvam bahulo'si prajāyā ca dhanena ca.

1. Then he said to Janam Śārkarākṣya, on what do you meditate as the self?' (He replied) 'Space only, Venerable King.' He said, 'The self you meditate on is the Universal Self called Full (brahma). Therefore you are full of offspring and wealth.'

2. atsy annam, paśyasi priyam, atty annam, paśyati priyam, bhavaty asya brahma-varcasam kule ya etam evam ātmānam vaiśvānaram upāste samdehas tv eṣa ātmanah, iti hovāca samdehas te vyaśīryat, yaṁ mām nāgamiṣya iti.

2. 'You eat food, you see what is pleasing. He eats food, he sees what is pleasing. In the family of him who meditates on the Universal Self thus, there arises eminence in brahma-knowledge. That, however, is only the body of the self,' said he, 'your body would have fallen off, if you had not come to me.'

Section 16

WATER AS THE BLADDER OF THE UNIVERSAL SELF

1. atha hovāca, buḍilam aśvatarāśvim, vaiyāghrapadya, kaṁ tvam ātmānam upāssa iti, apa eva bhagavo rājan, iti hovāca. eṣa vai rayir ātmā vaiśvānaraḥ, yaṁ tvam ātmānam upāsse, tasmāt tvam rayimān puṣṭimān asi.

1. Then he said to Buḍila Aśvatarāśvi, 'Vaiyāghrapadya, on what do you meditate as the self?' (He replied) 'Water only, Venerable King.' He said, 'The self you meditate on is the Universal Self called wealth (rayi). Therefore are you endowed with wealth and strength of body.'

2. atsy annam, paśyasi priyam, atty annam, paśyati priyam, bhavaty asya brahmavarcasam kule ya etam evam ātmānam vaiśvānaram upāste, bastis tv eṣa ātmanah, iti hovāca bastis te vyabhetsyata, yaṁ mām nā'gamiṣya iti.

2. 'You eat food, you see what is pleasing. He eats food, he sees what is pleasing. In the family of him who meditates on the Universal Self thus, there arises eminence in brahma knowledge. That, however, is only the bladder of the self and your bladder would have burst if you had not come to me.'

Section 17

EARTH AS THE FEET OF THE UNIVERSAL SELF

1. atha hovāca uddālakam āruṇim: gautama, kaṁ tvam ātmānam upāssa iti: pṛthivīm eva, bhagavo rājan, iti hovāca: eṣa vai pratiṣṭhātmā vaiśvānaraḥ yaṁ tvam ātmānam upāsse, tasmāt tvam pratiṣṭhito'si prajāyā ca paśubhiḥ ca.

1. Then he said to Uddālaka Āruṇi: 'Gautama, on what do you meditate as the self?' (He replied) 'Earth only, Venerable King.' He said, 'The self you meditate on is the Universal Self called support (pratiṣṭha). Therefore you are supported, with offspring and cattle.'

2. atsy annam, paśyasi priyam, atty annam paśyati priyam, bhavaty asya brahma-varcasam kule ya etam evam ātmānam vaiśvānaram upāste, pāḍau tv etāv ātmanah, iti hovāca, pāḍau te vyamlāsyetām, yaṁ mām nā'gamiṣya iti.

2. 'You see food, you see what is pleasing. He eats food, he sees what is pleasing. In the family of him who meditates on the Universal Self thus there arises eminence in brahma-knowledge. That, however, is but the feet of the self,' said he, 'your feet would have withered away, if you had not come to me.'

Section 18

THE SELF AS THE WHOLE

1. tān hovāca: ete vai khalu yūyaṁ prthag ivemam ātmānaṁ vaiśvānaram vidvāṁso'nnam attha, yas tv etam evaṁ prādeśa-mātram abhivimānam ātmānaṁ vaiśvānaram upāste, sa sarveṣu lokeṣu sarveṣu bhūteṣu sarveṣu ātmāsu annam atti.

1. Then he said to them, 'Verily indeed you eat your food knowing this Universal Self as if it were many. He, however, who meditates on the Universal Self as of the measure of the span or as identical with the self, eats food in all worlds, in all beings, in all selves.'

prādeśa-mātra: of the measure of the span. Ś gives five different renderings of which the chief are (i) that which is recognised bodily through heaven as the head and the earth as the feet, (ii) that which is measured by a measure extending from the heaven to the earth.

The self which has assumed the shape of the whole universe is the Universal Self. It is to be known as the Self of all beings. One has to realise the Self in oneself before one can comprehend Him as the Self of the whole creation. The individual 'I' and the universal 'I' are one.

Āśmarathya teaches the meditation of Vaiśvānara as prādeśa-mātra since the Supreme Being is specially manifested in the heart which is conceived as of the measure of a span:

abhiṣyakter āśmarathyaḥ: B.S. I. 2. 29.

pratyaḡ-ātmatayābhivimīyate' ham iti jñāyata ity abhivimānaḥ. Ś.

Bādari is of the view that the Supreme Being is described as of the measure of a span since he is meditated upon by the mind, situated in the heart which is of the measure of a span:

anusmṛter bādariḥ: B.S. I. 2. 30.

Jaimini holds that prādeśa-mātra is intended to teach sampatti or sampad-upāsana, i.e. the realization of the non-separation of God from the objects of sense. Ś explains dhyānena dṛśya-vastuṇi parama-svarasya abheda-niṣpattiḥ.

abhivimāna: the inner self behind the parts.

pratyag-ātmatayā abhivimīyate aham iti vijñāyate: It is the Universal Self in each living being. The seeker should realise the divine in himself and in all beings.

2. tasya ha vā etasyātmano vaiśvānarasya mūrdhaiva sutejāḥ, caksur viśva-rūpaḥ, prāṇaḥ prthagvartmātmā, samdeho bahulaḥ, bastir eva rayiḥ, prthivy eva pādāv ura eva vediḥ, lomāni barhiḥ, hṛdayaṁ gārhapatyāḥ, mano'nvāhārya-pacanaḥ, āsyam āhavanīyāḥ.

2. Of this Universal Self, the head indeed is the good light, the eye is the universal form, breath is (the air) of varied courses, the body is the full, the bladder is wealth, the feet are the earth, the chest indeed is the sacrificial area, the hair is the sacred grass, the heart is the gārhapatyā fire, the mind is the anvāhārya-pacana fire and the mouth is the āhavanīyā fire.

v. prthag-vartmā.

The teacher corrects the wrong notions of the pupils who mistake parts for the whole even as blind men mistake parts of the elephant for the elephant: hasti-darśane iva jātyāndhāḥ.

This passage indicates the essential correspondence between the microcosm and the macrocosm.

Section 19

THE SACRIFICE TO THE UNIVERSAL SELF IN ONE'S OWN SELF: PRĀṆA

1. tad yad bhaktam prathamam āgacchet, tad homīyam, sa yām prathamām āhutiṁ juhuyāt tāṁ juhuyāt, prāṇāya svāheti, prāṇas tṛpyati.

1. Therefore that food which may come first should be an offering. The first offering he offers he should offer saying, 'hail to the prāṇa breath.' The prāṇa breath is satisfied.

2. prāṇe tṛpyati caksus tṛpyati, caksuṣi tṛpyaty ādityas tṛpyati, āditye tṛpyati dyaus tṛpyati, divi tṛpyantyaṁ yat kim ca dyaus cādityaś cādhitisthataḥ, tat tṛpyati tasyānutṛptiṁ tṛpyati prajāyā paśubhir annādyaena tejasā brahma-varcasena.

2. The prāṇa breath being satisfied, the eye is satisfied. The eye being satisfied, the sun is satisfied. The sun being satisfied, the heaven is satisfied. The heaven being satisfied, whatever is under the heaven and under the sun is satisfied. Along with the satisfaction thereof, he himself is satisfied with offspring, with cattle, with food (health born of food), brightness and with eminence in sacred knowledge.

Section 20

VYĀNA

1. atha yām dvitīyām juhuyāt tām juhuyāt, vyānāya svāheti, vyānas trpyati.

1. Then the second offering he should offer, saying, 'Hail to the vyāna breath.' The vyāna breath is satisfied.

2. vyāne trpyati śrotram trpyati, śrotre trpyati candramās trpyati, candramasi trpyati diśas trpyanti, dikṣu trpyantīṣu yat kiṁ ca diśaś ca candramās cādhitīṣṭhanti, tat trpyati, tasyānu-trptim trpyati prajayā paśubhir annādyena tejasā brahma-varcasena.

2. Vyāna being satisfied, the ear is satisfied. The ear being satisfied, the moon is satisfied. The moon being satisfied, the quarters are satisfied. The quarters being satisfied, whatever is under the quarters and under the moon is satisfied. Along with the satisfaction thereof he himself is satisfied with offspring, with cattle, with food, with brightness and with eminence in sacred knowledge.

Section 21

APĀNA

1. atha yām tṛtīyām juhuyāt tām juhuyāt, apānāya svāheti, apānas trpyati.

1. Then the third offering he should offer, saying, 'Hail to the apāna breath.' The apāna breath is satisfied.

2. apāne trpyati vāk trpyati, vāci trpyantyām agnis trpyati, agnau trpyati pṛthivī trpyati, pṛthivyām trpyantyām yat kiṁ ca pṛthivī cāgniś cādhitīṣṭhataḥ tat trpyati, tasyānu-trptim trpyati prajayā paśubhir annādyena tejasā brahma-varcasena.

2. Apāna being satisfied, speech is satisfied. Speech being satisfied, the fire is satisfied. The fire being satisfied, the earth is satisfied. The earth being satisfied, whatever is under the earth and the fire is satisfied. Along with the satisfaction thereof, he himself is satisfied with offspring, with cattle, with food, with brightness and with eminence in sacred knowledge.

Section 22

SAMĀNA

1. atha yām caturthīm juhuyāt tām juhuyāt samānāya svāheti samānas tṛpyati.

1. Then the fourth offering he should offer, saying, 'Hail to the samāna breath.' The samāna breath is satisfied.

2. samāne tṛpyati manas tṛpyati, manasi tṛpyati parjanyaś tṛpyati, parjanyaś tṛpyati vidyut tṛpyati, vidyuti tṛpyantyaṁ yat kim ca vidyuc ca parjanyaś cādhitisthataḥ, tat tṛpyati tasyānu-tṛptim tṛpyati prajāyā paśubhir annādyena tejasā brahma-var-casena.

2. Samāna being satisfied, the mind is satisfied. The mind being satisfied, the rain god is satisfied. The rain god being satisfied, lightning is satisfied. Lightning being satisfied, whatever is under the lightning and the rain god is satisfied. Along with the satisfaction thereof, he himself is satisfied with offspring, with cattle, with food, with brightness and with eminence in sacred knowledge.

Section 23

UDĀNA

1. atha yām pañcamīm juhuyāt tām juhuyāt udānāya svāheti, udānas tṛpyati.

1. Then the fifth offering he should offer, saying, 'Hail to the udāna breath.' The udāna breath is satisfied.

2. udāne tṛpyati tvak tṛpyati, tvaci tṛpyantyaṁ vāyus tṛpyati, vāyau tṛpyaty ākaśaś tṛpyati, ākāśe tṛpyati yat kiṁ ca vāyus cākaśaś cādhitisthataḥ, tat tṛpyati, tasyānu-tṛptim tṛpyati prajayā paśubhir annādyena tejasā brahma-varcasena.

2. Udāna being satisfied, the skin is satisfied. The skin being satisfied, the air is satisfied. The air being satisfied, space is satisfied. Space being satisfied, whatever is under the air and space is satisfied. Along with the satisfaction thereof, he himself is satisfied with offspring, with cattle, with food, with brightness and with eminence in sacred knowledge.

Section 24

THE NEED FOR KNOWLEDGE IS STRESSED

1. sa ya idam avidvān agni-hotraṁ juhōti, yathāṅgārān apohya bhasmani juhuyāt, tādṛk tat syāt.

1. If, without knowing this, one offers the fire sacrifice, that would be just as if he were to remove the live coals and pour the offering on (dead) ashes.

2. atha ya etad evaṁ vidvān agni-hotraṁ juhōti, tasya sarveṣu lokeṣu sarveṣu bhūteṣu sarveṣu ātmaṣu hutam bhavati.

2. But if, knowing it thus, one offers the fire sacrifice he offers it in all worlds, in all beings, in all selves, he will perform sacrifices with a full knowledge of their meaning and purpose.

3. tad yatheṣṭikā-tūlam agnau protam pradūyeta, evaṁ hāsya sarve pāpmānaḥ pradūyante, ya etad evaṁ vidvān agni-hotraṁ juhōti.

3. Even as the soft fibres of the iṣṭika reed are burned up when laid on a fire, so also are burned up the evils of one who knowing it thus offers the fire sacrifice.

4. tasmād u haivaṁvid yady api caṇḍālāyocchiṣṭam prayacchet, ātmani haivāsya tad vaiśvānare hutam syād iti, tad eṣa ślokaḥ.

4. Therefore if one who knows this should offer the remnant of his food to a Caṇḍāla, it would be offered in his Universal Self. On this there is the following verse.

Caṇḍāla is symbolic of those who do not deserve the offer. anarha. Ś. One is released from the observance of restrictions when one has attained knowledge that the one Self dwells in all. One offers it to the Universal Self dwelling in the body of the Caṇḍāla: caṇḍāla-dehas̥the vaiśvānare. Ś. The whole system of caste and untouchability is undermined by the perception of the Indwelling Self in all.

5. yathāiha kṣudhitā bālāḥ mātaram paryupāsate evaṁ sarvāṇi bhūtāṇy agni-hotram upāsate ity agni-hotram upāsata iti.

5. As here hungry children sit (expectantly) around their mother, even so do all beings sit around the fire sacrifice, yea they sit around the fire sacrifice.

CHAPTER VI

Section I

UDDĀLAKA'S TEACHING CONCERNING THE ONENESS OF THE SELF

1. aum. śvetaketuḥ hā'aruṇeya āsa, tam ha pitovāca: śvetaketu, vasa brahmacāryam, na vai, saumya, asmat-kulīno'nanūcya brahma-bandhūḥ iva bhavatīti.

1. Aum. There was Śvetaketu Āruṇeya. His father said to him, 'Live the life of religious student, verily, my dear, there is no one in our family who is unlearned (in the Vedas), who is a Brāhmaṇa only by birth.'

aruṇeya: aruṇasya pautraḥ: grandson of Aruṇa. Ś.

brahma-bandhūḥ: he who calls Brāhmaṇas his relatives but does not himself behave like a Brāhmaṇa. brāhmaṇān bandhūn vyapadiśati na svayam brāhmaṇa-vṛtta iti. Ś.

2. sa ha dvādaśa-varṣa upetya caturvīmśati varṣaḥ sarvān vedān adhītya mahāmanā anūcāna-mānī stabdha evāya, tam ha pitovāca, śvetaketu, yaṁ nu saumya idam mahāmanā anūcāna-mānī stabdho'si uta tam ādeśam aprākṣyaḥ.

2. He then, having become a pupil at the age of twelve, returned when he was twenty-four years of age, having studied all the Vedas, greatly conceited, thinking himself well read, arrogant. His father then said to him, 'Śvetaketu, since you are now so greatly conceited, think yourself well read and arrogant, did you ask for that instruction

3. yenāśrutam śrutam bhavati, amatam matam, avijñātam vijñātam iti: katham nu, bhagavaḥ, sa ādeśo bhavatīti.

3. By which the unheard becomes heard, the unperceivable becomes perceived, the unknowable becomes known? 'How, Venerable Sir, can there be such teaching?'

All learning is useless unless one knows the truth with regard to the Self. sarvān api vedān adhītya sarvām cānyad vedyam adhigamyāpy akṛtārtha eva bhavati yāvad ātmataṭtvam na jānāti. Ś.

4. yathā, saumya, ekena mṛt-piṇḍena sarvān mṛtmayān vijñātān syāt, vācārambhanam vikāro nāma-dheyam, mṛttikety eva satyam.

4. Just as, my dear, by one clod of clay all that is made of clay becomes known, the modification being only a name arising from speech while the truth is that it is just clay.

vikāra: modification, manifestation, development, change. Ś suggests that the change is only nominal: vāg-ālambana-mātram nāmaiva kevalam na vikāro nāma vastu asti, paramārthato mṛttikety eva mṛttikaiva tu satyam vastu asti. Ś. The Upaniṣad suggests that all modifications are based on the reality of clay and not that change rests simply on a word, that it is a mere name.

5. yathā, saumya, ekena loha-maṇinā sarvaṁ lohamayaṁ vijñātaṁ syāt, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāma-dheyam lohamity eva satyam.

5. Just as, my dear, by one nugget of gold, all that is made of gold becomes known, the modification being only a name arising from speech, while the truth is that it is just gold.

by one nugget of gold: suvarṇa-piṇḍena. Ś. loha originally meant iron or copper but later is used for gold or any metal.

6. yathā, saumya, ekena nakha-nikṛntanena sarvaṁ kārṣṇāya-saṁ vijñātaṁ syāt, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāma-dheyam kṛṣṇā-yasaṁ ity eva satyam, evam, saumya, sa ādeṣo bhavatīti.

6. Just as, my dear, by one pair of nail scissors all that is made of iron becomes known, the modification being only a name arising from speech while the truth is that it is just iron: thus, my dear, is that teaching.

7. na vai nūnam bhagavantas ta etad avedīṣuḥ, yadd hy etad avedīṣyan, katham me nāvakṣyan iti bhagavams tv eva me tad bravītv iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

7. 'Verily, those venerable men did not know this; for if they had known it, why would they not have told it to me? Venerable Sir, please tell me that,' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

Section 2

THE PRIMACY OF BEING

I. sad eva, saumya, idam agra āsīd ekam evādītyam, tadd haika āhuḥ, asad evedam agra āsīd ekam evādvītyam, tasmād asataḥ saj jāyata.

I. In the beginning, my dear, this was Being alone, one only without a second. Some people say 'in the beginning this was non-being alone, one only; without a second. From that non-being, being was produced.'

sad: being.

eva: without any limitation or upādhi.

idam: this, the universe of name and form, the world of manifestation. Prior to manifestation this world was pure being.

One only without a second: There is no second to it. There is no other object than being: nāsyā dvitīyam vastu antaram vidyata ity advitīyam. Ś. See T.U. II. 7; C.U. III. 19. 1.

The logical priority of Brahman to the world is brought out by the statement that Being alone was this in the beginning.

See Maitrī, VI. 17.

Cp. Pañcadaśī, I. 19:

idam sarvam purā sṛṣṭer ekam evādvitīyakam sad evāśin nāma-rūpe nāstām iti āruṇer vacah.

'Previous to creation all this was being, one only without a second. Name and form were not: this is the statement of the son of Aruṇa.'

He does not have 'being' as other things have being. He is his own being. Being is, is God. Being is above all conceptions and conceptual differentiations. It is prior to all things. All other things are from being, live in it and end in it. What is other than being is nothing.

According to Indian logic, there are four kinds of non-existence or abhāva. There is absolute non-existence or atyantābhāva: anything self-contradictory like the barren woman's son, vandhyāputra, is inconceivable and impossible. Barrenness and motherhood contradict each other. The real excludes self-contradictory non-existence. When non-being or asat is said to be the root of existence, asat does not mean absolute non-existence but only prior or antecedent non-existence or prāg-abhāva or potential existence. The world is non-existent before its production. It was existent potentially or as a possibility though not as an actuality. Creation is not out of absolute non-existence but out of prior non-existence or the world of possibility. This type of non-existence has no beginning but has an end when the possibility is actualised. pradhvaṁsābhāva is posterior non-existence. It is the opposite of prior non-existence. It has a beginning but no end. When a jar is destroyed, its non-existence begins at the time it is destroyed, but it has no end. The mutual exclusiveness of a jar and a cloth, the fact of difference, is indicated by anyonyābhāva. A is not B. A jar is not a cloth. See Annambhaṭṭa's Tarka-saṁgraha. 3.

2. kutas tu khalu, saumya, evaṁ syāt, iti hovāca, katham, asataḥ saḥ jāyeta, sat tv eva, saumya, idam agra āśīd ekam evādvitīyam.

2. But how, indeed, my dear, could it be thus? said he, how could being be produced from non-being? On the contrary, my dear, in the beginning this was being alone, one only, without a second.

Ā suggests that ekam excludes sajātīya and svagata bheda and advitīyam excludes vijātīya bheda.

Cp. Pañcadaśī:

vrkṣasya svagata-bhedah patra-puṣpa-phalādibhiḥ vrkṣāntarāt sajātīyo vijātīyah śilādītaḥ. II. 20.

Svagata-bheda is internal difference of a tree from its leaves, flowers and fruits. Sajātīya difference is that of one tree from other trees. Vijātīya is the difference of a tree from rock, etc. Brahman is devoid of all these three kinds of difference.

3. tad aikṣata, bahu syām prajāyeyeti, tat tejo'srjata: tat teja aikṣata, bahu syām prajāyeyeti, tad apo'srjata, tasmād yatra kva ca śocati svedate vā puruṣaḥ, tejasa eva tad adhy āpo jāyante.

3. It thought, May I be many, may I grow forth. It sent forth fire. That fire thought, May I be many, may I grow forth. It sent forth water. Therefore, whenever a person grieves or perspires, water is produced from the fire (heat).

aikṣata: thought. literally saw. This word indicates that pure being is conscious. The reference in all such passages is not to the elements as such, but to the presiding deities.

abhimānīnyah cetanāḥ devatāḥ S.B. II. 1. 5. Ś also says that the Highest Lord abiding as the selves of the various elements, produces by his power of thought, the different effects:

paramēśvara eva tena tena ātmanā avatiṣṭhamānaḥ abhidhyāyan tam tam vikāraṁ srjate. S.B. II. 3. 13.

In other Upaniṣads, space, air and fire are mentioned as successive products.

The text, Ś suggests, has no eye to the order of creation for it is only interested in making out that all effects are derived from Being.

4. tā āpa aikṣanta, bahvyaḥ syāma, prajāyemahīti, tā annam asrjanta, tasmād yatra kva ca varṣati, tad eva bhūyīṣṭham annam bhavati, adbhya eva tad adhy annādyam jāyate.

4. That water thought, May I be many, may I grow forth. It sent forth food. Therefore, whenever it rains anywhere then there is abundant food. So food for eating is produced from water alone.

Section 3

THREEFOLD DEVELOPMENT

1. teṣāṃ khalu eṣāṃ bhūtānāṃ trīṇy eva bijāni bhavanti, āṇḍajam, jīvajam, udbhijam iti.

1. Now of these (living) beings there are only three origins, those born from an egg, born from a living being, born from a sprout.

In A.U. a fourth sveda 'born from heat' is mentioned in addition to the three mentioned here. Cp. Atharva Veda, I. 12. 1.

2. seyaṃ devataikṣata, hantāham imās tisro devatā anena jīvenā 'tmanā' nupraviśya nāma-rūpe vyākaraṇānti.

2. That divinity thought, 'Well, let me enter into these three divinities by means of this living self and let me then develop names and forms.

devatā—literally divinity. It means being. By the union of sat or Being with the three elements of fire, water and earth, all the varied manifestations of the world are produced. In relation to the three elements which are called devatās, sat is called parā devatā, highest being. Sat is primary being. Tejas is its first product. Out of tejas water is produced, and out of water food. Sat penetrates into these three as their inner soul, and by mixing them up makes each of them threefold. The red colour of fire is the colour of tejas, the white of āpas and the black of anna the three are the truth and their differentiations are derived from vāc, vācārambhaṇam. So long as vāc does not differentiate, the three colours form a unity. M. Senart thinks that the three rūpas are derived from the three cosmic spheres. Ś argues that this development does not affect the Absolute Reality. He points out that the modifications of the world are real in so far as they participate in the nature of absolute reality and unreal in themselves: sarvaṃ ca nāma-rūpādi sadātmanaiva satyam vikāra-jātam svatastv anṛtam eva. Ś. Again, sadātmanā sarva-vyavahārānāṃ sarva-vikārānāṃ ca satyatvam sato'nyatve cānṛtatvam. Ś.

3. tāsāṃ trivṛtaṃ trivṛtam ekaikāṃ karavānti, seyaṃ devatemās tisro devatā anenaiva jīvenā 'tmanā' nupraviśya nāma-rūpe vyākaroḥ.

3. 'Let me make each one of the three threefold.' The divinity entered into those three divinities by means of the living self and developed names and forms.

4. tāsāṃ trivṛtaṃ trivṛtam ekaikāṃ akarot, yathā tu khalu saumya, imās tisro devatās trivṛt trivṛd ekaikā bhavati, tan me vijānīhīti.

4. It made each of these threefold and how these three divinities become each of them threefold, that learn from me now, my dear.

1. yad agne rohitam rūpam tejasas tad rūpam, yac chuklam tad apām, yat kṛṣṇam tad annasya apāgād agner agnītvam, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāma-dheyam, trīṇi rūpāṇīty eva satyam.

1. Whatever red form fire has it is the form of heat, whatever (is) white (is the form) of water. Whatever (is) dark (it is the form of) earth. Thus vanishes the quality of fire from fire, the modification being only a name arising from speech while the truth is that it is only the three forms.

2. yad ādityasya rohitam rūpam tejasas tad rūpam, yac chuklam tad apām, yat kṛṣṇam tad annasya. apāgād ādityād ādityatvam, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāma-dheyam, trīṇi rūpāṇīty eva satyam.

2. Whatever red form the sun has it is the form of heat, whatever (is) white (it is the form) of water. Whatever (is) dark (it is the form) of earth. Thus vanishes the quality of the sun from the sun, the modification being only a name arising from speech while the truth is that it is only the three forms.

3. yac candramaso rohitam rūpam tejasas tad rūpam, yac chuklam tad apām, yat kṛṣṇam tad annasya apāgād candrāc candratvam, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāma-dheyam, trīṇi rūpāṇīty eva satyam.

3. Whatever red form the moon has it is the form of heat, whatever (is) white (it is the form) of water. Whatever (is) dark (it is the form) of earth. Thus vanishes the quality of the moon from the moon, the modification being only a name arising from speech while the truth is that it is only the three forms.

4. yad vidyuto rohitam rūpam tejasas tad rūpam, yac chuklam tad apām, yat kṛṣṇam tad annasya. apāgād vidyuto vidyutvam, vācārambhaṇam vikāro nāma-dheyam, trīṇi rūpāṇīty eva satyam.

4. Whatever red form the lightning has it is the form of heat, whatever (is) white, (it is the form) of water. Whatever (is) dark (it is the form) of earth. Thus vanishes the quality of lightning from the lightning, the modification being only a name arising from speech, while the truth is that it is only the three forms.

All things are ultimately modifications of pure being. sarvasya sad vikāratvāt. Ś. The primordial being becomes three deities, fire, water and earth. The doctrine of trivṛt-karṇa, by which each of the three original elements, fire, water and earth is to be regarded as being divided into two equal portions, of which one half is kept intact and the other half is divided into two equal parts, the two quarters of the two other elements in combination with the one half of the original element. This view is the basis of the doctrine of pañcīkarṇa of the later Vedānta. Anaxagoras affirms that there is a portion of everything in everything.

The three colours are taken over by the Sāṃkhya system to correspond to the three guṇas, sattva, rajas and tamas.

5. etadd ha sma vai tad vidvāṃsa āhuḥ pūrve mahāsālā mahāśrotriyāḥ na no'dya kaścana aśrutam, amatam, avijñātam, udāharīṣyatīti hy ebhyo vidvāmcakruḥ.

5. Verily it was just this that the great householders and great students of sacred wisdom knew when they said of old 'no one now will mention to us what we have not heard, what we have not perceived, what we have not thought.' For from these (three forms) they knew everything.

6. yad u rohitam ivābhūd iti tejasas tad rūpam iti tad vidvāmcakruḥ, yad u śuklam ivābhūd ity apām rūpam iti tad vidvāmcakruḥ, yad u kṛṣṇam ivābhūd ity annasya rūpam iti tad vidvāmcakruḥ.

6. They knew that whatever appeared red was of the form of heat; they knew that whatever appeared white was of the form of water; they knew that whatever appeared dark was of the form of earth.

7. yad avijñātam ivābhūd ity etāsām eva devatānām samāsaḥ, iti tad vidvāmcakruḥ, yathā nu khalu, saumya, imās tisro devatāḥ puruṣam prāpya trivṛt trivṛd ekaikā bhavati, tan me vijānīhīti.

7. They knew that whatever appeared unintelligible is a combination of just these three divinities. Verily, my dear, learn from me how each of these three divinities when they reach the human, becomes threefold.

Section 5

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THREEFOLD NATURE

1. annam aśitam tredhā vidhīyate, tasya yaḥ sthaviṣṭho dhātus tat puriṣam bhavati, yo madhyamas tan māmsam, yo'niṣṭhaḥ tan manah.

1. Food when eaten becomes threefold; its coarsest portion becomes the faeces; its middle (portion) flesh and its subtlest (portion) mind.

Ś argues that mind being fed by food is material, elemental and not impartible and eternal:

annopacitatvān manaso bhautikatvam eva, na vaiśeṣika-tantrokta-lakṣaṇam nityam niravayavam ceti gṛhyate.

2. āpaḥ pītās tredhā vidhīyante, tāsām yaḥ sthaviṣṭho dhātus tan mūtram bhavati, yo madhyamas tal lohitaṁ, yo'niṣṭhaḥ sa prāṇaḥ.

2. Water when drunk becomes threefold; its coarsest portion becomes the urine; its middle (portion) the blood, its subtlest (portion) the breath.

3. tejo'sitam tredhā vidhīyate, tasya yaḥ sthaviṣṭho dhātus tad asthi bhavati, yo madhyamaḥ sa majjā, yo'niṣṭhaḥ sā vāk.

3. Heat when eaten becomes threefold; its coarsest portion becomes bone; its middle (portion) marrow, its subtlest (portion) speech.

We eat heat, in the shape of oil, butter, etc. Ś: taila-ghṛtādi-bhakṣitam.

4. annamayam hi, saumya, manah, āpomayaḥ prāṇaḥ, tejo-mayī vāg iti; bhūya eva mā bhagavān viññāpayatu iti; tathā saumya, iti hovāca.

4. Thus, my dear, mind consists of food; breath consists of water and speech consists of heat. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still more.' So be it, my dear, said he.

Everything is threefold and so all the three elements exist in everything. sarvasya trivṛt-kṛta-tvāt sarvatra sarvopapattēh. Ś.

1. dadhnaḥ, saumya, mathyamānasya yo'nimā, sa ūrdhvaḥ samudīṣati, tat sarpiḥ bhavati.

1. Of the curd, my dear, when churned, that which is subtle moves upwards; it becomes butter.

2. evam eva khalu, saumya, annasyāśyamānasya yo'nimā, sa ūrdhvaḥ samudīṣati, tan mano bhavati.

2. In the same manner, my dear, of the food that is eaten, that which is subtle moves upwards; it becomes mind.

3. apām, saumya, pīyamānānām yo'nimā, sa ūrdhvaḥ samudīṣati, sa prāṇo bhavati.

3. Of the water, my dear, that is drunk, that which is subtle moves upwards; it becomes breath.

4. tejasah saumya aśyamānasya yo'nimā, sa ūrdhvaḥ samudīṣati, sā vāg bhavati.

4. Of the heat, my dear, that is eaten, that which is subtle moves upwards; it becomes speech.

5. annamayam hi, saumya, manaḥ, āpomayaḥ prāṇaḥ, tejomayī vāg iti: bhūya eva mā, bhagavan, vijñāpayatv iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovaca.

5. Thus, my dear, mind consists of food, breath consists of water, speech consists of heat. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still more.' So be it, my dear, said he.

Section 7

IMPORTANCE OF PHYSICAL NEEDS

1. ṣoḍaśa-kalaḥ, saumya, puruṣaḥ, pañcadaśāhāni mā' śīḥ, kāmam apah piba, āpomayaḥ prāṇo na pibato vicchetsyata iti.

1. A person, my dear, consists of sixteen parts. For fifteen days do not eat (any food), drink water at (your) will. Breath which consists of water will not be cut off from one who drinks water.

2. sa ha pañcadaśāhāni nā'sa atha hainam upasasāda, kim bravīmī bho iti, ṛcaḥ, saumya, yajūṁṣi sāmānīti; sa hovāca, na vai mā pratibhānti bho iti.

2. Then for fifteen days he did not eat (any food); and then he approached him saying, 'What, sir, shall I say?' 'The Ṛg. verses, my dear, the Yajus formulas and the Sāman chants.' He replied, 'They do not occur to me, Sir.'

3. tām hovāca, yathā, saumya, mahato'bhyāhitasyaiko'ṅgāraḥ khadyota-mātraḥ pariśiṣṭaḥ syāt, tena tato'pi na bahu dahet, evam, saumya, te ṣoḍaśānām kalānām ekā kalā'tiṣiṣṭā syāt, tayaitarhi vedān nānubhavaṣi, aśāna, atha me vijñāsyasīti.

3. He said to him, 'Just as, my dear, of a great lighted fire, a single coal of the size of a firefly may be left which would not thereafter burn much, even so, my dear, of your sixteen parts only one part is left and so with it you do not apprehend (remember) the Vedas. Eat. Then you will understand me.'

4. sa hā'sa, atha hainam upasasāda, tam ha yat kim ca papraccha sarvaṁ ha pratipede.

4. Then he ate and approached him (his father). Then whatsoever he asked him, he answered it all.

5. tām hovāca, yathā, saumya, mahato'bhyāhitasyaikam aṅgāram khadyota-mātram pariśiṣṭam tam tṛṇair upasamādhāya prajvalayet, tena tato'pi bahu dahet.

5. To him he then said, 'Just as, my dear, of a great lighted fire if a single coal of the size of a firefly is left, and made to blaze up by covering it with straw and with it the fire would thereafter burn much.

6. evam, saumya, te ṣoḍaśānām kalānām ekā kalā'tiṣiṣṭā bhūt, sā'nnenopasamāhitā prajvālīt, tayā etarhi vedān anubhavaṣi. anna mayam hi, saumya, manaḥ, āpomayaḥ prāṇaḥ, tejomayī vāg iti tadd hāsyā vijajñāv iti.

6. So, my dear, of your sixteen parts only one part was left, and that, when covered with food, blazed up. With it you now apprehend the Vedas. For, my dear, the mind consists of food, the breath consists of water and speech consists of heat. Then he understood what he said; he understood it.

In some texts the following verse is found.

pañcendriyasya puruṣasya yad eva syād anāvṛtam tad asya prajñā sravati ṛteḥ pādād ivodakam.

'When the (mind of the) person consisting of the five senses is not supported by food, then his intelligence goes away, even as the water flows away from the mouth of a leathern bag.

anāvṛtam: unprotected, uncovered by food.

Section 8

CONCERNING SLEEP, HUNGER AND THIRST AND DYING

1. uddālako hāruniḥ śvetaketuṃ putram uvāca, svapnāntam me, saumya, vijānīhīti, yatraitat puruṣaḥ svapīti nāma, satā, saumya, tadā sampanno bhavati, svam apīto bhavati, tasmād enam svapītīty ācakṣate, svam hy apīto bhavati.

1. Then Uddālaka Āruṇi said to his son, Śvetaketu, Learn from me, my dear, the true nature of sleep. When a person here sleeps, as it is called, then, my-dear, he has reached pure being. He has gone to his own. Therefore they say he sleeps for he has gone to his own.

svapnānta: true nature of sleep, literally the end of the dream. Ś interprets it as the central portion of the dream vision: svapnāntam svapna-madhyam suṣuptam. S. In the condition of deep sleep, personal consciousness subsides and the self is said to be absorbed in the Highest Self. Speech, mind and the senses rest. Only the breath is active. The jīva, the living soul returns for a while to the deeper self in order to recover from the fatigue.

In dreamless sleep, buddhi or understanding remains in a potential condition and becomes active in the dream and waking states. S.B. II. 3. 31.

2. sa yathā śakuniḥ sūtreṇa prabaddho diśam diśam patitvānyatrāyatanam alabdhvā bandhanam evopāśrayate, evam eva khalu, saumya, tan mano diśam diśam patitvānyatrāyatanam alabdhvā prāṇam evopāśrayate, prāṇa-bandhanam hi, saumya, mana iti.

2. Just as a bird tied by a string, after flying in various directions without finding a resting-place elsewhere settles down (at last) at the place where it is bound, so also the mind, my dear, after flying in various directions without finding a resting-place elsewhere settles down in breath, for the mind, my dear, is bound to breath.

The organic nature of the relationship between mind and life is brought out here. The mental, while it transcends the vital, arises out of the vital and is rooted in it.

3. aśanā-pipāse me, saumya, vijānīhīti, yatra itat puruṣo aśiśiṣati nāma, āpa eva tad aśitam nayante: tad yathā gonāyo'svanāyah puruṣanāya iti, evam tad āpa ācakṣate'sanāyeti, tatra itacchuṅgam utpatitam, saumya, vijānīhi, nedam amūlam bhaviṣyatīti.

3. Learn from me, my dear, what hunger and thirst are. When a person here is hungry, as it is called, water only is leading (carrying away) what has been eaten (by him). So as they speak of a leader of cows, a leader of horses, a leader of men, so they speak of water as the leader (or carrier of food). On this, my dear, understand that this (body) is an offshoot which has sprung up, for it could not be without a root.

The person is hungry because whatever he eats is quickly digested.

4. tasya kva mūlam syād anyatrānnāt, evam eva khalu, saumya, annena ūṅgena nāpo mūlam anviccha, adbhih, saumya, ūṅgena tejo mūlam anviccha, tejasā, saumya, ūṅgena san mūlam anviccha, san mūlāh, saumya, imāh sarvāh prajāh sad-āyatanāh, sat-pratiṣṭhāh.

4. And what else could its root be than food? And in the same manner, my dear, with food as an offshoot, seek for water as the root; with water, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for heat as the root; with heat, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for Being as its root. All these creatures, my dear, have their root in Being. They have Being as their abode, Being as their support.

Being is the ultimate root of the whole universe.

5. atha yatra itat puruṣah pipāṣati nāma, teja eva tat pītam nayate, tad yathā gonāyo'svanāyah puruṣanāya iti, evam tat teja ācaṣṭa udanyeti, tatra itat eva ūṅgam utpatitam, saumya, vijānīhi nedam amūlam bhaviṣyatīti.

5. Now when a person here is thirsty, as it is called, heat only is leading (or carrying off) what has been drunk (by him). So as they speak of a leader of cows, a leader of horses, a leader of men so one speaks of heat as the leader of water. On this my dear, understand that this (body) is an offshoot which has sprung up, for it could not be without a root.

6. tasya kva mūlam syād anyatra adbhyah, adbhih, saumya, ūṅgena tejo mūlam anviccha, tejasā, saumya, ūṅgena san mūlam anviccha; san mūlāh, saumya, imāh sarvāh prajāh sad-āyatanāh, satpratiṣṭhāh, yathā nu khalu, saumya, imās tisro devatāḥ puruṣam prāpya triṣṭ trivṛdekaikā bhavati, tad uktam, purastād eva bhavati, asya, saumya, puruṣasya prayato vān manasi sampadyate, manah prāṇe, prāṇas tejasi, tejaḥ parasyām devatāyām.

6. And what else could its root be than water? With water, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for heat as the root; with heat, my dear, as an offshoot, seek for Being as the root. All these creatures, my dear, have their root in Being. They have Being as their abode, Being as their support. But how, verily, my dear, each of these three divinities, on reaching the human, becomes threefold has already been said.¹ When, my dear, a person departs from hence, his speech merges in his mind, his mind on his breath, his breath in heat and heat in the highest divinity.

From Pure Being arises fire, from fire water and from water earth. In speech the element of fire predominates, in life-breath the element of water; in mind the element of earth. When a person deceases, his speech is merged in the mind. His voice fails though his mind continues to function. When the mind merges in life, the mental activity ceases. When life merges in heat, when we are in doubt about a man's condition, whether he is alive or dead, we feel the body. If it is warm, he is alive; if not he is dead. Fire is then taken up in the highest Being. If we depart from this life with our thoughts merged in the Supreme we reach Pure Being; otherwise, we enter the world of becoming.

7. sa ya eṣo'ṇimā aitaḍ ātmyam, idaṁ sarvam, tat satyam, sa ātmā: tat tvam asi, śvetaketo, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatv iti, tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

7. That which is the subtle essence (the root of all) this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

tat tvam asi: that art thou. This famous text emphasises the divine nature of the human soul, the need to discriminate between the essential self and the accidents with which it is confused and the fetters by which it is bound. He who knows only what is of the body or mind knows the things that may be his but not himself. The text 'That art thou' applies to the inward person, antaḥ puruṣa, and not to the empirical soul with its name and family descent.

'What I am, that is he; what he is, that am I.'

See Aitareya Āraṇyaka, II. 2. 4. 6.

Jābāla Up. has the following: tvam vā aham asmi bhagavo devate aham vā tvam asi. 'I am thou, O great God, and thou art I.'

R interprets tat tvam asi as affirming that the principle of God is common to both the universe and the individual. That means God having the entire universe as his body, thou means God having the individual soul as his body. The principle of God is common to both.

In the Jaiminiya Upaniṣad Brāhmaṇa (III. 14. 1-5) when the deceased reaches the Sun-door, the question is asked, Who art thou? If he answers by a personal or a family name, he is subject to the law of karma. If he responds 'Who I am (is) the light thou (art). As such have I come to thee, the heavenly light.' Prajā-pati replies: 'Who thou art, that same am I; who I am that same art thou. Enter in.'

Rūmī speaks to us of the man who knocked at his friend's door and was asked, 'Who art thou?' He answered 'I.' 'Begone,' said his friend. After a year's suffering and separation he came and knocked again, and when asked the same question, replied, 'It is Thou art at the door,' and received the reply, 'Since thou art I, come in, O myself.' Mathnavi, I. 3056-3065.

Section 9

THE INDWELLING SPIRIT

1. yathā, saumya, madhu madhukṛto nistiṣṭhanti, nānātyayānām vṛkṣāṇām rasān samavahāram ekatām rasam gamayanti.

1. Just as, my dear, the bees prepare honey by collecting the essences (juices) of different trees and reducing them into one essence.

The son's difficulty is anticipated. If creatures reach Pure Being every day when they fall into sleep, how is it that they do not know that they attain that condition every day?

2. te yathā tatra na vivekaṁ labhante, amuṣyāhaṁ vṛkṣasya raso' smi, amuṣyāhaṁ vṛkṣasya rasosmṛti, evam eva khalu, saumya, imāḥ sarvāḥ prajāḥ sati sampadya na viduḥ, sati sampadyāmaha iti.

2. And as these (juices) possess no discrimination (so that they might say) 'I am the essence of this tree, I am the essence of that tree,' even so, indeed, my dear, all these creatures though they reach Being do not know that they have reached the Being.

3. ta iha vyāghro vā simho vā vṛko vā varāho vā kīto vā paṭaṅgo vā dāṁśo vā maśako vā yad yad bhavanti, tad ābhavanti.

3. Whatever they are in this world, tiger or lion or wolf or boar or worm or fly or gnat or mosquito, that they become.

In other words, as they reach Pure Being without being conscious of it they return to their special forms.

4. sa ya eṣo'ṇimā aitadātmyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, tat satyaṁ, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatv iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

4. That which is the subtle essence, this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

1. imāḥ, saumya, nadyaḥ purastāt prācyaḥ syandante, paścāt pratīcyaḥ tāḥ samudrāt samudraṁ evāpiyanti, sa samudra eva bhavati, tā yathā tatra na viduḥ, iyaṁ ahaṁ asmi, iyaṁ ahaṁ asmīti.

1. These rivers, my dear, flow the eastern toward the east, the western toward the west. They go just from sea to sea. They become the sea itself. Just as these rivers while there do not know 'I am this one,' 'I am that one.'

from sea to sea: the clouds lift up the water from the sea to the sky and send it back as rain to the sea.

2. evam eva khalu, saumya, imāḥ sarvāḥ prajāḥ sata āgamyā na viduḥ, sata āgacchāmaha iti, ta iha vyāghro vā simho vā, vṛko vā, varāho vā, kīto vā, paṭaṅgo vā, dāṁśo vā, maśako vā, yad yad bhavanti tad ābhavanti.

2. In the same manner, my dear, all these creatures even though they have come forth from Being do not know that 'we have come forth from Being.' Whatever they are in this world, tiger or lion or wolf or boar or worm or fly or gnat or mosquito that they become.

3. sa eṣo'ṇimā aitad ātmyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, tat satyaṁ, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatu iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

3. That which is the subtle essence, this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

1. asya, saumya, mahato vṛkṣasya yo mūle'bhyāhanyāt, jīvan sravet; yo madhye'bhyāhanyāt, jīvan sravet yo'gre'bhyāhanyāt, jīvan sravet sa eṣa jīvenā'tmanānuprabhūtaḥ pepīyamāno modamānas tiṣṭhati.

1. Of this mighty tree, my dear, if someone should strike at the root it would bleed but still live: if someone should strike at the middle, it would bleed but still live. If someone should strike at the top, it would bleed but still live. Being pervaded by its living self, it stands firm, drinking in its moisture (which nourishes it) and rejoicing.

2. asya yad ekāṁ śākhāṁ jīvo jahāti, atha sā śuśyati, dvitīyāṁ jahāti, atha sā śuśyati, tṛtīyāṁ jahāti, atha sā śuśyati, sarvaṁ jahāti sarvaḥ śuśyati, evam eva khalu, saumya, viddhi iti hovāca.

2. If the life leaves one branch of it, then it dries up; if it leaves a second, then that dries up; if it leaves a third, then that dries up. If it leaves the whole, the whole dries up. Even so, indeed, my dear, understand,' said he.

According to this view trees are not insentient. cetanāvantah sthāvarāḥ. Ś.

3. jīvāpetam vāva kiledaṁ mriyate, na jīvo mriyata iti, sa ya eṣo' nīmā aitat ātmyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, tat satyam, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatu iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

3. Verily, indeed, this body dies, when deprived of the living self, the living self does not die. That which is the subtle essence this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

Section 12

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE NYAGRODHA TREE

1. nyagrodha-phalam ata āharet; idam, bhagavaḥ, iti; bhinddhīti; bhinnam, bhagavaḥ, iti; kim atra paśyasīti; anṛya ivemā dhānāḥ, bhagavaḥ, iti; āsām āṅgaikām bhinddhīti; bhinnā, bhagavaḥ, iti; kim atra paśyasīti; na kim cana, bhagavaḥ, iti.

1. 'Bring hither a fruit of that nyagrodha tree.' 'Here it is, Venerable Sir.' 'Break it.' 'It is broken, Venerable Sir.' 'What do you see there?' 'These extremely fine seeds, Venerable Sir.' 'Of these, please break one.' 'It is broken, Venerable Sir.' 'What do you see there?' 'Nothing at all, Venerable Sir.'

The teacher explains how the world which has name and form arises from Pure Being which is subtle and does not possess name and form.

2. taṁ hovāca yaṁ vai, saumya, etam aṇimānam na nibhālayase, etasya vai, saumya, eṣo'ṇimna evam mahān nyagrodhas tiṣṭhati, śrddhatsva, saumya.

2. Then he said to him, 'My dear, that subtle essence which you do not perceive, verily, my dear, from that very essence this great nyagrodha tree exists. Believe me, my dear.'

The lesson of the illustration is that the cosmic process with its names and forms arises from the subtle essence of Pure Being: sata evaṇimnaḥ sthūlam nāma-rūpādīmat kāryam jagad utpannam. Ś.

3. sa ya eṣo'ṇimā, aitat ātmyam idam sarvam, tat satyam, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatv iti; tathā, saumya, iti; hovāca.

3. That which is the subtle essence, this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

Section 13

ILLUSTRATION OF SALT AND WATER

1. lavaṇam etad udake'vadhāya, aṭha mā prātar upasīdathā iti; sa ha tathā cakāra; taṁ hovāca: yad doṣa lavaṇam udake'- vādihāḥ, aṅga tad āhareti, tadd hāvamṛśya na viveda; yathā vilīnam, evam.

1. Place this salt in the water and come to me in the morning. Then he did so. Then he said to him, 'That salt you placed in the water last evening, please bring it hither.' Having looked for it he found it not, as it was completely dissolved.

This section attempts an answer to the difficulty that if Pure Being is the essence of all that exists, why it is not perceived.

2. aṅgāsyāntād ācāmeti; katham iti; lavaṇam iti; madhyād ācāmeti, katham iti; lavaṇam iti; antād ācāmeti, katham iti; lavaṇam iti; abhiprāśyaitad atha mopāsīdathā iti; tadd ha tathā cakāra, tac-chaśvat saṁvartate; tam hovāca: atra vāva kila sat, saumya, na nibhālayase, atraiva kila.

2. 'Please take a sip of it from this end.' He said, 'How is it?' 'Salt.' 'Take a sip from the middle. How is it?' 'Salt.' 'Take a sip from the other end. How is it?' 'Salt!' 'Throw it away and come to me.' He did so. It is always the same. Then he said to him, 'Verily, indeed, my dear, you do not perceive Pure Being here. Verily, indeed, it is here.'

As we are able to perceive salt in the water though not by means of touch and sight even so we will be able to perceive Pure Being by other means, upāyāntareṇa, though it is not obvious to our senses.

3. sa ya eṣo'ṇimā aitaḍ ātmyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, tat satyam, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatu iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

3. That which is the subtle essence this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

Section 14

THE NEED FOR A TEACHER

1. yathā, saumya, puruṣam gandhārebhyo'bhinaddhākṣam ānīya tam tato'tijane visṛjet, sa yathā tatra prāṇ vodaṁ vātharān vā pratyāṇ vā pradharmāyitābhinaddhākṣa ānīto'bhinaddhākṣo visṛṣṭaḥ.

1. Just as, my dear, one might lead a person away from the Gandhāras with his eyes bandaged and abandon him in a place where there are no human beings, and just as that person would shout towards the east or the north or the south or the west, 'I have been led here with my eyes bandaged, I have been left here with my eyes bandaged.'

2. tasya yathābhinahanam pramucya prabrūyāt, etān diśam gandhārāḥ, etān diśān vrajati, sa grāmād grāmam pṛcchan paṇḍito medhāvī gandhārān evopasampādyeta evam evehācāryavān puruṣo veda, tasya tāvad eva cīram yāvan na vimokṣye, atha sampatsya iti.

2. And as, if one released his bandage and told him, 'In that direction are the Gandhārās, go in that direction; thereupon, being informed and capable of judgment, he would by asking (his way) from village to village arrive at Gandhāra; in exactly the same manner does one here who has a teacher know, "I shall remain here only so long as I shall not be released (from ignorance). Then I shall reach perfection."' ācāryavān: one who has a teacher. See Kaṭha II. 8.

Bhīṣma says (to Yudhiṣṭhira) that the preceptor is superior even to the father or the mother:

gurur gariyān pūṛto mātṛtaś'ceti me matiḥ. M.B. Sānti Parva, 108. 17.¹

A teacher is regarded as being as essential as the remover of a bandage of a blindfolded man who wishes to find his way home. On several occasions Yājñavalkya teaches persons such as his wife informally and without insisting on prior initiation. Aśvapati teaches the Brāhmanas who come to him freely.

Ś makes out that our real home is sat or Being. Our eyes are bandaged with desires for worldly possessions which blind us. When we suddenly meet a person who knows the Self, whose own bonds have been broken, when he points the way, we feel that we are not mere creatures of the world but we belong to the ultimate reality. We are released, according to Ś, when the body reared by our past deeds falls off. While the deeds performed after the attainment of saving knowledge do not bind us, those acts which have resulted in this embodiment have to exhaust their consequences.

¹ Alexander was one day asked, 'Why do you show greater respect and reverence to your instructor than you do to your father?' He answered, 'From my teacher I obtain life eternal; and from my father a perishable existence. Moreover, my father brought me down from heaven to earth but Aristotle has raised me from earth to heaven.' History of the Early Kings of Persia, by Mir Khwānd, E.T. by David Shea (1832), p. 423. According to Plutarch, 'Aristotle was the man Alexander admired in his younger years and as he himself averred, he had no less affection for him than for his own father; from the one he derived the blessing of life; from the other the blessing of a good life.'

3. sa ya eṣo'nimā aitaḍ ātmyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, tat satyam, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatu iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

3. That which is the subtle essence this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it, my dear,' said he.

Section 15

THE ORDER OF MERGENCE

1. puruṣam, saumya, utopatāpinam jñātayaḥ paryupāsate, jñāsi mām, jñāsi mām iti; tasya yāvan na vān manasi sampadyate, manaḥ prāṇe, prāṇaḥ tejasi, tejaḥ parasyām devatāyām, tāvaj jñāti.

1. Also, my dear, around a sick (dying) person his relatives gather and ask, 'Do you know me?' 'Do you know me?' So long as his voice is not merged in mind, mind in breath, breath in heat and heat in the highest deity, so long he knows (them).

2. atha yadā'sya vān manasi sampadyate, manaḥ prāṇe, prāṇaḥ tejasi, tejaḥ parasyām devatāyām, atha na jñāti.

2. Then when his voice is merged in mind, his mind in heat, and heat in the highest deity, then he does not know (them).

See VI. 8. 6.

Both those who know the truth and those who do not know the truth reach the ultimate Reality at death. The former do not return to embodied life while the latter do.

Ś denies that he who knows passes at death through the artery of the head to the sun and then to the Real. At death he reaches the Real straight.

3. sa ya eṣo'nimā aitaḍ ātmyam idaṁ sarvaṁ, tat satyam, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketu, iti; bhūya eva mā, bhagavān, vijñāpayatu iti; tathā, saumya, iti hovāca.

3. That which is the subtle essence this whole world has for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. 'Please, Venerable Sir, instruct me still further.' 'So be it,' said he.

Section 16

ILLUSTRATION OF THE ORDEAL

1. puruṣam, saumya, uta hasta-gṛhītā ānayanti, apāhārṣīt, steyam akārṣīt, paraśum asmai tapata iti; sa yadi tasya kartā bhavati, tata evānṛtam ātmānam kurute, so'nṛtābhisandho'nṛte-nā'tmānam antardhāya paraśum taptam pratigṛhṇāti, sa dahyate'tha hanyate.

1. Also, my dear, they lead up a man seized by the hand, saying, 'He has stolen, he has committed a theft, heat the axe for him.' If he is the doer thereof (i.e. if he has committed the theft) then he makes himself untrue (a liar). Being given to untruth, covering himself by untruth he takes hold of the heated axe and is burnt. Then he is killed.

At the time of this Upaniṣad belief in ordeals should have prevailed. The guilty man is burnt and killed by grasping the heated axe while the innocent man is not affected by grasping it. So also the knower is not repelled by the Real while the non-knower returns to embodied life.

This passage gives an illustration to indicate how he who knows, when he reaches the Real, does not return to embodied life, while he who does not know, when he reaches the Real returns.

2. atha yadi tasyākartā bhavati, tata eva satyam ātmānam kurute, sa satyābhisandhaḥ satyenā'tmānam antardhāya paraśum taptam pratigṛhṇāti, sa na dahyate, atha mucyate.

2. But if he is not the doer thereof, thereupon he makes himself true. Being given to truth, covering himself by truth, he takes hold of the heated axe he is not burnt. Then he is released.

It is a universal principle that the truth will make us free. John VIII. 32. Truth is not merely theoretical but practical. yathā vādī tathā kāri: Devas and Asuras are distinguished by their respective adherence to truth and untruth.

3. sa yathā tatra nā dāhyeta aitaḥ ātmyam idam sarvam, tat

satyam, sa ātmā, tat tvam asi, śvetaketo, iti; tadd hāsya vijajñāva iti vijajñāva iti.

3. And as in this case he would not be burnt, thus has all this that for its self. That is the true. That is the self. That art thou, Śvetaketu. Then he understood it from him, yea, he understood.

Madhva makes the text read, atat tvam asi—Thou art not that, and argues that these passages aim at establishing the difference between the individual and the Universal Self.

CHAPTER VII

Section I

SANATKUMĀRA'S INSTRUCTION TO NĀRADA
PROGRESSIVE WORSHIP OF BRAHMAN: NAME

1. adhīhi, bhagavaḥ, iti hopasasāda sanatkumāraṁ nāradaḥ, taṁ hovāca: yad vettha tena mopasīda, tatas ta ūrdhvaṁ vakṣyāmīti, sa hovāca.

1. Nārada approached Sanatkumāra and said, 'Teach, me, Venerable Sir,' He said, 'Come to me with (tell me) what you know. Then I will teach you what is beyond that.'

See T.U. III. 1.

The story is introduced to show that the supreme good cannot be accomplished without a knowledge of the Self: niratiśaya-prāpti-sādhana-tvam ātma-vidyāyā. Ś.

Nārada is he who gives the knowledge of the Supreme Self, according to Śabda-kalpa-druma: nāraṁ dadāti iti nāradaḥ; nāraṁ param-ātma-viśayakaṁ jñānaṁ.

Sanatkumāra is represented in Indian tradition as the eternal child. Brahma-vaivarta Purāṇa makes out that he is eternally a child of five years, who did not undergo the usual saṁskāras, a pupil of the very God, Nārāyaṇa; vayasā pañca-hāyanaḥ, acūḍo anupavitaś ca veda-sandhyā-vihīnakaḥ yasya nārāyaṇo guruḥ.

Harivaṁśa confirms this view. 'Know me only to be a child just as I was born and so the name sanatkumāra was given to me':

yathotpannas tathavāhaṁ kumāra iti vidāhi mām, tasmāt sanatkumāreṇi mām aitan me pratiṣṭhitam.

The learned Nārada goes to the unlearned Sanatkumāra for instruction. For self-realisation, practice of virtue and love to all creation are necessary more than scriptural lore. Vāmana Purāṇa makes out that Sanatkumāra is the son of virtue by the wife of non-violence:

dharmaśya bhāryāhimsākhyā, tasyām putra-catuṣṭayam jyeṣṭhaḥ sanatkumāro' bhūt.

2. ṛgvedam, bhagavaḥ, adhyemi, yaṅurvedam sāmavedam, atharvaṇam caturtham, itihāsa-purāṇam pañcamam, vedānām vedam, pitṛyam, rāśim, daivaṁ, nidhim, vākovākyaṁ, ekāyanam, deva-vidyām, brahma-vidyām, bhūta-vidyām, kṣatra-vidyām, nakṣatra-vidyām, sarpa-devajana-vidyām, etat, bhagavaḥ, adhyemi.

2. Venerable Sir, I know the Ṛg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, Atharvaṇa as the fourth (Veda), the epic and the ancient lore as the fifth, the Veda of the Vedas (i.e. grammar), propitiation of the Fathers, the science of numbers (mathematics), the science of portents, the science of time (chronology), logic, ethics and politics, the science of the gods, the science of sacred knowledge, the science of elemental spirits, the science of weapons, astronomy, the science of serpents and the fine arts. This, Venerable Sir, I know.

deva-vidyā: nirukta or exegetics. Ś; science of the worship of gods. R.

3. so'ham, bhagavaḥ, mantra-vid evāsmi nā'tma-vit; śrutam hyeva me bhagavad-dṛṣebhyaḥ, tarati śokam ātma-vid iti; so'ham, bhagavaḥ, śocāmi, tam mā, bhagavān, sokasya pāram tārayatv iti; tam hovāca yad vai kiñ caitad adhyagīṣṭhāḥ, nāmaivaitat.

3. But, Venerable Sir, I am only like one knowing the words and not a knower of Self. It has been heard by me from those like you that he who knows the Self crosses over sorrow. Such a sorrowing one am I, Venerable Sir. Do you, Venerable Sir, help me to cross over to the other side of sorrow. To him he then said, 'Verily, whatever you have here learned is only a name.'

4. nāma vā ṛg-vedo yajur-vedaḥ sāma-veda atharvaṇaś caturthā itihāsa-purāṇaḥ pañcamo vedānām vedāḥ pītr̥yo rāśir daivo, nidhir vākovākyaṃ, ekāyanam, deva-vidyā, brahma-vidyā, bhūta-vidyā, kṣatra-vidyā, nakṣatra-vidyā, sarpa-devajana-vidyā, nāmaivaitat, nāmopāssveti.

4. Verily, a name is Ṛg veda (so also) Yajur Veda, Sāma Veda, Atharvana as the fourth, the epic and the ancient lore as the fifth, the Veda of the Vedas, propitiation of the fathers, the science of numbers, the science of portents, the science of time, logic, ethics and politics, the science of gods, the science of weapons, the science of serpents and the fine arts. All this is mere name. Meditate on the name.

5. sa yo nāma brahmety upāste yāvan nāmno gatam, tatrāsyā yathā kāma-cāro bhavati yo nāma brahmety upāste: 'sti, bhagavaḥ, nāmno bhūya iti; nāmno vāva bhūyo'stīti; tan me bhagavān bravītv'iti.

5. He who meditates on name as Brahman becomes independent so far as name goes, he who meditates on name as Brahman. 'Is there, Venerable Sir, anything greater than the name?' 'There is (something) greater than the name.' 'Tell that to me, Venerable Sir.'

kāma cārin: He can pass in and out at will. See T.U. III. 10. 5; John X. 9. It is possible for those who live in the spirit to assume any form they please.

Section 2

SPEECH

I. vāg vā va nāmno bhūyasī, vāg vā ṛg-vedam vijñāpayati, yajur-vedam sāma-vedam atharvaṇam caturtham iti hāsa-purāṇam pañcamam vedānām vedam, pītryam rāṣim daivam nidhim vākovākyaṃ, ekāyanam, deva-vidyām, brahma-vidyām, bhūta-vidyām, kṣatra-vidyām, nakṣatra-vidyam, sarpa-devajana-vidyām divam ca pṛthivīm ca vāyūṃ cākāśam cāpas ca tejaś ca devāṃs ca manuṣyāṃs ca paśūṃs ca vayāṃsi ca tṛṇa vanaspatīṃ śvāpadāny ākīṭa-pataṅga-pipīlakam dharmam cādharmaṃ ca satyam cānytam ca sādhu cāsādhu ca hṛdayajñam cāhṛdayajñam ca; yad vai vān nā bhaviṣyat na dharmo nādharmā vyajñāpayiṣyat, na satyam nānytam na sādhu nāsādhu na hṛdayajño nāhṛdayajño vāg evaitat sarvaṃ vijñāpayati, vācam upāssveti.

1. Speech assuredly is greater than name. Speech, verily, makes known the Ṛg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharva Veda as the fourth, legend and ancient lore as the fifth, the Veda of the Vedas (i.e. grammar), the rites of the Fathers, mathematics, the science of portents, the science of time (chronology), logic, ethics and politics, the science of the gods, the science of sacred knowledge (i.e. the Vedas), the science of the elementals, the science of rulership, the science of the stars (astronomy), the science of snake charming, of the fine arts as well as heaven and earth, air and space, water and heat, gods and men, beasts and birds, grass and trees, animals together with worms, flies and ants, the right and the wrong, the true and the false, the good and the bad, the pleasing and the unpleasing. Verily, if there were no speech neither right nor wrong would be known, neither the true nor the false, neither the good nor the bad, neither the pleasing nor the unpleasing. Speech, indeed, makes all this known. Meditate upon speech.

2. sa yo vācam brahmety upāste, yāvad vāco gatam, tatṛāsyā yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, yo vācam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavah, vāco bhūya iti; vāco vāva bhūyo' stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on speech as Brahman becomes independent so far as speech reaches, he who meditates on speech as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than speech?' 'Yes, there is something greater than speech.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 3

MIND

1. mano vā va vāco bhūyah, yathā vai dve vāmalake dve vā kole dvau vākṣau muṣṭir annubhavati, evaṁ vācaṁ ca nāma ca mano 'nubhavati, sa yadā manasā manasyati, mantrān adhīyeyeti, athādhīte, karmāṇi kurvīyeyeti, atha kurute, putrāṁś ca paśūṁś ceccheyeti, atheccchate, imaṁ ca lokam, amuṁ ceccheyeti, atheccchate; mano hy ātmā, mano hi lokah, mano hi brahma; mana upāssveti.

1. Mind, assuredly, is greater than speech. For as the closed fist holds two āmalaka or two kola or two akṣa fruits so does mind hold speech and name. For when one through mind has in mind to learn the sacred hymns, then he learns them. If he has mind to perform sacred works, then he performs them. When he has in mind to desire for sons and cattle, then he desires them. When he has in mind to desire this world and yonder, then he desires them. Mind is, indeed, the self, mind is, indeed, the world, mind is indeed Brahman. Meditate on the mind.

manas is the internal organ (antah-karāṇa) endowed with reflection. It has for its function determination, decision, choice. It is said to be the self because the self has the character of the doer and the enjoyer only when the mind functions: ātmanah kṛtytvam bhoktytvam ca sati manasi nānyatheti, mano hy ātmnety ucyate. Ś.

2. sa yo mano brahmety upāste, yāvan manaso gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati yo mano brahmety upāste; asti bhagavaḥ, manaso bhūya iti; manaso vā va bhūyo'stiti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on mind as Brahman becomes independent so far as mind reaches, he who meditates on mind as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than mind?' 'Yes, there is something greater than mind.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 4

WILL

1. saṁkalpo vā va manaso bhūyān, yadā vai saṁkalpayate atha manasyati, atha vācam irayati tām u nāmnirayati, nāmni mantrā ekam bhavanti, mantreṣu karmāṇi.

1. Will, assuredly, is greater than mind. For when one wills, then one reflects, one utters speech and then one utters it in name. The sacred hymns are included in name and sacred works in the sacred hymns.

saṁkalpa: will. It is said to be an activity of mind. It is, like thinking, an activity of the inner organ: antaḥ-karaṇa-vṛtti. Ś. It has also reflective aspects besides the volitional. What is mechanical process in the inorganic world, stimulation in the organic is motivation in human beings: mantreṣu karmāṇi. See M.U. I. 2. 1.

2. All these, verily, centre in the will, have the will as their soul, abide in will. Heaven and earth were formed through will, air and ether were formed through will; water and heat were formed through will. Through their having been willed, rain becomes willed. Through rain having been willed, food becomes willed. Through food having been willed, living creatures are willed. Through living creatures having been willed sacred hymns become willed. Through sacred hymns having been willed, sacred works become willed. Through sacred works having been willed, the world becomes willed. Through the world having been willed, everything becomes willed. Such is will. Meditate on will.

2. sa yah saṁkalpam brahmety upāste klṣṭān vai sa lokān dhruvān dhruvāḥ pratiṣṭhitān pratiṣṭhito'vyathamānān avyatha māno'bhisidhyati, yāvat saṁkalpasya gatam tatrāsyā yathā kāmācāro bhavati, yah saṁkalpam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, saṁkalpād bhūya iti; saṁkalpād vāva bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on will as Brahman, he verily obtains the worlds he has willed, himself being permanent the permanent worlds, himself unwavering the unwavering worlds. As far as will goes, so far is he independent, he who meditates on will as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than will?' 'Yes, there is something greater than will.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 5

THOUGHT

1. cittam vā va saṁkalpād bhūyaḥ, yadā vai cetayate'tha saṁkalpayate atha manasyati, atha vācam īrayati, tām u nāmni-rayati, nāmni mantrā ekam bhavanti, mantreṣu karmāṇi.

1. Thought, assuredly, is more than will. Verily when one thinks, then he wills, then he reflects, then he utters speech and he utters it in name. The sacred hymns become one (are included) in name and sacred works in the sacred hymns.

Thought is said to be higher than will. See Maitrī VI. 30.
See Dīgha Nikāya I. 21.

2. tāni ha vā etāni cittaikāyanāni cittātmāni citte pratiṣṭhitāni, tasmād yady api bahu-vid acitto bhavati, nāyam astīty evainam āhuh, yad ayaṁ veda, yad vā ayaṁ vidvān nettham acittāḥ syād iti, atha yady alpa-vic cittavān bhavati, tasmā evota śuśrūṣante, cittam hy evaiśām ekāyanam, cittam ātmā, cittam pratiṣṭhā; cittam upāssveti.

2. Verily, all these centre in thought, have thought for their goal and abide in thought. Therefore, even if a man be possessed of much learning, but is unthinking, people say of him that he is nobody, whatever he may know. Verily, if he did know he would not be so unthinking. On the other hand, if he is thoughtful, even though he knows little, to him people are desirous of listening. Truly indeed thought is the centre of all these, thought is their soul, thought is their support. Meditate on thought.

3. sa yaś cittam brahmety upāste, cittān vai sa lokān dhruvān

dhruvaḥ pratiṣṭhitān pratiṣṭhito'vyathamānān avyathamāno 'bhisidhyati, yāvac cittasya gatam, tatrāsyā yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, yaś cittam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, cittād bhūya iti; cittād vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravitu iti.

3. He who meditates on thought as Brahman, he verily obtains the worlds he has thought, himself being permanent the permanent worlds, himself established, the established worlds, himself unwavering the unwavering worlds. As far as thought goes, so far is he independent, he who meditates on thought as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than thought?' 'Yes, there is something greater than thought.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 6

CONTEMPLATION

1. dhyanam vā va cittād bhūyaḥ, dhyāyatīva pṛthivī, dhyāyatīvāntarikṣam, dhyāyatīva dyauḥ, dhyāyantīvāpoḥ, dhyāyantīva parvatāḥ, dhyāyantīva deva-manuṣyāḥ, tasmād ya iha manuṣyānām mahattvam prāpnuvanti dhyānāpādānśā ivaiva te bhavanti, atha ye'lpāḥ kalahinaḥ piśunā upavādinā te atha ye prabhavaḥ dhyānāpādānśā ivaiva te bhavanti; dhyānam upāssveti.

1. Contemplation, assuredly, is greater than thought. The earth contemplates as it were. The atmosphere contemplates as it were. The heaven contemplates as it were. The waters contemplate as it were; the mountains contemplate as it were. Gods and men contemplate as it were. Therefore he among men here attains greatness, he seems to have obtained a share of (the reward of) contemplation. Now the small people are quarrelsome, abusive and slandering, the superior men seem to have obtained a share of (the reward of) contemplation, Meditate on contemplation.

dhyaṇa: contemplation. It is the concentration of all our thoughts on one subject, ekāgratā. Ś.

Even as men who contemplate acquire repose, become firm and established, the earth, etc., are said to be firm and established, as the result of their contemplation.

deva-manuṣyāḥ: gods and men or godlike men for men endowed with inward peace are not devoid of divine qualities: deva-samā devamanuṣyāḥ śamādiguṇa-sampannā manuṣyā deva-svarūpaṁ na jahātīty arthaḥ. Ś.

2. sa yo dhyānam brahmety upāste, yāvad dhyānasya gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati yo dhyānam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, dhyānād bhūya iti; dhyānād vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītv iti.

2. He who meditates on contemplation as Brahman, so far as contemplation goes so far is he independent, he who meditates on contemplation as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than contemplation?' 'Yes, there is something greater than contemplation.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 7

UNDERSTANDING

1. viññānam vā va dhyānād bhūyaḥ, viññānena va ṛg-vedam vijanāti, yajur-vedam sāma-vedam ātharvaṇam caturtham, itihāsa-purāṇam pañcamam, vedānam vedam, pitṛyam, rāsim, daivam, nidhim, vākovākyaṁ, ekāyanam, deva-vidyām, brahma-vidyām, bhūta-vidyām, kṣatra-vidyām, nakṣatra-vidyām, sarpa-devajana, vidyām, divam ca pṛthivīm ca vāyum cākāśam, cāpas ca tejaś ca, devāṁś ca manuṣyāṁś ca paśūṁś ca vayāṁsi ca ṛṇa-vanaspatīṁśvāpadāny ākūta-patāṅga-pīpīlakam dharmam cādharmaṁ ca satyam cāṇṛtam ca sādhu cāsādhu ca hṛdayajñam cāhṛdayajñam cānnam ca rasam cemaṁ ca lokam amum ca viññānenaiva vijanāti, viññānam upāssveti.

1. Understanding, assuredly, is greater than contemplation. Verily, by understanding one understands the Ṛg. Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharva Veda as the fourth, legend and ancient lore as the fifth, the Veda of the Vedas (i.e. grammar), the rites of the fathers, mathematics, the science of portents, the science of time (chronology), logic, ethics and politics, the science of the gods, the science of sacred knowledge (i.e. the Vedas), the science of the elementals, the science of rulership, the science of the stars (astronomy), the science of snake charming, of the fine arts as well as heaven and earth, air and space, water and heat, gods and men, beasts and birds, grass and trees, animals together with worms, flies and ants, the right and the wrong, the true and the false, the good and the bad, the pleasing and the unpleasing, the food and the drink (or taste), this world and yonder, all this one understands just with understanding. Meditate on understanding.

2. sa yo vijñānam brahmety upāste, vijñānavato vai sa lokāñ-jñānavato'bhīsidhyati, yāvād vijñānasya gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, yo vijñānam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, vijñānād bhūya iti; vijñānād vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on understanding as Brahman, he verily, attains the worlds of understanding, of knowledge. As far as understanding goes, so far he is independent, he who meditates on understanding as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than understanding?' 'Yes, there is something greater than understanding.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 8

STRENGTH

1. balam vā va vijñānād bhūyaḥ: api ha śataṁ vijñānavatām eko balavān ākampayate, sa yadā balī bhavati, athotihātā bhavati uttiṣṭhan paricaritā bhavati, paricaran upasattā bhavati, upasidan draṣṭā bhavati, śrotā bhavati, mantā bhavati, boddhā bhavati, kartā bhavati, vijñātā bhavati, balena vai pṛthivī tiṣṭhati, balenāntarikṣam, balena dyauḥ, balena parvatāḥ, balena deva-manuṣyāḥ, balena paśavaś ca vayāmsi ca ṛṇa-vanaspatayaḥ śvāpadāny ākīṭa-patāṅga-pipīlakam, balena lokas tiṣṭhati; balam upāssveti.

1. Strength, assuredly, is greater than understanding. One strong man, indeed, causes a hundred men of understanding to tremble. When one becomes strong, he becomes a rising man. If he rises he serves (wise people). If he serves, he draws near (by becoming attached as a pupil). By drawing near, he becomes a seer, becomes a hearer, becomes a thinker, becomes a perceiver, becomes a doer, becomes an understander. By strength, verily, the earth stands, by strength the atmosphere, by strength the heaven; by strength the mountains, by strength the gods and men (or god-men), by strength beasts and birds, grass and trees, animals together with worms, flies and ants. By strength the world stands. Meditate on strength.

strength: spiritual power.

2. sa yo balam brahmety upāste, yāvad balasya gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, yo balam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, balād bhūya iti; balād vā va bhūyostīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on strength as Brahman—as far as strength goes, so far he is independent, he who meditates on strength as Brahman. 'Is there anything, Venerable Sir, greater than strength?' 'Yes, there is something greater than strength.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 9

FOOD

1. annam vā va balād bhūyaḥ, tasmād yady api daśa rātrīn na'snīyāt, yady u ha jīvet, atha vā adraṣṭā śrotā mantā boddhā kartā viññātā bhavati; atha 'nnasyāy'e draṣṭā bhavati, śrotā bhavati, mantā bhavati, boddhā bhavati, kartā bhavati, viññātā bhavati; annam upāssveti.

1. Food, verily, is greater than strength. Therefore, if anyone does not eat for ten days, even though he might live, yet, verily, he becomes a non-seer, a non-hearer, a non-thinker, a non-understander, a non-doer, a non-knower. But on the entrance of food (when he gets food), he becomes a seer, he becomes a hearer, he becomes a thinker, he becomes an understander, he becomes a doer, he becomes a knower. Meditate on food.

2. sa yo'nnam brahmety upāste, annavato vai sa lokān pānavato bhisidhyati. yāvad annasya gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati yo'nnam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, annād bhūya iti; annād vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on food as Brahman, he, verily, attains the worlds of food and drink. As far as food reaches, so far he who meditates on food as Brahman, has unlimited freedom.

'Venerable Sir, is there anything greater than food?' Yes, there is something greater than food.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section IO

WATER

1. āpo vā va annād bhūyasyaḥ, tasmād yadā suvṛṣṭir na bhavati, vyādhyante prāṇāḥ, annam kanīyo bhaviṣyatīti, atha yadā suvṛṣṭir bhavati, ānandinaḥ prāṇā bhavanti, annam bahu bhaviṣyatīti, āpa evemā mūrtāḥ yeyam pṛthivī, yad antarikṣam, yad dyauh, yat parvatāḥ, yad deva-manusyaḥ, yat paśavaś ca vayāmsi ca tṛṇa-vanaspatayaḥ, śvapadāny ākūṭa-patāṅga-pipīla-kam, āpa evemā mūrtāḥ: āpa upāssveti.

1. Water, verily, is greater than food. Therefore when there is not good (sufficient) rain, living creatures sicken with the thought that food will become scarce. But when there is good rain, living creatures rejoice in the thought that food will become abundant. It is just water that assumes (different) forms of this earth, this atmosphere, this sky, the mountains, gods and men, beasts and birds, grass and trees, animals together with worms, flies and ants. Water indeed is all these forms. Meditate on water.

2. sa yo'po brahmety upāste, āpnoti sarvān kāmān, tṛptimān bhavati. yāvad apām gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati. yo'po brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, adbhyo bhūya iti; adbhyo vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītv iti.

2. He who meditates on water as Brahman, obtains all his desires and becomes satisfied. As far as water reaches so he who meditates on water as Brahman has unlimited freedom. 'Venerable Sir, is there anything greater than water?' 'Yes, there is something greater than water.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section II

HEAT

1. tejo vā va adbhyo bhūyaḥ, tasmād vā etad vāyur agrhyākāśam abhitapati, tad āhuḥ, niśocati, nitapati, varṣiṣyati vā iti, teja

eva tat pūrvam darśayitvā' thā' pah sṛjate. tad etad ūrdhvābhiś ca tiraścībhiś ca vidyudbhiḥ āhrādāś caranti; tasmād āhuḥ: vidyotate, stanayati, varṣiṣyati vā iti, teja eva tat pūrvam darśayitvā' thā' pah sṛjate: teja upāssveti.

1. Heat, verily, is greater than water. For it seizes hold of the wind and warms the ether. Then people say it is hot, it is burning hot, it will rain. Thus does heat show this sign first, and creates water. So with lightnings, flashing upwards and across the sky, thunders roll. Therefore people say, there is lightning, there is thunder, therefore it will rain. Heat, indeed, first indicates this and creates water. Meditate on heat.

We see the cause of heat first and then the effect of rain.

prasiddham hi loke kāraṇam abhyudyatam dṛṣṭavataḥ kāryam bhaviṣyātīti vijñānam. Ś.

2. sa yas tejo brahmety upāste, tejasvī vai sa tejasvato lokān bhāsvato' pahata-tamaskān abhisidhyati, yāvat tejaso gatam, tatrā'sya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, yas tejo brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, tejaso bhūya iti; tejaso vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītv iti.

2. He who meditates on heat as Brahman, he, verily, radiant himself, attains radiant, shining worlds, freed from darkness. As far as heat reaches, he who meditates on heat as Brahman, has unlimited freedom. 'Venerable Sir, is there anything greater than heat?' 'Yes, there is something greater than heat.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

Section 12

ETHER

1. ākāśo vā va tejaso bhūyān: ākāśe vai sūryā-candramasāv ubhau vidyun nakṣatrāṇy agniḥ, ākāśenāhvayati, ākāśena śṛnoti, ākāśena pratiśṛnoti, ākāśe ramate, ākāśe na ramate, ākāśe jāyate, ākāśam abhijāyate: ākāśam upāssveti.

1. Ether (or space), verily, is greater than fire. For in the ether exist both sun and moon, lightning, stars and fire. Through ether one calls, through ether one hears, through ether one answers. In ether one enjoys himself and in ether one does not enjoy himself. In space one is born and unto space one is born. Meditate on ether.

ākāśam abhijāyate. When born, the seed grows upward and not downward.

Ākāśa originally meant space through which one can pass or thrust one's finger. See Aitareya Brāhmaṇa III. 4. 2. 1; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa III. 3. 2. 19. The space between the sky and the earth when they separated became antarikṣa or atmosphere. It was empty and so got filled with air. Ākāśa is more than mere space. K.U. speaks of man being born from ākāśa as from a womb, I. 6.

2. sa ya ākāśam brahmety upāste, ākāśavato vai sa lokān prakāśavato' sambādhān urugāyavato' bhisidhyati, yāvad ākāśasya gatam, tatrāsyā yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, ya ākāśam brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, ākāśād bhūya iti; ākāśād vā va bhūyo' sīti; tan me, bhagavān bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on ether as Brahman, he verily attains the worlds of ether and of light, unconfined and wide extending. As far as ether goes, so far he who meditates on ether as Brahman, has unlimited freedom. 'Venerable Sir, is there anything greater than ether?' 'Yes, there is something greater than ether.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

asambādhān: unconfined, also free from pressure and pain:
sambādhō' nyo' nyapīḍā tad-rahitān asambādhān. Ś.

Section 13

MEMORY

1. smaro vā va ākāśād bhūyaḥ, tasmād yady api bahava āsīran asmarantaḥ, naiva te kāmāna śṛṇuyuh, na manvīran, na vijānīran yadā vā va te smareyuh, atha śṛṇuyuh, atha manvīran, atha vijānīran, smareṇa vai putrān vijānāti, smareṇa paśun: smaram upāssveti.

1. Memory, verily, is more than ether, therefore if many assemble and if they have no memory, indeed they would not hear any one at all, they would not think, they would not understand. But surely, if they remember then they would hear, then they would think, then they would understand. Through memory one discerns one's sons; through memory, one's cattle. Meditate on memory.

Memory is a quality of the inner organ, antaḥ-karāṇa-dharmah.

2. sa yaḥ smaram brahmety upāste, yāvat smarasya gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, yaḥ smaram brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, smarād bhūya iti; smarād vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on memory as Brahman—as far as memory reaches, so far he has unlimited freedom, he who meditates on memory as Brahman. 'Venerable Sir, is there anything greater than memory?' 'Yes, there is something greater than memory.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

1. āśā vā va smarād bhūyasī, āśeddho vai smaro mantrān adhīte karmāṇi kurute, putrāṁś ca paśūṁś cecchate, imam ca lokam amuṁ cecchate: āśām upāssveti.

1. Hope, assuredly, is greater than memory. When kindled by hope, memory learns the sacred hymns, performs sacrifices, desires sons and cattle, desires this world and the other. Meditate on hope.

āśā, craving, desire, trṣṇā, kāma Ś.

āśeddhaḥ: āśā-iddha āśayābhivardhitaḥ, roused by hope. Ś.

2. sa ya āśām brahmety upāste, āśayāsa sarve kāmāḥ samyadhyanti, amoghā hāsyāśiṣo bhavanti, yāvad āśāyā gatam, tatrāsya yathā kāma-cāro bhavati, ya āśām brahmety upāste; asti, bhagavaḥ, āśāyā bhūya iti; āśāyā vā va bhūyo'stīti; tan me, bhagavān, bravītu iti.

2. He who meditates on hope as Brahman, through hope all his desires are fulfilled, his prayers do not go in vain. As far as hope reaches, so far he has unlimited freedom, he who meditates on hope as Brahman. 'Venerable Sir, is there anything greater than hope?' 'Yes, there is something greater than hope.' 'Do, Venerable Sir, tell me that.'

āśiṣaḥ: prayers, prārthanāḥ. Ś.

Section 15

LIFE

1. prāṇo vā va āśāyā bhūyān, yathā vā arā nābhau samarpitāḥ, evam asmin prāṇe sarvaṁ samarpitam, prāṇaḥ prāṇena yāti, prāṇaḥ prāṇam dadāti, prāṇāya dadāti, prāṇo ha pitā, prāṇo mātā, prāṇo bhrātā, prāṇaḥ svasā, prāṇa ācāryaḥ, prāṇo brāhmaṇaḥ.

1. Life-breath, verily, is greater than hope. Even as the spokes are fastened in the hub, so on this life-breath all this is fastened. Life moves by the life-breath. Life-breath gives life, it gives (life) to a living creature. Life-breath is one's father, life-breath is one's mother, life-breath is one's brother, life-breath is one's sister, life-breath is one's teacher, life-breath is the Brāhmaṇa.

According to Ś prāṇa is the conscious self, prajñātman, which enters the body to reveal the whole variety of names and forms.

2. sa yadi pitaram vā mātaram vā bhrātaram vā svasāramvā ācāryam vā brāhmaṇam vā kimcid bhr̥ṣam iva pratyāha, dhik tvāstvīty evainam āhuḥ, pitrhā vai tvam asi, mātṛhā vai tvam asi, bhrātrhā vai tvam asi, svasṛhā vai tvam asi, ācāryahā vai tvam asi, brāhmaṇahā vai tvam aṣīti.

2. If one answers unworthily to a father or a mother, or a brother or a sister, or a teacher or a Brāhmaṇa, people say to him, shame on you, verily, you are a slayer of your father, verily, you are a slayer of your mother, verily, you are a slayer of your brother, verily, you are a slayer of your sister, verily, you are a slayer of your teacher, verily, you are a slayer of a Brāhmaṇa.

bhr̥ṣam : ananurūpam. Ś.

3. atha yady apy enān utkrānta-prāṇān śūlena samāsam vyatisandahet naivainam brūyuh, pitrhāsīti, na mātṛhāsīti, na bhrātrhāsīti, na svasṛhāsīti, na ācāryahāsīti, na brāhmaṇahāsīti.

3. But if, when the life breath has departed from them one shoves them together with a poker and burns up every bit of them, people would not say, 'you are a slayer of your father,' nor 'you are a slayer of your mother,' nor 'you are a slayer of your brother,' nor 'you are a slayer of your sister,' nor 'you are a slayer of your teacher,' nor 'you are a slayer of a Brāhmaṇa.'

utkrānta-prāṇān: tyakta-dehān. Ś.

The importance of prāṇa is brought out by positive and negative proofs, anvaya-vyatirekābhyām. Ś.

4. prāṇo hy evaitāni sarvāṇi bhavati, sa vā eṣa evaṁ paśyan, evaṁ manvānaḥ, evaṁ vijānann ativādī bhavati, tam ced brūyuh ativādy asīti, ativādy asmīti brūyāt, nāpahnvita.

4. Life-breath is all this. Verily, he who sees this, thinks this, understands this, becomes an excellent speaker. Even if people should say to him, you are an excellent speaker, he should say, 'I am an excellent speaker.' He should not deny it.

ativādin. He goes beyond all declarations made previously beginning with name and ending with hope, and realises that prāṇa or the conscious self is Brahman. In M.Ū. III. 1. 4 an ativādin is contrasted with one who really knows the highest truth.

In all this discussion Sanatkumāra leads Nārada step by step, tato bhūyaḥ, until he obtains the experience of the absolutely great, which is undefined and unmeasured. As Nārada seems to be satisfied with prāṇa and does not ask 'Is there anything greater than prāṇa?' the teacher leads him on to a higher view in sections 16-26. He is an ativādin who passes beyond the empirical variety and grasps the metaphysical reality. yastu bhūmākhyam sarvātīkrāntam tattvam paramārtha-satyam veda so'tivādīti. Ś.

Section 16

TRUTH

1. eṣa tu vā ativadati yaḥ satyenātivadati; so'ham, bhagavaḥ, satyenātivadānīti; satyam tv eva vijijñāsītavyam iti; satyam, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

1. But he, verily, speaks excellently, who speaks excellently of truth. 'But I, Venerable Sir, would speak excellently of truth.' 'But one must desire to understand the truth.' 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand the truth.'

vijijñāse: viśeṣeṇa jñātum iccheyam tvatto'ham iti. Ś.

Section 17

TRUTH AND UNDERSTANDING

1. yadā vai vijānāti, atha satyam vadati, nāvijānan satyam vadati, vijānann eva satyam vadati, vijñānam tv eva vijijñāsītavyam iti; vijñānam, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

1. Verily, when one understands, then he speaks the truth. One who does not understand does not speak the truth. Only he who understands speaks the truth. But one must desire to understand understanding. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand understanding.'

In his commentary Ś distinguishes between the empirical truth (rūpa-traya) and metaphysical truth (rūpa-traya-vyatirekeṇa para-mārthataḥ), between factual truth and ultimate significance.

Section 18

THOUGHT AND UNDERSTANDING

1. yadā vai manute, atha vijānāti, nāmatvā vijānāti, matvaiva vijānāti, matis tv eva vijijñāsītavyeti; matim, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

1. Verily, when one thinks, then he understands, one who does not think does not understand. Only he who thinks understands. But one must desire to understand thinking. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand thinking.'

matir mananam, tarko mantavya-viṣaya ādaraḥ. Ś.

1. yadā vai śraddhadhāti, atha manute. nāśraddhadhan manute, śraddhadhad eva manute, śraddhā tv eva vijijñāsītavyeti; śraddhām, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

1. Verily, when one has faith, then he thinks. One who has not faith does not think. Only he who has faith thinks. But one must desire to understand faith. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand faith.'

āstikya-buddhiḥ śraddhā. Ś: sense of religious reality.

Section 20

STEADFASTNESS

I. yadā vai nistiṣṭhati, atha śraddadhāti, na'nistiṣṭhan śraddadhāti nistiṣṭhann eva śraddadhāti, niṣṭhā tv eva vijijñāsītavyeti; niṣṭhām, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

I. When one has steadfastness, then one has faith. One who has not steadfastness does not have faith. Only he who has steadfastness has faith. But one must desire to understand steadfastness. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand steadfastness.'

niṣṭhā: earnest attention to and service of the spiritual guide:
guru-śuśrūṣādis tatparatvam brahma-vijjñānāya. Ś.

See B.G. III. 3.

Section 21

ACTIVITY

I. yadā vai karoty atha nistiṣṭhati, nākrtvā nistiṣṭhati, krtvaiva nistiṣṭhati, krtis tv eva vijijñāsītavyeti; kṛtim bhagavo vijijñāsa iti.

I. When one is active, one has steadfastness. Without being active, one has not steadfastness. Only by activity does one have steadfastness. But one must desire to understand activity. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand activity.'

activity: Ś refers to the duties of a student such as restraint of the senses, concentration of the mind: indriya-samyamaś cittaikāgratā-karaṇam ca.

Section 22

HAPPINESS

I. yadā vai sukham labhate'tha karoti, nāsuksam labdhvā karoti, sukham eva labdhvā karoti, sukham tv eva vijijñāsītavyam iti; sukham, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

I. When one obtains happiness, then one is active. One who does not obtain happiness is not active. Only he who obtains happiness is active. But one must desire to understand happiness. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand happiness'

Section 23

THE INFINITE

I. yo vai bhūmā tat sukham, nālpe sukham asti, bhūmaiva sukham; bhūmā tv eva vijijñāsitaḥ iti; bhūmānam, bhagavaḥ, vijijñāsa iti.

I. The infinite is happiness. There is no happiness in anything small (finite). Only the infinite is happiness. But one must desire to understand the infinite. 'Venerable Sir, I desire to understand the infinite.'

bhūmā: grand, superlative, abundant, mahat niratiṣayam bahvīti. It is the highest that can be reached, the infinite. In the small there is no happiness. It produces craving, trṣṇā, which is the seed of sorrow, duḥkha-bīja.

'Thou hopest perhaps to subdue desire by the power of enjoyment, but thou wilt find it impossible for the eye to be satisfied with seeing or the ear to be filled with hearing. If all visible nature could pass in review before thee, what would it be but a vain vision?' Imitation of Christ.

Section 24

THE INFINITE AND THE FINITE

I. yatra nānyat paśyati nānyac chrnoti nānyad vijānāti sa bhūmā; atha yatrānyat paśyati anyac chrnoti anyad vijānāti tad alpam; yo vai bhūmā tad amṛtam, atha yad alpam tan martyam; sa, bhagavaḥ, kasmin pratiṣṭhita iti; sve mahimni, yadi vā na mahimnīti.

I. Where one sees nothing else, hears nothing else, understands nothing else, that is the infinite. But where one sees something else, hears something else, understands something else, that is the small (the finite). Verily, the infinite is the same as the immortal, the finite is the same as the mortal. 'Venerable

Sir, on what is the infinite established?' 'On its own greatness or not even on greatness.'

The empirical dualities are absent in the experience of the infinite: samsāra-vyavahāro bhūmni nāsti. Ś.

martyam: perishable, vināśi. Ś. All empirical objects are subject to the law of change.

sve mahimni: on its own greatness, ātmīye mahimni mātātmye vibhūtau. Ś. It is rooted in its own greatness while things which are in the region of the little, alpa, are rooted not in themselves but in others.

yadi vā: If the question is taken in an ultimate sense, we cannot even say this, for the infinite cannot be established in anything else, not even on its own greatness, for it is apratiṣṭha, anāśrita.

The last line reminds us of the Nāsadīya hymn of the R.V. where the expression of the highest certainty is followed by a misgiving that after all it may not be so.

2. go-aśvam iha mahimety ācakṣate, hasti-hiraṇyam dāsa-bhāryam, kṣetrāṇy āyatanānīti; nāham evam bravīmi, bravīmīti hovācānyo hy anyasmin pratiṣṭhita iti.

2. Here on earth people call cows and horses, elephants and gold, slaves and wives, fields and houses 'greatness.' 'I do not speak thus, I do not speak thus,' said he, 'for in that case one thing is established in another.'

The infinite cannot be established in anything different from itself.

Finite things are established in others, anyo hi anyasmin pratiṣṭhitah. The doctrines of para-tantra and pratītya-samutpāda are suggested by this passage.

Section 25

SELF-SENSE AND THE SELF

1. sa evādhastāt, sa upariṣtāt, sa paścāt, sa purastāt, sa dakṣinataḥ, sa uttaraṭaḥ, sa evedaṁ sarvaṁ iti, athāto haṁkāraḍeṣa eva, aham evādhastāt, aham upariṣtāt, aham paścāt, aham purastāt, aham dakṣinataḥ, aham uttaraṭaḥ, aham evedaṁ sarvaṁ iti.

1. That (infinite) indeed is below. It is above. It is behind. It is in front. It is to the south, it is to the north. It is indeed all this (world). Now next, the instruction in regard to the self-sense. I, indeed, am below. I am above, I am behind, I am in front. I am to the south, I am to the north; I, indeed, am all this (world).

2. athāta ātmādeśa eva ātmaivādhasat, ātmopariṣṭāt, ātmā paścāt, ātmā purastāt, ātmā dakṣiṇataḥ, ātmottarataḥ, ātmaivedaṁ sarvaṁ iti. sa vā eṣa evaṁ paśyann evaṁ manvāna evaṁ vijānann ātma-ratir ātma-kṛīḍa ātma-mithuna ātmānandaḥ. sa svarād bhavati, tasya sarveṣu lokeṣu kāma-cāro bhavati, atha ye'nyathāto viduḥ, anyā-rājānas te kṣayya-lokā bhavanti. teṣāṁ sarveṣu lokeṣu akāma-cāro bhavati.

2. Now next the instruction in regard to the self. The self indeed is below. The self is above. The self is behind. The self is in front. The self is to the south. The self is to the north. The self, indeed, is all this (world). Verily, he who sees this, who thinks this, who understands this, he has pleasure in the self, he has delight in the self, he has union in the self, he has joy in the self; he is independent (self-ruler); he has unlimited freedom in all worlds. But they who think differently from this are dependent on others (have others for their rulers). They have (live in) perishable worlds. In all worlds they cannot move at all (have no freedom).

purastāt: in front or to the east.

The knowers are self-governing, autonomous (sva-rāj); the non-knowers are heteronomous, subject to others (anyā-rāj).

Section 26

THE PRIMACY OF SELF

1. tasya ha vā etasyaivam paśyataḥ, evaṁ manvānasya, evaṁ vijānata ātmataḥ prāṇaḥ, ātmata āśā, ātmataḥ smaraḥ, ātmata ākāśaḥ, ātmataś tejaḥ, ātmata āpāḥ, ātmata āvirbhāva-tirobhāva ātmato'nnam ātmato balam, ātmato vijñānam, ātmato dhyānam, ātmataś cittam, ātmataḥ saṁkalpaḥ, ātmato manaḥ, ātmato vāk, ātmato nāma, ātmato mantraḥ, ātmataḥ karmāṇi, ātmata evedaṁ sarvaṁ iti.

1. For him who sees this, who thinks this and who understands this, life-breath springs from the self, hope from the self, memory from the self, ether from the self, heat from the self, water from the self, appearance and disappearance from the self, food from the self, strength from the self, understanding from the self, meditation from the self, thought from the self, determination from the self, mind from the self, speech from the self, name from the self, sacred hymns from the self, (sacred) works from the self, indeed all this (world) from the self.

All these, life-breath, hope, memory, etc., which were traced to the real, sat, are now traced to the self, as the real and the self, sat and ātman are one.

2. tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

*na paśyo mṛtyum paśyati, na rogaṁ nota duḥkhatām;
sarvaṁ ha paśyaḥ paśyati, sarvaṁ āpnoti sarvaśaḥ.*

iti.

sa ekadhā bhavati, tridhā bhavati, pañcadhā saptadhā navadhā caiva punaś caikādaśaḥ smṛtaḥ, śataṁ cā daśa caikaś ca sahasrāṇi ca viṁśatiḥ āhāra-śuddhausattva-śuddhiḥ, sattva-śuddhau dhruvā smṛtiḥ, smṛti-lambhe sarva-granthīnām vipramokṣaḥ; tasmai mṛdita-kaśāyāya tamaśaḥ pāraṁ darśayati bhagavān sanatkumāraḥ: taṁ skanda ity ācakṣate, taṁ skanda ity ācakṣate.

2. On this there is the following verse.

He who sees this does not see death nor illness nor any sorrow. He who sees this sees everything and obtains everything everywhere.

He is one, becomes threefold, fivefold, sevenfold and also ninefold. Then again he is called the elevenfold, also a hundred and elevenfold and also twenty-thousand fold.

When nourishment is pure, nature is pure. When nature is pure, memory becomes firm. When memory remains firm, there is release from all knots of the heart. To such a one who has his stains wiped away, the venerable Sanatkumāra shows the further shore of darkness. Him they call Skanda, yea, him they call Skanda.

He who sees this, paśyo yathokta-darśi vidvān. Ś.

One—He is one before creation. prāk sṛṣṭi-prabhedād ekadhāiva. The various numbers, three, five, seven, nine, etc., are intended to show the endless variety of manifestations after creation: saṁstridhādī-bhedair ananta-bheda-prakāro bhavati sṛṣṭi-kāle. Ś.

sattva-śuddhi: nature is pure. The reference, according to Ś, is to the inner organ. antaḥkaranasya sattvasya śuddhir nairmalyam bhavati.

Sanatkumāra is said to be 'bhagavān,' as he conforms to the definition quoted by Ś.

utpattim pralayaṃ caiva bhūtānām āgatiṃ gatiṃ veti vidyāṃ avidyāṃ ca sa vācya bhagavān iti.

Sanatkumāra points out that spiritual freedom is the basis of all action. We reach it by stages. The vision of the Divine, the Infinite, gives us happiness. Other things which fall short of it are of little consequence. The self, ātman, is the source of all things, whatsoever, hope, memory, space, light and water. It is the source of all power, all knowledge, all happiness.

CHAPTER VIII

CONCERNING THE NATURE OF THE SELF

Section I

THE UNIVERSAL SELF WITHIN THE HEART AND IN THE WORLD

1. harīḥ, aum. atha yad idam asmin brahma-pure daharam puṇḍarikam veśma, daharo'sminn antarākāśaḥ, tasmin yad antaḥ, tad anveṣṭavyam, tad vā va vijijñāsitavyam.

1. Harīḥ, aum. Now, here in this city of Brahman is an abode, a small lotus flower; within it is a small space. What is within that should be sought, for that, assuredly, is what one should desire to understand.

daharam: alpam, small. Ś.

puṇḍarikam: puṇḍarīka-saḍṛśam, like a lotus. Ś.

brahma-pure: śarīre, in the body. Ś. The body is deva-sadana or the temple of God.

vijijñāsitavyam: sākṣāt-karaṇīyam, made an object of direct apprehension. Ś.

In introducing this chapter Ś points out that the speculative effort of Chapter VII, which establishes the identity of our self with the highest self is too much for ordinary people who are inclined to assume that the metaphysical reality which is free from all determinations is as good as non-being: dig-deśa-guṇa-gati-phala-bheda śūnyam hi paramārthasad advayam brahma manda-buddhīnāṃ asat iva pratibhāti. Pure being, devoid of all determinations, is often in Western thought mistaken for non-being (asat). Cp. Hegel's criticism of Spinoza's substance.

As ordinary people find it difficult to conceive of the Real as out of space and time, they are taught to think of it as an object endowed with qualities, living in the world and the human self. This knowledge is to serve as a preparation for the higher knowledge.

2. taṃ ced bhūyuh, yad idam asmin brahma-pure daharam puṇḍarikam veśma, daharo'sminn antarākāśaḥ, kim tad atra vidyate yad anveṣṭavyam, yad vā va vijijñāsitavyam iti.

2. If they should say to him, with regard to this city of Brahmā and the abode and the small lotus flower and the small space within that, what is there that should be sought for, or that, assuredly, one should desire to understand?

The implication is that there is nothing there which one has to search out or understand: kim tad atra vidyate na kiñ cana vidyate ity abhiṣprāyaḥ. Ś.

3. sa brūyāt: yāvān vā ayam ākāśaḥ, tāvān eṣo'ntarhṛdaya ākāśaḥ. ubhe asmin dyāvā-prthivī antar eva samāhite, ubhāv agniś'ca vāyus ca sūrya-candramasāv ubhau, vidyun nakṣatrāṇi yac cāsyehāsti yac ca nāsti sarvaṁ tad asmin samāhitam iti.

3. He should say, as far, verily, as this (world) space extends, so far extends the space within the heart. Within it, indeed, are contained both heaven and earth, both fire and air, both sun and moon, lightning and the stars. Whatever there is of him in this world and whatever is not, all that is contained within it.

The individual is to be regarded as the world in miniature. The world is the individual writ large.

In Buddhist thought ālaya-vijñāna is the receptacle of all the latent possibilities of existence. hṛd-ākāśa answers to the ālaya-vijñāna. When the concrete manifestations are overcome by decay and death, their types are not destroyed along with them. The desires out of which they arise are preserved in the hṛd-ākāśa.

what is not: What is no longer or not yet, the past and the future.

4. tam ced brūyuk, asmiṁś'ced idam brahma-pure sarvaṁ samāhitam sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni sarve ca kāmāḥ yadaitaj jarā vāpnoti pradhvaṁsate vā, kim tato'tiśiṣyata iti.

4. If they should say to him, if, within this city of Brahmā, is contained all (that exists), all beings and all desires, then what is left of it when old age overtakes it or when it perishes?

5. He should say, it (the self within) does not age with old age, it is not killed by the killing (of the body). That (and not the body) is the real city of Brahmā. In it desires are contained. It is the self free from sin, free from old age, free from death, free from sorrow, free from hunger, free from thirst, whose desire is the real, whose thought is the real. For, just as here on earth people follow in obedience to command (as they are commanded), of whatever object they are desirous, be it a country or a part of a field, on that they live dependent.

Our desires condition our future.

6. tad yatheha karma-jito lokah kṣīyate, evam evāmutra puṇya-jito lokah kṣīyate. tad ya ihātmānam ananuvīdya vrajanty etāṁś ca satyān kamān, teṣāṁ sarveṣu lokeṣu akāma-cāro bhavati. atha ya ihātmānam anuvīdya vrajanty etāṁś ca satyān kamān, teṣāṁ sarveṣu lokeṣu kāma-cāro bhavati.

6. As here on earth the world which is earned by work perishes, even so there the world which is earned by merit (derived from the performance of sacrifices) perishes. Those who depart hence without having found here the self and those real desires, for them there is no freedom in all the worlds. But those who depart hence, having found here the self and those real desires—for them in all worlds there is freedom.

akāma-cāro'svatantratā. Ś.

kāma-cāro bhavati: rājña iva sārvaabhaumasyehaloke: He has like a King complete sovereignty in the world. Ś. 'Seeing the self impartially in all beings and all beings in the self, the ātma-yāji obtains autonomy,' Manu XII. 91; see also B.G. VI. 29.

Section 2

DIFFERENT FUTURE WORLDS

1. sa yadi pitṛ-loka-kāmo bhavati. saṁkalpād evāsya pitarah samuttiṣṭhanti, tena pitṛ-lokena sampanno mahīyate.

1. If he becomes desirous of the world of the fathers, by his mere thought, fathers arise. Possessed of the world of fathers he is happy.

Out of these kāmas or desires, out of saṁkalpas or formative tendencies, the desired spheres are fashioned.

mahīyate: pūjyate vardhate vā mahimānam anubhavati. Ś.

2. atha yadi mātṛ-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsya mātarah samuttiṣṭhanti, tena mātṛ-lokena sampanno mahīyate.

2. And so if he becomes desirous of the world of mothers, by his mere thought, mothers arise. Possessed of that world of mothers he is happy.

3. atha yadi bhrātṛ-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsya bhrātarah samuttiṣṭhanti, tena bhrātṛ-lokena sampanno mahīyate.

3. And if he becomes desirous of the world of brothers, out of his mere thought brothers arise. Possessed of that world of brothers he is happy.

4. atha yadi svasṛ-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsyā svasāraḥ samuttiṣṭhanti, tena svasṛ-lokena saṁpanno mahīyate.

4. And if he becomes desirous of the world of sisters, out of his mere thought, sisters arise. Possessed of that world of sisters he is happy.

5. atha yadi sakhi-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsyā sakhāyaḥ samuttiṣṭhanti: tena sakhi-lokena saṁpanno mahīyate.

5. And if he becomes desirous of the world of friends, out of his mere thought, friends arise. Possessed of that world of friends he is happy.

6. atha yadi gandha-mālya-loka-kāmo bhavati saṁkalpād evāsyā gandhamālye samuttiṣṭhataḥ, tena gandha-mālya-lokena saṁpanno mahīyate.

6. And if he becomes desirous of the world of perfumes and garlands, out of his mere thought, perfumes and garlands arise. Possessed of that world of perfumes and garlands he is happy.

7. atha yadi anna-pāna-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsyānna-pāne samuttiṣṭhataḥ, tena anna-pāna-lokena saṁpanno mahīyate.

7. And if he becomes desirous of the world of food and drink, out of his mere thought, food and drink arise. Possessed of that world of food and drink he is happy.

8. atha yadi gīta-vāḍita-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsyā gīta-vāḍite samuttiṣṭhataḥ, tena gīta-vāḍita-lokena saṁpanno mahīyate.

8. And if he becomes desirous of the world of song and music, out of his mere thought, song and music arise. Possessed of that world of song and music he is happy.

9. atha yadi strī-loka-kāmo bhavati, saṁkalpād evāsyā striyaḥ samuttiṣṭhanti, tena strī-lokena saṁpanno mahīyate.

9. And if he becomes desirous of the world of women, out of his mere thought, women arise. Possessed of that world of women he is happy.

10. yam yam antam abhikāmo bhavati, yam kāmam kāmāyate, so'sya saṁkalpād eva samuttiṣṭhati, tena saṁpanno mahīyate.

10. Of whatever object he becomes desirous, whatever desire he desires, out of his mere thought it arises. Possessed of it he is happy.

antam: object, pradeśam. Ś.

Section 3

THE SPACE WITHIN THE HEART

1. ta ime satyāḥ kāmāḥ anṛtāpidhānāḥ, teṣāṁ satyānāṁ satām anṛtam apidhānam: yo yo hy asyetah praiti, na tam iha darśanāya labhate.

1. These same are true desires, with a covering of what is false. Although the desires are true there is a covering that is false. For whosoever of one's (fellows) departs hence, one does not get him (back) to see here.

2. atha ye cāsyeha jīva ye ca pretā yac cānyad icchan na labhate, sarvaṁ tad atra gatvā vindate, atra hi asyaite satyāḥ kāmāḥ anṛtāpidhānāḥ, tad yathāpi hiraṇya-nidhiṁ nihitam akṣetrajñā upary upari sañcaranto na vindeyuh, evam evamāḥ sarvāḥ prajā ahar ahar gacchantya etam brahma-lokaṁ na vindanti, anṛtena hi pratyūdhāḥ.

2. But those of one's (fellows) whether they are alive or whether they have departed and whatever else one desires but does not get, all this one finds by going in there (into one's own self); for here, indeed, are those true desires of his with a covering of what is false. Just as those who do not know the field walk again and again over the hidden treasure of gold and do not find it, even so all creatures here go day after day into the Brahma-world and yet do not find it, for they are carried away by untruth.

All desires find their fulfilment in the self. The city of Brahmā is within one's heart where we can possess all our desires.

We daily get into the Brahmā-world while we are asleep: hrdayā-kāśākhyam brahma-lokaṁ ahar ahaḥ pratyaham gacchantyo'pi susupta-kāle na vindanti na labhante Ś.

anṛtena: by falsehood. Rāmānuja interprets ṛta to mean disinterested action, phala-kāmanā-rahita-karma and anṛta as its opposite, selfish work.

satya and anṛta are not two coexistent factors but two alternative manifestations of a common factor of the hṛd-ākāśa or viñāna, its two orientations upward and downward.

3. sa vā eṣa ātmā hṛdi, tasyaitad eva niruktam hṛdy ayam iti, tasmādd hṛdayam, ahar ahar vā evaṁ-vit svargam lokam eti.

3. Verily, that self is (abides) in the heart. Of it the etymological explanation is this. This one is in the heart, thereof it is the heart. He who knows this goes day by day into the heavenly world.

In deep sleep one gets into the Brahman of the heart. One has to realise the self in one's heart. hṛdaya-nāma nirvacana prasiddhyāpi sva-hṛdaya ātmety avagantavyam. Ś.

4. atha ya eṣa samprasādo'smāc-charīrāt samutthāya param jyotir upasampadya svena rūpenābhiniṣpadyate, eṣa ātmeti hovāca, etad amṛtam abhayam, etad brahmeti; tasya ha vā etasya brahmaṇo nāma satyam iti.

4. Now that serene being, rising out of this body, and reaching the highest light appears in his own form. He is the self, said he (when asked by the pupils). That is the immortal, the fearless. That is Brahman. Verily, the name of that Brahman is the True.

śarīrāt samutthāya: rising out of the body. giving up the notion of the identity of the self with the body: śarīrātma-bhāvanām parit-yajyety arthah. Ś.

5. tāni ha vā etāni trīṇy akṣarāṇi sat-ti-yam iti; tad yat sat tad amṛtam, atha yat ti tan martyam, atha yad yaṁ tenobhe yacchati yad anenobhe yacchati tasmād yam, ahar ahar vā evaṁ vit svargam lokam eti.

5. Verily, these are the three syllables sat, ti, yam. The sat, that is the immortal. The ti, that is the mortal. The yam, with it one holds the two together. Because with it one holds the two together therefore it is yam. He who knows this goes day by day into the heavenly world.

For another explanation of the word satyam, see B.U. V. 5. 1. yacchati: holds together, yamayati, niyamayati, vaśīkaroti. Ś. The eternal and the temporal are bound together. There is no suggestion that the mortal is illusory.

Section 4

LIFE BEYOND

1. atha ya ātmā, sa setur vidhṛtir eṣāṁ lokānām asambhedāya naitaṁ setuṁ ahorātre tarataḥ, na jarā na mṛtyur na śoko na sukṛtam, na duṣkṛtam, sarve pāpmāno 'to nivartante, apahata-pāpmā hy eṣa brahma-lokaḥ.

1. Now the self is the bridge, the (separating) boundary for keeping these worlds apart. Over that bridge day and night do not cross, nor old age nor death, nor sorrow, nor well-doing nor ill-doing. All evils turn back from it for the Brahma-world is freed from evil.

See Kaṭha III. 2, M.U. II. 2. 5.

Day and night are the factors of time, the determinants of the mortality of all things under the sun.

2. tasmād vā etaṁ setuṁ tīrtvāndhaḥ sann anandho bhavati, viddhaḥ sann aviddho bhavati, upatāpī sann anupatāpī bhavati. tasmād vā etaṁ setuṁ tīrtvāpi naktam ahar evābhiniṣpadyate, sakṛd vibhāto hy evaiṣa brahma-lokaḥ.

2. Therefore, verily, on crossing that bridge, if one is blind he becomes no longer blind, if wounded, he becomes no longer wounded, if afflicted he becomes no longer afflicted. Therefore, verily, on crossing that bridge, night appears even as day for that Brahma-world is ever-illuminated.

See III. II. 3.

When one crosses the bridge and gets to the other shore, the troubles of the world cease. Eckhart says: 'There neither virtue nor vice ever entered in.'

sakṛd vibhātaḥ: ever-illuminated, sadā vibhātaḥ, sadaikarūpaḥ. Ś.

3. tad ya evaitam brahma-lokam brahmacaryeṇānūvīdanti, teṣāṁ evaiṣa brahma-lokaḥ, teṣāṁ sarveṣu lokeṣu kāma-cāro bhavati.

3. But only they find that Brahma-world who practise the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge; only they possess that Brahma-world. For them there is unlimited freedom in all worlds.

Section 5

IMPORTANCE OF BRAHMACARYA

1. atha yad yajña ity ācakṣate brahmacaryam eva tat, brahmacaryeṇa hy eva yo jñātā taṁ vindate atha yad iṣṭam ity ācakṣate, brahmacaryam eva tat, brahmacaryeṇa hy eveṣṭvātmānam anuvindate.

1. Now, what people call sacrifice is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. Only by the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does he who knows obtain that (world). Now what people call 'What has been sacrificed' is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, for only by sacrificing with the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does one obtain the self.

2. atha yat sattrāyaṇam ity ācakṣate brahmacaryam eva tat, brahmacaryeṇa hy eva sata ātmanas trāṇam vindate. atha yan maunam ity ācakṣate brahmacaryam eva tat, brahmacaryeṇa hy evātmānam anuvīdya manute.

2. Now what people call the protracted sacrifice (sattrāyaṇam) is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. Only by the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does one obtain the protection of the real self. Now what people call the vow of silence is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, for only by finding out the self through the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does one (really) meditate.

protection of the self: sataḥ paraṣmād ātmana ātmanas trāṇam rakṣaṇam. Ś.

manute: dhyāyati. Ś.

3. atha yad anāśakāyaṇam ity ācakṣate brahmacaryam eva tat, eṣa hy ātmā na naśyati yam brahmacaryeṇānuvindate; atha yad aranyāyaṇam ity ācakṣate brahmacaryam eva tat. tad aras' ca ha vai ŋyaś cārṇavau brahma-loke tṛtīyasyām ito divi, tad airam madīyaṁ sarah, tad āsvatthaḥ soma-savanaḥ, tad aparājitā pūr brahmaṇaḥ, prabhuvimitarī hiraṇmayam.

3. Now what people call a course of fasting is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, for the self which one finds by the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge does not perish. Now what people call the life of a hermit is really the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. Verily, ara and ṇya are the two seas in the Brahma-world in the third heaven from here. And there is the lake Aīrammadīya and there the tree showering Soma, there is the city of Brahman Aparājitā and the golden hall built by the Lord.

anāśakāyanam: a course of fasting. It may also mean entrance into the unperishing, a-nāśaka-ayana.

In the K.U. I. 3, the sea is called ara; according to Ś, aparājita is not a city but a resting-place, āyatana.

This section advocates not only the need for brahmacarya but also the equivalence of certain sacrifices to brahmacarya. This equivalence is established by ingenious etymological explanations. Yajña or 'sacrifice' and yo jñātā 'he who knows' have a certain similarity. Similarly iṣṭa, another kind of sacrifice, has something in common with eṣāṇā or 'search.'

sattrāyana with sat, the true and trāyana or protection, mauna silence with manana, meditation, anāśakāyana with the unperishing from naś to perish, araṇyāyana with ara and ṇya, the two seas which are said to exist in the world of Brahmā.

4. taḍ ya evaitāṁ aram ca nyam cārnavau brahma-loke brahmacaryeṇānuvindanti, teṣāṁ evaiṣa brahma-lokaḥ teṣāṁ sarveṣu lokeṣu kāma-cāro bhavati.

4. Only they who find the two seas Ara and Ṇya in the Brahma-world through the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge, only they possess the Brahma-world. In all the worlds they possess unlimited freedom.

All these fulfilled desires mentioned in sections 2-5 are real at their own level. They are not to be dismissed as false or unreal. Even dreams are unreal only in relation to what we see when we are awake. What we see in waking experience is not altogether unreal for it is based on the real.

Section 6

COURSE AFTER DEATH

1. atha yā etā hrdayasya nādyas, tāḥ piṅgalasyanimnas tiṣṭhanti, śuklasya nīlasya pītasya lohitasyeti. asau vā ādityaḥ piṅgalaḥ, eṣa śuklaḥ, eṣa nīlaḥ, eṣa pītaḥ, eṣa lohitaḥ.

1. Now as for these arteries (channels) of the heart, they consist of a fine substance which is reddish-brown, white, blue, yellow and red. Verily, the sun yonder is reddish-brown, he is white, he is blue, he is yellow, he is red.

2. tad yathā mahāpatha ātata ubhau grāmau gacchatīmaṁ cāmum ca, evam evaita ādityasya raśmaya ubhau lokau gacchantīmaṁ cāmum ca; amuṣmād ādityāt pratāyante ta āsu nāḍīṣu sr̥ptāḥ, ābhyo nāḍībhyah pratāyante te' muṣminn āditye sr̥ptāḥ.

2. Even as a great extending highway runs between two villages, this one and that yonder, even so these rays of the sun go to both these worlds, this one and that yonder. They start from the yonder sun and enter into these arteries. They start from these arteries and enter into the yonder sun.

3. tad yatraitat suptah samastah samprasannah swapnam na vijānāti āsu tadā nāḍīṣu sr̥pto bhavati, tam na kaścana pāpmā spr̥ṣati, tejasā hi tadā sampanno bhavati.

3. And when one is thus sound asleep, composed, serene (so that) he knows no dream, then he has entered into these channels; so no evil touches him for then he has obtained the light (of the sun).

samastah: composed, upāsamīkṛta-sarva-karaṇa-vṛttiḥ. Ś.
samprasannah: serene, bāhya-viśaya-samparka-janita-kāluṣyābhāvāt samyak prasannah samprasannah. Ś.
swapnam: dream, viśayākārābhāsam mānasam. Ś.
tejas: light. saura-tejah: The light of the sun. Ś.

No evil touches him because he gets into his own nature: sva-rūpā-vasthitatvāt. dehendriya-viśiṣṭam hi sukha-duḥkha-kārya-pradānena pāpmā spr̥ṣatīti na tu satsampannam svā-rūpāvastham. Ś.

4. atha yatraitad abalimānam nīto bhavati, tam abhita āsīnā āhuh jānāsi mām, jānāsi mām, iti; sa yāvad asmāccharīrād anukrānto bhavati, tāvaj jānāti.

4. And now, when one thus becomes weak (falls ill), those who sit around him say, Do you know me? Do you know me? As long as he has not departed from this body, he knows them.

5. atha yatraitad asmāccharīrād utkrāmati, athaitair eva raśmibhir irdhvam ākramate, sa aum iti vā ha ut vā mīyate. sa yāvat kṣīpyen manah, tāvad ādityam gacchati. etad vai khalu loka-dvāraṁ viduṣāṁ prapadanam, nirodho'viduṣāṁ.

5. But when he thus departs from this body, then he goes upwards by these very rays or he goes up with the thought of aum. As his mind is failing, he goes to the sun. That, verily, is the gateway of the world, an entering in for the knowers a shutting out for the non-knowers.

kṣīpyen manah: As his mind is failing: sometimes rendered 'as quickly as one could direct his mind to it': yāvātā kālena manasaḥ kṣepaḥ syāt tāvatā kālenādityaṁ gacchati, kṣīpraṁ gacchatīty artho na tu tāvataiva kāleneti vivakṣitam. Ś.

6. tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

śatām caikā ca hṛdayasya nāḍyaḥ tāsām mūrdhānam abhiniṣṭaikā tayordhvam āyann amṛtatvam eti viśvaṁ anyā utkramaṇe bhavanti, utkramaṇe bhavanti.

6. On this there is this verse.

A hundred and one are the arteries of the heart, one of them leads up to the crown of the head. Going upward through that, one becomes immortal: the others serve for going in various other directions, for going in various other directions.

See Kaṭha II. 3. 6.

Section 7

PRAJĀ-PATI'S INSTRUCTION TO INDRA CONCERNING THE REAL SELF

1. ya ātmā apahata-pāpmā vijaro vimṛtyur viśoko vijighatso'pipāsaḥ satya-kāmaḥ satya-saṁkalpaḥ, so'nveṣṭavyaḥ, so vijijñāsi-tavyaḥ sa sarvāṁś ca lokān āpnoti sarvāṁś ca kāmān. yas tam ātmānam anuvīdya vijānāti: iti ha prajā-patir uvāca.

1. The self which is free from evil, free from old age, free from death, free from grief, free from hunger and thirst, whose desire is the real, whose thought is the real, he should be sought, him one should desire to understand. He who has found out and who understands that self, he obtains all worlds and all desires. Thus spoke Prajā-pati.

2. tadd hobhaye devāsuraṁ anububudhire: te hocuḥ; hanta tam ātmānam anvicchāma, yam ātmānam anviśya sarvāṁś ca lokān āpnoti sarvāṁś ca kāmān iti; indro haiva devānāṁ abhipravavrāja, virocana' surāṇām. tau hā saṁvidanāv eva samit-pāṇi prajā-pati-sakāśam ājagmatuḥ.

2. The gods and the demons both heard it and said, 'Well, let us seek that self, the self by seeking whom one obtains all worlds and all desires.' Then Indra from among the gods went forth unto him and Virocana from among the demons. Then without communicating with each other, the two came into the presence of Prajā-pati, fuel in hand.

fuel in hand: it is the custom for pupils approaching the master.

3. tau ha dvātrīṃsatam varṣāni brahmacaryam ūsatuḥ: tau ha prajā-patir uvāca, kim icchantāu avāstam iti. tau hocatuḥ, ya ātmāpahatapāpmā vijaro vimṛtyur viśoko vijighatso'pipāsaḥ satya-kāmaḥ satya-saṅkalpaḥ so'nveṣṭavyaḥ-sa vijijñāsitavyaḥ, sa sarvāṁś ca lokān āpnoti sarvāṁś ca kāmān, yas tam ātmānam anuvīdya vijānāti iti bhagavato vaco vedayante. tam icchantāu avāstam iti.

3. For thirty-two years the two lived there the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. Then Prajā-pati asked them, 'Desiring what have you been living?' The two said, 'The self which is free from evil, free from old age, free from death, free from grief, free from hunger and thirst, whose desire is the real, whose thought is the real. He should be sought, him one should desire to understand. He who has found out, he who understands that self he obtains all worlds and all desires.' These people declare to be your word, Venerable Sir, desiring him we have been living.

4. tau ha prajāpatir uvāca, ya eṣo'ksini puruṣo drśyata eṣa ātmeti hovāca, etad amṛtam abhayam etad brahmeti; atha yo'yam, bhagavaḥ, apsu parikhyāyate yaścāyam ādarśe katama eṣa iti eṣa u evaiṣu sarveṣu anteṣu parikhyāyate iti hovāca.

4. Prajā-pati said to the two, 'The person that is seen in the eye, that is the self,' said he. 'That is the immortal, the fearless. That is Brahman.' 'But, Venerable Sir, he who is perceived in water and in a mirror, who is he?' He replied, 'The same one, indeed, is perceived in all these.'

While Prajā-pati means by the self the subject of all seeing, Indra and Virocana mistake the self for the person that is seen, not the person that sees. See Yoga Sūtra II. 6. The person seen in the eye is the figure imaged in the eye, and they ask whether the image that is seen in the water and in the mirror is the self. At this stage the pupils confuse the true self with the body.

Section 8

THE BODILY SELF

1. uda-śarāva ātmānam avekṣya yad ātmano na vijānītaḥ, tan me prabrūtaṁ iti. tau hoda-śarāve 'vekṣāmcakrāte. tau ha prajā-patir uvāca: kim paśyatha iti; tau hocatuḥ, sarvaṁ evedaṁ āvāṁ, bhagavaḥ, ātmānam paśyāva, ā lomabhya ā nakhebhyaḥ pratirūpaṁ iti.

1. Look at your self in a pan of water and whatever you do not understand of the self, tell me. Then the two looked in a pan of water. Then Prajā-pati said to the two, 'What do you see?' Then the two said, 'We both see the self thus altogether, Venerable Sir, a picture even to the very hairs and nails.'

The body is subject to change and cannot therefore be the self which is said to be unchanging: loma-nakhādivac charīrasyāpy āgamāpāyitvaṁ siddham. Ś.

2. tau ha prajā-patir uvāca, sādhu alaṅkṛtau suvasanau pariṣkṛtau bhūtvoda-śarāve'vekṣethāṁ iti. tau ha sādhu alaṅkṛtau suvasanau pariṣkṛtau bhūtvoda-śarāve'vekṣāṁ cakrāte. tau ha prajā-patir uvāca: kim paśyatha iti.

2. Then Prajā-pati said to the two, after you have well adorned yourselves, put on your best clothes, make yourselves tidy, look into the pan of water. Then the two adorned themselves well, put on their best clothes and made themselves tidy and looked into the pan of water. Then Prajā-pati said to the two, 'What do you see?'

This illustration points out that bodily changes are as external to the true self as clothes and ornaments are. They belong to the not-self, anātman.

3. tau hocatuḥ, yathāivedaṁ āvāṁ, bhagavaḥ, sādhu alaṅkṛtau suvasanau pariṣkṛtau svaḥ, evaṁ evemaṁ, bhagavaḥ, sādhu alaṅkṛtau suvasanau pariṣkṛtāv iti; eṣāṁmeti hovāca, etaḍ amṛtaṁ, abhayaṁ etaḍ brahmeti. tau ha śānta-hṛdayau pravavrajatuḥ.

3. The two said, 'Just as we are, Venerable Sir, well adorned, with our best clothes and tidy, thus we see both these, Venerable Sir, well adorned, with our best clothes and tidy.' 'That is the self,' said he. 'That is the immortal, the fearless, that is Brahman.' They both went away with a tranquil heart.

4. tau hānvīkṣya prajā-patir uvāca, anupalabhyātmanāṁ

ananuvidya vrajataḥ. yatara etad upaniṣado bhaviṣyanti devā vā asurā vā, te parābhaviṣyanti. sa ha śānta-hṛdaya eva virocana' surāñ jagāma. tebhyo haitām upaniṣadam provāca, ātmaiveha mahayyaḥ ātmā paricaryaḥ, ātmānam evaiha mahayann ātmānam paricarann ubhau lokāv āpnotīmām cāmuṁ ceti.

4. Then Prajā-pati looked at them and said, they go away without having perceived, without having known the self. Whosoever will follow such a doctrine, be they gods or demons they shall perish. Then Virocana with a tranquil heart went to the demons and declared that doctrine, one's (bodily) self is to be made happy here, one's (bodily) self is to be served. He who makes his own self happy here and he who serves his own self, he obtains both worlds, this world and the yonder.

5. tasmād apy adyaihādādānam asraddadhānam ayaJamānam āhuḥ, āsuro bateti; asurānām hy eṣopaniṣat pretasya śarīram bhikṣayā vasanenālaṅkāreṇeti saṁskurvanti, etena hy amuṁ lokam ieṣyanto manyante.

5. Therefore even here they say of one who is not a giver, who has no faith, who does not offer sacrifices, that he is a demon, for this is the doctrine of the demons. They adorn the body of the deceased with what they have begged, with clothes and with ornaments, and think that thereby they will win the yonder world.

bhikṣayā: with perfumes, flowers, etc., which they have begged: gandha-mālyānnādi-lakṣaṇayā.

Section 9

INDRA FEELS THE INADEQUACY OF THE PHYSICAL THEORY

1. atha hendro' prāpyaiva devān etad bhayaṁ dadarśa, yathaiiva khalv ayam asmin śarīre sādhwalaṅkṛte sādhw alaṅkṛto bhavati, suvasane suvasanaḥ, pariṣkṛte pariṣkṛtaḥ, evam evāyam asminn andhe'ndho bhavati, srāme srāmaḥ, parivṛkṇe parivṛkṇaḥ; asyaiva śarīrasya nāsam anv eṣa naśyati, nāham atra bhogyam paśyāmiti.

1. But Indra, even before reaching the gods saw this danger. Even as this self (the bodily self) is well adorned when this body is well adorned, well dressed when the body is well dressed, tidy when the body is tidy, that self will also be blind when the body is blind, lame when the body is lame, crippled when the body is crippled. It perishes immediately when the body perishes. I see no good in this.

srāmaḥ: one-eyed, eka-netra. Ś.

bhogyam: good, literally what is enjoyable.

2. sa samit, pāṇiḥ punar eyāya, tam ha prajā-patir uvāca, maghavan, yac chānta-hṛdayaḥ prāvṛājīḥ sārdaṁ virocana, kim icchan punar āgama iti. sa hovāca yathaiva khalv ayam, bhagavaḥ: asmin śarīre sādhu alaṅkṛte sādhu alaṅkṛto bhavati, suvasane suvasanaḥ, pariśkrte pariśkrtaḥ evam evāyam asminn andhe' nāho bhavati, srāme srāmaḥ, parivṛkṇo parivṛkṇaḥ, asyaiva śarīrasya nāśam anv eṣa naśyati, nāham atra bhogyam paśyāmīti.

2. He came back again with fuel in hand. To him Prajā-pati said, 'Desiring what, O Maghavan, have you come back, since you along with Virocana went away with a tranquil heart?' Then he said, 'Even as this self (the bodily self) is well adorned when this body is well adorned, well dressed when the body is well dressed, tidy when the body is tidy, that self will also be blind when the body is blind, lame when the body is lame, crippled when the body is crippled. It perishes immediately when the body perishes. I see no good in this.'

Indra evidently was not satisfied with the theory of the self as body.

prāvṛājīḥ: pragatauān asi. Ś.

3. evam evaiṣa, maghavan, iti hovāca, etam tv eva, te bhūyo 'nvyākhyāsyāmi; vasāparāni dvātriṁśatam varṣānti. sa hāparāni dvātriṁśatam varṣāny uvāsa, tasmai hovāca.

3. 'So is he indeed, O Maghavan.' Said he (Prajā-pati). 'However, I will explain this further to you. Live with me another thirty-two years.' Then he lived with him another thirty-two years. To him he then said:

Section 10

THE DREAM SELF

1. ya eṣa svapne mahīyamānaś carati eṣa ātmā, iti hovāca, etad amṛtam abhayaṁ, etad brahmeti. sa ha śānta-hṛdayaḥ pra-

vavrāja; sa hāprāpyaiva devān etad bhayaṁ dadarśa; tad yady, apīdam śarīraṁ andhaṁ bhavati, anandhaḥ sa bhavati, yadi srāmam asrāmaḥ, naivaiṣo 'sya doṣeṇa duṣyati.

1. He who moves about happy in a dream, he is the self, said he, he is the immortal, the fearless. He is Brahman. Then he went forth with a tranquil heart. But even before reaching the gods he saw this danger. Even though this self is not blind (when the body) is blind, is not lame (when the body) is lame, though he does not suffer defects from the defects (of the body).

mahīyamānaḥ: (moves) happy.

aneka-vidhān svapna-bhogān anubhavati. Ś. He experiences different kinds of satisfaction in a dream.

The dreaming self does not suffer from the defects of the body. naivaiṣa svapnātmāsya dehasya doṣeṇa duṣyati. Ś.

2. na vadhenāsya hanyate, nāsya srāmyeṇa srāmaḥ, ghnanti tv evainam, vicchādayantīvāpriyavetteva bhavati, api roditīva, nāham atra bhogyam paśyāmīti.

2. He is not slain (when the body) is slain. He is not one-eyed (when the body) is one-eyed, yet it is as if they kill him, as if they unclot him. He comes to experience as it were what is unpleasant, he even weeps as it were. I see no good in this.

vicchādayanti: unclot, from the root chad.

v. vicchāyayanti: tear to pieces. See B.U. IV. 3. 20.

Even the dreaming self is subject to pleasure and pain.

3. sa samit-pāṇiḥ punar eyāya. taṁ ha prajā-patir uvāca: maghavan, yac chānta-hṛdayaḥ prāvrājīḥ, kim icchan punar āgama iti. sa hovāca, tad yady apīdam, bhagavaḥ, śarīraṁ andhaṁ bhavati, anandhaḥ sa bhavati, yadi srāmam asrāmaḥ, naivaiṣo 'sya doṣeṇa duṣyati.

3. He came back again with fuel in hand to him. Prajā-pati said, 'Desiring what, O Maghavan, have you come back since you went away with a tranquil heart?' Then he said, 'Venerable Sir, even though this self is not blind (when the body) is blind, lame (when the body) is lame, even though he does not suffer defects from the defects of the body.'

4. na vadhenāsya hanyate, nāsya srāmyeṇa srāmaḥ, ghnanti tv evainam vicchādayantīva apriyavettaiva bhavati, api roditīva, nāham atra bhogyam paśyāmīti, evam evaiṣa, maghavan, iti hovāca etaṁ tv eva te bhūyo' nvyākhyāsyāmi. vasāpārāṇi dvātriṃśataṃ varṣānīti. sa hāparāṇi dvātriṃśataṃ varṣāṇy uvāsa, tasmai hovāca.

4. 'He is not slain (when the body) is slain. He is not lame (when the body) is lame, yet it is as if they kill him, as if they unclothe him. He comes to experience as it were what is unpleasant, he even weeps as it were. I see no good in this.' 'So is he indeed, O Maghavan,' said he (Prajā-pati). 'However, I will explain this further to you. Live with me another thirty-two years.' Then he lived with him another thirty-two years. To him he then said:

In these two stages the self experiences either external or internal objects, but in the next stage the self exists without the experience of objects, external or internal.

Section II

THE SELF IN SLEEP

1. tad yatraitat suptaḥ samastah samprasannaḥ swapnaṃ na vijānāti, eṣa ātmeti hovāca, etad amṛtam abhayaṃ etad brahmeti. sa ha śānta-hṛdayaḥ pravavrāja, sa hāprāpyaiva devān etad bhayaṃ dadarśa, nāha khalv ayam evaṃ sampraty ātmānaṃ jānāti, ayam aham asmīti, no evemāni bhūtāni, vināśam evāpīto bhavati, nāham atra bhogyam paśyāmīti.

1. When a man is asleep, composed, serene, and knows no dream, that is the self, said he, that is the immortal, the fearless. That is Brahman. Then he went forth with tranquil heart. Even before reaching the gods he saw this danger. In truth this one does not know himself that 'I am he,' nor indeed the things here. He has become one who has gone to annihilation. I see no good in this.

Indra feels that if there are no objects of which we are conscious, even the subject becomes destroyed.

2. sa samit-pāṇiḥ punar eyāya. taṃ ha prajā-patir uvāca, maghavan, yacchānta-hṛdayaḥ prāvvrājīḥ, kim icchan punar āgama iti. sa hovāca: nāha khalv ayam, bhagavaḥ, evaṃ sampraty ātmānaṃ jānāti, ayam aham asmīti, no evemāni bhūtāni. vināśam evāpīto bhavati, nāham atra bhogyam paśyāmīti.

2. He came back again with fuel in hand. To him Prajā-pati said, 'Desiring what, O Maghavan, have you come back, since you went away with a tranquil heart?' Then he said, 'Venerable Sir, in truth this one does not know himself that I am he, nor indeed the things here. He has become one who has gone to annihilation. I see no good in this.'

The self is not the undifferentenced consciousness of deep sleep. It is the false infinite. Quietistic trance is not final freedom.

3. evam evaiṣa, maghavan, iti hovāca, etam tv eva te bhūyo' nuvyākhyāsyāmi, no evānyatraitasmāt, vasāparāṇi pañca varṣāṇīti. sa hāparāṇi pañca varṣāṇy uvāsa. tāny eka-śatam sam-peduh. etat tad yad, āhuḥ eka-śatam, ha vai varṣāṇi maghavan prajāpatau brahmacaryam uvāsa. tasmai hovāca.

3. So is he, indeed, O Maghavan, said he. However, I will explain this further to you and there is nothing else besides this. Live with me for another five years. Then he lived with him for another five years. That makes one hundred and one years and so people say that, verily, for one hundred and one years Maghavan lived with Prajā-pati the disciplined life of a student of sacred knowledge. To him (Indra) (Prajā-pati) then said:

there is nothing else besides this: it is the highest self.

Section 12

THE SELF AS SPIRIT

1. maghavan, martyaṃ vā idaṃ śarīram āttam mrtyunā, tad aśyāmrtyasyāśarīrasyātmano'dhiṣṭhānam, ātto vai saśarīrah, priyāpriyābhyāṃ, na vai saśarīrasya sataḥ priyāpriyayor apahatir asti, aśarīraṃ vā va santaṃ na priyāpriye sprśataḥ.

1. O Maghavan, mortal, verily, is this body. It is held by death. But it is the support of that deathless, bodiless self. Verily, the incarnate self is held by pleasure and pain. Verily, there is no freedom from pleasure and pain for one who is incarnate. Verily, pleasure and pain do not touch one who is bodiless.

2. aśarīro vāyuh, abhram, vidyut, stanayitnūr aśarīrāny etāni. tad yathaitāny amuṣmād ākāśāt samutthāya param jyotir upa-sampadya svena svena rūpenābhiniṣpadyante.

2. Bodiless is air, clouds, lightning, thunder, these are bodiless. Now as these, when they arise from yonder space and reach the highest light appear each with its own form.

3. evam evaiṣa samprasādo'smāc charīrāt samutthāya param jyotiṣ upasampadya svena rūpeṇābhiniṣpadyate, sa uttamaḥ puruṣaḥ, sa tatra paryeti, jākṣat krīdan ramamānaḥ strībhir vā yānair vā jñātībhir vā nopajanaṁ smarann idam śarīram; sa yathā prayogya ācarāṇe yuktaḥ, evam evāyam asmin śarīre prāṇo yuktaḥ.

3. Even so that serene one when he rises up from this body and reaches the highest light appears in his own form. Such a person is the Supreme Person. There such a one moves about, laughing, playing, rejoicing with women, chariots or relations, not remembering the appendage of this body. As an animal is attached to a cart so is life attached to this body.

The self enjoys these pleasures as an inward spectator only and does not identify itself with them. The spirit is joined to the body as a horse to the cart. The relation is external, dehādīvilakṣaṇam ātmano rūpam. Ś. See S.B. IV. 4. 1.

4. atha yatra itad ākāśam anu viśaṇṇam cakṣuḥ, sa cākṣuṣaḥ puruṣaḥ darśanāya cakṣuḥ; atha yo veda: idam jighrāṇīti, sa ātmā gandhāya ghrāṇam, atha yo veda: idam abhivyāharāṇīti sa ātmā, abhivyāhārāya vāk, atha yo veda; idam śṛṇvāṇīti, sa ātmā, śṛavanāya, śrotam.

4. Now when the eye is thus turned to space, that is the seeing person, the eye is for seeing. Now he knows 'let me smell this,' that is the self, the nose is for smelling. Now he who knows 'let me utter this,' that is the self, the voice is for uttering. Now he who knows 'let me hear this' that is the self, the ear is for hearing.

The perceiver is the self, the sense organs are the instruments for perception.

5. atha yo veda; idam manvāṇīti sa ātmā, mano'sya daivam cakṣuḥ, sa va eṣa etena daivenā cakṣuṣā manasaitān kāmān paśyan ramate.

5. Now he who knows, let me think this, he is the self, the mind is his divine eye. He, verily, seeing these pleasures through his divine eye, the mind rejoices.

6. ya ete brahma-loke taṁ vā etaṁ devā ātmānam upāsate, tasmāt teṣām sarve ca lokā āttāḥ sarve ca kāmāḥ, sa sarvāṁś ca lokān āpnoti sarvāṁś ca kāmān, yas tam ātmānam anuvīdya vijānāti, iti ha prajāpatiḥ uvāca, prajāpatiḥ uvāca.

6. Verily, these gods who are in the Brahma-world meditate on that self. Therefore all worlds and all desires are held by them. He obtains all worlds and all desires who finds the self and understands it. Thus spoke Prajā-pati, yea, thus spoke Prajā-pati.

āttāḥ: held, obtained, prāptāḥ. Ś.

In this account we have a progressive spiritualisation of the idea of self. The highest knowledge is not to be snatched at one leap. It is acquired as the result of methodical endeavour, steady deepening of the mind. The essence of the psychical self consists in a directedness to the object of consciousness, its intentionality. We begin with the physical individual, the sensuous outlook, the demoniacal view. Slowly there is the inturning of the mind, a direction to the phenomena of dream and dreamless sleep. Introspection is guided towards the idea of the self. Ātman is the highest self. The journey ends in pure spirit, the subject of knowledge which is continuous despite the shutting off of consciousness, which is exalted above waking and sleeping.

Section 13

A PÆAN OF THE PERFECTED SOUL

1. śyāmāc chabalam prapadye, śabalāc chyāmam prapadye aśva iva romāṇi vidhūya pāpam, candra iva rāhor mukhāt pramucya dhūtvā śarīram, akṛtaṁ kṛtātmā brahmalokam abhisambhavāmi, abhisambhavāmi.

1. From the dark I pass to the vari-coloured; from the vari-coloured I pass to the dark. Shaking off evil as a horse his hairs, shaking off the body as the moon frees itself from the mouth of Rāhu, I a perfected soul obtain the uncreated Brahma-world, yea, I obtain it.

The sun and the moon are treated as the dogs of Yama, Śyāma the moon dog and Śabala the sun dog. We must run past these two heavenly bodies coursing across the sky to get to the blessed abode of light. See also K.U. I. 2. 2. In the R.V. it is said that Yama sends forth two dogs, his messengers who search out among men those who have to join the Fathers: X. 14. 10-12, Pluto's house has a janitor.

In Indian mythology a lunar eclipse is caused by the demon Rāhu's attempt to swallow the moon.

Section 14

THE PRAYER OF A SEEKER FOR ETERNAL LIFE

1. ākāśo vai nāma nāma-rūpayor nirvahitā, te yad antara, tad brahma, tad anytam, sa ātmā, prajā-pateḥ sabhām veśma prapadye, yaśo 'ham bhavāmi brāhmaṇānām, yaśo rājñām, yaśo viśām yaśo'ham anuprāpatsi: sa hāham yaśasām yaśaḥ: śyetam adatkam adatkam śyetam lindu mābhigām, lindu mābhigām.

1. Verily, what is called space is the determined of name and form. That within which they are is the Brahman, that is the immortal, that is the self. I pass to Prajā-pati's assembly-hall and abode. I am the glory of the Brāhmaṇas, the glory of the princes, the glory of the people. I have obtained glory. I am the glory of the glories. May I never go to the white, toothless, to the toothless, white, devouring, may I never go to it.

ākāśa: space. It is used as a name of the Supreme, because like space, Brahman has no body and is subtle: āsarīratvāt sūkṣmatvācca, Ś.

Brahman is untouched by concrete existences though they are all sustained by it.

The three castes of Brāhmaṇa, rājan and viś, are mentioned here. mābhigām: mābhigaccheyam. Ś.

Section 15

PARTING ADVICE TO THE PUPIL

1. tadd haitad brahmā prajāpataya uvāca, prajā-patir manave, manuḥ prajābhyah. ācārya-kulād vedam adhītya yathā-vidhānam, guroḥ karma (kṛtvā) atīśeṣena abhisamāvṛtya, kuṭumbe sthitvā, śucau deśe svādhyāyam adhīyānah, dhārmikān vidadhat, ātmani

sarvendriyāni sampratiṣṭhāpya, ahimsan sarva-bhūtāny anyatra tīrthebhyaḥ, sa khalv evaṁ vartayan yāvad āyusam brahma-lokam abhisampadyate, na ca punar āvartate, na ca punar āvartate.

1. This Brahmā told to Prajā-pati, Prajā-pati to Manu, Manu to mankind. He who has learned the Veda from the family of a teacher according to rule, in the time left over from doing work for the teacher, he, who after having come back again, settles down in a home of his own, continues the study of what he has learnt and has virtuous sons, he who concentrates all his senses in the self, who practises non-hatred to all creatures except at holy places, he who behaves thus throughout his life reaches the Brahma-world, does not return hither again, yea, he does not return hither again.

dhārmikā: virtuous sons and pupils:

putrān śiṣyāṁś ca dharma-yuktān. Ś.

anyatra tīrthebhyaḥ: except at holy places. Ś. makes out that even travelling as a mendicant causes pain, but a mendicant is allowed to beg for alms at sacred places. bhikṣā-nimittam aṭanādināpi parapīḍā syāt.

AITAREYA UPANIṢAD

The Aitareya Upaniṣad belongs to the Rg Veda and the Upaniṣad proper consists of three chapters. This is part of the Aitareya Āraṇyaka, and the Upaniṣad begins with the Fourth Chapter of the second Āraṇyaka, and comprises Chapters IV, V and VI. The preceding parts deal with sacrificial ceremonies like the mahāvṛata and their interpretations. It is the purpose of the Upaniṣad to lead the mind of the sacrificer away from the outer ceremonial to its inner meaning. All true sacrifice is inward. Ś points out that there are three classes of men who wish to acquire wisdom. The highest consists of those who have turned away from the world, whose minds are freed and collected, who are eager for freedom. For these the Upaniṣad (Āitareya Āraṇyaka II. 4-6) is intended. There are others who wish to become free gradually by attaining to the world of Hiranya-garbha. For them the knowledge and worship of prāṇa, life-breath is intended. (Āitareya Āraṇyaka II. 1-3). There are still others who care only for worldly possessions. For them the meditative worship of the Samhitā is intended. (Āitareya Āraṇyaka III).¹

INVOCATION

1. vāñ me manasi pratiṣṭhitā, mano me vāci pratiṣṭhitam; āvir āvir ma edhi: vedasya ma āñisthah. śrutam me mā prahāsīh. anenādhūtenāhorātrāñ sañdadhāmy, riññ vadiṣyāmi. satyañ vadiṣyāmi: tañ mām avatu, tad vaktārañ avatu, avatu mām, avatu vaktārañ, avatu vaktārañ. Aum, śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ.

1. My speech is well established in my mind. My mind is well established in my speech. O Thou manifest one, be manifest for me. Be a nail for my Veda. Do not let go my learning. By this that has been studied, I maintain days and nights. I will speak of the right. I will speak of the true. May that protect me. May that protect the speaker. Let that protect me. Let that protect the speaker. Let that protect the speaker. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

be a nail: let the spirit of the Scriptures be constantly present.

CHAPTER I

Section I

THE CREATION OF THE COSMIC PERSON

1. ātmā vā idam eka evāgra āsīt, nānyat kiñ cana miśat. sa aikṣata lokān nu sṛjā iti.

1. The self, verily, was (all) this, one only, in the beginning. Nothing else whatsoever winked. He thought, 'let me now create the worlds.'

See B.U. I. 4. 1.

idam: (all) this, the manifested universe.

one only: Everything is derived from ātman to which there is no second.

'Nothing else whatsoever winked.' This is by way of refutation of the Sāṃkhya dualism. The non-being of matter which is assumed for explaining creation is not external to the Supreme.

2. sa imāṇi lokān asṛjata, ambho marīcīr maram apo'do'mbhaḥ pareṇa divam; dyauḥ pratiṣṭhā, antarikṣam marīcayāḥ, pṛthivī maro ya adhasiāt tā āpaḥ.

2. He created these worlds, water, light rays, death and the waters. This water is above the heaven. The heaven is its support. The light rays are the atmosphere. Death is the earth. What are beneath, they are the waters.

Earth is called mara or death, because all beings on earth die. mriyante asmin bhūtāni.

'Although the worlds are composed of the five elements, still from the preponderance of water, they are called by names meaning water such as ambhas, etc.' Ś.

3. sa iṅksata ime nu lokā, loka-pālān nu sṛjā iti; so'dbhya eva puruṣam samuddhṛtyāmūrchayat.

3. He thought, 'Here then are the worlds. Let me now create the guardians of the worlds.' From the waters themselves, he drew forth the person and gave him a shape.

4. tam abhyatapat. tasyābhītapasya mukham nirabhidhyata yathāṇḍam: mukhād vāg, vāco'gnir nāsike nirabhidhyetām, nāsikābhyām prāṇaḥ, prāṇād vāyuh, akṣinī nirabhidhyetām, akṣibhyām cakṣuḥ, cakṣuṣa ādityaḥ, karmāu nirabhidhyetām, karmābhyām śrotram, śrotrād diśaḥ, tvān nirabhidhyata, tvaco lomāni, lomabhyā oṣadhi-vanaspatayah, hṛdayam nirabhidhyata hṛdayān manāḥ, manasas candramāḥ, nābhīr nirabhidyata, nābhīyā apānaḥ, apānān mṛtyuḥ, śiśnam nirabhidyata, śiśnad retāḥ, retasa āpaḥ.

4. He brooded over him. Of him who has thus been brooded over, the mouth was separated out, like an egg. From the mouth speech, from speech fire. The nostrils were separated out: from the nostrils breath, from breath air. The eyes were separated out: from the eyes sight, from sight the sun. The ears were separated out: from the ears hearing and from hearing the quarters of space. The skin was separated out: from the skin the hairs, from the hairs plants and trees. The heart was separated out: from the heart the mind and from the mind, the moon. The navel was separated out: from the navel, the outbreath, from the outbreath death. The generative organ was separated out: from it semen, from semen water.

like an egg: as is the case with an egg when it is hatched: 'yathā pakṣiṇaḥ aṇḍam nirbhidyate evam. Ś.

Section 2

THE COSMIC POWERS IN THE HUMAN PERSON

1. tā etā devatāḥ sṛṣṭā asmin mahaty arṇave prāpātan tam aśanāyā-pipāsābhyām anvavārjat; tā enam abruvann, āyatanam naḥ prajānīhi yasmin pratiṣṭhitā annam adām eti.

1. These divinities thus created fell into this great ocean. (The self) subjected that (person) to hunger and thirst. They said to him (the creator), 'Find out for us an abode, wherein established we may eat food.'

arṇave: in the ocean: saṃsāra is generally compared to an ocean. saṃsārārṇave, saṃsāra-samudre. Ś.
prāpātan: fell, patitavatyah. Ś.

2. tābhyo gām ānayat tā abruvan, na vai no'yam alam iti. tābhyo 'śvam ānayat tā abruvan, na vai no'yam alam iti.

2. For them, he brought a cow. They said, 'Indeed this is not enough for us.' For them he brought a horse. They said, 'Indeed this is not enough for us.'

gām: gavākṛtivistīṣṭam piṇḍam. Ś.

3. tābhyah puruṣam ānayat tā abruvan, sukṛtam bateti. puruṣo vā va sukṛtam, tā abravīd, yathāyatanam praviśateti.

3. For them he brought a person. They said, 'Well done indeed.' A person verily is (what is) well done. He said to them, 'enter into your respective abodes.'

4. agnir vāg bhūtvā mukham prāviśad, vāyuh prāṇo bhūtvā nāsike prāviśad, ādityas cakṣur bhūtvākṣiṇi prāviśad, diśaḥ śrotram bhūtvā karṇau prāviśann, oṣadhi-vanaspatayo lomāni bhūtvā tvacam prāviśamś candramā mano bhūtvā hṛdayam prāviśan, mṛtyur apāno bhūtvā nābhim prāviśad, āpo reto bhūtvā śiśnam prāviśan.

4. Fire, becoming speech, entered the mouth. Air becoming breath, entered the nostrils. The sun, becoming sight, entered the eyes. The quarters of space, becoming hearing, entered the ears. Plants and trees, becoming hairs, entered the skin. The moon, becoming the mind, entered the heart. Death, becoming the outbreath, entered the navel: water becoming semen entered the generative organ.

5. tam aśanāyā-pipāse abrūtām āvābhyām abhiprajānīhīti. te abravīt, etāsv eva vām devatāsvābhajāmy, etāsu bhāginyau karomīti: tasmād yasyai kasyai ca devatāyai havir grhyate bhāginyā vevāśyām aśanāyā-pipāse bhavatah.

5. To him (the creator), hunger and thirst said, 'For us (also) find out an abode.' He said to them, 'I assign you a place in these divinities and make you sharers with them. Therefore to whatever divinity an offering is made, hunger and thirst become partakers in it.'

Section 3

THE CREATION OF FOOD AND THE INABILITY OF VARIOUS PERSONAL FUNCTIONS TO GET AT IT

1. sa iṅsataime nu lokāś ca loka-pālāś cānnam ebhyaḥ sṛjā iti.

1. He thought, 'Here are the worlds and the guardians of the worlds. Let me create food for them.'

2. so'po'bhyatapat: tābhyo'bhitaptābhyo mūrtir ajāyata, yā vai sā mūrtir ajāyatānnam vai tat.

2. He brooded over the waters and from the waters so brooded over issued a form. That whichever was produced as that form is, verily, food.

3. tad enad abhisṛṣṭam parāntyajighāmsat: tad vācājighṛkṣat tan nāśaknod vācā grahītum; sa yad hainad vācāgrahaiṣyad , abhivyāhṛtya haivānnam atrapsyat.

3. This, so created wished to flee away. (The person) sought to seize it with speech. He was not able to take hold of it by speech. If, indeed, he had taken hold of it by speech, even with speech, one would have had the satisfaction of food.

By merely talking of food, one will not be satisfied.

ajighṛkṣat: sought to seize, grahītum aicchat. Ś.

atrapsyat: would have had satisfaction. typto'bhaviṣyat. Ś.

4. tat prānenājighṛkṣat, tan nāśaknot prānena grahītum; sa yad hainat prānenāgrahaiṣyad abhiprānya haivānnam atrapsyat.

4. (The person) sought to seize it with breath. He was not able to take hold of it by breath. If, indeed, he had taken hold of it by breath, even with breath one would have had the satisfaction of food.

By merely breathing toward food, no satisfaction of the appetite is possible.

5. tac cakṣuṣājighṛkṣat, tan nāśaknoc cakṣuṣā grahītum, sa yad hainac cakṣuṣāgrahaiṣyad dṛṣtvā haivānnam atrapsyat.

5. (The person) sought to seize it with sight. He was not able to take hold of it by sight. If, indeed, he had taken hold of it by sight, even with the sight (of food) one would have had the satisfaction of food.

6. tac chrotrenājighṛkṣat, tan nāśaknoc chrotrena grahītum; sa yad hainac chrotrenāgrahaiṣyac chrutvā haivānnam atrapsyat.

6. (The person) sought to seize it with hearing. He was not able to take hold of it by hearing. If indeed, he had taken hold of it by hearing, even with the hearing (of food), one would have had the satisfaction of food.

7. tat tvacājighṛkṣat, tan nāśaknot tvacā grahītum; sa yad hainat tvacāgrahaiṣyat spṛṣtvā haivānnam atrapsyat.

7. (The person) sought to seize it by the skin. He was not able to take hold of it by the skin. If, indeed, he had taken hold of it by the skin, even with the skin (i.e. by touching food) one would have had the satisfaction of food.

8. tan manasājighṛkṣat, tan nāśaknon manasā grahītum; sa yad hainan manasāgrahaiṣyad dhyātvā haivānnam atrapsyat.

8. (The person) sought to seize it by the mind. He was not able to take hold of it by the mind. If, indeed, he had taken hold of it by the mind, even with the mind (i.e. by thinking of food), one would have had the satisfaction of food.

9. tac chiśnenājighṛkṣat, tan nāśaknoc chiśnena grahītum; sa yad hainac chiśnenāgrahaiśyad viśṛjya haivānnam atrapsyat.

9. (The person) sought to see it by the generative organ. He was not able to take hold of it by the generative organ. If, indeed, he had taken hold of it by the generative organ, even by emission one would have had the satisfaction of food.

10. tad apānenājighṛkṣat, tad āvayat, saiśo'nnasya graho yad vāyur annāyur vā eṣa yad vāyuh.

10. Then, the person, sought to seize it by the out-breath. He got it. The grasper of food is what air is. This one living on food, is, verily, what air is.

annāyuh: anna-bandhano anna-jivano vai prasiddhaḥ. Ś.

THE ENTRANCE OF THE SELF INTO THE BODY

11. sa īkṣata: katham nvidam madrte syād iti. sa īkṣata, katarena prapadyā iti. sa īkṣata, yadi vācābhivyañṛtam; yadi prānenābhi-prāṇitam, yadi cakṣuṣā drṣtam, yadi śrotrena śrutam, yadi tvacā sprṣtam, yadi manasā dhyātam, yady apānenābhyapāṇitam, yadi śiśnena viśṛtam, atha ko'ham iti.

11. He thought, How can this food exist without me? He thought, through what (way) shall I enter it? He thought (again), If speaking is through speech, if breathing is through breath, if seeing is through the eyes, hearing is through the ears, if touching is through the skin, if meditation is through the mind, if breathing out is through the outbreath, if emission is through the generative organ, then who am I?

Speech, etc., are effects and serve a master. The body is like a city and there must be a lord of the city: kārya-kāraṇa-saṃghāta-lakṣaṇam puram. It is for the enjoyer, svāmy-artham. So the enjoyer must enter the body. So the question is raised, 'through what way shall I enter it?' 'The forepart of the foot and the crown of the head are the two ways of entrance into this body, the collection of several parts. By which of these two ways shall I enter this city, this bundle of causes and effects?' Ś.

12. sa etam eva sīmānam vidāryaitayā dvārā prāpadyata, saiśa vidṛtir nāma dvāḥ, tad etan nāndanam; tasya traya āva- sathās trayāḥ svapnāḥ, ayam āvasatho'yam āvasatho'yam āvasatha iti.

12. After opening that very end (of the head), by that way he entered. This is the opening known as vidyā. This is the pleasing. For that, there are three abodes; three kinds of dreams as: this is the abode; this is the abode; this is the abode.

śīman: the very end (of the head), the sagittal suture. This is the highest centre of spiritual consciousness, called the sahasrā, the thousand-petalled lotus. It is said to be situated in the centre of the brain:

sa sraṣṭeśvara etam eva mūrdhasīmānam keśa-vibhāgāvasānam vidārya cchidram kṛtvā etayā dvārā mārgena imam lokam kārya-kāraṇa-saṃghātam prāpadyata praviveśa. Ś.

three kinds of dreams: Reference is to the three conditions of waking, dream and deep sleep of the Māṇḍūkya U. The ordinary condition of waking is said to be a dream as distinguished from the state of enlightenment.

Ś explains that the right eye is the abode during the waking state: the inner mind (antar-manas) during dream and the space of the heart (hṛdayākāśa) during profound sleep. He offers an alternative interpretation. The three abodes are the body of one's father, the womb of one's mother and one's own body.

13. sa jāto bhūtāny abhivyaikhyat kim ihānyam vāvaḍiṣad iti, sa etam eva puruṣam brahma tatamam apaśyat, idam ādarśam iti.

13. He, being born, perceived the created beings, what else here would one desire to speak? He perceived this very person Brahman all-pervading, 'I have seen this,' he said.

tatamam: all-pervading, takārenaikena luptena tatatamam, vyāptatamam paripūrṇam ākāśavat. Ś.

14. tasmād idandro nāmedandro ha vai nāma tam idandram santam indra ity ācakṣate parokṣeṇa, parokṣa-priyā iva hi devāḥ.

14. Therefore his name is Idandra. Indeed, Idandra is the name. Of him who is Idandra, they speak indirectly (cryptically) as Indra. Gods appear indeed to be fond of the cryptic.

idandra: the perceiver of this.

indra: is a word denoting an object beyond the range of vision.

CHAPTER II

THREE BIRTHS OF THE SELF

1. puruṣe ha vā ayam ādito garbho bhavati, yad etad retas tad etat sarvebhyo'ṅgebhyas tejah sambhūtam, ātmany evātmānam vibharti, tad yathā striyām siñcaty athainaj janayati, tad asya prathamam janma.

1. In a person, indeed, this one first becomes an embryo. That which is semen is the vigour come together from all the limbs. In the self, indeed, one bears a self. When he sheds this in a woman, he then gives it birth. That is its first birth.

2. tat striyā ātmabhūyam gacchati, yathā svam aṅgam tathā, tasmād enām na hinasti, sāsyaitam ātmānam atra gataṁ bhāvayati.

2. It becomes one with the woman, just as a limb of her own. Therefore it does not hurt her. She nourishes this self of his that has come into her.

bhāvayati: nourishes, vardhayati, paripālayati Ś.

3. sā bhāvayatṛī bhāvayatavyā bhavati, taṁ strī garbham vibharti, so'gra eva kumāraṁ janmano'gre'dhi bhāvayati, sa yat kumāraṁ janmano'gre'dhibhāvayaty ātmānam eva tad bhāvayaty eṣāṁ lokānāṁ saṁtatya evaṁ saṁtatā hīme lokāḥ, tad asya dvitīyam janma.

3. She, being the nourisher, should be nourished. The woman bears him as an embryo. He nourishes the child before birth and after the birth. While he nourishes the child before birth and after the birth, he thus nourishes his own self, for the continuation of these worlds; for thus are these worlds continued. This is one's second birth.

agre: before (birth), prāg janmanah. Ś.

adhi: after (birth), ūrdhvaṁ janmanah. Ś.

ātmānam: his own self. The father is said to be born as the son. pitur ātmaiva hi putra-rūpeṇa jāyate. Ś.

4. so'syāyam ātmā puṇyebhyaḥ karmabhyaḥ pratidhīyate, athāsyāyam itara ātmā kṛta-kṛtyo vayo-gataḥ praiti, sa itaḥ prayann eva punar jāyate, tad asya tṛtīyam janma. tad uktam ṛṣinā.

4. He (the son) who is one self of his (father) is made his substitute for (performing) pious deeds. Then the other self of his (father's) having accomplished his work, having reached his age, departs. So departing hence, he is, indeed, born again. That is his third birth. That has been stated by the seer.

prayann eva: departing, śarīram parityajann eva. Ś.

5. garbhe nu sann anveṣām avedam ahaṁ devānām janimāni viśvā, śatam mā pura āyasīr arakṣann aghaḥ śyeno jivasā niradīyam

iti, garbha evaitac chayāno vāma-deva evam uvāca.

5. 'While I was in the womb, I knew all the births of the gods. A hundred strongholds made of steel guarded me. I burst out of it, with the swiftness of a hawk.' Vāma-deva spoke this verse even when he was lying in the womb.

6. sa evaṁ vidvān asmāc charīra-bhedād ūrdhva utkramy- āmuṣmīn svarge loke sarvān kāmān āptvāmṛtaḥ samabhavat, samabhavat.

6. He, knowing thus and springing upward, when the body is dissolved, enjoyed all desires in that world of heaven and became immortal, yea, became (immortal).

CHAPTER III

1. ko'yaṃ ātmeti vyaṃ upāsmahe, katarah sa ātmā, yena vā paśyati, yena vā śṛṇoti, yena vā gandhān ājighrati, yena vā vācān vyākaroti, yena vā svādu cāśvādu ca vijānāti.

1. 'Who is this one?' 'We worship him as the self.' 'Which one is the self?' 'He by whom one sees, or by whom one hears, or by whom one smells odours, or by whom one articulates speech or by whom one discriminates the sweet and the unsweet.'

Another reading will give 'Who is he whom we worship as the self? Which one is the self? He by whom . . .'

2. yad etad hṛdayam manaś caitat, saṃjñānam ājñānam vijñānam prajñānam medhā dṛṣṭir dhytir matir manīṣā jūtiḥ smṛtiḥ saṃkalpaḥ kratuḥ asuḥ kāmo vaśa iti sarvāṇy evaitāni prajñānasya nāma-dheyāni bhavanti.

2. That which is heart, this mind, that is consciousness, perception, discrimination, intelligence, wisdom, insight, steadfastness, thought, thoughtfulness, impulse, memory, conception, purpose, life, desire, control, all these, indeed, are names of intelligence.

Here we find a classification of various mental functions, the different kinds of perception, conception, intuition as well as feeling and will.

3. eṣa brahmaiṣa indra, eṣa prajā-patir ete sarve devā imāni ca pañca mahābhūtāni, pṛthivī vāyur ākāśa āpo jyotiḥśīty etāni māni ca kṣudra-miśrāṇi, bijānūtarāni cetarāni cāṇḍajāni jārujāni ca svedajāni codbhijjāni cāsvā gāvaḥ puruṣa hastino yat kiñ cedam prāni jaṅgamaṃ ca patairī ca yac ca sthāvaram, sarvaṃ tat prajñā-netram prajñāne pratiṣṭhitam, prajñā-netro lokaḥ prajñā pratiṣṭhā, prajñānam brahma.

3. He is Brahmā, he is Indra; he is Prajā-pati, he is all these gods; and these five great elements, namely, earth, air, ether, water, light; these things and these which are mingled of the fire, as it were, the seeds of one sort and another; those born from an egg, and those born from a womb, and those born from sweat, and those born from a sprout; horses, cows, persons and elephants, whatever breathing thing there is here, whether moving or flying or what is stationary. All this is guided by intelligence, is established in intelligence. The world is guided by intelligence. The support is intelligence. Brahmā is intelligence.

 prajā-patiḥ: yaḥ prathamajah sarīrī.*

Intelligence is said to be the basis of all existence and the final reality. We see here the anticipations of the Buddhist Vijñānavāda.

4. sa etena prajñenātmanāsmāl lokād utkramyāmuṣmin svarge loke sarvān kāmān āptvāmṛtaḥ samabhavat, samabhavat.

4. He, with this intelligent self, soared upward from this world and having enjoyed all desires in that world of heaven became immortal, yea became (immortal).

he: the sage Vāma-deva.

TAITTIRĪYA UPANIṢAD

The Taittirīya Upaniṣad belongs to the Taittirīya school of the Yajur Veda. It is divided into three sections called Vallis. The first is the Sikṣā Valli. Sikṣā is the first of the six Vedāṅgas (limbs or auxiliaries of the Veda); it is the science of phonetics and pronunciation. The second is the Brahmānanda Valli and the third is the Bhṛgu Valli. These two deal with the knowledge of the Supreme Self, paramātma-jñāna.

ŚIKṢĀ VALLI

CHAPTER I

Section I

INVOCATION

1. hariḥ aum. śaṁ no mitraś śaṁ varuṇaḥ, śaṁ no bhavaty aryamā, śaṁ na indro brhaspatiḥ, śaṁ no viṣṇur uru-kramah; namo brahmaṇe, namas te vāyo, tvam eva pratyakṣam brahmāsi, tvām eva pratyakṣam brahma vadiśyāmi, ṛtaṁ vadiśyāmi, satyaṁ vadiśyāmi; tan mām avatu, tad vaktāram avatu, avatu mām, avatu vaktāram, aum śāntiḥ śāntiḥ śāntiḥ.

1. Aum, May Mitra (the sun) be propitious to us; may Varuṇa (be) propitious (to us). May Aryamān (a form of the sun) be propitious to us; May Indra and Brhaspati be propitious to us; May Viṣṇu, of wide strides, be propitious to us.

Salutation to Brahmā. Salutation to thee, O Vāyu. Thou, indeed, art the visible (perceptible) Brahman. Of thee, indeed, the perceptible Brahman, will I speak. I will speak of the right. I will speak of the true; may that protect me; may that protect the speaker. Let that protect me; let that protect the speaker. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

This is the first section. It is an invocation to God to remove the obstacles in the way of attaining spiritual wisdom. para-vidyām ārabhamāṇo vighna-śāntyai devatāḥ prārthayate. R.

See R.V. I. 90. 9.

uru-kramah: of wide strides. vistīrṇa-kramah. Ś. It is a reference to Viṣṇu's incarnation as Trivikrama or Vāmana whose strides were wide. Śānti or peace is repeated thrice, with reference to ādhyātmika, ādhibhautika and ādhidaiivika aspects. Ś.

Section 2

LESSON ON PRONUNCIATION

2. śikṣām vyākhyāsyāmaḥ: varṇas svarāḥ, mātrā balam, sāma santānaḥ, ity uktas śikṣādhyaḥ.

2. We will expound pronunciation, letters or sounds, pitch, quantity, force or stress, articulation, combination. Thus has been declared the lesson on pronunciation.

One must learn to recite the text of the Upaniṣads carefully and so a lesson in pronunciation is given. We must learn the text before we can ascertain its meaning: vastūpāsanaṁ hitvā prathamataḥ śabdopāsana-vidhāne. Ā.

Section 3

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF COMBINATIONS

1. saha nau yaśaḥ, saha nau brahma-varcasam; athā tat saṁhitāyā upaniṣadaṁ vyākhyāsyāmaḥ;

pañcasv adhikarāṇesu, adhilokam, adhiḥyotiṣam, adhividyam, adhiprajam, adhyātmam: etā mahāsaṁhitā ity ācakṣate; athādhilokam, pṛthivī pūrva-rūpam, dyaur uttara-rūpam, ākāśas sandhīḥ, vāyus saṁdhānam: ity adhilokam.

1. May glory be with us both, may the splendour of Brahma-knowledge be with us both.

Now next we will expound the sacred teaching of combination under five heads, with regard to the world, with regard to the luminaries, with regard to knowledge, with regard to progeny, with regard to oneself. These are great combinations, they say.

Now with regard to the world: the earth is the prior form, the heaven the latter form, the ether is their junction, the air is the connection. Thus with regard to the world.

brahma-varcasam: the splendour of brahma-knowledge. In Lalita-vistara we are told that when the Buddha was in saṁādhi, a ray called the ornament of the light of gnosis moved above his head, jñāna-lokālaṅkāraṁ nāma raśmiḥ. Cp. B.G. XIV. 11.

saṁhitā: a conjunction of two words or letters of the text. The mind of the pupil is directed to the symbolic significance.

Master and disciple pray that the light of sacred knowledge may illumine them both, that they both may attain the glory of wisdom.

2. athādhiḥyautiṣam: agniḥ pūrva-rūpam, āditya uttara-rūpam, āpas sandhīḥ, vaidyutas saṁdhānam: ity adhiḥyautiṣam.

2. Now as to the luminaries; fire is the prior form, sun the latter form. Water is their junction, lightning is the connection. Thus with regard to the luminaries.

3. athādhividyam: ācaryaḥ pūrva-rūpam, antevāsy uttara-rūpam, vidyā sandhiḥ, pravacanas saṁdhānam: ity adhividyam.

3. Now as to knowledge: the teacher is the prior form; the pupil is the latter form, knowledge is their junction; instruction is the connection. Thus with regard to knowledge.

Patañjali in his Mahābhāṣya (Kielhorn's ed., p. 6) says there are four steps or stages through which knowledge becomes fruitful. The first is when we acquire it from the teacher, the second when we study it, the third when we teach it to others and the fourth when we apply it. Real knowledge arises only when these four stages are fulfilled: caturbhiḥ ca prakārair vidyopayuktā bhavaty āgama-kālena svādhyāya-kālena pravacana-kālena vyavahāra-kāleneti.

4. athādhiprajam: mātā pūrva-rūpam, pitottara-rūpam prajā sandhiḥ, prajananas saṁdhānam. ity adhiprajam.

4. Now with regard to progeny: the mother is the prior form, the father is the latter form: progeny is their junction, procreation is the connection. Thus with regard to progeny.

5. athādhyātmam: adharā-hanuḥ pūrva-rūpam, uttarā-hanur uttara-rūpam, vāk sandhiḥ, jihvā saṁdhānam: ity adhyātmam.

5. Now with regard to the self: the lower jaw is the prior form, the upper jaw is the latter form, speech is the junction, the tongue is the connection. Thus with regard to the self.

6. itīmā mahāsaṁhitāḥ, ya evam etā mahāsaṁhitā vyākhyātā veda saṁdhīyate prajāyā paśubhiḥ, brahma-varcasenānnādyena suvargena lokena.

6. These are the great combinations. He who knows these great combinations thus expounded becomes endowed with offspring, cattle, with the splendour of Brahma—knowledge, with food to eat, and with the heavenly world.

He will prosper here and hereafter.

Section 4

A TEACHER'S PRAYER

I. yaś chandasām ṛṣabho viśva-rūpaḥ chandobhyo'dhyamṛtāt sambabhūva sa mendo medhayā spruṇotu amṛtasya deva dhāraṇo bhūyāsam.

śarīram me vicarsanam, jīhvā me madhumattamā, karnābhyām bhūri viśruvam, brahmaṇaḥ kośo'si medhayāpihitah, śrutam me gopāya.

1. May that Indra who is the greatest in the Vedic hymns, who is of all forms, who has sprung into being from immortal hymns, may he cheer me with intelligence, O God, may I be the possessor of immortality.

May my body be very vigorous; may my tongue be exceeding sweet; may I hear abundantly with my ears. Thou art the sheath of Brahman, veiled by intelligence. Guard for me what I have heard.

This is a prayer for acquiring retentiveness and for physical and moral health.

The syllable aum is pre-eminent among the Vedic hymns. It is 'of all forms' as the whole universe is its manifestation. 'Of Brahman, of the Paramātman or the Highest Self, Thou art the sheath, as of a sword, being the seat of His manifestation.' Ś.

madhumattamā: exceeding sweet. madhumatī, atiśayena madhura-bhāṣiṇī. Ś.

2. āvahantī vitanvānā, kurvāṇācīram ātmanaḥ vāsāṃsi mama gāvaś ca annapāne ca sarvadā tato me śriyam āvaha lomaśām paśubhis saha svāhā. ā māyantu brahmacāriṇaḥ svāhā, vi māyantu brahmacāriṇas svāhā, pra māyantu brahmacāriṇas svāhā, da māyantu brahmacāriṇas svāhā, sa māyantu brahmacāriṇas svāhā.

2. Bringing to me and increasing always clothes and cattle, food and drink, doing this long, do thou, then, bring to me prosperity in wool along with cattle. May students of sacred knowledge come to me from every side. Hail. May students of sacred knowledge come to me variously. Hail. May students of sacred knowledge come to me well equipped. Hail. May students of sacred knowledge come to me self-controlled. Hail. May students of sacred knowledge come to me peaceful. Hail.

acīram: soon, presently, acīram, kṣīpram eva. Ś.

To the undisciplined, wealth is a source of evil: amedhaso hi śrīr anarthāyaiveti. Ś. Not so to the disciplined. What matters is not the possession or non-possession of wealth but the attitude to it. We may possess wealth and be indifferent to it; we may possess no wealth and yet be concerned with securing it by any means. There is no worship of poverty.

Vasiṣṭha tells Rāma:—

antaram nābhijānāmi nirāhanasya mṛtasya ca.*

Acquire wealth. This world has for its root wealth. I do not see the difference between a poor man and a dead one.

3. yaśo jane'sāni svāhā, śreyān vasyaso'sāni svāhā, tam tvā bhaga praviśāni svāhā, sa mā, bhaga, praviśa svāhā, tasmīn sahasra-śākhe ni bhagāham tvayi mrje svāhā, yathāpah pravatā yanti, yathā māsā aharjaram, evaṁ mām brahmācārīṇaḥ, dhātārāyantu sarvatas svāhā, prativeśo'si pra mā bhāhi pra mā padyasva.

3. May I become famous among men. Hail.

May I be more renowned than the very rich. Hail.

Into thee thyself, O Gracious Lord, may I enter. Hail.

Do thou thyself, O Gracious Lord, enter into me. Hail.

In that self of thine, of a thousand branches, O Gracious Lord, am I cleansed. Hail.

As waters run downward, as months into the year, so into me, may students of sacred knowledge come,

O Disposer of all, come from every side. Hail.

Thou art a refuge, to me do thou shine forth; unto me do thou come.

of a thousand branches: the different hymns and the gods meant by them are varied expressions of the Divine One.

praviśāmi: I enter. The knowledge of God is said to be a penetration of God into the inmost substance of the soul. When God is conceived as external to the individual, in heaven or in Olympus, when our feeling towards Him is one of love and respect, inspired by His majesty and power, our religion of fear, obedience and even love is external. When, on the other hand, we are driven by an inner lack or insufficiency, when we cry for the highest reality or God which or who comes into us, enters us, removes our dross, when we unite ourselves to Him, our religion becomes inward, mystical. The mystic longs for inner completion by participation which is the real meaning of imitation. This is not always accompanied by ecstatic rapture. It may be a quiet sense of union which may have a few high points of emotion. Cp. John Ruysbroeck: 'In this storm of love two spirits strive together; the spirit of God and our own spirit. God, through the Holy Ghost, inclines Himself towards us; and thereby we are touched in love. And our spirit, by God's working and by the power of love, presses and inclines itself into God; and thereby God is touched. These two spirits, that is, our own spirit and the spirit of God, sparkle and shine one into the other, and each shows to the other its face. . . . Each demands of the other all that it is; and each offers to the other all that it is, and invites it to all that it is. This makes the lovers melt into each other. . . . Thereby the spirit is burned up in the fire of love, and enters so deeply into the touch of God, that it is overcome in all its cravings, and turned to nought in all its works, and empties itself.' Adornment of the Spiritual Marriage, II. 54.

Section 5

THE FOURFOLD MYSTIC UTTERANCES

1. bhūr bhuvas suvaḥ iti vā etās tisro vyāhṛtayaḥ, tāsām u ha smaitāṃ caturthīm, mähācamasyaḥ, pravedayate, maha iti, tad brahma, sa ātmā, aṅgāny anyā devatāḥ, bhūr iti vā ayaṃ lokāḥ, bhuva ity antarikṣam, suvar ity asau lokāḥ, maha ity ādityaḥ, ādityena vā va sarve lokā mahīyante.

1. Bhūh, Bhuvah, suvaḥ, verily these are the three utterances of them; verily, that one, the fourth, mahaḥ, did the son of Mahācamasa make known. That is Brahman, that is the self, its limbs (are) the other gods.

Bhūh is this world; Bhuvah, the atmosphere; Suvaḥ is the yonder world; mahaḥ is the sun; by the sun indeed do all worlds become great.

Vyāhṛtis are so called because they are uttered in various rituals. Its limbs the other gods: mahaḥ is Brahman, the Absolute; it is the self; all other gods are subordinate to the Absolute.

2. bhūr iti vā agniḥ, bhuva iti vāyuh, suvar ity ādityaḥ, maha iti candramāḥ, candramasā vā va sarvāṇi jyotiṃsi mahīyante.

2. Bhūh, verily, is fire; Bhuvah is the air; Suvaḥ is the sun; mahaḥ is the moon; by the moon, indeed, do all the luminaries become great.

3. bhūr iti vā ṛcaḥ, bhuva iti sāmāni, suvar iti yajūṃsi, maha iti brahma, brahmaṇā vā va sarve vedā mahīyante.

3. Bhūh, verily, is the Ṛg verses; Bhuvah is the Sāman chants, Suvaḥ is the Yajus formulas. Mahaḥ is Brahman. By Brahman indeed, do all the Vedas become great.

4. bhūr iti vai prāṇaḥ, bhuva ity apānaḥ, suvar iti vyānaḥ, maha ity annam, annena vāva sarve prāṇā mahīyante.

4. Bhūh is the inbreath; Bhuvah is the outbreath; Suvaḥ is the diffused breath, mahaḥ is the food. By food, indeed, do all the vital breaths become great.

5. tā vā etāś catasraś caturdhā, catasraś catasro vyāhṛtayah, tā yo veda, sa veda brahma, sarvesmai devā balim āvahanti.

5. Verily, these four are fourfold. The utterances are four and four. He who knows these knows Brahman. To him all the gods offer tribute.

Section 6

CONTEMPLATION OF BRAHMA

1. sa ya eṣo'ntarhrdaya ākāśaḥ, tasminn ayam puruṣo manomayaḥ, amṛto hiraṇmayah, antareṇa tāluke, ya eṣa stana ivāvalambate, sendrayoniḥ, yatrāsau keśānto vivartate, vyāpohya śīrṣa-kapāle, bhūr ity agnau pratitiṣṭhati, bhuva iti vāyau.

1. This space that is within the heart—therein is the Person consisting of mind, immortal and resplendent. That which hangs down between the palates like a nipple, that is the birth-place of Indra; where is the edge of the hair splitting up the skull of the head. In fire, as Bhūh, he rests, in air as Bhuvah.

See M.U. II. 2. 6; Maitrī VI. 30; VII. 11.

hiraṇmayah: resplendent, vyotirmayah. Ś.

Brahman who is said to be remote is here envisaged as close to us. Though the Supreme is present everywhere, here we are taught to look upon Him as residing in one's own heart. Ś. says that the Supreme is said to be in the heart as a help to meditation, even as an image is used for deity. upalabdhyartham upāsanārtham ca hrdayākāśa sthānam ucyate, sālagrama iva viṣṇoḥ. See C.U. VIII. 1-6; III. 14. Here we find a transition from the view that the heart is the seat of the soul to the other view that the brain is the seat of the soul. While the soul is an unextended entity which cannot have a spatial locus, psychologists discuss the nature of the part or parts of the body with which the soul is closely associated.

For Aristotle, the seat of the soul was in the heart.¹

¹ Cp. Hammond: 'The diseases of the heart are the most rapidly and certainly fatal; (2) psychical affections such as fear, sorrow, and joy cause an immediate disturbance of the heart; (3) the heart is the part which is the first to be formed in the embryo.' Aristotle's Psychology quoted in Ranade: A Constructive Survey of the Upaniṣadic Philosophy (1926), p. 131. 'If by the seat of the mind is meant not being more than the locality with which it stands in immediate dynamic relations, we are certain to be right in saying that its seat is somewhere in the cortex of the brain.' William James: Principles of Psychology, Vol. I, p. 214.

The reference here is to the suṣumnā nāḍī of the Yoga system which is said to pass upward from the heart, through the mid region of the throat up to the skull where the roots of the hair lie apart. When it reaches this spot, the nāḍī passes up, breaking up the two regions of the head. That is the birthplace of Indra. indrayoniḥ indrasya brahmaṇaḥ yoniḥ mārgaḥ. Ś. indrasya paramātmāno yoniḥ sthānam. R. It is the path by which we attain our true nature. See Maitrī. VI. 21; B.U. IV. 4. 2.

2. suvar ity āditye, maha iti brahmaṇi, āpnoti svārājyam āpnoti manasas-patim, vāk-patiś cakṣuṣ-patiḥ śrotra-patiḥ vijñāna-patiḥ, etat tato bhavati, ākāśa śarīram brahma, satyātma prāṇā-rāmaṁ mana ānandaṁ śānti samṛddham amṛtaṁ iti prācīna-yogyopāsva.

2. In the sun as Suvah, in Brahman as Mahaḥ. He attains self-rule. He attains to the lord of manas, the lord of speech, the lord of sight, the lord of hearing, the lord of intelligence—this and more he becomes, even Brahman whose body is space, whose self is the real, whose delight is life, whose mind is bliss, who abounds in tranquillity, who is immortal. Thus do thou contemplate, O Prācīnayogya.

He who contemplates in this matter becomes the lord of all organs, the soul of all things and filled with peace and perfection. This passage brings out that the end is greater existence, not death; we should not sterilise our roots and dry up the wells of life. We have to seize and transmute the gifts we possess.

Section 7

THE FIVEFOLD NATURE OF THE WORLD AND THE INDIVIDUAL

1. prthivy antarikṣaṁ dyauḥ diśo vā avāntaradiśāḥ, agnir vāyur ādityaś candramā nakṣatrāṇi, āpa oṣadhayo vanaspataya ākāśa ātmā ity adhibhūtam.

athādhyātmam, prāṇovyānopāna udānas samānaḥ cakṣuṣ śrotraṁ mano vāk tvak, carma māṁsaṁ snāvāsthi majjā etad adhivīdhāya ṛṣir avocat. pāṅktaṁ vā idaṁ sarvaṁ pāṅktenaiva pāṅktaṁs sprṇoti.

1. Earth, atmosphere, heaven, the (main) quarters and the intermediate quarters.

Fire, air, sun, moon and stars.

Water, plants, trees, ether and the body.

Thus with regard to material existence.

Now with regard to the self.

prāṇa, vyāna, apāna, udāna and samāna sight, hearing, mind, speech, touch skin, flesh, muscle, bone, marrow.

Having ordained in this manner, the sage said: Fivefold verily, is this all. With the fivefold, indeed, does one win the fivefold.

See B.U. I. 4. 17.

Section 8

CONTEMPLATION OF AUM

1. aum iti brahma, aum itīdāni sarvaṃ, aum ity etad anukṛtir ha sma vā apyo śrāvayetyāśrāvayanti, aum iti sāmāni gāyanti, aum somiti śastrāṇi śaṃśanti, aum ity adhvaryuḥ, pratigaram pratigṛṇāti, aum iti brahma prasauti, aum ity agnihotram anujānāti, aum iti brāhmaṇaḥ pravakṣyann āha, brahmopāpna-vānīti, brahmaivopāpnoti.

1. Aum is Brahman. Aum is this all. Aum, this, verily, is compliance. On uttering, 'recite,' they recite. With aum, they sing the sāman chants. With aum, śom, they recite the prayers. With aum the Advaryu priest utters the response. With aum does the Brahmā (priest) utter the introductory eulogy. With aum, one assents to the offering to fire. With aum, a Brahmaṇa begins to recite, may I obtain Brahman; thus wishing, Brahman, verily, does he obtain.

'The praṇava which is a mere sound, is, no doubt, insentient in itself and cannot therefore be conscious of the worship offered to it; still, as in the case of the worship offered to an image, it is the Supreme (Īśvara) who, in all cases, takes note of the act and dispenses the fruits thereof.' Ā.

Aum is the symbol of both Brahman and Īśvara.
pratimeva viṣṇoḥ. Ś. pratimādy arcana iva sarvatra īśvara eva. phala-dātā. Ā.

Section 9

STUDY AND TEACHING OF THE SACRED SYLLABLE
THE MOST IMPORTANT OF ALL DUTIES

I. ṛtaṁ ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, satyaṁ ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, tapaś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, damaś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, śamaś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, agnayaś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, agnihotraṁ ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, atihayaś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, mānuṣaṁ ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, prajā ca svādhyāya pravacane ca.

prajānaś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca, prajātiś ca svādhyāya pravacane ca.

satyaṁ iti satyavacā rāthītaraḥ, tapa iti taponityaḥ pauruṣiṣṭiḥ, svādhyāya pravacane eveti nāko maudgalyaḥ, taddhi tapaś taddhi tapaḥ.

1. The right and also study and teaching; the true and also study and teaching; austerity and also study and teaching; self-control and also study and teaching; tranquillity and also study and teaching; the (sacrificial) fires and also study and teaching; the agni-hotra (sacrifice) and also study and teaching; guests and also study and teaching; humanity and also study and teaching; offspring and also study and teaching; begetting and also study and teaching; propagation of the race and also study and teaching.

The true, says Satyavacas (the Truthful) the son of Rathītara: austerity says Taponitya (ever devoted to austerity), the son of Pauruṣiṣṭi, study and teaching alone, says Nāka (painless), the son of Mudgala. That, verily, is austerity, aye, that is austerity.

pravacana: adhyāpanam, teaching.

dama: bāhyakaraṇopāśamaḥ, self-control.

śama: antahkaraṇopāśamaḥ, (inner) tranquillity.

Knowledge is not sufficient by itself. We must perform study and also practise the Vedic teaching.

Section 10

A MEDITATION ON VEDA-KNOWLEDGE

I. aham vṛkṣasya rerivā, kīrtih prṣṭham girer iva, ūrdhva pavitro vājinīva, svamṛtam asmi, draviṇam savārcasam, sumedhā amṛtokṣitah, iti trīṣaṅkor vedānuvacanam.

I. I am the mover of the tree; my fame is like a mountain's peak. The exalted one making (me) pure, as the sun, I am the immortal one. I am a shining treasure, wise, immortal, indestructible. Such is Trīṣaṅku's recitation on the Veda-knowledge.

This statement is an expression of self-realization when the self, feeling its identity with the Supreme, says that he is the mover, the impeller of this world-tree of saṁsāra. Trīṣaṅku, who realised Brahman, said this, in the same spirit in which the sage Vāmadeva said. Ś.

The world is said to be the eternal Brahma tree, brahmanvṛkṣas sanātanaḥ. M.B. XIV. 47. 14.

Section 11

EXHORTATION TO THE DEPARTING STUDENTS

I. vedam anūcyācāryo'ntevāsinam anuśāsti, satyam vada, dharmaṁ cara, svādhyāyān mā pramadah, ācāryāya priyaṁ dhanam āhṛtya prajātantum mā vyavacchetsih, satyān na pramaditavyam, dharmān na pramaditavyam, kuśalān na pramaditavyam, bhūtyai na pramaditavyam, svādhyāya-pravacanābhyām na pramaditavyam, deva-pitr-kāryābhyām na pramaditavyam.

I. Having taught the Veda, the teacher instructs the pupil. Speak the truth. Practise virtue. Let there be no neglect of your (daily) reading. Having brought to the teacher the wealth that is pleasing (to him), do not cut off the thread of the offspring. Let there be no neglect of truth. Let there be no neglect of virtue. Let there be no neglect of welfare. Let there be no neglect of prosperity. Let there be no neglect of study and teaching. Let there be no neglect of the duties to the gods and the fathers.

antevāsin: the pupil, he who dwells near.

I. II. 1 Cp. speak the truth:

satyaṣṭutam vaded vācam manah pūtam samācaret. VI. 46.

Speak that which has been purified by truth and behave in the way in which your mind considers to be pure.

dharmam cara:—practise virtue: dharmā means essential nature or intrinsic law of being; it also means the law of righteousness. The suggestion here is that one ought to live according to the law of one's being.

2. mātr devo bhava, pitṛ devo bhava, ācārya devo bhava, atithi devo bhava, yāny anavadyāni karmāni tāni sevitavyāni, no itarāni, yāny asmākaṁ sucaritāni tāni tvayopāśyāni, no itarāni.

2. Be one to whom the mother is a god. Be one to whom the father is a god. Be one to whom the teacher is a god. Be one to whom the guest is a god.

Whatever deeds are blameless, they are to be practised, not others. Whatever good practices there are among us, they are to be adopted by you, not others.

Even with regard to the life of the teacher, we should be discriminating. We must not do the things which are open to blame, even if they are done by the wise. sāvadyāni śiṣṭa-kṛtāni api nokartavyāni. Ś.

3. ye ke cāsmacchreyāṁso brāhmaṇāḥ teṣāṁ tvayāsanena praśvasitavyam, śraddhayā deyam, aśraddhayā deyam śriyā deyam, hriyā deyam, bhīyā deyam, samvidā deyam.

3. Whatever Brāhmaṇas there are (who are) superior to us, they should be comforted by you with a seat. (What is to be given) is to be given with faith, should not be given without faith, should be given in plenty, should be given with modesty, should be given with fear, should be given with sympathy.

praśvasitavyam: The good Brāhmaṇas are to be provided with seats and refreshed after their fatigue. praśvasanam, praśvāsaḥ śramāpanayaḥ. Ś. Or in the presence of such Brāhmaṇas, not a word should be breathed. We have merely to grasp the essence of what they say. na praśvasitavyam praśvāso'pi na kartavyaḥ kevalam tad ukta sārāgrāhinā bhavitavyam. Ś. We should not unnecessarily engage in discussions with them.

4. atha yadi te karma-vicikitsā vā vṛtta-vicikitsā vā syāt ye tatra brāhmaṇās sammarśinaḥ yuktā āyuktāḥ alūkṣā dharmā kāmās syuḥ yathā te tatra varteran tathā tatra vartethāḥ.

4. Then, if there is in you any doubt regarding any deeds, any doubt regarding conduct, you should behave yourself in such matters, as the Brāhmanas there (who are) competent to judge, devoted (to good deeds), not led by others, not harsh, lovers of virtue would behave in such cases.

The Brāhmanas have a spontaneity of consciousness which expresses itself in love for all beings. Their tenderness of sentiment and enlightened conscience should be our standards.

5. athābhyākhyāteṣu ye tatra brāhmaṇās sammarsinaḥ yuktā āyuktāḥ alūkṣā dharmā-kāmās syuh yathā te teṣu varteran tathā teṣu vartethāḥ.

5. Then, as to the persons who are spoken against, you should behave yourself in such a way, as the Brāhmanas there, (who are) competent to judge, devoted (to good deeds) not led by others, not harsh, lovers of virtue, would behave in regard to such persons.

who are spoken against: who are accused of sin.

6. eṣa ādeśaḥ, eṣa upadeśaḥ, eṣa vedopaniṣat, etad anusāsanam, evam upāsitavyam, evam u caitad upāśyam.

6. This is the command. This is the teaching. This is the secret doctrine of the Veda. This is the instruction. Thus should one worship. Thus indeed should one worship.

Cp. with this the Buddha's exhortation where the Pāli word upaniṣā for the Sanskrit upaniṣad is used:

etad atthā kathā, etad atthā mantanā, etad atthā upaniṣā, etad atthā sotāvadhānam. Vinaya. V.

In the Banaras Hindu University this passage is read by the Vice-Chancellor on the Convocation day as an exhortation to the students who are leaving the University. They are advised, not to give up the world but to lead virtuous lives as householders and promote the welfare of the community.

INVOCATION

saha nāv avatu, saha nau bhunaktu, saha vīryam karavāvahai, tejasvināv adhitam astu, mā vidviṣāvahai, aum śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ.

May He protect us both. May He be pleased with us both. May we work together with vigour; may our study make us illumined. May there be no dislike between us. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

may our study make us illumined:

There is not a necessary connection between learning and wisdom. To be unlettered is not necessarily to be uncultured. Our modern world is maintaining the cleavage between learning and wisdom. Cp. 'Perhaps at no other time have men been so knowing and yet so unaware, so burdened with purposes and yet so purposeless, so disillusioned and so completely the victims of illusion. This strange contradiction pervades our entire modern culture, our science and our philosophy, our literature and our art.' W. M. Urban: The Intelligible World (1929), p. 172.

BRAHMAN AND THE COURSE OF EVOLUTION

i. aum, brahma-vid āpnoti param, tad eṣābhyuktā, satyam jñānam anantam brahma, yo veda nihitam guhāyām parama vyoman so'snute sarvān kāmān saha brahmanā vipāścītā, iti.

tad apy eṣa śloko bhavati.

i. Aum. The knower of Brahman reaches the Supreme. As to this the following has been said: He who knows Brahman as the real, as knowledge and as the infinite, placed in the secret place of the heart and in the highest heaven realises all desires along with Brahman, the intelligent.

From this Self, verily, ether arose; from ether air; from air fire; from fire water; from water the earth; from the earth herbs; from herbs food; from food the person.

This, verily, is the person that consists of the essence of food. This, indeed, is his head; this the right side, this the left side; this the body; this the lower part, the foundation.

As to that, there is also this verse.

the real, knowledge and infinite: the opposite of unreal, mithyātva, of the unconscious, jaḍatva and of the limited, paricchinmatva.

ākāśa: ether is the ether or the common substratum from which other forces proceed.

sambhūtaḥ: arose, emanated, not created.

The five different elements are clearly defined and described as having proceeded one after another from the Self.

Sometimes from food, semen, and from semen the person. Cp. Ś annād reto-rūpeṇa parinatāt puruṣaḥ.

Creation starts from the principle of the universal consciousness. From it first arises space and the primary matter or ether whose quality is sound. From this etheric state successively arise grosser elements of air, fire, water and earth. See Introduction.

param: the supreme. that beyond which there is nothing else, i.e. Brahman.

guhā: the secret place, the unmanifested principle in human nature. It is normally a symbol for an inward retreat. avyākṛta ākāśam eva guhā. antar-hṛdaya ākāśa. Ś.

There are five kośas or sheaths in which the Self is manifested as the ego or the jīvātman. The first of them consists of food. Other sheaths consist of prāṇa or life, manas or instinctive and perceptual consciousness, vijñāna or intelligence and ānanda or bliss. These five principles of matter, life, consciousness, thought and bliss are found in the world of non-ego. Anna or food is the radiant, the virāj, that which is perceptible by the senses, the physical. According to Sureśvara, life, consciousness and intelligence constitute the subtle self, the sūtrātman and bliss is the causal sheath, the kāraṇa kośa.

B.U. I. I. 2 mentions five sheaths under the names, anna or matter, prāṇa or life, manas or consciousness, vāc or speech (corresponding to vijñāna or intelligence) and avyākṛta, the undifferentiated. The last is the kāraṇa or the ultimate cause of all.

Ātman becomes the knower or the subject when associated with antaḥkaraṇa. vṛttimad-antaḥkaraṇopahītatvenātmano jñātrtvam, na svataḥ. Ā.

The bodily sheath is conceived in the form of a bird. Suresvara says: 'The sacrificial fire arranged in the form of a hawk or a heron or some other bird, has a head, two wings, a trunk and a tail. So also here every sheath is represented as having five parts.'

It is an axiom of mystic religion that there is a correspondence between the microcosm and the macrocosm. Man is an image of the created universe. The individual soul as the microcosm has affinities with every rung of the ladder which reaches from earth to heaven.

tad apy eṣa śloko bhavati.

1. From food, verily, are produced whatsoever creatures dwell on the earth. Moreover, by food alone they live. And then also into it they pass at the end. Food, verily, is the eldest born of beings. Therefore is it called the healing herb of all. Verily, those who worship Brahman as food obtain all food. For food, verily, is the eldest born of beings. Therefore is it called the healing herb for all. From food are beings born. When born they grow up by food. It is eaten and eats things. Therefore is it called food.

Verily, different from and within that which consists of the essence of food is the self that consists of life. By that this is filled. This, verily, has the form of a person. According to that one's personal form is this one with the form of a person; the inbreath is its head; the diffused breath the right side; the outbreath the left side; ether the body, the earth the lower part, the foundation.

As to that, there is also this verse.

See Maitrī. VI. 12.

The physical body is sustained by life.

Section 3

LIFE AND MIND

1. prāṇam devā anu prāṇanti, manuṣyāḥ paśavaś ca ye, prāṇo hi bhūtānām āyuh, tasmāt sarvāyusaṃ ucyate, sarvaṃ eva ta āyur yanti, ye prāṇam brahmopāsate, prāṇo hi bhūtānām āyuh, tasmātsarvāyusaṃ ucyataiti, tasyaiṣa eva śārīra ātmā, yaḥ pūrvasya; tasmād vā etasmāt prāṇamayāt, anyo'n tara ātmā manomayaḥ, tenaiṣa pūrṇaḥ, sa vā eṣa puruṣa-vidha eva, tasya puruṣa-vidhatām, anvayam puruṣa-vidhaḥ, tasya yajur eva śīraḥ, ṛg dakṣiṇaḥ pakṣaḥ, sāmottaraḥ pakṣaḥ, ādeśa ātmā, atharvāṅgīrasaḥ puccham pratiṣṭhā.

1. The gods breathe along with life breath, as also men and beasts; the breath is the life of beings. Therefore, it is called the life of all. They who worship Brahman as life attain to a full life, for the breath is the life of beings. Therefore is it called the life of all. This (life) is indeed the embodied soul of the former (physical sheath). Verily, different from and within that which consists of life is the self consisting of mind. By that this is filled. This, verily, has the form of a person; according to that one's personal form is this one with the form of a person. The Yajur Veda is its head; the Rg Veda the right side; the Sāma Veda the left side; teaching the body; the hymns of the Atharvans and the Āngīrasas, the lower part, the foundation.

As to that, there is also this verse.

Life is the spirit of the body.

Prāṇa originally meant breath and as breath seemed to be the life of man, prāṇa became the life principle. On analogy, it was said to be the life of the universe.

manas: the inner organ. samkalpa-vikalpātmakam antaḥ-karaṇam tan-mayo mano-mayaḥ. Ś.

Section 4

MIND AND UNDERSTANDING

I. yato vāco nivartante, aprāpya manasā saha, ānandam brahmaṇo vidvān, na bibhēti kadācana. tasyaiṣa eva śārīra ātmā, yaḥ pūrvasya, tasmād vā etasmān mano-mayāt, anyo'ntara ātmā vijñāna-mayaḥ, tenaiṣa pūrṇaḥ, sa vā eṣa puruṣa-vidhā eva, tasya puruṣa vidhatām, anvayam puruṣa-vidhaḥ, tasya śraddhaiva śīraḥ, ṛtaṁ dakṣiṇaḥ pakṣaḥ, satyam uttaraḥ pakṣaḥ, yoga ātmā, mahāḥ puccham pratiṣṭhā;

tad apy eṣa śloko bhavati.

I. Whence words return along with the mind, not attaining it, he who knows that bliss of Brahman fears not at any time. This is, indeed, the embodied soul of the former (life). Verily, different from and within that which consists of mind is the self consisting of understanding. By that this is filled. This, verily, has the form of a person. According to that one's personal form is this one with the form of a person. Faith is its head; the right the right side; the true the left side; contemplation the body; the great one the lower part, the foundation.

As to that there is also this verse.

Manas is the faculty of perception. At the stage of manas we accept authority which is external; at the stage of vijñāna internal growth is effected. The Vedas are our guide at the former level; at the intellectual we must develop faith, order, truthfulness and union with the Supreme. At the level of intellectuality or vijñāna, we ask for proofs. When we rise higher, the truths are not inferred but become self-evident and cannot be invalidated by reason. Cp.

sāṁkhyayogah pañcarātram vedāḥ pāśupataṁ tathā ātma-pramāṇāny etāni na hantavyāni hetubhiḥ.

Quoted by R. on Kāṭha. II. 19.

mahāḥ: the great one. It is the principle of Mahat, the first thing evolved out of the unmanifested (avyākṛta) which is described as lying beyond the mahat.

ānandam: bliss. See R.V. IX. 113. 6, 11. It gives to apparently abstract being an inner content of feeling.

Section 5

UNDERSTANDING AND BLISS

I. viññānam yajñam tanute, karmāṇi tanute'pi ca, viññānam devās sarve, brahma jyeṣṭham upāsate, viññānam brahma ced veda, tasmāc cen na pramādyati śarīre pāpmano hitvā, sarvān kāmān samaśnute.

tasyaiṣa eva śārīra ātmā, yaḥ pūrvasya, tasmād vā etasmād viññāna-mayāt, anyo'ntara ātmā ānanda-mayaḥ, tenaiṣa pūrnah, sa vā eṣa puruṣa-vidhā eva, tasya puruṣa-vidhatām, anvayaṁ puruṣa-vidhaḥ, tasya priyam eva śīraḥ, modo dakṣiṇaḥ pakṣaḥ, pramoda uttaraḥ pakṣaḥ, ānanda ātmā, brahma pucchaṁ pratiṣṭhā, tad apy eṣa śloko bhavati.

1. Understanding directs the sacrifice and it directs the deeds also. All the gods worship as the eldest the Brahman which is understanding.

If one knows Brahman as understanding and one does not swerve from it, he leaves his sins in the body and attains all desires. This (life) is, indeed, the embodied soul of the former (the mental).

Verily, different from and within that which consists of understanding is the self consisting of bliss. By that this is filled. This, verily, has the form of a person. According to that one's personal form is this one with the form of a person. Pleasure is its head; delight the right side; great delight the left side; bliss the body, Brahman the lower part, the foundation.

As to that, there is also this verse.

These verses indicate the five bodies or sheaths (pañca-kośas) material, vital, mental, intellectual and spiritual.

Manas deals with the objects perceived and viññāna with concepts. In later Vedānta, the distinction between the two diminishes. Pañcadaśī ascribes deliberation to manas and decision to buddhi which is the viññāna of this U. mano vimarśa-rūpaṁ syād buddhiḥ syān niścayātmikā. I. 20.

In every order of things the lower is strengthened by its union with the higher. When our knowledge is submissive to things, we get the hierarchical levels of being, matter, life, animal mind, human intelligence and divine bliss. They represent different degrees of abstraction and the sciences which deal with them, employ different principles and methods. In ānanda, the attempt to connaturalise man with the supreme object succeeds. Intelligence is successful in controlling the tangible world. As a rational instrument in the sphere of positive sciences, its validity is justified. This attempt of the intellect to unify is not due to intellect alone. It is derived from its higher, from the breath of the divine. In ānanda, earth touches heaven and is sanctified.

Ś thinks that our real self is beyond the beatific consciousness, though in his commentary on III. 6 he argues that Bhṛgu identifies the ultimate reality with the spirit of ānanda.

evam tapasā viśuddhātmā (anna) prāṇādiṣu sākalyena brahma-lakṣaṇam apaśyan śanaīḥ śanaīr antar anupraviśya antaratamam ānandaṁ brahma vijñātavān tapasaiva sādhanena bhṛguh. Ś.

The author of the Brahma Sūtra in I. 1. 12-19 identifies ānanda-maya with the absolute Brahman and not a relative manifestation. The objection that the suffix mayat is generally used for modification is set aside on the ground that it is also used for abundance.

prācuryāt. S.B. I. 1. 13-14.

ānanda-brahmaṇor abhedāt brahmābhidhānam eva ānandābhidhānam iti manvānaḥ. Saṁkarānanda.

In this beatific consciousness man participates in the life of the gods. Aristotle places the idea of a higher contemplation above metaphysical knowledge.

Section 6

BRAHMAN, THE ONE BEING AND THE SOURCE OF ALL

I. asann eva sa bhavati, asad brahmeti veda cet, asti brahmeti ced veda, santam enaṁ tato viduḥ.

tad apy eṣa śloko bhavati.

I. Non-existent, verily does one become, if he knows Brahman as non-being. If one knows that Brahman is, such a one people know as existent. This is, indeed, the embodied soul of the former.

Now then the following questions. Does anyone who knows not, when departing from this life, go to the yonder world? Or is it that any one who knows, on departing from this life, attains that world?

He (the supreme soul) desired. Let me become many, let me be born. He performed austerity. Having performed austerity he created all this, whatever is here. Having created it, into it, indeed, he entered. Having entered it, he became both the actual and the beyond, the defined and the undefined, both the founded and the non-founded, the intelligent and the non-intelligent, the true and the untrue. As the real, he became whatever there is here. That is what they call the real.

As to that, there is also this verse.

tapas: austerity. Ś means by it knowledge. tapā iti jñānam ucyate. tapāḥ paryālocanam. The Supreme reflected on the form of the world to be created. srjyamāna-jagad-racanādi-viśayām ālocanām akarod ātmety arthaḥ. Ś. He willed, he thought and he created. Tapas is the creative moulding power, concentrated thinking. See B.U. I. 4. 10-11, Maitrī. VI. 17 which assume that consciousness is at the source of manifestation. As we bend nature to our will by thought or tapas, tapas becomes mixed with magical control.

He desired: See C.U. VI. 2. 1. It is kāma or desire that brings forth objects from primal being.

the actual and the beyond: Brahman has two aspects, the actual and the transcendental, the sat and the tyat.

Section 7

BRAHMAN IS BLISS

1 asad vā idam agra āsīt, tato vai sad ajāyata, tad ātmānam svayam akuruta, tasmāt tat sukṛtam ucyate.

yad vai tat sukṛtam, raso vai saḥ, rasam hy evāyam labdh-vānandī bhavati, ko hy evānyāt kaḥ prānyāt, yad eṣa ākāśa ānando na syāt, eṣa hy evānandayāti, yathā hy evaiṣa etasmin nadṛśye'nātmye'nirukte'nīlayane'bhayam pratiṣṭhām vindate, atha so'bhayam gato bhavati, yadā hy evaiṣa etasminn udaram antaram kurute, atha tasya bhayam bhavati, tattveva bhayam viduṣo'manvānasya tad apy eṣa śloko bhavati.

1. Non-existent, verily, was this (world) in the beginning.

Therefrom, verily, was existence produced. That made itself a soul. Therefore is it called the well-made.

Verily, what that well-made is—that, verily, is the essence of existence. For, truly, on getting the essence, one becomes blissful. For who, indeed, could live, who breathe, if there were not this bliss in space? This, verily, is it that bestows bliss. For truly, when one finds fearlessness as support in Him who is invisible, bodiless, undefined, without support, then has he reached fearlessness. When, however, this (soul) makes in this One the smallest interval, then, for him, there is fear. That, verily, is the fear of the knower, who does not reflect.

As to that, there is also this verse.

asat: non-existent. The manifested universe is called sat and its unmanifested condition is said to be asat. From the unmanifested (asat) the world of names and forms (sat) is said to arise. The possible is prior to the actual. See S.B. II. 1. 17. Cp. R.V. X. 129 which tells us that, at the beginning of all things, there was neither being nor non-being and what existed was an impenetrable darkness. For the Greek Epimenides, the beginning of things was a primary void or night. 'Existence is born of non-existence.' Lao Tzu (Ch. 40). The Way of Life.

Brahman is invisible etc., because it is the source of all these distinctions. avikāraṁ tad brahma sarva-vikāra-hetuvāt. Ś.

sukṛtam: the well-made. See A.U. I. 2, 3. Ś means by it the self-caused. Brahman is the independent cause for He is the cause of all. svayam eva ātmānam evākūrūta kṛtavat. Ś.

raso vai saḥ. Bliss, verily, is the essence of existence. Brahman is bliss. It is the source of things. See K.U. I. 5.

who indeed could live . . . ? The passage affirms that no one can live or breathe if there were not this bliss of existence as the very ether in which we dwell. We have a feeble analogue of spiritual bliss in aesthetic satisfaction. It is said to be akin to the bliss of the realisation of Brahman. brahmānanda-sahodarah. It lifts out of the ordinary ruts of conventional life and cleanses our minds and hearts. By the imaginative realisation of feelings, tanmayatvam raseṣu (Kālidāsa) it melts one's heart, dravībhūtam (Bhavabhūti).

bhaya: fear. We have fear when we have a feeling of otherness. See B.U. I. 4. 2. where the primeval self became fearless when he found that there was no other person whom he should fear.

amanvānasya: who does not reflect. He is not a true sage but thinks himself to be so.

Section 8

1. From fear of Him does the wind blow; from fear of Him does the Sun rise; from fear of Him do Agni and Indra (act) and death, the fifth doth run.

This is the inquiry concerning bliss.

Let there be a youth, a good youth, well read, prompt in action, steady in mind and strong in body. Let this whole earth be full of wealth for him. That is one human bliss.

What is a hundred times the human bliss, that is one bliss of human fairies—also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of the human fairies, that is one bliss of divine fairies—also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire. What is a hundred times the bliss of the divine fairies, that is one bliss of the Fathers in their long enduring world—also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of the fathers in their long enduring world, that is one bliss of the gods who are born so by birth, also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of the gods who are born so by birth, that is one bliss of the gods by work, who go to the gods by work, also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of the gods by work, that is one bliss of the gods, also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of the gods, that is one bliss of Indra—also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of Indra, that is the one bliss of Bṛhaspati—also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of Bṛhaspati, that is one bliss of Prajā-pati, also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

What is a hundred times the bliss of Prajā-pati, that is one bliss of Brahmā—also of a man who is well versed in the Vedas and who is not smitten with desire.

He who is here in the person and he who is yonder in the Sun—he is one. He who knows this, on departing from this world, reaches to the self which consists of food, reaches the self which consists of life, reaches the self which consists of mind, reaches the self which consists of understanding, reaches the self which consists of bliss.

As to that, there is also this verse.

For fear of Him does the wind blow: the writer sees the proof of God in the laws of the universe. The regularity expresses an intelligence and presupposes a guide. Ś. See Kāṭha VI. 3.

Those who attain to the status of gods by their own work are called Karma-devas.

The bliss of delight which knowledge of Brahman occasions baffles all description. It is something completely incomprehensible. Brahman thus is blissful being and so is of the highest value. In reaching the richness of being of Brahman we reach our highest fulfilment. In describing the various degrees of happiness, the author of the Upaniṣad gives us an idea of the classes of human and divine beings recognised in that period, men, fathers, fairies, gods by merit and gods by birth, Prajā-pati and Brahmā or Hiraṇya-garbha.

Section 9

THE KNOWER OF THE BLISS OF BRAHMAN IS SAVED FROM ALL FEAR

1. yato vāco nivartante, aprāpya manasā saha ānandam brahmaṇo vidvān na bibhēti kutaścana.

etaṁ ha vā va na tapati, kim ahaṁ sādhu nākaravam, kim ahaṁ pāpam akaravam iti, sa ya evaṁ vidvān ete ātmānam spṛṇute, ubhe hy evaiṣa ete ātmānam spṛṇute ya evaṁ veda, ity upaniṣat.

1. Whence words return along with the mind, not attaining. It, he who knows that bliss of Brahman fears not from anything at all.

Such a one, verily, the thought does not torment, Why have I not done the right? Why have I done the sinful? He who knows this, saves himself from these (thoughts). For, truly, from both of these he saves himself—he who knows this. Such is the secret doctrine.

The enlightened one is not afflicted by anxiety about right and wrong. The truth makes us free from all restrictions. The Apostle proclaims that we are delivered from the law, 'Virtues, I take leave of you for evermore, your service is too travailous. Once I was your servant, in all things to you obedient, but now I am delivered from your thralldom.' Mirror of Simple Soules, quoted in Evelyn Underhill: Mysticism, p. 263.

upaniṣat: the great mystery, parama-rahasyam. Ś.

CHAPTER III

BHRGU VALLI

Section I

BHRGU UNDERTAKES INVESTIGATION OF BRAHMAN

1. bhṛgur vai vāruniḥ, varuṇam pitaram upasasāra, adhīhi bhagavo brahmeti, tasmā etat provāca, annam prāṇam cakṣuś srotram mano vācam iti.

taṁ hovāca, yato vā imāni bhūtāni jāyante, yena jātāni jīvanti, yat prayanty abhisamviśanti, tad vijijñāśasva, tad brahmeti sa tapo' tapyata, sa tapas taptvā.

1. Bhṛgu, the son of Varuṇa, approached his father Varuṇa and said, 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman.'

He explained to him thus: matter, life, sight, hearing, mind, speech.

To him, he said further: 'That, verily, from which these beings are born, that, by which, when born they live, that into which, when departing, they enter. That, seek to know. That is Brahman.'

He performed austerity (of thought). Having performed austerity,

The father Varuṇa teaches his son Bhṛgu, the sacred wisdom.

This fundamental definition of Brahman as that from which the origin, continuance and dissolution of the world comes is of Īśvara who is the world-creating, world-sustaining, and world-dissolving God.

Cp. 'I am the first and the last and the living one.' Revelation XIII. 8.

Brahman is the cause of the world as the substratum (adhiṣṭhāna) (Ś), as the material cause (upādāna) of the world, as gold is the material cause of gold ornaments, as the instrumental cause (nimitta) of the world. Madhva.

Austerity is the means to the perception of Brahman. tapas is spiritual travail. brahma-vijñāna-sādhana. Ś. Cp. Aeschylus, 'Knowledge comes through sacrifice.' Agamemnon, 250.

Section 2

MATTER IS BRAHMAN

1. annam brahmeti vyajānāt, annādhyeva khalv imāni bhūtāni jāyante, annena jātāni jīvanti, annam prayanty abhisamviśanti. tad vijñāya, punar eva varuṇam pītaram upasasāra, adhīhi bhagavo brahmeti.

taṁ hovāca, tapasā brahma vijijñāsasva, tapo brahmeti, sa tapo' tapyata, sa tapas taptvā.

1. He knew that matter is Brahman. For truly, beings here are born from matter, when born, they live by matter, and into matter, when departing they enter.

Having known that, he again approached his father Varuṇa and said, 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman.'

To him he said, 'Through austerity, seek to know Brahman. Brahman is austerity.'

He performed austerity; having performed austerity,

The first suggested explanation of the universe is that every thing can be explained from matter and motion. On second thoughts, we realise that there are phenomena of life and reproduction which require another principle than matter and mechanism. The investigator proceeds from the obvious and outer to the deeper and the inward. The pupil approaches the teacher because he feels that the first finding of matter as the ultimate reality is not satisfactory.

Section 3

LIFE IS BRAHMAN

1. prāṇo brahmeti vyajānāt, prāṇād hy eva khalv imāni bhūtāni jāyante, prāṇena jātāni jīvanti, prāṇam prayanty abhisamviśanti.

tad vijñāya, punar eva varuṇam pītaram upasasāra, adhīhi bhagavo brahmeti taṁ hovāca, tapasā brahma vijijñāsasva, tapo brahmeti, sa tapo' tapyata, sa tapas taptvā.

1. He knew that life is Brahman. For truly, beings here are born from life, when born they live by life, and into life, when departing they enter.

Having known that, he again approached his father Varuṇa, and said: 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman.'

To him he said, 'Through austerity, seek to know Brahman. Brahman is austerity.'

He performed austerity; having performed austerity.

See C.U. I. 11. 5; VII. 15. 1; K.U. III. 2-9; B.U. IV. 1. 3.

While the material objects of the world are explicable in terms of matter, plants take us to a higher level and demand a different principle. From materialism we pass to vitalism. But the principle of life cannot account for conscious objects. So the pupil, dissatisfied with the solution of life, approaches the father, who advises the son to reflect more deeply.

Matter is the context of the principle of life.

Section 4

MIND IS BRAHMAN

1. mano brahmeti vyajānāt, manaso hy eva khalv imāni bhūtāni jāyante, manasā jātāni jīvanti, manasḥ prayanty abhisam- viśanti.

tad vijñāya, punar eva varuṇam pitaram upasasāra, adhīhi bhagavo brahmeti, taṁ hovāca, tapasā brahma vijijñāsasva, tapo brahmeti, sa tapo' tapyata, sa tapas taptvā.

1. He knew that mind is Brahman. For truly, beings here are born from mind, when born, they live by mind and into mind, when departing, they enter.

Having known that, he again approached his father Varuṇa and said: 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman.'

To him, he said, 'Through austerity seek to know Brahman. Brahman is austerity.'

He performed austerity; having performed austerity.

When we look at animals, with their perceptual and instinctive consciousness we notice the inadequacy of the principle of life. As life outreaches matter, so does mind outreach life. There are forms of life without consciousness but there can be no consciousness without life. Mind in the animals is of a rudimentary character. See Aitareya Āranyaka II. 3. 2. 1-5. Cp. Milindapañha where manasikāra, rudimentary mind is distinguished from pañña or reason. Animals possess the former and not the latter. Even mind cannot account for all aspects of the universe. In the world of man, we have the play of intelligence. Intelligence frames concepts and ideals, plans means for their realization. So the pupil finds the inadequacy of the principle of mind and again approaches his father, who advises him to reflect further.

Section 5

INTELLIGENCE IS BRAHMAN

1. viññānam brahmeti vyajānāt, viññānādd hy eva khalv imāni bhūtāni jāyante, viññānena jātāni jīvanti, viññānam prayanty abhisamviśanti.

tad viññāya, punar eva varuṇam pītaram upasasāra, adhīhi bhagavo brahmeti;

*taṁ hovāca, tapasā brahma vijijñāsasva, tapo brahmeti;
sa tapo' tapyata, sa tapas taptvā.*

1. He knew that intelligence is Brahman. For truly, beings here are born from intelligence, when born, they live by intelligence and into intelligence, when departing, they enter.

Having known that, he again approached his father Varuṇa, and said, 'Venerable Sir, teach me Brahman.'

To him, he said, 'Through austerity, seek to know Brahman. Brahman is austerity.'

He performed austerity; having performed austerity,

Intelligence again is not the ultimate principle. The categories of matter, life, mind and intelligence take us higher and higher and each is more comprehensive than the preceding. Men with their conflicting desires, divided minds, oppressed by dualities are not the final products of evolution. They have to be transcended. In the intellectual life there is only a seeking. Until we transcend it, there can be no ultimate finding. Intellectual man, who uses mind, life and body is greater than mind, life and body but he is not the end of the cosmic evolution as he has still a secret aspiration. Even as matter contained life as its secret destiny and had to be delivered of it, life contained mind and mind contained intelligence and intelligence contains spirit as its secret destiny and presses to be delivered of it. Intelligence does not exhaust the possibilities of consciousness and cannot be its highest expression. Man's awareness is to be enlarged into a superconsciousness with illumination, joy and power. The crown of evolution is this deified consciousness.

Section 6

BLISS IS BRAHMAN

1. ānando brahmeti vyaṇāt, ānandādd hy eva khalv imāni bhūtāni jāyante, ānandena jātāni jīvanti, ānandaṃ prayanty abhisamviśanti, saiṣā bhārgavī vāruṇī vidyā, parama vyoman pratiṣṭhitā, ya evaṃ veda pratitiṣṭhati, annavān annādo bhavati, mahān bhavati, prajayā paśubhir brahma-varcasena mahān kīrtiā.

1. He knew that Brahman is bliss. For truly, beings here are born from bliss, when born, they live by bliss and into bliss, when departing, they enter.

This wisdom of Bhṛgu and Varuṇa, established in the highest heaven, he who knows this, becomes established. He becomes possessor of food and eater of food. He becomes great in offspring and cattle and in the splendour of sacred wisdom; great in fame.

The higher includes the lower and goes beyond it. Brahman is the deep delight of freedom.

The Upaniṣad suggests an analogy between the macrocosm, nature and the microcosm, man, an equation between intelligibility and being. The ascent of reality from matter to God as one of increasing likeness to God is brought out. While man has all these five elements in his being, he may stress one or the other, the material or the vital or the mental or the intellectual or the spiritual. He who harmonises all these is the complete man. For Aristotle the human soul is, in a certain sense, everything.

This analysis is accepted by the Buddha who speaks of five kinds of food for the physical, vital, psychological, logical and spiritual elements. The enjoyment of nirvāṇa is the food for spirit. nibbutim bhuñjamānā. Ratana Sutta. Cp. Augustine: 'Step by step was I led upwards, from bodies (anna) to the soul which perceives by means of the bodily senses (prāṇa); and thence to the soul's inward faculty which is the limit of the intelligence of animals (maṇas); and thence again to the reasoning faculty to whose judgment is referred the knowledge received by the bodily senses (viññāna). And when this power also within me found itself changeable it lifted itself up to its own intelligence, and withdrew its thoughts from experience, abstracting itself from the contradictory throng of sense-images that it might find what that light was wherein it was bathed when it cried out that beyond all doubt the unchangeable is to be preferred to the changeable; whence also it knew that unchangeable; and thus with the flash of one trembling glance it arrived at That which is' (ānanda). Confessions VII, 23.

Augustine describes the highest state as one of joy: 'The highest spiritual state of the soul in this life consists in the vision and contemplation of truth, wherein are joys, and the full enjoyment of the highest and truest good, and a breath of serenity and eternity.'¹

The grades of existence and of value correspond so that the class which has the lowest degree of reality in the existential sense has the lowest degree of value.

Behind all our growth is the perfection of ourselves which animates it; we are constantly becoming until we possess our being. The changing consciousness goes on until it is able to transcend change. The Beyond is the absolute fulfilment of our self-existence. It is ānanda, the truth behind matter, life, mind, intelligence, that controls them all by exceeding them.

The Upaniṣad suggests an epic of the universe. From out of utter nothingness, asat, arises, the stellar dance of teeming suns and planets whirling through vast etheric fields. In this immensity of space emerges the mystery of life, vegetations, forests; soon living creatures, crawling, jumping animals, the predecessors of human beings. Human intelligence with its striving for ideals has in it the secret of sciences and philosophies, cultures and civilisations. We can make the world wonderful and beautiful or tragic and evil.

Section 7

THE IMPORTANCE OF FOOD

1. annam na nindyāt, tad vratam, prāṇo vā annam, śarīram annādam, prāṇe śarīram pratiṣṭhitam, śarīre prāṇaḥ pratiṣṭhitah, tad etad annam anne pratiṣṭhitam, sa ya etad annam anne pratiṣṭhitam veda pratitiṣṭhati, annavān annādo bhavati, mahān bhavati, prajayā paśubhir brahma-varcasena mahān kīrtyā.

1. Do not speak ill of food. That shall be the rule. Life, verily, is food. The body is the eater of food. In life is the body established; life is established in the body. So is food established in food. He who knows that food is established in food, becomes established. He becomes an eater of food, possessing food. He becomes great in offspring and cattle and in the splendour of sacred wisdom; great in fame.

The world owes its being to the interaction of an enjoyer and an object enjoyed, i.e. subject and object. This distinction is superseded in the Absolute Brahman.

FOOD AND LIGHT AND WATER

1. annam na paricakṣīta, tad vratam, āpo vā annam, jyotir annādam, apsu jyotiḥ pratiṣṭhitam, jyotiṣy āpaḥ pratiṣṭhitāḥ, tad etad annam anne pratiṣṭhitam, sa ya etad annam anne pratiṣṭhitam veda pratiṣṭhati, annavān annādo bhavati, mahān bhavati prajāyā paśubhir brahma-varcasena, mahān kīrtiā.

1. Do not despise food. That shall be the rule. Water, verily, is food. Light is the eater of food. Light is established in water; water is established in light. Thus food is established in food.

He who knows that food is established in food, becomes established. He becomes an eater of food, possessing food. He becomes great in offspring and cattle, and in the splendour of sacred wisdom, great in fame.

Section 9

FOOD AND EARTH AND ETHER

1. annam bahu kurvīta, tad vratam, pṛthivī vā annam, ākāśo' nnādaḥ, pṛthivyām ākāśaḥ pratiṣṭhitāḥ, ākāśe pṛthivī pratiṣṭhitā, tad etad annam anne pratiṣṭhitam, sa ya etad annam anne pratiṣṭhitam veda pratiṣṭhati, annavān annādo bhavati, mahān bhavati prajāyā paśubhir brahma-varcasena, mahān kīrtiā.

1. Make for oneself much food. That shall be the rule: The earth, verily, is food; ether the eater of food. In the earth is ether established, in ether is the earth established. Thus food is established in food. He who knows that food is established in food, becomes established. He becomes an eater of food, possessing food. He becomes great in offspring and cattle, and in the splendour of sacred wisdom, great in fame.

Section 10

MEDITATION IN DIFFERENT FORMS

1. na kañcana vasatau pratyācaksīta, tad vratam, tasmād yayā kayā ca vidhayā bahu annam prāpnuyāt, arādhyasmā annam

ity ācakṣate, etad vai mukhato'nnam rāddham mukhato'smā annam rādhyate, etad vai madhyato'nnam rāddham, madhyato'smā annam rādhyate, etad vā antato'nnam rāddham, antato'smā annam rādhyate.

1. Do not deny residence to anybody. That shall be the rule. Therefore, in any way whatsoever one should acquire much food. Food is prepared for him, they say.

If this food is given first, food is given to the giver first. If this food is given in the middle, food is given to the giver in the middle. If this food is given last, food is given to the giver last.

2. ya evaṁ veda kṣema iti vāci, yoga-kṣema iti prānāpānayoḥ, karmeti hastayoḥ, gatiṛ iti pādayoḥ, vimuktir iti pāyau, iti mānuṣīḥ samājñāḥ, atha daivīḥ, trṛptir iti vṛṣṭau, balam iti vidyuti.

2. For him who knows this, as preservation in speech, as acquisition and preservation in the inbreath and the outbreath, as work in the hands, as movement in the feet, as evacuation in the anus, these are the human recognitions.

Next, with reference to the deities, as satisfaction in rain, as strength in the lightning.

yoga-kṣema: see B.G. II. 45; IX. 22.

3. yaśa iti paśuṣu, jyotiṛ iti nakṣatreṣu, prajātir amṛtam ānanda ity upasthe, sarvam ity ākāśe, tat pratiṣṭhety upāsīta, pratiṣṭhāvān bhavati, tan maha ity upāsīta, mahān bhavati, tan mana ity upāsīta mānavān bhavati.

3. As fame in cattle, as light in the stars, as procreation, immortality and bliss in the generative organ, as the all in space.

Let one contemplate That as the support, one becomes the possessor of support; let one contemplate That as great, one becomes great. Let one contemplate That as mind; one becomes possessed of mindfulness.

4. tan nama ity upāsīta, namyam te'smai kāmāḥ, tad brahmety upāsīta, brahmavān bhavati, tad brahmaṇaḥ parimara ity upāsīta, paryeṇam mṛiyante dviṣantāḥ sapatnāḥ pari ye'priyā-bhrātṛvyāḥ sa yaś cāyam puruṣe yaś cā sāvāditye sa ekaḥ.

4. Let one contemplate That as adoration; desires pay adoration to him. Let one contemplate That as the Supreme, he becomes possessed of the Supreme. Let one contemplate

That as Brahman's destructive agent, one's hateful rivals perish as also those rivals whom he does not like.

He who is here in the person and he who is yonder in the Sun, he is one.

See Aitareya Brāhmaṇa. VIII. 28; T.U. II. 8.

Brahma: the Supreme. Sāyana interprets Brahma as Veda and brahmavān as one who has a perfect command over the Veda.

bhrātrivṛyāḥ: rivals: literally it means cousins (father's brother's sons), who are generally supposed to be unfriendly.

5. sa ya evaṁ-vit asmāl lokāt pretya, etam anna-mayam ātmānam upasaṁkramya, etam prāṇa-mayam ātmānam upasaṁkramya, etam mano-mayam ātmānam upasaṁkramya, etam vijñāna-mayam ātmānam upasaṁkramya, etam ānanda-mayam ātmānam upa samkramya, imān lokān kāmānnī kāmārūpya anusaṁcaran, etat sāma gāyannāste hā vu hā vu hā vu.

5. He who knows this, on departing from this world, reaching on to that self which consists of food, reaching on to that self which consists of life, reaching on to that self which consists of mind, reaching on to that self which consists of understanding, reaching on to that self which consists of bliss, goes up and down these worlds, eating the food he desires, assuming the form he desires. He sits singing this chant:

Oh Wonderful, Oh Wonderful, Oh Wonderful.

The enlightened one attains unity with the All. He expresses wonder that the individual with all limitations has been able to shake them off and become one with the All. To get at the Real, we must get behind the forms of matter, the forms of life, the forms of mind, the forms of intellect. By removing the sheaths, by shaking off the bodies, we realise the Highest. This is the meaning of vastrā-pakaraṇa. 'Across my threshold naked all must pass.'

When we realise the truth we can assume any form we choose.

A MYSTICAL CHANT

aham annam, aham annam, aham annam; aham annādaḥ, aham annādaḥ, aham annādaḥ; aham ślokaṛt, aham ślokaṛt, aham ślokaṛt; aham asmi prathamajā ṛtasya, pūrvam devebhyo amṛtasya nābhā i, yo mā dadāti, sa id eva mā, vāḥ, aham annam annam adantam ādmi, aham viśvaṁ bhuvanam abhyabhavām. suvarṇa jyotiḥ ya evaṁ veda ity upaniṣat.

I am food, I am food, I am food. I am the food-eater. I am the foodeater. I am the foodeater. I am the combining agent. I am the combining agent. I am the combining agent. I am the first born of the world-order, earlier than the gods, in the centre of immortality. Whoso gives me, he surely does save thus. I, who am food, eat the eater of food.

I have overcome the whole world. I am brilliant like the sun.

He who knows this. Such is the secret doctrine.

prathamajā: hiraṇya-garbhopy aham. Ā.

the eater of food: anna-śabdītam a-cetanam, tad-bhoktārāṃ cetanaṃ ca admi vyāpnomi. R.

overcome the world: abhibhavāmi pareṇeśvareṇa svarūpeṇa. Ś. upasaṃ-harāmi. Ā.

like the sun: suvar ādityaḥ (nakāra upamārthaḥ) āditya iva. Ś. kamanīyo dedīpyamāna śarīro bhavati. R.

This is a song of joy. The manifold diversity of life is attuned to a single harmony. A lyrical and rapturous embrace of the universe is the result. The liberated soul filled with delight recognises its oneness with the subject and the object, the foodeater and food and the principle which unites them. He feels in different poises that he is one with Brahman, with Īśvara and with Hiraṇya-garbha.

The chant proclaims that 'the enlightened one has become one with all.' The liberated soul passes beyond all limitations and attains to the dignity of God Himself. He is one with God in all His fulness and unity. It is not a mere fellowship with the chasm between the Creator and the created. Here is the exalted experience of one who not merely believes in God, or who is merely convinced of His existence by logical arguments or one who regards Him as an object to be adored and worshipped in thought and feeling but of one for whom God is no more object but personal life. He lives God or rather is lived by Him. He is borne up and impelled by the spirit of God who has become his inward power and life.

* Hallāj expressed in the most uncompromising terms this conviction of oneness with the Supreme. Ana'l haqq, 'I am the real.' The Sūfī theory is that man becomes one with God when he transcends his phenomenal self (fanā). Ghazālī believes that Hallāj's statement is nothing more than the conviction belonging to the highest stage of unitarianism. In order to attain to the immediate vision of the Divine, the human soul must be lifted altogether above the natural order and made to partake of the divine nature. 2 Peter I. 4. Cp. 'Beloved, we are God's children now; it does not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that when he appears we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is' (1 John III.2). 'God made all things through me when I had my existence in the unfathomable ground of God.' Eckhart, E. T. G. Evans, Vol. I, p. 589.

All distinctions of food and foodeater, object and subject are transcended. He goes up and down the worlds as he chooses, eating what food he likes, putting on what form he likes.

Sureśvara says: 'All this is divided twofold, food and foodeater. The enlightened one says, "I who am the Ātman, the Real and the Infinite, am myself this twofold world."'

The Supreme is the subject and the object as well as the link between them.

I have overcome the whole world.

Cp. this with the Buddha's declaration, after attaining abhisambodhi:

'Subdued have I all, all-knowing am I now.

Unattached to all things, and abandoning all,

Finally freed on the destruction of all craving,

Knowing it myself, whom else should I credit?

There is no teacher of mine, nor is one like me;

There is none to rival me in the world of men and gods;

Truly entitled to honour am I, a teacher unexcelled.

Alone am I a Supreme Buddha, placid and tranquil,

To found the kingdom of righteousness, I proceed to Kāśī's capital, Beating the drum of immortality in the world enveloped by darkness.'

Ariyaparyesana Sutta. Majjhima Nikāya.

Cp. Richard of St. Victor: 'The third grade of love is when the mind of man is rapt into the abyss of the divine light, so that, utterly oblivious of all exterior things, it knows not itself and passes wholly into its God. In this state, while the mind is alienated from itself, while it is rapt unto the secret closet of the divine privacy, while it is on all sides encircled by the conflagration of divine love and is intimately penetrated and set on fire through and through, it strips off self and puts on a certain divine condition, and being configured to the beauty gazed upon, it passes into a new kind of glory.' Dom Cuthbert Butler: Western Mysticism (1922), p. 7.

ĪŚA UPANIṢAD

The Īśa, also called the Īśāvāsyā Upaniṣad, derives its name from the opening word of the text Īśāvāsyā or Īśā. It belongs to the Vājasaneyi school of the Yajur Veda. The Vājasaneyi Samhitā consists of forty chapters of which this Upaniṣad is the last. Its main purpose is to teach the essential unity of God and the world, being and becoming. It is interested not so much in the Absolute in itself, Parabrahman, as in the Absolute in relation to the world, Parameśvara. It teaches that life in the world and life in the Divine Spirit are not incompatible.

INVOCATION

*pūrṇam adaḥ, pūrṇam idam, pūrṇāt pūrṇam udacyate
pūrṇasya pūrṇam ādāya pūrṇam evāvaśiṣyate.*

That is full; this is full. The full comes out of the full. Taking the full from the full the full itself remains. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

Brahman is both transcendent and immanent.

The birth or the creation of the universe does not in any manner affect the integrity of Brahman.

GOD AND THE WORLD

- i. īśāvāsyam idaṁ sarvaṁ yat kiṁ ca jagatyām jagat tena tyaktena bhuñjīthā, mā gr̥dhaḥ kasyasvid dhanam.

i. (Know that) all this, whatever moves in this moving world, is enveloped by God. Therefore find your enjoyment in renunciation; do not covet what belongs to others.

All things which move and change derive their significance from their relation to the one eternal truth. 'The invisible always continuing the same, but the visible never the same.' Plato: Phaedo 64.

īśāvāsyam: enveloped by God. The world does not stand apart from God, but is pervaded by Him. Cp. the Psalmist: 'The earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof; the world and they that dwell therein.' The Supreme is viewed not as the Absolute Brahman but as the cosmic Lord.

īśā: īśitā paramēśvaraḥ. vāsyam, nivāsanīyam, vyāpyam. Kūranārayaṇa. The world is steeped in God. It is the 'household of God.' God dwells in the heart of all things. īśvarātmakam eva sarvaṁ, bhrāntīyā yad anīśvara-rūpeṇa gr̥hītam. Ā.

jagat: The universe is a becoming, not a thing. It is a series of change-ful happenings.

tyaktena bhuñjīthāḥ: enjoy through tyāga, or renunciation of self-will. Enjoy all things by renouncing the idea of a personal proprietary relationship to them. If we recognise that the world in which we live is not ours, we enjoy it. When we know that the one Real indwells all, we will get rid of the craving for acquisition. Enjoy by giving up the sense of attachment. When the individual is subject to ignorance, he is not conscious of the unity and identity behind the multiplicity and so cannot enter into harmony and oneness with the universe and thus fails to enjoy the world. When, however, he realises his true existence which is centred in the Divine, he becomes free from selfish desire and possesses, enjoys the world, being in a state of non-attachment. Self-denial is at the root of spiritual life. 'If any one wish to come after me, let him deny himself.' Matthew XVI. 24.

Sometimes this passage is interpreted as meaning: enjoy what is allotted to you by God (tena). Do not ask for more than what is given.

mā gr̥dhaḥ: covet not. Do not be greedy. When we realise that God inhabits each object, when we rise to that cosmic consciousness, covetousness disappears. Cp. Wotton's Paraphrase of Horace which is found in Palgrave's Golden Treasury:

This man is freed from servile bonds
Of hope to rise, or fear to fall;
Lord of himself, though not of lands
And having nothing, yet hath all.

kasyasvid dhanam. This is taken independently. Whose indeed is wealth? It belongs to the Lord. 'What hast thou that thou hast not received.' I. Cor. IV. 7. If we have craving for wealth, we are not true believers.

paramasuhṛdi bāndhave kalatre suta-lanayā-pitr-mātr-bhṛtyavarge śaṭhamatir upayāti yorthatṛṣṇām puruṣa-paśur na vāsudevabhaktah.

puruṣapaśu is the animal man who is governed by hunger and thirst and not the true human being with foresight and understanding. See Aitareya Āraṇyaka II. 3. 2.

By contemplating the fact that the giver of all is the Supreme Lord, we cultivate the quality of detachment, vairāgya. For, the meaning of this verse is to encourage all those who wish to understand the self, to devote themselves to final release and give up all worldly desires. The exterior sacrifice is representative of the interior whereby the human soul offers itself to God.

Gandhi's comment on this verse is interesting. 'The mantra describes God as the Creator, the Ruler and the Lord. The seer to whom this mantra or verse was revealed was not satisfied with the very frequent statement that God was to be found everywhere. But he went further and said: "Since God pervades everything, nothing belongs to you, not even your own body. God is the undisputed unchallengeable Master of everything you possess. If it is universal brotherhood—not only brotherhood of all human beings, but of all living things—I find it in this mantra. If it is unshakable faith in the Lord and Master—and all the adjectives you can think of—I find it in this mantra. If it is the idea of complete surrender to God and of the faith that he will supply all that I need, then again I say I find it in this mantra. Since he pervades every fibre of my being and of all of you, I derive from it the doctrine of equality of all creatures on earth and it should satisfy the cravings of all philosophical communists. This mantra tells me that I cannot hold as mine anything that belongs to God and that, if my life and that of all who believe in this mantra has to be a life of perfect dedication, it follows that it will have to be a life of continual service of fellow creatures.' Address at Kottayam, Harizan, 1937.

Indifference to the pains of the world, to the suffering of living creatures is due either to callousness or thoughtlessness. But when we realise that we are all the concern of the same Creator, the objects of His care, we feel within ourselves an unburdening, a release, a sense that everyone has a right to his own place in the same universe. When we envisage all that exists as having its being in the great first principle of all beings, we rush forward to help all those who come within our reach.

WORK AND WISDOM

2. kurvann eveha karmāṇi jīviṣet śataṁ samāḥ evam tvayi nānyatheto'sti na karma līpyate nare.

2. Always performing works here one should wish to live a hundred years. If you live thus as a man, there is no way other than this by which karman (or deed) does not adhere to you.

kurvann eva: performing works and without desiring their fruits.'

The first verse tells us that we win our way to inward freedom, by renunciation, by the withdrawal from the fortunes and misfortunes that shape the outward side of our existence. We are called upon to withdraw from the world's work not in body but in mind, in intention, in spirit. 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven.' jīviṣet: should wish to live jīvitum icchet.

na karma līpyate nare: by which karma does not adhere to you. When we act by merging the individual in the cosmic purpose and by dedicating all action to God, our action does not bind, since we are no more entangled in selfish desire.

Ś. argues that this and the following verses refer to those who are not competent to know the self and who are called upon to perform works enjoined in the Vedas. He makes out that the way of knowledge is for saṁnyāsins and the way of action for others.

The purport of this verse, is, however, that salvation is attained by the purification of the heart resulting from the performance of works done with the notion that these are all for the sake of the Lord and dedicated to Him. Works done in this spirit do not bind the soul.

According to Śaṁkarānanda, this verse is addressed to those who desire salvation, but cannot renounce the world.

The importance of work is stressed in this verse. We must do works and not refrain from them. Embodied man cannot refrain from action, he cannot escape the life imposed on him by his embodiment. The way of true freedom is not abstention from action but conversion of spirit.

Wisdom is beautiful but barren without works. St. James: 'Faith, apart from works, is dead.' II. 26.

The author points out that action is not incompatible with wisdom. There is a general tendency to regard contemplation as superior to action. This judgment is not peculiar to India. In the New Testament, Martha chose the good part and Mary the better. What Martha chose, ministering to the hungry, the thirsty and the homeless will pass away, but Mary chose to contemplate, see the vision of God and it shall not be taken away from her. The Upaniṣad says that it is not necessary to withdraw from active life to give oneself up to the contemplative. Besides, no one can come to contemplation without having exercised the works of the active life.

St. Gregory says, 'We ascend to the heights of contemplation by the steps of the active life.' Morals on Job, XXXI. 102.

THE DENYING SPIRITS

3. asuryā nāma te lokā andhena tamasā vṛtāḥ tāms te pretyābhigacchanti ye ke cātmahano janāḥ.

3. Demoniac, verily, are those worlds enveloped in blinding darkness, and to them go after death, those people who are the slayers of the self.

asuryā: appertaining to the asuras, those who delight only in physical life (asu), those who are devoted to the nourishing of their lives, and addicted to sensual pleasures.

v. asūryā: sunless.

Siddhānta-kaumudī gives two derivations for the word sūrya:

saraty ākāṣe sūryaḥ kartari kyaḥ nīpatanād u-tvam yadvā su prerāṇe tudādīḥ suvati, karmaṇi lokam prerayati kyaḥ ruḥ.

He is the lord who makes men work. From him are derived all incentives to work.

For Ś. asuras are those who are not the knowers of the Self. The term includes all persons, from men to the highest gods, who have not the knowledge of the Supreme Self.

For Śaṅkarānanda those who desire riches are asuras as, by so doing they slay (forget) the all-pervading Self.

andhena tamasā: ignorance which consists in the inability to see one's self.

ātmahano janāḥ: Those who neglect the spirit. prākṛtā avidvāṃso janā ātmahana ucyante, tena hy ātma-hanana-doṣeṇa saṃsaranti te. Such souls are destined for the joyless, demoniac regions, enveloped in darkness. See B.U. IV. 4. 11. Ā says that the reference is to those who do not know the Self and thus attribute to it agency, etc.

THE SUPREME IS IMMANENT AND TRANSCENDENT

4. anejad ekam manaso javīyo nainad devā āpnuvan pūrva-marṣat tad dhāvato'nyān-atyeti tiṣṭhat tasminn apo mātariṣvā dadhāti.

4. (The spirit) is unmoving, one, swifter than the mind. The senses do not reach It as It is ever ahead of them. Though Itself standing still It outstrips those who run. In It the all-pervading air supports the activities of beings.

devāḥ: senses. dyotanād devāḥ cakṣurādīnīndriyāṇi. Ś.

apāḥ: activities—karmāṇi. Ś.

mātariśvan: air, because it moves, śvasiti, in the sky, antarikṣe.

mātariśvā vāyuh, sarva-prāṇa-bhṛt kriyātmakah, yad-āśrayāṇi kārya-kāraṇa-jātāni yasminn otāni protāni ca, yat sūtrasamjñakam, sarvasya jagato vidhārayitr sa mātariśvā. Ś.

It is that whose activity sustains all life, on which all causes and effects depend and in which all these inhere, which is called the thread which supports all the worlds (through which it runs).

For Śaṅkarānanda, mātariśvan is sūtrātman.

The whole world has the supreme Self as its basis. sarvā hi kārya-kāraṇādi-vikriyā nityacaitanyātmavastuvarūpe sarvāśpadabhūte saty eva bhavanti. Ś.

The Supreme is one essence but has two natures, an eternal immutability and an unceasing change. It is stillness and movement. Immovable in Itself, all things are moved from It. The unity and manifoldness are both aspects of the life divine. Unity is the truth and multiplicity is its manifestation. The former is the truth, vidyā, the latter ignorance, avidyā. The latter is not false except when it is viewed in itself, cut off from the eternal unity. Unity constitutes the base of multiplicity and upholds it but multiplicity does not constitute and uphold the unity.

5. tad ejati tan naijati tad dūre tad vad antike tad antarasya sarvasya tad u sarvasyāsya bāhyataḥ.

5. It moves and It moves not; It is far and It is near; It is within all this and It is also outside all this.

These apparently contradictory statements are not suggestive of the mental unbalance of the writer. He is struggling to describe what he experiences through the limitations of human thought and language. The Supreme is beyond the categories of thought. Thought is symbolic and so cannot conceive of the Absolute except through negations; yet the Absolute is not a void. It is all that is in time and yet is beyond time.

It is far because it is not capable of attainment by the ignorant and it is very near to the knowing for it is their very self.

Vedānta Deśika quotes two verses to show the distance and the intimacy of the Supreme to the undevout and the devout respectively:

parāṇmukhānām govinde, viṣayāsaktacetasaṁ teṣāṁ tat paramam brahma dūrād dūratare śhītam.
tan-mayatvena govinde ye narānyasta-cetasaḥ viṣaya-tyāginas teṣāṁ vijñeyaṁ ca tad antike.

These verses indicate the two sides of the Divine, the one and the many, the unmoving and the moving. They do not deny the reality of either. They see the one in the many. The one is the eternal truth of things; the many its manifestation. The latter is not a figment of the mind. It becomes so when it is divorced from the sense of its eternal background.

All things and beings are the manifestation of the One Supreme, which is described through paradoxes. It is swifter than the mind, the senses cannot grasp It; It eludes their hold. Standing, It outstrips all. Rooted in It, all the cosmic forces energise the whole universe. It moves and yet is motionless. It is near, yet distant. It is inside of all and outside of all.

6. *yas tu sarvāṇi bhūtāni ātmany evānupaśyati
sarvabhūteṣu cātmānam tato na vijugupsate.*

6. And he who sees all beings in his own self and his own self in all beings, he does not feel any revulsion by reason of such a view.

See B.G. VI. 30.

vijugupsate—v. vicikitsate. He has no doubts.

He shrinks from nothing as he knows that the One Self is manifested in the multiple forms. ātma-vyatirikṭāni na paśyati. Ś.

This verse speaks of the transformation of the soul, its absorption in God in whom is the whole universe. It also points out how unity is the basis of multiplicity and upholds the multiplicity. Therefore the essence of the Supreme is its simple Being. Multiplicity is its becoming. Brahman is the one self of all and the many are the becomings of the one Being.

7. yasmin sarvāṇi bhūtāny ātmaivābhūd vijānataḥ tatra ko mohaḥ kaḥ śokaḥ ekatvam anupaśyataḥ.

7. When, to one who knows, all beings have, verily, become one with his own self, then what delusion and what sorrow can be to him who has seen the oneness?

moha: delusion or the veiling of the self, āvaraṇa.

śoka: sorrow due to vikṣepa or distraction in the manifestations. Ś.

When the unity is realised by the individual he becomes liberated from sorrow, which is the product of dualities. When the self of the perceiver becomes all things, there can be no source of disturbance or care. The vision of all existences in the Self and of the Self in all existences is the foundation of freedom and joy. The Īśa, the Lord is immanent in all that moves in this world. There is no opposition between the one and the many.

The Upaniṣad opens with the conception of God immanent in the world, asks us to see the creation in God and does not overlook the fact of a fundamental oneness, ekatvam which alone is Being.

Eckhart: 'Does the soul know God in the creatures, that is merely evening light? Does she know creatures in God; that is morning light? But does the soul know God as He who alone is Being, that is the light of midday?' Rudolf Otto: Mysticism: East and West (1932), p. 52 n.

8. sa paryagāc chukram, akāyam, avraṇam, asnāvīram, śuddham, apāpavidham kaviṛ manīṣī, paribhūḥ, svayambhūḥ, yāthātathyato' rihān.
vyadaadhāc chāśvatibhyas samābhyaḥ.

8. He has filled all; He is radiant, bodiless, invulnerable, devoid of sinews, pure, untouched by evil. He, the seer, thinker, all-pervading, self-existent has duly distributed through endless years the objects according to their natures.

kaviḥ: the seer. He who knows the past, the present and the future kaviḥ krānta-darśī sarva-drk. Ś. He has intuitive wisdom, while manīṣī is the thinker. manīṣī manasa īśitā sarvajña īśvaraḥ.
paribhūḥ: all-pervading. As the cosmic soul He pervades the universe.
Ś. says that the omniscient Lord allotted different functions to the various and eternal prajā-patis known popularly as years.
samvatsarākhyebhyaḥ prajā-patibhyaḥ. Ś. See also B.U. I. 5. 14; Prāsna I. 9.

IGNORANCE AND KNOWLEDGE

9. andham tamaḥ praviśanti yo' vidyām upāsate
tato bhūya iva te tamo ya u vidyāyām ratāḥ.

9. Into blinding darkness enter those who worship ignorance and those who delight in knowledge enter into still greater darkness, as it were.

See B.U. IV. 4-10.

Ś. interprets avidyā to mean ceremonial piety and vidyā as knowledge of the deities. The former leads to the world of the manes and the latter to the world of gods. Cp. vidyayā deva-lokaḥ karmanā pitṛ-lokaḥ. B.U. II. 5. 16. Ś. feels that vidyā cannot refer to the knowledge of Brahman for it cannot lead to greater darkness. If we are lost in the world of birth, becoming, we overlook our pure being. If we concentrate on the latter, we will also be onesided. We must look upon the Absolute as the one and the many, as both the stable and the moving. It is both immanent and transcendent.

The verse refers also to the dichotomy of work and wisdom and suggests that while those who are lost in works without the wisdom of the spirit enter into darkness, those who are exclusively devoted to the pursuit of wisdom, to the neglect of works, enter into still greater darkness. Selfish seekers of spiritual wisdom miss their aim.

The Upaniṣad repudiates both schools of thought—those who hold that salvation is attained only by means of works and those who hold that it is to be attained by knowledge alone. It supports Kumārila who advocates a combination of knowledge and works. Kumārila says that even as a bird cannot fly in the heaven by one wing only but only by both the wings, even so man can gain salvation only by the combined pursuit of knowledge and works. Contemplative and active lives should go together. 'Faith without works is dead.'

It is also said that avidyā applies to the selfish people who desire worldly possessions and vidyā to those who say 'I am Brahman' without the actual realisation of this truth. Ś.

The state of those who are lost in ignorance and cling to external props is pitiable indeed, but the state of those who are intellectually learned but spiritually poor is worse. The darkness of intellectual conceit is worse than that of ignorance. The writer is here distinguishing between knowledge by description and knowledge by acquaintance or experience.

IO. anyad evāhur vidyayā anyad āhur avidyayā iti śuśrūma dhīrānām ye naś tad vicacakṣire.

IO. Distinct, indeed, they say, is the result of knowledge and distinct, they say, is the result of ignorance. Thus have we heard from those wise who have explained to us these.

We cannot grasp the nature of ultimate Reality by either discursive knowledge or lack of it.

If knowledge and ignorance are both real, it is because consciousness of oneness and consciousness of multiplicity are different sides of the supreme self-awareness. The one Brahman is the basis of numberless manifestations.

II. vidyām cāvidyām ca yas tad vedobhayam saha avidyayā mṛtyuṁ tīrtvā vidyayāmṛtam aśnute.

II. Knowledge and ignorance, he who knows the two together crosses death through ignorance and attains life eternal through knowledge.

See Maitrī. VII. 9.

Vidyā is equated with knowledge of deities and avidyā with karma, vidyām cāvidyām ca devatājñānam karma cety arthah. Ś. Ś makes out that by the performance of rites we overcome death and by the meditation on deities we attain immortality, which is becoming one with the deity meditated upon. amṛtam devātmabhāvam.

Vedānta Desika quotes a verse where it is said that by austerity we destroy sins and by wisdom we attain life eternal.

tapasā kalmaṣam hanti vidyayāmṛtam aśnute.*

Kūranārāyaṇa says, 'avidyayā vidyāṅga-rūpatayā coditena karmanā mṛtyum vidyotpatti-pratibandhaka-bhūtam ṣṇya-pāpa-rūpam prakṛtanam karma tīrtvā niravaśeṣam ullāṅghya vidyayā paramātmopāśana-rūpayā amṛtam aśnute mokṣam prāpnōti.

ubhayaṁ saha: the two together. Works though they do not by themselves lead to salvation, are helpful in preparing our hearts for it. If we imagine that we can attain the highest wisdom without such previous preparation, we are mistaken. If we give ourselves to what is not knowledge we are mistaken, if we delight altogether in knowledge despising work we are also mistaken.¹

Avidyā is regarded as an essential prerequisite for spiritual life. Man cannot rise to spiritual enlightenment if he has not first through avidyā become conscious of himself as a separate ego. In spiritual life we transcend this sense of separateness. To reach the higher self we must do battle with the lower. The endowment of intellectuality or avidyā is justified on the ground that it creates the conditions for its own transformation. If we remain at the intellectual level, look upon it not only as a means but as the end in itself, if we deny the reality of life eternal to which we have to rise, then we suffer from intellectual pride and spiritual blindness. The knowledge of discursive reason is essential, but it has to be transcended into the life of spirit. Avidyā must be transcended in Vidyā. Avidyā has its place. Without it there is no individual, no bondage, no liberation.²

THE MANIFEST AND THE UNMANIFEST

12. andhaṁ tamaḥ pravṛṣanti ye'sambhūtim upāśate tato bhūya iva te tamo ya u sambhūtyām ratāḥ.

12. Into blinding darkness enter those who worship the unmanifest and into still greater darkness, as it were, those who delight in the manifest.

asambhūti: the unmanifest, the undifferentiated prakṛti. We get our rewards according to our beliefs.

¹ Augustine: 'Two virtues are set before the soul of man, the one active, the other contemplative; the one whereby we journey, the other whereby we reach our journey's end; the one whereby we toil that our heart may be cleansed for the vision of God; the other whereby we repose and see God; the one lies in the precepts for carrying on this temporal life, the other in the doctrine of that life which is eternal. Hence it is that the one toils, and the other reposes; for the former is in the purgation of sins, the latter in the light (or illumination) of the purgation effected.' Quoted in Dom Cuthbert Butler's Western Mysticism (1922).

² 'Avidyā meaning the normal run of life based upon the procreative institution of marriage is treated as a means of preventing physical discontinuity, and vidyā meaning the leading of chaste life, the practice of austerities and the pursuit of higher knowledge as means of realising the immortality of soul.' B. M. Barua: Ceylon Lectures (1945), p. 201 n.

asambhūti: non-becoming: Those who do not believe in re-birth may be referred to.

sambhūti: the manifest, the lord of the phenomenal world, kārya-brahma Hiranya-garbha. Ś. It is sometimes said that asambhūti means that the world has no creator, that it is produced, preserved and destroyed by its own nature. Those who hold such a view are the naturalists. See B.G. XVI. 8, 9, 20.

The Supreme is neither of these in the sense that he is not also the other. If we identify the Supreme with the manifest, it would be pantheism in the sense that the whole of the Divine nature finds expression in the manifested world, leaving nothing over, and it is a wrong view. Again, if the world of becoming were not there, it would all disappear in what would seem a world of undifferentiated abstraction. Within the depths of the spirit there is unfolded before us the drama of God's dealings with man and man's with God. Unity and multiplicity are both aspects of the Supreme and therefore the nature of the Supreme is said to be inconceivable.

ekatve sati nānātvam nānātve sati caikatā acintyam brahmaṇo rūpaṁ kaś tad veditum arhati.

quoted by R. on M.U. I. 3.

13. anyad evaḥh sambhavād anyad āhur asambhavāt iti śūśrūma dhīrānām ye naś tad vicacakṣire.

13. Distinct, indeed, they say, is what results from the manifest, and distinct, they say, is what results from the unmanifest. Thus have we heard from those wise who have explained to us these.

Those who worship the Creator Hiranya-garbha obtain supernatural powers: those who worship the Unmanifested principle of prakṛti get absorbed into it. sambhūteḥ kārya-brahmopāśanāt asambhūteḥ avyākṛtāt. Ś. quoting from the Purāṇas.

14. sambhūtiṁ ca vināśaṁ ca yaś tad vedobhayaṁ saha vināśena mṛtyuṁ tīrtvā sambhūtyā amṛtaṁ aśnate.

14. He who understands the manifest and the unmanifest both together, crosses death through the unmanifest and attains life eternal through the manifest.

Ś tells us that sambhūti here means asambhūti. vināśa is taken as effect and so sambhūti. sambhūtiṁ ca vināśaṁ cetyatrāvarṇalopena nirdeśo draśṭavyaḥ prakṛti-laya-phala-śrutyānurodhāt.

Vedānta Deśika and Kūranārāyaṇa dispute Ś' interpretation. atra sambhūti-vināśa-śabdābhyāṁ sṛṣṭi-pralaya-vivakṣayā kārya-hiranya-garbhasya avyākṛta-pradhānasya copāśanam vidhīyata iti, śāṁkara-vyākhyānam anupāśanam. tathā sati mṛtyu-taraṇāmṛtatva-prāpti-rūpa-phala-vacanānaucityāt.

To be absorbed in the world around without turning to the principle at the base of it is one extreme; to be absorbed in the contemplation of the transcendent infinite indifferent to the events of the manifested world because they are likely to disturb inward serenity and self-complacency is another extreme. This verse asks us to lead a life in the manifested world with a spirit of non-attachment, with the mind centred in the unmanifest. We must live in this world without being choked by it. We must centre our thoughts in the eternal remembering that the eternal is the soul of the temporal.

PRAYER FOR THE VISION OF GOD

15. hiraṇmayena pātreṇa satyasyāpihitam mukham tat tvam pūṣan apāvrṇu satyadharmāya dr̥ṣṭaye.

15. The face of truth is covered with a 'golden disc. Unveil it, O Pūṣan, so that I who love the truth may see it.

See B.U. V. 15. 1-3.

16. pūṣann ekarṣe yama sūrya prajāpatya vyūha raśmīn samūha tejah.

yat te rūpam kalyāṇatamaṁ tat te paśyāmi yo sāu asau puruṣaḥ, so'ham asmi.

16. O Pūṣan, the sole seer, O Controller, O Sun, offspring of Prajā-pati, spread forth your rays and gather up your radiant light that I may behold you of loveliest form. Whosoever is that person (yonder) that also am I.

17. *vāyur anilam amṛtam athedam bhasmāntam śarīram
aum krato smara kṛtaṁ smara krato smara kṛtaṁ smara.*

17. May this life enter into the immortal breath; then may this body end in ashes. O Intelligence, remember, remember what has been done. Remember, O Intelligence, what has been done, Remember:

18. agne naya supathā rāye asmān viśvāni deva vayunāni vidvān

yuyodhyaśmaj juharāṇam eno bhūyiṣṭhām te nama-uktim vidhema.

18. O Agni, lead us, along the auspicious path to prosperity, O God, who knowest all our deeds. Take away from us deceitful sins. We shall offer many prayers unto thee.

Verses 15-18 are uttered at the time of death. Even to-day they are used by the Hindus in their funeral rites. We are required to remember our past deeds as their results accompany the departing soul and determine the nature of the future life.

The Upaniṣad emphasises the unity of God and the world and the union of the two lives, the contemplative and the active. We cannot have the contemplative life without the active. We must cleanse our souls to ascend the heights of contemplation. The seers of the Upaniṣads, the Buddha, Jesus have set an example not to neglect the work of the world through love of contemplation. They are noted for their stability and poise. Their calm was a vigilant one. They act without selfishness and help without patronising.

KENA UPANIṢAD

The Upaniṣad derives its name from the first word Kena, by whom, and belongs to the Sāma Veda. It is also known as the Talavakāra, the name of the Brāhmaṇa of the Sāma Veda to which the Upaniṣad belongs. It has four sections, the first two in verse and the other two in prose. The metrical portion deals with the Supreme Unqualified Brahman, the absolute principle underlying the world of phenomena and the prose part of the Upaniṣad deals with the Supreme as God, Īśvara. The knowledge of the Absolute, parā vidyā, which secures immediate liberation (sadyo-mukti) is possible only for those who are able to withdraw their thoughts from worldly objects and concentrate on the ultimate fact of the universe. The knowledge of Īśvara, aparā vidyā, puts one on the pathway that leads to deliverance eventually (krama-mukti). The worshipping soul gradually acquires the higher wisdom which results in the consciousness of the identity with the Supreme.

INVOCATION

1. āpyāyantu mamāṅgāni vāk prāṇas cakṣuḥ śrotram atho balaṁ indriyāni ca sarvāni.

1. May my limbs grow vigorous, my speech, breath, eye, ear as also my strength and all my senses.

2. sarvaṁ brahmopaniṣadam mā'ham brahma nirākuryām mā mā brahma nirākarot anirākaraṇam astu anirākaraṇam me'stū.

2. All is the Brahman of the Upaniṣads. May I never discard Brahman. May the Brahman never discard me. May there be no discarding. May there be no discarding of me.

3. *tad ātmani nirate ya upaniṣatsu dharmās te mayi santu.
Aum. śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ.*

3. Let those truths which are (set forth) in the Upaniṣads live in me dedicated to the self. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

Section I

WHO IS THE REAL AGENT IN THE INDIVIDUAL?

1. keneṣitam patati preṣitam manah kena prāṇaḥ prathamah praiti yuktaḥ.

keneṣitām vācam imām vadanti. cakṣuḥ śrotraṁ ka u devo yunakti.

1. By whom willed and directed does the mind light on its objects? By whom commanded does life the first, move? At whose will do (people) utter this speech? And what god is it that prompts the eye and the ear?

The questions put in this verse by the pupil imply that the passing things of experience are not all and they depend on a permanent reality. The necessity of a ground for the existence of finite beings is assumed here. The questions assume that there is a relation between reality and these phenomena, that the real governs the phenomenal.

THE ALL-CONDITIONING YET INSCRUTABLE BRAHMAN IS THE AGENT

2. śrotrasya śrotram manaso mano yad vāco ha vācam sa u prāṇasya prāṇaḥ cakṣuṣaś cakṣur atimucya dhīrāḥ, prety āsmāl lokāt amṛtā bhavanti.

2. Because it is that which is the ear of the ear, the mind of the mind, the speech, indeed of the speech, the breath of the breath, the eye of the eye, the wise, giving up (wrong notions of their self-sufficiency) and departing from this world, become immortal.

This verse contains the answers to the questions raised in the first verse.

ear of the ear: it means that the self directs the ear.

There is the Eternal Reality behind the mind, life and the senses, the mind of the mind, the life of the life. Brahman is not an object subject to mind, speech and the senses. He who knows it will gain life eternal and not the partial satisfactions of the earthly life. Here in the world of space and time we are always seeking the Beyond which is above space and time. There, we possess the consciousness that is beyond space and time.

3. na tatra cakṣur gacchati na vāg gacchati no manah na vidmo na vijānīmo yathaitad anuśiṣyāt.

3. There the eye goes not, speech goes not, nor the mind; we know not, we understand not how one can teach this.

Kātha. VI. 12; M.U. III. (1)-8; T.U. II. 4.

The Supreme is not dependent on mind, life and senses for its being.

Knowledge of a thing arises through the senses or the mind and since Brahman is not reached by either of these, we do not know of what nature it is. We are therefore unable to understand how anyone can explain that Brahman to a disciple. Whatever is perceivable by the senses, that it is possible to indicate to others, by genus, quality, function or relationship, jāti-guṇa-kriyā-viśeṣaṇāih. Brahman does not possess any of these differentiating characters. Hence the difficulty in explaining its nature to disciples. Ś.

4. anyad eva tad vidadāth atha aviditād adhi iti śuśrūma pūrveṣāṃ ye na tad vyācacaḥṣire.

See Īśa 10, 13.

4. Other, indeed, is it than the known; and also it is above the unknown. Thus have we heard from the ancients who have explained it to us.

It is above the known and the unknown, but it is not unknowable. Verse 6 says, tad eva brahma tvaṃ viddhi, 'that, verily, is Brahman, know thou,' implies that the Brahman is not beyond our apprehension. The writer suggests that this teaching has been transmitted by tradition. We cannot know it by logic. brahma caitanyam ācāryopadeśa paramparayaivādhigantavyam, na tarkataḥ. Ś.

'Those who know do not speak; Those who speak do not know.' Tao Te'Ching. 56. A. Waley's English translation The Way and the Power.

5. yad vācā nabhyudītam yena vāg abhyudyate tad eva brahma tvaṃ viddhi nedam yad idam upāsate.

5. That which is not expressed through speech but that by which speech is expressed; that, verily, know thou, is Brahman, not what (people) here adore.

Ś argues that the author lays stress on the distinction between the Absolute Brahman who is one with the deepest self in us and Īśvara who is the object of worship.

Īśvara as the indwelling spirit and not as an object who is external to us is what the Real is. God must cease to be a conceived and apprehended God but become the inward power by which we live. But this inward experience of God is felt only by the advanced spirits. The simple, unreflective child-mind seeks God who is above and not within. The prayer of Solomon, 'Hear thou in Heaven thy dwelling-place.'¹ not what people here adore.—The pure Godhead which is beyond all conceptual determinations and differentiations, when viewed conceptually and concretely becomes, as Eckhart says, an 'idol,' 'Had I a God whom I could understand, I would no longer hold him for God.'²

Spirit cannot be objectified. The revelation of Spirit is in the depths of one's life and not in the objective world. However high our conception may be, so long as it is an objective attitude, it is a form of idolatry. When we are in bondage to the objective world, we look upon God as a great external force, a supernatural power who demands to be appeased. God is life and can be revealed only in spiritual life. The relation to the Supreme is an inward one revealing itself in the depths of spiritual life. Spirit is freedom, life, the opposite of necessity, passivity, death. This and the following verses affirm that Spirit must free itself from the yoke of necessity. The more completely we live in the divine the less do we reflect on him.

Cp. Eckhart: When the soul beholds God purely, it takes all its being and its life and whatever it is from the depth of God; yet it knows no knowing, no loving, or anything else whatsoever. It rests utterly and completely within the being of God, and knows nothing but only to be with God. So soon as it becomes conscious that it sees and loves and knows God, that is in itself a departure.'³

6. yan manaṣā na manute yenāhur mano matam tad eva brahma tvam viddhi nedam yad idam upāsate.

6. That which is not thought by the mind but by which, they say, the mind is thought (thinks); that, verily, know thou, is Brahman and not what (people) here adore.

Brahman is the pure subject and should not be confused with any object, however exalted.

7. *yac cakṣuṣā na paśyati yena cakṣūṁṣi paśyati

Section 2

THE PARADOX OF THE INSCRUTABILITY OF BRAHMAN

1. *yadi manyase suvedeti dabhram evāpi nūnaṁ tvaṁ vettha brahmaṇo rūpam.
yadasya tvaṁ yadasya deveṣu atha nu mīmāṃsyam eva te, manye viditam.*

1. If you think that you have understood Brahman well, you know it but slightly, whether it refers to you (the individual self) or to the gods. So then is it to be investigated by you (the pupil) (even though) I think it is known.

dabhram, another reading is daharam. Both mean alpaṁ or small. Whatever is human or divine is limited by adjuncts and is thus not different from smallness or finitude. The Brahman which is free from adjuncts is not an object of knowledge. The disciple is asked to ponder over this truth and he, through reasoning and intuitive experience, comes to a decision and approaches the teacher and says, 'I think that Brahman is now understood by me.'
evam ācāryoktaḥ śiṣya ekānte upaviṣṭaḥ samāhitassan, yathoktam ācāryeṇa āgamam arthato vicārya tarkataś ca nīrdhārya, svānubhāvaṁ kṛtvā, ācārya-sakāśam upagamya, uvāca manye'ham athedānīm viditam brahmeti. Ś.

2. nāham manye suvedeti no na vedeti veda ca yo nas tad veda tad veda no na vedeti veda ca.

2. I do not think that I know it well; nor do I think that I do not know it. He who among us knows it, knows it and he, too, does not know that he does not know.

'It is neither that I know him not, nor is it that I know him' is also an admissible rendering.

There is the knowledge that we obtain through philosophical processes but there is also another kind of knowledge. The founder and model of Egyptian monachism, St. Antony, according to Cassian (Coll IX. 31), delivered this judgment about prayer, 'That prayer is not perfect in which the monk understands himself or his own prayer.' (See Encyclopaedia of Religions and Ethics, article on Roman Catholic.)

Cp. Dionysius: 'There is that most divine knowledge of God which takes place through ignorance, in the union which is above intelligence, when the intellect quitting all things that are, and then leaving itself also, is united to the superluculent rays, being illuminated thence and therein by the unsearchable depth of wisdom.' Divine Names VII. 3. Louis of Blois observes: 'The soul, having entered the vast solitude of the Godhead, happily loses itself; and enlightened by the brightness of most lucid darkness, becomes through knowledge as if without knowledge, and dwells in a sort of wise ignorance.' Spiritual Mirror, Ch. XI.

3. yasyāmatam tasya matam matam yasya na veda saḥ avijñātām vijñātām vijñātām avijñātām.

3. To whomsoever it is not known, to him it is known: to whomsoever it is known, he does not know. It is not understood by those who understand it; it is understood by those who do not understand it.

This verse brings out how we struggle with the difficulties of human expression, how we confess to ourselves the insufficiency of mental utterance.

The Supreme is not an object of ordinary knowledge but of intuitive realisation. If we think that we know Brahman and we can describe Him as an object perceived in nature or as the cause inferred from nature, we do not, in reality, know Him. Those who feel that they do not and cannot know Him in this manner do have a knowledge of Him. Brahman cannot be comprehended as an object of knowledge. He can be realised as the subject in all knowledge. Ś says that the true knowledge is intuitive experience, samyag-darśanam. The process of abstraction employed by philosophers gives us an abstract idea, but the intuitive apprehension by which the soul is carried away above all intelligence into a direct union with God is different from intellectual abstraction and negation.

Vajracchedhika Sūtra, f. 38, XXVI: 'Those who see me in any form or think of me in words, their way of thinking is false, they do not see me at all. The Beneficent Ones are to be seen in the Law, theirs is a Lawbody; the Buddha is rightly to be understood as being of the nature of the Law, he cannot be understood by any means.'

Plotinus: 'In other words, they have seen God and they do not remember? Ah, no: it is that they see God still and always, and that as long as they see, they cannot tell themselves they have had the vision; such reminiscence is for souls that have lost it.' Enneads, IV. 4. 6. Nicolas of Cusa, De Vis. Dei, Ch. XVI: 'What satisfies the intellect is not what it understands.'

Cp. Dionysius, the Areopagite: 'God is invisible from excess of light. He who perceives God is himself in darkness. God's all-pervading darkness is hidden from every light and veils all recognition. And if anyone who sees God recognises and understands what he sees, then he himself hath not seen Him.'

THE VALUE OF THE KNOWLEDGE OF BRAHMA¹

4. pratibodha-viditam matam amṛtatvaṃ hi vindate
ātmanā vindate vīryaṃ vidyayā vindate amṛtam.

4. When it is known through every state of cognition, it is rightly known, for (by such knowledge) one attains life eternal. Through one's own self one gains power and through wisdom one gains immortality.

pratibodha-viditam: through every state of cognition. bodham bodham prati viditam. Ś. The self is the witness of all states. sarva-pratyaya-darśi-cicchakti-svarūpa-mātrah. To know it as such is right knowledge. It is the absolute a priori, the certain foundation of all knowledge. If pratibodha-viditam is interpreted as leading to an inferential apprehension of the self, then self becomes a substance possessing the faculty of knowing and not knowledge itself. bodha-kriya-śaktimān ātmā dravyam, na bodha-svarūpa eva. Ś. Knowledge appears and disappears. When knowledge appears, the self is inferred; when knowledge disappears, the self becomes a mere unintelligent substance. tathā naśtābodho. dravyamātram nirviśeṣaḥ. Ś. The self is subject to changes.

If pratibodha-viditam means knowledge of self by self, the object known is the conditioned Brahman and not the unconditioned Reality. 'Pure spirituality is bound only to interior recollection and mental converse with God. So although (one) may make use of (these interventions) this will be only for a time; his spirit will at once come to rest in God and he will forget all things of sense.'¹

'Of all forms and manners of knowledge the soul must strip and void itself so that there may be left in it no kind of impression of knowledge, nor trace of aught soever, but rather the soul must remain barren and bare, as if these forms had never passed through it, and in total oblivion and suspension.'²

5. iha ced avedīd atha satyam asti na ced ihāvedin mahatī vīnaṣṭīh bhūteṣu bhūteṣu vicintya dhīrāḥ pretyāsmāl lokād amṛtā bhavanti.

5. If here (a person) knows it, then there is truth, and if here he knows it not, there is great loss. Hence, seeing or (seeking) (the Real) in all beings, wise men become immortal on departing from this world.

vicintya: vijñāya, sākṣātkṛtya. Ś. v. vicitya.

The wise man sees the same Brahman in every creature.
here: If here on earth, in this physical body, we arrive at our true existence, and are no longer bound down to the process, to the becoming, we are saved. If we do not find the truth, our loss is great, for we, then, are lost in the life of mind and body and do not rise above it to our supramental existence.

THE ALLEGORY OF THE VEDIC GODS' IGNORANCE OF BRAHMAN^{d fro} ^{adē}

1. brahma ha devebhyo vijigye, taṣ ha brahmaṇo vijaye devā amahīyanta, ta aikṣantāsmākam evāy n vijayo'smākam evāyam mahimā iti.
^{to}

1. Brahman, it is said, conquered^t (once) for the gods, and the gods gloried in that conquest of Brahman. They thought, ours, indeed, is this victory and ours, indeed, is this greatness.

The incomprehensible Supreme is higher than all gods, and is the source of victory for the gods and defeat, for the demons. Brahman as the Supreme Īśvara vanquishes the enemies of the world and restores stability to it.

We see in this allegory the supplanting of the Vedic gods by the one Supreme Brahman.

See B.U. I. 3. 1-7.

2. tadd haiṣām vijajñau, tebhyo ha prādur babhūva, tan na vyajānata kim idam yakṣam iti.

2. (Brahman) indeed knew this (conceit of theirs). He appeared before them. They did not know what spirit it was.

3. They said to Agni, 'O Jāta-vedas, find this out, what this spirit is.' 'Yes' (said he).

jāta-vedas is said to be omniscient. sarvajña-kalpam: Ś. jātaṁ sarvaṁ vetti iti jāta-vedāḥ. It is the name given to Agni in the R.V.

4. tad abhyadravat, tam abhyavadat ko'sīti, agnir vā aham asmi ity abravīt, jāta-vedā aham asmi iti.

4. He hastened towards it and it said to him, 'Who art thou?' (Agni) replied, 'I am Agni indeed, I am Jāta-vedas.'

5. tasmims tvayi kim vīryam iti, apīdaṁ sarvaṁ daheyam yad idam pṛthivyām iti.

9. (He asked Vāyu) 'What power is there in thee?' (Vāyu) replied, 'I can blow off everything whatever there is on earth.'

10. tasmai tṛṇaṁ nidadhau etad ādatsveti, tad upapreyāya

sarva-javena, tan na śaśākādātum, sa tata eva nivartye, naitad aśakam vijñātum yad etad yakṣam iti.

10. He placed before him (a blade of) grass saying, 'Blow off.' Vāyu went towards it with all speed but could not blow it off. He returned thence and said, 'I have not been able to find out what this spirit is.'

11. athendram abruvan, maghavan, etad vijānīhi kim etad yakṣam iti, tatheti, tad abhyadravat; tasmāt tirodadhe.

11. Then they said to Indra, 'O Maghavan, find this out what this spirit is.' 'Yes' (said he). He hastened towards it (but) it disappeared from before him.

12. sa tasminn evākāṣe striyam ājagāma bahu-śobhamānām umām haimavatīm tām hovāca kim etad yakṣam iti.

12. When in the same region of the sky, he (Indra) came across a lady, most beautiful, Umā, the daughter of Himavat, and said to her, 'What is this spirit?'

bahu-śobhamānām umām: most beautiful, Umā. Umā is wisdom personified.

Umā: the name is said to be derived from u mā, do not practise austerities which is the exclamation addressed to Pārvatī by her mother.

This legend that Umā, the daughter of the Himālayas revealed the mystic idealism of the Upaniṣads to the gods is an imaginative expression of the truth that the thought of the Upaniṣads was developed by the forest dwellers in the mountain fastnesses of the Himālayas.

haimavatīm: the daughter of Himavat. Holy men live there and pilgrims go there as for many centuries the striving of the human spirit has been directed towards these mountain ranges.

Wisdom is the most beautiful of all beautiful things. sarveśam hi śobhamānānām śobhanatamā vidyā. Ś. virūpo'pi vidyāvān bahu śobhate. Beauty is the expression of inward purity. Sins leave a scar on the soul or otherwise disfigure it. Umā is the Wisdom that dispels Indra's ignorance. Mere knowledge untouched by divine grace will not do. In the lives of saints we find that the sight of an angel or the hearing of its voice floods the seer with a new power and imparts illumination.

In the Devī Saptasatī it is said that the Mother of the universe will descend to earth or assume incarnations whenever disturbances are caused by beings of a demoniacal nature.

ittam yadā yadā bādha dānavotthā bhaviṣyati, tadā tadāvātīryāham karisyamy ari-saṁkṣayam.

Mārkaṇḍeya Purāṇa, Devī Saptasatī II. 55.

Durgā: sometimes worshipped as Kātyāyanī, is represented to be divine wisdom, brahma-vidyā. Cp. mokṣārthibhir munibhir asta-sa-masta-doṣair vidyāsi sā bhagavatī, paramā hi devī: O Goddess, Thou art Wisdom, the supreme goddess worshipped by the seekers of liberation, by the sages, in whom all passions have subsided, Durgā-saptasatī.

Cp. Peter Abailard: 'However long you exert yourself in dialectic, you will consume your labour in vain, unless grace from heaven makes your mind capable of so great a mystery. Daily practice, can, indeed, furnish any mind with knowledge of the other science, but philosophy is to be attributed to divine grace alone, and, if this grace does not prepare your mind inwardly, your philosophy merely flogs the air outside to no avail.'¹

Section 4

KNOWLEDGE OF BRAHMAN IS THE GROUND OF SUPERIORITY

1. sā brahmeti hovāca, brahmaṇo vā etad vijaye mahīyadhvam iti, tato haiva vidāṁcakāra brahma iti.

1. She replied, 'This is Brahman, to be sure, and in the victory of Brahman, indeed, do you glory thus.' Then only did he (Indra) know that it was Brahman.

The object of the story is to illustrate the superiority of Brahman to all the manifestations including the divine ones.

Brahman here is Īśvara or personal God who governs the Universe. Cp.: 'All things cry out to Thee, pass on, I am not God.'—Eckhart.

2. tasmād vā ete devā atitarāṁvivānyān devān yad agnir vāyur indrah, te hy enan nediṣṭham pasprśuḥ, te hy enat prathamam vidāṁcakāra brahmeti.

2. Therefore, these gods, Agni, Vāyu and Indra, surpass greatly other gods, for they, it was, that touched Brahman closest, for they, indeed, for the first time knew (it was) Brahman.

3. tasmād vā indro' titarāṁvivānyān devān, sa hy enan nediṣṭham pasparśa, sa hy enat prathamam vidāṁcakāra brahmeti.

3. Therefore, Indra surpasses greatly, as it were, other gods. He, indeed, has come into close contact with Brahman. He, indeed, for the first time knew that (it was) Brahman.

Of the three Agni, Vāyu and Indra, Indra obtained the knowledge that it was Brahman through the grace of Umā. Brahman is the supreme being through whose power alone the gods enjoy greatness. See Kāṭha VI. 3.

BRAHMAN, THE COSMIC AND INDIVIDUAL REALITY

4. tasyaiṣa ādeśo yad etad vidyuto vyadyutadā itin nyamīmīśadā, ity adhidaivatam.

4. Of this Brahman, there is this teaching: this is as it were, like the lightning which flashes forth or the winking of the eye. This teaching is concerning the gods.

'like sudden lightning': yathā sakṛd vidyutam. The illustration of lightning is used to indicate the instantaneous enlightenment produced by the union of the individual soul with the transcendental principle of universal wisdom. Like lightning Brahman showed Himself to the gods once and disappeared. There is a sudden enlarging of the mind, a flash of light enlightening the intellect, an inpouring of the spirit causing fervour and joy ineffable.

The masters of spiritual life tell us that the hidden word comes to them all on a sudden for one brief moment, when all things are hushed in a deep stillness.

Cp. The Cloud of Unknowing: 'There will He sometimes peradventure send out a beam of ghostly light, piercing this cloud of unknowing that is betwixt thee and Him; and shew thee some of his privy, the which man may not nor cannot speak.' Chapter XXVI.

Cp. Augustine quoted by Eckhart: 'In this first flash when thou art as if struck by lightning, when thou hearest inwardly the affirmation "Truth" there remain if thou canst.'—Rudolf Otto: Mysticism: East and West (1932), p. 34.

The two illustrations of the flash of lightning and the twinkling of the eye suggest the sudden glimpse, sakṛd-vijñānam, into Reality which has to be transformed into permanent realization. Ultimate truth can only be taught by examples: nirupamasya brahmaṇo yenopamānena upadeśaḥ. Ś.

5. athādhyātmam, yadetat gacchatīva ca manah anena caitad upasmaraty abhīkṣṇam samkalpaḥ.

5. Now the teaching concerning the self.—It is this toward which the mind appears to move; by the same (mind, one) remembers constantly; volition also likewise.

The mental processes by which we remember, think and will presuppose Brahman. There is a general view that there is an analogy between the divine spirit, the cosmic world and the individual soul. In several passages, as here, it is said, 'So with regard to the divine; now with regard to the soul.'

6. tadd ha tad-vanaṁ nāma, tad-vanam ity upāsitavyam, sa ya etad evaṁ vedābhi hainaṁ sarvāṇi bhūtāni saṁvāñchanti.

6. Brahman, the object of all desire, that, verily, is what is called the dearest of all. It is to be meditated upon as such (tadvanam). Whoever knows it thus, him, all beings seek.

tad-vanam: dearest of all: tasya prāṇi-jātasya pratyag-ātmā-bhūtāt vāḍ vananīyaṁ sambhājanīyaṁ atas tadvanam nāma prakhyātam. brahma tadvanam. Ś.

vāñchanti: seek, yearn, prārthayanti. Ś.

7. upaniṣadam bho brūhi—iti, uktā upaniṣat, brāhmīm vā va ta upaniṣadam abrūma, iti.

7. (The pupil) 'Sir, teach (me) the secret (Upaniṣad).' (The teacher): 'The secret has been taught to thee; we have taught thee the secret relating to Brahman.'

8. tasyaitapo-dama-karmeti pratiṣṭhā, vedāḥ sarvāṅgāni, satyam āyatanam.

8. Austerities, self-control and work are its support; the Vedās are all its units; truth is its abode.

tapah: austerity. It is derived from the root tap to burn. It signifies warmth. The saints are represented as undergoing austerities for years to attain supernatural powers. The Supreme is said to have endured austerities in order to create.

Tapas is training in spiritual life. Negatively, it is cleansing our soul of all that is sinful and imperfect; positively, it is building up of all that is good and holy. In the history of religion, the practice of bodily austerities has been looked upon as the chief means for attaining spiritual ends. The privations of food and drink, of sleep and clothing, of exposure to heat and cold are labours undertaken to wear down the body. In the story of asceticism, Hindu or Christian, excesses of bodily suffering play a large part such as the use of chainlets, spikes and pricks and scourgings.

9. yo vā etāṁ evaṁ vedāpahatya pāpmānam ante svarge loke jīyeye pratitiṣṭhati, pratitiṣṭhati.

9. Whoever knows this, he, indeed, overcoming sin, in the end, is firmly established in the Supreme world of heaven; yes, he is firmly established.

ante: in the end. v. anante, infinite, which is taken to qualify svarga or heaven. In that case svarga is not paradise but infinite bliss from which there is no return to earthly embodiments. na punas saṁsāram āpadyata ity abhiprāyaḥ. Ś.

KATHA UPANIṢAD

Kaṭha Upaniṣad, also called Kāthakopaniṣad which belongs to the Taittirīya school of the Yajur Veda, uses the setting of a story found in ancient Sanskrit literature.¹ A poor and pious Brāhmaṇa, Vājasravasa, performs a sacrifice and gives as presents to the priests a few old and feeble cows. His son, Naciketas, feeling disturbed by the unreality of his father's observance of the sacrifice, proposes that he himself may be offered as offering (dakṣiṇā) to a priest. When he persisted in his request, his father in rage said, 'Unto Yama, I give thee.' Naciketas goes to the abode of Yama and finding him absent, waits there for three days and nights unfed. Yama, on his return, offers three gifts in recompense for the delay and discomfort caused to Naciketas. For the first, Naciketas asked, 'Let me return alive to my father.' For the second, 'Tell me how my good works (iṣṭā-pūrta) may not be exhausted'; and for the third, 'Tell me the way to conquer re-death (punar mṛtyu).'

In the Upaniṣad, the third request is one for enlightenment on the 'great transition' which is called death.

The Upaniṣad consists of two chapters, each of which has three Vallis or sections.

There are some passages common to the Gītā and the Kaṭha U.

¹ Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa III. 1. 8; see also M.B. Anuśāsana Parva: 106. The first mention of the story is in the R.V. (X. 135) where we read how the boy Naciketas was sent by his father to Yama (Death), but was allowed to get back on account of his great faith, śraddhā.

INVOCATION

tejasvi nāv adhītam astu: mā vidviṣāvahai; aum śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ.*

May He protect us both; may He be pleased with us both; may we work together with vigour; may our study make us illumined; may there be no dislike between us. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

See also T.U. II and III. The teacher and the pupil pray for harmonious co-operation in keen and vigorous study.

CHAPTER I

Section I

NACIKETAS AND HIS FATHER

I. *uśan ha vai vājaśravasaḥ sarva-vedasam dadau:
tasya ha naciketā nāma putra āsa.*

I. Desirous (of the fruit of the Viśvajit sacrifice) Vājaśravasa, they say, gave away all that he possessed. He had a son by name Naciketas.

uśan: desirous. Evidently, at the time of the Upaniṣad, the sacrificial religion of the Brāhmaṇas was popular. Desire for earthly and heavenly gain was the prominent motive. The Upaniṣad leads us to a higher goal. 'He who is free from desire beholds him.'

II. 20.

uśan, is sometimes said to be the offspring of Vājaśravasa.¹ gave away all that he possessed. He is represented as making a voluntary surrender of all that he possessed, saṁnyāsa, in order to secure his spiritual interests.

Naciketas: one who does not know² and therefore seeks to know.

The author attempts to distinguish between Vājaśravasa, the protagonist of an external ceremonialism, and Naciketas, the seeker of spiritual wisdom. Vājaśravasa represents orthodox religion and is devoted to its outer forms. He performs the sacrifice and makes gifts which are unworthy. The formalism and the hypocrisy of the father hurt the son.

2. taṁ ha kumāraṁ santaṁ dakṣiṇāsu nīyamānāsu śraddhā-viveśa, śo'manyata.

2 As the gifts were being taken to the priests, faith entered him, although but a (mere) boy; he thought.

Prompted by the desire to do real good to his father, the boy felt worried about the nature of the presents.

śraddhā: faith. It is not blind belief but the faith which asks whether the outer performance without the living spirit is enough.

3. pitodakā jagdha-trṇā dugdha-dohā nirindriyāḥ anandā nāma te lokāś tān sa gacchata tā dadat.

3. Their water drunk, their grass eaten, their milk milked, their strength spent, joyless, verily, are those worlds, to which he, who presents such (cows) goes.

² Cp. R.V. 'No knowledge of the god have I, a mortal.' nāhaṁ devasya martyaś ciketa. X. 79. 5.

nirindriyāḥ: without the strength to breed, a-prajanana-samarthāḥ.
anandāḥ: anānandāḥ, asuḥkhāḥ, joyless. Īśa 3; B.U. IV. 4. 11. The cows which are presented are no longer able to drink, eat, give milk or calve.

Naciketas reveals here, with the enthusiasm of youth, the utter inadequacy of a formal soulless ritualism. The idea of complete surrender (sarva-vedasam dadau) in the first verse should be properly interpreted as utter dedication or complete self-giving.

True prayer and sacrifice are intended to bring the mind and will of the human being into harmony with the great universal purpose of God.

4. sa hovāca pitaram, tāta kasmai mām dāsyasīti;
dvitīyaṁ tṛtīyaṁ; taṁ hovāca: mṛtyave tvā dadāmi.

4. He said to his father, 'O Sire, to whom wilt thou give me?' For a second and a third time (he repeated) (when the father) said to him, 'Unto Death shall I give thee.'

Dr. Rawson suggests that a mere boy should be so impertinent as to interfere with his doings, the father in anger said, 'Go to hell.'

The boy earnestly wishes to make himself an offering and thus purify his father's sacrifice. He does not discard the old tradition but attempts to quicken it. There can be no quickening of the spirit until the body die.

Cp. St. Paul: 'Thou fool, that which thou sowest is not quickened except it die.'

mṛtyave: unto Death. Mṛtyu or Yama is the lord of death. When Vājaśravasa gives away all his goods, Naciketas feels that this involves the giving away of the son also and so wishes to know about himself. When the father replies that he will give him to Yama, it may mean that, as a true saṁnyāsin, personal relations and claims have henceforward no meaning for him. Naciketas takes his father's words literally. He in the course of his teaching points out that the psychophysical vehicles animated by the spirit are determined by the law of karma and subject to death. He who knows himself as the spirit, and not as the psychophysical vehicle is free and immortal.

5. bahūnām emi prathamah, bahūnām emi madhyamah;
kim svid yamasya kartavyam yaṁ mayāḍya kariṣyati.

5. Naciketas, 'Of many (sons or disciples) I go as the first; of many, I go as the middling. What duty towards Yama that (my father has to accomplish) today, does he accomplish through me?'

emi: gacchāmi, I go.

madhyamah: middling, mṛtānām madhye. Among many who are dead I am in the middle. I am not the last. Many others will still follow me and there is no need for lamentation.

Naciketas in sadness reflects as to what help he has to render to Yama.

Anticipating the teacher's or the parents' wishes and carrying them out is the way of the best pupils or sons; promptly attending to what is ordered is the next best; neglecting the orders is the worst form of conduct of pupils or sons. Naciketas belonged to the first type; at worst to the second; he was never negligent of his duty to his father.

yathāvasaram jñātvā śuśrūṣaṇe pravṛtti-rūpā; ājñādivaśena śuśrūṣaṇe pravṛtti-rūpā; gurvādibhiḥ kopitassan śuśrūṣākarāṇe pravṛtti-rūpā.
Sārīkārānanda and Ā.

6. anupaśya yathā pūrve pratipaśya tathāpare, sasyam iva martyaḥ pacyate sasyam iva jāyate punaḥ.

6. 'Consider how it was with the forefathers; behold how it is with the later (men); a mortal ripens like corn, and like corn is born again.'

Ś makes out that Naciketas, startled by his father's words, reflected and told his father who was now in a repentant mood that he was much better than many sons, and there was nothing to be gained by going back on one's word. Naciketas reminds his father that neither his ancestors nor his contemporaries who are decent ever broke their word. After all, human life is at best transitory. Like a blade of grass man dies and is born again. Death is not all; rebirth is a law of nature. The life of vegetation on which all other life depends passes through the seasonal round of birth, growth, maturity, decay, death and rebirth. The unity of all life suggests the application of this course to human beings also. This perpetual rebirth is not an escape from the wheel of becoming into a deathless eternity. Even if we do not gain life eternal, survival is inescapable. So the son persuades his father to keep his word and send him to Yama's abode.

Possibly Naciketas wished to know what happened to his ancestors and what will happen to his contemporaries after death.

The doctrine of rebirth is assumed here.

NACIKETAS IN THE HOUSE OF DEATH

7. *vaiśvānaraḥ praviśaty atithir brāhmaṇo gṛhān:
tasyaitāṁ śāntim kurvanti, hara vai vasvatodakam.*

7. As a very fire a Brāhmaṇa guest enters into houses and (the people) do him this peace-offering; bring water, O Son of the Sun!

In the Brāhmaṇa account, Naciketas goes to Yama's house, at the command of a divine voice. He waits for three nights before Death returns and shows him hospitality due to a guest.

Ś says: 'Thus addressed, the father sent his son to Yama, in order to keep his word. And going to Yama's abode, he waited for three nights as Yama had gone out. When he returned his attendants, or perhaps his wife said to him as follows informing him (of what had taken place in his absence).'

As fire is appeased by water, so is a guest to be entertained with hospitality. The word for fire used here is Vaiśvānara, the universal fire, which affirms the unity of all life. The guest comes as the embodiment of the fundamental oneness of all beings.

8. āsā-pratīkṣe saṁgataṁ sūnṛtāṁ ceṣṭāpūrte putra-paśūnīs ca sarvān etaḍ vṛṅkte puruṣasyālpamedhaso yasyānaśnan vasati brāhmaṇo grhe.

8. Hope and expectation, friendship and joy, sacrifices and good works, sons, cattle and all are taken away from a person of little understanding in whose house a Brāhmaṇa remains unfed.

B.U. VI. 4. 12.

sūnṛta: joy in Vedic Sanskrit, 'kindly speech' in Jaina and later Brāhmanical works.

iṣṭāpūrte: sacrifices and good works.

iṣṭam: fruit produced by sacrifice, pūrtam: fruit resulting from such works as planting gardens, etc. iṣṭam yāgajam phalam: pūrtam, ārāmādi-kriyājām phalam. Ś. Cp. R.V. X. 14.

saṁ gacchasva pītṛbhiḥ, saṁ yamena iṣṭāpūrtena parama vyoman. 'Unite thou with the fathers and with Yama with the reward of thy sacrifices and good works in highest heaven.'

vāpi-kūpa-tatākādi-devatāyatanāni ca annapradānam āramah pūrtam ity abhidhīyate.

YAMA'S ADDRESS TO NACIKETAS

9. tisro rātrīr yād avatsīr grhe me'naśnan brahman atitthir namasyah.

namaste'stu, brahman; svasti me'stu; tasmāt prati trīn varān vṛṇīṣva.

9. 'Since thou, a venerable guest, hast stayed in my house without food for three nights, I make obeisance to thee, O Brāhmaṇa. May it be well with me. Therefore, in return, choose thou three gifts.

'When the disciple is ready, the Master appears.'
tasmāt: in order to remove the evil effects of that, tasya pratikārya.

NACIKETAS'S FIRST WISH

10. śānta-saṁkalpaḥ sumanā yathā syād vīta-manyur gautamo mābhi mṛtyo, tvat-prasr̥ṣṭam mābhivadet pratīta, etat trayāṇām prathamam varam vṛṇe.

10. That Gautama (my father) with allayed anxiety, with anger gone, may be gracious to me, O Death, and recognising me, greet me, when set free by you and this, I choose as the first gift of the three.

sumanāḥ: gracious. prasanna-manāḥ. Ś.

pratīta: recognising. It means 'recollected, recognising that this is my own son come back again.' pratīto labdha-smṛtiḥ, sa eva ayam putro samāgataḥ ity evam pratyabhijānam ity arthah. Ś.

11. yathā purastād bhavitā pratīta audḍālakir ārunir mat-prasr̥ṣṭaḥ sukhām rātrīs śayitā vītamanyus tvām dadṛśivān mṛtyu-mukhāt pramuktam.

11. (Yama said): 'As of old will he, recognising thee (thy father) Audḍālaki, the son of Aruṇa, through my favour will he sleep peacefully through nights, his anger gone, seeing thee released from the jaws of death.'

audḍālakir ārunir: Uddālaka, the son of Aruṇa. The father of Śvetaketu is also called Aruṇi. C.U. VI. 1. 1.

mat-prasr̥ṣṭaḥ: through my favour. mayā anujñātaḥ. Ś. anujñātaḥ, anugraha-saṁpannaḥ. Gopālayatindra. It may apply to the first or the second part.

In the previous verse tvat-prasr̥ṣṭam is taken to mean 'set free by you'; so in this verse mat-prasr̥ṣṭaḥ should mean 'set free by me.' It is in the nominative case in apposition to Audḍālaki Āruni, the subject which is incorrect. So Ś gives a different meaning, which is, however, not the obvious meaning of the phrase. If we alter it to mat-prasr̥ṣṭam, the rendering will be, 'As of old will he (thy father) Audḍālaki Āruni, recognising thee, set free by me.'

Deussen retains the original reading but gives a different rendering:

Audḍālaki Āruni will be just as before. Happy will he be, released by me (from his words).

Charpentier identifies Naciketas with Audḍālaki Āruni. He renders the verse thus:

'As of old he will be full of joy; since the son of Uddālaka Āruni has (already) been let loose by me.' So too, Hillebrandt: 'Aruṇi, son of Uddālaka, is (herewith) released by me.' Indian Antiquary, (1928), pp. 205, 223.

NACIKETAS'S SECOND WISH

12. svarge loke na bhayaṁ kiṁ ca nāsti na tatra tvam na jarayā bibhēti.

ubhe tīrtvā aśanāyā pipāse śokātigo modate svarga-loke.

12. (Naciketas said): In the world of heaven there is no fear whatever; thou art not there, nor does one fear old age. Crossing over both hunger and thirst, leaving sorrow behind, one rejoices in the world of heaven.

See R.V. IX. 113; R says that svarga is mokṣa. svarga-śabdo mokṣa-sihāna-parah.

leaving sorrow behind: śokam atītya gacchati.

13. sa tvam agniṁ svargyam adhyeṣi mṛtyo, prabrūhi taṁ śraddadānāya mahyam svarga-lokā amṛtatvam bhajanta, etad dvitīyena vr̥ṇe vareṇa.

13. Thou knowest, O Death, that fire (sacrifice which is) the aid to heaven. Describe it to me, full of faith, how the dwellers in heaven gain immortality. This I choose, as my second boon.

svarga-lokāḥ: svargo loko yeṣāṁ te param-pada-prāptāḥ.

amṛtatvam: immortality. In svarga which is a part of the manifested universe, the immortality may be endlessness but not eternity. Whatever is manifest will sooner or later enter into that from which it emerged. Yet as the duration in svarga-loka is incalculable, the dwellers in it are said to be immortal. They may continue as long as the manifested world does.

14. pra te bravāmi tad u me nibodha svargyam agniṁ naciketaḥ prajānan anantalokāptim atho pratiṣṭhāṁ viddhi, tvam etaṁ nihitam guhāyām.

14. (Yama said): Knowing well as I do, that fire (which is) the aid to heaven, I shall describe it to thee—learn it of me, O Nacikētas. Know that fire to be the means of attaining the boundless world, as the support (of the universe) and as abiding in the secret place (of the heart).

nihitam guhāyām: abiding in the secret place (of the heart). It means literally, hidden in the cave. The cave or the hiding-place is said to be in the centre of the body. guhā yām śarīrasya madhye: Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa I. 2. 1. 3. viduṣāṃ buddhau nivṛṣṭam. Ś.

The central purpose of the passage is to indicate that the ultimate power of the universe is also the deepest part of our being. See also I. 2. 12. It is one of the assumptions of the Upaniṣad writers that deep below the plane of our empirical life of imagination, will and feeling is the ultimate being of man, his true centre which remains unmoved and unchanged, even when on the surface we have the fleeting play of thoughts and emotions, hopes and desires. When we withdraw from the play of outward faculties, pass the divisions of discursive thought, we retreat into the soul, the witness spirit within.

15. lokādim agniṃ tam uvāca tasmai, yā iṣṭakā, yāvatīr vā, yathā vā.

sa cāpi tat pratyavadat yathoktam; athāsya mṛtyuḥ punar evāha tuṣṭah.

15. (Yama) described to him that fire (sacrifice which is) the beginning of the world (as also) what kind of bricks (are to be used in building the sacrificial altar), how many and in what manner. And he (Naciketas) repeated all that just as it had been told; then, pleased with him, Death spoke again.

lokādi: the beginning of the world. In the R.V., Agni is identified with Prajā-pati, the Creator, and so may be regarded as the source or origin of the world. In II. 2. 9 we are told that the one Fire, having entered the universe, assumed all forms. B.U. I. 2. 7. makes out that 'this fire is the arka, the worlds are its embodiment.'

Ś, however, interprets lokādi as first of the worlds, as the first embodied existence. prathama-śarīritvād. Cp. C.U. where it is said that all other things evolved from fire (tejas) which was itself the first product of essential being (sat). VI. 8. 4.

16. tam abravīt prīyamāṇo mahātmā varam tavehādya dadāmi bhūyah.

tavaiva nāmnā bhavitāyam agniḥ, sṛṅkāṃ cemām ane-ka-rūpāṃ gṛhāṇa.

16. The great soul (Yama) extremely delighted, said to him (Naciketas). I give thee here today another boon. By thine own name will this fire become (known). Take also this many-shaped chain.

sṛṅkā: chain. The word occurs again in I. 2. 3., where it means 'a road.' sṛṅkā vitta-mayī, the road that leads to wealth. Ś gives two meanings: ratna-mayīm mālām, a necklace of precious stones; (ii) akutsitām gatīm karma-mayīm, the straight way of works which is productive of many fruits. karma-vijñānam aneka-phala-hetutvāt.

aneka-rūpām: many-shaped. While the ignorant are limited to one form, the wise, who have attained unity with the higher self, can assume many forms.

17. trināciketas tribhīr etya sandhim trikarma-kṛt tarati janma-mṛtyū brahmajajñam devam idyam viditvā nicāyye'mām śāntim atyantam eti.

17. He who has lit the Nāciketa fire thrice, associating with the three, performs the three acts, crosses over birth and death. Knowing the son of Brahmā, the omniscient, resplendent and adorable and realising him, one obtains this everlasting peace.

tri-nāciketaḥ: one who has lit the Nāciketa fire thrice. Ś suggests an alternative. One who knows about him, studies about him and practises what he has learnt. tad-vijñānas tad-adhyayanas tad-anuṣ-ṭhānavān.

tribhīr etya sandhim: associating with the three. Ś mentions 'father, mother and teacher,' or alternatively 'Veda, smṛti and good men.' tri-karma: three acts. Ś suggests 'sacrifice, study and alms-giving,' ijya adhyayana dāna.

brahmajajña, the knower of the universe born of Brahmā, Agni, who is known as jāta-vedas or all-knower. Ś, however, takes it as referring to Hiraṇya-garbha. For Rāmānuja, the individual jīva is Brahma-born. He who knows him and rules his behaviour is Īśvara. Madhva says: brahmano hiraṇya-garbhāj jātaḥ brahmajāḥ, brahmajaś ca asau jñās ca brahmajajñāḥ, sarvajñāḥ.

nicāyya, realising in one's own personal experience. taṁ viditvā śāstrataḥ, nicāyya dṛṣtvā cātmabhāvena. Ś.

imām śāntim: this peace. It is the peace which is felt in one's own experience. sva-buddhi-pratyakṣām śāntim. Ś.

Two tendencies which characterise the thought of the Upaniṣads appear here, loyalty to tradition and the spirit of reform. We must repeat the rites and formulas in the way in which they were originally instituted. These rules which derive their authority from their antiquity dominated men's minds. Innovations in the spirit are gradually introduced.

18. trināciketas trayam etad viditvā ya evaṁ vidvāṁś cinute nāciketaṁ, mṛtyu-pāśān purataḥ pranodya śokātigo modate svarga-loke.

18. The wise man who has sacrificed thrice to Naciketas and who knows this three, and so knowing, performs meditation on fire throwing off first the bonds of death and overcoming sorrow, rejoices in the world of heaven.

nāciketam: meditation on fire. agni-śabdena tad-viśayaka-jñānam ucyate. Gopālayatindra.

19. eṣa te'gnir naciketas svargyo yam avrñthāḥ dvitīyena vareṇa.

*etam agnim tavaiva pravakṣyanti janāsaḥ; tṛtīyaṁ varam naciketo vṛñiṣva.*¹

19. This is thy fire (sacrifice) O Naciketas, which leading to heaven, which thou hast chosen for thy second boon. This fire (sacrifice) people will call by thy name only. Choose now, O Naciketas, the third boon.

Whoever sacrifices to Naciketas fire, knowing its nature as the fire born of Brahmā, becomes verily of that nature and is not born again.

NACIKETAS'S THIRD WISH

20. yeyam prete vicikitsā manuṣye 'stīty eke nāyam astīti caike; etat vidyām anuśiṣṭas tvayāham, varāṇām eṣa varas tṛtīyaḥ.

20. There is this doubt in regard to a man who has departed, some (holding) that he is and some that he is not. I would be instructed by thee in this knowledge. Of the boons, this is the third boon.

prete: departed. Naciketas has no doubt about survival. He has already said: 'A mortal ripens like corn and like corn is born again' I. 6. His problem is about the condition of the liberated soul, muktātma-svarūpa, Madhva says that prete means mukte.

nāsti: he is not. Doubts about the future of the liberated being are not peculiar to our age. In the B.U. Yājñavalkya says, the liberated soul, having passed beyond (pretya) has no more separate consciousness (saṁjñā). He is dissolved in the Absolute consciousness as a lump of salt is dissolved in water. He justifies the absence of separate consciousness to his bewildered wife Maitreyī. 'Where everything has become the one self, when and by what should we yo vāpyetām brahma-jajñātma-bhūtām citim viditvā cinute nāciketam. sa eva bhūtva brahma-jajñātma-bhūtaḥ karoti tad-yena punar na jāyate.

Whoever conceives the sacrificial structure of bricks as the body of the Fire born of Brahmā and kindles on it the sacrificial fire called Nāciketa, he becomes one with the Fire born of Brahmā and performs the sacrifice by which he is not born again.

see, hear or think?' He who is liberated from the limitations of name and form, who has become one with the all, cannot be said to exist in the ordinary sense. He is not limited to a particular consciousness; nor can he be said to be non-existent, for he has attained to real being (II. 4. 12-14). The question repeatedly put to the Buddha is, 'Does the Tathāgata survive after death or does he not survive?' The Buddha refused to answer this question, holding that to say that he continues to exist would give rise to one kind of misunderstanding while to deny it would lead to others.

21. devair atrāpi vicikitsitam purā, na hi suvijñeyam, anur eṣa dharmah, anyam varam naciketo vṛṇiṣva, mā mōparotsīr ati mā sṛjainam.

21. (Yama said:) Even the gods of old had doubt on this point. It is not, indeed, easy to understand; (so) subtle is this truth. Choose another boon, O Naciketas. Do not press me. Release me from this.

22. devair atrāpi vicikitsitam kila, tvam ca mṛtyo yan na suvijñeyam ātma, vaktā cāsyā tvāḍṛg-anyona labhyaḥ; nānyo varas tulya etasya kaścīt.

22. (Naciketas said:) Even the gods had doubt, indeed, as to this, and thou, O Death, sayest that it is not easy to understand. (Instruct me) for another teacher of it, like thee, is not to be got. No other boon is comparable to this at all.

Gods cannot have any doubts about survival; it is about the exact nature of the state of liberation which transcends the empirical state that there is uncertainty.

23. śatāyusaḥ putra-pautrān vṛṇiṣva, bahūn paśūn hasti-hiranyam aśvān bhūmer mahad-āyatanam vṛṇiṣva svayam ca jīva śarado yāvad icchasi.

23. (Yama said:) Choose sons and grandsons that shall live a hundred years, cattle in plenty, elephants, gold and horses. Choose vast expanses of land and life for thyself as many years as thou wilt.

mahad-āyatanam: vast expanses. Ś suggests sovereignty over vast domains of earth. bhūmeḥ pṛthivyā mahad vistṛṇam āyatanam āśrayam maṇḍalam rājyam.

24. etat tulyam yadi manyase, varam vṛṇiṣva, vittam cira-jīvi-kām ca, mahā-bhūmau naciketas tvam edhi, kāmānām tvā kāmābhājam karomi.

24. If thou deemest (any) boon like unto this, choose (that) as also wealth and long life. O Naciketas, prosper then on this vast earth. I will make thee the enjoyer of thy desires.

edhi: prosper. Be thou king. rājā bhava. Ś.

25. *ye ye kāmā durlabhā martya-loke sarvān kāmānś chandataḥ prārthayaśva.
imā rāmāḥ, sarathāḥ satūryāḥ, na hīdṛśā lambhanīyā manuṣyāḥ.
ābhīr mat-prattābhiḥ paricārayaśva, naciketo, maraṇam mānuprākṣiḥ.*

25. Whatever desires are hard to attain in this world of mortals, ask for all those desires at thy will. Here are noble maidens with chariots and musical instruments: the like of them cannot be won by men. Be served by these whom I give to thee. O Naciketas, (pray) ask not about death.

The story of the temptation by Mṛtyu occurs for the first time in the Upaniṣad and not in the account in the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa. The temptation of Naciketas has points of similarity with that related of Gautama the Buddha.

Cp. also the temptation of Jesus.

Naciketas is unmoved by the promises of transient pleasures and obtains from the god of death the secret of the knowledge of Brahman which carries with it the blessing of life eternal. Gautama the Buddha also rejects the offers of Māra in order to obtain true wisdom. There is this difference, however, that while Yama, when once his reluctance is overcome, himself reveals the liberating truth to Naciketas, Māra is the evil one, the tempter.

26. *śvo-bhāvā martyasya yad antakaitat sarvendriyāṇām jara-yanti tejah
api sarvaṁ jīvitam alpam eva tavaiva vāhās tava nṛtya-gīte.*

26. (Naciketas said:) Transient (are these) and they wear out, O Yama, the vigour of all the senses of men. All life (a full life), moreover, is brief. Thine be the chariots, thine the dance and song.

śvobhāvāḥ: transient, existing till tomorrow, so things of a day, ephemeral. What profit has a man of these things which are evanescent?

antaka: Yama: who ends all. Even the Creator is not eternal. Ś says, sarvam yad brahmaṇo'pi jīvitam āyuh alpam eva kim utāsmadādi dīrgha-jīvikā.

Naciketas portrays the human aspiration to reach the eternal as the goal of the truest safety from the ills and anxieties of finite experience.

The Buddhist view that everything that exists is fleeting and evanescent is suggested in this verse.

27. na vittena tarpaṇīyo manuśyaḥ, lapśyāmahe vittam adrākṣ-ma cet tvā.

jīviṣyāmo yāvād īśiṣyasi tvam varastu me varaṇīyaḥ sa eva.

27. Man is not to be contented with wealth. Shall we enjoy wealth when we have seen thee? Shall we live as long as thou art in power? That alone is (still) the boon chosen by me.

Man is not to be contented with wealth. The material guarantees of human security are fragile. It is an earth-bound philosophy that makes man the end and aim of life, that recognises no value of a transcendental character. What is the value of wealth or life, as they are impermanent? So long as death is in power we cannot enjoy wealth or life for the fear of death destroys the zest for living. So Naciketas asks for self-knowledge, ātma-vijñānam, which is beyond the power of death.

Naciketas says that 'We shall live, so long as Yama endures.' In other words, he is certain of our continuance in this cosmic cycle presided over by Yama.

permanence till the dissolution of the primal elements is called immortality: ābhūtasamplavam sthānam amṛtatvaṁ hi bhāṣyate, quoted in Vācaspati's Bhāmati I. 1. 1.

What Naciketas is doubtful about, what Yama says, even the gods have doubts about, is in regard to the state of liberation.

28. ajīryatām amṛtānām upetya jīryan marīyaḥ kvadhashtah prajānan

abhidhyāyan varnaratipramodān, atidīrghhe jīvite ko rameta.

28. Having approached the undecaying immortality, what decaying mortal on this earth below who (now) knows (and meditates on) the pleasures of beauty and love, will delight in an over-long life?

Anyone who knows here below the joys of immortal life cannot be attracted by an earthly life of passion and speed. No one who has a foretaste of that which perishes not or changes would find pleasure in earthly delights.

29. yasminn idam vicikitsanti mṛtyo yat sāmparāye mahati brūhi nas tat, yo'yaṁ varo gūḍham anupraviṣṭo nānyaṁ tasmān naciketā vṛṇṭe.

29. Tell us that about which they doubt, O Death, what there is in the great passing-on. This boon which penetrates the mystery, no other than that does Naciketas choose.

sāmparāya: passing-on. What is the great beyond? What is there after liberation? These questions lead naturally to others. What is the nature of eternal reality? What is man's relation to it? How can he reach it?

Naciketas has already attained svarga-loka and is not raising the question of the post-mortal state. He is asking about the great departure, mahān sāmparāya, from which there is no return, which is nirupādhiṣṣa nirvāṇa according to Itivuttaka 44. Majjhima Nikāya II opposes sāmparāyika attha to the diṭṭha-dhammika attha.

Knowledge of life after death is regarded as of the utmost importance. See C.U. V. 3, 1-4 where Śvetaketu is told that he is not well instructed as he does not know about where the creatures go to from this world.

Section 2

THE TWO WAYS

- I. anyac chreyo anyad utaiva preyaste ubhe nānārthe puruṣam sinītaḥ:

tayoḥ śreya ādadānasya sādhu bhavati, hīyate 'rthād ya u preyo vṛṇṭe.

I. (Yama said): Different is the good, and different, indeed, is the pleasant. These two, with different purposes, bind a man. Of these two, it is well for him who takes hold of the good; but he who chooses the pleasant, fails of his aim.

After testing Naciketas and knowing his fitness for receiving Brahma-knowledge, Yama explains the great secret to him.

śrayaḥ: the good, niḥśreyasam. Ś. The highest good of man is not pleasure but moral goodness.

Cp. Samyutta Nikāya I. 4. 2. 6. tasmā sataṇ ca asataṇ ca nānā hoti ito gati, asanto nirayam yanti santo saggaparāyaṇā.

Therefore do the paths of the good and the evil of this world divide; the evil go to hell but the final destination of the good is heaven.

In Samyutta Nikāya V. 4. 5. 2 instead of sagga-parāyaṇā, we read nibbāṇa-parāyaṇam.

In N. P. Chakravarti's edition of L'Udāna (Sanskrit), Paris, 1930, p. 63, we read asantaś caiva santaś ca nānā yānti tv itaś cyutāḥ, asanto narakam yānti, santaḥ svarga-parāyaṇāḥ.

Cp. Plato: 'In every one of us there are two ruling and directing principles, whose guidance we follow wherever they may lead; the one being an innate device of pleasure, the other an acquired judgment which aspires after excellence. Now these two principles at one time maintain harmony, while at another they are at feud within us, and now one and now the other obtains mastery.'—Phaedrus.

2. śreyaś ca preyaś ca manusyaṃ etas tau samparītya vivinakti dhīraḥ.

śreya hi dhīro'bhipreyaso vṛṇṇte, preyo mando yoga-kṣemād vṛṇṇte.

2. Both the good and the pleasant approach a man. The wise man, pondering over them, discriminates. The wise chooses the good in preference to the pleasant. The simple-minded, for the sake of worldly well-being, prefers the pleasant.

mandah: the simple-minded. Cf. Heraclitus: 'Oxen are happy when they have peas to eat.' Fr. 4. 'For the best men choose one thing above all else; immortal glory above transient things.' Fr. 29.

yoga-kṣema: worldly well-being.¹ He adopts a materialist view of life. The indispensable condition of spiritual wisdom is a pure heart.

Ś distinguishes between the elimination of faults and the acquisition of virtues which are the results of Karma and the contemplation of the divine which is Jñāna. Cassian divides spiritual knowledge into practical and theoretic and argues that we cannot strive for the vision of God if we do not shun the stains of sin. Illumination and union follow purgation or the process of self-discipline.

3. sa tvam priyaṃ priyarūpamś ca kāmān abhidhyāyan naciketo, tyasrākṣiḥ;

naitāṃ sṛṅkāṃ vittamayīm avāpto yasyām majjanti bahavo manuṣyāḥ.

¹ śarīrādy-upacaya-rakṣaṇa-nimittam for the sake of bodily welfare, Ś Cf. B.G. IX. 22. Dr. A. Coomaraswamy makes out that the simple-minded prefers kṣema or well-being to yoga or contemplation, yogāc ca kṣemāc ca, taking his stand on Sūtra Nīpāta 2. 20: 'Unlike and widely divergent are the habits of the wedded householder and the holy man without a sense of ego.' asamā ubho dūra-vihāravuttino, gīhī dūraposī, amamā ca subbato. He says that this verse means that the fool prefers the ease of the householder to the hard life of the Yogi. See New Indian Antiquary, Vol. 1, pp. 85–86.

3. (But) thou, O Naciketas, hast rejected (after) examining, the desires that are pleasant and seem to be pleasing. Thou hast not taken to the way of wealth, where many mortals sink (to ruin).

śṛṅkā: see I. 16. If śṛṅkā means chain, then majjanti should read sajjanti. The meaning then is 'Thou hast not taken to the chain of wealth in which many mortals are entangled.' The Buddha refused the wheel-jewel, cakka-ratanam, the recognised symbol of temporal power. Naciketas, by refusing all these temptations, makes out that his kingdom is not of this world. He hungers and thirsts for the eternal, in which alone he can find real satisfaction.

4. *dūram ete viparīte viśucī, avidyā yā ca vidyeti jñātā:
vidyābhīpsinām naciketasam manye, na tvā kāmā bahavo lolupantah.*

4. Widely apart and leading to divergent ends are these, ignorance and what is known as wisdom. I know (thee) Naciketas, to be eager for wisdom for (even) many desires did not distract thee.

Ś suggests that avidyā or ignorance is concerned with the pleasant and vidyā or wisdom with the good: avidyā preyo-viśayā, vidyā śreyo-viśayā.

avidyā kāma-karmātmikā vidyā vairāgya-tattva-jñāna-mayī. R.

5. *avidyāyām antare vartamānāḥ, svayam dhīrāḥ paṇḍitam manyamānāḥ.
dandramyamānāḥ pariyanti mūḍhāḥ, andhenaiva nīyamānā
yathāndhāḥ.*

5. Abiding in the midst of ignorance, wise in their own esteem, thinking themselves to be learned, fools treading a tortuous path go about like blind men led by one who is himself blind.

See also M.U. I. 2-8; Māitṛī VII. 9.

Cp. Matthew: 'If the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch.' XV. 14.

dandramyamānāḥ: v. dandavyamānāḥ, viśaya-kāmāgninā dyta-cittāḥ. R. wise in their own esteem. Their ignorance is serenely ignorant of itself and so assumes the appearance of wisdom.

6. na sāmparāyaḥ pratibhāti bālam pramādyantam vittamohena mūḍham:

ayam loko nāsti para iti mānī, punaḥ punar vaśam āpadyate me,

6. What lies beyond shines not to the simple-minded, careless, (who is) deluded by the glamour of wealth. Thinking 'this world exists, there is no other,' he falls again and again into my power.

mānī: thinking, manana-sīlo mānī. Ś.

He who is filled with selfish desires and attracted by worldly possessions becomes subject to the law of Karma which leads him from birth to birth and so he is under the control of Yama.

7. śravaṇāyāpi bahubhir yo na labhyaḥ, śṛṇvanto'pi bahavo yaṁ na vidyuḥ āścāryo vaktā kuśalo'sya labdhā, āścāryo jñātā kuśalānuśiṣṭaḥ.

7. He who cannot even be heard of by many, whom many, even hearing, do not know, wondrous is he who can teach (Him) and skilful is he who finds (Him) and wondrous is he who knows, even when instructed by the wise.

See B.G. VII. 3.

instructed by the wise: nipuṇena ācāryeṇa anuśiṣṭaḥ saḥ.

Naciketas is complimented by Yama as the seeker of final bliss is rare among men. The task is very difficult for subtle is the nature of the Self. The hidden depths of being are conceived as a great mystery. Not many have the earnest purpose: not many are able to find a proper teacher.

8. na narenāvareṇa proktā eṣa suvijñeyo bahudhā cintyamānaḥ:
ananya-prokte gatiḥ atra nāsty anīyān hy atarkyam anupramānāt.

8. Taught by an inferior man He cannot be truly understood, as He is thought of in many ways. Unless taught by one who knows Him as himself, there is no going thither for it is inconceivable, being subtler than the subtle.

bahudhā cintyamānaḥ: thought of in many ways, or it may mean 'much meditated upon' or 'conceived of as a plurality' while the ātman is an absolute oneness.

ananya-prokte: taught by one who knows Him as himself. This is Ś's rendering. He must be taught by one who is non-different, ananya, i.e. who has realised his oneness with Brahman.¹ He alone can teach with the serene confidence of conviction. As a man with experience, he is lifted above sectarian disputes. It may also mean ¹ Cp. Eckhart: 'Some there are so simple as to think of God as if He dwelt there, and of themselves as being here. It is not so. God and I are one.' Pfeiffer's edition, p. 206.

'taught by one other than an inferior person,' i.e. a superior person who knows the truth or 'taught by another than oneself,' i.e. some teacher.

For Rāmānuja, the understanding, avagatiḥ, which a person gets about the self when taught by one who has realised Brahman is impossible of attainment when taught by a person of inferior capacity. Madhva means by it that it is inferior teaching when taught by a learned but unintelligent person for it has been variously understood and so is not easy of understanding. But when taught by one who sees no difference at all, there is no knowledge, not even of an inferior kind. It is subtler than an atom and so cannot be perceived. It is not to be understood by reasoning.

gatir atra nāsti: without access to a teacher there is no way to it. 'There is no going thither' may mean either there is nothing beyond the knowledge of Brahman or there is no way back from saṁsāra or worldly becoming, saṁsāra-gatiḥ.

atarkeyam: inconceivable, unreachable by argument. The Supreme Self is unknowable by argument, as It is subtle, beyond the reach of the senses and the understanding based on sense data. It can be immediately apprehended by intuition.

9. naiṣā tarkeṇa matir āpaneyā, proktānyenaiva sujñānāya preṣṭha:

yām tvam āpas satyadhritir batāsi; tvādrñ no bhūyān naciketaḥ praṣṭā.

9. Not by reasoning is this apprehension attainable, but dearest, taught by another, is it well understood. Thou hast obtained it, holding fast to truth. May we find, Naciketas, an inquirer like thee.

Mere reason unassisted by faith cannot lead to illumination.

May we find an inquirer like thee. It is not only the pupil who is in search of the teacher, but the teacher is also in search of the pupil.

THE SUPERIORITY OF WISDOM TO WEALTH, EARTHLY AS WELL AS HEAVENLY

10. jānāmy aham śevadhir ity anityam, na hy adhruvaiḥ prāpyate hi dhruvaṁ tat tato mayā naciketaś cito'gnir anityair dravyaiḥ prāptavān asmi nityam.

10. I know that wealth is impermanent. Not through the transient things is that abiding (one) reached; yet by me is laid the Nāciketa fire and by impermanent means have I reached the everlasting.

By burning in the sacrifice all transient things is the eternal attained.

Some translators (e.g. Max Müller and Hume) attribute this verse to Naciketas. But surely Naciketas has not yet performed the sacrifice called by his name. Ś attributes these words to Yama, who makes out that through the sacrificial fire, he has obtained the enduring sovereignty of heaven. But this sovereignty is only relatively permanent. Through the ephemeral means of Karma including sacrifices, nothing truly permanent can be achieved. The performer of the Nāciketa fire will endure as long as the cosmos lasts but such endurance is not eternity, since the cosmos with all that it contains will be absorbed into the eternal at the end of the cosmic day.

By 'impermanent means have I reached the everlasting.' What Yama has attained is thus stated by Gopāla-yatindra: adhikārāpanno, dharmādharma-phalayoḥ, pradānena jantūnām niyantrtvam āpannaḥ. If by the symbolic worship of so unstable a thing as fire we can attain an enduring state, then the view reminds us of a verse in Blake's Auguries of Innocence.¹

We have to use the means of the empirical world to cross it and attain to the trans-empirical. . . . brahma-prāpti-sādhana-jñānoddheṣena anityair iṣṭakādi-dravyair nāciketo'gniś citāḥ, tasmādd hetor nitya-phala-sāadhanam jñānam prāptavān asmi. R.

II. kāmasyāptim jagataḥ pratiṣṭhām krator ānantyaṁ abhaya-sya pāram stoma-mahad urugāyam pratiṣṭhām dṛṣtvā dhytā dhīro naciketo'tyasrākṣīḥ.

II. (Having seen) the fulfilment of (all) desire, the support of the world, the endless fruit of rites, the other shore where there is no fear, the greatness of fame, the far-stretching, the foundation, O wise Naciketas, thou hast steadfastly let (them) go.

Before his eyes were spread out all the allurements of the world, including the position of Hiranya-garbha the highest state in the phenomenal world, obtained by those who worship the Supreme by sacrifice and meditation, according to Ś, and he has rejected them all. Here perhaps is suggested the contrast between the Vedic ideal of heaven and the Upaniṣad ideal of life eternal. The world to which the righteous go is the Brahmā world. In svarga-loka or heaven there

¹ To see a world in a grain of sand,
 And a heaven in a wild flower;
 Hold infinity in the palm of your hand,
 And eternity in an hour.

is no fear. See Kāṭha I. 12. When we pass beyond fear we pass beyond duality. B.U. I. 4-2.

The fulfilment of all desire can apply to the immortal Brahman. It is the support of the world, the ultimate. M.U. III. 2. 1. If this is the way we take these words, then the reference cannot be to the Vedic heaven but to eternal life or mokṣa.

atyasrākṣīḥ: this refers not to the rejection of eternal life but to the rejection of a false view of the objects described in this verse.

kratu: rite or worship.

upāsanāyāḥ phalam ānāntyam. Ś.

APPREHENSION OF THE SUPREME THROUGH ADHYĀTMA-YOGA

12. taṁ durdarśaṁ gūḍhaṁ anupraviṣṭaṁ guhāhitaṁ gahva-reṣṭhaṁ purāṇam adhyātma-yogādhigamena devam matvā dhīro harṣa-śokau jahāti.

12. Realising through self-contemplation that primal God, difficult to be seen, deeply hidden, set in the cave (of the heart), dwelling in the deep, the wise man leaves behind both joy and sorrow.

gūḍham: deeply hidden. It is hidden because we have to get behind the senses, mind and understanding. It is the very ground of the soul. The Buddhists look upon every creature as an embryo of the tathāgata, tathāgata-garbha. Every creature has the possibility of becoming a Buddha. When we get into the inner being of the spirit, we are in immediate relationship with the Eternal. This basic principle which we recognise by immediate experience or continued contemplation is the basis of human freedom. It is the principle of indeterminacy, the possibilities of determinations which are not yet. If we identify ourselves with what is determinate, we are subject to the law of determinism. 'If ye are led by the spirit, ye are not under the law.'

adhyātma-yoga: self-contemplation. viśayebhyaḥ pratisamhṛtya ceta-sātmani samādhānam. Ś. adhyātma means pertaining to the self as distinct from adhibhūta, pertaining to the material elements and adhidaiva, pertaining to the deities. Adhyātma-yoga is yoking with one's essential self. It is the practice of meditation, a quiet, solitary sustained effort to apprehend truth which is different from the ordinary process of cerebration.

Yama answers Naciketas's question raised in I. 29, about the mysterious divine being hidden behind the phenomenal world, in the depths of one's own being, which is difficult of access by ordinary means and yet is open to spiritual contemplation. Yama, in different ways and phrases, brings out the impenetrable mystery of the inmost reality which is the object of search. If the Brahmā world is the fulfilment of all desires, this eternal bliss is obtained by the renunciation of all desires; while brahma-loka is the highest place of the manifested cosmos, its farthest limit, there is the eternal beyond it.

devam: God. See Ś.U. I. 3; Maitrī VI. 23.

13. etac chrutvā samparigrhya martyaḥ pravṛhya dharmyam anum etam āpya sa modatē modanīyam hi labdhvā vivṛtaṁ sadma naciketasam manye

13. Hearing this and comprehending (it), a mortal, extracting the essence and reaching the subtle, rejoices, having attained the source of joy. I know that such an abode is wide open unto Naciketas.

dharmyam: the essence. We must extract its essential nature, discern its real character.

anum: subtle. sūkṣmam. Ś.

modanīyam: the source of joy. The deepest being is the highest value. To attain Him is to gain supreme, abiding bliss. It is not merging in a characterless absolute, where all feeling fades out.

vivṛtaṁ sadma: the abode is wide open.

Naciketas can get released from his house of life, body and mind. Cp. the words of the Buddha: 'Never again shalt thou, O builder of houses, make a house for me; broken are all thy beams, thy ridge-pole shattered.'

Yama says that Naciketas is fit for salvation, mokṣārham. Ś.

It is suggested that the three steps of śravaṇa (śrutva), manana (samparigrhya) and nīdīdhyāsana (pravṛhya) are mentioned in this verse and these lead to ātma-darśana or ātma-sākṣāt-kāra (āpya).

14. *anyatra dharmād anyatrādharmād anyatrāsmāt kṛtākṛtāt.
anyatra bhūtāc ca bhavyāc ca yat tat paśyasi tad vada.*

14. (Naciketas asks:) Tell me that which thou seest beyond right and wrong, beyond what is done or not done, beyond past and future.

what is done or not done:

Ś says effect and cause. kṛtam kāryam, akṛtam kāraṇam.

Cp. T.U. where it is said that the knower is not vexed with the thought 'why have I not done the good? why have I done the evil?' (II. 9).

beyond past and future: the eternal is a 'now' without duration.

Naciketas asks for an account of that deepest reality rid of all extraneous externalities, the real which is deeper than all the happenings of time. yad idṛśam vastu sarva-vyavahāra-gocarāṭitam paśyasi jānāsi tad vada mahyam. Ś.

THE MYSTIC WORD AUM

15. sarve vedā yat padam āmananti, tapāmsi sarvāṇi ca yad vadanti, yad icchanto brahmacaryam caranti, tat te padam saṅgrāheṇa bravīmi: aum ity etat.

15. (Yama says:) That word which all the Vedas declare, which all the austerities proclaim, desiring which (people) live the life of a religious student, that word, to thee, I shall tell in brief. That is Aum.

See S.U. IV. 9; B.G. VIII. 11.

pada: word. Ś means by it goal. padanīyam, gamanīyam. The Supreme is the goal of all revelation, of all religious practices and austerities. āmananti: avibhāgena pratipādayanti.

brahmacarya: the life of a religious student. It is referred to in R.V. X. 109 and described in Aiṅharva Veda XI. 5. It lasts for twelve years but may be longer. Śvetaketu was a brahmacārī from 12 to 24. The student is expected to live in the house of his teacher, wait on him, tend his house and cattle, beg for his own and his master's food, look after the sacrificial fires and study the Veda. Detailed rules for brahmacarya are given in the Gṛhya Sūtra.

Āśvalāyana says that a brahmacārī is required to be chaste, obedient, to drink only water and not sleep in the daytime. I. 22, 1. 2. Brahmacarya has come to mean continence and self-restraint.

Aum is the pranava, which, by the time of the Upaniṣads, is charged with the significance of the entire universe. Deussen is certainly incorrect when he observes: 'Essentially it was the unknowableness of the first principle of the universe, the Brahman, and the impossibility of expressing it by word or illustration, which compelled the choice of something so entirely meaningless as the symbol Aum as a symbol of Brahman.' The word first occurs in the Taittirīya Samhitā of the Black Yajur Veda, III. 2. 9. 6, where it is called the pranava and indicates, according to Keith, the prolongation of the last syllable of the offering verse uttered by the hotṛ. In the Brāhmaṇas, it occurs more frequently as a response by the adhvaryu to each Rg Vedic verse uttered by the hotṛ, meaning, 'yes,' so be it, answering to the Christian 'Amen.'

In the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa V. 32, aum is treated as a mystic syllable representing the essence of the Vedas and the universe.

It is the symbol of the manifested Brahman (waking, dream and dreamless sleep) as well as the unmanifested beyond. See Mā.U. IV. 32.

16. *etadd hy evākṣaram brahma, etadd hy evākṣaram param.
etadd hy evākṣaram jñātvā, yo yad icchati tasya tat.*

16. This syllable is, verily, the everlasting spirit. This syllable, indeed, is the highest end; knowing this very syllable, whatever anyone desires will, indeed, be his.

Ś makes out that Brahmā is the lower Brahman and param, the higher. Whatever one may desire, the lower or the higher Brahman, his desire will be fulfilled.

17. *etad ālambanam śreṣṭham etad ālambanam param
etad ālambanam jñātvā brahma-loke mahīyate.*

17. This support is the best (of all). This support is the highest; knowing this support, one becomes great in the world of Brahmā.

He attains Brahman, the higher, brahma eva lokah, or the world of Brahman, the lower, brahmanah lokah.

THE ETERNAL SELF

18. na jāyate mriyate vā vipāścīn nāyam kutaścīn na babhūva kaścit:

ajo nityaḥ śaśvato'yam purāṇo na hanyate hanyamāne śarīre.

18. The knowing self is never born; nor does he die at any time. He sprang from nothing and nothing sprang from him. He is unborn, eternal, abiding and primeval. He is not slain when the body is slain.

See B.G. II. 20.

The Kaṭha vipāścīn becomes in the Gītā, kadācit medhāvin: Śaṅkara R.V. IX. 86. 44.

The self constitutes the inner reality of each individual. It is without a cause and is changeless. When it knows itself as the spirit and ceases to know of itself as bound up with any name or form (nāma-rūpa) it realises its true nature.

purāṇah: primeval, new even in old times, purā api navah, or devoid of growth, vṛddhi-vivarjitah.

19. hantā cen manyate hantum hataś cen manyate hatam, ubhau tau na vijānīto nāyam hanti na hanyate.

19. If the slayer thinks that he slays or if the slain think that he is slain, both of them do not understand. He neither slays nor is he slain.

See B.G. II. 19.

Here is the answer to the question of Naciketas about the mystery of death. The self is eternal and death does not refer to it.

20. anor anīyān mahato mahīyān, ātmāsya janitor nihito guhāyām:

taṁ akratuḥ paśyati vīta-śoko dhātu-prasādān mahimānam ātmanah.

20. Smaller than the small, greater than the great, the self is set in the heart of every creature. The unstriving man beholds Him, freed from sorrow. Through tranquillity of the mind and the senses (he sees) the greatness of the self.

anor anīyān: smaller than the small, smaller than the minute atom. When the self is thought of as a psychical principle, its smallness is emphasised. See also II. 2. 3. where it is said to be 'the dwarf' and II. 1. 12 where it is described as 'thumb-sized.' In these cases, the old animistic language is used. When it is thought of as cosmic, its vastness is emphasised.¹

a-kratuḥ: unstriving man. He who is free from desire for external objects, earthly or heavenly, which distract the soul and distort its vision. Ś adopts this view. He will, however, have the desire for salvation, mumukṣutva. The Upaniṣad insists on the absence of strife or anxiety and refers to the man whose will is at peace.²

dhātu-prasādāt: through the tranquillity of the mind and the senses.

'... And Smallness or Rarity is attributed to God's nature because He is outside all solidity and distance and penetrates all things without let or hindrance. . . . This smallness is without quantity or quality, it is irrepressible, infinite, unlimited, and while comprehending all things, is itself incomprehensible.' Quoted by Ananda Coomaraswamy in New Indian Antiquary, Vol. I, p. 97.

² Cp. Rawson: 'Christian ataraxia, the untroubled peace of true faith, of trust which leads to vision is taught very emphatically by Jesus in the passage in John XIV beginning "Let not your hearts be troubled," and in the sermon on the Mount with its repeated warning against anxious striving as a hindrance in the way of entrance into the kingdom of Heaven.' Kāṭha Upaniṣad (1934), p. 107.

V. dhātuh prasādāt, through the grace of the Creator. The vision comes through the tranquillity of the senses and the mind according to the reading adopted by Ś. According to the other reading, the vision is reached by the grace or self-revelation of the Creator God. If the second reading is adopted it will be a clear statement of the doctrine of Divine grace, which was developed in the Ś.U. III. 20. There the reading is

'tam akratum paśyati vītaśoko dhātuh prasādān mahimānam iśam:

(dhātuh prasādāt. jagato vidhātā parameśvaraḥ tasya prasādo 'nugrahaḥ. Vidyāranya.)

It does not, however, seem to be the intention of the writer here.

vīta-śokaḥ: He who is freed from sorrow. vigata-śokaḥ . . . anyathā durvijñeyo'yam ātmā kāmibhiḥ prākṛtaiḥ puruṣaiḥ. Ś.

akratum: saṁkalpa-rahitam.

THE OPPOSITE CHARACTERISTICS OF THE SUPREME

21. āsīno dūraṁ vrajati; śayāno yāti sarvataḥ:

kastam madāmadan devam mad anyo jñātum arhati.

21. Sitting, he moves far; lying he goes everywhere. Who, save myself, is fit to know that god who rejoices and rejoices not?

See Īśa 4 and 5.

By these contradictory predicates, the impossibility of conceiving Brahman through empirical determinations is brought out. viruddha-dharmavān. Ś. Brahman has both the sides of peaceful stability and active energising. In the former aspect He is Brahman; in the latter Īśvara. The latter is an active manifestation of the absolute Brahman, and not an illusory one as some later Advaita Vedāntins suggest.

22. aśarīraṁ śarīreṣu, anavastheṣu avasthitam, mahāntaṁ vibhum ātmānam matvā dhīro na śocati.

22. Knowing the self who is the bodiless among bodies, the stable among the unstable, the great, the all-pervading, the wise man does not grieve.

The wise man who knows that his self, though now embodied and subject to change, is one with the imperishable omnipresent Self, has no cause for grief. He goes beyond all fear and sorrow.

THE MORAL PREPARATION FOR BRAHMA-KNOWLEDGE

23. nāyam ātmā pravācanena labhyo na medhayā, na bahunā śruteṇa:

yamevaiṣa vṛṇute, tena labhyas tasyaiṣa ātmā vīvṛṇute tanūṁ svām.

23. This self cannot be attained by instruction, nor by intellectual power, nor even through much hearing. He is to be attained only by the one whom the (self) chooses. To such a one the self reveals his own nature.

See M.U. III. 2. 3.

pravācanena: aneka-veda-svīkaraṇena or vyākhyānena.

medhayā: granthārtha-dhāraṇa-śaktiā or svakīya-prajñā-baleṇa.

While the Supreme Self is difficult to know and is unknowable by unaided intellect, He is knowable through His own self-revelation to the man whom He chooses. This view looks upon the Supreme Self as personal God and teaches a doctrine of divine grace.

When we contemplate God in a passive condition without any images or concepts derived from authority or instruction, a supernatural light darts into the soul and draws it towards itself. We can acquire the fruits of the more elementary contemplation by self-discipline and prayer, by practice in recollection, introversion. When we rise in contemplation, when there is the vision of the Supreme which is entirely beyond the power of the soul to prepare for or bring about, we feel that it is wholly the operation of God working on the soul by extraordinary grace. In a sense all life is from God, all prayer is made by the help of God's grace but the heights of contemplation which are scaled by few are attributed in a special degree to divine grace. If the indwelling of God in the souls is a reality, this very indwelling takes us to the supernatural. If man becomes aware of God's presence in the soul, it is due to God's own working in the soul. It is beyond the power of unassisted nature. Those who are familiar with the Pelagian controversy will know that this consciousness of divine grace is a fact of religious experience. Human nature feels so weakened that it is helpless of itself to help itself. If a man is to escape from himself as he actually is and reach the perfection for which he is made, he needs a transforming force within. The seeker feels that this force issues not out of his own natural self but enters into him from beyond.

Here the natural is equated with the creaturely but the fulness of human nature includes the divine working in it.

Cp. 'Thy counsel who hath known, except thou give wisdom and send thy Holy Spirit from above.' Wisdom of Solomon IX. 17.

Cp. St. Paul: 'Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of His good pleasure.' Epistle to the Philippians 2. 12-13. Cp. 'If thou askest how may these things be, interrogate grace and not doctrine, desire and not knowledge, the groaning of prayer rather than study, the spouse rather than the teacher, God and not man, mist rather than clarity, not light but fire all aflame and bearing on to God by devotion and glowing affection.' St. Bonaventura: Itinerary of the Mind, quoted from H. O. Taylor's Mediaeval Mind, 3rd ed., Vol. II, pp. 448.

Ś, however, gives a different interpretation by an ingenious exegesis. 'Him alone whom he chooses by that same self is his own self obtainable.' The self reveals its true character to one that seeks it exclusively.

yam eva svātmānam eva sādḥako vṛṇute prārthayate tenaivātmanā varitrā svayam ātmā labhyaḥ jñāyata evam ity etai niṣkāmaś cātmanā eva prārthayate, ātmanaiva ātmā labyate ity arthaḥ.

24. nāvirato duṣcaritān nāśānto nāsamāhitah nāśānta-mānaso vāpi prajñānenainam āpnuyāt.

24. Not he who has not desisted from evil ways, not he who is not tranquil, not he who has not a concentrated mind, not even he whose mind is not composed can reach this (self) through right knowledge.

Saving wisdom cannot be obtained without the moral qualifications here mentioned. No one can realise the truth without illumination, and no one can have illumination without a thorough cleansing of one's moral being. See also M.U. III. 1. 5, III. 1. 8; Cp. B.U. IV. 4. 23. So long as we are indulgent to our vices, so long as we pine away with hatred and ill-will to others, we cannot get at true knowledge. The classical division of spiritual life into purgation, illumination and union gives the first place to ethical preparation, which is essential for the higher degrees of spiritual life. Moral disorder prevents us from fixing our gaze on the Supreme. Until our mind and heart are effectively purged, we can have no clear vision of God. It follows that man's effort is essential to grasp grace and profit by it. Grace is not irresistible. It is open to us to accept or reject it. Election by God referred to in the previous verse is not to be interpreted as fostering fatalism or predestination, though the religious seer feels that even in the first movement of the soul towards wisdom, the effort at purgation, the prime mover is God.

This verse gives the lie direct to the suggestion sometimes made that the spiritual and the ethical are not organically connected. If we wish to attain the spiritual, we cannot bypass the ethical.

25. yasya brahma ca kṣatram ca ubhe bhavata odanaḥ mṛtyur yasyopasecanam ka itthā veda yatra saḥ.

25. He for whom priesthood and nobility both are as food and death is as a sauce, who really knows where he is?

Cp. R.V. XI. 129. Who knows for certain? Who shall here declare it? Whence it was born and whence come this creation?

Anyone lacking the qualifications mentioned in the previous verse cannot understand the nature of the Supreme which contains the whole world. Death leads to the reabsorption into the Supreme of the entire world in which the Brāhmaṇas and the Kṣatriyas hold the highest place.

odanaḥ: food for the body.

Even Death is absorbed in the Eternal. B.U. I 2. 1.

upasecanam: sauce.

We cannot know where the Omnipresent Spirit is any more than we can know where the liberated individual is, for they are not in any one place.

Section 3

TWO SELVES

1. ṛtam pibantau sukṛtasya loke guhām praviṣṭau parama parārdhe, chāyā-tapau brahma-vido vadanti, pañcāgnayo ye ca tri-ṇāciketāḥ.

1. There are two selves that drink the fruit of Karma in the world of good deeds. Both are lodged in the secret place (of the heart), the chief seat of the Supreme. The knowers of Brahman speak of them as shade and light as also (the householders) who maintain the five sacrificial fires and those too who perform the triple Nāciketas fire.

It has been said already that the Eternal Reality which is greater than anything this world or the celestial offers can be reached by meditation on one's own inner self and not by ordinary empirical knowledge. This section continues the account of the way in which the Supreme Self may be known. This verse makes out that meditation on the inner self leads to the knowledge of the Supreme because the latter dwells in close fellowship with the individual self in the cave of the human intelligence. R. 'There are two drinking,' etc. shows that, 'as the object of devout meditation and the devotee abide together, meditation is easily performed.' R.B. I. 4. 6.

ṛtam: Karma. Ṛta signifies the divinely established order of the universe, both natural and moral. It here refers to the divine order connecting deeds with their results. Ś means by it 'the truth because it is the inescapable fruit of action.' ṛtaṁ satyam avaśyam bhāvitvāt karma phalam. Ś.

sukṛtasya, of good deeds: of their own deeds. sva-kṛtasya.

The two referred to here are the individual soul and the Supreme self. Cp. M.U. III. 1. 10, Ś.U. IV. 6 and 7, which go back to R.V. I. 164. 20. Śaṅkara, commenting on this verse, says that the reference is to the two forms of the ātman, the individual soul (jīvātman) and the universal (paramātman). But how can the self which is represented as looking on without eating, be treated as experiencing the rewards of deeds? Ś. R. and Śrīnivāsa in his commentary on Nimbārka argue that it is loose usage of chattri-nyāya. When two men walk under an umbrella, we say there go the umbrella-bearers. Madhva is more to the point when he quotes Brhat Samhitā and says, 'The Lord Hari dwells in the heart of beings and accepts the pure pleasure arising from their good works.' The Supreme in its cosmic aspect is subject to the chances and changes of times. Īśvara as distinct from Brahman participates in the processes of the world.

Madhva finds support in this verse for his doctrine of the entire disparateness of the individual and the universal souls.

parama parārdhe: the chief seat of the Supreme. The Kingdom of Heaven is within us. It is in the deepest reaches of the soul that the human soul holds fellowship with God.

chāyā-lapau: shade and light, shadow and glowing or light.

pañcāgnayah: those who maintain the five sacrificial fires.

All this indicates that while meditation is the way to saving knowledge, due performance of the ordained sacrifices gives us a measure of spiritual understanding.

2. yas setuṛ iṣānānām akṣaram brahma yat param, abhayaṁ tīrṣatām pāram nāciketam śakemaḥi.

2. That bridge for those who sacrifice, and which is the highest imperishable Brahman for those who wish to cross over to the farther fearless shore, that Nāciketa fire, may we master.

setu: bridge. Cp. C.U. VIII. 4. 4. B.U. IV. 4. 22. aja ātmā. eṣa setuḥ. M.U. II. 2. 5. It is that by which we pass from time to eternity. In the beginning, it is said that the sky and earth were one. They became separated by an intervening river or sea of time and space, saṁsāra-sāgara. Each one of us, here on earth, wishes to find his way to the farther shore by a ladder or a bridge. If we think of a ladder, the way (panthā) is upward (ūrdhvam); if we think of a bridge, the way is across. That which takes us across to the other shore is the immanent spiritual self which is at once the way and the goal. The bridge holds the worlds apart and also unites them. See B.U. IV. 4. 22, VIII. 4. 1.

In Buddhist texts, the way from the vortex of existence, saṃsāra to the extinction of life's fires, nirvāṇa is the eightfold path. 'I am the way,' John XIV. 6. He who calls himself the way appeared to St. Catherine of Siena 'in the form of a bridge extending from Heaven to Earth over which all mankind had to pass.' See Dona Luisa Coomaraswamy: The Perilous Bridge. Harvard Journal of Asiatic Studies, August 1944.

Two ways of crossing the river of saṃsāra are indicated, the performance of the Vedic sacrifices, which leads to the heaven of the gods and the knowledge of Brahman. The first prepares the way for the second, on the path of gradual liberation of krama-mukti. B.U. IV. 4. 22.

THE PARABLE OF THE CHARIOT

3. *ātmanāṃ rathināṃ viddhi, śarīraṃ ratham eva tu:
buddhiṃ tu sāradhīṃ viddhi, manasā pragrahaṃ eva ca.*

3. Know the Self as the lord of the chariot and the body as, verily, the chariot, know the intellect as the charioteer and the mind as, verily, the reins.

The idea of the self riding in the chariot which is the psycho-physical vehicle is a familiar one. See also Jātaka VI. 242. The chariot with its sensitive steeds represents the psycho-physical vehicle in which the self rides. In Maitrī IV. 4, the embodied self is spoken of as rathita or 'carted' and thus subjected to the conditions of mortality. Mind holds the reins. It may either control or be dragged by the team of the senses. Rūmī in his Mathnawī says: 'The heart has pulled the reins of the five senses' (I. 3275). The conception of Yoga derived from the root yuj to yoke, to harness, to join is connected with the symbolism of the chariot and the team. Yoga is the complete control of the different elements of our nature, psychical and physical and harnessing them to the highest end. See Plato: Phaedo 24-28, Phaedrus 246f. In spite of difference in details, the Kāṭha Up. and Plato agree in looking upon intelligence as the ruling power of the soul (called buddhi or vijñāna by the Upaniṣad and nous by Plato) and aiming at the integration of the different elements of human nature. Cp. Republic (IV. 433): 'The just man sets in order his own inner life, and is his own master and at peace with himself; and when he has bound together the three principles within him (i.e. reason, emotion and the sensual appetites) and is no longer many but has become one entirely temperate and perfectly adjusted nature, then he will proceed to act, if he has to act, whether in state affairs or in private business of his own.'

4. indriyāṇi hayān āhur viṣayāṁś teṣu gocarān, ātmendriya-mano-yuktam bhoktety āhur manīṣināḥ.

4. The senses, they say, are the horses; the objects of sense the paths (they range over); (the self) associated with the body, the senses and the mind—wise men declare—is the enjoyer.

The ātman (self) is compared to the owner of a chariot (rathin), the body being the chariot (ratha), buddhi or intellect is the driver (sārathi), the horses are said to be the senses (indriyāṇi), manas is the rein (pragraha) by which the intellect controls the senses.

5. yas tv aviññānavān bhavaty ayuktena manasā sadā, tasyendriyāṇy avāśyāni duṣṭāśvā iva sārathēḥ.

5. He who has no understanding, whose mind is always unrestrained, his senses are out of control, as wicked horses are for a charioteer.

6. yas tu viññānavān bhavati, yuktena manasā sadā, tasyendriyāṇi vāśyāni sadaśvā iva sārathēḥ.

6. He, however, who has understanding, whose mind is always restrained, his senses are under control, as good horses are for a charioteer.

sad: good, well-trained.

7. yas tv aviññānavān bhavaty amanaskas sadā śucīḥ na sa tat padam āpnoti saṁsāraṁ cādhigacchati.

7. He, however, who has no understanding, who has no control over his mind (and is) ever impure, reaches not that goal but comes back into mundane life.

saṁsāraṁ: mundane life, the world of becoming characterised by life and death. janma-maraṇa-lakṣaṇam. Ś.

8. yas tu viññānavān bhavati samanaskas sadā śucīḥ sa tu tat padam āpnoti yasmāt bhūyo na jāyate.

8. He, however, who has understanding, who has control over his mind and (is) ever pure, reaches that goal from which he is not born again.

9. viññānasārathir yastu manāḥ pragrahavān naraḥ, so dhvanāḥ param āpnoti tad viśnoḥ paramam padam.

9. He who has the understanding for the driver of the chariot and controls the rein of his mind, he reaches the end of the journey, that supreme abode of the all-pervading.

viṣṇu: all-pervading. tad viṣṇoḥ vyāpāna-śīlasya brahmaṇaḥ paramātmano vāsudevākhyasya. Ś. The name is used for the Supreme Self. The development of this idea is taken up in the B.G. and the later Bhāgavata religion. See R.V. I. 154, 5; I. 22. 20, where Viṣṇu, a deity of the solar group, is conceived as the giver of light and life.

THE ORDER OF PROGRESSION TO THE SUPREME

10. indriyebhyaḥ parā hy arthā, arthebhyaś ca param manaḥ, manasaś ca parā buddhir buddher ātmā mahān paraḥ.

10. Beyond the senses are the objects (of the senses) and beyond the objects is the mind; beyond the mind is the understanding and beyond the understanding is the great self.

ātmā mahān: the great self.

Ś means by it the great soul of the universe said to be the first-born of avyakta, the unmanifest. According to the R.V. (X. 121) in the beginning was the chaos of waters, floating on which appeared Hiranya-garbha, the golden germ, the first born of creation and the creator of all other human beings. Hiranya-garbha is the soul of the universe. R.V. X. 129. 2.

When the golden light of puruṣa is cast on all the rich content of prakṛti, we have the manifestations from crude matter to the divinities in paradise.¹

For R, mahān ātmā is the individual self kartṛ, which is indwelt by the highest self. R.B. I. 4. 1.

11. mahataḥ param avyaktam, avyaktāt puruṣaḥ paraḥ puruṣān na param kiñcit: sā kāśhā, sā parā gatih.

11. Beyond the great self is the unmanifest; beyond the unmanifest is the spirit. Beyond the spirit there is nothing. That is the end (of the journey); that is the final goal.

avyakta: unmanifest. It is beyond mahat, it is prakṛti, the universal mother from out of which by the influence of the light of puruṣa, all form and all content emerge into manifestation.

Ś calls avyakta, māyā, avidyā. While puruṣa, subject, and prakṛti, object, are co-ordinate principles at the stage of cosmic creation, while their inter-action is essential for all manifestation, puruṣa is considered to be higher as he is the source of light and his unity appears nearer to the ultimate one than the multiplicity of prakṛti; strictly speaking, however, the Pure Self is beyond the descriptions of unity, duality and multiplicity.

For Rāmānuja, avyakta is the body or the chariot. It is called avyakta because the subtle body and not the gross body is referred to. While there is agreement between Ś and Rāmānuja, on the point, Ś proceeds to say that the subtle body has avidyā or ignorance for its cause and therefore belongs to the world of māyā. 'Māyā is properly called undeveloped or non-manifested since it cannot be defined as that which is or that which is not.' S.B. I. 4. 3. By avyakta, Ś means not the prakṛti of the Sāṃkhya but the māyā-sakti which is responsible for the whole world including the personal God. For Rāmānuja, avyakta denotes Brahman in its causal phase, when names and forms are not yet distinguished. It is a real mode, prakāra or development, parināma of Brahman through which the universe is evolved. R.B. I. 4. 23-27.

Madhva observes that 'the word avyakta which primarily denotes the Supreme Lord alone also denotes the other (matter), for it is dependent on Him and like unto a body of the Lord.' Sūtra Bhāṣya I. 4. 1.

puruṣān na param kiñcit: beyond the Spirit there is nothing.

The term puruṣa goes back to the Puruṣa Sūkta (R.V. X. 90) and is distinctly personal in significance.

Puruṣa is the subject side of that within which are both subject and object, the light of unity and the darkness of multiplicity. We do not reach it, until the end of the cosmic day. So we can say that there is nothing beyond the puruṣa.

In these two verses we find a hierarchy of principles or beings which have later acquired highly technical significations. We are asked to pass from outward nature to the one world-ground, avyakta, and from it to the spirit behind. Between the two, puruṣa and prakṛti, a certain priority is given to puruṣa, for it is the light of puruṣa's consciousness that is reflected on all objects of the manifested universe high or low, gross or subtle. From the sense world where the senses reveal their objects, we pass to the dream world where manas or mind operates independent of the senses. From this latter we pass to the world of dreamless sleep where the unmanifest prakṛti becomes the divine mother. Those who are absorbed in prakṛti, those who have attained to the state of prakṛti-laya have the bliss and freedom of dreamless sleep, but it is not the illuminated freedom that we seek. For that we must get to the puruṣa, who is the source of all.

Cp. Pseudo Dionysius: 'Do thou, in the intent practice of mystic contemplation, leave behind the senses and the operations of the intellect, and all things that the senses or the intellect can perceive, and all things which are not and things which are, and strain upwards in unknowing as far as may be towards the union with Him who is above all being and knowledge. For by unceasing and absolute withdrawal from thyself and all things in purity, abandoning all and set free from all, thou wilt be borne up to the ray of the Divine Darkness that surpasseth all being.' Mystical Theology, I.

Mahat, avyakta and puruṣa are terms used by the Sāṃkhya philosophy. Avyakta is the prakṛti or pradhāna. When its equilibrium is disturbed by the influence of puruṣa, the evolution or śṛṣṭi or the manifest world starts, and this evolution consists of twenty-three principles. Mahat, the great principle, buddhi or intelligence, ahaṃkāra self-sense, principle of individuation from which issue manas, the central, co-ordinatory sense-organ, 5-9, five buddhīndriyas or sense organs, 10-14, five karmendriyas or organs of action, 15-19, five tanmātras, or subtle elements, 20-24, five sthūla-bhūtas or gross elements. Puruṣa, the twenty-fifth, is totally distinct in nature from all others, neither producing nor produced, though by its influence on prakṛti, it causes the evolution of the manifest world.

The account in the Kaṭha Up. is different from the classical Sāṃkhya in many respects; there is no mention of ahaṃkāra or self-sense, though it is true that the distinction between buddhi and ahaṃkāra, intellect and individuation is not a material one.

While the Sāṃkhya identifies buddhi and mahat, the Upaniṣad distinguishes them.

The puruṣa of the dualistic Sāṃkhya is not beyond the avyakta or prakṛti but is a co-ordinate principle.

It is doubtful whether avyakta refers to the prakṛti of the Sāṃkhya. See S.B. I. 4. 1. The Upaniṣad account gives certain Sāṃkhya ideas in a theistic setting.

THE METHOD OF YOGA

12. eṣa sarveṣu bhūteṣu gūḍho'tmā na prakāśate, dr̥śyate tvagryayā buddhyā sūkṣmayā sūkṣma-darśibhiḥ.

12. The Self, though hidden in all beings, does not shine forth but can be seen by those subtle seers, through their sharp and subtle intelligence.

We must direct a serene and straight look at the Divine object. It is saṃyag-darśana which is quite different from occult visions or physical ecstasies.

13. yacched vān manasī prājñas tad yacchej jñāna-ātmani jñānam ātmani mahati niyacchet, tad yacchecchānta-ātmani.

13. The wise man should restrain speech in mind; the latter he should restrain in the understanding self. The understanding he should restrain in the great self. That he should restrain in the tranquil self.

jñānātman is the buddhi of I. 3. 11.

Puruṣa answers to the Śāntātman. The soul must go beyond all images in the mind, all workings of the intellect, and by this process of abstraction, the soul is rapt above itself and flows into God in whom are peace and fulness. The process of recollection and introversion is stated here. By shutting out all external things and emptying it of all distracting thoughts, the mind is enabled to concentrate on its own highest or deepest part. Cp. Bishop Ullathorne: 'Let it be plainly understood that we cannot return to God unless we enter first into ourselves. God is everywhere but not everywhere to us. There is but one point in the universe where God communicates with us, and that is the centre of our own soul. There He waits for us. There He meets us; there He speaks to us. To seek Him therefore we must enter into our own interior.'¹

The wise disciple should discriminate the unchanging light, the ātman, from the changing objects of sense and mind which it illumines, an-ātman. The technique for attaining the spiritual consciousness requires the soul to stand clear of all concepts and enter into its own depth.

14. uttiṣṭhata jāgrata prāpya varān nibodhata:

14. Arise, awake, having attained thy boons, understand (them). Sharp as the edge of a razor and hard to cross, difficult to tread is that path (so) sages declare.

prāpya varān: having attained the boons. Ś means by it 'approaching the best of teachers.' prāpya upāgamyā, varān prakṛstān ācāryān.

Cp. Hitopadeśa: Idleness is the great enemy of man, ālasyam hi manuṣyānām śarīrastho mahā-riṣuḥ.

sharp as the edge of a razor: The way of religion is never easy. It is steep and hard. There can be no progress in religious life without self-control. Only the clean in heart shall see God. Self-discipline is the first step in spiritual training.

Cp. Jesus: 'Strive to enter in at the strait gate, for narrow is the gate and straitened the way that leads to life, and few be they that find it.' Matthew VII. 14.

*anādy anantam mahataḥ param dhruvaṁ nicāyya tam

15. (The self) without sound, without touch and without form, undecaying, is likewise, without taste, eternal, without smell, without beginning, without end, beyond the great, abiding, by discerning that, one is freed from the face of death.

The ātman is not an object of any sort but is the eternal subject. We hear, touch, see, feel and think by the ātman. By withdrawing from all outward things, by retreating into the ground of our own soul, in the remotest depth of the soul, we find the Infinite. There the Self is raised above all empirical concepts of sound, touch, form, etc.

16. nāciketam upākhyānam mrtyu-proktam sanātanam uktvā śrutvā ca medhāvī brahma-loke mahīyate.

16. This ancient story of Naciketas, told by Death, telling and hearing (it), a wise man grows great in the world of Brahmā.

17. ya imam paramaṁ guhyaṁ śrāveyed brahma-saṁsadi prayataś śrāddha-kāle vā tad ānantyāya kalpate, tad ānan-tyāya kalpate.

17. Whoso shall cause to be recited this supreme secret before an assembly of Brāhmaṇas or devoutly at the time of the ceremonies for the dead, this will prepare (for him) everlasting life, this will prepare everlasting life.

This seems to be the appropriate ending of the Upaniṣad and the second chapter with the three sections, is, perhaps, a later addition.

CHAPTER II

Section I

THE SELF IS NOT TO BE SOUGHT THROUGH THE SENSES

- I. parāñci khāni vyatṛṇat svayambhūis tasmāt parān paśyati nāntarātman:
kaś cid dhīraḥ pratyag-ātmānam aikṣad āvṛtta-caḥṣur amṛtatvam icchan.

I. The Self is not to be sought through the senses. The Self-caused pierced the openings (of the senses) outward; therefore one looks outward and not within oneself. Some wise man, however, seeking life eternal, with his eyes turned inward, saw the self.

vyatṛṇat: pierced. The Self-caused has so set the openings of the soul that they open outwards and men look outward into the appearances of things but the rare soul ripe for spiritual wisdom withdraws his attention from the world, turns his eye inward, sees the Self and attains immortality. Ś makes out that he cursed or injured them by turning them outward, himsitavān hananam kṛtavān. Such observations which are disparaging to the legitimate use of the senses give the impression of the unworldly character of much of our best effort. Ś's opinion is opposed to the view set forth in the previous section that senses are like horses, which will take us to our goal, if properly guided. The Upaniṣad calls for the control and not the suppression of the senses. Spiritual search has an inward movement leading to the revelation of the Divine in the inmost soul. It is this aspect which is stressed in this verse.¹ We generally lead outward lives; to have a vision of truth we must turn our gaze inward. See S.U. III. 18, we must bring about an inversion of the natural orientation of our consciousness.

svayambhūi: self-caused. Cp. causa sui of Neoplatonism. That which causes itself or produces itself is different from the unproduced, the uncaused. It is the Creator God and not the uncaused Brahman. See Satapatha Brāhmaṇa I. 9. 3. 10; Taittiriya Brāhmaṇa III. 12. 3. 1. B.U. II. 6. 3; IV. 6. 3; VI. 5. 4.

āvṛtta-caḥṣuḥ: eyes turned inward. We close our eyes to the phenomenal variety and turn them inward to the noumenal reality.

¹ It were a vain endeavour
 Though I should gaze for ever
 On that green light which lingers in the west;
 I may not hope from outward forms to win
 The passion and the life whose fountains are within.

The soul is like an eye. When the eye rests on the perishing things of the world, it does not know the truth of things. When it turns inward and rests on truth and being, it perceives truth.

Plato speaks of the object of education as a 'turning around of the soul.' In the famous simile of the cave Plato compares those who are destitute of philosophic wisdom to prisoners in a cave who are able only to look in one direction. They are bound and have a fire behind them and a wall in front. They see shadows of themselves and of objects behind them cast on the wall by the light of the fire. They regard these shadows as real and have no notion of the objects to which they are due. At last some wise man succeeds in escaping from the cave to the light of the sun. He sees real things and becomes aware that he had hitherto been deceived by shadows.

Cp. Phaedo: 'The soul, when using the body as an instrument of perception, that is to say, when using the sense of sight or hearing or some other sense . . . is then dragged by the body into the region of the changeable and wanders and is confused. But when returning into herself she reflects, then she passes into the other world, the region of purity and eternity and immortality, and unchangeableness which are her kindred and with them she ever lives, when she is by herself and is not let or hindered; then she ceases from her erring ways and being in communion with the unchanging is unchanging. And this state of the soul is called wisdom.'

Descartes points to the necessity of turning away from external appearances and rising to the spiritual realities which self-knowledge reveals. Only while the author of the Upaniṣad requires us to rise above intellection into insight when we will be imbued with the truth already present in the soul, Descartes asks us to strive to know the truth through reason.

The Upaniṣad points out that God is more manifest in the soul of man than in the world outside. It, therefore, demands a conversion of the spirit on itself.

2. parācaḥ kāmān anuyanti bālās te mṛtyor yanti vitatasya pāśam, atha dhīrā amṛtatvaṁ viditvā dhruvaṁ adhruveṣu iha na prārthayante.

2. The small-minded go after outward pleasures. They walk into the snare of widespread death. The wise, however, recognising life eternal do not seek the stable among things which are unstable here.¹

Swift to its close ebbs out life's little day;
Earth's joys grow dim, its glories pass away;
Change and decay in all around I see;
O Thou Who changest not, abide with me.

3. yena rūpaṁ rasaṁ gandhaṁ śabdān sparśānś ca maithunān, etenaiva vijānāti, kim atra pariśiṣyate: etad vai tat.

3. That by which (one perceives) form, taste, smell, sounds and touches of love, by that alone one perceives. What is there that remains (unknown to it)? This, verily, is that.

Everything is known by the Self and there is nothing which is unknowable to it. sarvaṁ evatvātmanā vijñeyam, yasyātmano' vijñeyam na kiñcit pariśiṣyate, sa ātmā sarvajñaḥ. Ś. Though the Self is not manifest as an object, it is ever present in all experience as the subject. It is the ground of every possibility of thought, of every act of knowledge. As Ś says, it is self-proven, svasiddha; for even he who denies it presupposes it.

4. svapnāntaṁ jāgaritāntaṁ cobhau yenānupaśyati, mahāntaṁ vibhūm ātmānam matvā dhīro na śocati.

4. That by which one perceives both dream states and waking states, having known (that as) the great, omnipresent Self, the wise man does not grieve.

svapnāntaṁ: dream states. Literally dream-end. It is sometimes suggested that at the end of a dream, before it is waking or sleeping we catch the self which is the pure subject. It is the state when we dream that we dream.

THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL, ETC., ARE ONE WITH THE UNIVERSAL

5. ya imam madhvadam veda ātmānam jīvam antikāt, īśānam bhūta-bhavyasya, na tato vijugupsate: etad vai tat.

5. He who knows this Self, the experiencer as the living spirit close at hand as the lord of the past and the future—one does not shrink away from Him. This, verily, is that.

madhv-ada: experiencer. Literally, honey-eater, 'the enjoyer of the fruit of action.' karma-phala-bhujam. Ś.

6. yaḥ pūrvam tapaso jātam adbhyaḥ pūrvam ajāyata, guhām praviśya tiṣṭhantaṁ yo bhūtebhir vyapaśyata: etad vai tat.

6. He who was born of old from austerity, was born of old from the waters, who stands, having entered the secret place (of the heart) and looked forth through beings. This, verily, is that.

The text refers to Hiranya-garbha, who is mentioned in several Upaniṣads. There is no suggestion here of the unreality of the cosmic evolution.

adbhyaḥ: the waters which refer to the mūla-prakṛti, the aspect of the Supreme Spirit which remains when the light of puruṣa is withdrawn into itself. Cp. C.U. VII. 10. 1; B.U. V. 5; A.U. I. 1-3; K.U. I. 7.

7. yā prāṇena sambhavaty aditir devatāmāyī, guhām praviśya tiṣṭhantī, yā bhūtebhir vyajāyata: etad vai tat.

7. She who arises with life, Aditi, the soul of the gods, who stands, having entered the secret place (of the heart), who was born with the beings. This, verily, is that.

Aditi (a-diti, not bound, boundless) is said to be the mother of the gods; sarva-devatā-māyī sarva-devātmikā. Ś. The term is used here in the sense of mother-nature,¹ prakṛti, the source of all objectivity. Ś derives it from root ad 'to eat' and makes aditi the eater or experiencer of all objects. 'Born from the highest Brahman as prāṇa, i.e. in the form of Hiraṇya-garbha.' hiraṇya-garbhasya eva viśeṣaṇ-āntaram āha. Ā.

8. *aranyor nihito jāta-vedā garbha iva subhṛto garbhīṇābhiḥ:
dive diva īdya jāgrvadbhir haviṣmadbhir manuṣyebhir agniḥ:
etad vai tat.*

8. Agni, the all-knower, hidden in the fire-sticks, like the embryo well borne by pregnant women, should be daily adored by the watchful men with oblations. This, verily, is that.

This verse is quoted from Sāma Veda I. 1. 8. 7; see also R.V. III. 29. 2.

Both puruṣa and prakṛti, the subject and the object are identified with the Supreme Reality as they are two movements of His being. aranyoḥ: between the upper and the lower fire-sticks: uttarādhar-āraṇyoḥ, Madhva.

nihitāḥ: hidden, nitaraṁ sthitāḥ.

9. yataś codeti śuryo astam yatra ca gacchati, tam devās sarve'rpitās tadū nātyeti kaś cana: etad vai tat.

9. Whence the sun rises and where it goes to rest; in it are all gods founded and no one ever goes beyond that. This verily, is that.

See Atharva Veda X. 18. 16; B.U. I. 5. 23.

The ancient Vedic gods are recognised by the Upaniṣads but they are all said to derive their being from the One Supreme Reality. In verses 5-7, the living soul, the soul of the universe, infinite nature, are identified with Brahman; in verses 8 and 9, Fire and Sun are said to have their reality in Brahman: devās sarve ātmani pratiṣṭhitā iti. R.

¹ R.V. (I. 89. 10). 'Aditi is the sky, Aditi the air, Aditi is mother, father and son, Aditi is all the gods and the five tribes, Aditi is whatever has been and will be born.'

FAILURE TO COMPREHEND THE ESSENTIAL UNITY OF BEING IS THE CAUSE OF RE-BIRTH

10. yad ēveha tad amutra, yad amutra tad anvīha, mr̥tyos sa mr̥tyum āpnoti ya iha nāneva paśyati.

10. Whatever is here, that (is) there. Whatever is there, that, too, is here. Whoever perceives anything like manyness here goes from death to death.

11. *manasaivedam āptavyam neha nānāsti kiñ cana:
mr̥tyos sa mr̥tyum gacchati ya iha nāneva paśyati.*

11. By mind alone is this to be obtained. There is nothing of variety here. Whoever perceives anything like variety here, goes from death to death.

In these two verses, the Supreme is declared to be devoid of any difference. The multiplicity of the world does not touch the unity of the Supreme.

THE ETERNAL LORD ABIDES IN ONE'S SELF

12. *aṅguṣṭha-mātrah puruṣo madhya ātmani tiṣṭhati:

aṅguṣṭha-mātra-puruṣa: the person of the size of a thumb. Taittirīya Āraṇyaka X. 38. 1; Ś.U. III. 13; V. 8; Maitrī VI. 38.

In the story of Sāvitrī, it is said that Yama, with his grim force extracted out of the body of Satyavān a person of the size of a thumb, bound in his snare and brought in his control.¹ See B.U. I. 5. 23; Revelation I. 8.

13. āṅguṣṭha-mātrah puruṣo jyotir ivādhūmakah:

īśāno bhūta-bhavyasya sa evādyā sa u śvaḥ: etad vai tat.

13. The person of the size of a thumb resides in the middle of the body, like a flame without smoke. He is the lord of the past and the future. He is the same today and the same tomorrow. This, verily is that.

The lord of the past and the future is not a timeless Absolute but the ruler of the time order.

Ś discusses this passage in his Sūtra Bhāṣya (I. 3. 24 and 25) and argues that the soul which is said to be of the size of a thumb is in reality Brahman. Rāmānuja and Nimbārka agree and hold that the highest self is called 'thumb-sized' since it dwells in the heart of the worshipper. In B.U. the self is said to be 'as small as a grain of rice or barley and yet it is the ruler of all and lord of all,' V. 5. 1. In C.U., it is said to be of the measure of a span, pradeśa-mātra, V. 18. 1. Maitrī states all the views of the size of the soul. It tells us that a man 'reaches the supreme state by meditating on the soul, which is smaller than an atom or else of the size of the thumb, or of a span, or of the whole body.' VI. 38.

THE RESULTS OF SEEING VARIETY AND UNITY

He who perceives differentiation of *dharma*s is condemned to the restless flowing he perceives.

15. yathodakam suddhe suddham āsiktam tādrg eva bhavati, evam muner vijānata ātmā bhavati gautama.

15. As pure water poured forth into pure becomes the very same, so the self, O Gautama, of the seer who has understanding becomes (one with the Supreme).

tādrg eva: the very same. Literally just such. Ś affirms metaphysical identity between the individual soul and the Supreme Self. Rāmānuja and Nimbārka hold that the individual soul is non-different, i.e. not separate from the Supreme Self. It attains equality with the Supreme. See M.U. III. 2. 8. manana-śīlasya ātmāpi param-ātma-jñānena viśuddhas san viśuddhena param-ātmānā samāno bhavati. R.

Cp. the observations of the Christian mystics. Bernard of Clair-vaux says: 'As a drop of water poured into wine loses itself and takes the colour and savour of wine, so in the saints all human affections melt away, by some unspeakable transmutation into the will of God. For how could God be all in all if anything merely human remained in man? The substance will endure, but in another beauty, a higher power, a greater glory.' St. Theresa says: 'Spiritual marriage is like rain falling from the sky into a river, becoming one and the same liquid, so that the river water and the rain cannot be divided; or it resembles a streamlet flowing into the ocean which cannot afterward be dis severed from it.'

Section 2

THE INDIVIDUAL SELF

I. puram ekādāśa-dvāram ajasyāvakra-cetasah, anuṣṭhāya na śocati vimuktasca vimucyate: etad vai tat.

I. (There is) a city of eleven gates (belonging to) the unborn, uncrooked intelligence. By ruling it one does not grieve and being freed is freed indeed. This, verily is that.

ekādāśa-dvāram: eleven-gated. B.G. (V. 13) mentions nine gates¹ which are the two eyes, two ears, two nostrils, mouth, anus and generating organ.² Here two others are mentioned to make up eleven and they are the navel and the sagittal suture, the opening at the top of the skull (A.U. III. 12), through which the liberated soul is said to escape at death.

a-vakra-cetasah: whose thoughts are not crooked. avakram: akūṭilam. anuṣṭhāya: ruling (the city). Ś takes it to mean 'contemplating,' dhyātvā. When the soul controls the gates and lives in peace it is free from sorrow. It is freedom which begins here (jīvan-mukti) and leads after death to complete release (videha-mukti).

2. haṁsaś śuciṣat, vasur antarikṣasat hotā vediṣat, atithir duroṇasat, nṛṣat, varasat, ṛtasat, vyomasat, abjā, gojā, ṛtajā, adriajā, ṛtam bṛhat.

2. He is the swan (sun) in the sky, the pervader in the space (between earth and heaven), the priest at the altar, the guest in the sacrificial jar (house). He dwells in men, in gods, in the right and in the sky. He is (all that is) born of water, sprung from the earth, born of right, born of mountain. He is the true and the great.

¹ Bunyan in his Holy War describes the human soul as living in a city with five gates which are the five senses.

This hamsavatī mantra whose seer is Vāma-deva is a prayer to the sun who illumines the world and dispels the darkness of men.

See R.V. IV. 40. 5; Vājasaneyi Saṁhitā X. 24; XII. 14; Taittirīya Saṁhitā III. 2. 10. 1; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa VI. 7. 3. II.

vasu: the pervading: vāsayati sarvān. Ś.

hotā: priest. 'Fire' according to Ś. hotāgniḥ, agnir vai hotā ity śruteḥ.

In the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa, the triune Agni is identified with the sun in heaven, the air in the space between earth and heaven and with the priest or the guest on earth. Here, Agni, the Supreme energy is identified with Brahman or the Ātman. The verse affirms that the whole universe is non-different from the Supreme Brahman. etat sarvam aparicchinnā-satya-rūpa-brahmātmakam. R.

3. ūrdhvam prāṇam unnayaty apānam pratyag asyati, madhye vāmanam āsīnam viśve devā upāsate.

3. He leads the out-breath upward, he casts inwards the in-breath, the dwarf who is seated in the middle, all the gods adore.

Originally prāṇa meant breath and was used for the Supreme Being. In the early Upaniṣads, all the vital powers (i.e. speech, breath, eye, ear and manas) are called prāṇāḥ. B.U. I. 5. 3; T.U. I. 7. These are looked upon as varieties of breath or as powers presiding over different parts of the body. Prāṇa and apāna stand for breaths in expiration and inspiration respectively.

vāmanam: the dwarf (another name for the thumb-sized person, angustha-mātra puruṣa).

'Worthy to be served,' vananīyam sambha janīyam. Ś.

viśve devāḥ: all the gods. Ś interprets as 'the senses and the vital powers' which are subject to the person within, who is their Lord whom they worship by their uninterrupted activity.

4. asya visramśamānasya śarīrasthasya dehinah, dehād vimucyamānasya kim atra pariśiṣyate: etad vai tat.

4. When the embodied self that dwells within the body slips off and is released from the body, what is there that remains? This, verily, is that.

What remains is the Universal Soul.

5. na prāṇena nāpānena martyo jīvati kaś cana
itarena tu jīvanti, yasmīn etāv upāśritau.

5. Not by any outbreath or inbreath does any mortal whatever live. But by another do they live on which these (life-breaths) both depend.

This verse repudiates the materialist doctrine that the soul is just an assemblage of parts. It makes out that as the house and the dweller are separate, the destruction of the house does not mean the destruction of the dweller. The loss of the body does not mean the dissolution of the soul, while desertion of the body by the soul would mean the disintegration of the body.

REBIRTH

6. *hanta ta idaṁ pravakṣyāmi guhyam brahma sanātanam:
yathā ca maraṇam prāpya ātmā bhavati gautama.*

6. Look (here). I shall explain to you the mystery of Brahman, the eternal, and also how the soul fares, after reaching death, O Gautama.

7. yonim anye prapadyante śarīratvāya dehinaḥ, sthānum anye' nusamyanti, yathā karma, yathā śrutam.

7. Some souls enter into a womb for embodiment; others enter stationary objects according to their deeds and according to their thoughts.

While the Upaniṣads insist on the independent reality of the Supreme Self they also affirm the reality of the individual soul.

Here the law of Karma that we are born according to our deeds is assumed. yathā śrutam yādṛṣaṁ ca vijñānam upārjitaṁ tad anurūpam eva śarīram pratipadyanta iti. Ś.

8. *ya eṣa suptēṣu jāgarti kāmam kāmam puruṣo nirmimāṇaḥ tad eva sukraṁ tad brahma tad evāmṛtam ucyate.
tasmin lokāḥ śrītaḥ sarve, tad u nātyeti kaś cana: etad vai tat.*

8. That person who is awake in those that sleep, shaping desire after desire, that, indeed, is the pure. That is Brahman, that, indeed, is called the immortal. In it all the worlds rest and no one ever goes beyond it. This, verily, is that.

kāmam kāmam: desire after desire, really objects of desire. Even dream objects like objects of waking consciousness are due to the Supreme Person. Even dream consciousness is a proof of the existence of the self. See B.U. IV. 3.

No one ever goes beyond it: cp. Eckhart: 'On^e reaching God all progress ends.'¹

THE INNER SELF IS BOTH IMMANENT AND TRANSCENDENT

9. *agnir yathaiko bhuvanam praviṣṭo rūpaṁ rūpaṁ prati-rūpo babhūva,
ekas tathā sarva-bhūtāntar-ātmā rūpaṁ rūpaṁ prati-rūpo

9. As fire which is one, entering this world becomes varied in shape according to the object (it burns), so also the one Self within all beings becomes varied according to whatever (it enters) and also exists outside (them all).

Cp. R.V. where Indra, in his conflict with the demons, is said to have assumed many forms through his magic powers, becoming the counterform of every form.

rūpaṁ rūpaṁ prati-rūpo babhūva indro māyābhīḥ pururūpa īyate. VI. 47. 18.

bahiś: outside. While the Self assumes many forms, it is yet outside the manifested world in its own unmodified nature. svena avikṛtena rūpeṇa ākāśavat. Ś. This verse teaches the immanence as well as the transcendence of the Supreme Self. Cp. R.V. X. 90, where all beings are said to be a quarter of the puruṣa while three-quarters are immortal in heaven, tripād asyāmṛtaṁ divi. R.V. X. 90. 3; S.U. III. 9 and 10.

10. *vāyur yathaiko bhuvanam praviṣṭo rūpaṁ rūpaṁ prati-rūpo
babhūva,
ekas tathā sarva-bhūtāntar-ātmā rūpaṁ rūpaṁ prati-rūpo

10. As air which is one, entering this world becomes varied in shape according to the object (it enters), so also the one Self within all beings becomes varied according to whatever (it enters) and also exists outside (them all).

11. sūryo yathā sarva-lokasya cakṣur na lipyate cakṣuṣair bāhya-doṣaiḥ ekas tathā sarva-bhūtāntar-ātmā na lipyate loka-duḥkena bāhyaḥ.

11. Just as the sun, the eye of the whole world, is not defiled by the external faults seen by the eye, even so, the One within all beings is not tainted by the sorrow of the world, as He is outside (the world).

The verse admits the reality of the pain of the world but denies that it touches the Supreme Self which is our inner being. The forms which the Supreme assumes are not its modifications but are the manifestations of its possibilities. The Supreme Self is unaffected by the pain of the individual selves because the pain of the individual self is due to its identifying itself with its psycho-physical vehicle. The individual ego makes a confusion between the self and what is not the self. The Supreme, on the other hand, does not suffer because it is not subject to ignorance (avidyā) and it does not identify itself with any of the accidents to which its various psycho-physical vehicles are subject.

12. eko vaśi sarva-bhūtāntar-ātmā ekam bījam bahudhā yaḥ karoti, taṁ ātmastham ye'nupaśyanti dhīrās teṣāṁ sukhaṁ śāsva-taṁ netareṣāṁ.

12. The one, controller (of all), the inner self of all things, who makes his one form manifold, to the wise who perceive him as abiding in the soul, to them is eternal bliss—to no others.

vaśi: controller. See B.U. IV. 4. 22; Ś.U. VI. 12.

ātmastham: abiding in the soul. The Supreme dwells in the inmost part of our being sva-śarīra-hṛdayakāśe buddhau caitanyākārenābhivyaktam. Ś. Cp. I John IV. 13. 'Hereby know we that we abide in Him and He in us, because He hath given us of His spirit.'

who makes his one form manifold. It is one in the unmanifested condition. It becomes manifold in the manifested condition. *ekī-bhū-nityo'nityānām, sometimes nityo nityānām the one eternal among the eternal.

See S.U. VI. 13.

The Supreme grants the desires of many. We may see here the doctrine of Divine providence.

14. tad etad iti manyante' nirdeśyam paramaṁ sukhaṁ, kathaṁ nu tad vijānīyāṁ kimu bhāti vibhāti vā.

14. This is that and thus they recognise, the ineffable Supreme bliss. How then may I come to know this? Does it shine (of itself) or does it shine (in reflection)?

Does the Supreme shine in Himself (see III. 1. 3. 12) or does He shine in His expression?

15. *na tatra sūryo bhāti, na candra-tārakam, nemā vidyuto bhānti, kuto'yam agniḥ:
tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvaṁ tasya bhāsā sarvaṁ idaṁ vibhāti.*

15. The sun shines not there, nor the moon and the stars, these lightnings shine not, where then could this fire be? Everything shines only after that shining light. His shining illumines all this world.

The Supreme who is the source of all light, 'the master light of all our seeing'¹ cannot be known by any earthly light. Our knowledge cannot find him out.

See M.U. II. 2. 10; S.U. VI. 14; B.G. XV. 12. The symbol of light is the most natural and universal. Plato in his Seventh letter compares the sudden inspiration of the mystic to a 'leaping spark.' In the myth of the cave, the real world is a realm of light outside the cave. The Old Testament and the Zoroastrian religion speak of the antagonism between darkness and light. In the First Epistle of John, we read, 'God is light and in him is no darkness at all.'

Section 3

THE WORLD-TREE ROOTED IN BRAHMAN

1. *ūrdhva-mūlo'vāk-śākha eṣo'śvatīhas sanātanaḥ, tad eva śukraṁ tad brahma, tad evāmṛtaṁ ucyāte.
tasmin lokāḥ śrītaḥ sarve tad u nātyeti kaś cana: etad vai tat.*

1. With the root above and the branches below (stands) this ancient fig tree. That (indeed) is the pure; that is Brahman. That, indeed, is called immortal. In it all the worlds rest and no one ever goes beyond it. This, verily, is that.

tad eva: that indeed, i.e. the root of this tree. The description here has its analogue in the description of the tree Igdrasil in Scandinavian mythology.

The tree of life has its unseen roots in Brahman. The tree, roots and branches represent Brahman in its manifested form. While the tree of life is said to be imperishable Brahman, B.G., which uses this illustration, asks us to cut off the tree of existence by the potent weapon of non-attachment. XV. 1. 3. The tree grows upside down. It has its roots above and branches below. See S.U. III. 9; Maitrī VI. 4. The branches below are for Madhva the lower gods: avāmcaḥ adhamāḥ devāḥ śākhāḥ yasya asau.

THE GREAT FEAR

2. yad idaṁ kiṁ ca jagat sarvaṁ prāṇa ejati niḥsṛtam mahad bhayaṁ vajram udyatam, ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.

2. The whole world, whatever here exists, springs from and moves in life. (It is) the great fear (like) the upraised thunderbolt. They that know that become immortal.

The whole world trembles in Brahman. parasmin brahmaṇi saty ejati kampate. Ś.

3. bhayād asyāgnis tapati, bhayāt tapati sūryah: bhayād indraś ca vāyus ca, mṛtyur dhāvati pañcamah.

3. Through fear of him, fire burns; through fear (of him) the sun gives heat; through fear both Indra (the lord of the gods) and wind and Death, the fifth, speed on their way.

See T.U. II. 8. 1.

The source and sustaining power of the universe is Brahman. Evolution is not a mechanical process. It is controlled by Brahman, who is here represented as prāṇa, the life-giving power: jagato mūlam prāṇa-pada-lakṣyam prāṇa-pravṛttir api hetuvāt. Ā.

PERCEPTION OF THE SELF

4. iha ced aśakad boddhum prāk śarīrasya visrasaḥ, tataḥ sargeṣu lokeṣu śarīratvāya kalpate.

4. If one is able to perceive (Him) before the body falls away (one would be freed from misery); (if not) he becomes fit for embodiment in the created worlds.

aśakat: able. It is sometimes split up into na śakat, unable, i.e. if one fails to know it. The simplest meaning would be 'If one is not able to know (the Supreme) before the body falls away, one becomes fit for embodiment in the created worlds.' Ś interprets the verse thus: 'If here, in this life, a man is able to know the awe-inspiring Brahman before the falling of the body, he is freed from the bond of saṁsāra; if he is not able to know, then for lack of knowledge, he takes embodiment in earth and other created worlds.' sargeṣu lokeṣu: created worlds. V. sarveṣu kāleṣu, at all times.

The verse teaches that it is possible for us to attain the saving wisdom here and now.

5. yathādarśe tathātmani, yathā svapne tathā pitr-loke, yathāpsu parīva dadṛśe, tathā gandharva-loke chāyā-tapayor iva brahma-loke.

5. As in a mirror, so (is it seen) in the soul, as in a dream, so in the world of the manes, as (an object) is seen in water, so in the world of the gandharvas; as shade and light in the world of Brahmā.

He can be seen in this life as in a glass, if his mind is pure and clear. In the region of the departed, he can be seen only as a reminiscence, a remembrance of dreams. In the world of the gandharvas, he can be seen as a reflection in trembling waters. In the world of Brahmā he can be seen clearly as shade and light.

gandharvas: angels who live in the fathomless spaces of air. R.V. VIII. 65. 5; see also B.U. IV. 3. 33.

6. indriyāṇām prthag-bhāvam udayāstamayaṁ ca yat, prthag utpādyamānānam matvā dhīro na śocati.

6. Knowing the separate nature of the senses, which spring separately (from the various subtle elements) and (knowing also) that their rising and setting (are separate), the wise man does not grieve.

The discrimination of the Self from the sense organism is here insisted on. When the wise man knows, that the material senses do not come from the Self, that their rise and fall belong to their own nature, he grieves no more.

7. indriyebhyaḥ param māno manasas sattvam uttamam, sattvād adhi mahān ātmā, mahato'vyaktam uttamam.

7. Beyond the senses is the mind; above the mind is its essence (intelligence); beyond the intelligence is the great self; beyond the great (self) is the unmanifest.

sattva: essence. Intelligence constitutes the essence of the mind.*

See notes on I. 3. 10 and 11.

8. avyaktāt tu paraḥ puruṣo vyāpako'linga eva ca, yaṁ jñātvā mucyate jantur amṛtatvam ca gacchati.

8. Beyond the unmanifest is the person, all-pervading and without any mark whatever. By knowing whom, a man is liberated and goes to life eternal.

alīṅga: without any mark. See M.U. III. 2. 4; Maitrī V. 31, 35; VII. 2. 'Without any empirical attributes.' sarva-saṁsāra-dharma-varjitaḥ. Ś. Līṅga is a distinctive mark or sign. In logic, it is an invariable sign which constitutes the basis of inference. Līṅga refers to līṅga-sama sūkṣma-śarīra, the entity consisting of buddhi, aham-kāra, manas, indriyāṇi, tanmātrāṇi. S.U. VI. 9; Maitrī VI. 10. 19. If līṅga is taken in this sense, it means that the Supreme needs no subtle body as it is not subject to death and re-birth.

9. na sandrṣe tiṣṭhati rūpam asya, na cakṣuṣā paśyati kaścānainam:

hrdā maṇiṣā manasābhiklpto ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.

9. Not within the field of vision stands this form. No one soever sees Him with the eye. By heart, by thought, by mind apprehended, they who know Him become immortal.

The first half points out that we cannot form a visual image of the Supreme Person and the second half urges that we can still apprehend Him by heart, by thought and by mind. The Supreme Reality is to be apprehended through the concentrated direction of all mental powers.

maṇiṣā (reflective) thought. vikalpa-varjita buddhi.

manas: mind, true insight in the form of meditation. manana-rūpeṇa samyag-darśana. Ś. When the mind becomes clear and the heart pure, God-vision arises. Cp. R.V. I. 61. 2. hrdā manasā maṇiṣā We must seek God in our hearts and our souls. The process is called introversion, the solitary communing of the soul with God, the thought of the alone to the Alone, as Plotinus described it. Cp. Cassian: 'The mind will come to that incorruptible prayer which is not engaged in looking on any image, and is not articulate by the utterance of any voice or words; but with the intentness of the mind aglow, it is produced by an ineffable transport of the heart, by some insatiable keenness of spirit; and the mind being placed beyond all senses and visible matter, pours it forth to God with groanings and sighs that cannot be uttered.'¹ abhiklpta: apprehended. As the concept of God is formed by our mental nature, it cannot be identical for all. This attitude develops charity, open-mindedness, disinclination to force one's views on other people's attention. If the Hindu does not feel that he belongs to the chosen race, if he is relatively free from a provincial self-righteousness, it is to no small extent due to the recognition that the concepts of God are relative to our traditions and training.

10. yadā pañcāvatiṣṭhante jñānāni manasā saha, buddhiś ca na viceṣṭati, tām āhuh paramām gatim.

10. When the five (senses) knowledges together with the mind cease (from their normal activities) and the intellect itself does not stir, that, they say, is the highest state.

Cp. Boehme: 'When thou standest still from the thinking of self and the willing of self; when both thy intellect and will are quiet and passive to the expressions of the eternal world and spirit, and when thy soul is winged up and above that which is temporal, the outward senses and the imagination being locked up by holy abstraction, then the Eternal Hearing, Seeing and Speaking will be revealed in thee, and so God heareth and seeth through thee, being the organ of this spirit and so God appeareth in thee and whispereth to thy spirit. Blessed art thou, therefore, if thou canst stand still from thy self-thinking and self-willing and canst stop the wheel of thy imagination and senses.'

11. tām yogam iti manyante sthirām indriya-dhāraṇām apramattas tadā bhavati, yogo hi prabhavāpyayau.

11. This, they consider to be Yoga, the steady control of the senses. Then one becomes undistracted for Yoga comes and goes.

apramattah: undistracted. pramāda-varjitaḥ samādhānam prati-nityam prayatnavān. Ś. See also C.U. I. 3. 12 and II. 22. 2; M.U. II. 2. 4. In Buddhism all virtues are said to be centred in apramāda (Pāli appamādo). Keeness is the way of eternal life and slackness the way of death. appamādo amata-padam, pamādo maccuno padam. Dhamma-pada 21.

prabhavāpyayau: comes and goes.

Vigilant keeness is necessary in Yoga, as it comes and goes, jananāpāya-dharmakaḥ. Ś. pratikṣanāpāyaśālitayā avadhānam apekṣitam. R. If we are careful we will acquire it; if we are careless we will lose it. Mind is liable to fluctuation and therefore we should be extremely careful.

It is sometimes interpreted as 'beginning and end.' 'The world sinks down in Yoga and again is created afresh,' says Deussen. This is later Pātanjala Yoga.

THE SELF AS EXISTENT

12. naiva vācā na manasā prāptum śakyo na cakṣuṣā, astīti bruvato'nyatra katham tad upalabhyate.

12. Not by speech, not by mind, not by sight can he be apprehended. How can he be comprehended except by him who says, 'He is'?

He can be comprehended only by those who affirm that 'He is.'

The self as the knowing subject can never become an object. It can be realised through Yoga. While He transcends the ordinary means of apprehension, He can be immediately experienced through Yoga, and for such apprehension faith in His existence is an indispensable condition. The conviction of the reality of that which is sought is the prerequisite.

Commenting on this verse, Ś argues that the Supreme Brahman who is conceived as the source of the universe must be regarded as existent. We cannot conceive of the world as produced from nothing. The world effect must have an existent cause.

We can at least reasonably say of God that He is. Cp. Epistle to the Hebrews: 'He that cometh to God must believe that He is.' Cp. St. Bernard: 'Who is God? I can think of no better answer than, He who is. Nothing is more appropriate to the eternity which God is. If you call God good, or great or blessed, or wise or anything else of this sort, it is included in these words, namely, He is.'

13. astīty evopalabdhavyas tattva-bhāvena cobhayoḥ, astīty evopalabdhasya tattva-bhāvaḥ prasīdati.

13. He should be apprehended only as existent and then in his real nature—in both ways. When He is apprehended as existent, his real nature becomes clear (later on).

The primary assertion that can be made of the Self is the declaration of existence, pure and simple.

ubhayoḥ: in both ways. In the conditioned and the unconditioned ways: sopādhika-nirupādhikayoḥ. Ś.

Rational faith in the existence of Brahman leads on to spiritual experience in which His nature is revealed to and understood by the believer.

In this section, the author speaks to us of the discipline of Yoga by which man's whole being is unified and concentrated on the realization of the highest Being who is also the inner and real self.

14. yadā sarve pramucyante kāmā ye'sya hrđi śritāḥ, atha martyo'mṛto bhavaty atra brahma samaśnute.

14. When all desires that dwell within the human heart are cast away, then a mortal becomes immortal and (even) here he attaineth to Brahman.

When self-seeking desire, ignorance and doubt disappear, the vision of God is attained. The Upaniṣad treats fellowship with God as the consummation of spiritual experience.

15. yadā sarve prabhidante hṛdayasyeha granthayah, atha martyo' mṛto bhavaty etāvad anuśāsanam.

15. When all the knots that fetter here the heart are cut asunder, then a mortal becomes immortal. Thus far is the teaching.

etāvad anuśāsanam: thus far is the teaching. The original Upaniṣad, it was felt, ended with I. 3. 17. These words seem to mark the end of the enlarged Upaniṣad. The remaining verses seem to be a still later addition.

16. *śataṁ caikā ca hṛdayasya nāḍyas tāsāṁ mūrdhānam abhiñiṣṭaikaḥ:
tayordhvam āyann amṛtatvam eti, viśvaṁ anyā utkramane
bhavanti.*

16. A hundred and one are the arteries of the heart; one of them leads up to the crown of the head. Going upward through that, one becomes immortal; the others serve for going in various other directions.

See C.U. VIII. 6. 6, where it is said, that if a man has lived the disciplined life of a student and so 'found the self,' then at the time of death, his soul, dwelling in the heart, will pass upward by an artery known as suṣumnā (Maitrī VI. 21), to an aperture in the crown of the skull known as the brahma-randhra or vidṛti, by which at the beginning of life it first entered. For there the soul rises by the sun's rays to the sun which is a door-way to the Brahman world to those who know and a stopping-place for those who do not know. The other ways lead the unliberated to re-embodiment.

17. *aṅguṣṭhamātraḥ puruṣo'ntarātmā sadā janānāṁ hṛdaye
sanniviṣṭaḥ
taṁ svāc charīrāt pravṛthen muñjād iveṣṭikāṁ dhairyena:
taṁ vidyāc chukram amṛtaṁ taṁ vidyāc chukram amṛtaṁ
iti.*

17. The person of the size of a thumb, the inner self, abides always in the hearts of men. Him one should draw out with firmness, from the body, as (one may do) the wind from the reed. Him one should know as the pure, the immortal, yea, Him one should know as the pure, the immortal.

*dhairya*na: with firmness, apramādena. Ś. with courage, with intellectual strength. jñāna-kauśalena. R.

18. mṛtyu-proktām naciketo'tha labdhvā vidyām etām yoga-vidhīm ca kṛtsnam, brahma-prāpto virajo 'bhūd vimṛtyur anyopy evam yo vid adhyātmam eva.

18. Then Naciketas, having gained this knowledge declared by Death and the whole rule of Yoga, attained Brahman and became freed from passion and from death. And so may any other who knows this in regard to the self.

PRAŚNA UPANIṢAD

The Praśna Upaniṣad belongs to the Atharva Veda and has six sections dealing with six questions put to a sage by his disciples who were intent on knowing the nature of the ultimate cause, the power of aum, the relation of the Supreme to the constituents of the world. The Upaniṣad is so called as it deals with praśna or question.

INVOCATION

1. *bhadrām karṇebhiḥ śṛṇuyāma devāḥ, bhadrām paśyemāk-ṣabhir yajatrāḥ;
sthirair āṅgais tuṣṭuvāṁsas tanūbhiḥ, vyaśema deva-hitam yad āyuh.*

1. Aum. May we, O gods, hear what is auspicious with our ears. Oh ye, who are worthy of worship, may we see with our eyes what is auspicious. May we enjoy the life allotted to us by the gods, offering praise, with our bodies strong of limb.

2. svasti na indro vṛddha-śravāḥ, svasti naḥ pūṣā viśva-vedāḥ, svasti naḥ tārksyo ariṣṭa-nemiḥ, svasti no bṛhaspatir dadhātu, Aum śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ, śāntiḥ.

2. May Indra, of increasing glory, bestow prosperity on us; may Pūṣan, the knower of all, bestow prosperity on us; may Tārksya, of unobstructed path, bestow prosperity on us. May Bṛhaspati bestow prosperity on us. Aum, peace, peace, peace.

Question I

SIX QUESTIONERS SEEK BRAHMA-KNOWLEDGE FROM A TEACHER

1. sukeśa ca bhāradvājaḥ, śaibyaś ca satya-kāmaḥ, sauryāyaṇī ca gārgyaḥ, kausalyaś cāśvalāyano bhārgavo vaidarbhiḥ, kabandhī kātyāyanaḥ, te haite brahma-parāḥ, brahma-niṣṭhāḥ, param brahmanvेषamānā, eṣa ha vai tat sarvaṁ vakṣyatīti, te ha samit-pāṇayo bhagavantam pippalādam upasannāḥ.

1. Sukeśa son of Bhāradvāja, Satya-kāma son of Śibi, Gārgya grandson of Sūrya, Kausalya son of Aśvala, Bhārgava of the Vidarbha country, Kabandhī son of Kātya, these, indeed, devoted to Brahman, intent on Brahman, seeking the highest Brahman, approached the revered Pippalāda with sacrificial fuel in their hands, thinking that he would explain all to them.

2. tān ha sa ṛṣir uvāca, bhūya eva tapasā brahmacaryeṇa śraddhayā samvatsaram samvatsyatha, yathā-kāmam praśnān prcchatha, yadi vijñāsyāmaḥ sarvaṁ ha vo vakṣyāma iti.

2. To them that seer said; live with me another year with austerity, chastity and faith. Then ask us questions according to your desire and if we know, we shall, indeed, tell you all that.

tapasā: with austerity. sense restraint. indriya-samyamena. Ś. brahmacaryeṇa: with chastity. yoṣiṣmarāṇa-kīrtana-keli-prekṣaṇa guhyabhāṣaṇa-saṁkalpādhyavasāyakriyā-nirvṛtti-lakṣaṇāṣṭavidhamaitihuna-varjanarūpa-brahmacaryeṇa. R.

QUESTION CONCERNING THE SOURCE OF CREATURES ON EARTH

3. atha kabandhī kātyāyana upetya paṇḍitaḥ, bhagavan, kuto ha vā imāḥ prajāḥ prajāyante iti.

3. Then Kabandhī, son of Kātya, approached him and asked, Venerable Sir, whence, verily, are all these creatures born?

atha: then, i.e. after a year.

THE LORD OF CREATION CREATED MATTER AND LIFE

4. tasmai sa hovāca prajā-kāmo vai prajā-patiḥ, sa tapo'tapyata, sa tapas taptvā sa mithunam utpādayate, rayim ca prāṇam ca, ity etau me bahudhā prajāḥ kariṣyata iti.

4. To him he said, Prajā-pati (the lord of creation), verily, was desirous of offspring. He performed austerity. Having performed austerity, he produced the pair, matter and life, thinking that they would produce creatures for him variously.

rayi: matter, feminine.

prāna: life, masculine. These two are interpreted also as food and its eater. Here we have a duality of primary existences answering to matter and form of Aristotle. The application of this duality in the following verses is somewhat strange.

THE SUN IDENTIFIED WITH LIFE

5. ādityo ha vai prāṇaḥ, rayir eva candramāḥ, rayir vā etat sarvaṃ yan mūrtiṃ cāmūrtiṃ ca, tasmāt mūrtir eva rayiḥ.

5. The sun, indeed, is life. Matter itself is the moon. Matter is, verily, all this, whatever is formed and formless. Therefore, whatever is formed is itself matter.

Matter and life interact and produce the whole creation. Everything, gross and subtle, is matter. In the cosmic process or becoming, there is always the element of matter. Rayi is the material medium in which all forms are expressed.

rayir evāṇnam. Ś.

sarvaṃ api bhūta-jātaṃ rayiḥ. R.

6. athāditya udayan yat prācīm diśam praviśati, tena prācyaṇ prāṇān raśmiṣu sannidhatte yad dakṣiṇām yat pratīcīm yad udīcīm yad adho yad ūrdhvaṃ yad antarā diśo yat sarvaṃ prakāśayati, tena sarvān prāṇān raśmiṣu sannidhatte.

6. Now the sun, after rising, enters the eastern side. By that, he bathes in his rays all life that is in the east. When he illumines all the other sides of the south, the west, the north, below, above and in between, by that he bathes in his rays all living beings.

7. sa eṣa vaiśvānaro viśva-rūpaḥ prāṇo'gnir udayate, tad etad ṛcābhyuktam.

This is he, the Vaiśvānara fire, assuming every form, life and fire who rises (every day). This very doctrine is declared in a verse of the Rg Veda.

The sun which is life in its infinite variety rises as fire.

Vaiśvānara is said to be the essence of all living beings, while Viśva-rūpa is said to be the essence of the whole cosmos, according to Ā.

narāḥ jīvāḥ viśve ca te narāḥ ca viśvānarāḥ, sa eva vaiśvānaraḥ sarva-jīvātmakaḥ, viśva-rūpaḥ sarva-prapañcātmakaḥ iti bhedaḥ.

8. viśva-rūpaṁ hariṇam jāta-vedasam parāyaṇam jyotir ekaṁ tapantam, sahasra-raśmiḥ śatadhā vartamānaḥ prāṇaḥ prajānām udayaty eṣa sūryaḥ.

8. Who has all forms, the golden one, the all-knowing, the goal (of all), the sole light, the giver of heat, possessing a thousand rays, existing in a hundred forms—thus rises the sun, the life of all creation.

See Maitrī VI. 8.

The Sun, in many systems of ancient times, is regarded as the infinite life of all beings.

THE YEAR IS IDENTIFIED WITH THE LORD OF CREATION

THE TWO ROUTES

9. saṁvatsaro vai prajā-patiḥ, tasyāyane dakṣiṇam cottaram ca, tad ye ha vai tad iṣṭā-pūrte kṛtam ity upāsate, te cāndramasam eva lokam abhijayante, ta eva punar āvartante, tasmād ete ṛsayāḥ prajā-kāmā dakṣiṇam pratipadyante, eṣa ha vai rayir yaḥ pitṛyānaḥ.

9. The year, verily, is the lord of creation; of it (there are) two paths, the southern and the northern. Now those, verily, who worship, thinking 'sacrifice and pious acts are our work,' they win only the human world. They certainly return again. Therefore, the sages, desirous of offspring, take the southern route. This, which is called the path of ancestors, is verily matter (rayi).

The southern route is the material path where we perform acts with selfish desires. These acts are of two kinds iṣṭa and pūrta. The former relates to acts of ceremonial piety, observances of Vedic ritual, the latter to acts of social service and public good.

agnihotraṁ tapas satyaṁ vedānām upalambhanam, ātithyaṁ vaiśvadevaṁ ca iṣṭam ity abhidhīyate; vāpī-kūpa-tatākādi devatāyatanāni ca anna-pradānam ārāmaḥ pūrtam ity abhidhīyate.

10. athottareṇa tapasā brahmacaryeṇa śraddhayā vidyayāt-mānam anviśyādityam abhijayante, etad vai prāṇānām āyatanam, etad amṛtam abhayam, etat parāyaṇam, etasmān na punar āvartante, ity eṣa nirodhaḥ, tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

10. But those who seek for the Self by austerity, chastity, faith and knowledge, they, by the northern route, gain the sun. That, verily, is the support of life breaths. That is eternal, the fearless. That is the final goal. From that they do not return. That is the stopping (of rebirth). About that, there is this verse:

Conventional piety and altruism are distinguished from ethical and spiritual development. The former do not save us from subjection to time; the latter do.

tapas is bodily control, bordering on mortification. Brahmacarya is sexual continence. Śraddhā is faith in the Divine. Ātma-vidyā is self-knowledge. kāya-kleśādi-lakṣaṇena tapasā, strī-saṅga-rāhitya-lakṣaṇena brahmacaryeṇa, āstikiya-buddhi-lakṣaṇayā śraddhayaḥ pratyag-ātma-vidyayā. . . . R.

Through the Sun they attain to Brahman. brahma-prāpti-dvāra-bhūtam ādityam. Ibid.

11. pañca-pādam pītarām dvādaśākṛtim diva āhuḥ pare ardhe puriṣiṇam atheme anya u pare vicakṣaṇam sapta-cakre śadara āhur arpitam.

11. They speak of him as the father, having five feet, and twelve forms, seated in the higher half of the heavens, full of water. And others, again, speak of him as the omniscient set on (a chariot of) seven wheels and six spokes.

pañca-pādam: having five feet, i.e. five seasons.

Cp. R.V. I. 164. 12.

Ś says that hemanta and śiśira seasons are combined into one.

pītarām: father. Time is the father of all things. sarvasya janayitṛtvāt pītṛtvam. Ś.

dvādaśākṛtim: twelve forms, twelve months.

Time is ever on the move in the form of seven horses and six seasons.

12. māso vai prajā-patih, tasya kṛṣṇa-pakṣa eva rayih, śuklaḥ prāṇaḥ, tasmād eta ṛṣayaḥ śukla iṣṭim kurvanti, itara itarasmin.

12. The month, verily, is the lord of creation. Of this the dark half is matter, the bright half is life. Therefore, the seers perform sacrifices in the bright half, others in the other half.

The distinction between matter and form is stressed.

13. aho-rātro vai prajā-patih, tasyāhar eva prāṇo rātrir eva rayih; prāṇam vā ete praskandanti ye divā ratyā samyuḥyam te brahmacaryam eva tad yad rātrau ratyā samyuḥyante.

13. Day and night are, verily, the lord of creation. Of this, day indeed is life and the night verily is matter. They who join in sexual intercourse by day spill their life; that they join in sexual intercourse by night is chastity indeed.

It is clear from this verse that brahmacarya or chastity is not sexual abstinence but sex control. With all their exaltation of celibacy the Upaniṣads recognise the value of married life.

14. annam vai prajāpatiḥ, tato ha vaitad retah, tasmād imāḥ prajāḥ prajāyante.

14. Food, indeed, is the lord of creation; from this, verily, is semen. From this creatures here are born.

15. tad ye ha vai tat prajā-pati vratam caranti te mithunam utpādayante, teṣām evaiṣa brahma loko yeṣām tapo brahmacaryam yeṣu satyam pratiṣṭhitam.

15. Thus, those who practise this rule of the lord of creation, produce couples. To them alone is this brahmā world, in whom austerity, chastity and truth are established.

The seers of the Upaniṣads were not blind to the natural innocence and beauty of sex life and parental love.

16. teṣām asau virājo brahma-loko na yeṣu jihmam, anṛtam, na māyā ceti.

16. To them is that stainless brahmā world, in whom there is no crookedness, falsehood or trickery.

māyā: trickery, the art of saying one thing and doing another. māyā nāma bahir anyathātmānam prakāśya'nyathaiva kāryam karoti sa māyā mithyācāra-rūpā. Ś.

This use of the word māyā has led to the view that the world is deceptive in character.

Question 2

CONCERNING THE SUPPORTING AND ILLUMINING POWERS

I. atha hainam bhārgavo vaidarbhīḥ paṇḍitaḥ, bhagavan, katy eva devāḥ prajāḥ vidhārayante, katara etat prakāśayante, kaḥ punar eṣām varīṣṭha iti.

1. Then Bhārgava of the Vidarbha country asked him (Pippalāda): Venerable sir, how many powers support the created world? How many illumine this? And who, again, among them is the greatest?

2. tasmai sa hovāca, ākāśo ha vā eṣa devo vāyur agnir āpaḥ pṛthivī vān manaś cakṣuḥ śrotram ca, te prakāśyābhivadanti, vāyam etad bānam avaṣṭabhya vidhārayāmaḥ.

2. To him, he said: 'ether verily is such a power—wind, fire, water, earth, speech, mind, eye and ear too. They, having illumined it, declare, "we sustain and support this body."' bāna: body. śarīra, kārya-kāraṇa-saṁghāta. Ś.

LIFE THE GREATEST OF THEM

3. tān variṣṭhaḥ prāṇa uvāca, mā moham āpadyatha, aham evaitat pañcadhātmanam pravibhajyatat bānam avaṣṭabhya vidhārayāmi iti.

3. Life, the greatest of them, said to them: 'Do not cherish this delusion; I, alone, dividing myself fivefold, sustain and support this body.'

pañcadhā: fivefold, the five forms of breath.

4. te'śraddadhānā babbhūvuh, so'bhīmānād ūrdhvam utkrāmata iva, tasminn utkrāmaty yathetare sarva evotkrāmante, tasminś ca pratiṣṭhamāne sarva eva pratiṣṭhante, tad yathā makṣikā madhu-kara-rājānam utkrāmantaṁ sarva evotkrāmante tasminś ca pratiṣṭhamāne sarva eva pratiṣṭhante, evaṁ vān manaś cakṣuḥ śrotram ca, te prīṭāḥ prāṇaṁ stuvanti.

4. They believed him not. Through pride, he seemed to go upward (from the body). When he went up, all the others also went up. When he settled down, all others too settled down. This, as all the bees go up when the king bee goes up and as they settle down when the king bee settles down, even so, speech, mind, sight and hearing. They, being satisfied, praise life.

5. eṣo'gnis tapaty eṣa sūrya eṣa parjanya maghavān eṣa vāyuh: eṣa pṛthivī rayir devaḥ sad-asac cāmṛtam ca yat.

5. As fire, he burns; he is the sun. He is the bountiful rain-god; He is the wind. He is the earth, matter, god. He is being and non-being and what is immortal.

sad-asat: the formed and the unformed. sat mūrtam, asat amūrtam. Ś.

6. arā iva ratha-nābhau prāṇe sarvam pratiṣṭhitam, rco yajūṁṣi sāmāni yajñāḥ kṣatram brahma ca.

6. As spokes in the centre of a wheel, everything is established in life; the Rg (verses), the Yajus (formulas) and the sāmans (chants) as also sacrifice, valour and wisdom.

7. prajā-patiś carasi garbhe tvam eva pratiṣṭhase, tubhyam prāṇa prajāstv imā balim haranti yaḥ prāṇaiḥ pratitiṣṭhasi.

7. As the lord of creatures, thou movest in the womb; it is then thyself that art born again. O life, creatures—here bring offering to thee who dwellest with the vital breaths.

Prajā-pati moves in the form of the seed in the father and the son in the mother. piūr garbhe reto-rūpeṇa mātūr garbhe putra-rūpeṇa. Ā. This verse reveals the state of scientific knowledge in those days.

8. devānām asi vahnitamah pitṛnām prathamā svadhā, ṛṣṇām caritam satyam atharvāṅgirasām asi.

8. Thou art the chief bearer (of offerings) to the gods; thou art the first offering to the fathers; thou art the true practice of the seers, descendants of Atharvan and Aṅgiras.

9. indras tvam prāṇa, tejasā, rudro'si parirakṣitā, tvam antarikṣe carasi sūryas tvam jyotiṣām patiḥ.

9. Indra art thou, O Life, by thy valour; Rudra art thou as a protector. Thou movest in the atmosphere as the sun, the lord of the lights.

10. yadā tvam abhivaṛṣasy athemāḥ prāṇate prajāḥ, ānandarūpās tiṣṭhanti kāmāyānnaṁ bhaviṣyatīti.

10. When thou pourest down rain, then these creatures breathe (and) live in a state of bliss (thinking) that there will be food according to their desire.

II. vrātyas tvam prāṇa, ekarṣir attā viśvasya satpatih vayam ādyasya dātārah, pitā tvam mātariśva, naḥ.

II. Thou art ever pure, O Life, the one seer, the eater, the real lord of all. We are the givers of what is to be eaten. O, all-pervading Air, thou art our father.

vrātya: ever pure. 'Being the first born and so having no one else to initiate you, you are uninitiated. The meaning is that you are by nature, pure.' Ś. prathamajātṛvād anyasya saṁskartuḥ abhāvād asaṁskṛto vrātyas tvam, svabhāvata eva śuddha ity abhi-prāyaḥ. Later vrātya came to mean one who lost caste by non-observance of prescribed ceremonies or otherwise. saṁskāra-hīnaḥ. See Ā and R.

ekarṣi: the one seer, the name given to Agni by the followers of the Atharva Veda. See Īśa 16.

12. yā te tanūr vāci pratiṣṭhitā yā śrotre yā ca cakṣuṣi yā ca manasi santatā śivām tām kuru motkramih.

12. That form of thine which is well-established in the speech, or in the ear and in the eye, which exists continuously in the mind, make that auspicious; do not get away.

śivām: auspicious or restful. śāntam. Ś. śobhanam. R.

13. prānasyedam vaṣe sarvaṁ tri-dive yat pratiṣṭhitam māteva putrān rakṣasva, śrīś ca prajñāṁ ca vidhehi naḥ iti.

13. All this is under the control of life, which is well established in the three worlds. Protect us as a mother her sons. Grant to us prosperity and wisdom.

For a controversy between prāṇa or life principle and the organs of sense, see C.U. V. 1. 6-15.

as a mother to her sons: In the Devī Bhāgavata, the devotee prays: 'O noble Goddess, may this relationship of mother and son prevail unbroken between thee and me, now and for ever more.'

ēṣa vayoḥ aviratā kila devī bhūyāt vyāptih sadaiva janani sutayoḥ ivārye.

Question 3

THE LIFE OF A PERSON

1. atha hainam kausalyaś cāśvalāyanah paṇḍita, bhagavān, kuta eṣa prāṇo jāyate, katham āyāty asmiṁ charīre, ātmānam vā pravibhajya katham pratiṣṭhate, kenotkrāmate, katham bāhyam abhidhatte, katham adhyātmam iti.

1. Then Kausalya, the son of Aśvala, asked him (Pippalāda): Venerable Sir, whence is this life born? How does it come into this body? And how does it distribute itself and establish itself? In what way does it depart? How does it support what is external? How (does it support) what relates to the self?

2. tasmai sa hovāca, atipraśnān pṛcchasi, brahmīṣṭho' sīti tasmāt te'ham bravāmi.

2. To him, he then said: You are asking questions which are (highly) transcendental. Because (I think) you are most devoted to Brahman, I will tell you.

atipraśnān: questions of a transcendental character such as the origin of the world, janmāditvam. Ś. Subtle questions, sūkṣma-praśnam. Ā.

3. ātmanā eṣa prāṇo jāyate, yathaiṣā puruṣe chāyaitasminn etad ātatam, manokṛtenāyāty asmiñ śarīre.

3. This life is born of the self. As in the case of a person there is this shadow, so is this (life) connected (with the self). It comes into this body by the activity of the mind.

A person's life in this body is the appropriate result of his activities in the previous existence. As the shadow of former lives a new life arises.

4. yathā samrāḍevādhiḥkṛtān viniyuñkte, etān grāmān etān grāmān adhitiṣṭhasveti, evam evaiṣa prāṇaḥ itarān prāṇān pṛthak pṛthag eva sannidhatte.

4. As a sovereign commands his officers, saying, 'you superintend such and such villages,' even so does this life allot the other vital breaths to their respective places.

5. pāyūpasthe'pānaṁ, cakṣuḥ śrotre mukha-nāsikābhyām prāṇaḥ svayam pratiṣṭhate, madhye tu samānaḥ eṣa hy etadd hutam annaṁ samānān nayati, tasmād etāḥ saptaṛciṣo bhavanti.

5. The out-breath is in the organs of excretion and generation, the life breath as such is in the eye and ear as also in the mouth and nose. In the middle is the equalising breath. It is this that equalises whatever is offered as food. From this arise the seven flames.

6. hrdy hy eṣa ātmā, atraitad ekaśataṁ nāḍīnām, tāsāṁ śataṁ śataṁ ekaikasyām dvāsaptatir dvāsaptatiḥ pratiśākhā nāḍī-sahas-rāṇi bhavanti, āsu vyānaś carati.

6. In the heart is this self. Here are these hundred and one arteries. To each one of these belong a hundred smaller arteries. To each of these belong seventy-two thousand branching arteries. Within them moves the diffused breath.

See C.U. VIII. 6-6; B.U. II. 1-19.

The self which is in the heart is the jīvātman or the lingātman. Ś and Ā.

7. athaikayordhva udānaḥ, punyena punyalokaṁ nayati, pāpena pāpam, ubhābhyām eva manuṣya-lokaṁ.

7. Now, rising upward through one of these the up-breath leads, in consequence of good (work) to the good world, in consequence of evil to the evil world, in consequence of both to the world of men.

8. ādityo ha vai bāhyaḥ prāṇa udayati, eṣa hy enaṁ cākṣuṣaṁ prāṇam anugrhnānaḥ, pṛthivyām yā devatā saiṣa puruṣasyāpānam avastabhyāntarā yad ākāśas sa samāno, vāyur vyānaḥ.

8. The sun, verily, rises as the external life for it is that which helps the life breath in the eye. The divinity which is in the earth supports a person's outbreath. What is between (the sun and the earth) is the equalising breath. Air is the diffused breath.

9. tejo ha vai udānaḥ, tasmād upaśāntatejāḥ punar-bhavam indriyair manasi sampadyamānaiḥ.

9. Fire, verily, is the upbreath. Therefore, he whose fire (of life) has ceased, goes to rebirth, with his senses sunk in mind.

10. yat cittas tenaiṣa prāṇam āyāti, prāṇas tejasā yuktaḥ sahātmanā yathā saṁkalpitam lokam nayati.

10. Whatever is one's thinking, therewith one enters into life. His life combined with fire along with the self leads to whatever world has been fashioned (in thought).

11. ya evaṁ vidvān prāṇam veda na hāsyā prajā hīyate, amṛto bhavati, tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

11. The wise one who knows life thus, to him there shall be no lack of offspring. He becomes immortal. As to this, there is this verse:

12. utpattim āyatim sthānam vibhūtvam caiva pañcadhā, adhyātmanā caiva prāṇasya vijñāyāmṛtam aśnute, vijñāyāmṛtam aśnuta iti.

12. The birth, the entrance, the abode, the fivefold overlordship and the relation to self of the life, knowing these one obtains immortality, knowing these one obtains immortality.

Anyone who knows the birth of life, its entrance into the body, how it abides there in its fivefold division and knows its relation to the inner spirit enjoys eternal life.

Question 4

CONCERNING SLEEP AND THE ULTIMATE BASIS OF THINGS

1. atha hainam sauryāyanī gārgyaḥ papraccha, bhagavan, etasmin puruṣe kāni svapanti, kāny asmin jāgrati, katara eṣa

devaḥ svapnān paśyati, kasyaitat sukham bhavati, kasmin nu sarve sampratiṣṭhitā bhavanti iti.

1. Then Gārgya, the grandson of Sūrya, asked him (Pippalāda): Venerable Sir, what are they that sleep in this person? What are they that keep awake in him? What is the god that sees the dreams? Whose is this happiness? In whom, pray, are all these established?

2. tasmai sa hovāca: yathā, gārgya, maricayor arkasyāstaṁ gacchataḥ sarvā etasmims tejo-maṇḍala ekī-bhavanti, tāḥ punaḥ punar udayataḥ pracaranti, evaṁ ha vai tat sarvaṁ pare deve manasy ekī-bhavati, tena tarhy eṣa puruṣo na śṛnoti, na paśyati, na jighrati, na rasayate, na spṛśate, nābhivadate, nādatte, nānan-dayate, na viśṛjate, neyāyate, svapitīty ācaṣate.

2. To him, then, he said: O Gārgya, as all the rays of the setting sun become one in this circle of light and as they spread forth when he rises again and again, even so does all this become one in the supreme god, the mind. Therefore, in that state, the person hears not, sees not, smells not, tastes not, touches not, speaks not, takes not, rejoices not, emits not, moves not. (Then) they say, he sleeps.

3. prānāgnaya evaitasmin pure jāgrati, gārhapatyō ha vā eṣopānaḥ, vyāno'nvāhārya-pacanaḥ, yad gārhapatyāt prañīyate prañayanād āhavanīyaḥ prānaḥ.

3. The fires of life alone remain awake in this city. The householder's fire is the out-breath. The (southern) sacrificial fire is the diffused breath. The in-breath is the oblation fire, from being taken, since it is taken from the householder's fire.

Life is conceived as a sacrifice and these three life breaths are symbolically identified with the fires used in the Vedic sacrifice. gārhapatyā, householder's fire. It is the sacred home fire kept burning at home.

anvāhārya-pacana: southern sacrificial fire. It is the fire of the south used for offerings to the ancestors.

4. yad ucchvāsa-niḥśvāsāv etāv āhuti samam nayatīti samānaḥ, mano ha vā va yajamānaḥ, iṣṭa-phalam evodānaḥ, sa evaṁ yajamānam ahar ahar brahma gamayati.

4. The equalising breath is so called because it equalises the two oblations, the in-breathing and the out-breathing. The mind, indeed, is the sacrificer. The fruit of sacrifice is the up-breath. It leads the sacrificer every day to Brahman.

See C.U. VI. 8. 1. In deep sleep the soul is said to be at one with Brahman; only we do not know it. See also C.U. VIII. 3. 2.

5. atraiṣa devaḥ svapne mahimānam anubhavati, yad dr̥ṣṭam dr̥ṣṭam anupaśyati, śrutam śrutam evārtham anuśṛnoti, deśa-digan-taraiś ca praty anubhūtam punaḥ punaḥ praty anubhavati, dr̥ṣṭam cādr̥ṣṭam ca śrutam cāśrutam cānubhūtam cānanubhūtam ca sac cāsac ca sarvam paśyati sarvaḥ paśyati.

5. There, in sleep, that god (mind), experiences greatness. He sees again whatever object has been seen, he hears again whatever has been heard, he experiences again and again whatever has been experienced in different places and directions. What has been seen and not been seen, what has been heard and what has not been heard, what has been experienced and what has not been experienced, what is existent and what is non-existent, he sees all; being all he sees (all).

Usually in dreams, we have reproductions of waking experiences but sometimes we have also new constructions. See B.U. IV. 3 9-18, where the creative side of dream consciousness is mentioned.

DREAMLESS SLEEP

6. sa yadā tejasābhībhūto bhavati, atriṣa devaḥ svapnān na paśyati, atha tad etasmin śarīre etat sukham bhavati.

6. When he is overcome with light, then in this state, the god (mind) sees no dreams. Then here in this body arises this happiness.

The state of dreamless sleep is described here.

7. sa yathā, saumya, vayāmsi vāso vṛkṣam sampratiṣṭhante, evam ha vai tat sarvam para ātmani sampratiṣṭhante.

7. Even as birds, O dear, resort to a tree for a resting-place, so does everything here resort to the Supreme Self. They all find their rest in the Supreme Self.

8. prthivī ca prthivī-mātrā ca, āpaś cāpo-mātrā ca, tejaś ca tejo-mātrā ca, vāyuś ca vāyu-mātrā ca, ākāśaś cākāśa-mātrā ca, cakṣuś ca draṣṭavyam ca, śrotraṁ ca śrotavyam ca, ghrāṇam ca ghrātavyam ca, rasas ca rasayitavyam ca, tvak ca sparsayitavyam ca, vāk ca vaktavyam ca, hastau cādātavyam ca, upasthaś cānandayitavyam ca, pāyuś ca visarjayitavyam ca, pādaḥ ca gantavyam ca, manaś ca mantavyam ca, buddhiś ca boddhavyam

ca, aham-kāraś cāham-kartavyam ca, cittam ca cetayitavyam ca, tejaś ca vidyotayitavyam ca, prāṇaś ca vidhārayitavyam ca.

8. Earth and the elements of earth, water and the elements of water, fire and the elements of fire, air and the elements of air, ether and the elements of ether, sight and what can be seen, hearing and what can be heard, smell and what can be smelled, taste and what can be tasted, the skin and what can be touched, speech and what can be spoken, hands and what can be handled, the organ of generation and what can be enjoyed, the organ of excretion and what can be excreted, the feet and what can be walked, the mind and what can be perceived, the intellect and what can be conceived, the self-sense and what can be connected with the self, thought and what can be thought, radiance and what can be illumined, life-breath and what can be supported by it.

We have here an enumeration of the Sāṃkhya principles of the five cosmic elements, the ten organs of perception and action, mind, intellect, self-sense and thought together with light and life.

9. eṣa hi draṣṭā, spraṣṭā, śrotā, ghrātā, rasayitā, mantā, boddhā, kartā, vijñānātmā, puruṣaḥ, sa pare'kṣara ātmani sampratiṣṭhate.

9. He, verily, is the seer, the toucher, the hearer, the smeller, the taster, the perceiver, the knower, the doer, the thinking self, the person. He becomes established in the Supreme Undecaying Self.

The subject self is established in the Spirit which transcends all duality, even the distinction of subject and object.

10. param evākṣaram pratipadyate sa yo ha vai tad acchāyam, aśarīram, alohitam, śubhram, akṣaram vedayate; yas tu, saumya, sa sarvajñaḥ sarvo bhavati. tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

10. He who knows the shadowless, bodiless, colourless, pure, undecaying self attains verily, the Supreme, Undecaying (self). He who, O dear, knows thus becomes omniscient, (becomes) all. As to this, there is this verse:

11. vijñanātmā saha devaiś ca sarvaiḥ prāṇā bhūtāni sampratiṣṭhanti yatra, tad akṣaram vedayate yas tu, saumya, sa sarvajñaḥ sarvam evāviveśa iti.

11. He who knows that Undecaying (self) in which are established the self of the nature of intelligence, the vital breaths and the elements along with all the gods (powers) becomes, O dear, omniscient and enters all.

Question 5

1. atha hainam śaibyas satya-kāmaḥ papraccha, sa yo ha vai tad, bhagavan, manuṣyeṣu prāyaṇāntam aumkāram abhidhyāyīta, katamaṁ vā va sa tena lokam jayatīti.

1. Then Satya-kāma, son of Śibi, asked him (Pippalāda): Venerable Sir, what world does he, who among men, meditates on (the syllable) Aum until the end of his life, win by that?

Ś explains abhidhyāna to be intense contemplative activity free from all distractions. bāhya-viṣayebhya upasamhṛta-karaṇaḥ samāhita-citto bhaktyāveśita-brahmabhāve aumkāre ātma-pratyaya-santāna-vicchedo bhinnajātīya pratyayāntarāḥkīlīkṛtonnirvāstha-dīpa-śikha-samo' bhidhyāna-śabdārthaḥ.

2. tasmai sa hovāca, etad vai, satya-kāma, param cāparam ca brahma yad aumkāraḥ, tasmād vidvān etenaivāyatanenaikataram anveti.

2. To him, he said: That which is the sound Aum, O Satya-kāma, is verily the higher and the lower Brahman. Therefore, with this support alone does the wise man reach the one or the other.

The verse distinguishes between the Unqualified Absolute Brahman and the qualified Personal Īśvara.

3. sa yady eka-mātram abhidhyāyīta, sa tenaiva sanveditas tūrnam eva jagatyām abhisampadyate; tam ṛco manuṣya-lokam upanayante, sa tatra tapasā brahmacaryeṇa śraddhayā sampanno mahimānam anubhavati.

3. If he meditates on one element (a), he, enlightened even by that, comes quickly to the earth (after death). The Ṛcas (verses) lead him into the world of men. There, endowed with austerity, chastity and faith, he experiences greatness.

4. atha yadi dvi-mātreṇa manasi sampadyate, so'ntarikṣam yajurbhir unnīyate soma-lokam, sa soma-loke vibhūtim anubhūya punar āvartate.

4. Then, (if he meditates on this) as of two elements (au) he attains the mind. He is led by the yajus (formulas) to the intermediate space, the world of the moon; having experienced greatness there, he returns hither again.

5. yaḥ punar etaṁ tri-mātreṇa aum ity etenaivākṣareṇa param puruṣam abhidhyāyita, sa tejasi sūrye sampannah; yathā pādo-daras tvacā vinirmucyata evaṁ ha vai sa pāpmanā vinirmuktaḥ sa sāmabhir unnīyate brahma-lokaṁ, sa etasmāj jīvaghanāt parāt-param puriṣayam puruṣam īkṣate: tad etau ślokaḥ bhavataḥ.

5. But if he meditates on the highest person with the three elements of the syllable Aum (a, u, m), he becomes one with the light, the sun. Even as a snake is freed from its skin, even so is he freed from sins. He is led by sāma (chants) to the world of Brahmā. He sees the person that dwells in the body, who is higher than the highest life. As to this there are these (two verses).

Ś says: The world of Brahmā is the world of Hiranya-garbha who is the lord of the satya-loka. Hiranya-garbha is the self of all the jīvas travelling in saṁsāra; for he is the internal self of all living beings in the subtle form and in him, the subtle self are all the jīvas strung together. So he is 'jīva-ghana.' sa hiranya-garbhaḥ sarveṣāṁ saṁ-sārīṇāṁ, jīvānāṁ ātma-bhūtaḥ; sa hy antar-ātmā līṅga-rūpeṇa sarva-bhūtānāṁ, tasmin hi līṅgātmani samhataḥ sarve jīvāḥ, tasmāt sa jīva-ghanah.

The knower of the three elements a, u, m, sees the Supreme beyond the Hiranya-garbha. He obtains liberation and is not forced to return to mundane life. He sees the Supreme Īśvara who is beyond the world-soul and that vision qualifies him for liberation. jīva-ghanāt param puruṣam paśyati, tato mukto bhavati. Ā.

6. tisro-mātrā mṛtyumatyaḥ prayuktā anyonya-saktiā anavi-prayuktāḥ.

kriyāsu bāhyābhyantara-madhyamāsu samyak-prayuktāsu na kampate jñāḥ.

6. The three elements (each) leading to death (by itself), if they are united to each other without being separated and employed in actions well performed, external, internal or intermediate, the knower does not waver.

If a man meditates on the three elements, separately, it is an emblem of mortality; if he meditates on them as interconnected, he gets beyond mortality. jāgrat-svapna-suṣupta-puruṣāḥ saha śhānair mātrā-traya-rūpeṇa aumkāratma-rūpeṇa dṛṣṭāḥ sa hy evaṁ vidvān sarvātma-bhūta aumkāra-mayaḥ kuto vā calet kasmin vā. Ś.

The interconnection of the three elements, a, u, m, indicates the inter-relatedness of the three worlds of waking, dream and sleep. See M.U.

He becomes one with the personal Supreme Īśvara, obtains sarvātmatva, becomes one with the whole universe and is not disturbed as there is nothing independent of him, sva-vyatirikṭābhāvāt. Ā.

7. ṛgbhir etam, yajurbhir antarikṣam, sāmabhir yat tat kavayo vedayante tam aumkāreṇaivāyatanenānveti vidvān yat tac chāntam, ajaram, anṛtam, abhayam, param ca.

7. With the ṛg (verses) (one attains) this world, with the yajus (formulas) (one attains) the interspace and with the sāman (chants) (one attains) to that which the seers recognise. That, the wise one attains, even by the mere sound Aum as support, that which is tranquil, unaging, immortal, fearless and supreme.

kavayah: sūrayah: sages.

The Supreme status is beyond the three worlds. The turiya state, though it underlies the other three states also transcends them.

Question 6

CONCERNING THE PERSON OF SIXTEEN POINTS

1. atha hainam sukeśā bhāradvājaḥ papraccha, bhagavan, hiranya-nābhaḥ kausalyo rāja-putro mām upetyaitam praśnam aprcchata; ṣoḍaśa kalam, bhāradvāja, puruṣam vettha, tam aham kumāram abruvam, nāham imam veda, yady aham imam avedīṣam katham te nāvakṣyam iti, sa-mūlo vā eṣa pariśuṣyati yō'nṛtam abhivadati, tasmān nārhamy anṛtam vaktum, sa tūṣṇīm ratham āruhya pravavrāja, tam tvā prcchāmi, kvāsau puruṣaḥ iti.

1. Then, Sukeśa, son of Bharadvāja, asked him: Venerable Sir, Hiranya-nābha, a prince of the Kosala kingdom approached me and asked this question, 'Bhāradvāja, do you know the person with sixteen parts?' I replied to that prince, 'I know him not. If I had known him, why should I not tell you about it. Verily, to his roots, he withers, who speaks untruth. Therefore, it is not proper for me to speak untruth.' In silence, he mounted his chariot and departed. I ask you about him, where is that person?

He who speaks an untruth withers to his roots.

2. tasmai sa hovāca, ihaivāntaḥ-śarīre, saumya, sa puruṣo yasminn etāḥ ṣoḍaśa kalāḥ prabhavanti iti.

2. To him he said: Even here, within the body, O dear, is that person in whom these sixteen parts arise.

The self of the sixteen parts becomes in the Sāṃkhya system the līṅga-śarīra or the subtle body (see below verse 4), with some modifications.

3. sa īkṣāṃcakre, kasminn aham utkrānta utkrānto bhaviṣyāmi, kasmin vā pratiṣṭhite pratiṣṭhāsyāmi iti.

3. He (the person) thought (in himself): In whose departure shall I be departing? And in whose settling down shall I be settling down?

4. sa prāṇam asṛjata, prāṇāc chraddhām kham vāyur jyotir āpaḥ pṛthivīndriyam, mano'nnam, annād vīryam, tapo mantrāḥ karma lokāḥ, lokeṣu ca nāma ca.

4. He created life; from life, faith, ether, air, light, water, earth, sense organ, mind and food; from food, vital vigour, austerity, hymns, works, worlds and in the worlds name.

Ś means by prāṇa, Hiraṇya-garbha or the world-soul. hiraṇya-garbhākhyam sarva-prāṇi-kāraṇādhāram, antar-ātmānam. Śraddhā or faith comes next and then the material elements. Nāma suggests individuation. The souls exist in the world-soul, in their subtle condition, and then they acquire embodiment or gross condition.

5. sa yathemā nadyaḥ syandamānāḥ samudrāyanāḥ samudram prāpyāstaṁ gacchanti bhidyete tāsāṁ nāma-rūpe samudra ity evaṁ procyate, evaṁ evāsyā paridraṣṭur imāḥ ṣoḍaśa kalāḥ puruṣāyanāḥ puruṣam prāpyāstaṁ gacchanti bhidyete cāsāṁ nāma-rūpe puruṣa ity evaṁ procyate, sa eṣo'kalo'mṛto bhavati, tad eṣa ślokaḥ:

5. As these flowing rivers tending towards the ocean, on reaching the ocean, disappear, their name-shape broken up, and are called simply the ocean, even so of this seer, these sixteen parts tending towards the person, on reaching the person, disappear, their name-shape broken up, and are called simply the person. That one is without parts, immortal. As to that there is this verse:

See M.U. IV. 2. 8; C.U. VIII. 10.

As the names of the rivers are lost in the sea, so are our names and shapes lost when we reach the Divine. 'To Tao all under heaven will come as streams and torrents flow into a great river or sea.' Tao Te Ching, XXXII. Cp. Rūmī, 'that your drop may become the sea' (Ode 12), and 'None has knowledge of each who enters that he is so and so' (Ode 15. Nicholson: Shams-i-Tabriz). Eckhart says: 'When I go back into the ground, into the depths, into the well-spring of the Godhead, no one will ask me whence I came or whither I went.'

Cp. Christina Rossetti:

'Lord, we are rivers running to Thy sea,
Our waves and ripples all derived from Thee,
A nothing we should have, a nothing be Except for Thee.'

6. *arā iva ratha-nābhau kalā yasmin pratiṣṭhitāḥ
taṁ vedyaṁ puruṣaṁ veda yathā mā vo mṛtyuḥ parivyathāḥ.*

6. In whom the parts are well established as spokes in the centre of the wheel, know him as the person to be known, so that death may not afflict you.

CONCLUSION OF THE INSTRUCTION

7. tān hovāca, etāvad evāham etat param brahma veda, nūtaḥ param asti iti.

7. To them, then, he (Pippalāda) said, 'only thus far do I know of that Supreme Brahman. There is naught higher than that.'

8. te taṁ arcayantaḥ, tvaṁ hi naḥ pitā yo'smākaṁ avidyāyāḥ param pāraṁ tārayasi, iti; namaḥ parama-ṛṣibhyo namaḥ parama-ṛṣibhyaḥ.

8. They praised him (and said): Thou, indeed, art our father who does take us across to the other shore of ignorance.

Salutation to the supreme seers.

Salutation to the supreme seers.

naḥ pitā: our father. The teacher who helps us to know the truth is the spiritual father as distinct from the physical father, śarīra-mātram janayati. Ś.

MUNDAKA UPANIṢAD

The Munḍaka Upaniṣad belongs to the Atharva Veda and has three chapters, each of which has two sections. The name is derived from the root mund, 'to shave,' as he that comprehends the teaching of the Upaniṣad is shaved or liberated from error and ignorance. The Upaniṣad states clearly the distinction between the higher knowledge of the Supreme Brahman and the lower knowledge of the empirical world. It is by this higher wisdom and not by sacrifices or worship that one can reach Brahman. Only the sannyāsin who has given up everything can obtain the highest knowledge.

MUṆḌAKA I

Section I

THE TRADITION OF BRAHMA-KNOWLEDGE

1. brahmā devānām prathamah sambabhūva viśvasya kartā bhuvanasya goptā sa brahma-vidyām sarva-vidyā-pratiṣṭhām atharvāya jyeṣṭha-putrāya prāha.

1. Brahmā arose as the first among the gods, the maker of the universe, the protector of the world. He taught the knowledge of Brahman, the foundation of all knowledges, to Atharvaṇ, his eldest son.

Brahmā, the creator of the world and its governor arose, by the exercise of his own choice. His rise is unlike the birth of individuals which is determined by their past deeds. Ś. svātantryeṇa na dharmā-dharma-vaśāt. Brahmā here is Hiranya-garbha, the world-soul.

brahma-knowledge: A life without philosophy is not livable for man, in the view of Socrates. See Plato's Apology. Aristotle observes: 'All the other sciences which are not philosophy are more necessary, but none is more important than philosophy.'

2. *atharvaṇe yām pravadeta brahmātharvā tām purovācāṅgīre brahma-vidyām
sa bhāradvājāya satyavāhāya prāha bhāradvājo'ṅgirase parāvarām.*

2. That knowledge of Brahman, which Brahmā taught to Atharvaṇ, and Atharvaṇ in olden times told Aṅgiras. He (in his turn) taught it to Satyavāha, son of Bhāradvāja and the son of Bhāradvāja to Aṅgiras—both the higher and the lower (knowledge).

parāvarām: both the higher and the lower (knowledge) or 'knowledge descended from the greater to the lesser. What permeates the objects of all knowledge, great and small.' Ś. paraśmāt paraśmād avareṇa prāpteti parāvarā, parāvara sarva-vidyā-viśaya-vyāpter vā tām parāvarām.

Avidyā is aparā-vidyā concerned with things perishable and vidyā is parā vidyā dealing with Imperishable Being. Higher knowledge is concerned with the understanding of the nature of the supreme good, niḥśreyasa, and the lower knowledge deals with the disciplines relating to instrumental values.

3. śaunako ha vai mahāśālo'ṅgirasam vidhivad upasannah

paṇḍita, kasmin nu bhagavo vijñāte sarvaṃ idaṃ vijñātaṃ bhavati iti.

3. Śaunaka, the great householder, duly approached Āṅgiras and asked, through what being known, Venerable Sir, does all this become known?

'Is there one cause of all the varieties in the world, which cause being known, all will be well known?' kim nu asti sarvasya jagad-bhedaśyaika-kāraṇaṃ yad ekasmin vijñāte sarvaṃ vijñātaṃ bhavati? Ś.

TWO KINDS OF KNOWLEDGE

4. tasmai sa hovāca: dve vidye veditavye iti ha sma yad brahmavidō vadanti, parā caivāparā ca.

4. To him he said, two kinds of knowledge are to be known, as, indeed, the knowers of Brahman declare—the higher as well as the lower.

aparā: lower knowledge. It is also a kind of knowledge, not bhrama or mithyā jñāna, error or falsehood. It also aims at knowledge of the highest reality even though in a partial or imperfect manner.

5. tatrāparā ṛg-vedo yaṇur-vedaḥ sāmavedo'tharva-vedaḥ śikṣā kalpo vyākaraṇaṃ niruktaṃ chando jyotiṣaṃ—iti. atha parā yayā tad akṣaram adhigamya.

5. Of these, the lower is the Ṛg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharva Veda. Phonetics, Ritual, Grammar, Etymology, Metrics and Astrology. And the higher is that by which the Undecaying is apprehended.

Cp. Śivasvarodaya. The Veda is not to be called Veda for there is no veda in Veda. That is truly the Veda by which the Supreme is known.

*na vedam veda ity āhur vede vedo na vidyate.
parātmā vedyate yena sa vedo veda ucyate.*

THE IMPERISHABLE SOURCE OF THINGS UNPERCEIVABLE

6. yat tad adreśyam, agrāhyam, agotram, avarṇam, acakṣuḥ-śrotraṃ tad apāni-pādam, nityam vibhuṃ sarva-gataṃ susūkṣmaṃ tad avyayam yad bhūta-yonim paripaśyanti dhīrāḥ.

6. That which is ungraspable, without family, without caste, without sight or hearing, without hands or feet, eternal, all-pervading, omnipresent, exceedingly subtle, that is the Undecaying which the wise perceive as the source of beings.

adreśyam: unperceivable. adreśyam adreśyam sarveṣām buddhīndriyānām agamyam. Ś.

vibhum: all-pervading. vividham brahmādi-sthāvarānta-prāṇi-bhedairbhavatīti vibhum. Ś.

The indescribable Absolute Brahman is also the source of beings, bhūta-yoni. For Śaṅkara, bhūta-yoni is Īśvara, for Madhva it is Viṣṇu.

The use of the word yoni suggests that Brahman is the material cause of the world, according to R. yoni-śabdasyopādāna-vacanatvam.

R mentions another verse here which is not found in some editions:

yasmāt param nāparam asti kiñcid yasmān nāṇīyo na jyāyo'sti kaścit, vrkṣa iva stabdho divi tiṣṭhaty ekas tenedam pūrṇam puruṣeṇa sarvam.

7. yathorna-nābhīḥ sṛjate grhṇate ca, yathā pṛthivyām oṣadhayaḥ sambhavanti, yathā sataḥ puruṣāt keśalomāni tathākṣarāt sambhavatīha viśvam.

7. As a spider sends forth and draws in (its thread), as herbs grow on the earth, as the hair (grows) on the head and the body of a living person, so from the Imperishable arises here the universe.

There is no suggestion here that the world is an illusory appearance of Brahman. The illustrations are intended to convey that Brahman is the sole cause and there is no second to Brahman which can be used by Brahman. kāraṇāntaram anaṅkeṣya svayam eva sṛjate. Ś.

8. tapasā cīyate brahma, tato'nnam abhijāyate, annāt prāṇo manah satyaṁ lokāḥ karmasu cāmṛtam.

8. By contemplative power Brahman expands. From that food is produced. From food, life (thence) mind, (thence) the reals (the five elements); (thence) the worlds; (thence the rituals) in the rituals, immortality.

tapas: contemplative power is the energy by which the world is produced. bahusyām iti saṁkalpa-rūpeṇa jñānena brahma sṛṣṭyurmukham bhavati. R. Tapas is derived from two roots which make out that it is austerity or meditation. tapa saṁtāpa iti, tapa ālocana iti. The Supreme works by means and ends and by gradual steps: kramena, na yugapat. Ś.

Brahman in relation to the cosmos is the Personal God who is self-conscious and contemplative. The first product anna is for Ś, the unmanifested principle of objectivity, avyākṛtam. The two represent the subject and the object and next arises prāṇa, which Ś equates with the world-soul. hiranya-garbho brahmaṇo jñāna-kriyā-śakty-adhiṣṭhita-jagat sādharmaṇo vidyā-kāma-kārma-bhūta-samudāya-bījāṅkuro jagad-ātmā. All these products are working towards immortality which is the goal of creation.

9. yaḥ sarvajñaḥ sarva-vid yasya jñānamayaṁ tapaḥ; tasmād etad brahma nāma-rūpam annaṁ ca jāyate.

9. He who is all-knowing and all-wise, whose austerity consists of knowledge, from him are born this Brahmā (Hiranya-garbha), name-shape and food

The all-knowing, all-wise is Īśvara or the Absolute in relation to the world. He is wisdom, His tapaḥ is jñāna. From him issues the world-soul, Hiranya-garbha or Brahmā.

anādī-nidhanam brahma śabda-rūpam yad akṣaram, vivartate 'rtha-bhāvena prakriyā agato yataḥ.

Vākya-padīya I. 1.

The Brahman who is without beginning and end, who is of the form of the indestructible word is apparently transformed into objects, and this is the process through which creation takes place. Sphoṭa is the indivisible idea with its dual form of śabda, word and artha, meaning.

MUNDAKA 1

Section 2

CEREMONIAL RELIGION

I. taḍ etat satyam:

mantreṣu karmāṇi kavayo yāny apaśyaṁs tāni tretāyām bahuḍhā santatāni, tāny ācaratha niyatam, satyakāmā, eṣa vaḥ panthāḥ sukṛtasya loke.

1. This is that truth. The works which the sages saw in the hymns are variously spread forth in the three vedas. Perform them constantly, ye lovers of truth. This is your path to the world of good deeds.

tretāyām: in the three Vedas or generally performed in the tretā age yuge prāyaśaḥ pravṛttāni. Ś.

2. yathā lelāyate hy arcis samiddhe havya-vāhane, tad ājya-bhāgāu antareṇāhutiḥ pratiṭpādayec chraddhayāhutam.

2. When the flame (which) moves after the fire has been kindled, then one should throw with faith his oblations between the two portions of melted butter.

havya-vāhana: fire; the bearer of the sacrifice.

3. yasyāgnihoṭram adarśam apaurṇamāsam acāturmāsyam anāgrayanam atithivarjitam ca ahutam avaiśvadevam avidhinā hutam ā-saptamāms tasya lokān hinasti.

3. He whose agnihotra sacrifice is not followed by the sacrifice of the new moon and of the full moon, by the four months' sacrifice, by the ritual (performed in the harvest season) is without guests, without oblations, without the ceremony to all the gods or gives offerings contrary to rule, (such conduct) destroys his worlds till the seventh.

The opposition of the Upaniṣads to the observance of rites is greatly exaggerated. The performance of rites is unnecessary for those who are already liberated while it is necessary for attaining liberation. When performing rites we must be fully aware of what we are doing. There is a vital difference between the routine performance of rites and an understanding performance of them.

In Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (II. 2. 2. 8-20) it is said that the gods and the demons were both the children of Prajā-pati both devoid of spiritual wisdom and so were subject to the law of change and death. Only Agni was immortal. Both set up their sacrificial fires. The demons performed their rites externally and the gods then set up that fire in their inward self. evam . . . antarātman ādadhata and having done so became immortal and invincible and overcame their mortal and vincible foes. Again, 'by knowledge (vidyayā) they ascend to where desires have migrated (parāgatāḥ) it is not by offerings (dakṣiṇābhiḥ) nor by ignorant ardour (avidvāṃsaḥ tapasvināḥ) . . . but only to knowers that that world belongs.' Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa X. 5. 4. 16. We must set up the sacrificial fire within our self. We must feed the flame by truthful utterance, for we quench it by speaking falsehood. The distinction between external conformity and inward purity is ultimately resolved when the whole of life is interpreted and lived sacrificially. See also Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa X. 4. 2. 31 and XIII. 1. 3. 22.

4. kālī karālī ca mano-javā ca sulohitā yā ca sudhūmravarṇā, sphulinginī viśva-rūpī ca devī lelāyamānā iti sapta-jihvāḥ.

4. The seven moving tongues of fire are the black, the terrific, the swift as mind, the very red, the very smoky-coloured, the spark blazing, the all-shaped goddess.

all-shaped: another reading viśvarūce, all-tasting.

5. eteṣu yaś carate bhrājamāneṣu yathā-kālam cā hutayo hy ādadāyan taṁ nayanty etās sūryasya raśmayo yatra devānāṁ patir eko'dhivāsah.

5. Whosoever performs works, makes offerings when these (tongues) are shining and at the proper time, these (offerings) in the form of the rays of the sun lead him to that (world) where the one lord of the gods abides.

devānāṁ patiḥ: the one lord of the gods. Indra according to Ś and Hiranya-garbha according to R.

6. ehy ekīti taṁ āhutayas suvarcasah sūryasya raśmibhir yajamānāṁ vahanti priyāṁ vācam abhivadantiyo'rcayantya, eṣa vah puṇyas sukrto brahma-lokaḥ.

6. The radiant offerings invite him with the words, 'come, come,' and carry the sacrificer by the rays of the sun, honouring him and saluting him with pleasing words: 'This is your holy world of Brahmā won through good deeds.'

7. plavā hy ete adṛdhā yajña-rūpā aṣṭādaśoktam avaram yeṣu karmā:
etac chreyo ye'bhinandanti mūḍhāḥ jarā-mṛtyum te punar evāpiyanti.

7. Unsteady, verily, are these boats of the eighteen sacrificial forms, which are said to be inferior karma. The deluded who delight in this as leading to good, fall again into old age and death.

aṣṭādaśoktam: eighteen in number consisting of the sixteen ṛtviks, the sacrificer and his wife.

avaram: inferior because it is devoid of knowledge. kevalam jñāna-varjitam karma. Ś.

Ritual is by itself not enough. Vasiṣṭha tells Rāma:—

kālam yajña-tapo-dāna-tīrtha-devārcana-bhramaiḥ.

ciram ādhi, śatopetāḥ kṣapayanti mṛgā iva.

Deluded by sacrifice, austerity, almsgiving, pilgrimage and worship of gods men pass many years in misery, like unto beasts.

Again, Garuḍa, Purāṇa:—

sva-sva-varṇāśramācāra-niratāḥ sarva-mānavāḥ na jñanti param dharmam vṛthā naśyanti dāmbhikāḥ.

All those who are intent on the performance of the duties of their own caste and stage of life do not know the supreme virtue and go to ruin with their pride.

Again in Garuḍa Purāṇa, it is said: Deluded by my māyā, the ignorant desire (to see me) who am hidden, by adopting the vows of single meal, fasting and the like which tend to weaken the body.

ekabhuktopavāsādyair niyamaiḥ kāya-śoṣanaiḥ mūḍhāḥ paroṣam icchanti mama māyā-vimohitāḥ.

See B.G. XVII. 5 and 6.

8. *avidyāyām antare vartamānāḥ svayaṁ dhīrāḥ paṇḍitam
manyamānāḥ
janghanyamānāḥ pariyaṁti mūḍhāḥ, andhenaiva nīyamānā
yathāndhāḥ.*

8. Abiding in the midst of ignorance, wise in their own esteem, thinking themselves to be learned, fools, afflicted with troubles, go about like blind men led by one who is himself blind.

See Kaṭha I. 2. 5.; Maitrī VII. 9.

9. *avidyāyām bahudhā vartamānā vyaṁ kṛtārthā ity abhi-manyanti bālāḥ:
yat karmaṇo na pravedayanti rāgāt tenāturāḥ kṣīṇalokāś cyavante.*

9. The immature, living manifoldly in ignorance, think 'we have accomplished our aim.' Since those who perform rituals do not understand (the truth) because of attachment, therefore they sink down, wretched, when their worlds (i.e. the fruits of their merits) are exhausted.

bālāḥ: immature, ignorant. ajñānināḥ. Ś.

10. iṣṭāpūrtam manyamānā varīṣṭham nānyac chreya vedayante pramūḍhāḥ nākasya pṛṣṭhe te sukrte'nubhūtvemaṁ lokam hīnatarāṁ vā viśanti.

10. These deluded men, regarding sacrifices and works of merits as most important, do not know any other good. Having enjoyed in the high place of heaven won by good deeds, they enter again this world or a still lower one.

iṣṭā-pūrtam: see Praśna I. 9.n.

nākasya: of heaven or the place where sorrow is unknown. kaṁ sukham na bhavatiṭi akam duḥkham tan navidyate yasminn asau nākah. Ā.

11. tapah śraddhe ye hy upavasanty aranye śāntā vidvāṃso bhaiṣācaryām carantaḥ, sūrya-dvāreṇa te virajāḥ prayānti yatrāmṛtaḥ sa puruṣo hy avyayātmā.

11. But those who practise austerity and faith in the forest, the tranquil knowers who live the life of a mendicant, depart freed from sin, through the door of the sun to where dwells the immortal, imperishable person.

aranye: in the forest; spiritual life in India has solitary meditation as one of its essential stages. It has been the cherished ambition and pursuit of the lonely ascetic. It is assumed that those who are distracted by the cares and encumbered by the possessions of the world find it hard to secure their spiritual ends. Those emancipated from these are free to devote themselves to the highest aim. When once the end is reached, the Indian saṁnyāsīn travels at pleasure and has no fixed residence or occupation. The first Christians were homeless wanderers. The mendicant rather than the resident community of monks has been the Indian ideal. Monasteries are more temporary rest-houses or centres of learning than permanent habitations.

The Hindu system of āśramas according to which every one of the twice-born towards the close of his life must renounce the world and adopt the homeless life and the ascetic's garb has had great influence on the Indian mind. Though in intention, certain classes were not eligible to become monks, in practice monks were recruited from all castes.

The Jain and the Buddhist orders though based on the ancient Hindu custom have become more centralised and co-ordinated. Mutts or monasteries have become more popular among the Hindus also. To erect a monastery for the service of the wandering ascetics has become recognised as an act of religious piety.

In these verses the Upaniṣad points out the superiority of the way of knowledge to the empty and formal ritualism of the Brāhmaṇas. The latter lead to the world of Brahmā which lasts as long as this world lasts while the former takes us to the world of Īśvara, i.e. oneness with the Supreme, where we obtain sarvātmabhāva.

BRAHMA-KNOWLEDGE TO BE SOUGHT FROM A TEACHER

12. parīkṣya lokān karmacitān brāhmaṇo nirvedam āyān nāsty akṛtaḥ kṛteṇa tad vijñānārthaṁ sa gurum evābhigacchet samit-pāṇiḥ śrotṛiyam brahma-niṣṭham.

12. Having scrutinised the worlds won by works, let a Brāhmaṇa arrive at non-attachment. The (world) that is not made is not (won) by what is done. For the sake of this knowledge, let him only approach, with sacrificial fuel in hand, a teacher who is learned in the scriptures and established in Brahman.

Karma is a means to what is transitory and not eternal. karma anityasyaiva sādhanam. Ś.

śrotriyaṃ: a teacher who is learned in the scriptures. śruta vedāntam. He should also be a man of realisation.

brahma-niṣṭham: established in Brahman. brahma-sākṣātkāravantam. R.

13. tasmai sa vidvān upasannāya samyak praśānta-cittāya śamānvitāya yenākṣaram puruṣaṃ veda satyam provāca tām tattvato brahma-vidyām.

13. Unto him who has approached in due form, whose mind is tranquil and who has attained peace, let the knowing (teacher) teach in its very truth that knowledge about Brahman by which one knows the Imperishable person, the true.

Cp. the Buddha: 'The Brāhmaṇa whose self has been cleansed of sins, who is free from conceit, whose nature is not stained by passions, who is self-controlled, who has studied the Vedānta and lived a chaste life is indeed the man who can expound the doctrine of Brahman.'

*yo brāhmaṇo bāhita-papa-dhammo nīhuhuniko nikkasāvā ya-tatto

Section I

THE DOCTRINE OF BRAHMAN—ĀTMAN

I. tad etat satyam:

*yathā sudṛptāt pāvakād visphulingāḥ sahasraśaḥ prabhavante
sarūpāḥ*

tathākṣarād vividhāḥ, saumya, bhāvāḥ prajāyante tatra caivāpi yanti.

1. This is the truth. As from a blazing fire, sparks of like form issue forth by the thousands, even so, O beloved, many kinds of beings issue forth from the immutable and they return thither too.

See B.U. II. I. 20.

2. divyo hy amūrtah puruṣaḥ sa bāhyābhyantaro hy ajaḥ aprāṇo hy amanāḥ śubhro akṣarāt parataḥ parah.

2. Divine and formless is the person. He is without and within, unborn, without breath and without mind, pure and higher than the highest immutable., akṣara, the immutable: the unmanifested, prakṛti: the self is beyond this.

3. etasmāj jāyate prāṇo manah sarvendriyāṇi ca, khaṁ vāyur jyotir āpah pṛthivī viśvasya dhārīṇī.

3. From him are born life, mind, all the sense-organs (also) ether, air, light, water and earth, the supporter of all.

jāyate: are born. It is not creation but emanation that is suggested. Ś points out that the world which issues out of him is not real. avidyā-viśaya-vikāra-bhūtaḥ, nāmadheyah anṛtātmakah. It is as real as the person from whom it issues. So even the author is said to be unreal, being the manifestation of the Supreme Brahman through māyā.

caitanyam nirupādhikam śuddham avikalpam brahma tattvajñānād jivānām kaivalyam tad eva māyā-pratibimbīta-rūpeṇa kāraṇam bhavati. Ā.

The whole creation is traced to the personal Lord Īśvara who along with the principle of objectivity is a manifestation of the Absolute Brahman.

4. agnir mūrdhā, cakṣuṣī candra-sūryau, diśaḥ śrotre, vāg vivṛtās ca vedāḥ;

vāyuh prāṇo hṛdayam viśvam, asya padbhyām pṛthivī hy eṣa sarva-bhūtāntarātmā.

4. Fire is His head, His eyes are the sun and the moon, the regions of space are His ears, His speech the revealed Vedas; air is His life and His heart the world. Out of His feet the earth (is born); indeed He is the self of all beings.

We have here a description of the viśva-rūpa which in B.G. XI receives enlargement. It is reported of St. Benedict that he beheld a transfiguration in which he saw the whole world before him as in a sphere all collected together. Rudolf Otto: Mysticism: East and West (1932), p. 60.

The sūtrātman, world-soul, is pictured as the world form or virāt.
pañca-mahā-bhūtānām antar-atmā sthūla-pañca-bhūta-śarīro hi virāt

5. tasmād agnis samidho yasya sūryaḥ somāt parjanya oṣadhayaḥ pṛthivyām, pumān retas siñcati yoṣitāyām bahvīḥ prajāḥ puruṣāt samprasūtāḥ.

5. From him (proceeds) fire whose fuel is the sun; from the moon, the rain; herbs on the earth. (nourished by them) the male fire pours seed in the female, thus are creatures produced from the person.

6. tasmād ṛcaḥ sāma yajūmṣi dīkṣā yajñas ca sarve krato dakṣiṇās ca, saṁvatsaraś ca yajamānaś ca lokāḥ somo yatra pavate yatra sūryaḥ.

6. From him are born the ṛc (verses) the śāman (chants), the yajus (formulas), the rites of initiation, all the sacrifices, ceremonies and sacrificial gifts, the year too, and the sacrificer, and the worlds where the moon purifies and where the sun (shines).

Here is a reference to the world of the fathers and the world of the gods. See C.U. V. 10.

7. tasmāc ca devā bahudhā samprasūtāḥ sādhyā manuṣyāḥ paśavo vayāmsi prāṇāpānau vrīhi-yavau tapaś ca śraddhā satyam brahmacaryam vidhiś ca.

7. From him also the gods are born in manifold ways, the celestials, men, cattle, birds, the in-breath and the out-breath, rice and barley, austerity, faith, truth, chastity and the law.

8. sapta-prāṇāḥ prabhavanti tasmāt saptārciśas samidhas sapta-homāḥ sapta ime lokā yeṣu caranti prāṇā guhāśayā nihitās sapta sapta.

8. From him come forth the seven life-breaths, the seven flames, their fuel, the seven oblations, these seven worlds in which move the life-breaths, seven and seven which dwell in the secret place (of the heart).

Ś explains the seven prāṇas as the seven organs of sense in the head, i.e. two eyes, two ears, two nostrils and the mouth. These are compared to the seven different sacrificial oblations. The perceptions produced by their activities are the flames of the sacrifice. The activities of the different senses are co-ordinated by the mind which is located in the heart.

9. atas samudrā girayaś ca sarve asmāt syandante sindhavas sarva-rūpāḥ, ataś ca sarvā oṣadhayo rasaś ca yenaiṣa bhūtais tiṣṭhate hy antar-ātmā.

9. From him, all the seas and the mountains, from him flow rivers of every kind; from him are all herbs and their juice too; by which, together with the elements, the inner soul is upheld.

While the inward way of contemplation takes us to the self, there is the other side of union with the world. The knower penetrates the whole world and becomes the All.

10. puruṣa evedaṁ viśvaṁ karma tapo brahma parāmr̥tam, etaḍ yo veda nihitaṁ guhāyām so'vidyā-granthiṁ vikiraṭiḥ, saumya.

10. The person himself is all this, work, austerity and Brahmā beyond death. He who knows that which is set in the secret place (of the heart), he, here on earth, O beloved, cuts asunder the knot of ignorance.

He gets rid of ignorance. 'The universe has no separate existence apart from the person.' na viśvaṁ nāma puruṣād anyad kiñcid asti. Ś.

MUNḌAKA 2

Section 2

THE SUPREME BRAHMAN

1. āvih sarñihitaṁ guhācaram nāma mahat padam atraitat samarpitam, ejat prāṇan nimiṣac ca yad etaḍ jānatha sad asad varenyam param viññānād yad variṣṭham prajānām,

1. Manifest, well-fixed, moving, verily, in the secret place (of the heart) such is the great support. In it is centred all this which moves, breathes and winks. Know that as being, as non-being, as the supreme object to be desired, as the highest beyond the reach of man's understanding.

samīnikhitam: well-fixed. samyak-sthitam hr̥di, Ś. sarva-prāṇinām hr̥daye sthitam. Ā.

2. yad arcimad yad anubhyo'nu ca, yasmin lokā nihitā lokinas ca tad etad akṣaram brahma sa prāṇas tad u vān manah, tad etad satyam, tad amṛtam, tad veddhavyam, saumya, viddhi.

2. What is luminous, what is subtler than the subtle, in which are centred all the worlds and those that dwell in them, that is the imperishable Brahman. That is life, that is speech and mind. That is true, that is immortal, O beloved, that is to be known, know (that).

veddhavyam: that is to be known or penetrated, from the root vyadh, to penetrate.

3. dhanur gṛhītvā aupaniṣadam mahāstram śaram hy upāsāniṣitam samādhātā:

āyamyā tad-bhāvagatena cetasā lakṣyam tad evākṣaram, saumya, viddhi.

3. Taking as the bow the great weapon of the Upaniṣads, one should place in it the arrow sharpened by meditation. Drawing it with a mind engaged in the contemplation of that (Brahman), O beloved, know that Imperishable Brahman as the target.

samādhātā, v. samdhīyata. samdhānam kuryāt. Ś.

4. pranavo dhanuḥ, śaro hy ātmā, brahma tal lakṣyam ucyate, apramattena veddhavyam, śaravat tanmayo bhavet.

4. The syllable aum is the bow: one's self, indeed, is the arrow. Brahman is spoken of as the target of that. It is to be hit without making a mistake. Thus one becomes united with it as the arrow (becomes one with the target).

apramattena: without making a mistake, or becoming indifferent to other objects and developing a one-pointed mind, viśayāntara-vimukhena ekāgra-cittena. R.

tanmaya: united with it; becomes one with it, ekātmatva. Ś.

5. yasmin dyauḥ pṛthivī cāntarikṣam otam manah saha prāṇaiś ca sarvaiḥ, tam evaikam jānatha ātmānam, anyā vāco vimuñcatha, amṛtasyaiṣa setuḥ.

5. He in whom the sky, the earth and the interspace are woven as also the mind along with all the vital breaths, know him alone as the one self. Dismiss other utterances. This is the bridge to immortality.

anyā vācaḥ: other utterances, relating to lower knowledge or not-self. apara-vidyā-rūpaḥ. Ś. anātma-viśaya-vācaḥ. R.

In the beginning, the two worlds of heaven and earth were one. They came into separate being by the act of creation and what separates them is the river or sea of time and space. From earth we have to find our way to heaven by crossing the river of time. See Epinomis 984 E.

6. arā iva ratha-nābhau sarīhatā yatra nāḍyaḥ sa eṣo'ntaś carate bahudhā jāyamānaḥ, aum ity evaṁ dhyāyathātmanam, svasti vaḥ pārāya tamasaḥ parastāt.

6. Where the arteries of the body are brought together like the spokes in the centre of a wheel, within it (this self, moves about) becoming manifold. Meditate on aum as the self. May you be successful in crossing over to the farther shore of darkness.

pārāya. V. parāya.

tamasaḥ: darkness, the darkness of ignorance. avidyā-tamasaḥ. Ś.

7. yaḥ sarvajñaḥ sarva-vid yasyaiśa mahimā bhuvi divye brahma-pure hy eṣa vyomny ātmā pratiṣṭhitah.

7. He who is all-knowing, all-wise, whose is this greatness on the earth, in the divine city of Brahmā, in the ether (of the heart) is that self-established.

8. mano-mayaḥ prāṇa-sarīra-netā pratiṣṭhito' nne hṛdayaṁ sannidhāya tad vijñānena paripaśyanti dhīrāḥ ānanda-rūpam amṛtaṁ yad vibhātī.

8. He consists of mind and is the leader of life and body and is seated in food (i.e. the body) controlling the heart. The wise perceive clearly by the knowledge (of Brahman) the blissful immortal which shines forth.

anne: in food, anna-pariṇāme sarīre. R.

9. bhidate hṛdaya-granthiś chidyante sarva-saṁśayāḥ, kṣīyante cāsya karmāni tasmīn dṛṣṭe parāvare.

9. The knot of the heart is cut, all doubts are dispelled and his deeds terminate, when He is seen—the higher and the lower.

See Kaṭha VI. 15.

When he sees the Real which comprehends himself, he asserts the non-reality of all that is opposed to it. The evil in him through his past bad acts falls away. With the change in his nature all that is not his ceases to bind him.

THE SELF-LUMINOUS LIGHT OF THE WORLD

10. hiraṇmaye pare koṣe virajaṃ brahma niṣkalam tac chubhram jyotiṣāṃ jyotiḥ tad yad ātma-vido viduḥ.

10. In the highest golden sheath is Brahman without stain, without parts; Pure is it, the light of lights. That is what the knowers of self know.

11. na tatra sūryo bhāti, na candra-tāraṇam, nemā vidyuto bhānti, kuto'yam agniḥ, tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvaṃ, tasya bhāsā sarvaṃ, idaṃ vibhāti.

11. The sun shines not there, nor the moon and stars, these lightnings shine not, where then could this fire be? Every thing shines only after that shining light. His shining illumines all this world.

See Kaṭha V. 15; S.U. VI. 14; B.G. IX. 15, 6. his shining illumines all this world. The whole objective universe is illumined by Him for it cannot illumine itself. tasyaiva bhāsā sarvaṃ anyad anātma-jātaṃ prakāśayati, na tu tasya svataḥ prakāśana-sāmarthyam. Ś.

In the Udāna I. 10, the Buddha describes nirvāṇa in similar terms:

yattha āpo ca paṭhavī tejo vāyo na gādhati na tattha sukkā jotanti, ādicco nappakāśati; na tattha candimā bhāti, tamo tattha na vijjati.

Pali Text Society edition (1885), p. 9.

12. brahmaivedaṃ amṛtaṃ purastād brahma, paścād brahma, dakṣiṇataś cottareṇa adhaścordhvaṃ ca prasṛtaṃ brahmaivedaṃ viśvaṃ idaṃ varīṣṭhaṃ.

MUṆḌAKA 3

Section 1

RECOGNITION OF THE LORD AS COMPASSION

1. dvā suparṇā sayujā sakhyā samānam vṛkṣam pariśasvajāte tayor anyah pippalam svādv atty anaśnann anyo' bhicākaśīti.

1. Two birds, companions (who are) always united, cling to the self-same tree. Of these two, the one eats the sweet fruit and the other looks on without eating.

See R.V. I. 164. 20; Ś.U. IV. 6; Kāṭha I. 3. 1.

sayujā: always united. sarvadā yuktau. Ś.

pippalam: the sweet fruit. It eats or experiences the pleasant or painful fruits of its past deeds. karma-niṣpannam sukha-duḥkha-lakṣaṇam phalam. Ś.

svādv atti: eats. bhakṣayati upabhuṅkte avivekataḥ. Ś. Cp. 'Agañña Suttanta where eating is said to be the cause of degradation to cruder forms of existence.

anaśnan: without eating. Īśvara permits the processes of the world as the witness and thus impels their activities. paśyaty eva kevalam, darśana-mātreṇa hi tasya preraiyitṛtvaṁ rājavat. Ś.

2. *samāne vṛkṣe puruṣo nimagno'nīśayā śocati muhyamānaḥ, juṣṭam yadā paśyaty anyam īśam asya mahimānam iti,
vīta-śokaḥ.*

2. On the self-same tree, a person immersed (in the sorrows of the world) is deluded and grieves on account of his helplessness. When he sees the other, the Lord who is worshipped and his greatness, he becomes freed from sorrow.

See S.U. IV. 7.

3. yadā paśyah paśyate rukma-varṇam kartāram īśam puruṣam brahma-yonim tadā vidvān puṇya-pāpe vidhūya nirañjanaḥ paramam sāmyam upaiti.

3. When a seer sees the creator of golden hue, the Lord, the Person, the source of Brahmā, then being a knower, shaking off good and evil and free from stain, he attains supreme equality with the lord.

See Maitrī VI. 18; K.U. I. 4.

brahma-yoni: the source of Brahmā. Brahmā, the world-soul has Īśvara for his home and birth-place.

Eternal life is said to consist in attaining an absolute likeness to God and enjoying a life of personal immortality.

4. prāṇo hy eṣa yah sarva-bhūtair vibhāti vijānan vidvān bhavate nātivādī ātma-kriḍa ātma-ratiḥ kriyāvān eṣa brahma-vidān varīṣṭhaḥ.

4. Truly it is life that shines forth in all beings. Knowing him, the wise man does not talk of anything else. Sporting in the self, delighting in the self, performing works, such a one is the greatest of the knowers of Brahman.

kriyāvān: performing works. Ś, feeling the incompatibility of performing works after attaining knowledge of Brahman, suggests that it may mean only the previous performance of meditation and other acts conducive to a knowledge of Brahman. The verse, however, tells us that he who knows the ātman is also a performer of works. The soul frees itself from all attachments, enters into the stillness of the self, becomes composed and yet breaks forth into temporal works without compulsion, without seeking for reward, without selfish purpose. Its life is a free outpouring of a liberated consciousness and it is incapable of resting even as the living God Himself does not rest. Deep unmoved repose at the centre and perpetual creativity are his features.

In the Tripurā-rahasya the prince who has become liberated even in the present life (jīvan-mukta) performs his royal duties like an actor on the stage, naṭavad rāga-maṇḍale, without being motivated by any selfish passions. He is not infected by what he does on the stage. He remains himself untroubled by the thought 'Thus I did right' or 'thus I did wrong.' See B.U. IV. 4. 22. He will do his duty impartially, regardless of gain and loss. B.G. tells us that our concern is with action only, not with the result. 'Battles are lost in the same spirit in which they are won.' The duty of a soldier is to fight and not to hate. The well-known story of Ali points out how we should not act in passion. Ali, engaged in single combat, was on the point of victory, but when his opponent spat in his face, he withdrew because he would not fight in anger.

5. satyena labhyas tapasā hy eṣa ātmā samyag-jñānena brahmacaryeṇa nityam.

antah-śarīre jyotir-mayo hi śubhro yam paśyanti yatayaḥ kṣīṇadoṣāḥ.

5. This self within the body, of the nature of light and pure, is attainable by truth, by austerity, by right knowledge, by the constant (practice) of chastity. Him, the ascetics with their imperfections done away, behold.

tapasā. Ś quotes a line to the effect that tapas refers to the focusing of the mind and the senses on one object, i.e. the eternal Self. manasaścendryāṇām ca aikāgryam paramam tapaḥ.

6. satyam eva jayate nāṇṛtam, satyena panthā vitato deva-yānaḥ yenākramanty ṛṣayo hy āpta-kāmā yatra tat satyasya paramam nidhānam.

6. Truth alone conquers, not untruth. By truth is laid out the path leading to the gods by which the sages who have their desires fulfilled travel to where is that supreme abode of truth.

satyam eva jayate: truth alone conquers. This is the motto inscribed on the seal of the Indian nation.

jayate v. jayati.

7. brhac ca tad divyam acintya-rūpaṁ sūkṣmāc ca tat sūkṣma-taraṁ vibhāti.

dūrāt sudūre tad ihāntike ca paśyatsv ihaiva nihitam guhāyām.

7. Vast, divine, of unthinkable form, subtler than the subtle. It shines forth, farther than the far, yet here near at hand, set down in the secret place (of the heart) (as such) even here it is seen by the intelligent.

8. na cakṣuṣā gṛhyate nāpi vācā nānyair devaiḥ tapasā karmanā vā

jñāna-prasādena viśuddha-sattvas tatas tu tam paśyate niṣkalaṁ dhyāyamānaḥ.

8. He is not grasped by the eye nor even by speech nor by other sense-organs, nor by austerity nor by work, but when one's (intellectual) nature is purified by the light of knowledge then alone he, by meditation, sees Him who is without parts.

9. eṣo'nur ātmā cetasā veditavyo yasmin prānaḥ pañcadhā saṁviveśa,

prānaiś cittam sarvaṁ otam prajānām, yasmin viśuddhe vibhavaty eṣa ātmā.

9. The subtle self is to be known by thought in which the senses in five different forms have centred. The whole of men's thought is pervaded by the senses. When it (thought) is purified, the self shines forth.

10. yam yaṁ lokam manasā saṁvibhāti viśuddha-sattvaḥ kāmāyate yāms ca kāmān

taṁ taṁ lokam jāyate tāms ca kāmāns tasmād ātma-jñān hy arcayed bhūti-kāmaḥ.

10. Whatever world a man of purified nature thinks of in his mind and whatever desires he desires, all these worlds and all these desires he attains. Therefore, let him who desires prosperity worship the knower of the self.

See B.U. I. 4. 15.

The knower of the self has all his desires fulfilled and can obtain any world he may seek.

MUNDAKA 3

Section 2

DESIRE THE CAUSE OF RE-BIRTH

1. sa vedaitat paramam brahma dhāma yatra viśvam nihitam bhāti subhram upāsate puruṣam ye hy akāmās te śukram etad ativartanti dhīrāḥ.

1. He knows that supreme abode of Brahman, wherein founded, the world shines brightly. The wise men, who, free from desires, worship the Person, pass beyond the seed (of rebirth).

śukram: the seed, the material cause of embodied existence, urbiṣam śariropādāna-kāraṇam. Ś.

2. kāmān yaḥ kāmāyate manyamānaḥ sa kāmabhir jāyate tatra tatra paryāpta-kāmasya kṛtātmanas tu ihaiva sarve pravīṇyanti kāmāḥ.

2. He who entertains desires, thinking of them, is born (again) here and there on account of his desires. But of him who has his desire fully satisfied, who is a perfected soul, all his desires vanish even here (on earth).

3. nāyam ātmā pravacanena labhyo na medhayā, na bahunā śruteṇa: yam evaiṣa vṛṇute tena labhyas tasyaiṣa ātmā vivṛṇute tanūm svām.

3. This self cannot be attained by instruction nor by intellectual power nor even through much hearing. He is to be attained by the one whom (the self) chooses. To such a one the self reveals his own nature.

See Kaṭha I. 2. 23.

4. nāyam ātmā bala-hīnena labhyo na ca pramādāt tapaso vāpy alingāt etair upāyair yataste yas tu vidvāms tasyaiṣa ātmā viśate brahma-dhāma.

4. This self cannot be attained by one without strength nor through heedlessness nor through austerity without an aim. But he who strives by these means, if he is a knower, this self of his enters the abode of Brahman.

bala-hīnena: by one without strength, which is said to be derived from concentration on the self. ātma-niṣṭhā-janita-vīrya-hīnena. Ś. Strength or energy is at the root of all great achievements.

alingāt: without an aim. Ś equates linga with saṁnyāsa. lingam saṁnyāsaḥ, etair upāyaiḥ balāpramāda-saṁnyāsajñānaiḥ. Ś.

linga: outward badges of an ascetic, his robes, shaven head, etc.

Outward signs are not enough for salvation. We require inward realisation. alinga: saṁnyāsa. Cp. M.B. XII. 11898-9.

kāṣāya-dhāraṇam maunḍyam trivṛṣṭabdhām kamaṇḍaluḥ nirmokṣāyeha duḥkhasya līga-mātram nirarthakam.

Cp. What harm has your hair done? Perform the tonsure on your sins. What earthly good is a monk's robe to a mind besmirched?

keśaḥ kim aparādhyanti kleśānām muṇḍanam kuru

THE NATURE OF LIBERATION

5. samprāpyainam ṛṣayo jñāna-tṛptāḥ kṛtātmāno vīta-rāgāḥ praśāntāḥ te sarvagam sarvataḥ prāpya dhīrā yuktātmānas sarvam evāviśanti.

5. Having attained Him, the seers (who are) satisfied with their knowledge (who are) perfected souls, free from passion, tranquil, having attained the omnipresent (self) on all sides, those wise, with concentrated minds, enter into the All itself.

They have found the self in all and therefore enter into everything.

6. vedānta-vijñāna-suniṣcitārthāḥ saṁnyāsa-yogād yatayaḥ śud-
dhasattvāḥ

te brahma-lokeṣu parāntakāle parāmṛtāḥ parimucyanti sarve.

6. The ascetics who have ascertained well the meaning of the Vedānta knowledge, who have purified their natures through the path of renunciation, they (dwelling) in the worlds of Brahmā, at the end of time, being one with the immortal, are all liberated.

vedānta-vijñāna: the knowledge of the Vedānta. Cp. Taittirīya Āraṇyaka X. 12. 3; Ś.U. VI. 22.

parāntakāle: at the end of time. saṁsārāvasāne deha-parityāga-kālah. Ś. parāmṛtāḥ: being one with the highest immortal. param amṛtam amarāṇa-dharmakam brahmātma-bhūtam eṣāṁ te parāmṛtāḥ. Ś.

Companionship with the highest God Brahmā is the end and the soul will be liberated at the time of the great end along with Brahmā. Until then they can assume any form at their will (svecchā-parikalpita).

In his commentary on this verse, Ś quotes:—

śakunīnām ivākāśe jale vāricarasya ca padam yathā na dṛśyeta tathā jñānavatām gatiḥ.

7. gatāḥ kalāḥ pañcadaśa pratiṣṭhā devāś ca sarve prati-devatāsu karmāṇi vijñānamayaś ca ātmā parēvyaye sarva ekī-bhavantī.

7. Gone are the fifteen parts to their (respective) supports (the elements) and all the gods (the sense organs) into their corresponding deities. One's deeds and the self, consisting of understanding, all become one in the Supreme Immutable Being.

ekī-bhavantī: become one. Their separateness is dissolved. aviśeṣatām gacchantī. Ś. See Praśna VI. 4.

8. yathā nadyas syandamānās samudre astam gacchanti nāma-rūpe vihāya, tathā vidvān nāma-rūpād vimuktaḥ parāt-param puruṣam upaiti divyam.

8. Just as the flowing rivers disappear in the ocean casting off name and shape, even so the knower, freed from name and shape, attains to the divine person, higher than the high.

See Praśna VI. 5.

parāt-param: higher than the high, the unmanifested. The souls attain universality of spirit. a-viśeṣātma-bhāvam. Ś. Eckhart says, 'And here one cannot speak about the soul any more, for she has lost her name yonder in the oneness of divine essence. There she is no more called soul; she is called immeasurable being.' R argues that they attain to equality of nature and not identity of being. parama-sāmya-mātram, sādṛyśam evoktām na tu tad-bhāvaḥ.

9. sa yo ha vai tat paramam brahma veda brahmaiva bhavati, nāsyābrahma-vit kule bhavati, tarati śokaṃ tarati pāpmānaṃ guhā-granthibhyo vimukto'- mṛto bhavati.

9. He, verily, who knows the Supreme Brahman becomes Brahman himself. In his family, no one who does not know Brahman, will be born. He crosses over sorrow. He crosses over sins. Liberated from the knots of the secret place (of the heart), he becomes immortal.

10. tad etat ṛcābhyuktam:

teṣāṃ evaitāṃ brahma-vidyāṃ vadeta śirovratam vidhivad yais tu cīrṇam.

10. This very (doctrine) is declared in the verse. Those who perform the rites, who are learned in scriptures, who are well-established in Brahman, who offer of themselves oblations to the sole seer (a form of fire) with faith, to them alone one may declare this knowledge of Brahman (to them alone), by whom the rite (of carrying fire) on the head has been performed, according to rule.

11. *tad etat satyam ṛṣir āṅgirāḥ purovāca, naitad a-cīrṇa-vrato'-

namaḥ parama-ṛṣibhyo namaḥ parama-ṛṣibhyah.

11. This is the truth. The seer Āṅgiras declared it before. Let none who has not performed the rite read this. Salutation to the great seers. Salutation to the great seers.

MĀṆḌŪKYA UPANIṢAD

The Māṇḍūkya Upaniṣad belongs to the Atharva Veda and contains twelve verses. It is an exposition of the principle of aum as consisting of three elements, a, u, m, which refer to the three states of waking, dream and dreamless sleep. The Supreme Self is manifested in the universe in its gross, subtle and causal aspects. Answering to the four states of consciousness, wakefulness, dream, dreamless sleep, transcendental consciousness¹ there are aspects of the Godhead, the last alone being all-inclusive and ultimately real. The Absolute of mystic consciousness is the reality of the God of religion. The Upaniṣad by itself, it is said, is enough to lead one to liberation.²

Gauḍapāda, Śaṅkara's teacher's teacher wrote his famous Kārikā on the Upaniṣad, which is the first systematic exposition of Advaita Vedānta which has come down to us. Śaṅkara has commented on both the Upaniṣad and the Kārikā.

² māṇḍūkyam ekam evātam mumukṣūṇāṃ vimuktaye. Muktikā U. I. 27.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF AUM

1. aum ity etad akṣaram idam sarvam, tasyopavyākhyānam, bhūtam bhavad bhaviṣyad iti sarvam aumkāra eva, yac cānyat trikālātītam tad apy aumkāra eva.

1. Aum, this syllable is all this. An explanation of that (is the following). All that is the past, the present and the future, all this is only the syllable aum. And whatever else there is beyond the threefold time, that too is only the syllable aum.

The syllable aum, which is the symbol of Brahman, stands for the manifested world, the past, the present and the future, as well as the unmanifested Absolute.

2. sarvam hy etad brahma, ayam ātmā brahma, so'yam ātmā catus-pāt.

2. All this is, verily, Brahman. This self is Brahman. This same self has four quarters.

four quarters: which are viśva, the waking state, taijasa, the dream state, prājña, the state of dreamless sleep and turiya which is the state of spiritual consciousness. 'The knowledge of the fourth is attained by merging the (previous) three such as viśva, etc., in the order of the previous one in the succeeding one.' trayānām viśvādīnām pūrva-pūrva-pravilāpanena turīyasya pratipattiḥ. Ś.

3. jāgarita sthāno bahiṣ-prajñāḥ saptaṅga ekonaviṃśati-mukhaḥ sthūla-bhug vaiśvānaraḥ prathamah pādah.

3. The first quarter is Vaiśvānara, whose sphere (of activity) is the waking state, who cognises external objects, who has seven limbs and nineteen mouths and who enjoys (experiences) gross (material) objects.

who has seven limbs: refers to the list mentioned in C.U. V. 18. 2.

nineteen mouths are the five organs of sense (hearing, touch, sight, taste and smell), the five organs of action (speech, handling, locomotion, generation and excretion), the five vital breaths, the mind (manas), and the intellect (buddhi), the self-sense (aham-kāra) and thought (citta).

Vaiśvānara: He is called Vaiśvānara because he leads all creatures of the universe in diverse ways to the enjoyment of various objects, or because he comprises all beings. Ś. viśveṣām narāṇām anekadhā nayanād vaiśvānaraḥ; yad vā viśvaś cāsau naraś ceti viśvānaraḥ; viśvānara eva vaiśvānaraḥ.

The waking state is the normal condition of the natural man, who without reflection accepts the universe as he finds it. The same physical universe bound by uniform laws presents itself to all such men.

4. svapna-sthāno'ntah-prajñah saptāṅga ekonavimsati-mukhaḥ pravivikta-bhuk taijasa dvitīyah pādah.

4. The second quarter is taijasa, whose sphere (of activity) is the dream state, who cognises internal objects, who has seven limbs and nineteen mouths, and who enjoys (experiences) the subtle objects.

The taijasa is conscious of the internal, i.e. mental states. While the viśva, which is the subject of the waking state, cognises material objects in the waking experience, the taijasa experiences mental states dependent on the predispositions left by the waking experiences. In this state the soul fashions its own world in the imagining of the dreams. 'The spirit serves as light for itself.' B.U. IV. 3. 9. Here also the basis of duality operates, the one that knows and the object that is known. Though from the standpoint of the dream, the dream objects are experienced as external, they are said to be subtle because they are different from the objects of the waking state which are external.

The Upaniṣad makes a clear distinction between waking and dream experiences.

5. yatra supto na kaṁ cana kāmam kāmāyate na kaṁ cana svapnam paśyati tat suṣṭam, suṣṭa-sthāna ekī-bhūtaḥ prajñā-na-ghana evānanda-mayo hy ānanda-bhuk ceto-mukhaḥ prajñas trītyah pādah.

5. Where one, being fast asleep, does not desire any desire whatsoever and does not see any dream whatsoever, that is deep sleep. The third quarter is prajñā, whose sphere (of activity) is the state of deep sleep, who has become one, who is verily, a mass of cognition, who is full of bliss and who enjoys (experiences) bliss, whose face is thought.

While the first condition is the waking life of outward-moving consciousness, and the second is the dream life of inward-moving consciousness, the third is the state of deep sleep where the consciousness enjoys peace and has no perception of either external or internal objects. Cp. the Psalmist who says: 'God gives truth to his beloved in sleep' (CXXVII. 2). The transitory character of sleep shows that it is not the ultimate state. The name given to this state is prajñā. It is a state of knowledge, though the external and internal states are held in abeyance. It is the conceptual self, while the two previous selves are the imaginative and the perceptual ones. ekī-bhūtaḥ: the manifold object series, external and internal, lapses even 'as at night, owing to the indiscrimination produced by darkness, all percepts become a mass of darkness, as it were, so also in the state of deep sleep, all (objects) of consciousness, verily become a mass (of consciousness).' Ś. In deep sleep no desire, no thought is left, all impressions have become one; only knowledge and bliss remain.

The apparent absence of duality has led to the view that it is the final state of union with Brahman. See B.U. IV. 3; C.U. VIII. II.1.

ceto-mukhaḥ: because it is the doorway to the cognition of the two other states of consciousness known as dream and waking.

prājñāḥ: It is called prājñā consciousness or knower as it is not aware of any variety as in the two other states.

ānanda-mayah: full of bliss.

ānanda-bhuk: who enjoys bliss. It is not bliss but the enjoyer of bliss.

ānanda-prāyaḥ nānanda eva. Ś.

In the waking state we are bound by the fetters of sense-perception and desire; in the dream state we have a greater freedom as the self makes a world of its own, out of the materials of the waking world. Though, in the dream state, we take the dream images of delight and oppression as real, we produce them out of ourselves. In dreamless sleep the self is liberated from the empirical world, indeed from the person as a self-contained unit.

6. eṣa sarveśvaraḥ, eṣa sarvajñaḥ, eṣo'ntāryami, eṣa yoniḥ sarvasya prabhavāpyayau hi bhūtānām.

6. This is the lord of all, this is the knower of all, this is the inner controller; this is the source of all; this is the beginning and the end of beings.

Gauḍapāda says that 'it is the one alone who is known in the three states,' eka eva tridhā smṛtaḥ.

Ś urges that 'that which is designated as prājñā (when it is viewed as the cause of the world) will be described as turīya separately when it is not viewed as the cause, and when it is free from all phenomenal relationship, i.e. in its absolute real aspect.' tam abijāvasthaṁ tasyaiva prājñā-śabda-vācyasya turīyatvena dehādi-sambandha-jāgradādi-rahitām pāramārihikīm prthag vakṣyati. Ś on Gauḍapāda's Kārikā I. 2.

It is the first time in the history of thought that the distinction between Absolute and God, Brahman and Īśvara, turīya and prājñā is elaborated. Cp. with this the Christian view of the Son as 'the image of the invisible God, the first born of all creation; for in him all things were created, in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible . . . all things were created through him and for him. He is before all things and in him all things hold together.' Colossians I. 15. The son is the Demiurge, the heavenly architect, not the God but the image of the God. For Philo 'the Sun is itself unaffected and undiminished by its radiance, yet all the earth is dependent on it; so God, although in His being He is completely self-contained and self-sufficient, shoots forth a great stream of radiation, immaterial, yet on that account all the more real. This stream is God in extension, God in relation, the Son of God, not God.' By Light, Light, p. 243, Goudenough's E.T.

7. nāntah-prajñam, na bahiṣ prajñam, nobhayatah-prajñam, na prajñāna-ghanam, na prajñam, nāprajñam, adṛṣtam, avyavahāryam, agrāhyam, alakṣaṇam, acintyam, avyapadeśyam, ekātma-pratyaya-sāram, prapañcopaśamam, śāntam, śivam, advaitam, caturtham manyante, sa ātmā; sa vijñeyah.

7. (Turīya is) not that which cognises the internal (objects), not that which cognises the external (objects), not what cognises both of them, not a mass of cognition, not cognitive, not non-cognitive. (It is) unseen, incapable of being spoken of, ungraspable, without any distinctive marks, unthinkable, unnameable, the essence of the knowledge of the one self, that into which the world is resolved, the peaceful, the benign, the non-dual, such, they think, is the fourth quarter. He is the self; He is to be known.

Here we get to a reality which is beyond the distinction of subject and object and yet it is above and not below this distinction. It is super-theism and not atheism or anti-theism. We cannot use here terms like all-knowing, all-powerful. Brahman cannot be treated as having objects of knowledge or powers. It is pure being. In many passages, the Upaniṣads make out that Brahman is pure being beyond all word and thought. He becomes Īśvara or personal God with the quality of prajñā or pure wisdom. He is all-knowing, the lord of the principle of mūla-prakṛti or the unmanifested, the inner guide of all souls. From him proceeds Hiranya-garbha who, as Demiurge, fashions the world. From the last develops Virāṭ or the totality of all existents. The last two are sometimes mixed up.

Gauḍapāda says that this Brahman is 'birthless, free from sleep and dream, without name and form, ever effulgent, all thought; no form is necessary for it.'

ajam, anidram, asvapnam, anāmakam, arūpakam sakṛd vibhātam sarvajñam nopacārah katham cana. III. 36.

Though objective consciousness is absent in both the prājñā and turīya consciousness, the seed of it is present in the state of deep sleep while it is absent in the transcendent consciousness. Empirical consciousness is present though in an unmanifested condition in the state of deep sleep while the transcendent state is the non-empirical beyond the three states and free from their interruptions and alternations. It is present, even when we are immersed in the activities of the waking world or lost in the unconsciousness of sleep. Man's highest good consists in entering into this, the self, making it the centre of one's life, instead of dwelling on the surface.

Deep sleep terminates and the self returns to the dream and the waking states. In turiya there is a permanent union with Brahman. The metaphysical reality is cognised in turiya, if such an expression can be used for the transcendent state.

Plotinus portrays a gradual ascent from the world-soul to the spirit (nous) and finally from spirit to the One. The goal of spiritual ascent is a mystical ecstatic union with the Absolute. He writes: 'Let us suppose the same rest in the body that surrounds the soul, that its movement is stilled, and that the entire surroundings are also at rest, the earth, the sea, the heaven itself above the other elements.' In words that are echoes of Plotinus, Augustine in his Confessions describes the ascent from the changeable apprehensions and objects of sense through the intelligible world of conceptual truth to the Absolute Truth. 'If the tumult of the flesh were hushed, hushed the images of earth, and the waters and air, hushed also the poles of heaven' man turns his spiritual vision godward to receive the light, then he attains the absolute object of mystical union 'the light unchangeable above the mind' with the flash of one trembling glance.

8. so'yam ātmādhyakṣaram aumkāro'dhimātram pādā mātṛā mātṛās ca pādā akāra ukāra makāra iti.

8. This is the self, which is of the nature of the syllable aum, in regard to its elements. The quarters are the elements, the elements are the quarters, namely the letter, a, the letter u and the letter m.

This is the self: it is the deepest essence of the soul, the image of Godhead.

The world and the world-soul are both producers and produced. The Supreme God is only the producer; Brahman is above the distinction of producer and produced. Cp. Gaudapāda:

kārya-kāraṇa-baddhau tāv-īsyete viśva-taijasau prājñāḥ kāraṇa-baddhas tu dvau tau turye na sidhyataḥ.

I. II.

Viśva and taijasa are conditioned by cause and effect. But prājñā is conditioned by cause alone. These two (cause and effect) do not exist in turiya. Primal being unfolds itself as a subject-object relation. The unmeasured and undefined becomes the measured and the defined, a universe of logical discourse. Prājñā or wisdom and the element 'm' both indicate that the function of measuring is that of logical mind. All distinctions are within the Supreme Brahman. God is the logical being, the defined reality. It is not we that define Brahman but Brahman defines itself. The supreme logical idea is God who is the true, the good and the beautiful. Defined reality is not divided reality. The real in itself is Brahman; the real as logically defined is Īśvara who rests in Brahman who does not cease to be Brahman in becoming Īśvara.

9. jāgarita-ssthāno vaiśvānaro'kāraḥ prathamā mātrā'pter ādimattvād vā'pnoti ha vai sarvān kāmān ādīś ca bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

9. Vaiśvānara, whose sphere (of activity) is the waking state, is the letter ā, the first element, either from the root ap to obtain or from being the first. He who knows this, obtains, verily, all desires, also, he becomes first.

Vaiśvānara is he who has the universe for his body.

10. svapna-ssthānas taijasa ukāro dvitīyā mātrotkarṣāt ubhayadvotkarṣati ha vai jñāna-santatiṁ samānaś ca bhavati, nāsyābrahma-vit-kule bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

10. Taijasa, whose sphere (of activity) is the dream state, is the letter u, the second element, from exaltation or intermediateness. He who knows this exalts, verily, the continuity of knowledge and he becomes equal; in his family is born no one who does not know Brahman.

11. suṣupta-ssthānaḥ prājño makāras tṛtīyā mātrā miter apīter vā minoti ha vā idaṁ sarvaṁ apītiś ca bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

11. Prājña, whose sphere (of activity) is the state of deep sleep is the letter m, the third element, either from the root mi, to measure or because of merging. He who knows this measures (knows) all this and merges also (all this in himself).

In deep sleep, all waking and dream experiences disappear. Īśvara is the cause of the universe as well as that of its dissolution. As the name prājña implies, the condition is one of intellection. In it we have a thinker and a thought. If this difference did not exist, it would be a silent oneness.

This verse affirms what Parmenides, Plato and Hegel assumed that the opposition of being and not-being is the original duality from the ontological standpoint. Being is a priori to non-being. The negation presupposes what it negates. Though being is a priori to non-being, being itself cannot be conceived without an opposite. Being could never be being without being opposed to not-being. But there is something which is a priori to the opposition of being and non-being and that is the unity which transcends both. Thought cannot grasp and determine this spirit beyond the opposition. There is no concept or substance that could be thought of as being the unity without any opposition whatsoever. We cannot even call it unity for it suggests the opposite category of diversity. But we are in the sphere of oppositions, dualities and yet the positive side of the opposition brings out the content of the spirit. We have to seek the ultimate truth, goodness and beauty in its direction.

Plotinus says, 'Before the two there is the one and the unit must precede the Dyad: coming later than the one, the Dyad has the One as the standard of its differentiation, that without which it could not be the separate differentiated thing it is.' Enneads V. 1. 5.

'As long as we have duality, we must go still higher until we reach what transcends the Dyad.' Ibid. III. 8. 8.

12. amātraś caturtho'vyavahāryah prapañcopaśamaḥ śivo'dvaita evam aumkāra ātmaiva, sarviśaty ātmanā'tmānam ya evam veda.

12. The fourth is that which has no elements, which cannot be spoken of, into which the world is resolved, benign, non-dual. Thus the syllable aum is the very self. He who knows it thus enters the self with his self.

In turiya, the mind is not simply withdrawn from the objects but becomes one with Brahman who is free from fear, who is all-round illumination, according to Gauḍapāda.

līyate hi susupte tan nigrhītam na līyate tad eva nirbhayam brahma jñānālokaṁ samantataḥ. III. 35.

In both deep sleep and transcendental consciousness there is no consciousness of objects but this objective consciousness is present in an unmanifested 'seed' form in deep sleep while it is completely transcended in the turiya consciousness. Gauḍapāda says: The non-cognition of duality is common to both prājñā and turiya but prājñā is associated with the seed (consciousness) in sleep while this does not exist in turiya.

dvaitasyāgrahanam tulyam ubhayoḥ prājñā-turyayoḥ bīja-nidrā-yutaḥ prājñāḥ sā ca turye na vidyate.

Ś opens his commentary on the B.G., with the verse that 'Nārāyaṇa is beyond the unmanifested principle and from this unmanifested arises the mundane egg or Hiranya-garbha.' nārāyaṇaḥ paro'vyaktāḍ aṇḍam avyakta-sambhavam. There is first the pure Brahman beyond subject and object and then Nārāyaṇa or God confronted by the object but superior to it and then the world-soul.

Lao Tze looks upon the Tao as the ultimate Reality which can be defined only in negative terms as 'colourless,' 'soundless,' 'non-material.' His conception of creation was that out of Tao, the eternal ultimate principle came the one, the great monad or the material cause of the universe. The one produced the two primary essences, the Yang and the Yin, positive and negative, male and female, light and shade, which gave birth to the three powers of nature, heaven, earth and man, which in their combination produced all creatures.

Lao Tze's follower Chuang-tze regarded T'ien or God as the first great cause.

Plotinus says: 'Standing transcendent above all things that follow It, existing in Itself, not mixing or to be mixed with any emanation from Itself, veritably the one, not merely possessing Oneness as an attribute of Its essence—for that would be a false oneness—a Principle overpassing all reasoning, all knowing—a principle standing over all Essence and Existence . . . only when it is simplex and First, apart from all, can it be perfectly self-sufficing.' Enneads, V. 4. 1.

This soundless, partless, supreme Reality is the very self. In the state of deep sleep, it becomes the subject confronting the object which is yet unmanifested. We infer the presence of the object, as its developments take place on getting out of sleep. In the dream state, the object is manifested in the form of mental states; in the waking state, the object is manifested in material states. The subject-object duality is present in different forms in the states of waking, dream and dreamless sleep. It is transcended altogether in the state of turiya, while we have a pure consciousness of Self or Absolute.

No object can be set in opposition to the Spirit and so the question of validity or otherwise does not arise. It is self-validating, self-authenticating experience. The question of validity arises when the object appears as alien and impenetrable but in spiritual experience there is no alien object. There is knowledge of identity, by possession, by the absorption of the object at the deepest levels. In the experience of turiya, there is neither subject nor object; neither the perception nor the idea of God. It does not reflect or explain any other reality than itself. It is reality, spirit in its inner life. Those who know the truth become the truth. It is not a state in which objects are extrinsically opposed to one another. It is the immersion of the self in reality, its participation in primary being. It is illumined life. It is pure consciousness without any trace of duality; it is unfailing light. turiyaḥ sarva-dṛk sadā: Kārikā I. 12. When the real is known there is no world of duality, jñāte dvaitam na vidyate. Kārikā I. 18.

Cp. Aṣṭāvakra Gītā:

*jñātā jñānam tathā jñeyam tṛtīyam nāsti vāstavam.
ajñānād bhāti yatredam so'ham asmi nirāñjanah.*

When analogically we transfer this idea from the microcosm to the macrocosm, from the individual to the world, since there is a co-relation between intelligibility and being, we have answering to the waking state, Virāt, to the dream state, Hiranya-garbha, to the dreamless sleep state, Īśvara. All these three are on the plane of duality, Īśvara has facing him mūla-prakṛti, though in an unmanifested (avyākṛta) condition, as the self has the object in an unmanifested condition in the state of dreamless sleep.

Plotinus who adopts a similar view puts the case thus: 'If, then, the Divine thought-forms (The Ideas) are many, there must of necessity be something common to all and something peculiar to each to differentiate them: this particularity or specific difference is the individual shape; but if there is shape there must be something that has taken the shape . . . that is to say there is a foundation, substratum, a matter. Further, if there is an Intellectual kosmos of which our kosmos is an image, and if ours is compound and includes matter, there must be a matter in the Intellectual kosmos as well.' Enneads II. 4. 4.

The interaction of the universal subject and object develops the rest of the universe. Hiranya-garbha is the sūtrātman and plays with ideas, mental states as tañjasa does in the dream world. In Rg Veda, it is said that Hiranya-garbha arose in the beginning, the lord of all created beings. X. 121. 1. hiranya-garbhas sam-avartata agre bhūtasya jātaḥ paṭir eka āsīl. This whole world is in him in an embryo form. hiranye brahmāṇḍa-rūpe garbha-rūpeṇāvasthitāḥ prajā-patir hiranya garbhāḥ. Vidyāranya. When these are projected into space and time, we have Virāt. This answers to the waking state, which is Vaiśvānara's sphere of activity.

The waking and the dream states answer to the exteriorised existence and interiorised life of the world-spirit. When the world-spirit externalises its attention, we have the manifestation of the cosmos. When it turns its attention inward, the cosmos retreats into latency. When the world-spirit withdraws altogether into undisturbed stillness, the object, though present, becomes a mere abstraction. When even that ceases, Īśvara is Brahman.

Aum thus represents both the unmanifested Absolute and the personal Īśvara. Gauḍapāda writes: 'The sacred syllable aum is verily the lower Brahman and it is also said to be the higher Brahman. Aum is without beginning, unique, without anything external to it, unrelated to any effect and imperishable.'

praṇavo hy āparam brahma, praṇavaś ca paraḥ smṛtaḥ āpūrvō nantaro bāhvo nāparaḥ praṇavo'vyayaḥ. (26).

If we worship Aum as Īśvara, we pass beyond grief: 'Know Aum to be Īśvara, ever present in the hearts of all. The wise man, realising aum as all-pervading, does not grieve.'

praṇavam hīśvaram vidyāt sarvasya hr̥di samsthitam sarva-vyāpinam aumkāram matvā dhīro na śocati. (28).

While Īśvara, the personal God, is the lord of the world of manifestation, of becoming, the Supreme Brahman is beyond all becoming in pure being. 'One who has known Aum which is (at the same time) devoid of elements and of infinite elements, in which all duality is resolved, the benign, he is the (real) sage and none other.'

amātro nanta-mātraś ca dvaitasyopāśamah śivah auṃkāro vidito yena sa munir netaro janah. (29).

In this Upaniṣad we find the fundamental approach to the attainment of reality by the road of introversion and ascent from the sensible and changing, through the mind which dreams, through the soul which thinks, to the divine within but above the soul. The truth of our intellectual knowledge presupposes a light, the Light of the Real above logical truth, the Light which is not itself but that by which it has been created and by whose illumination it shines.

In the Apocryphal Wisdom of Solomon, the immanent reason is described thus:

'For she is a breath of the power of God,

And a clear effluence of the glory of the Almighty.' VII. 25.

Wisdom becomes a personality (XVIII. 14-16) akin to the word in the Prologue of the Fourth Gospel. Though Wisdom is a potency outside God it is yet wholly in God. Philo makes a sharp distinction between God in Himself and God revealed, between God who is pure being, unknowable, outside the material universe and God who is immanent in man and the universe, who is all-penetrating, all-filling. The gap between the Infinite God and the finite man was bridged in the Old Testament by God's angels who were regarded as emanations of the divine, offshoots of deity, parts of his very being. Philo held that the universe was filled with divine potencies. While in one sense these are attributes and self-revelations of God, in another sense they are personal beings, incorporeal souls who mediate between God and men, who 'report the injunctions of the father to his children and the necessities of the children to the father.' De Somniis I. 22. The unity of all these potencies is constituted by the Logos. Heaven and earth subsisted in the Logos before their material creation. The potencies which are the creators of matter emanate from the Logos. God who is the ultimate creator never works directly but through the Logos who again works through the potencies called logoi. Prājña, wisdom, Logos, Intellectual Principle, have a family likeness.

Plotinus has the transcendent triad of the Absolute One, the Intellectual Principle or God and the World-soul. 'The one is not a Being but the source of Being which is its first offspring. The One is perfect, that is it has nothing, seeks nothing, needs nothing, but, as we may say, it overflows and this overflowing is creative; the engendered entity looks towards the One and becomes the Intellectual Principle; resting within itself, this offspring of the One is Being.' Enneads V. 2. 1. This Intellectual Principle Nous is the image of the One. It is engendered because the One in its self-quest has vision. This seeing is Nous. The third is the soul, the author of all living things. It made the sun the moon the stars and the whole visible world. It is the offspring of the Divine intellect. It is, in Plotinus, of a twofold nature. There is an inner soul intent on Nous and another which faces outward. The latter is associated with a downward movement in which the soul generates its image which is nature and the world of sense. For Plotinus it is the lowest sphere, something emanating from the soul when it forgets to look upward towards the Nous. We have the One, Nous, Soul and the world answering to the fourfold nature of reality in the Māṇḍūkya U. The last two the world-soul and the world are the subtle and the gross conditions of the same being. virāṭ trailokya-śarīrah brahmā samaṣṭi-vyaṣṭi-rūpaḥ saṃsāra-maṇḍala-vyāpī. Ś on T.U. II. 8.

SVETĀSVATARA UPANIṢAD

The Svetāsvatara Upaniṣad belongs to the Taittirīya school of the Yajur Veda. Its name is derived from the sage who taught it.¹ It is theistic in character and identifies the Supreme Brahman with Rudra who is conceived as the material and the efficient cause of the world, not only the author of the world but its protector and guide. The elements associated with theism, Personal God and devotion to Him, which are to be met with undoubtedly in the other Upaniṣads, become prominent in the Svetāsvatara Upaniṣad. The emphasis is not on Brahman the Absolute, whose complete perfection does not admit of any change or evolution but on the personal Īśvara, omniscient and omnipotent who is the manifested Brahman. Terms which were used by the later Sāṃkhya philosophy occur in the Upaniṣad, but the dualism of the Sāṃkhya, purusa and prakṛti, is overcome. Nature or pradhāna is not an independent entity but belongs to the self of the Divine, devātma-śakti. God is the māyin, the maker of the world which is māyā or made by him.² The Upaniṣad teaches the unity of the souls and the world in the one Supreme Reality. The Upaniṣad is an attempt to reconcile the different philosophical and religious views which prevailed at the time of its composition.

¹ śveta, pure, aśva, indriyas, senses. Saṃkarānanda. See VI. 21: literally, he who has a white mule. Cp. jarad-gavaḥ, he who has an old cow.

CHAPTER I

CONJECTURES CONCERNING THE FIRST CAUSE

1. brahmavādinō vadanti:

kiṁ kāraṇam brahma, kutaḥ sma jātā, jīvāma kena, kva ca sampratisthāh, adhiṣṭhitāh kena sukhetareṣu vartāmahe brahma-vido vyavasthām.

1. Those who discourse on Brahman say: What is the cause? (Is it) Brahman? Whence are we born? By what do we live? And on what are we established? O ye who know Brahman, (tell us) presided over by whom do we live our different conditions in pleasures and other than pleasures (pains).

2. kālāḥ svabhāvo niyatir yadycchā bhūtāni yoniḥ purusa iti cintyā.

samyoga eṣam na tvātma-bhāvād ātmāpy anīśaḥ sukha-duḥ-kḥa-hetoḥ.

2. Time, inherent nature, necessity, chance, the elements, the womb or the person (should they) be considered as the cause? It cannot be a combination of these because of the existence of the soul. Even the soul is powerless in respect of the cause of pleasure and pain.

cintyā: v. cintyam.

In Atharva Veda XIX. 53. 1, we are told that 'Time is a horse with seven reins . . . him the knowing poets mount.' kālo aśvo vahati sapta-raśmih . . . tam ārohani kavayo vipaścitāh. In the same verse it is said that 'all the worlds are his wheels.' tasya cakrā bhuvanāni viśvā.

The creative and destructive functions of Kāla or time are brought out in the M.B.

kālāḥ pacati bhūtāni, kālāḥ samharate prajāḥ kālāḥ supteṣu jāgarti, kālo hi duratikramah.

It also asserts that there is a time-transcending element which overcomes even time—

kālāḥ pacati bhūtāni sarvāṇy evātmanātmani yasmin tu pacyate kālas taṁ vedeha na kaś cana.

ātmā: the soul, the living self, jīva which is not an independent cause, but is subject to the law of karma.

yoniḥ: the womb. prakṛti which is the mother of all possibilities in the world.

The different views are mentioned as they were suggested in the previous history of Indian thought. The non-conscious cannot be prakṛti-puruseśvarānām sva-rūpa-bhūtām brahma-rūpeṇa avasthitām parāt-paratarām śaktim kāraṇam apaśyan. Ś.

See I. 9 and 12.

4. The power of the Lord to create, preserve and dissolve the world is looked upon as the cause—devātmanah dyotanātmanah prakāśa-svarūpasya prajñāna-ghana-svarūpasya param-ātmanah jagad-udaya-sthiti-laya-niyamana-viśayām śaktim sāmāthyam apaśyan. Ś.

Brahman, the unconditioned Absolute, cannot be regarded as the cause of the world. It can only be described negatively. Ś says, na kāraṇam nāpy akāraṇam na cobhayaṁ nāpy anubhayaṁ na ca nimittaṁ na copādānam na cobhayaṁ. Ś.

So it is that the causation of the world is traced to māyā or prakṛti which is the power of Brahman conceived as Īśvara.

THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL IN DISTRESS

4. tam eka-nemim tṛṛtam ṣoḍaśāntam satārḍhāram viṁśati pratyarābhīḥ aṣṭakaiḥ ṣaḍbhīḥ viśva-rūpaika-pāśam tri-mārga-bhedam divi-mittaika-moham.

4. (We understand) Him (as a wheel) with one felly, with three tires, sixteen ends, fifty spokes, twenty counter-spokes and six sets of eights, whose one rope is manifold, which has three different paths, whose one delusion (arises) from two causes.

In this and the following verses, the world is compared to a rotating wheel or a flowing stream. Its chief characteristic is movement and these images bring it out.

eka-nemim: with one felly. Īśvara is the one source of the manifested world. The root cause of the whole world described in different ways has its locus in Īśvara.

ya ekaḥ kāraṇāni nikhilāny adhiṣṭhāti tam eka-nemim, yonih kāraṇam avyākṛtam ākāśam parama-vyomamāyā-prakṛtiḥ śaktis tamo 'vidyā chāyājñānam anṛtam avyaktam ity evam ādi-śabdair abhilāp-yamānāikā kāraṇāvasthā, nemir iva nemih sarvādḥāro yasyādhiṣṭhātūr adviṭṭiyasya param-ātmanas tam eka-nemim. Ś.

Īśvara uses prakṛti for creation.

It is usual to describe the world as a wheel, ekam pādām nokṣipati. Sanatsujātīya VI. 11.

tṛṛtam: with three tires, threefold. Reference is to the three guṇas, sattva, rajas and tamas.

ṣoḍaśāntam: sixteen ends. Reference is to the five elements, five organs of perception (jñānendriya), five organs of action (karmendriya) and the mind (manas). Prakṛti and its twenty-three evolutes are sometimes divided into two groups of eight and sixteen. The group of eight is called prakṛti or mūla-prakṛti and consists of prakṛti, buddhi, aham-kāra and the five elements. The group of sixteen called vikāra consists of mind, the ten organs and the five objects of the senses. See M.B. XII. 7670, 11394-6; 11552 ff. Buddha-carita XII. 18-19. This view is accepted by Tattva-samāsa 1 and 2; Garbha U. 4 and Bhāgavata Purāṇa VII. 7. 22.

Sāṃkhya Kārikā divides the 24 into three groups: 1. prakṛti; 2. 7 called prakṛti-vikṛti; and 3. 16 called vikṛti. The last are called śoḍaśaka gana (22).

This expression may refer to the sixteen Kalas mentioned in Praśna VI. 1.

śatārdhāram: fifty spokes. They represent the forces which move the wheel. Ś mentions the five viparyayas, taṃsa, moha, mahā-moha, tāmisra and andhatāmisra (they may also refer to ignorance, self-love, love, hatred and fear. Yoga Sūtra I. 8; II. 2. Sāṃkhya Sūtra III. 37); twenty-eight āsaktis or disabilities. Sāṃkhya Sūtra III. 28; the nine inversions of the tuṣṭis, satisfactions, Ibid III. 39; the eight inversions of the siddhis or perfections (III. 40). The various subdivisions of viparyaya, āsakti, tuṣṭi and siddhi given in Sāṃkhya Kārikā 46 ff. form a set of fifty. See E. H. Johnston: Some Sāṃkhya and Yoga Conceptions of the Svetāśvatara Upaniṣad. Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, October 1940, pp. 855 ff.

pratyaṅbhīḥ: counter-spokes. These are the ten organs of perception and action and their objects. Praśna IV. 8. It may also refer to the five elements with the five objects of the senses and the ten organs. See M.B. XII. 112. 38-41.

aṣṭakāḥ ṣaḍbhīḥ: six sets of eights. The six are 1. prakṛti: with its eight causes of the five elements, mind (manas), intellect (buddhi), and self-sense (aham-kāra), see B.G. VII. 4; 2. dhātu: with the eight constituents of the body; 3. aiśvarya: lordship with its eight forms; 4. bhāva: eight conditions; 5. deva: gods with their eight classes; and 6. ātma-guṇa: virtues which are also eight.

animā mahimā caiva garimā laghimā tathā prāptiḥ prākāmyam īśitvam vaśitvam ca'ṣṭabhūṭayaḥ.

viśva-rūpaika-pāśam: whose one rope is manifold. It is desire or Karma viśva-rūpa, nānā-rūpa ekaḥ kāmākhyāḥ pāśaḥ. Ś. Viśva-rūpa is often used for the soul which is subject to rebirth. I. 9; V. 7; Maitrī II. 5. Viśvākhyā; V. 2, Viśva and VII. 7, Viśvarūpa. Cp. also M.B. XIII. 112. 33, tathāiva bahu-rūpatvād viśva-rūpa itī śrutāḥ.

tri-mārga-bhedam: which has three different paths to salvation explained as dharma, religiousness, adharma, irreligiousness, and jñāna or wisdom.

moha: delusion or ignorance of self which is produced by two causes. good or bad works. Both of them commit us to the wheel of rebirth,

5. pañca-sroto'mbum pañca-yonyugra-vakrām pañca-prāṇormim pañca-buddhyādi-mūlām pañcāvartām pañca-duḥkhaugha-vegām pañca-śad-bhedām pañca-parvām adhīmaḥ.

5. We meditate on him as a river of five streams, from five sources, fierce and crooked, whose waves are the five vital breaths, whose original source is the fivefold perception, with five whirlpools, an impetuous flood of five pains, divided into fifty kinds (of suffering) with five branches.

The reality of the world and its relation to the Supreme Īśvara are brought out here.

pañca-sroto'mbum: having for its water that which has five streams. srotas is also used for sense organ.

indriya: the stream of perceptions which each sense organ receives from the outer world. These streams flow from the senses to the mind which is said to have five streams. Cp. pañca-srotas in M.B. XII. 7890-1, where Nīlakaṇṭha identifies it with mind or manas.

Yoga Sūtra II. 2 mentions the five kleśas as avidyā, asmitā, aśakti, rāga, abhiniveśa.

Vācaspati Miśra on Sāṃkhya Kārikā (47) explains pañca-viparyaya-bhedāḥ by a quotation from Vārṣaganya Pañca-parva-vidyā. See also Tattva-samāsa 14. Buddha-carita XII. 33.

6. sarvājīve sarva-saṁsthe bṛhante asmin haṁso bhrāmyate brahma-cakre.

prthag ātmānam preritāraṁ ca matvā juṣṭas tatas tenā-mṛtatvam eti.

6. In this vast brahma-wheel, which enlivens all things, in which all rest, the soul flutters about thinking that the self in him and the Mover (the Lord) are different. Then, when blessed by him, he gains life eternal.

asmin v. tasmin.

Cp. B.U. I. 4. 10.

Kaṭha IV. 10; T.U. II. 7. 1; B.G. XVIII. 61. Viṣṇu Dharma has the following verses:

*paśyaty ātmānam anyam tu yāvad vai param-ātmanam tāvad sāmbrāmyate jantur mohito nijakarmaṇā:
saṁkṣīṇāśeṣakarmā tu param brahma prapaśyati abhedenātmanaś śuddham śuddhatvād akṣayo bhavet.*

Both Īśvara and the individual soul belong to the manifested world, brahma-cakram: see also VI. 1. Gaudapāda gives Brahman as a synonym for prakṛti. See Gaudapāda on Sāṃkhya Kārikā 22. The soul of man is a traveller wandering in this cycle of Brahmā which is huge, a totality of lives, a totality of states, thinking itself to be different from the Impeller of the journey. The soul reaches its goal of immortality when it is accepted by the Supreme.

SAVING KNOWLEDGE OF BRAHMAN

7. udgītaṃ etat paramaṃ tu brahma tasmīns trayam supratīṣṭhākṣaram ca.
atrāntaram brahma-vido'viditvā līnā brahmaṇi tat-parā yoni-muktāḥ.

7. This has been sung as the supreme Brahman and in it is the triad. It is the firm support, the imperishable. The knowers of Brahman by knowing what is therein become merged in Brahman, intent thereon and freed from birth.

supratīṣṭhā: v. sapratīṣṭhā, svapratīṣṭha.

brahma-vido: v. veda-vido, knowers of the Vedas.

paramaṃ: Supreme. prapañca-dharma-rahitam. Ś.

trayam: the triad, the individual soul, the world and the cosmic lord. bhoktā, bhogyam, preritāram. Ś.

8. samyuktam etat kṣaram akṣaram ca vyaktāvyaktam bharate viśvam īśaḥ.
anīśas cātmā badhyate bhoktr-bhāvāt jñātvā devam mucyate sarva-pāśaiḥ.

8. The Lord supports all this which is a combination of the mutable and the immutable, the manifest and the unmanifest. And the soul, not being the Lord, is bound because of his being an enjoyer. By knowing God (the soul) is freed from all fetters.

See B.G. XV. 16-17. The later doctrine of Śaiva-siddhānta with its distinctions of paśu, pati, pāśa, the creature, the lord and the bond, is here suggested.

9. jñājñāu dvāv ajāv īśanīśāv ajā hy ekā bhoktr-bhogyārtha-yuktā anantaś cātmā viśva-rūpo hy akartā trayam yadā vindate brahman etat.

9. There are two unborn ones, the knowing and the unknowing, the one all-powerful, the other powerless. Indeed there is (another) one who is unborn, connected with the enjoyer and the objects of enjoyment. And there is the infinite self, of universal form, non-active. When one finds out this triad, that is Brahman.

The individual soul, the personal god and prakṛti or nature are all contained in Brahman: jīveśvara-prakṛti-rūpa-trayam brahma. Ś. The doctrine of the triune unity elaborated later by Rāmānuja is suggested here. For Rāmānuja, God is the soul of nature as well as the soul of souls. See I. 12.

The distinctions of enjoyer, enjoyment and enjoyed are contained in Brahman: bhoktr-bhoga-bhogyā-rūpam. Ś.

akartr: non-active. kartrtvādi-samsāra-dharma-rahitah. Ś.

In commenting on this verse, Ś makes out that the manifested world is due to the power of māyā which is not independent of Brahman and so does not constitute a second to it. As it is responsible for the manifested world it is not a nonentity. Its nature is indescribable.

*māyāyā anirvācyatvena vastutvāyogāt tathāha;
eṣā hi bhagavan-māyā sad-asad-vyakti-varjitā. Ś.*

10. kṣaram pradhānam amṛtākṣaram haraḥ kṣarātmānāv īśate deva ekaḥ tasyābhidhyānād yojanāt tattva-bhāvād bhūyaś cānte viśva-māyā-nivṛttiḥ.

10. What is perishable is the pradhāna (primary matter). What is immortal and imperishable is Hara (the Lord). Over both the perishable and the soul the one God rules. By meditating on Him, by uniting with Him, by reflecting on His being more and more, there is complete cessation from the illusion of the world.

hara: one of the names of Śiva; Ś explains hara as one who removes ignorance. avidyāder haranāt.

Cp. Śiva-mahimna Stotra:

bahula-rajase viśvotpattau bhavāya namo namaḥ prabala-tamase tat-samhāre harāya namo namaḥ jana-sukha-kṛte sattvopṛiktau mṛdāya namo namaḥ pramāhasi pade nistraiguṇye śivāya namo namaḥ.

Salutations to Ībhava or Brahmā in whom rajas preponderates for the creation of the universe, salutation to Hara or Śiva in whom tamas preponderates for the destruction (of the universe). Salutation to Mṛda or Viṣṇu in whom sattva preponderates for giving happiness to people. Salutation to Śiva who is effulgent and beyond the three attributes.

by meditating on him: The way by which the soul is awakened to the divine core of his being is abhidhyāna, an intense contemplation of the Saviour God. It leads to contemplative union with the object and identification with his essential reality. This contemplation is introspection, an intimate worship, intuition of one's own inner being. IV. 5. devam svacittastham upāsya. The embodied jīva becomes one with God. II. 14. tad ātma-tattvam prasamīkṣya dehī eko bhavate.

viśva-māyā: illusion of the world. sukha-duḥkha-mohātma-kāśeśa-prapañca-rūpa-māyā. Ś. Cp. Vasubandhu's Abhidharmakośa: abodhim dhyānāntye VI. 24. When we reach kaivalya, there is a total cessation of the world. The contemplator rises above the cosmic structure and attains brahma-nirvāṇa.

II. jñātvā devaṃ sarvapaśāpahāniḥ kṣīṇaiḥ kleśair janma-mṛtyu-prahāniḥ tasyābhidhyānāt tṛtīyaṃ deha-bhede viśvaiśvaryaṃ kevala-āpta-kāmaḥ.

II. By knowing God there is a falling off of all fetters; when the sufferings are destroyed, there is cessation of birth and death. By meditating on Him, there is the third state; on the dissolution of the body, universal lordship; being alone, his desire is fulfilled.

This verse describes the different sides and stages of liberation. Negatively it is freedom from birth and death; positively it is oneness with Īśvara, so long as there is the manifested world and oneness with Brahman when the manifested world ceases to exist.
tasya paramēśvarasya, abhidhyānād deha-bhede śarīrapātottara-kālam arcirādīnā deva-yāna-pāthā gatvā paramēśvara-sāyujyaṃ gatasya tṛtīyaṃ virād-rūpāpekṣayāvyākṛta-parama-vyoma-kāraṇeśvarāvastham viśvaiśvarya-lakṣaṇaṃ phalaṃ bhavati, sa tad anubhūya tattraiva nirviśeṣaṃ ātmānaṃ matvā kevalo nirasta-samastaiśvarya-tad-upādhisiddhir avyākṛta-paramavyoma-kāraṇeśvarātmaka-tṛtīyāvastham viśvaiśvaryaṃ hitvā, āpta-kāma ātma-kāmaḥ pūrṇānandādvitīya-brahma-rūpo 'vatiṣṭhate. Ś. He also quotes from Śiva-dharmottara:

dhyānād aiśvaryaṃ atulam, aiśvaryaṃ sukham uttamam, jñānena tat parityajya videho muktim āpnuyāt.

A distinction is made here between dhyāna or meditation which leads to lordship and jñāna or wisdom which leads to liberation. The former, which is the contemplation of the heart, the rapture of devotion, is a stage to the latter; which is the contemplation of intelligence, the blaze of discernment. So long as the cosmic process continues, the Personal Lord presides over it and the freed individual becomes a co-worker with Him. When the cosmic process terminates, the Personal Lord lapses into the Absolute and so does the freed individual. He knows as does the Lord that he is the manifestation of the Absolute, even when he is functioning in the world.

12. etad jñeyam nityam evātmasamsthāṃ nātaḥ paramaṃ vedī-tavyam hi kiñcit bhoktā bhogyaṃ preritāraṃ ca matvā sarvaṃ proktaṃ tri-vidhaṃ brahmaṃ etat.

12. That Eternal which rests in the self should be known.

Truly there is nothing beyond this to be known. By knowing the enjoyer, the object of enjoyment and the mover (of all), everything has been said. This is the threefold Brahman.

The individual soul, the object of enjoyment, prakṛti and the Supreme Lord Īśvara are all forms of Brahman.

ātma-saṁstham: which rests in the self.

Cp. Kāṭha V. 12.

Śiva-dharmottara says: śivam ātmavi paśyanti pratimāsu na yogināḥ. The Yogins see the Lord in the self and not in images.

13. vahner yathā yoni-gatasya mūrtiḥ na dṛśyate naiva ca līnga-nāśaḥ.

sa bhūya eva'ndhana-yoni-grhyaḥ tad vo'bhayaṁ vai prāṇa-vena dehe.

13. As the form of fire when latent in its source is not seen and yet its seed is not destroyed, but may be seized again and again in its source by means of the drill, so it is in both cases. The self has to be seized in the body by means of the syllable aum.

Fire though not seen at first is there all the time; it becomes visible by friction; even so the Self is there all the time though unperceived by those in a state of ignorance. It is perceived when by meditation on the syllable aum, we subdue the lower self. The vision of the Self is achieved by means of the prāṇava, aum.

indhana: the stick used for drilling.

yoni: the underwood in which the stick is drilled.

14. sva-deham araṇim kṛtvā prāṇavam co'ttarāraṇim dhyāna-nirmathanābhyāsāt devam paśyen nigūdhavat.

14. By making one's body the lower friction stick and the syllable aum the upper friction stick, by practising the drill (or friction) of meditation one may see the God, hidden as it were.

In overcoming the obstacles which prevent the realisation of Brahman on the part of the individual, suffering is involved.

We are asked to meditate on Godhead and bring Him out of the recesses of our heart.

Cp. Kaivalya U. I. 11.

15. tileṣu tailaṁ dadhinīva sarpir āpas srotassu araṇiṣu cāgniḥ.

evam ātmātmani grhyate'sau satyenainam tapasā yo' nupaśyati.

15. As oil in sesamum seeds, as butter in cream, as water in riverbeds, as fire in friction sticks, so is the Self seized in one's own soul if one looks for Him with truthfulness and austerity.

srotas: river-bed. Usually a stream, here the dry bed of a stream which, if dug into, will yield water.

tapasā: by austerity. The divine in us becomes manifest only when we subject ourselves to certain disciplines. The Divine operates in us but it requires effort to make it shine forth. A later Upaniṣad says that the Divine dwells in us as ghee in milk but even as ghee is obtained after the process of churning, the churning of the mind is necessary to reveal the inner splendour.

ghṛtam iva payasī nṛgūḍham bhūte bhūte ca vasati vijñānam, satatam manthetavyam manasā manthāna-bhūtena.

16. sarvavyāpinam ātmānam kṣīre sarṣir ivārṣitam ātma-vidyā-tapo-mūlani tad brahmopaniṣat param, tad brahmopaniṣat param.

16. The Self which pervades all things as butter is contained in milk, which is the root of self-knowledge and austerity, that is the Brahman, the highest mystic doctrine. That is the highest mystic doctrine.

brahmopaniṣat: the mystic doctrine of Brahman.

Like butter hidden in milk does the eternal wisdom dwell in each and every object; let there be constant churning by the churning stick of the mind. Brahma-bindu U.

Cp. Bhāgavata:

'When men realise me as present in all beings, as latent fire is in wood, from that moment they discard confusion.'

yadā tu sarva-bhūteṣu dāruṣv agnim iva sthitam praticakṣīta man loko jahyāt tarhyaiva kaśmalam.

III. 9. 32.

As fragrance is in the flower, as butter in milk, as oil in sesamum seeds, as gold in the reef of gold (so God dwells in all objects). Dhyāna-bindu U. 5.

puṣpa-madhye yathā gandham payo-madhye yathā ghṛtam tila-madhye yathā tailam pāṣāṇeṣv iva kañcanam.

CHAPTER II

INVOCATION TO SAVITṚ

1. yuñjānaḥ prathamam manas tattvāya savitā dhiyaḥ agner jyotir nicāyā prthivyā adhyābharat.

1. Savitṛ (the inspirer) first controlling mind and thought for truth discerned the light of Agni (Fire) and brought it out of the earth.

The five introductory verses are taken from Taittirīya Samhitā IV. 1. 1. 1-5; Vājasaneyi Samhitā XI. 1-5; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa V. 3. 1. 12-17.

The Upaniṣads claim to continue the tradition of the Vedas. It is an established convention in Indian thought to make out that the greatest innovations are only the developments of the old. Even the Buddha said that his teaching was only a restatement of the four ancient truths, catvāri ārya-satyāni. See Dhammapada, Introduction.

2. yuktena manasā vyaṁ devasya savituh save suvargeyāya śaktyā.

2. With mind controlled we are under the command of the divine Savitṛ that we may have strength for (obtaining) heaven.

suvargeyāya: for (obtaining) heaven, svarga-prāpti-hetu-bhūtāya.

3. *yuktvāya manasā devān suvaryato dhiyā divam
brhaj jyotiḥ kariṣyatas savitā prasuvāti tām.*

3. May Savitṛ, having controlled through thought the gods that rise up to the bright heaven, inspire them to make a great light to shine.

4. *yuñjate mana uta yuñjate dhiyo viprā viprasya bṛhato vipaścitah
vi hotrā dadhe vayunāvid eka in mahī devasya savituh pariṣṭutiḥ.*

4. The sages of the great all-knowing control their mind and control their thoughts. The one who knows the law has ordered the ceremonial functions. Great is the praise of the divine Savitṛ.

5. yuje vām brahma pūrvyam namobhir viśloka etu pathy eva sūreḥ śṛṇvantu viśve amṛtasya putrā ā ye dhāmāni divyāni tasthuh.

5. I join your ancient prayer with adoration. Let my verse go forth like the path of the sun. May all the sons of the Immortal listen, even those who have reached their heavenly abodes.

amṛtasya putrāḥ: sons of the immortal.

Cp. 'Ye are all children of light and the children of the day.'

I Thessalonians V. 5; Hebrews III. 6.

deho devālayaḥ proktaḥ jīvaḥ śivo hi kevalaḥ.

6. agnir yatrābhimathyate vāyur yatrādhirudhyate soma yatrātiricyate tatra sanjāyate manaḥ.

6. Where the fire is kindled, where the wind is directed, where the soma flows over, there the mind is born.

See B.G. X. 11.

Mind is born where the routine or automatism is broken.

7. savitṛā prasavena juṣeta brahma pūrvyam tatra yonim kṛnavase na hi te pūrtam akṣipat.

7. With Savitṛ as the inspirer, one should delight in the ancient prayer. Make your source (dwelling) there. Your work will not affect you.

See C.U. V. 24. 3; B.G. IV. 37.

THE PRACTICE OF YOGA

8. trirunnataṁ sthāpya samam śarīraṁ hṛdīndriyāṇi manasā saṁniveśya.

brahmodūpena pratāreta vidvān srotāṁsi sarvāṇi bhayāvā-hāni.

8. Holding the body steady with the three (upper parts, chest, neck and head) erect, causing the senses and the mind to enter into the heart, the wise man should cross by the boat of Brahman all the streams which cause fear.

See B.G. VI. 13.

saṁniveśya v. saṁnirudhya.

trīṇi: three, urogrivaśīrāṁsi, chest, neck and head. Ś. At the time of meditation we must hold the trunk, the head and the neck in a straight line. The theory of āsanas or postures is a development of this view. The control of the senses by means of mind answers to the later pratyāhāra.

Body, mind and spirit form one whole and here what is known as bodily prayer is mentioned.

Brahma: the syllable aum. brahma-śabdān prapañcāni varṇayanti. Ś.

9. prāṇān prapīdyeha saṁyukta-ceṣṭaḥ kṣiṇe prāṇe nāsikayo' cchvasīta duṣṭāśva-yuktam iva vāham enaṁ vidvān mano dhārayetā pramattah.

9. Repressing his breathings here (in the body), let him who has controlled all movements, breathe through his nostrils, with diminished breath; let the wise man restrain his mind vigilantly as (he would) a chariot yoked with vicious horses.

See B.G. V. 27. The verse refers to prāṇāyāma or breath-control.

10. *same śucau śarkarā-vahni-vālukā-vivarjite śabda-jalāśrayādibhiḥ.
mano'nukūle na tu cakṣu-pīḍane guhā-nivātāśrayaṇe prayo-jayet.*

10. In a level clean place, free from pebbles, fire and gravel, favourable to thought by the sound of water and other features, not offensive to the eye, in a hidden retreat protected from the wind, let him perform his exercises (let him practise Yoga).

See B.G. VI. 11; Maitrī VI. 30.

The importance of physical surroundings is brought out here. Kūrma Purāṇa mentions jantuvyāpta and śaśabda as unfitting a place for meditation. II. 11; M.B. says nirjane vane. XIV. 567; also nadīpulinaśāyī, nadītīraratīś ca. XIII. 6473. The place for meditation should be noiseless and not noisy. śabda is said to be a mistake for sadā, a place green with young grass.

11. *nīhāra-dhūmārkāṇilānālānām khadyota-vidyut-sphaṭika-

etāni rūpāṇi purassarāṇi brahmaṇy abhiviyaktikarāṇi yoge.

11. Fog, smoke, sun, wind, fire, fireflies, lightning, crystal moon, these are the preliminary forms which produce the manifestation of Brahman in Yoga.

We read in the Laṅkāvatāra Sūtra: 'In his exercise, the Yogin sees (imaginatively) the form of the sun or the moon or something looking like a lotus, or the underworld or various forms such as skyfire and the like. When all these are put aside and there is a state of imagelessness, then a condition in conformity with suchness (bhūta-tatātā) presents itself and the Buddhas will come together from all their countries and with their shining hands will touch the head of the benefactor.'

See also Maṇḍala Brāhmaṇa U. II. 1.

ādau tārakavād drśyate, tato vajradarpaṇam, tataḥ paripūrṇacandramaṇḍalam, tato navaratnaprabhāmaṇḍalam, tato madhyāhṇārka- maṇḍalam tato vahniṣikhāmaṇḍalam . . . sphatika, dhūmra, bindu, nāda, kalā, nakṣatra, khadyota, dīpa, netra, suvarṇa nava-ratnādi-prabhā dṛśyante.

At first appears a sign like that of a star, then gradually appear a diamond mirror, thereafter a full lunar circle, thereafter a circle of the lustre of the nine germs, thereafter the midday sun, thereafter a circle of flame, then a crystal, a black circle, a dot, sound, digit, star, sun, lamp, eye, the lustre of gold and nine germs are seen.

Mystics speak of visions and auditions. Truth is seen through the mirror of human reflection. The mind of man is limited by the nature of its possessor, by the kind of man he is. What thinks is the man, not the mind. Our senses make definite what is in its nature indefinite. We reduce the invisible to our level. As we cannot for long dwell on the heights without suffering from vertigo, we descend to the sense world and use images belonging to it. Though God transcends all forms He may still use them and convey His presence through them. These images are sent to comfort and instruct us.

This verse makes out that the images are not the subjective activities of the human self. Besides, many of these visions have a symbolic character. The words and phrases we use to describe impressions which external things make upon us are employed to describe the events of our spiritual life. It is a process of spiritual materialization. Truths of the spiritual life cannot be adequately represented except through symbols. Saint Hildegard (1098-1180) had visions and she repeatedly assures us: 'These visions which I saw I beheld neither in sleep nor in dream, nor in madness nor with my carnal eyes, nor with the ears of the flesh, nor in hidden places; but wakeful, alert, with the eyes of the spirit and with the inward ears I perceived them in open view and according to the will of God. And how this was compassed is hard indeed for human flesh to search out.' Quoted in Studies in the History and Method of Science, edited by Charles Singer (1917), p. 53. Suso, Theresa, Muhammad and many others had these visions.

12. prithvyapyatejo'nilakhe samutthite pañcātmake yoga-guṇe pravṛtte.

na tasya rogo na jarā na mṛtyuḥ prāptasya yogāgni-mayaṁ śarīram.

12. When the fivefold quality of Yoga is produced, as earth, water, fire, air and ether arise, then there is no longer sickness, no old age, no death to him who has obtained a body made of the fire of Yoga.

This verse and the next emphasise the physical aspects of Yoga. Through Yoga we try to build up a healthy and clean body. We attempt to make the very substance of our body incorruptible.

Four stages of yoga, ārambha, ghaṭa, paricaya and niṣpatti are described in verses 13, 14, 15, and 16 respectively. In securing bodily health we have the commencement of the yoga, yoga-pravṛtti. In attaining freedom from sorrow he reaches the second stage. In the third stage the traces of duality disappear, mahā-sūnyam tato bhāti sarva-siddhi-samāśrayam. In the fourth stage there is the identity of the individual with the Supreme Self. The Yogin does not become disembodied. The elements composing his body are elevated to the level of their subtleness, sūkṣmatva. He leaves his gross body and attains an indefectible one. It is a consciousness-body akin to that of the Supreme with whom the contemplator has identified himself through meditation.

13. laghutvam ārogyam alolupatvam varṇa-prasādam svara-sau-śthavam ca.

gandhaś śubho mūtra-purīṣam alpam yoga-pravṛttim prathamān vadanti.

13. Lightness, healthiness, steadiness, clearness of complexion, pleasantness of voice, sweetness of odour, and slight excretions, these, they say, are the first results of the progress of yoga.

THE VISION OF GOD

14. yathaiva bimbam mṛdayo'palīptam tejomayam bhrājate tat sudhāntam.

tad vātmatattvam prasamīkṣya dehī ekaḥ kṛtārtho bhavate vīta-śokaḥ.

14. Even as a mirror stained by dust shines brightly when it has been cleaned, so the embodied one when he has seen the (real) nature of the Self becomes integrated, of fulfilled purpose and freed from sorrow.

15. yadātma-tattvena tu brahma-tattvam dīpōpamene'ha yuktaḥ prapaśyet

ajam dhruvam sarva-tattvair viśuddham jñātvā devam mucyate sarva-pāśaiḥ.

15. When by means of the (real) nature of his self he sees as by a lamp here the (real) nature of Brahman, by knowing God who is unborn, steadfast, free from all natures, he is released from all fetters.

THE IMMANENCE OF GOD

16. eṣa ha devaḥ pradīśo'nu sarvāḥ pūrvo hi jātaḥ sa u garbhe antaḥ.

sa eva jātāḥ sa janīṣyamāṇaḥ pratyaijanāms tiṣṭhati sarvato-mukhaḥ.

16. He, indeed, is the God who pervades all regions, He is the first-born and he is within the womb. He has been born and he will be born. He stands opposite all persons, having his face in all directions.

See Vājasaneyi Samhitā, 32. 4.

pūrvo hi jātāḥ: is the first born as Hiranya-garbha.

17. yo devo'gnau yo'psu yo viśvam bhuvanam āviveśa, ya oṣadhīṣu yo vanaspatiṣu tasmai devāya namo namaḥ.

17. The God who is in fire, who is in water, who has entered into the whole world (the God), who is in plants, who is in trees, to that God be adoration, yea, be adoration.

CHAPTER III

THE HIGHEST REALITY

1. ya eko jālāvān īsata īsanībhiḥ sarvān lokān īsata īsanībhiḥ, ya evaika udbhave sambhave ca, ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.

1. The one who spreads the net, who rules with his ruling powers, who rules all the worlds with his ruling powers, who remains one (identical), while (things or works) arise and continue to exist, they who know that become immortal.

jālāvān: who spreads the net. Ś identifies jāla or net with māyā.

2. eko hi rudro na dvitīyāya tasthur ya imān lokān īsata īsanībhiḥ.

pratyañ janān tiṣṭhati sañcukocānta-kāle saṁsṛjya viṣvā bhūvanāni gopāḥ.

2. Truly Rudra is one, there is no place for a second, who rules all these worlds with his ruling powers. He stands opposite creatures. He, the protector, after creating all worlds, withdraws them at the end of time.

The Highest Reality is identified with Rudra who is assigned the three functions of creation, protection or maintenance and dissolution.

In R.V. Rudra is the personification of the destructive powers of nature, exemplified in storms and lightning. In the later portions of the Veda he is described as Śiva, the auspicious, as Mahādeva, the great god. Even in the R.V. it is said that he dwells in mountains, that he has braided hair, that he wears a hide.

pratyañ: opposite. He lives as pratyag-ātman.

sarvāṁś ca janān praty-antarāḥ prati-puruṣam avasthitaḥ. Ś who also quotes 'rūpaṁ rūpaṁ pratirūpo babhūva.'

3. viśvataś cakṣur uta viśvato mukho viśvato bāhur uta viśvatas-pāt.

sam bāhubhyāṁ dhamati sampatatir dyāvā-bhūmī janayan deva ekaḥ.

3. That one God, who has an eye on every side, a face on every side, an arm on every side, a foot on every side, creating heaven and earth forges them together by his arms and his wings.

See R.V. X. 81. 3; Atharva Veda XIII. 2. 26; Vājasaneyi Samhitā *

XVII. 19; Taittirīya Saṁhitā IV. 6. 2. 4; Taittirīya Āraṇyaka X. 1. 3. dhamati: forges. Ś means by it samyojayati, he joins men with arms and birds with wings.

bāhubhyām: with arms. As it is in the dual number, Śaṁkarānanda takes it for dharma and adharma.

patatraiḥ: with wings. Śaṁkarānanda means by it the five chief elements patana-śilaiḥ pañcīkṛta-mahā-bhūtaiḥ.

bāhubhyām, vidyā-karmābhyām, patatraiḥ vāsana-rūpaiḥ saṁdhamati dīpayati. Nārāyaṇa-dīpikā.

4. yo devānām prabhavaś codbhavaś ca viśvādhipo rudro maharṣiḥ hiranya-garbham janayāmāsa pūrvam sa no buddhyā śubhayā samyunaktu.

4. He who is the source and origin of the gods, the ruler of all, Rudra, the great seer, who of old gave birth to the golden germ (Hiranya-garbha), may He endow us with clear understanding.

See IV. 12.

Hiranya-garbha is the person endowed with clear ideas. hitam ati-ramanīyam aty-ujjvalam jñānam garbhah antas-sāraḥ yasya tam. Ś. In verse 3, the stress is on the cosmic form virāt svarūpa; here on the cosmic spirit, the world-soul, Hiranya-garbha.

PRAVERS TO RUDRA

5. yā te rudra śivā tanūr aghorāpāpakāśinī tayā nas tanuvā śantamayā giriśantābhicākaśiḥ.

5. Rudra, your body which is auspicious, unterrifying, showing no evil—with that most benign body, O dweller in the mountains, look upon (manifest yourself to) us.

For this and the following verse, see Vājasaneyi Saṁhitā XVI. 2-3. auspicious body: this is not identical with his absolute reality. It is analogous to the Buddhist dharmakāya.

6. yām iṣum giriśanta haste bibharṣy astave śivām giritra tām kuru mā himsīḥ puruṣam jagat.

6. O Dweller among the mountains, make auspicious the arrow which thou holdest in thy hand to throw. O Protector of the mountain, injure not man or beast.

puruṣam asmadīyam jagad api kṛtsnam. Ś. the human and the other than human.

KNOWLEDGE OF THE SUPREME AS THE WAY TO ETERNAL LIFE

7. tataḥ param brahma param bṛhaṇtam yathā-nikāyaṁ sarva-bhūteṣu gūḍham.

viśvasy aikam pariveṣṭitāram īśaṁ taṁ jñātvāmṛtā bhavanti.

7. Higher than this is Brahman, the supreme, the great hidden in all creatures according to their bodies, the one who envelopes the universe, knowing Him, the Lord, (men) become immortal.

tataḥ param: higher than this. This may refer to the Vedic God Rudra or the manifested world. The reference here is to Īśvara who is higher than Hiraṇya-garbhā and Virāt-rūpa, to the indwelling Lord, antaryāmin, to the Supreme Personal God, parameśvara.

8. *vedāham etaṁ puruṣaṁ mahāntaṁ āditya-varṇaṁ tamasaḥ
parastāt*

taṁ eva viditvā atimṛtyum eti nānyaḥ panthā vidyate' yaṁāya.

8. I know the Supreme Person of sunlike colour (lustre) beyond the darkness. Only by knowing Him does one pass over death. There is no other path for going there.

See VI. 15; B.G. VIII. 9. nānyaḥ panthā: no other path. panthā the way, the path; panthikṛt, the road-maker.

ayanāya: for going (to salvation).

apavarga-gaṁānāya saṁsārābdheḥ pāra-gaṁānāya vā.

The sage Śvetāśvatara says that he has seen the Supreme who dwells beyond all darkness, that he has crossed the world of saṁsāra.

9. yasmāt paraṁ nāparaṁ asti kiñcit yasmān nāñyo na jyāyo'sti kiñcit.

vykṣa iva stabdho divi tiṣṭhaty ekas tene'dam pūrṇaṁ puruṣeṇa sarvaṁ.

9. Than whom there is naught else higher, than whom there is naught smaller, naught greater, (the) one stands like a tree established in heaven, by Him, the Person, is this whole universe filled.

See Katha VI. 1.

divi: in heaven dyotanātmani sve mahimni, Ś; established in his own greatness.

10. tato yad uttarataraṁ tad arūpaṁ anāmayam

ya etad vidur amṛtāḥ te bhavanti, athetare duḥkham evāpiyanti.

10. That which is beyond this world is without form and without suffering. Those who know that become immortal, but others go only to sorrow.

THE COSMIC PERSON

11. sarvānana-śiro-grīvaḥ sarva-bhūta-guhāśayaḥ sarva-vyāpī sa bhagavān tasmāt sarva-gataś śivaḥ.

11. He who is in the faces, heads and necks of all, who dwells in the cave (of the heart) of all beings, who is all-pervading, He is the Lord and therefore the omnipresent Śiva.

See R.V. X. 81. 3; X. 90. 1.

Ś explains Bhagavat by citing the verse:

aiśvaryaśya samagrasya, dharmasya, yaśasaḥ śriyaḥ jñāna-vairāgyayoś caiva śannām bhaga itiranā.

He who has the six qualities of complete lordship, righteousness, fame, prosperity, wisdom and renunciation is Bhagavān.

12. mahān prabhur vai puruṣaḥ sattvasyaīṣa pravartakaḥ sunirmalām imām prāptim īśāno jyotir avyayaḥ.

12. That person indeed is the great lord, the impeller of the highest being. (He has the power of) reaching the purest attainment, the ruler, the imperishable light.

sattva: highest being. For Ś the internal organ, antaḥ-karaṇa.

13. *anguṣṭha-mātrah puruṣo'ntarātmā sadā janānām hṛdaye
sanniviṣṭaḥ
hṛdā manviśo manasābhikṣpto ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.*

13. A person of the measure of a thumb is the inner self, ever dwelling in the heart of men. He is the lord of the knowledge framed by the heart and the mind. They who know that become immortal.

manviśo: the lord of knowledge. jñāneśaḥ. Ś. v. manīṣā, by thought. This reading 'hṛdāmanīṣā manasābhikṣpto' is adopted by Śaṅkara, Rānanda, Nārāyaṇa and Vijñāna-bhikṣu.

14. sahasra-śīrṣā puruṣaḥ sahasrākṣaḥ sahasra-pāt sa bhūmim viśvato vṛtvā aty atīṣṭhad daśāṅgulam.

14. The person has a thousand heads, a thousand eyes, a thousand feet. He surrounds the earth on all sides and stands ten fingers' breadth beyond.

See R.V. X. 90. 1.

daśāṅgulam: ten fingers' breadth. anantam, apāram. Ś. endless, shoreless. Though the Supreme manifests Himself in the cosmos, He also transcends it.

15. puruṣa evedaṁ sarvaṁ yad bhūtam yac ca bhavyam utāmṛtatvasyeśāno yad annenātirohati.

15. The person is truly this whole world, whatever has been and whatever will be. He is also the lord of immortality, and whatever grows up by food.

See R.V. X. 90. 2.

Sāyaṇa explains that he is the lord of all the immortals, i.e. the gods, because they grew to their high estate by means of food.

16. sarvataḥ pāṇi-pādaṁ tat sarvato'kṣi-śiro-mukham sarvataḥ śrutimal loke sarvaṁ āvṛtya tiṣṭhati.

16. On every side it has a hand and a foot, on every side an eye, a head and a face. It has an ear everywhere. It stands encompassing all in the world.

See B.G. XIII. 13.

17. sarvendriya-guṇābhāsaṁ sarvendriya-vivarjitam sarvasya prabhum iśānaṁ sarvasya śaraṇam bṛhat.

17. Reflecting the qualities of all the senses and yet devoid of all the senses, it is the lord and ruler, it is the great refuge of all.

See B.G. XIII. 14.

18. *nava-dvāre pure dehī haṁso līlāyate bahiḥ
vaśī sarvasya lokasya sthāvarasya carasya ca.*

18. The embodied soul in the city of nine gates sports (moving to and fro) in the outside (world), the controller of the whole world, of the stationary and the moving.

See Kāṭha, V. 1; B.G. V. 13.

haṁsa: soul. It is the Universal Spirit.

haṁsaḥ paramātmā hantya avidyātmakam kāryam. Ś.

19. a-pāṇi-pādo javanogṛhītā paśyatyacakṣuḥsa śṛṇotyakarnaḥ, so vetti vedyam na ca tasyāsti vettā, tam āhur agryam puruṣam mahāntam.

19. Without foot or hand, (yet) swift and grasping, he sees without eye, he hears without ear. He knows whatever is to be known; of him there is none who knows. They call him the Primeval, the Supreme Person.

20. *anor anīyān mahato mahīyān ātmā guhāyām nihito'sya jantoh
tam akratum paśyati vīta-śoko dhātuh prasādān mahimānam īśam.*

20. Subtler than the subtle, greater than the great is the Self that is set in the cave of the (heart) of the creature. One beholds Him as being actionless and becomes freed from sorrow, when through the grace of the Creator he sees the Lord and His majesty.

See Taittirīya Āraṇyaka X. 10-1.

akratum: being actionless. viśaya-bhoga-samkalpa-rahitam. Ś.

dhātuh prasādāt: through the grace of the Creator.

dhātu-prasādāt: through the clarity born of sense-control. Sense organs are said to be dhātu.

21. *vedāham etam ajaram purāṇam sarvātmānam sarva-gatam

janma-nirodham pravadyanti yasya brahmavādino'bhivadanti nityam.

21. I know this undecaying, ancient (primeval) Self of all, present in everything on account of infinity. Of whom they declare, there is stoppage of birth. The expounders of Brahman proclaim Him to be eternal.

janma-nirodham: stoppage of birth.

For whom the foolish think there are birth and death.

yasya janma-nirodham mūdhāḥ pravadyanti. Śaṅkarānanda.

Nārāyaṇa Dīpikā suggests a reading, janma-nirodham na vadanti yasya. For whom birth and death are not spoken.

Sometimes it is used for the creation and destruction of the world yasya paramēśvarasya karma jagataḥ janma-samhārau. Vijñāna-bhikṣu.

This chapter makes out that the Impersonal and the Personal, Brahman and Īśvara are not two different entities but the same in two aspects.

CHAPTER IV

THE ONE GOD OF THE MANIFOLD WORLD

1. ya eko'varṇo bahudhā śakti-yogād varṇān anekān nihitārtho dadhāti.

vicaiti cā'nte viśvam ādau sa devaḥ sa no buddhya śubhayā samyunaktu.

1. He who is one, without any colour, by the manifold exercise of his power distributes many colours in his hidden purpose and into whom in the beginning and at the end the universe is gathered, may He endow us with a clear understanding.

avarṇaḥ: devoid of determinations. nirviśeṣaḥ. Ś.

nihitārthaḥ: in his hidden purpose. Without any motive or personal interest. agr̥hita-prayojanaḥ, svārtha-nirapekṣaḥ.

ante: in the end. Ṛ. śānte. The world was inactive, unmanifest before creation.

2. tad evā'gnis tad ādityas tad vāyus tad u candramāḥ tad eva śukram tad brahma tad āpas tat prajāpatiḥ.

2. That indeed is Agni (fire), that is Āditya (the sun), that is Vāyu (the wind) and that is the moon. That, indeed, is the pure. That is Brahmā. That is the waters. That is Prajā-pati (the lord of creation).

See Vājasaneyi Samhitā, XXXII. 1.

This verse occurs in Mahānārāyaṇa U. in the following way:

*yad ekam avyaktam ananta-rūpam viśvam purāṇam tamasaḥ
parastāt*

tad eva itam tad u satyam āhus tad etad brahma paramam kavinām iṣṭāpūrtam bahudhā jātam jāyamānam viśvam bibharti bhuvanasya nābhīḥ

tad evā'gnis tad vāyus tat sūryas tad u candramāḥ tad eva śukram amṛtam tad brahma tad āpas sa prajā-patiḥ

This verse indicates that the different Vedic gods are not independent but are forms of the One Supreme.

tad: that, self-nature. ātma-tattvam. Ś.

śukram: pure, alternatively the starry firmament.

śuddham anyad api dṛptiman nakṣatrādi.

Ś makes Brahmā, Hiraṇya-garbhātmā and Prajā-pati virāḍ-ātmā. Vijñānabhikṣu makes out that the Supreme through the power of māyā created the manifestations and entered into them and is called by their names: svamāyayā adhidāivikopādhīn samaṣṭi-rūpān srṣtvā teṣu anupraviśya agnyādityādyākhyām labdhvā sthito 'pīśvara evety āha.

3. tvam strī tvam pumān asi, tvam kumāra uta vā kumārī;
tvam jīrṇo daṇḍena vañcasi, tvam jāto bhavasi viśvatomukhaḥ.

3. You are woman. You are man. You are the youth and the maiden too. You, as an old man, totter along with a staff. Being born you become facing in every direction.

See Atharva Veda, X. 8. 27.

4. nīlaḥ patango harito lohita-kṣas tadid-garbha ṛtavas samudrāḥ anādimat tvam vibhutvena vartase yato jātāni bhuvanāni viśvā.

4. You are the dark-blue bird, you are the green (parrot) with red eyes. You are (the cloud) with the lightning in its womb. You are the seasons and the seas. Having no beginning you abide through omnipresence. (You) from whom all worlds are born.

patangāḥ: bird. bhramarāḥ, bee. Ś

THE UNIVERSAL SELF AND THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL

5. ajām ekām lohita-śukla-kṛṣṇām bahuvīḥ prajāḥ sṛjamānām
sarūpāḥ
ajo hy eko juṣamāno'nuṣete jahāty enām bhukta-bhogām ajo'nyāḥ.

5. The One unborn, red, white and black, who produces manifold offspring similar in form (to herself), there lies the one unborn (male) delighting. Another unborn gives her up, having had his enjoyment.

See B.S. I. 4-8.

lohita-śukla-kṛṣṇām: red, white and black. Reference is either to fire (tajas), water (ap), and earth (anna), or the three guṇas, rajas, sattva, and tamas of prakṛti,

The one she-goat, red, white and black in time produces many young like herself. For the red, white and black colours see C.U. VI. 4, where everything in the universe is said to be connected with the three elements, the red of fire, the white of water, the black of food or of earth. It is the order of creation when the Absolute first produced heat, then water, then earth in the shape of food.

V. rohita for lohita.

The first unborn is he who is ignorant and therefore subject to the influence of prakṛti.

The second unborn is he who has overcome his ignorance and is therefore free from bondage to prakṛti.

6. dvā suparnā sayujā sakhāyā, samānam vrkṣam pariśvasajāte tāyor anyah pippalam svādv aty anasnann anyo'bhicākaṣṭi.

6. Two birds, companions (who are) always united, cling to the self-same tree. Of these two the one eats the sweet fruit, and the other looks on without eating.

See M.U. III. 1; R.V. I. 164. 20; Kāṭha I. 3. 1.

Our being in time is an encounter of empirical existence and transcendent reality. The eternal in itself and the eternal in the empirical flux are companions. The world is the meeting-point of that which is eternal and that which is manifested in time. Man as an object of necessity, a content of scientific knowledge, is different from man as freedom.

7. *samāne vrkṣe puruṣo nimagno'nīśayā śocati muhyamānaḥ
vīta-śokaḥ.*

7. On the self-same tree, a person immersed (in the sorrows of the world) is deluded and grieves on account of his helplessness. When he sees the Other, the Lord who is worshipped and His greatness, he becomes freed from sorrow.

M.U. III. 1. 2. In verse 6, the cause of sorrow is traced to the sense of helplessness induced in us when we are lost in the objective universe: in verse 7 freedom from sorrow is traced to our getting beyond object-thinking into contact with real being.

8. ṛco'kṣare parama vyoman yasmin devā adhi viśve niśeduh yas tam na veda kim ṛcā kariṣyati ya it tad vidus ta ime samāsate.

8. For him who does not know that indestructible being of the Rg Veda, whereon in the highest heaven all the gods reside, of what avail is the Rg Veda to him? They, indeed, who know that rest fulfilled.

R.V. I. 164. 39; Taittirīya Āraṇyaka II. 11. 6.
samāsate: rest fulfilled. kṛtārthas tiṣṭhanti. Ś.

The Vedas are intended to lead to the realisation of the Supreme. For those who study them without undergoing the inward discipline, they are not of much use.

9. chandāmsi yajñāḥ kratavo vratāni, bhūtam bhavyam yac ca vedā vadanti, asmān māyī srjate viśvam etat tasmimś cānyo māyayā saniniruddhaḥ.

9. The Vedas, the sacrifices, the rituals, the observances, the past, the future and what the Vedas declare, all this the maker sends forth out of this, in this the other is confined by māyā.

the other: the individual soul.

The whole world proceeds from the imperishable Brahman. The actual creator is Īśvara, the Personal God, who is acting through his power of māyā, devātma-śakti.

10. māyām tu prakṛtiṃ viddhi, māyinaṃ tu mahēśvaram;
tasyāvayava-bhūtais tu vyāptam sarvam idaṃ jagat.

10. Know then that prakṛti is māyā and the wielder of māyā is the Great Lord. This whole world is pervaded by beings that are parts of Him.

The Sāṃkhya prakṛti is identified with the māyā of the Vedānta. The Upaniṣad attempts to reconcile the views of the Sāṃkhya and the Vedānta.

Īśvara and Śakti are regarded as the parents of the universe. Cp. the following verses:—

‘Only when united with Śakti has Śiva power to manifest; but without her, the God cannot even stir.’

śivāḥ śaktyā yukto yadi bhavati śaktaḥ prabhavitum:
na ced evam devo na khalu kuśalaḥ spanditum api.

Again, ‘O Father-Mother, this world of ours was created by the compassion of your joint protectorship to the end that, by your mutual help, your joint design may fulfil itself.’

ubhābhyām etābhyām ubhaya-vidhim uddiśya dayayā sanāthābhyām jagne janaka-jananī maj-jagad idaṃ.

Anāṇḍalaharī I. 1.

‘I think of the mother of all the worlds, who creates this universe of real-unreal nature, protects the same by her own energy of the three guṇas, and withdraws it at the close of every aeon and remains disporting herself in her oneness.’

srṣtvākḥilam jagad idaṃ sad-asad svarūpam śaktyā svayā triguṇayā (or triguṇyā) paripāti viśvam.
samhṛtya kalpa-samaye ramate tāthaikā tām sarva-viśva-jananīm manasā smarāmi.

Devī Bhāgavata I. 2. 5.

As the Supreme brings forth the whole universe by His own power of māyā, He is not in any way affected by it as others are.

THE SAVING KNOWLEDGE OF GOD

II. yo yonim yonim adhiṣṭhaty eko yasmin idaṁ saṁ ca vicaiti sarvaṁ.

tam īśānaṁ varadaṁ devam īḍyam nicāyyemāṁ śāntim atyantam eti.

II. The One who rules every single source, in whom all this dissolves (at the end) and comes together (at the beginning of creation), who is the lord, the bestower of blessing, the adorable God, by discerning Him one goes for ever to this peace.

12. yo devānāṁ prabhavaś co'dbhavaś ca, viśvādhipo rudro maharṣiḥ.

hiranya-garbham paśyata jāyamānam, sa no buddhyā śubhayā samyunaktu.

12. He who is the source and origin of the gods, the ruler of all, Rudra, the great seer, who beheld the golden germ (Hiranya-garbha) when he was born, may He endow us with clear understanding.

See III. 4.

13. yo devānāṁ adhipo yasmin lokā adhiṣṭitāḥ

ya īśe'sya dvi-padaś catuṣ-padaḥ, kasmai devāya haviṣā vidhema.

13. He who is the overlord of the gods, in whom the worlds rest, he who is the lord of two-footed and four-footed beings, to what God shall we offer our oblations?

kasmai, to what: v. tasmai: to that God we shall offer our oblations. See R.V. X. 121. 3.

14. sūkṣmāti-sūkṣmaṁ kalilasya madhye, viśvasya sraṣṭāram aneka-rūpaṁ viśvasyaikam pariveṣṭitāram jñātvā śivaṁ śāntim atyantam eti.

14. More minute than the minute, in the midst of confusion, the creator of all, of manifold forms, the one embracer of everything, by knowing Him as the auspicious, one attains peace for ever.

See III. 7; V. 13.

15. sa eva kāle bhuvanasya goptā, viśvādhipaḥ sarva-bhūteṣu gūḍhaḥ yasmin yuktā brahmarṣayo devatāś ca, tam evaṁ jñātvā mṛtyu-pāśāṁś chinatti.

15. He indeed is the protector of the world in time, the lord of all, hidden in all things, in whom the seers of Brahman and the deities are united; by knowing Him thus one cuts the cords of death.

The knowers of Brahman as well as the deities know that their reality is in Brahman.

16. ghṛtāt param maṇḍam ivātisūkṣmaṁ jñātvā śivaṁ sarva- bhūteṣu gūḍham.

viśvasyaikam pariveṣṭitāraṁ jñātvā devam mucyate sarva-pāśaih.

16. By knowing Him, the auspicious, hidden in all beings like the film exceedingly fine that rises out of clarified butter, the one embracer of the universe, by knowing God one is released from all fetters.

17. eṣa devo viśva-karmā mahātmā, sadā janānāṁ hṛdaye sanniviṣṭah.

hṛdā maṇiṣā manasābhikṣpto, ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.

17. That god, the maker of all things, the great self, ever seated in the heart of creatures is framed by the heart, by the thought, by the mind, they who know that become immortal.

See III. 13.

18. yadā'tamas tan na divā na rātrir na san na cāsac chiva eva kevalah,

tad akṣaram tat savitur varenyam, prajñā ca tasmāt prasṛtā purāṇī.

18. When there is no darkness, then there is neither day nor night, neither being nor non-being, only the auspicious one alone. That is the imperishable, the adorable light of Savitṛ and the ancient wisdom proceeded from that.

savitur varenyam: the adorable light of Savitṛ. Literally the choicest (splendour) of Savitṛ.

See R. V. III. 62. 10.

The characterisation of the Supreme which transcends the duality of subject and object can only be negative and cannot be a field of clear definition and demonstration.

19. nainam ūrdhvaṁ na tiryāṇcam na madhye na parijagrabhat na tasya pratimā asti yasya nāma mahad yaśah.

19. Not above, not across, not in the middle, nor has any one grasped Him. There is no likeness of Him whose name is great glory.

20. na saṁdṛṣe tiṣṭhati rūpam asya, na cakṣuṣā paśyati kaś canainam.

hṛdā hṛdistham manasā ya enam, evaṁ vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.

20. His form is not to be seen; no one sees Him with the eye. Those who through heart and mind know Him as abiding in the heart become immortal.

God does not stand in finite form before the eyes or the mind. Finite things serve as symbols enabling us to realise the presence of the divine. These verses demand the recognition of the absolute transcendence of God in relation to the world. The deus absconditus recedes into the distance when we seek to describe him by empirical forms; yet this Upaniṣad emphasises the personal aspect of the transcendent God. He is Śiva to whom we turn in prayer and praise.

21. ajāta ity evaṁ kaścid bhīruḥ prapadyate:

rudra yat te dakṣiṇam mukham tena mām pāhi nityam.

21. 'You are unborn' with this thought someone in fear approaches you. O Rudra, may your face which is gracious protect me for ever.

The attitude of bhakti is brought out here.

virān mā no rudra bhāmito'vadhīr haviṣmantah sadam it tvā havāmahe.

22. Rudra, hurt us not in my child or grandchild, hurt us not in my life, hurt us not in my cattle, hurt us not in my horses. Slay not our heroes in your wrath for we call on you always with oblations.

See R.V. I. 114. 8.

CHAPTER V

THE ONE IMMANENT GOD

1. dve akṣare brahma-pare tv anante, vidyā'vidye nihite yatra gūḍhe kṣaram tv avidyā hy amṛtaṁ tu vidyā, vidyāvidye īśate yas tu so'nyaḥ.

1. In the imperishable, infinite highest Brahman are the two, knowledge and ignorance, placed hidden. Ignorance is perishable while knowledge is immortal. And he who controls knowledge and ignorance is another (distinct from either).

By way of preface to this chapter Śaṅkarānanda observes that this chapter is devoted to the discussion of the nature of That in the text That art Thou, though both of them were treated in Chapter III, more specially the nature of Thou. tat-tvam-pādārthanu tṛtīye 'dhyāye nirūpitau yady api tathāpi tvam-pādārtho nātyantam nirūpitah; tad-arīham ayaṁ pañcamo'dhyāya ārabhyate.

brahmapare: hiranyagarbhāt pare or parasmīn brahmaṇi. Ś.

gūḍhe: hidden. lokair jñātum aśakye. Śaṅkarānanda.

kṣaram: perishable. It is the cause of bondage, saṁsṛti-kāraṇam, while vidyā is the cause of mokṣa, mokṣa-hetuḥ. Ś.

anyaḥ: another, tat sākṣitvāt, being only the witness. Ś.

The one and the many are both contained in the Supreme. The knowledge of the One is vidyā; the knowledge of the many detached from the One is avidyā.

2. yo yonim yonim adhitiṣṭhaty eko viśvāni rūpāni yonīs ca sarvāḥ ṛṣim prasūtaṁ kapilam yas tam agre jñānair bibharti jāyamānaṁ ca paśyet.

2. He, who being one, rules over every single source, over all forms and over all sources, He who bears in His thoughts and beholds when born the fiery (red) seer who was engendered in the beginning.

Wisdom is prior to the world-soul.

kapilam: hiranya-garbhām. See IV. 12. VI. 1-2. The reference is not to the sage Kapila, the founder of the Sāṃkhya philosophy. The Supreme is described as looking upon Hiranya-garbha while he was being born. He was the first to be created by God and endowed by Him with all powers. III. 4. Hiranya-garbha or Brahmā the creator is the intermediary between the Supreme God and the created world. He is the world-soul. See IV. 12; VI. 18.

jñānair: by thoughts. See note IV. 18.

3. ekaikaṁ jālam bahudhā vikurvan, asmin kṣetre samharaty eṣa devaḥ bhūyaḥ sṛṣṭvā patayas tatheśas sarvādhipatyam kurute mahātmā.

3. That God, who, after spreading out one net after another in various ways draws it together in that field, the Lord, having again created the lords, the great self, exercises his lordship over all.

ekaikam: pratyekam, for every creature, such as gods, men, beasts, etc.

jālam: net, saṁsāra.

asmin kṣetre: in that field, in the world.

yasmin, another reading for asmin. yatayaḥ, another reading for patayaḥ.

4. sarvā diśaḥ ūrdhvam adhaś ca tiryak, prakāśayan bhrājate yadv anadvān evam sa devo bhagavān vareṇyo yoni-svabhāvān adhiṣṭhaty ekaḥ.

4. As the sun, illumining all regions, above, below and across, shines, so that one God, glorious, adorable, rules over whatever creatures are born from a womb.

See IV. 11, V. 2.

yoni-svabhāvān: whatever creatures are born from a womb. Ś means by it the sources of world-existence like the elements of earth, etc. yonih kāraṇam kṛtsnasya jagataḥ svabhāvān svātmabhūtām pṛthivyādīn bhāvān or kāraṇa-svabhāvān kāraṇa-bhūtān pṛthivyādīn. Ś.

The so-called causes of the world are not in themselves causes. They operate only because God works through them.

5. yac ca svabhāvam pacati viśvayoniḥ, pācyāṁś ca sarvān parināmayed yaḥ sarvam etad viśvam adhiṣṭhaty eko gunān ca sarvān viniyojayed yaḥ.

5. The source of all, who develops his own nature, who brings to maturity whatever can be ripened, who distributes all qualities, He the one, rules over this whole world.

6. tad veda-guhyopaniṣatsu gūḍham, tad brahmā vedate brahma-yonim ye pūrvam devā ṛṣayaś ca tad viduḥ, te tanmayā amṛtā vai babhūvuḥ.

6. That which is hidden in the Upaniṣads which are hidden in the Vedas, Brahmā knows that as the source of the Vedas.

The gods and seers of old who knew that, they came to be of its nature and have, verily, become immortal.

veda-guhyopanīṣat: Veda is interpreted as referring to the sacrificial part which teaches sacrifices and their rewards, karma-kāṇḍa; guhya, the āranyaka part which teaches the worship of Brahman under various aspects, yoga-kāṇḍa, and the Upaniṣad, the part which teaches the knowledge of Brahman, the undifferentenced. jñāna-kāṇḍa. This is the view of Viṣṇūna-bhikṣu.

brahma-yoni: the source of the Vedas or the source of Hiranya-garbha. pūrve devāḥ is another reading for pūrvāṇ devāḥ, ancient gods. tanmāya, of its nature. tad ātma-bhūtaḥ. Ś.

THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL

7. guṇān vayo yaḥ phala-karma-kartā kṛtasya tasyai va sa copabhoktā sa viśva-rūpas tri-guṇas tri-vartmā prāṇādhipas saṁcarati sva-karmabhiḥ.

7. But he who has qualities and is the doer of deeds that are to bear fruit (i.e. bring recompense), he is the enjoyer, surely, of the consequence of whatever he has done. Assuming all forms, characterised by the three qualities, treading the three paths he, the ruler of the vital breaths (the individual soul), wanders about according to his deeds.

tri-guṇaḥ: sattva, rajas and tamas.

tri-vartma: see I. 4 the paths of dharma, adharma and jñāna or deva-yāna, pitṛ-yāna and manuṣya-yāna. Ś.

While the first six verses speak of That (tat), or the Supreme the account of Thou (tvam), the individual soul begins here.

8. aṅguṣṭha-mātro ravi-tulya-rūpas saṁkalpāhamkāra-samanvito
yaḥ buddher guṇenātma-guṇena caiva ārāgra-mātro hy apara'pi dṛṣṭaḥ.

8. He is of the measure of a thumb, of appearance like the sun, endowed with thought and self-sense, but with only the qualities of understanding and the self he seems to be of the size of the point of a goad.

apara, another reading avara.

ātma-guṇena: of the qualities of the body like old age, etc. Ś.

9. vālāgra-śata-bhāgasya śatadhā kalpitasya ca
bhāgo jīvas sa vijñeyas sa cānantyāya kalpate.

9. This living self is to be known as a part of the hundredth part of the point of a hair divided a hundredfold, yet it is capable of infinity.

The individual soul is potentially infinite.

10. naiva strī na pumān eṣa na caivāyam napuṁsakaḥ yad yac charīram ādatte tena tena sa rakṣyate.

10. It is not female, nor is it male; nor yet is this neuter. Whatever body it takes to itself, by that it is held.

rakṣyate. samrakṣyate, tattad dharmān ātmany adhyasyābhimanyate. Ś.
Another reading is yuyjate or joined. sambadyate.
The living self, jīva is viññānātman. Ś.

11. saṁkalpana-sparśana-dṛṣṭi-mohair grāsāmbu-vṛṣṭy-ātma vivṛddhi-janma karmānugāny anukramena dehī sthāneṣu rūpāny abhi samprapadyate.

11. By means of thought, touch, sight and passions and by the abundance of food and drink there are the birth and development of the (embodied) self. According to his deeds, the embodied self assumes successively various forms in various conditions.

mohaiḥ: v. homaiḥ, by the sacrifices.

12. *sthūlāni sūkṣmāni bahūni caiva, rūpāni dehī sva-guṇair vṛnoti
kriyā-guṇair ātma-guṇaiś ca teṣāṁ samyoga-hetur aparo'pi
dṛṣṭaḥ.*

12. The embodied self, according to his own qualities, chooses (assumes) many shapes, gross and subtle. Having himself caused his union with them, through the qualities of his acts and through the qualities of his body, he is seen as another.

LIBERATION THROUGH THE KNOWLEDGE OF THE ONE GOD

13. anādy anantam kalīlasya madhye viśvasya sraṣṭāram aneka-rūpam viśvasyaikam pariveṣṭitāram jñātvā devam mucyate sarva-pāśaiḥ.

13. Him who is without beginning and without end, in the midst of chaos, the creator of all, of manifold form, who alone embraces the universe, he who knows God is freed from all fetters.

See IV. 14.

kalilasya: gahana-gabhīra-saṁsārasya. Ś. The wonder and mystery of the cosmic process are emphasised.

devam: jyoti-rūpam paramātmānam. Ś. of the nature of light, the Supreme Self.

sarva-pāśaiḥ: avidyā-kāma-karmabhiḥ. Ś. The bonds of ignorance and its resultants of desire and deed.

14. bhāva-grāhyam anīdākhyam, bhāvābhāva-karam śivam.
kalā-sarga-karam devam, ye vidus te jahus tanum.

14. Him who is to be grasped by the mind, who is called incorporeal, who makes existence and non-existence, the kindly (the auspicious), the maker of creation and its parts, the Divine, they who know Him have left the body behind.

anīdākhyam: Śaṅkarānanda reads anilākhyam, who is called air as being the breath of the breath, prāṇasya prāṇam.

nīda: body; anīda: bodiless.

kalā: Ś. explains it to mean the sixteen kalās beginning with prāṇa or life and ending with nāma, name. Praśna VI. 4.

Vijñāna-bhikṣu means by it 'inherent power,' he who creates by his inherent power.

The Vedas and the other sciences are called kalās.

CHAPTER VI

THE ONE GOD IMMANENT IN AND TRANSCENDENT TO THE COSMIC PROCESS

1. svabhāvam eke kavayo vadanti, kālaṁ tathānye parimuhyamānāḥ, devasyaiṣa mahimā tu loke yenedam bhrāmyate brahma-ca-kram.

1. Some wise men speak of inherent nature, others likewise, of time (as the first cause), being deluded. But it is the greatness of God in the world, by which this Brahma-wheel is made to turn.

See I. 2.

The cosmic process is generally represented by a rotating wheel. It is ever moving, thanks to the greatness of God. It is the 'moving image of eternity.' In the national flag of India, the wheel is placed against the background of white. The wheel is represented in blue gagana-saḍrśam, megha-varṇam, and is placed against the background of white which is above all colours, the pure radiance of eternity.

2. yenāvṛtaṁ nityaṁ idaṁ hi sarvaṁ, jñāḥ kālakāro guṇā sarvavid yaḥ teneśitaṁ karma vivartate ha, pṛthvyāpya-tejo'nīla-khāni cintyaṁ.

2. He by whom this whole world is always enveloped, the knower, the author of time, the possessor of qualities and all knowledge. Controlled by Him (this) work (of creation) unfolds itself, that which is regarded as earth, water, fire, air and ether.

kālakāro: author of time; kālasya apī kartā: v. is kāla-kālo, the destroyer of time. kālasya niyantā, upahartā. kālaḥ sarvavināśakārī, tasyāpi vināśakarah.

See also VI. 16.

(knower of) all knowledge: sarvavid yaḥ or sarva-vidyaḥ.

3. tat karma kṛtvā vinivartya bhūyaḥ, tattvasya tattvena sametya yogam ekena dvābhyāṁ tribhir aṣṭabhir vā, kālena caivātma-guṇaiś ca sūkṣmaiḥ.

3. Having created this work and rested again, having entered into union with the essence of the self, by one, two, three or eight, or by time too and the subtle qualities of the self.

one: puruṣa of the Sāṃkhya.

two: puruṣa and prakṛti.

three: the three guṇas, sattva, rajas and tamas.

eight: the five cosmic elements and manas (mind), buddhi (understanding), and aham-kāra or self-sense. See B.G. VII. 4.

ātma-guṇaiḥ: the affections of the mind, love, anger, etc. antaḥ-karaṇa-guṇaiḥ kāmādibhiḥ. Ś.

4. ārabhya karmāṇi guṇān vitāni, bhāvān ca sarvān viniyojayed yaḥ teṣāṃ abhāve kṛta-karma-nāśaḥ karma-kṣaye yāti sa tattvato' nyah.

4. Who, having begun with works associated with the (three) qualities, distributes all existents. In the absence of these (qualities), there is the destruction of the work that has been done and in the destruction of the work he continues, in truth, other (different from what he has produced).

According to Ś, this verse tells us that if we dedicate all our works to Īśvara, we will not be subject to the law of karma, 'That person, his works being destroyed and his nature purified, moves on, different from all things, from all the results of ignorance, knowing himself to be Brahman.'

viniyojayed: īṣvare samarpayet teṣāṃ īṣvare samarpitattvād ātma-sambandhābhāvas tad-abhāve pūrva-kṛta-karmaṇām nāśaḥ karma-kṣaye viśuddha-sattva yāti. Ś.

anyah v. anyat. He goes to that Brahman which is different from all things, tattvebhyo yad anyad brahma tad yāti. Ś.

This verse is capable of different interpretations: (1) The Lord passes through different states, yet knows Himself to be above them all; (2) If we do works not out of selfish interest, but to please the Lord, our work ceases to bind us and we become free. Śaṅkarānanda and Viññāna-bhikṣu adopt the latter view.

5. ādis sa samyoga-nimitta-hetuḥ paras trikālād akalo'pi dṛṣṭaḥ tam viśva-rūpaṃ bhava-bhūtaṃ idyam devam sva-citta-sṭhaṃ upāsya pūrvam.

5. He is the beginning, the source of the causes which unite (the soul with the body). He is to be seen as beyond the three kinds of time (past, present and future), and as without parts after having worshipped first that adorable God who has many forms, the origin of all being, who abides in one's own thoughts.

source of the causes which unite: cp. samyoga-līngodbhavam trailokyam. M.B. XII. 819.

akalaḥ: without parts, trans-empirical, niṣ-prapañcaḥ. Ś.

upāsya pūrvam: worshipped first. Worship is the preliminary to knowledge.

viśva-rūpam: who has many forms. God assumes the form which the worshippers attribute to Him.

upāsakairh yad yat rūpam upāsyaate tat-tad-rūpa-dhārinam.

6. sa vrkṣa-kālākṛtibhiḥ paro'nyo yasmāt prapañcaḥ parivartate'yam dharmāvaham pāpanudam bhageśam jñātvātmastham amṛtam viśva-dhāma.

6. Higher and other than the forms of the world-tree and time is he from whom this world revolves who brings good and removes evil, the lord of prosperity, having known Him as in one's own self, the immortal, the support of all (he attains Brahman).

vrkṣa: tree. See Kāṭha VI. 1.

dharmāvaham: dharma is the enlightening power of the Saviour God manifested in the human soul. See R.V. I. 164.

Śiva is the bringer of dharma, dharmāvaha.

7. taṁ īśvarāṇām paramam maheśvaram, taṁ devatānām paramam ca daivatam patim patinām paramam parastāt, vidāma devam bhuvaneśam īdyam.

7. He in whom is the Supreme Lord of lords, who is the highest deity of deities, the supreme master of masters, transcendent, him let us know as God, the lord of the world, the adorable.

8. na tasya kāryam karaṇam ca vidyate, na tat samaś cāpy adhikaś ca dṛśyate parāśya śaktir vividhaiva śrūyate svābhāvikī jñāna-bala-kriyā ca.

8. There is no action and no organ of his to be found. There is not seen his equal or his better. His high power is revealed to be various, indeed. The working of his intelligence and strength is inherent (in him).

9. na tasya kaścit patir asti loke, na ceśitā naiva ca tasya līngam, na kāraṇam karaṇādhipādhipo na cāśya kaścij janitā na cādhipaḥ.

9. Of Him there is no master in the world, no ruler, nor is there any mark of Him. He is the cause, the lord of the lords of the sense organs; of Him there is neither progenitor nor lord.

liṅgam: mark, any sign from which we could infer the existence of God, as fire from smoke. dhūma-sihāṇīyam yenānumīyeta. Ś.
janitā: progenitor, janayitā. Ś.

10. yas tantunābha iva tantubhiḥ pradhānajaiḥ svabhāvataḥ deva ekaḥ svam āvṛṇot, sa no dadhād brahmāpyayam.

10. The one God who, according to his own nature, covers himself like a spider with threads produced from pradhāna (unmanifested matter), may He grant us entrance into Brahman.

brahmāpyayam: entrance into Brahman, ekī-bhāvam. Ś.

yathorṇanābhīr ātma-prabhavais tantubhir ātmānam eva samāvṛṇoti, tathā pradhānajair avyakta-prabhavair nāma-rūpa-karmabhis tantusihāṇīyaiḥ svam ātmānam āvṛṇot. Ś.

As the spider covers itself with threads produced from itself, so does the one God cover Himself with the products of prakṛti.

11. *eko devas sarva-bhūteṣu gūḍhas sarva-vyāpī sarva-bhūtāntar-ātmā

11. The one God hidden in all beings, all-pervading, the inner self of all beings, the ordainer of all deeds, who dwells in all beings, the witness, the knower, the only one, devoid of qualities.

12. eko vaśī niṣkriyānām bahūnām ekam bījam bahudhā yah tam ātmaśtam ye'nupaśyanti dhīrās teṣāṃ sukhān śāśvataṃ netareṣāṃ.

12. The one controller of the many, inactive, who makes the one seed manifold. The wise who perceive Him as abiding in their self, to them belongs eternal happiness, not to others.

See Kāṭha II. 2. 12.

niṣkriyānām: inactive. Ś makes out that the acts of living beings are due to their organs and the Higher Self remains untouched by them. sarvā hi kriyā nātmani samavetāḥ kim tu dehendriyeṣu, ātmā tu niṣ-kriyo nirguṇaḥ. Ś.

See B.G. III. 20.

13. *nityo nityānām cetanas cetanānām eko bahūnām yo vida-

13. He is the eternal among the eternal, the intelligent among the intelligences, the one among many, who grants desires. That cause which is to be apprehended by discrimination (of sāṃkhya) and discipline (yoga)—by knowing God, one is freed from all fetters.

See Kaṭha II. 2. 13.

nityo nityānām: the eternal among the eternal. The living souls are eternal and He is the eternal among them or the eternal may be meant for the elements of earth, water, etc. jīvānām madhye . . . adhavā pṛthivyādīnām madhye. Ś.

14. na tatra sūryo bhāti na candra-tāarakam, nemā vidyuto bhānti kuto'yam agniḥ tam eva bhāntam anubhāti sarvam, tasya bhāsā sarvam idam vibhāti.

14. The sun does not shine there nor the moon and the stars, nor these lightnings, much less this fire. After Him, when He shines, everything shines, by His light all this is illumined.

See Kaṭha II. 2. 15; M.U. II. 2. 10; B.G. XV. 6.

15. eko haṃso bhuvanasyāsya madhye, sa evāgnis salile san-niviṣṭaḥ tam eva viditvātīmṛtyum eti, nānyaḥ panthā vidyate'yanāya.

15. The one bird in the midst of this world. This indeed is the fire that has entered into the ocean. Only by knowing Him does one pass over death. There is no other path for going there.

haṃsa: bird, the highest self which destroys the source of bondage, ignorance, etc. hanti avidyādi-bandha-kāraṇam iti haṃsaḥ.

16. *sa viśva-kṛd viśva-vid ātma-yonir jñāḥ kāla-kāro guṇī

16. He is the maker of all, the knower of all, the self-caused, the knower, the author of time, the possessor of qualities, the knower of everything, the ruler of nature and of the spirit, the lord of qualities, the cause of worldly existence, and of liberation, of continuance and of bondage.

ātma-yoniḥ: self-caused. ātmā cāsau yoniś cet ātma-yoniḥ. Ś.

ātmānam yoniḥ, ātma-yoniḥ: the source of all selves.

kāla-kāro: the author of time. See VI. 2, 21.

pradhāna: avyaktam, nature.

kṣetrajña: vijñānātmā, spirit.

The Supreme binds, sustains and dissolves worldly existence.

17. sa tanmayo hy amṛtā īśa-saṁsthō jñas sarvago bhuvana-syāsya goptā

ya īśe asya jagato nityam eva-nānyo hetur vidyate īśanāya.

17. Becoming that, immortal, existing as the lord, the knower, the omnipresent, the guardian of this world is He who rules this world for ever, for no other cause is found for the ruling.

īśa-saṁsthaḥ: existing as the lord. īśe svāmīni sāmyak sthitiḥ yasyāsau īśa-saṁsthaḥ.

No other is able to rule the world. nānyo hetuḥ samartho vidyate. Ś

18. yo brahmāṇam vidadhāti pūrvam, yo vai vedāṁś ca prahiṇoti tasmai

taṁ ha devam ātma-buddhi-prakāśam mumukṣur vai śaranam aham prapadye.

18. To Him who, of old, creates Brahmā and who, verily, delivers to him the Vedas, to that God who is lighted by His own intelligence, do I, eager for liberation, resort for refuge.

ātma-buddhi-prakāśam: Śaṁkarānanda explains as sva-buddhi-sākṣiṇam, who is the light or witness of self-knowledge.

It can be derived in two ways: (1) ātmaiva buddhir ātma-buddhiḥ saiva prakāśo'syety ātma-buddhi-prakāśam. (2) ātma-buddhim prakāśayati ātma-buddhi-prakāśam. Ś.

V. ātma-buddhi-prasādam. ātmani yā buddhis tasyāḥ prasādakaram. Ś, he who through his own grace manifests himself.

19. niṣkalaṁ niṣkriyaṁ śāntaṁ niravadyaṁ nirañjanam, amṛtasya paraṁ setuṁ dagdhendhanam ivāṇalam.

19. To him who is without parts, without activity, tranquil, irreproachable, without blemish, the highest bridge to immortality like a fire with its fuel burnt.

nirañjanam; nirlepam, without blemish.

20. yadā carmavad ākāśam veṣṭayiṣyanti mānavāḥ tadā devam avijñāya duḥkhasyānto bhaviṣyati.

20. When men shall roll up space as if it were a piece of leather, then will there be an end of sorrow, apart from knowing God.

To roll up space like a piece of leather is an impossibility but when that impossible becomes possible, only then will sorrow cease, without knowing God. There is no other way for ending sorrow than the knowledge of God.

devam: v. śivam.

21. *tapah-prabhāvād deva-prasādāc ca, brahmā ha śvetāśvataro
'tha vidvān

21. By the power of austerity and the grace of God, the wise Svetāśvatara in proper manner spoke about Brahman, the Supreme, the pure, to the advanced ascetics, what is pleasing to the company of seers.

by the power of austerity and the grace of God: the grace of God does not suspend the powers of the soul but raises them to their highest activity. The super-natural intensifies the natural. There is nothing magical which interferes with the life of man. We are persons, not things. Our freedom cannot be obliterated by divine grace. By his own free action man makes his own the ideal which he seeks. Baron Von Hugel quotes from St. Bernard's Tractatus de Gratia et Libero Arbitrio, cap. XIV. 47. 'That which was begun by Grace gets accomplished alike by both Grace and Freewill so that they operate mixedly not separately, simultaneously not successively, in each and all of their processes. The acts are not in part Grace, in part free will; but the whole of each act is effected by both in an undivided operation.' The Mystical Element of Religion, Vol. I, pp. 69 ff.

advanced ascetics: paramahansa-saṁnyāsīnas ta evātyāśramiṇaḥ. Ś., the highest of the four orders of ascetics.

Cp. *caturvidhā bhikṣavaś ca bahūdakau kuṭīcakan

22. vedānte paramam guhyam purākalpe pracoditam nāprasāntāya dātavyam nāputrāyāśiṣyāya vā punaḥ.

22. This highest mystery in the Vedānta which has been declared in a former age should not be given to one whose passions are not subdued nor again to one who is not a son or a pupil.

See B.U. VI. 3. 12; Maitrī VI. 29.

*prasāntāya, prakarṣeṇa śāntam sakala-rāgādi-mala-rahitam cittam yasya tasmai putrāya tādrśa śiṣyāya vā dātavyam, tad viparītāya putrāya

It should not be taught to a son or a pupil, if his passions are not subdued.

23. yasya deve parā bhaktir yathā deve tathā gurau, tasyaite kṛtītā hy arthāḥ, prakāśante mahātmanah, prakāśante mahātmanah.

23. These subjects which have been declared shine forth to the high-souled one who has the highest devotion for God and for his spiritual teacher as for God. Yea they shine forth to the high-souled one.

KAUṢĪTAKI-BRĀHMAṆA UPANIṢAD

Kauṣītaki-Brāhmaṇa Upaniṣad, also called *Kauṣītakī Upaniṣad*¹ does not form a part of the Kauṣītaki Brāhmaṇa of thirty chapters which has come down to us and the name can be accounted for by treating the Āraṇyaka of which it forms a part as itself included in the Brāhmaṇa literature of the Ṛg Veda.² Śaṅkara refers to it in several places in his commentary on the Brahma Sūtra and Śaṅkarānanda has commented on it. There are various rescensions of the text and the version adopted in Śaṅkarānanda's Dīpikā is followed in this work. The Upaniṣad has four chapters.

Dr. S. K. Belvalkar has edited the text and given an English translation of the first chapter of this Upaniṣad.³

² Brāhmaṇas also deal with Vedānta and so sometimes include the Upaniṣads: brāhmaṇam api trividham, vidhi-rūpam, arthavāda-rūpam, tad-ubhaya-vilakṣanam ca, vidhy-arthavādobhaya-vilakṣanam tu vedānta-vākyaṁ. Madhusūdana: Prasthāna-bheda.

CHAPTER I

REBIRTH AND RELEASE THROUGH KNOWLEDGE

1. citro ha vai gāṅgyāyanir yakṣyamāṇa āruṇim vavre; sa ha putram śvetaketum prajighāya yājayeti; tam hābhyāgatam papraccha, gautamasya putrāsti samvṛtam loke yasmin mā dhāsyasi, anyatamo vādhvā tasya, mā loke dhāsyasīti; sa hovāca, nāham etad veda, hantācāryam prcchānīti: sa ha pītaram āsādyā papraccha itīti mā prākṣīt katham pratibravaṇīti; sa hovāca, aham apy etan na veda, sadasy eva vayaṁ svādhyāyam adhītya harāmahe yan naḥ pare dadati, ehy ubhau gamiṣyāva iti, sa ha samit-pāṇiś citraṁ gāṅgyāyanim praticakrama upāyānīti: tam hovāca, brahmārho'si, gautama, yo na mānam upāgāḥ, ehi vyeva tvā jñāpayiṣyāmīti.

1. Citra Gāṅgyāyani, verily, wishing to perform a sacrifice chose Āruṇi. He, then, sent his son Śvetaketu saying, 'you perform the sacrifice.' When he had arrived, he asked of him, O son of Gautama, is there a hidden place in the world in which you will place me? Or is there another way and will you place me in its world? Then he said, 'I know not this. However, let me ask the teacher.' Having approached his father, he asked, 'thus has he asked me, how shall I answer? Then he said, 'I, too, know not this. Let us learn the study of the Veda at his residence and obtain what others give to us. Come, let us both go, 'Then with fuel in hand, he returned to Citra Gāṅgyāyani and said, 'May I come near to you (as a pupil). To him, then, he said, 'you are worthy of the knowledge of Brahman, O Gautama, for you have not gone into conceit. Come, I will make you understand' (clearly).

See B.U. VI. 1; C.U. V. 2.

vavre: chose, varaṇam cakre.

abhyāgatam: has arrived, v. āsīnam, when he was seated.

putrāsti: v. putro'si, you are the son of Gautama.

samvṛtam: hidden place, samyag avṛtam guptam sthānam.

anyatamo: v. anyam aho.

ācāryam: teacher, sarva-jñam, sarva-śāstrārthasya jñātāram anuṣṭhātāram.

Worthy of the knowledge of Brahman: V. brahmārgho'si. brahma-grāhyasi:

* See Belvalkar: The Paryāṅka Vidyā, p. 32.

You are to be honoured like Brahman, brahmavat mānanīyaḥ.
you have not gone into conceit: you do not affect pride.

ehi: come, āgaccha.

jñāpayiṣyāmi: will make you understand clearly.

viñāpayiṣyāmi, spaṣṭam bodhayiṣyāmi, na tu sandehādikaṁ janayisyāmi.

The reference is to the two ways deva-yāna and pitr-yāna. Those who travel by the former do not return to a new life on earth but attain liberation by gaining a true knowledge of Brahman; those who travel by the latter to the world of the fathers return to earth to be born again and again.

In the notes on this Upaniṣad references are to Śaṅkarānanda's Dīpikā.

2. sa hovāca, ye vai ke cāsmāl lokāt prayanti candramasam eva te sarve gacchanti, teṣāṁ prānair pūrva-pakṣa āpyāyate tān अपरा-पक्षेण प्रजानयति, etad vai svargasya lokasya dvāram, yac candramās tam yāḥ praty āha tam atisrjate: atha yo na praty āhā tam iha vṛṣṭir bhūtvā varṣati sa iha kṛto vā, pataṅgo vā, matsyo vā, śakunir vā, simho vā, varāho vā, paraśvān vā, śārdūlo vā, puruṣo vā, anyo vā teṣu teṣu sthāneṣu pratyājāyate, yathā-karma yathā-vidyam, tam āgatam prcchati ko'siti, tam pratibhūyāt: vicakṣanād ṛtavo reta ābhṛtam pañcadaśāt prasūtāt pitryāvataḥ.

tam mā pumsī kartaryerayadhvam pumsā kartrā mātari mā niśiṅca.

sa jāya upajāyamāno dvādaśa-trayodaśopamāso dvādaśa-trayodaśena pitrāsam tad-vidē'ham pratitad-vidē'ham, tan ma ṛtavo'martya va ābharadhvam tena satyena tena tapasā ṛtur asmy ārtavo'smi, ko'si, tvam asmīti, tam atisrjate.

2. Then he said, those who, verily, depart from this world, they all, in truth, go to the moon. In the earlier (bright) half, it (the moon) thrives on their breathing spirits, in the latter (dark) half, it causes them to be born (again). The moon, verily, is the door of the world of heaven. Whoever answers it (properly), him it sets free (to go to the higher worlds). But whoever answers it not, him having become rain, it rains down here. Either as a worm, or as an insect or as a fish or as a bird, or as a lion, or as a boar, or as a snake, or as a tiger, or as a person or as some other in this or that condition he is born again according to his deeds, according to his knowledge; when he comes thither, he asks him; who are you? He should answer. From the far-shining, O ye Seasons, the seed was gathered, produced from the fifteenfold from the home of the fathers

(the ancestors) sent me in a man as an agent and with a man as an agent, placed me in a mother.¹ So was I born, being born in the twelfth or thirteenth month united to a father of twelve or thirteen months; for the knowledge of this was I, for the knowledge of the opposite of this. Therefore, O ye seasons, bring me on to immortality by this truth, by this austerity I am (like) a season. I am connected with the seasons. Who are you? (the sage asks again) 'I am you,' he replies. Then he sets him free.

apara-pakṣeṇa: with the latter half, v. apara pakṣe na in the latter half. causes them to be born again: the moon sends those who do not proceed by deva-yāna (the path of the gods) to brahma-loka, back to life on earth.

We are born in accordance with our conduct and knowledge. karma-vidyānusāreṇa śubham aśubham vyāmiśram ca śarīram bhavati.

The question 'Who are you?' is asked by the teacher, according to Śaṁkarānanda: karuṇā-rasa-pūrṇa-hṛdayo vedāntārtha-yāthātmya-vit guru-lakṣaṇa-sampanno guruḥ praśnaṁ karoti.

upajāyamānaḥ: born or perhaps reborn.

twelve or thirteen months: a year.

There are two kinds of knowledge, unto birth, and unto ignorance. The former takes us to the path of the gods, the latter to the path of the fathers. Heaven and hell are stages on the journey and belong to the world of time, to a succession of births. Knowledge of Brahman takes us beyond both.

THE COURSE TO THE BRAHMA-WORLD

¹ Dr. Belvalkar's rendering of an amended text is this: 'From the illustrious one (the moon), the fifteenfold, the (new) born lord of the world of the manes, O ye seasons, the seed was gathered.

'Do ye then, send me on into a male progenitor, and with the half of the male agent deposit me into the mother.'

world of Agni, then to the world of Vāyu, then to the world of Varuṇa, then to the world of Indra, then to the world of Prajā-pati, then to the world of Brahmā. This brahmā world, verily, has the lake Āra, the moments yeṣṭihā, the river Vijaṛā, the tree Ilya, the city Sālaṇya, the abode Aparāṇita, the two door-keepers Indra and Prajā-pati, the hall Vibhu, the throne Vicakṣaṇa, the couch Amitaujaṣ, the beloved Mānaṣi and her counterpart Cakṣuṣi, both of whom taking flowers, verily, weave the worlds, the mothers, the nurses, the nymphs, and the rivers. To it (to such a world) he who knows this comes. To him Brahmā runs (advances towards), and says, 'It is on account of my glory, verily, he has reached the river, Ageless, He, verily, will not grow old.'

After Vāyu-loka, some texts have āditya-loka.

Brahma-loka is hirāṇya-garbha-loka of which an account is given.

The lake āra is the first impediment to entrance into brahma-loka. It is said to be composed of the enemies.

ari: desire, wrath, etc.

mukhūrtāḥ: moments which produce desire, wrath, etc., and destroy the sacrifice.

yeṣṭihāḥ: kāma-krodhādi-pravṛtyutpādanena ghnantīti yeṣṭihāḥ: the moments spent in subduing desires.

the river Vijaṛā: ageless, vigata jarā.

the tree Ilya: ilā prīhivī tad-rūpatvena ilya-iti-nāmā taruḥ.

the city Sālaṇya: the city is so called because on the bank are bow-strings as large as a sāl tree, a place abounding with water in many forms of rivers, lakes, wells, tanks, etc., and gardens inhabited by many heroes.¹

saṁsthānam: city, aneka-jana-nivāsa-rūpam pattanam.

aparāṇitam: unconquerable (city), hirāṇya-garbhasya rāja-mandiram.

pramitam: hall, sabhāsthalam. ahamkāra-svarūpam aham ity eva sāmānyena pramitam vibhu-pramitam.

the throne Vicakṣaṇā: reason, vicakṣaṇā kuśalā buddhir mahat-tattvam ity ādi śabdābhidheyā.

āsandī sabhā-madhye vedih.

amitaujaḥ: of unmeasured splendour. amitam aparimitam prāṇa-saṁvādādaṁ prasiddham oḥ-balam yasya so'yam amitaujaḥ.

ambā: the mothers, jagad-jananyāḥ śrūtayāḥ.

4. taṁ pañcaśatāṇy apsarasāṁ pratiyanti, śatam phala-hastāḥ, śatam āṇjana-hastāḥ, śataṁ mālya-hastāḥ, śataṁ vāso-hastāḥ, śatam cūrṇa-hastāḥ; taṁ brahmāṇkāreṇālaṁkurvanti, sa brah-

Five hundred apsarasas (nymphs) go towards him, one hundred with fruits in their hands, one hundred with ointments in their hands, one hundred with garlands in their hands, one hundred with garments in their hands, one hundred with powdered perfumes in their hands. They adorn him with the adornment (worthy) of Brahmā. He, having been adorned with the adornment of Brahmā, goes into (advances towards) Brahmā. He comes to the lake Āra and he crosses it with his mind. On coming to it those who know only the immediate present¹ sink. He comes to the moments yeṣṭiha and they flee from him. He comes to the river Vijarā (Ageless); this he crosses with his mind alone. There he shakes off his good deeds and his evil deeds. His dear relatives succeed to his good deeds and those not dear, to the evil deeds. Then just as one driving a chariot looks at the two wheels (without being touched by them), even so he will look at day and night, at good deeds and evil deeds and on all the pairs of opposites. Thus one, freed from good and freed from evil, the knower of Brahman, goes on to Brahman.

pairs of opposites: like light and darkness, heat and cold, pleasure and pain, chāyātapa-śiṭoṣṇa-sukha-duḥkhādini. He transcends the limitations of the empirical world.

He comes to the abode Aparājita; the radiance of Brahmā enters into him. He comes to the two door-keepers, Indra and Prajā-pati and they run away from him. He comes to the hall Vibhu and the glory of Brahmā enters into him. He comes to the throne of Vicakṣaṇa; the Sāman verses, Bṛhad and Rathantara, are its two fore feet, the Syāta and the Naudhasa the two hind feet, the Vairūpa and the Vairāja, the two lengthwise sides (pieces) the Śākvara and the Raivata are the two cross ones. It is wisdom for by wisdom one sees clearly. He comes to the couch Amitaujas. That is the breathing spirit, the past and the future are its two fore feet, prosperity and the earth are the two hind feet, the Bhadra and the Yajñāyajñīya the two head pieces, the Bṛhad and the Rathantara the two lengthwise pieces; the Rg verses and the Sāman chants, the cords stretched lengthwise, the yajus formulas the cross ones; the moonbeams the cushion, the udgītha the coverlet, prosperity the pillow. On this (couch) Brahmā sits. He who knows this ascends it just with one foot only. Brahmā asks him, 'Who are you?' and he should answer:

sa: He, the devotee, upāsakah.

6. I am season, I am connected with the seasons. From space as the source I am produced as the seed for a wife, as the light of the year, as the self of every single being. You are the self of every single being. What you are that am I. He says to him, 'Who am I?' He should say, 'The Real.' What is that called the Real? Whatever is different from the gods (sense organs) and the vital breaths that is sat, but the gods and the vital breaths are the tyam. Therefore this is expressed by the word satyam, all this, whatever there is. All this you are. Thus he speaks to him then. This is declared by a Rg verse.

bhāryāyai: for a wife; v. bhāyā: produced from light.

devēbhyah: from the gods, indriyebhyaḥ.

7. The great seer consisting of the sacred word, whose belly is Yajus, whose head is the Sāman, whose form is the Rg, the imperishable is to be known as Brahmā. He says to him, 'By what do you acquire my masculine names?' He should answer, 'by the vital breath.' 'By what, my neuter ones?' 'By mind.' 'By what, my feminine names?' 'By speech.' 'By what, smells?' 'By the breath.' 'By what, forms?' 'By the eye.' 'By what, sounds?' 'By the ear.' 'By what, the flavours of food?' 'By the tongue.' 'By what, actions?' 'By the two hands.' 'By what, pleasure and pain?' 'By the body.' 'By what, joy, delight and procreation?' 'By the generative organ.' 'By what, movement?'

'By the two feet.' 'By what, thoughts, what is to be known, and desires?' 'By intelligence,' he should say. To him he says, 'The waters, verily, are my world. It is (they are) yours.' Whatever victory is Brahmā's, whatever belongs to him, that victory he wins, that belonging he gets who knows this, yea who knows this.

brahmayā: by intelligence, svayam-prakāśenātma-bodhena.

In Brahma-loka, whatever belongs to the presiding deity Brahmā belongs also to the aspirant who reaches it.

yāvaṁ madīyam tāvaṁ tvadīyam.

CHAPTER II

THE DOCTRINE OF PRĀṆA (LIFE-BREATH)
IDENTITY WITH BRAHMĀ

I. prāṇo brahmeti ha smāha kauṣītakiḥ: tasya ha vā etasya prāṇasya brahmaṇo mano dūtam, cakṣur goptṛ, śrotram samśrāvayitr, vāk pariveśtrī; sa yo ha vā etasya prāṇasya brahmaṇo mano dūtam veda dūtavān bhavati, yas cakṣur goptṛ goptṛmān bhavati, yaś śrotram samśrāvayitr samśrāvayitrman bhavati, yo vācam pariveśtrīm pariveśtrīmān bhavati, tasmai vā etasmai prāṇāya brahmaṇa etāḥ sarvā devatā āyācamānāya balim haranti, evaṁ haivāsmai sarvāṇi bhūtāny āyācamānāyaiva balim haranti, ya evaṁ veda tasyopaniṣan na yāced iti, tad yathā grāmam bhikṣitvā'labdhvopaviṣen nāham ato dattam aśniyām iti, ta evainam upamantrayante ye purastāt pratyācakṣīran, eṣa dharmo'yācato bhavati, annadās tv evainam upamantrayante, dadāma ta iti.

I. The breathing (living) spirit is Brahmā, thus, indeed, Kauṣītaki used to say. Of this same breathing spirit which is Brahmā, the mind, verily, is the messenger; the eye the protector, the ear the announcer, speech the housekeeper. He who, verily, knows the mind as the messenger of this breathing spirit of Brahmā becomes possessed of a messenger. He who knows the eye as the protector becomes possessed of a protector. He who knows the ear as the announcer becomes possessed of an announcer, he who knows speech as the housekeeper becomes possessed of a housekeeper. To this same breathing spirit as Brahmā, these divinities (mind, eye, ear, speech) bring offering though he does not beg for it; even so, to this same breathing spirit all beings bring offering even though he does not beg for it. For him who knows this, the doctrinal instruction is 'Do not beg.' As a man who has begged through a village and received nothing sits down saying, 'I shall not eat anything given from here,' and then those who formerly refused him invite him (to accept their offerings), which is the nature of him who does not beg. Charitable people, however, invite him and say, 'let us give to you.'

In Chapter I the devotee, upāsaka, approaches the couch Amitaujas which is prāṇa, breath, spirit, life. The nature of prāṇa as the source of everything, as Brahmā is explained in this chapter. Brahmā with which prāṇa is identified is the creator, jagat-kāraṇam.

To the life principle as the divine all divinities bring tribute unasked.

Food is the aliment which nourishes body or mind.

2. prāṇo brahmeti ha smāha paingyas tasya vā etasya prāṇasya brahmaṇo vāk parastāt cakṣur ārundhate, cakṣuḥ parastāt chrotram ārundhate, śrotram parastāt mana ārundhate, manaḥ parastāt prāṇa ārundhate, tasmai vā etasmai prāṇāya brahmaṇa etāḥ sarvā devatā ayācamānāya baliṃ haranti, evaṃ haivāsmāi sarvāṇi bhūtāny ayācamānāyaiva baliṃ haranti ya evaṃ veda tasyopaniṣan na yāced iti, tad yathā grāmaṃ bhikṣitvā labdhvopaviṣen nāham ato dattam aśnīyam iti, ta evainam upamantrayante ye purastāt pratyācakṣīran, eṣa dharmo'yacato bhavati, annadās tv evainam upamantrayante, dadāma ta iti.

2. The breathing spirit is Brahmā, thus indeed Paingya used to say. Of this same breathing spirit as Brahmā behind the speech the eye is enclosed, behind the eye the ear is enclosed, behind the ear the mind is enclosed, behind the mind the breathing spirit is enclosed. To this same breathing spirit as Brahmā, all these divinities bring offering though he does not beg for it; even so to this same breathing spirit all beings bring offering even though he does not beg for it. For him who knows this, the doctrinal instruction is 'Do not beg.' As a man who has begged through a village and received nothing sits down saying, 'I shall not eat anything given from here,' and then those who formerly refused him invite him (to accept their offerings), such is the nature of him who does not beg. Charitable people, however, invite him and say, 'let us give to you.'

ārundhate: is enclosed, surrounded, enveloped. V. ārundhe, ārudhyate samantāt āvṛtya tiṣṭhati.

3. athāta eka-dhanāvarodhanam: yad eka-dhanam abhidya-yāt, paurṇamāsyāṃ vāmāvāsyāyām vā śuddha-pakṣe vā punyenakṣatra eteṣāṃ ekasmin parvaṇy agnim upasamādhāya parisamūhya paristīrya paryukṣya dakṣiṇam jānvācyā sruveṇājyāhutir juhoti: vān nāma devatāvarodhanī sā me'muṣmād idam avarundhyāt tasyai svāhā: prāṇo nāma devatāvarodhanī sā me'muṣmād idam avarundhyāt tasyai svāhā: cakṣur nāma devatāvarodhanī sā me'muṣmād idam avarundhyāt tasyai svāhā: śrotram nāma devatāvarodhanī sā me'muṣmād idam avarundhyāt tasyai svāhā: mano nāma devatāvarodhanī sā me'muṣmād idam avarundhyāt tasyai svāhā: prajñā nāma devatāvarodhanī sā me'muṣmād idam avarundhyāt tasyai svāhā iti: atha dhūma-gandham prajighrāyājyalepenāṅgāny anuvimrjya vācamyamo'bhīpravrajyārthaṁ brūyād dūtāṁ vā, prahinuyāl labhate haiva.

3. Now next the attainment of the highest treasure. If a man covets the highest treasure, either on the night of a full moon or on the night of a new moon or on the bright half of the moon under an auspicious constellation, at one of these periods, having built up a fire, having swept the ground and having strewn the sacred grass, having sprinkled (water) around, having bent the right knee, with a spoon he offers oblations of melted butter. 'The divinity named speech is the attainer. May it obtain this for me from him. Hail to it.' 'The divinity named breath is the attainer. May it attain this for me from him. Hail to it.' 'The divinity named eye is the attainer. May it attain this for me from him. Hail to it.' 'The divinity named ear is the attainer. May it attain this for me from him. Hail to it.' 'The divinity named mind is the attainer. May it attain this for me from him. Hail to it.' 'The divinity named wisdom is the attainer. May it attain this for me from him. Hail to it.' Then having inhaled the smell of the smoke, having smeared his limbs with the ointment of melted butter, in silence he should go forth, declare his wish or send a messenger. He will, indeed, obtain his wish.

eka-dhana: highest treasure, single treasure, prāṇasya nāmadheyam, jagaty asminn eka eva dhana-rūpa eka dhanah.

paristīrya: having strewn sacred grass, samantād darbhān avakīrya.

sruveṇa: with a spoon; v. camasena vā kamsena vā: with a wooden bowl or with a metal cup.

4. athāto daivaḥ smaro yasya priyo bubhūṣed yasyai vā yeṣāṁ vaiteṣāṁ evaikasmin parvaṇy etayaivāvṛtāitā ājyāhutir juhoti, vācam te mayi juhomy asau svāhā; prāṇam te mayi juhomy asau svāhā; cakṣus te mayi juhomy asau svāhā; śrotram te mayi juhomy asau svāhā; manas te mayi juhomy asau svāhā; prajñāṁ te mayi juhomy asau svāhā iti; atha dhūma-gandham prajighrāyājyalepenāṅgāny anuvimrjya vācamyamo'bhīpravrajya saṁsparśam jigamiṣed api vātād vā tiṣṭhet sambhāṣamāṇah priyo haiva bhavati smaranti haivāśya.

4. Now, next, the longing to be realised by the divine powers. If one desires to become dear to any man or woman or to any men or women, then at one of these same periods (of time mentioned before) he offers, in exactly the same manner, oblations of melted butter, saying, 'your speech I sacrifice in me, hail to you.' 'Your breath I sacrifice in me, hail to you.'

'Your eye I sacrifice in me, hail to you.' 'Your ear I sacrifice in me, hail to you.' 'Your mind I sacrifice in me, hail to you.' 'Your wisdom I sacrifice in me, hail to you.' Then having inhaled the smell of the smoke, having smeared his limbs with the ointment of melted butter, in silence he should go forth, and seek to come to contact or stand speaking from windward (so that the wind may carry his words to the person). He becomes dear indeed and they think of him indeed.

smara: longing, abhilāṣaḥ. 'I am the fire in which the fuel of your dislike or indifference is burnt.'

SACRIFICE OF SELF

5. athātaḥ sanyamanam prātardanam āntaram agni-hotram ity ācakṣate, yāvad vai puruṣo bhāṣate na tāvat prāṇitum śaknoti, prāṇam tadā vāci juhōti, yāvad vai puruṣaḥ prāṇiti na tāvad bhāṣitum śaknoti, vācam tadā prāṇe juhōti, ete anante amṛte āhūti jāgrac ca svāpaṇ ca santatam juhōti. aha yā anyā āhūtaḥ nītatyaś tāḥ karmamayyo hi bhavanti taddhasmaitat pūrve vidvāṃso'gni-hotram na juhavāñcakruḥ.

5. Now next self-restraint according to Prātardana or the inner fire sacrifice as they call it. As long, verily, as a man is speaking, so long he is not able to breathe. Then he is sacrificing breath in speech. As long, verily, as a person is breathing, so long he is not able to speak. Then he is sacrificing speech in breath. These two unending immortal oblations, one is offering continuously, whether waking or sleeping. Now whatever other oblations there are, they have an end for they consist of works. Knowing this very thing, verily, the ancients did not offer the agni-hotra sacrifice.

āntaram: inner because it is independent of 'outer aids' bāhya-sādhana-nirapekṣam.

PRAISE OF THE UKTHA

6. uktham brahmeti ha smāha śuṣka-bhrīgārah, tad ṛg ity upāsīta, sarvāṇi hāsmāi bhūtāni śraīṣṭhyāyābhyarcyante, tad yajur ity upāsīta, sarvāṇi hāsmāi bhūtāni śraīṣṭhyāya yujyante, tat sāmety upāsīta, sarvāṇi hāsmāi bhūtāni śraīṣṭhyāya sannamante, tac chrīr ity upāsīta, tad yaśa ity upāsīta; tat teja ity upāsīta, tad yathaitac chrīmattamam yaśasvitamam tejasvitamam iti śastreṣu bhavati, evaṃ haiva sa sarveṣu bhūteṣu śrīmattamo

yaśasvitamas tejasvitamo bhavati ya evaṃ veda, tad etad aiṣṭikam karma-mayam ātmānam adhvaryuḥ saṃśkaroti, tasmin yajur-mayaṃ pravayati yajur-mayaṃ ṛṇ-mayaṃ hotā ṛṇ-maye sāmamayaṃ udgātā, sa eṣa trayyai vidyāyāḥ atmaīṣa u evaitad indrasyātmā bhavati, ya evaṃ veda.

6. The uktha (recitation) is Brahman, so Suśka-bhṛṅgāra used to say, let him meditate on it as the Rg (hymn of praise) unto such a one, indeed, all beings offer praise for his greatness. Let him meditate on it as the Yajus (sacrificial formula), unto such a one indeed, all beings get united for his greatness. Let him meditate on it as the Sāman. Unto such a one indeed all beings bow down for his greatness. Let him meditate on it as beauty. Let him meditate on it as glory. Let him meditate on it as splendour. As this (the uktha) is the most beautiful, the most glorious, the most splendid among the invocations of praise, even so is he who knows this, the most beautiful, the most glorious, the most splendid among all beings. So the adhvaryu priest prepares this self which is related to the sacrifice, and which consists of works. In it he weaves what consists of the Yajus. In what consists of the Yajus, the hotṛ priest weaves what consists of the Rg. In what consists of the Rg the Udgātṛ priest weaves what consists of the Sāman. This is the self of all the threefold knowledge. And thus he who knows this becomes the self of Indra.

DAILY WORSHIP OF THE SUN FOR THE REMOVAL OF SIN

7. athātāḥ, sarva-jitāḥ kauṣītakes trīṇy upāsanāni bhavanti, sarva-jiddha sma kauṣītakir udyantam ādityam upatiṣṭhate yajñopavītaṃ kṛtvodakam ānīya triḥ prasicyodapātraṃ vargo'si pāpmānam me vṛndhīti, etayaivāvṛtā madhye santam udvargo'si pāpmānam ma udvṛndhīti, etayaivāvṛtāstam yantam saṃvargo'si pāpmānam me saṃvṛndhīti, tad yad ahorātrābhyām pāpam akarot saṃ tad vṛṅkte, tatho evaivaṃ vidvān etayaivāvṛtādityam upatiṣṭhate yad ahorātrābhyām pāpam karoti, saṃ tad vṛṅkte,

7. Now next are the three meditations of the all-conquering Kauṣītaki. The all-conquering Kauṣītaki, indeed, used to worship the rising sun, having performed the investiture with the sacred thread, having fetched water, having thrice sprinkled the water vessel saying, 'You are a deliverer; deliver me from my "sin."' In the same manner he (used to worship the sun) when it was in the middle of the sky saying, 'you are the high deliverer, deliver me highly from sin.' In the same manner he (used to worship the sun) when it was setting saying, 'you are the full deliverer; deliver me fully from sin.' Thus whatever sin he committed by day or by night that he removes fully. And likewise he who knows this worships the sun in the same manner and whatever sin one commits by day or by night, that he removes fully.

yajñopavitam: the sacred thread worn over the left shoulder, for performing sacrifices.

āñīya: having fetched, v. ācamya: having sipped.

vargaḥ: deliverer: sarvam idaṁ jagat ātma-bodhena tṛṇavad vṛṅkte parit்யajati.

vṛṇāhi: deliver, varjaya, vināśayet.

ADORATION OF THE NEW MOON FOR PROSPERITY

8. atha māsi māsy amāvāsyāyām vṛttāyām paścāc candramasam drśyamānam upatiṣṭhetaitayaivāvṛtā harita-tṛṇe vā pratyasyati, yan me susīmaṁ hṛdayaṁ divi candramasi śritam manye'ham mām tad vidvāmsam māhaṁ putryam aghaṁ rudam iti, na hy asmāt pūrvāḥ prajāḥ praitīti nu jāta-putrasyā-thājāta-putrasyāpyāyasva sametu te saṁ te payāmsi sam u yantu vājā yam ādityā aṁsumāpyāyayantīti, etās tisra ṛco japitvā māsmaṁ prāṇena prajāyā paśubhir āpyāyayiṣṭhāḥ yo'smān dveṣṭi yaṁ ca vayaṁ dviṣmas tasya prāṇena prajāyā paśubhir āpyāyaya sva aindrīm āvṛtam āvarta ādityasyāvṛtam anvāvarta iti dakṣiṇam bāhum anvāvartate.

8. Then, month by month at the time of the new moon, when it comes around one should in the same manner worship the moon as it appears in the west or he throws two blades of green grass toward it saying, 'That fair proportioned heart of mine which rests in the moon in the sky, I deem myself the knower thereof. May I not weep for evil concerning my children. Indeed his progeny do not die before him. Thus is it with one to whom a son is already born. Now in the case of one to whom no son is born as yet, 'Increase. May vigour come to thee. May milk and food gather in thee, that ray which the Ādityas gladden.' Having (repeatedly) uttered these three Ṛg verses, he says, 'Do not increase by our vital breath, by our offspring, by our cattle. He who hates us and him whom we hate, increase by his breath, his offspring, his cattle. Thereupon I turn myself with Indra's turn, I turn myself along with the turn of the sun.' Thereupon he turns himself toward the right arm.

harita-tye vā pratyasyati: he throws two blades of grass toward it; v. harita-irṇābhyām vāk pratyasyati: with two blades of grass speech goes toward it.

The three Rg verses are Rg Veda I. 91. 16; IX. 31; 4; I. 91. 18, Aiharva Veda VII. 81. 6.

There is throughout an allusion to an implied comparison between the husband as sun or fire and the wife as the moon.

aham somātmikā strī agnyātmakah pumān.

9. atha paurṇamāsyām purastāc candramasaṁ dṛśyamānam upatiṣṭheta etayā vāvṛtā, somo rājāsi vicakṣaṇaḥ, pañca-mukho'si prajā-patir brāhmaṇas ta ekam mukham, tena mukhena rājño'tsi, tena mukhena mām annādaṁ kuru, rājā ta ekam mukham, tena mukhena viśño'tsi, tena mukhena mām annādaṁ kuru, śyenas ta ekam mukham, tena mukhena pakṣiño'tsi, tena mukhena mām annādaṁ kuru agniṣṭa ekam mukham, tenemaṁ lokamatsi, tena mukhena mām annādaṁ kuru, tvayi pañcamam mukham, tena mukhena sarvāṇi bhūtāny atsi, tena mukhena mām annādaṁ kuru, māsmākaṁ prāṇena prajāyā paśubhir avakṣeṣṭhā, yo'smān dveṣṭi yac ca vayaṁ dviṣmas tasya prāṇena prajāyā paśubhir avakṣīyasveti, daivim āvṛtam āvarta ādityasyāvṛtam anvāvarta iti dakṣiṇam bāhum anvāvartate.

9. Then, on the night of the full moon one should in the same manner worship the moon as it appears in the east, 'You are King Soma, the wise, the five-mouthed, the lord of creation. The Brāhmaṇa is one mouth of you. With that mouth you eat the Kings. With that mouth make me an eater of food. The King is one mouth of you. With that mouth you eat the people. With that mouth make me an eater of food. The hawk is one mouth of you. With that mouth you eat the birds. With that mouth make me an eater of food. Fire is one mouth of you. With that mouth you eat this world. With that mouth make me an eater of food. In you is a fifth mouth. With that mouth you eat all beings. With that mouth make me an eater of food. Do not waste away with our vital breath, with our offspring, with our cattle. He who hates us and him whom we hate, you waste away with his vital breath, his offspring, his cattle. Thus I turn myself with the turn of the gods. I turn myself along with the turn of the sun. After (these words) he turns himself toward the right arm.

soma: moon: umayā viśva-prakṛtyā saha vartamānaḥ priya-darśanaḥ. vicakṣaṇaḥ: the wise, sarva-laukika-vaidika-kārya-kuśalaḥ.

Here the reference is only to the three classes, the Brāhmaṇa, the Kṣatriya and the common people.

10. atha samvyeśyan jāyāyai hṛdayam abhimṛśet, yat te susīme hṛdaye śritam antaḥ prajāpatau tenāmṛtatvasyeśāne mā tvam putryam agham nigā iti, na hy asyāḥ pūrvāḥ prajāḥ praitīti.

10. Now when about to lie down with his wife he should stroke her heart and say, O fair one who has attained immortal joy by that which is placed in your heart by Prajā-pati, may you never fall into sorrow about your children. Her children then do not die before her.

See Āśvalāyana Gṛhya Sūtra I. 13. 7.

susīme: O fair one: śobhana-gātre.

11. atha prośyāyan putrasya mūrdhānam abhiḥgṛhet, aṅgād aṅgāt sambhavaṣi hṛdayād adhiḥjāyase, ātmā vai putra nāmāsi sa jīva śaradaḥśatam asāv iti nāmāsya dadhāty aśmā bhava, paraśur bhava, hiranyam aśritam bhava, tejo vai putra nāmāsi sa jīva śaradaḥśatam asāv iti nāmāsya grhṇāty athainam pariḥgrhṇāti, yena prajāpatiḥ prajāḥ paryagrhṇāt tad ariṣṭyai tena tvā pariḥgrhṇāmy asāv iti, aihāsya dakṣiṇe karṇe jāpaty asmai prayanāhi maghavan ṛjīṣin itīndra śreṣṭhāni dravināni dhehīti sarve, ma chetthā, mā vyathīṣṭhāḥ, śatam śarada āyuso jīvasva, putra te nāmnā mūrdhānam abhiḥgṛhṇāmi, trirasya mūrdhānam abhiḥgṛhet gavām tvā hiṅkāreṇābhihiṅkaromīti trir asya mūrdhānam abhihiṅkuryāt.

11. Now, when one has been away, on returning back he should smell (kiss) his head, saying, 'you are born from every limb of mine, you are born from the heart, you, my son, are my self indeed, may you live a hundred autumns (years).' He gives him his name saying, 'Be you a stone, be you an axe, be you everywhere desired gold, you, my son are light indeed, may you live a hundred autumns (years).' He takes his name. Then he embraces him saying, 'Even as Prajā-pati embraced his creatures for their welfare so do I embrace you (pronouncing his name).' Then he mutters in his right ear saying, 'Confer on him, O Maghavan, O onrusher,' and whispers in his left ear, 'O Indra, bestow the most excellent possessions. Do not cut off (the line of our race). Be not afraid, live a hundred autumns of life. I smell (kiss) your head, O son, with your name.' Thrice he should smell (kiss his head). 'I make a lowing over you with the lowing (sound) of cows.' He should make a lowing over his head thrice.

abhihiḡhret: smell; v. abhiṃṣet: touch, kareṇa saṃspṛśet.

putra nāma: v. putra māvittha. You have saved me, son: he putra tvam punnāmno. nīrayāt mā mām āvittha mama rakṣaṇam kṛtavan. See Manu IX. 38.

MANIFESTATION OF BRAHMAN

12. athāto daivāḥ parimara, etad vai brahma dīpyate yad agnir jvalati, athaitan mriyate yan na jvalati, tasyādītyam eva tejo gacchati vāyum prāṇa; etad vai brahma dīpyate yad ādītyo drśyate 'thaitan mriyate yan na drśyate, tasya candramasam eva tejo gacchati vāyum prāṇa; etad vai brahma dīpyate yac candramā drśyate 'thaitan mriyate yan na drśyate, tasya vidyutam eva tejo gacchati vāyum prāṇa; etad vai brahma dīpyate yad vidyud vidyotate 'thaitan mriyate yan na vidyotate, tasya diśa eva tejo gacchati vāyum prāṇas tā vā etāḥ sarvā devatā vāyum eva praviśya vāyau mṛtvā na mṛcchante: tasmād eva punar uḍirata ity adhidai-vatam; athādhyātmam.

12. Now next the dying around of the gods. This Brahman shines forth, indeed, when the fire burns; likewise this dies when it burns not. Its light goes to the sun alone and its vital breath to the wind; this Brahman shines forth, indeed, when the sun is seen; likewise this dies when (the sun) is not seen. Its light goes to the moon; its vital breath to the wind; this Brahman shines forth, indeed, when the moon is seen; likewise this dies when it is not seen; its light goes to the lightning and its vital breath to the wind; this Brahman shines forth, indeed, when the lightning lightens; likewise this dies when it lightens not, its light goes to the regions of space and its vital breath to the wind. All these divinities, verily, having entered into wind, though they die in the wind do not perish (altogether). Therefrom, indeed, they come forth again. This, with reference to the divinities: now with reference to the self.

Cp. Aitareya Brāhmaṇa VIII. 28.

13. etad vai brahma dīpyate yad vācā vadati, athaitan mriyate yan na vadati, tasya cakṣur eva tejo gacchati prāṇam prāṇa, etad vai brahma dīpyate yac cakṣuṣā paśyati, athaitan mriyate yan na paśyati. tasya śrotam eva tejo gacchati prāṇam prāṇa, etad vai brahma dīpyate yacchrotreṇa śṛnoti, athaitan mriyate yan na śṛnoti; tasya mana eva tejo gacchati prāṇam prāṇa, etad vai brahma dīpyate yan manasā dhyāyati, athaitan mriyate yan na dhyāyati; tasya prāṇam eva tejo gacchati prāṇam prāṇas tā vā etāḥ sarvā devatāḥ prāṇam eva praviśya prāṇe mṛtvā na mṛcchante, tasmād eva punar udīrate, tad yadi ha vā evaṃ vidvāmsam ubhau parvatāu abhipravarteyātām dakṣiṇas cottaras ca tustūrsamānau na hainam stṛṇvīyātām atha ya enam dviṣanti yān ca svayaṃ dvesti ta evainam parimriyante.

13. This Brahman shines forth, indeed, when one speaks with speech; likewise it dies when one speaks not, its light goes to the eye; its vital breath to the vital breath. This Brahman shines forth indeed when one sees with the eye; likewise this dies when one sees not; its light goes to the ear, its vital breath to the vital breath. This Brahman shines forth, indeed, when one hears with the ear; likewise this dies when one hears not, its light goes to the mind, its vital breath to the vital breath. This Brahman shines forth, indeed, when one thinks with the mind; likewise this dies when one thinks not; its light goes to the vital breath, its vital breath to the vital breath. All these deities, verily, having entered into the vital breath, though they die in the vital breath, do not perish (altogether). Therefore, indeed, they come forth again. So indeed on one who knows this, both the mountains, the southern and the northern, should roll themselves forth wishing to crush him, they would not crush him. But those who hate him and those whom he himself hates, these all die around him.

The Southern and the Northern mountains are the Vindhya and the Himālayas respectively.

14. athāto niḥśreyasādānam, etā ha vai devatā ahaṃ-śreyase vivadamānā asmāc charīrād uccakramuḥ tadd hāprāṇat śuṣkaṃ dārubhūtam śiṣye'thainad vāk praviveśa tad vācā vadac chiśya eva, athainac cakṣuḥ praviveśa tad vācā vadac cakṣuṣā paśyac chiśya eva, athainac chrotam praviveśa tad vācā vadac, cakṣuṣā

14. Now next the attainment of the highest excellence. All these divinities, verily, disputing among themselves in regard to self excellence went forth from this body. It (the body) lay, not breathing, withered, like a log of wood. Then speech entered into it. It just lay speaking with speech. Then the eye entered into it. It just lay speaking with speech and seeing with the eye. Then the ear entered into it. It just lay, speaking with speech, seeing with the eye and hearing with the ear. Then the mind entered into it. It just lay, speaking with the speech, seeing with the eye, hearing with the ear, thinking with the mind. Then the vital breath entered into it and then, indeed, it arose at once. All these divinities, verily, having recognised the superior excellence of the vital breath, having comprehended the vital breath alone as the self of intelligence, went forth from this body, all these together. They, having entered into the air, having the nature of space went to the heavenly world. Likewise also, he who knows this, having recognised the superior excellence of the vital breath, having comprehended the vital breath alone as the self of intelligence goes out of this body with all these. He, having entered into the air, having the nature of space, goes to the heavenly world. He goes to the place where these gods are. Having reached that, he who knows this becomes immortal as the gods are immortal.

See B.U. VI. 1. 1-14; C.U. V. 1.

niḥśreyasaṁ: highest excellence, sarvasmād utkarṣa-rūpo guṇo mokṣa-viśeṣaḥ.

ahaṁ-śreyase: in regard to self-excellence, in regard to one who was the most important among them.

uccakramuḥ: went forth, utkrāmanam cakruḥ.

śiśye: lay, śayanam kṛtavat.

tata eva: at once, prāṇa-praveśād eva.

15. athātaḥ pitā-putrīyaṁ sampradānam iti cācakṣate, pitā putram preṣyannāhvayati navaiś tṛṇair agāraṁ samstūrya agnīm upasamādhāyodakumbhaṁ sapātram upanidhāyāhataṇa vāsasā sampracchannah pitā śeta etya putra upariṣṭād abhinipadyata indriyair indriyāni samśprśyāpi vāsmā āsīnāyābhimukhāyaiva sampradadhyād, athāsmāi samprayacchati vācam me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, vācam te mayi dadha iti putrah, prāṇam me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, prāṇam te mayi dadha iti putrah, cakṣur me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, cakṣuṣ te mayi dadha iti putrah, śrotram me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, śrotram te mayi dadha iti putrah, anna-rasān me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, anna-rasān te mayi dadha iti putrah, karmāṇi me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, karmāṇi te mayi dadha iti putrah, sukha-duḥkhe me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, sukha-duḥkhe te mayi dadha iti putrah, ānandam ratim prajātim me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, ānandam ratim prajātim te mayi dadha iti putrah, ityām me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, ityām te mayi dadha iti putrah, mano me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, manas te mayi dadha iti putrah, prajñām me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, prajñām te mayi dadha iti putrah, yady u vā apābhigadaḥ syāt samāsenāya brūyāt, prāṇān me tvayi dadhānīti pitā, prāṇān te mayi dadha iti putrah, atha dakṣiṇāvṛd upaniṣkrāmāti, tam pitānumantrayate, yaśo brahma-varcasam kīrtiś tvā jṣatām iti, athetarāḥ savyam aṁsam nvavekṣate pāṇināntardhāya vasanāntena vā pracchādya, svargān lokān kāmān āpnukīti, sa yady agadaḥ syāt putras-yaiśvarye pitā vaset pari vā vrajet yady u vai preyāt yadevainaṁ samāpayeyuḥ, yathā samāpayitavyo bhavati, yathā samāpayitavyo bhavati.

15. Now next the father and son ceremony or the transmission (of tradition) as they call it. The father, when about to depart, calls his son. Having strewn the house with new (fresh) grass, having built up the fire, having placed near it a vessel of water with a jug (full of rice), himself covered with a fresh garment the father remains lying. The son, having come, approaches him from above, touching his organs with his organs or the father may transmit the tradition to him while he sits before him. Then he delivers over to him (thus): The father: 'Let me place my speech in you.' The son: 'I take your speech in me.' The father: 'Let me place my vital breath in you.' The son: 'I take your vital breath in me.' The father: 'Let me place my eye in you.' The son: 'I take your eye in me.' The father: 'Let me place my ear in you,' The son: 'I take your ear in me.' The father: 'Let me place my tastes of food in you.'

The son: 'I take your tastes of food in me.' The father: 'Let me place my deeds in you.' The son: 'I take your deeds in me.' The father: 'Let me place my pleasure and pain in you.' The son: 'I take your pleasure and pain in me.' The father: 'Let me place my bliss, enjoyment and procreation in you.' The son: 'I take your bliss, enjoyment and procreation in me.' The father: 'Let me place my movement in you.' The son: 'I take your movement in me.' The father: 'Let me place my mind in you.' The son: 'I take your mind in me.' The father: 'Let me place my wisdom in you.' The son: 'I take your wisdom in me.' If, however, he should be unable to speak much, let the father say comprehensively, 'I place my vital breaths in you,' and the son, 'I take your vital breaths in me.' Then turning to the right he goes forth towards the east. The father calls out after him. 'May fame, spiritual lustre and honour delight in you.' Then the other looks over his left shoulder. Having hidden his face with his hand or having covered it with the hem of his garment, he says, 'May you obtain heavenly worlds and all desires.' If he (father) becomes well (recovers) he should dwell under the authority of his son or wander about (as an ascetic). If, however, he departs, let them furnish him (with obsequies) as he ought to be furnished, as he ought to be furnished.

a vessel of water: nīreṇa pūrṇam kalaśam vrīhi-pūrṇa-pātra-sahitam. covered with a fresh garment: navīnena vastreṇa saṁvṛtaḥ. pītā śete: father remains lying; v. svayaṁ śyetaḥ; himself in white, śvetaḥ, śita-mālyāmbara-dharaḥ. dadhāni: dhārayāṇi.

After 'deeds,' in some versions we read, 'śarīraṁ me tvayi dadhānīti pītā, śarīraṁ te mayi dadha iti putraḥ.' The Father: 'Let me place my body in you.' The son, 'I take your body in me.' prajñā: wisdom; another reading, 'dhiyo vijñātavyam kāmān me tvayi. May I place my thoughts, my understanding and my desires in you, etc.

upābhigadaḥ: unable to speak much, pratyekam vaktum asamarthaḥ. honour: some versions have also annādyam: food to eat.

CHAPTER III

THE DOCTRINE OF LIFE BREATH

THE GREATEST GIFT IS THE KNOWLEDGE OF INDRA

I. pratardano ha vai daivodāsiḥ indrasya priyam dhāmo-pajagāma yuddhena ca pauruṣeṇa ca, tam hendra uvāca, pratardana, varam vṛṇīṣveti, sa hovāca pratardanaḥ, tvam eva me vṛṇīṣva yaṁ tvam manuṣyāya hitatamam manyasa iti, tam hendra uvāca, na vai varo' varasmai vṛṇīte, tvam eva vṛṇīṣveti, avaro vai kila meti, hovāca pratardanaḥ, atho khalv indraḥ satyād eva neyāya satyam hīndraḥ, tam hendra uvāca, mām eva vijānīhy etad evāham manuṣyāya hitatamam manye yaṁ mām vijānīyan triśīrṣānaṁ tvāṣṭram ahanam, arunmukhān yatīn sālāvṛkebhyaḥ prāyaccham, bahvīḥ sandhā atikramya divi prahlādīyān atṛnam aham antarikṣe paulomān, prthivyām kālakañjān, tasya me tatra na loma canāmīyate; sa yo mām veda na ha vai tasya kena cana karmanā loko mīyate, na steyena, na brūṇa-hatyayā, na mātṛ-vadhena, na pitṛ-vadhena nāsyā pāpam cakṛṣo mukhān nīlam, vetīti.

I. Pratardana, the son of Divodāsa, verily, by means of fighting and effort, arrived at the beloved abode of Indra. To him then Indra said, 'Pratardana, choose a boon.' Then Pratardana said, 'Do you yourself choose that boon for me which you deem the most beneficial for mankind.' Indra said to him: 'A superior verily, chooses not for an inferior. Do you yourself choose.' 'No boon, verily, is that to me,' said Pratardana. Then, however, Indra did not swerve from the truth for Indra, verily, is truth. To him then Indra said, 'Understand me only. That is what I deem most beneficial for mankind, namely that one should understand me. I slew the three-headed son of Tvaṣṭri. I delivered the arunmukhas, the ascetics, to the wolves. Transgressing many agreements, I killed the people of Prahlāda in the sky, the Paulomas in the atmosphere, the Kālakañjas on earth. Of me, such as I was then, not a single hair was injured. So he who knows me thus, by no deed whatsoever of his is his world injured, not by stealing, not by killing an embryo, not by the killing of his mother, not by the killing of his father. If he wishes to commit a sin the dark colour does not depart from his face.

Indra, in this passage, speaks in the name of the Supreme Being.

Vāmadeva does it according to the R.V. IV. 26. 1. The individual self is really one with the Universal Self though unenlightened people are not aware of this unity. Those who know and feel it sometimes speak in the name of the Universal Spirit.

the son of Divodāsa: divodāsasya kāśi-rājasya putro daivodāsiḥ. 'A superior chooses not for an inferior' or 'no one who chooses, chooses for another,' na vai varah parasmai vṛṇīte anyārtham na vṛṇīte' nyo na prārthayate yata evam atah svārtham varam tvam eva vṛṇīṣveti.

As he is bound by the vow of truth, Indra grants Pratardana his desire, satya-pāśābhibaddhaḥ.

For Indra's exploits referred to here, see R.V. X. 8. 89; X. 99. 6; Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa I. 2. 3. 2; XII. 7. 1. 1; Taittirīya Saṁhitā 2. 5. 1. 1 ff.; Aitareya Brāhmaṇa VII. 28.

wolves: wild dogs. aranya-svabhyah.

atṛnam: killed, himsitavān.

mīyate: injured, himsyate.

nīlam: dark colour; bloom: mukha-kānti-svarūpam. He does not become pale.

When we attain supreme wisdom and are delivered from the delusion of egotism, our good and evil deeds do not touch us. We have died to the possibility of doing anything evil.

INDRA'S IDENTITY WITH LIFE AND IMMORTALITY

2. sa hovāca, prāṇo'smi, prajñātmā taṁ mām āyur amṛtam ity upāsva, āyuh prāṇah, prāṇo vā āyuh, yāvadd hy asmin śarīre prāṇo vasati tāvad āyuh, prāṇena hu evāsmiṁ loka'mṛtatvam āpnoti, prajñayā satyaṁ saṁkalpam, sa yo mām āyur amṛtam ity upāste sarvaṁ āyur asmin loka ety āpnoti amṛtatvam akṣitīm svarge loka; tadd haika āhur ekabhūyaṁ vai prāṇā gacchantīti, na hi kaścana śaknuyāt sakrd vācā nāma prajñāpayitum, cakṣuṣā rūpam, śrotreṇa śabdā, manasā dhyānam, ekabhūyaṁ vai prāṇā bhūtvaikaikam etāni sarvāni prajñāpayantīti, vācam vadantīni sarve prāṇā anuvadanti, cakṣuḥ paśyat sarve prāṇā anupaśyanti, śrotraṁ śṛṇvat sarve prāṇā anuśṛṇvanti, mano dhyāyat sarve prāṇā anudhyāyanti, prāṇaṁ prāṇantam sarve prāṇā anuprāṇanti, evam u haitad iti hendra uvācāsti tv eva prāṇānām niḥśreyasam iti.

2. Indra then said: 'I am the breathing spirit, meditate on me as the intelligent self, as life, as immortality. Life is breath and breath is life. For as long as breath remains in the body so long is there life. For indeed with the breathing spirit one obtains immortality in this world, by intelligence true conception. So he who meditates on me as life, as immortality he reaches his full (term of) life in this world and obtains immortality and indestructibility in the heavenly world. Now on this point some say the vital breaths, verily, go into a oneness, (otherwise) no one would be able, at once, to make known a name by speech, a form by the eye, a sound by the ear, a thought by the mind. The vital breaths, after having become one, make known all these one by one. While speech speaks, all the vital breaths speak after it. While the eye sees all, the vital breaths see after it. While the ear hears, all the vital breaths hear after it. When the breath breathes, all the vital breaths breathe after it. Thus is it indeed,' said Indra. 'There is, however (he continued), a superior excellence amongst the vital breaths.'

prajñātmā: the intelligence self, buddhi-vṛtti-pratiphalita-prajñā-naika-svabhāvaḥ.

Indra is life or the source of life of all creatures, sarva-prāṇinām jīvana-kāraṇam.

3. jīvati vāg-apeto mūkān hi paśyāmaḥ, jīvati cakṣur-apeto'ndhān hi paśyāmaḥ, jīvati śrotṛapeto badhirān hi paśyāmaḥ, jīvati mano'peto bālān hi paśyāmaḥ, jīvati bāhuchinno jīvaty ūru-chinna ity evaṃ hi paśyāmaḥ iti, atha khalu prāṇa eva prajñāt-medam śarīram parigrhyotthāpayati, tasmād etad evoktāṃ upāsīteti, saishā prāṇe sarvāptir yo vai prāṇaḥ sā prajñā, yā vā prajñā sa prāṇaḥ, tasyaiśaiva dṛṣṭir etad vijñānam, yatrāitat puruṣaḥ suptāḥ svapnān na kañcana paśyaty athāsmiṃ prāṇa evaikadhā bhavati, tad enam vāk sarvair nāmabhiḥ sahāpyeti, cakṣuḥ sarvair rūpāiḥ sahāpyeti, śrotṛam sarvair śabdair sahāpyeti, manāḥ sarvair dhyānair sahāpyeti, sa yadā pratibudhyate yathāgner jvalataḥ sarvādiśo viśphuliṅgā vipratīṣṭheraṇ eva evaitasmād ātmanāḥ prāṇā yathāyatanaṃ vipratīṣṭhante prāṇebhyo devāḥ, devebhyo lokāḥ, sa eṣa prāṇa eva prajñātmedam śarīram parigrhyotthāpayati, tasmād etad evoktāṃ upāsīteti, saishā prāṇe sarvāptiḥ, yo vai prāṇaḥ sā prajñā yā vā prajñā sa prāṇaḥ, tasyaiśaiva siddhir etad vijñānam, yatrāitat puruṣa ārto marīṣyanābalyam etya sammoham eti, tam āhur udakramīt cittam, na śṛṇoti, na paśyati, na vācā vadati, na dhyāyati, athāsmiṃ prāṇa evaikadhā bhavati, tad enam vāk sarvair nāmabhiḥ sahāpyeti, cakṣuḥ sarvair rūpāiḥ sahāpyeti, śrotṛam sarvair śabdair sahāpyeti, manāḥ sarvair dhyānair sahāpyeti, sa yadāsmāc charirād utkrāmati sahaivaitair sarvair utkrāmati.

3. One lives deprived of speech for we see the dumb; one lives deprived of eye for we see the blind; one lives deprived of ear for we see the deaf; one lives deprived of mind for we see the childish; one lives deprived of arms; one lives deprived of legs for thus we see. But now it is the breathing spirit alone, the intelligence self that seizes hold of this body and makes it rise up. This, therefore, one should meditate on as the uktha, it is said. This is the all-obtaining in the breathing spirit. What is the breathing spirit, that is the intelligence-self. What is the intelligence-self, that is the breathing spirit. This is the view thereof, this is the understanding thereof. When a person is so asleep that he sees no dream whatever, he becomes one with that breathing spirit alone. Then speech together with all the names goes to him; the eye together with all forms goes to it; the ear together with all sounds goes to it, the mind together with all thoughts goes to it. When he awakes, even as sparks proceed in all directions from a blazing fire, even so from this self the vital breaths proceed to their respective stations, from the vital powers the gods (the sense powers) and from the gods the worlds. This same breathing spirit, the intelligence self seizes hold of the body and makes it rise up. This, therefore, one should meditate on as the uktha, it is said. This is the all-obtaining in the breathing spirit. What is the breathing spirit, that is the intelligence self, what is the intelligence self, that is the breathing spirit. This is the proof thereof, this is the understanding. When a sick person about to die gets to such weakness as to fall into a stupor they say of him, his thought has departed, he does not hear, he does not see, he does not speak with speech, he does not think. He becomes one in that breathing spirit alone. Then speech together with all thoughts goes to it. And when he departs from this body, he departs together with all these.

'What is the breathing spirit that is the intelligence self; what is the intelligence self that is the breathing spirit.' In some texts we find also, 'for together they live in this body and together they go out of it.' saha hy etāv asmin śarīre vasataḥ sahotkramataḥ.

The intelligence self grasps the breath and erects the flesh. Cp. St. Thomas Aquinas: 'The power of the soul which is in the semen through the spirit enclosed therein fashions the body.' Summa Theo. III. 32. 1.

vipratīṣṭhante: proceed in different directions, vividhaṁ nirgacchanti. maṛiṣyan: about to die, maṛaṇam karīṣyan, āsanna-maraṇa iti. abalyam: weakness, abalasya dūrbalasya bhāva abalyam, hasta-pādādy avaśatvam.

udakramīt: has departed, utkramaṇam akarot.

LIFE-BREATH THE ALL-OBTAINING

4. vāg evāsmiṇ sarvāṇi nāmāṇy abhivisrjyante; vācā sarvāṇi nāmāṇy āpnoti. prāṇa evāsmiṇ sarve gandhā abhivisrjyante, prāṇena sarvān gandhān āpnoti, cakṣur evāsmiṇ sarvāṇi rūpāṇy abhivisrjyante, cakṣuṣā sarvāṇi rūpāṇy āpnoti. śrotram evāsmiṇ sarve śabdā abhivisrjyante, śrotreṇa sarvān śabdān āpnoti, mana evāsmiṇ sarvāṇi dhyānāṇy abhivisrjyante, manasā sarvāṇi dhyānāṇy āpnoti. saha hy etāvāsmiṇ śarīre vasataḥ sahotkrāmataḥ, atha yathāsyai prajñāyai sarvāṇi bhūtāṇy ekam bhavanti, tad vyākhyāsyāmaḥ.

4. Speech gives up to him (who is absorbed in life-breath) all names; by speech he obtains all names. Breath gives up to him all odours; by breath he obtains all odours. The eye gives up to him all forms; by the eye he obtains all forms. The ear gives up to him all sounds, by the ear he obtains all sounds. The mind gives up to him all thoughts; by the mind he obtains all thoughts. Verily, these two together dwell in the body and together they depart. Now we will explain how all beings become one with this intelligence.

abhivisrjyante: v. abhivisrjate: gives up, sarvataḥ parityajati. prāṇa: life; v. ghrāṇa: nose.

After the account about mind there is the following passage in some texts: saiśa prāṇe sarvāptir yo vai prāṇaḥ sā prajñā yā vā prajñā sa prāṇaḥ. This is the all-obtaining in the breathing spirit. And what is the breathing spirit, that is intelligence and what is intelligence, that is the breathing spirit.

The two, the vital and the intellectual, live together and depart together.

CORRELATION OF INDIVIDUAL FUNCTIONS AND OBJECTS OF EXISTENCE

5. vāg evāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tasyai nāma parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, prāṇa evāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tasya gandhaḥ, parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, cakṣur evāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tasya rūpaṁ parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, śrotram evāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tasya śabdaḥ parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, jihvārvāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tasyā anna-rasaḥ parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, hastāv evāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tayoh karma parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, śarīram evāsyā ekam āṅgam udūlham, tasya sukha-duḥkhe parastāt prativihitā bhūta-mātrā, upastha evāsyā ekam āṅgam

5. Speech is one portion taken out of it. Name is its externally correlated object element. Breath is one portion taken out of it. Order is its externally correlated object element. The eye is one portion taken out of it. Form is its externally correlated object element. The ear is one portion taken out of it. Sound is its externally correlated object element. The tongue is one portion taken out of it. Taste of food is its externally correlated object element. The two hands are one portion taken out of it. Work is their externally correlated object element. The body is one portion taken out of it. Pleasure and pain are its externally correlated object element. The generative organ is one portion taken out of it. Bliss, delight and procreation are its externally correlated object element. The two feet are one portion taken out of it. Movements are their externally correlated object element. The mind is one portion taken out of it. Thoughts and desires are its externally correlated object element.

Speech, etc., are parts of intelligence, prajñāyā vibhāgam, with objects corresponding to them in the outside world. The objects are described as the external existential elements.

udūlham: taken out, lifted up. Commentator reads adūdham adūduhat. milked.

THE SUPREMACY OF INTELLIGENCE

6. Having obtained control of speech by intelligence, by speech one obtains all names. Having obtained control of breath by intelligence, by breath one obtains all odours. Having obtained control of the eye by intelligence, by the eye one obtains all forms. Having obtained control of the ear by intelligence, by the ear one obtains all sounds. Having obtained control of the tongue by intelligence, by the tongue one obtains all tastes of food. Having obtained control of the hands by intelligence, by the hands are obtained all actions. Having obtained control of the body by intelligence, by the body one attains pleasure and pain. Having attained control over the generative organ by intelligence, by the generative organ one obtains bliss, delight and procreation. Having attained control of the two feet by intelligence, by the two feet one obtains all movements. Having obtained control of the mind by intelligence, by the mind one obtains all thoughts.

samāruhya: having attained control. Literally, having mounted on, samyak ārohaṇam kṛtvā.

7. na hi prajñāpetā vān nāma kiñcana prajñāpayet, anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etan nāma prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetak prāno gandharī kañcana prajñāpayet, anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etam gandham prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetam cakṣūrupam kiñcana prajñāpayet, anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etad rūpam prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetam śrotram śabdām kañcana prajñāpayet anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etam śabdām prajñāsiṣam iti; na hi prajñāpetā jīhvānna-rasam kañcana prajñāpayet anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etam anna-rasam prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetau hastau karma kiñcana prajñāpayetām anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etat karma prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetam śarīram sukhām na duḥkham kiñcana prajñāpayet anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etat sukham na duḥkham prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetā upastha ānandam na ratim na prajātim kañcana prajñāpayet anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etam ānandam na ratim na prajātim prajñāsiṣam iti, na hi prajñāpetau pādāv ityām kañcana prajñāpayetām anyatra me mano'bhūd ity āha nāham etam ityām prajñāsiṣam iti na hi prajñāpetā dhīḥ kācana sidhyen na prajñā-tavyam prajñāyeta.

7. For verily, without intelligence, speech does not make known (to the self) any name whatsoever. 'My mind was elsewhere,' he says, 'I did not cognise that name.' For, verily, without intelligence breath does not make known any odour whatsoever. 'My mind was elsewhere,' he says. 'I did not cognise that odour.' For verily, without intelligence the eye does not make known any form whatsoever. 'My mind was elsewhere,' he says, 'I did not cognise that form.' For, verily, without intelligence the ear does not make known any sound whatsoever. 'My mind was elsewhere,' he says, 'I did not cognise that sound.' For verily, without intelligence the tongue does not make known any taste of food whatsoever. 'My mind was elsewhere,' he says, 'I did not cognise that taste of food.' For, verily, without intelligence, the two hands do not make known any action whatsoever. 'Our mind was elsewhere,' they say, 'we did not cognise any act.' For, verily, without intelligence, the body does not make known pleasure or pain whatsoever, 'my mind was elsewhere,' he says, 'I did not cognise that pleasure or pain.' For, verily, without intelligence, the generative organ does not make known bliss, delight and procreation whatsoever. 'My mind was elsewhere,' he says, 'I did not cognise bliss, delight or procreation.' For, verily, without intelligence the two feet do not make known any movement whatsoever. 'Our mind was elsewhere,' they say, 'we did not cognise that movement.' Without intelligence no thought whatsoever would be effective. Nothing that can be cognised would be cognised.

8. Speech is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the speaker. Odour is not what one should desire to understand, one should know him who smells (the odour). Form is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the seer (of form). Sound is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the hearer. Taste of food is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the discernor of the taste of food. The deed is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the doer. Pleasure and pain are not what one should desire to understand, one should know the discernor of pleasure and pain. Bliss, delight and procreation are not what one should desire to understand, one should know the discernor of bliss, delight and procreation. Movement is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the mover. Mind is not what one should desire to understand, one should know the minder (the thinker). These ten existential elements are with reference to intelligence. The ten intelligence elements are with reference to existence. For, truly, if there were no elements of existence, there would be no elements of intelligence. Verily, if there were no elements of intelligence, there would be no elements of existence. For from either alone no form whatsoever would be possible. And this (the self of intelligence) is not many. For as in a chariot the felly is fixed on the spokes and the spokes are fixed on the hub, even so these elements of existence are fixed on the elements of intelligence and the elements of intelligence are fixed in the breathing spirit. This same breathing spirit is, truly, the intelligent self, bliss, ageless, immortal. He does not become great by good action nor small by evil action. This one, truly, indeed causes him whom he wishes to lead up from these worlds to perform good actions. This one, indeed, also causes him whom he wishes to lead downward, to perform bad action. He is the protector of the world, he is the sovereign of the world, he is the lord of all. He is my self, this one should know; he is my self, this one should know.

We should know the subject as also the object. Knowing and being are correlated. The correlativity of the subjective (prajñā-mātrā) and the objective (bhūta-mātrā) factors is recognised. Interaction between the two gives us the knowledge of the external world. Cp. Dīgha Nikāya: 'There must be the organ of sense, the appropriate object and the sense cognition. In the coming together of the three in a single mental operation lies the possibility of sensation.' I, p. 42.

The true subject is the Universal Self. The activity of the individual self is derived from the Supreme. It is not independent of Īśvara: jīvasya kartṛtvam parād eva bhavati, na tu tat īśvara-nirapekṣam. S.B. II. 3. 41.

CHAPTER IV

A PROGRESSIVE DEFINITION OF BRAHMAN

1. atha ha vai gārgyo bālākir anūcānaḥ saṁspaṣṭa āsa, so' vasad uśinareṣu savasan matsyeṣu kurupañcāleṣu kāśivideheṣu iti, sa hājātaśatruṁ kāśyam ābrajyovāca: brahma te bravāṇīti, taṁ hovāca ajātaśatruḥ sahasraṁ dadma iti, etasyām vāci janako janaka iti vā u janā dhāvanti.

1. Now then, verily, there was Gārgya Bālāki, famous as learned in the scriptures, for it was said of him that he dwelt among the Uśīnaras, among the Matsyas, among the Kuru-pañcālas, among the Kāśividehas. He, having come to Ajātaśatru of Kāśi, said, Let me declare Brahman to you. To him Ajātaśatru, then, said: 'A thousand (cows) we give to you.' At such a speech as this, verily, indeed, people would run about saying, Janaka, Janaka.

See B.U. II. 1.

The breathing spirit associated with prajñā or intelligence was explained in the preceding chapter. Even this, it is now said, is not the highest self.

saṁspaṣṭaḥ: famous, sarvatra prathita-kīrtiḥ.

savasan matsyeṣu: v. satvanmatsyeṣu: among the satvatmatsyas.

janaka: father, the name of the king of Mithila, who was famous for his knowledge of Brahman: brahma-vidyāyāḥ sopāyāyāḥ dātā vaktā ca pitety evam . . . mīlhitēśvaram eva gacchanti.

2. āditye byhac, candramasy annam, vidyuti satyam, stanay-itnau śabdo, vāyāv indro vaikunṭha, ākāśe pūrṇam, agnau viśāsahir iti, apsu teja ity adhidaivatam; athādhyaत्मam: ādarṣe pratrūrpaśchāyāyām dvitīyāḥ, pratiśrutkāyām asur iti śabde mrtyuḥ, svapne yamaḥ, śarīre prajāpatiḥ, dakṣiṇe akṣiṇi vācaḥ; savye'kṣiṇi satyasya.

2. In the sun the great, in the moon food, in lightning truth, in thunder sound, in wind Indra Vaikuṇṭha, in space fullness, in fire the vanquisher, in water light, thus with reference to the divinities. Now with reference to the self: in the mirror the reflection, in the shadow the double, in the echo life, in sound death, in sleep Yama (the lord of death), in the body Prajā-pati, in the right eye speech, in the left eye truth.

This passage provides a kind of table of contents for the discussions which follow.

BRAHMAN IN VARIOUS COSMIC PHENOMENA

3. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa āditye puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhā brhat-pāṇḍura-vāsā atiṣṭhāḥ sarveṣām bhūtānām mūrdheti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste'tiṣṭhāḥ sarveṣām bhūtānām mūrdhā bhavati.

3. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the sun, on him indeed do I meditate.' To him, then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him who is the great, clad in white raiment, the supreme, the head of all beings. He who meditates on him thus becomes indeed supreme, the head of all beings.'

4. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa candramasi puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhā annasyātmēti vā aham etam upāsa iti. sa yo haitam evam upāste 'nnasyātmā bhavati.

4. Then Bālāki said: 'The person who is in the moon, on him indeed do I meditate.' To him, then, Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the self of food. He who meditates on him thus becomes, indeed, the self of food.'

Under whatever qualities we meditate on the Supreme we ourselves become possessed of those qualities.

5. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa vidyuti puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ satyasyātmēti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste, satyasyātmā bhavati.

5. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the lightning on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the self of truth. He who meditates on him thus becomes, indeed, the self of truth.'

The self of truth; v. tejasyātmā: the self of light.

6. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa stanayitnau puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ śabdasyātmēti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste śabdasyātmā bhavati.

6. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the thunder, on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the self of sound. He who meditates on him thus becomes, indeed, the self of sound.'

7. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa vāyan puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, indro vaikuṇṭha'parājita seneti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste jiṣṇur ha vā aparājajayiṣṇur anyatastyajāyī bhavati.

7. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the air, on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as Indra Vaikuṇṭha, the unconquered army. He who meditates on him thus becomes indeed the triumphant, the unconquerable, a conqueror of others.'

jiṣṇuḥ: triumphant, jayana-śīlaḥ.

aparājajayiṣṇuḥ: unconquerable, parair jetum aśakya-śīlaḥ.

8. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa ākāśe puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, pūrṇam apravṛtti brahmeti vā aham etam upāsa iti sa yo haitam evam upāste pūryate prajayā paśubhir yaśasā brahma-varcasena svargeṇa lokena sarvaṁ āyur eti.

8. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in space on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the full nonactive Brahman. He who meditates on him thus becomes filled with offspring, cattle, fame, the radiance of Brahma-knowledge and the heavenly world. He reaches the full term of life.'

a-pravṛtti: nonactive, kriyā-śūnyam.

9. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣo'gnau puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, viśāsahir iti vā aham etam upāsa iti sa ho haitam evam upāste viśāsahir ha vā anyeṣu bhavati.

9. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in fire on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the irresistible. He then who meditates on him thus, verily, becomes irresistible among others.'

viśāsahir: irresistible, vividha-sahana-śīlaḥ or duḥsahāḥ.

10. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣo'psu puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, tejasa ātmeti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste tejasa ātmā bhavati, iti adhidaivatam, athādhyātmanam.

10. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in water on him indeed do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the self of light. He then who meditates on him thus verily becomes the self of light.' Thus with reference to the divinities. Now with reference to the self.

the self of light: v. nāmnasya ātmā, the self of name, its source, kāraṇam.

11. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa ādarṣe puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, pratirūpa iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste pratirūpo haivāsya prajāyām ajāyate nāpratirūpaḥ.

11. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the mirror on him indeed do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the (reflected) likeness. He then who meditates on him thus a very likeness of him is born in his offspring, not an unlikeness.'

pratirūpaḥ: likeness, sadṛśaḥ.

12. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa chayāyām puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, dvitīyo'napaga iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste vindate dvitīyāt, dvitīyavān hi bhavati.

12. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the shadow on him indeed do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the inseparable second. He then who meditates on him thus obtains from his second and becomes possessed of his second.'

anapagaḥ: inseparable, apagamana-sūnyaḥ.

from his second: his wife.

possessed of his second: possessed of offspring. putra-pautṛādibhir bhavati.

13. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa pratiśrutkāyām puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin samvādayiṣṭhāḥ, asur iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste na purā kālāt sammohanam eti.

13. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the echo on him indeed do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as life. He then who meditates on him thus, he does not pass into unconsciousness before his time.'

echo, v. chāyā: shadow.

He does not pass into unconsciousness, does not die before his time: sammoham maranam.

14. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa śabde puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ mṛtyur iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste na purā kālāt praiṭīti.

14. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in sound on him indeed do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as death. He then who meditates on him thus, does not die before his time.'

15. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaitat puruṣaḥ suptaḥ svaḥṇayā carati tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ, yamo rājeti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste sarvaṁ hāsmā idam śraiṣṭhyāya yamyate.

15. Then Bālāki said, 'The person, who, while asleep, moves about in a dream on him indeed do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as King Yama. He then who meditates on him thus, all here is subdued for his excellence (welfare).'

śraiṣṭhyāya: for his excellence, adhikativāya.

16. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa śarīre puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ, prajāpatiḥ iti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāste prajāyate prajāyā paśubhir yaśasā brahma-varcasena svargena lokena sarvaṁ āyur eti.

16. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the body on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as Prajāpati (the lord of creation). He then who meditates on him thus, becomes increased with offspring, cattle, fame, the radiance of sanctity, the heavenly world, he reaches the full term of life.'

prajāyate: becomes increased, vṛddhir bhavati.

17. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa dakṣiṇe'kṣiṇi puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ, vāca ātmāgner ātmā jyotiṣa ātmeti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāsta eteṣāṁ sarveṣāṁ ātmā bhavati.

17. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the right eye on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the self of speech, the self of fire, the self of light. He then who meditates on him thus becomes the self of all these.'

18. sa hovāca bālākiḥ, ya evaiṣa savye'kṣiṇi puruṣas tam evāham upāsa iti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mā maitasmin saṁvādayiṣṭhāḥ, satyasyātmā, vidyuta ātmā, tejasa ātmeti vā aham etam upāsa iti, sa yo haitam evam upāsta eteṣāṁ sarveṣāṁ ātmā bhavati.

18. Then Bālāki said, 'The person who is in the left eye on him, indeed, do I meditate.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'Do not make me to converse on him. I meditate on him as the self of truth, the self of lightning, the self of light. He then who meditates on him thus becomes the self of all these.'

THE UNIVERSAL SELF IN THE HEART

19. tata u ha bālākis tūṣṇīm āsa, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, etāvann u bālākā iti, etāvad iti hovāca bālākiḥ, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, mṛṣā vai khalu mā saṁvādayiṣṭhā brahma te bravāṇīti, yo vai bālāka eteṣāṁ puruṣāṇām kartā, yasya vai tat karma, sa vai veditavya iti: tata u ha bālākiḥ samit pāṇiḥ praticakrama upāyanīti, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, pratiloma rūpam eva tan manye yat kṣatriyo brāhmaṇam upanayetaiḥ vyeva, tvā jñāpayiṣyāmīti, tam ha pāṇāv abhipādyā pravavṛāja tau ha suptam puruṣam ājagmatuḥ, tam hājātaśatruḥ āmantrayām-cakre, brhat pāṇḍara-vāsaḥ soma-rājann iti, sa u ha śiṣya eva, tata u hainam yaṣṭyāviciḥkṣepa sa tata eva samuttasthau tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, kvaṣa etad bālāke puruṣo'śayiṣṭa, kvaitad abhūt, kuta etad āgād iti, tata u ha bālākir va vijajñe, tam hovāca ajātaśatruḥ, yatraiṣa etad bālāke puruṣo'śayiṣṭa, yatrāitad pabhūt, yata etad āgād iti, hitā nāma puruṣasya nādyo hṛdayāt urītatam abhipratanvanti, tad yathā sahasradhā keśo vipātitas tāvad anvyah piṅgalasyānimnā tiṣṭhanti, śuklasya kṛṣṇasya pītasya lohitasya ca, tāsu tadā bhavati yadā suptah svapnam na kañcana paśyati.

19. After this Bālāki became silent. Then Ajātaśatru said to him, 'Thus far only (do you know), O Bālāki?' 'Thus far only,' replied Bālāki. To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'In vain indeed did you make me to converse saying, "Let me declare Brahman to you," He, verily, O Bālāki, who is the maker of these persons (whom you have mentioned in succession), he of whom all this is the work, he alone is to be known.' Thereupon Bālāki, with fuel in his hand, approached, saying, 'Receive me as a pupil.' To him then Ajātaśatru said, 'This I deem a form (of conduct) contrary to nature that a Kṣatriya should receive a Brāhmaṇa as a pupil. Come, I shall make you understand.' Then taking him by the hand he went forth. The two then came upon a person asleep. Then Ajātaśatru called him (saying), 'You great one, clad in white raiment, King Soma.' But he just lay silent. Thereupon he pushed him with a stick. He got up at once. To him, then, Ajātaśatru said: 'Where, in this case, O Bālāki, has this person lain, what has become of him here, from where has he returned here?' Thereupon (of this) Bālāki did not know. To him, then, Ajātaśatru said: Where, in this case, O Bālāki, this person has lain, what has become of him here, from where has he returned here, as I asked, is the channels of a person called hitā extending from heart to the surrounding body (pericardium). As minute as a hair divided a thousandfold, they consist of a thin essence (fluid) white, black, yellow and red. In these, one remains, while asleep he sees no dream whatsoever.

See B.U. II. 1. 16.

mṛṣā: in vain, vitatham.

vedītavyaḥ: is to be known, directly apprehended, sākṣātkāraṇīyaḥ.

When the Brāhmaṇa became humbled in his pride, the king accepted him as his pupil, apagata-garvam brāhmaṇam dīnatamām avasthām prāptam.

śiṣye: lay silent, śayanam cakre; v. śiṣya: pupil.

avicikṣepa: pushed, ā samantāt tādītavān.

20. Then in this life-breath alone he becomes one. Then speech together with all names goes to it. The eye together with all forms goes to it. The ear together with all sounds goes to it. The mind together with all thoughts goes to it. And when he awakes, then, as from a blazing fire sparks proceed in all directions, even so from this self the vital breaths proceed to their respective stations; from vital breaths, the sense powers; from the sense powers the worlds. This very life-spirit, even the self of intelligence has entered this bodily self to the very hairs and nails. Just as a razor might be hidden in a razor-case or as fire in the fireplace, even so this self of intelligence has entered this bodily self up to the very hairs and nails. On that self these other selves depend as upon a chief his own (men). Just as a chief enjoys his own (men) or as his own (men) are of service to a chief, even so this sense of intelligence enjoys these (other) selves, even so the (other) selves are of service to that self (of intelligence). Verily, as long as Indra did not understand this self, so long did the demons overcome him. When he understood, then (the self) having struck down and overcome the demons, he attained pre-eminence among all gods and all beings, sovereignty and overlordship. So also he who knows this, striking off all evils, attains pre-eminence, sovereignty and overlordship over all beings—he who knows this, yea, he who knows this.

abhībabhūvuh: overcame, humiliated, abhībhavam parābhavam cakruḥ.

MAITRĪ UPANIṢAD

The Maitrī or Maitrāyaṇīya Upaniṣad, belongs to the Maitrāyaṇīya śākhā or branch of the Black Yajur Veda.¹ Maitrī is the principal teacher and Maitrāyaṇa is the name of the śākhā to which the Upaniṣad belongs. It contains seven chapters of which the last two are comparatively modern. The whole Upaniṣad is later in date than the classical Upaniṣads which it quotes frequently.² We have a reference to the trimūrti conception Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva in IV. 5, which also indicates the late date of the Upaniṣad. The three forms are traced to the three guṇas, rajas, sattva and tamas in V. 2. Suggestions of the illusory character of the world, momentariness of phenomena show the influence of Buddhist thought. Rāmatīrtha's commentary on the Upaniṣad is of much interest.

¹ In some texts it is assigned to the Sāma Veda.

² From the grammatical peculiarities found in this Upaniṣad Max Müller ascribes the Upaniṣad 'to an early rather than to a late period, possibly to an anti-Pāṇinian period.' Sacred Books of the East, Vol. XV (1900), p. 6.

CHAPTER I

MEDITATION ON THE SELF. EVANESCENCE OF THE WORLD

1. brahma-yajño vā eṣa yat pūrveṣāṁ cayanam, tasmād yajamānas citvaitān agnīn ātmānam abhidhyāyet; sa pūrnah khalu vā addhā'vikalaḥ sampadyate yajñah, kaḥ so'bhidhyeyo'yam yaḥ prānākhyah; tasyopākhyānam.

1. A sacrifice to Brahman, indeed, is the laying (of the sacrificial fires) of the ancients. Therefore let the sacrificer, having laid these fires, meditate on the self. Thus, verily, does the sacrifice become complete and flawless. Who is he that is to be meditated upon? He who is called life. Of him there is this story.

pūrveṣāṁ: of the ancients or formerly described. The performance of the sacrifices described previously in the Maitrāyaṇa Brāhmaṇa is to lead up in the end to the knowledge of Brahman.

According to Rāmātīrtha,¹ the purpose of the Upaniṣad is to show that ceremonial works insofar as they contribute to produce the knowledge of the Supreme Self are themselves indirect causes of the highest end of man: sarveṣāṁ karmaṇām paramātma-jñāna-janmopakāra-katvena parama-puruṣārtha-hetutvaṁ darśayitum śrutiḥ pravavṛte.

khalu: verily. niścitam vai prasiddham.

2. bṛhadratho vai nāma rājā virājye putraṁ nidhāpayittvedam aśāsvatam manyamānaḥ śarīram vairāgyam upeto'ranyam nirjagāma. sa tatra paramaṁ tapa āsthāyādityam udīkṣamāna ūrdhva-bāhus tiṣṭhati; ante sahasrasya munir antikam ājagāmāgnir ivā dhūmakas tejasā nirdahann ivātmavid bhagavañ śākāyanyah, utthiṣṭhothiṣṭha varam vṛnīṣveti rājānam abravīt, sa tasmāi namaskṛtvovāca, bhagavan, nāham ātmavit tvaṁ tattvavit śuśrumo vayam, sa tvaṁ no brūhīti; etad vṛttam purastād duḥśakyaṁ etat-praśnam aikṣvākānyān kāmān vṛnīṣveti śākāyanyah, śirasāsya caraṇāv abhimṛśamāno rājemāṁ gāthāṁ jagāda.

2. Verily, a king, Bṛhadratha by name, after having established his son in the kingdom, reflecting that this body is non-eternal, reaching the state of non-attachment (to the things of the world) went into the forest. There, performing extreme austerity, he stands, with uplifted arms, gazing at the sun. At the end of a thousand (days) there came into the presence of the ascetic, like a fire without smoke, burning as it were with glow, the revered Śākāyanya, the knower of the self. He said unto the king: 'Arise, arise, choose a boon.' He did his obeisance and said, 'O Revered One, I know not the self. We have heard that you know its nature. So tell it unto us.' Śākāyanya replied, 'Such things used to occur formerly. Very difficult (to answer) is this question. O Aikṣvāka, choose other desires.' The king, touching his (Śākāyanya's) feet with his head recited this utterance.

sahasrasya: a thousand; at the end of a thousand years, sahasrasaṁvatsarānte. V. sahasrāhasya, a thousand days.

tattvavit: ātmataṭṭvasya vettā: the knower of the nature of the self.

duṣṣakyaṁ: duṣṣakam vaktum śrotum ca durlabham etat.

aikṣvaka: iṣṣvāku-kulodbhava.

3. bhagavann asthi-carma-snāyu-majjā-māṁsa-śukra-sonita śleṣmā-sru-duṣīkā-viṇ-mūtra-vāta-pitta-kapha-samghate durgandhe niḥsāre'smin śarīre kiṁ kāmopabhogaīḥ? kāma-krodha-lobhā-moha-bhaya-viṣādersyeṣṭaviyogāniṣṭa-samprayoga-kṣut-pīpāsā-jarā mrtyu-roga-śokādyaṁ abhigate asmin śarīre kiṁ kāmopabhogaīḥ?

3. O Revered One, in this foul-smelling, unsubstantial body, a conglomerate of bone, skin, muscle, marrow, flesh, semen, blood, mucus, tears, rheum, faeces, urine, wind, bile and phlegm, what is the good of the enjoyment of desires? In this body which is afflicted with desire, anger, covetousness, delusion, fear, despondency, envy, separation from what is desired, union with the undesired, hunger, thirst, old age, death, disease, sorrow and the like, what is the good of the enjoyment of desires?

niḥsāre: unsubstantial, kadalīstambhavan niḥsāre, antah-sāra-varjite.

kāma: desire, desire for what one has not got, aprāptābhilāṣaḥ.

moha: delusion, anarthē'rtha-buddhiḥ.

Such descriptions of the human being occur in Buddhist literature and are intended to create disgust for the human existence.

Cp. Mamu VI. 62.

'On their separation from those whom they love and their union with those whom they hate; on their strength overpowered by old age and their bodies racked with disease.'

4. sarvaṁ cedāṁ kṣayaṣṇu paśyāmo yatheme daṁśa-maśakādayas-trṇa-vanaspatāyodbhūta-pradhvaṁsinah, atha kim

etair vā pare'nye mahā-dhanur-dharāś cakra-vartinah kecit, sud-yumna-bhūridyumnenadradyumna-kuvalayāśva-yauvanāśva-vadhry aśvāśvapatiḥ śaśabindur hariścandro'mbariṣa-nānaktu-saryāti-yayātiyanaranyokṣasenādayah, atha marutta-bharata-prabhṛtayo rājānah, miśato bandhu-vargasya mahatīm śriyam tyaktvā'smāl lokād amuṁ lokam prayātā iti, atha kim etair vā pare'nye gand-harvāsura-yakṣa-rākṣasa-bhūta-gaṇa-piśācoraga-grahādīnām nirodham paśyāmah, atha kim etair vā'nyānām śoṣaṇam mahārṇa-vānām śikhariṇām prapatanam dhruvasya pracalanam vraścānam vātarajjūnām nimajjanam pṛithivyāḥ sthānād āpasaraṇam surā-ṇām ity etad-vidho'smin sāmsāre kim kāmopabhogaḥ, yair evāśītasyāsakṛd ihāvartanam drśyate ity uddhartum arhasi, andhodapānastho bheka ivāham asmin. sāmsāre bhagavan tvam no gatis tvam no gatiḥ.

4. And we see that all this is perishing, as these gnats, mosquitoes and the like, the grass and the trees that grow and decay. But, indeed, what of these? There are others, superior, great warriors, some world-rulers, Sudyumna, Bhūridyumna, Indradyumna, Kuvalayāśva, Yauvanāśva, Vadhryaśva, Aśvapati, Śaśabindu, Hariścandra, Ambariṣa, Ananakta, Saryāti, Yayāti, Anarāya, Ukṣasena, and the rest; Kings, too, such as Marutta, Bharata and others, with their whole families looking on, they renounced great wealth and went forth from this world into that. But, indeed, what of these? There are others, superior. We see the destruction of Gandharvas (fairies), Asuras (demons), Yakṣas (sprites), Rākṣasas (ogres), Bhūtas (ghosts), Gaṇas, Piśācas (goblins), snakes, vampires, and the like. But, indeed, what of these? Among other things, there is the drying up of great oceans, the falling away of mountain peaks, the deviation of the fixed pole-star, the cutting of the wind-ropes (that hold the stars in their places), the submergence of the earth, the departure of the gods from their station. In such a world as this, what is the good of enjoyment of desires? For he who has fed on them is seen to return (to this world) repeatedly. Be pleased, therefore, to deliver me. In this world (cycle of existence) I am like a frog in a waterless well. Revered Sir, you are our way (of deliverance), you are our way.

Everything in the world is transient. It rises and grows, decays and dies, udbhūta-pradhvamsināḥ. Cp. Henry Vaughan: 'Suddenly do the high things of this world come to an end, and their delectable things pass away, for when they seem to be in their flower and full strength, they perish to astonishment. And sure the ruine of the most goodly places seems to tell, that the dissolution of the whole is not far off.' Mount of Olives (1652).

After Ambariṣa, name of Nahūṣa is given in some texts. Anānata is the name of a Ṛṣi in R.V. IX. 3.

nirodham: destruction; another reading, nirodhanam.

CHAPTER II

ŚĀKĀYANYA'S TEACHING CONCERNING THE SELF

1. atha bhagavān śākāyanyaḥ supṛito'bravīd rājānam, mahā-rāja bṛhadratheksvāku-vaṁśa-dhvaja śighram ātmajñāḥ kṛta-kṛtyas tvam marunnāmnēti viśruto'siti, ayaṁ vā va khalv ātmā te, yaḥ katamo bhagavā iti, tam hovāceti.

1. Then, the revered Śākāyanya, well pleased, said to the king: 'Great King Bṛhadratha, banner of the race of Ikṣvāku, speedily will you who are renowned as Marut (the wind) attain your purpose and become a knower of the self. This, indeed, is thy self.'

'Which, O Revered One,' said the King.

Then he said to him.

dehendriya mano buddhi prāṇānām madhye kim anyatamah kim vā tad vilakṣaṇe anya iti praśnārthaḥ, tatra saṁghātavilakṣaṇa evātmēti gurur uttaram pratijāñe.

The question is raised whether the self is different from the body, the senses, mind, understanding and life and the answer is given that the self is different from the composite of all these.

The teaching concerning the self continues till VI. 28.

2. atha ya eṣa ucchvāsaviṣṭambhanenordhvam utkrānto vyaya-māno'vyayamānas tamaḥ pramudaty eṣa ātmā, ity āha bhagavān maitriḥ, ity evaṁ hy āha, atha ya eṣa samprasādo'smāc charirāt samutthāya param jyotir upasampadya svena rūpenābhiniṣ-padyata ity eṣa ātmeti hovācaitad amṛtam, abhayam, etad brahmeti.

2. Now he who, without stopping the respiration, goes upwards, moving about yet unmoving, dispels darkness, he is the self. Thus said the revered Maitri. For thus has it been said, 'Now that serene one, who, rising up out of this body, reaches the highest light and appears with his own form, he is the self,' said he, 'that is the immortal, the fearless. That is Brahman.'

See C.U. VIII. 3. 4.

moving about, yet unmoving: while he experiences the changes of the mind caused by impressions, he is in reality unaffected by them all.

maitrīr mītrāyā apatyam ṛṣir maitrīr maitreyah.

He is the proclaimer of this śākhā, etat-śākhā-pravaktā.

śarīrāt: from this body, both the gross (sthūla) and the subtle (sūkṣma).

samprasādaḥ: samyak prasādaty atreti samprasādaḥ suṣuptiḥ tad-avasthaḥ ātmeḥa samprasāda ucyate. It is the self in deep sleep.

3. atha khalv iyaṁ brahma-vidyā sarvopaniṣad-vidyā vā rājann asmākam bhagavatā maitrinā'khyatā'ham te kathayiṣyāmīti, athāpahata-pāpmānaḥ tigma-tejasā ūrdhva-retaso vālikhilyā iti śrūyante, atha kratum prajāpatim abruvan, bhagavan śakaṭam ivācetanam idaṁ śarīraṁ kasyaiṣa khalv idrṣo mahimā'tin-driya-bhūtasya enaitad-vidham etac cetanavat pratiṣṭhāpitam pracodayitā vā asya, yad bhagavan vetsy tad asmākam brūhīti, tāt hovāceti.

3. Now, indeed, O King, this is the brahma knowledge, even the knowledge contained in all the Upaniṣads as declared to us by the revered Maitri. I will narrate it to you. Now we hear that Vālikhilyas were free from evil, of resplendent glory and vigorous chastity. Now they said to Kratu Prajā-pati, 'O Revered One, this body' is like a cart without intelligence. To what supersensuous being belongs such power by which such a sort of thing has been made intelligent, or in other words, who is its mover? What you know, O Revered One, tell us that.' Then he said to them.

The conversation between Vālikhilyas and Prajā-pati continues till the end of IV. 6.

apahata-pāpmānaḥ: free from evil. Those who freed themselves from evil by severe austerities, tapo-nirbhūta-kalmaṣāḥ.

tigma-tejasāḥ: of resplendent glory or transcendent radiance. tivra-tejasāḥ, atyūrjita-prabhāvāḥ.

ūrdhva-retasāḥ: of vigorous chastity, askhalita-brahmacaryā jiten-driyāḥ.

Cp. mano-vāg-drṣṭi-retāḥ syād ayaṁ ātmākṣarah parāḥ, baddha-retā vimucyeta mukta-retās tu badhyate.

4. yo ha khalu vāvoparisthaḥ śrūyate guṇeṣvivorhva-retasaḥ sa vā eṣa śuddhaḥ pūtaḥ śūnyaḥ śānto'prāno nirātmānanto'kṣayyah sthiraḥ śāśvato'jaḥ svatantraḥ sve mahimni tiṣṭhaty ajenedaṁ śarīraṁ cetanavat pratiṣṭhāpitam pracodayitā vaiṣo'py asyeti, te hocur, bhagavan, katham anenedrṣenāniṣṭhenaitad-vidham idaṁ cetanavat pratiṣṭhāpitam pracodayitā vaiṣo'sya katham iti, tāt hovāca.

4. He, who is reputed as standing aloof amidst qualities, like those of vigorous chastity, he indeed, is pure, clean, void, tranquil, breathless, mindless, endless, undecaying, steadfast, eternal, unborn, independent. He abides in his own greatness. By him this body is set up as possessing intelligence or in other words, this one, verily, is its driver. Then they said, 'How, Revered sir, by this kind of desireless being is this sort of thing set up as possessing intelligence, or in other words, how is this one its mover?' Then he said to them.

upariṣṭhaḥ: standing aloof, sarvasya prapañcasyopari niṣprapañca svarūpe 'vasthiṭaḥ'.

ūrdhva-retasaḥ: may be taken as vocative also. 'He who, O men of vigorous chastity, is described in the Śruti as dwelling amidst worldly objects and yet placed above them all.' This is more satisfactory.

śūnyaḥ: void, niṣprapañcaḥ.

nīrāmā: mindless, ātmēti mana ucyate, mano-rahitaḥ, saṃkalpādhy-avasāyādi-dharma-rahitaḥ.

Anubhūti-prakāśa reads anīśātmā. (60).

'He abides in his own greatness.' See C.U. VII. 24.

anīṣṭhena: free from any local habitation or attachment.

v. anīṣṭhena: iṣṭam, icchā, icchā, rahitaḥ, desireless.

or anīṣṭhena sūkṣmatareṇa, smallest.

5. sa vā eṣa sūkṣmo'grāhyo'drśyaḥ puruṣa-samjño'buddhi-pūrvam ihaivāvartate'mśeneti suptasyevābuddhi-pūrvam vibodhā evam iti, atha yo ha khalu vāvaitasyāṃso'yam yas caitāmātraḥ pratipuruṣaḥ kṣetraññaḥ saṃkalpādhyavasāyābhimānalingaḥ, prajā-patir viśvākhyas cetanenedam śarīraṃ cetanavat pratiṣṭhāpitam pracodayitā vaiṣo'pyasyeti, te hocur bhagavan, yady anenedrśenāniṣṭhenaitad-vidham idam cetanavat pratiṣṭhāpitam pracodayitā vaiṣo'sya katham iti: tān hovāceti.

5. Verily, that subtle, ungraspable, invisible one, called the person, dwells here (in the body) with a part (of himself), with previous awareness (volition) even as the man who is fast asleep awakes of his own awareness (volition). Now, assuredly that part of him, which is entirely intelligent in every person is the spirit (knower of the body) which has the marks of conception, determination and self-love, Prajā-pati called Viśva. By him as intelligence is his body set up as possessed of intelligence, or in other words this very one is its mover. Then they said, 'Revered sir, if by this kind of desireless being this sort of thing is set up as possessed of intelligence, still, how is this one its mover?' Then he said to them.

buddhi-pūrvam is the reading adopted by Anubhūti-prakāśa 67, 68.

A man if he likes can wake himself from sleep. Another reading is a-buddhi-pūrvam, without previous awareness or volition.

kṣetrajñāḥ: knower of the body, kṣetram śarīram tad aham asmīti jñātīti kṣetrajñāḥ.

PROGRESSIVE DIFFERENTIATION OF PRAJĀ-PATI INTO DIFFERENT TYPES OF BEINGS

6. prajā-patir vā eko'gre'tiṣṭhat, sa nāram ataikah, sotmānam abhidhyātva bahvīḥ prajā aśṛjata, tā aśmevāprabuddhā aprānāḥ sthānūr iva tiṣṭhamānā apaśyat, sa nāramata, so 'manyataitāsām pratibodhanāyābhyantaram vivīśāmi, sa vāyur ivātmānam kṛtvābhyantaram prāvīśat. sa eko nāśakat: sa pañcadhātmānam vibhajyocyate, yaḥ prāṇo'pānaḥ samāna udāno vyāna iti. athāyam ya ūrdhvam utkrāmaty eṣa vā va sa prāṇo'tha yo'yam avān samkrāmaty eṣa vā va so'pāno'tha yena vā etā anugrhitā ity eṣa vā va sa vyāno'tha yo'yam sthaviṣṭho dhātur annasyāpāne prāpayati aṇiṣṭho vāṅge'ṅge samānayaty eṣa vā va sa samāna-samjñā uttaram vyānasya rūpam caiteśām antarā prasūtir evodānasyātha yo'yam pītāśitam udgirati nigirātīti vaiśa vā va sa udānaḥ, athopānśur antaryāmam abhibhavaty antaryāma upānśuñcaitayor antarā devauṣṇyam prāsuwat. yad auṣṇyam sa puruṣo'tha yaḥ puruṣaḥ so'gnir vaiśvānaraḥ. anyatrāpy uktam, ayam agnir vaiśvānaro yo'yam antaḥ-puruṣe yenedam annam pacyate yad idam adyate, tasyaiśa ghoṣo bhavati. yam etat karmāv apidhāya śṛṇoti sa yado utkramiṣyan bhavati nainam ghoṣam śṛṇoti, sa vā eṣa pañcadhātmānam vibhajya nihito guhāyām, mano-mayaḥ prāṇa-śarīro bhā-rūpaḥ satya-samkalpa ākāśātmeti. sa vā eṣo'smād hrdantarād akṛtārtho'manyatārthān aśnānīti. atah khānīmāni bhittvoditah pañcabhī raśmibhir viṣayān atti, iti buddhīndriyāṇi yānīmāny etāny asya raśmayah karmendriyāṇy asya hayā, rathaḥ śarīram, mano niyantā, prakṛti-mayo'sya pratodo'nena khalvīritah paribhramatīdam śarīram cakram iva mṛtyavenedam śarīram cetanavat pratiṣṭhāpitam pracodayitā vaiśo'pyasyeti.

6. Verily, in the beginning Prajā-pati (the lord of creatures) stood alone. He had no happiness, being alone. Then, meditating on himself, he created numerous offspring. He saw them to be like a stone, without understanding, without life, standing like a post. He had no happiness. He then thought to himself, 'Let me enter within in order to awaken (enlighten) them.' He made himself like wind and sought to enter into him. Being one, he could not do it. He divided himself fivefold and is called prāṇa, apāna, samāna, udāna, vyāna (five kinds of breath). That breath which rises upwards that, assuredly, is the prāṇa (breath). Now that which moves downwards, that, assuredly, is the apāna (breath). Now that, verily, by which these two are supported, that, assuredly, is the vyāna (breath). Now that which carries unto the apāna breath gross elements of food and distributes the subtle (elements) in each limb, that, assuredly, is called samāna (breath). It is a higher form of the vyāna (breath) and between them is the production of the udāna (breath). That which brings up or carries down what has been drunk and eaten is the udāna (breath). Now the upāmsu vessel is over against the antaryāma vessel and the antaryāma vessel is over against the upāmsu vessel and between these two the god generated heat. That heat is the person and the person is the universal fire. And thus it is said elsewhere, 'This is the universal fire namely that which is here within a person by means of which the food that is eaten is cooked (digested). Its noise is that which one hears on covering the eyes thus. When a man is about to depart this life he does not hear this noise.' He, verily, having divided himself fivefold is hidden in a secret place, he who consists of mind, whose body is life, whose form is light, whose conception is truth, whose soul is space. Verily, not having attained his purpose, he thought to himself from within the heart here, 'Let me enjoy objects.' Thence having pierced these openings (the five apertures of the senses), he enjoys the objects by means of the five reins. These reins of his are the organs of perception. His horses are the organs of action. His chariot is the body. The charioteer is the mind. The whip is made of one's character. By him thus driven, this body goes round and round like the wheel (driven) by the potter. So this body is set up as possessing intelligence or in other words, this very one is its mover.

agre: before creation, carācarasṛṣṭeḥ pūrvam.

upāmsu and antaryāma are the two (grahas) vessels for holding the soma juice. They are placed on either side of the stone used for crushing the soma plant. See Taittirīya Samhitā I. 4. 2. 3; VI. 4. 5. 6.

Thus it is said elsewhere: B.U. V. 9; C.U. III. 13. 8.

guhāyām: in a secret place. guhāti samvṛnoti jñānānandādyatiśayam iti guhā buddhiḥ. It conceals the excess of knowledge, joy, etc.

bhā-rūpaḥ: whose form is light. bhā cit-prakāśo rūpam svarūpam asyeti bhā-rūpaḥ.

satya-saṁkalpaḥ: whose conception is truth. satyāḥ saṁkalpā avaśyam-bhāvināḥ pūrva-kṛta-jñāna-karma-saṁskāra-bhāvitāḥ saṁkalpā asyeti satya-saṁkalpāḥ.

7. Verily, this self, the seers declare, wanders here on earth in every body (from body to body) unaffected, as it seems, by the light or the dark fruits of action. On account of this unmanifestness, subtlety, imperceptibility, ungraspability, freedom from self-sense, (the self) is unabiding and a doer only in seeming, truly is not a doer, he is abiding. Verily, he is pure, steadfast, unswerving, stainless, unagitated, free from desire, remains fixed like a spectator and abiding in his own self. As an enjoyer of righteous work he covers himself with a veil made of qualities, but he remains fixed, yea, he remains fixed.

anabhibhūtaḥ: unaffected, asaṁsprṛtaḥ.

He is a seer, a witness, not an object seen, avasthā-traya-rahito'vasthā-sākṣitvāt na hi dṛśyadharmo draṣṭarī uparajyate.

nisprhaḥ: free from desire, paripūrṇa-paramānanda-rūpatvāt sprhanīyābhāvāt.

preksaka: spectator, udāsīna. The impartial looker-on of the drama of which all the world, ourselves included, is the stage.

The suggestion that the self assuming the form of an enjoyer wanders in the world of saṁsāra is made here. evam-vidha evātmā guṇamayena paṭena triguṇāvidyāmayenāvaranēnātmanā nitya-śudhatvādirūpam antardhāya. karma-phala-bhoktā saṁsārīva bhāsamāno vartate.

CHAPTER III

THE GREAT SELF AND THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL

1. te hocuḥ, bhagavan, yady evam asy ātmano mahimānaṁ sūcayasīty anyo vā paraḥ; ko'yam ātmākhyo yo'yam sitāsitaḥ karma-phalair abhībhūyamānaḥ sad-asad-yonim āpadyatā ity avāñcyordhvā vā gatir dvandvair abhībhūyamānaḥ paribhramati.

1. They (the Vālikhilyas) said (to Prajā-pati Kratu), 'Revered One, if you thus indicate the greatness of this self then there is that other, different one also called self, who, affected by the bright or dark fruits of action, enters a good or an evil womb, so that his course is downward or upward and he wanders about, affected by the pairs (of opposites like pleasure and pain).

2. asti khalvanyo'paro bhūtātmaḥyo yo'yam sitāsitaḥ karma-phalair abhībhūyamānaḥ sad-asad-yonim āpadyatā ity avāñcyordhvā vā gatir dvandvair abhībhūyamānaḥ paribhramatīty asyopavākhyānam, pañca-tanmātrā bhūta-śabdenocyante, atha pañca-mahā-bhūtāni bhūta-śabdenocyante'tha teṣāṁ yat samudayaṁ, tat śarīram ity uktam, atha yo ha khalu vā va śarīra ity uktam sa bhūtātmeti uktam, athāmyto'syātmā bindur iva puṣkarā iti. sa vā eṣo'bhībhūtaḥ prākṛtair guṇair iti. atho'bhībhūtātvaṁ sammūḍhatvam prayātāḥ, sammūḍhatvād ātmastham prabhum bhaga vantam kārāyitāram nāpaśyad gunāghair uhyamānaḥ kaluṣī-kṛtas cāsthiraś cañcalo lupyamānaḥ sasprho vyagraś cābhīmānītvam prayātā iti, aham so mamedam iti, evam manyamāno nibadhnāty ātmanātmānaṁ jāleneva kha-carāḥ. kṛtasyānu phalair abhībhūyamānaḥ sad-asad-yonim āpadyatā ity avāñcyordhvā vā gatir dvandvair abhībhūyamānaḥ paribhramati. katama eṣa iti tāt hovāceti.

2. There is, indeed, another, different, called the elemental self, he who, affected by the bright or the dark fruits of action, enters a good or an evil womb so that his course is downward or upward and he wanders about affected by the pairs (of opposites). And this is its explanation. The five subtle elements are called by the name element. Likewise the five gross elements are called by the name element. Now the combination of these is called the body. Now he, indeed, who is said to be in the body is called the elemental self. Now its immortal self is like a drop of water on the lotus leaf. This (elemental self) verily, is affected by nature's qualities. Now because of being affected, he gets to bewilderment (becomes confused); because of bewilderment

he sees not the blessed Lord who dwells in himself, the causer of action. Borne along and defiled by the stream of qualities, unstable, wavering, bewildered, full of desire, distracted, he gets to the state of self-love. Thinking, 'I am he,' 'This is mine,' he binds himself with his self like a bird in a snare. So being affected by the fruits of his action, he enters a good or an evil womb so that his course is downward or upward and he wanders about, affected by the pairs of opposites. Which one is this? Then he said to them.

śarīram: body: prāṇendriyāntaḥ karaṇa-sahita-sūkṣma-bhūta-samu-dāyo līṅga-śarīram; pañcīkṛta-pañca-mahā-bhūta-samudāyah sthūlam śarīram.

The gross body consists of the gross elements; the subtle body of life, senses, mind and the subtle-elements.

apaśyad: does not see. See B.G. VII. 13.

gunāughair uhyamānā: this refers to the torrent of guṇas by which one is swept along. Cp. Plato's river of sensations, Timaeus 43B and Philo: 'river of the objects of sense that swamps and drowns our soul under the flood of the passions until he crosses it.' The self is overcome by the guṇas and falls into an illusion in which it becomes weak, disordered, sensual and believes in its own separate existence, fettering itself by its own action like a bird in the net.

3. athānyatrāpy uktam, yaḥ kartā so'yaṁ vai bhūtātma karaṇaiḥ kārayitāntaḥ-puruṣaḥ. atha yathāgnināyaspīṇḍo vābhibhūtaḥ kartṛbhir hanyamāno nānātvam upaity evam vā va khalv asau bhūtātmanāntaḥ-puruṣeṇābhibhūto guṇair hanyamāno nānātvam upaity. catur-jālam catur-daśavidhaṁ catur-asītidhā parinātaṁ bhūta-gaṇam etad vai nānātvasya rūpam. tāni ha vā etāni guṇāni puruṣeṇeritāni cakram iva mṛtyaveneti. atha yathāyaspīṇḍe hanyamāne nāgnir abhibhūyaty evam nābhibhūyaty asau puruṣo'bhibhūyaty ayam bhūtātmopasaṁśliṣṭatvād iti.

3. And thus it has been said elsewhere. Verily, he who is the doer is the elemental self: he who causes to act by means of the organs is the inner person. Now even as a ball of iron, overcome by fire and beaten by workmen takes many forms, the elemental self overcome by the inner person and beaten by the qualities takes many forms. The mode of that form has a fourfold covering, is fourteenfold, is transformed in eighty-four different ways, is a host of beings, is verily manifold. All these varieties, verily, are impelled by the person even as the wheel by the potter. Now, as when a ball of iron is being beaten, the fire is not overcome, even so the person is not overcome. The elemental self is overcome because of its attachment (to qualities).

kartrbhiḥ: workmen, smiths, lohakārādibhiḥ.

catur-jālam: fourfold covering, the four sheaths, matter, life, consciousness and intelligence. Commentators mention the four forms of animal life.

fourteenfold: fourteen classes of beings. Reference is to Sāṃkhya Kārikā 53 or to the fourteen worlds, Vedānta-sāra 129.

eighty-four: This may have reference to an early speculation in natural history or may mean any number of forms.

4. athānyatrāpy uktam, śarīram idaṃ maithunād evodbhūtam, samvorddhvyupetaṃ niraye'tha mūtradvāreṇa niṣkrāntam, asthibhiḥ citam, māṃsenānuliptam carmanāvanaddham viṇ-mūtra-pitta-kapha-majjā-medo-vasābhīr anyaiś cāmayaīr bahubhiḥ paripūrṇam, kośa iva vasunā.

4. And thus it has been said elsewhere. This body arises from sexual intercourse. It is endowed with growth in darkness. Then it comes forth through the urinary passage. It is built up with bones, smeared over with flesh, covered with skin, filled with faeces, urine, bile, phlegm, marrow, fat, grease and also with many diseases, like a treasure house full of wealth.

niraye: in darkness (of the womb), niraya tulye mātūr udare. In due time comes out of the urinary passage, mūtra-dvāreṇa yoni-randhreṇa. āmayaiḥ: v. malaiḥ.

Wise people should not identify their true self with the body.

niraya-rūpe'smin śarīre vivekinābhimāno na kārya ity abhiprāyaḥ.

5. athānyatrāpy uktam, sammoho bhayam, viṣādo nidrā, tandrī, pramādo jarā, śokaḥ, kṣut, pipāsā, kārpanyam, krodho nāstikiyam, ajñānam, mātṣaryam, naiṣkāranyam, mūḍhatvam, nir-vṛīdatvam, nirākr̥titvam, uddhatatvam, asamatvam iti tāmasāni, antaśṛṅṣṇā sneho rāgo lobho hiṃsā, ratir dviṣtir vyāvṛtatvam īrṣyā, kāmam, asthiratvam, calatvam vyagratvam, jīgīṣārthopārjanam mītrānugrahaṇam pārigrahāvalambo niṣṭeṣvīndriyārtheṣu dviṣṭi-rīṣeṣvabhiṣvaṅgaḥ śuktasvaro'ṇmatamastv iti rājasāny etaiḥ paripūrṇa etair abhibhūtā ity ayam bhūtātma tasmān nānā-rūpāny āpnotīti, āpnotīti.

5. And then it has been said elsewhere: bewilderment, fear, depression, sleepiness, sloth, heedlessness, old age, grief, hunger, thirst (mental), weakness, anger, unorthodoxy, ignorance, jealousy, cruelty, stupidity, shamelessness, meanness, rashness, unequableness, these are the characteristics of the quality of darkness. Inner thirst, affection, passion, covetousness, hurting others, lust, hatred, deceit, envy, insatiability, unsteadfastness, fickleness, distractedness, ambitiousness, acquisitiveness, patronage of friends, family pride, aversion to unpleasant objects and over-attachment to pleasant objects, sourness of utterance and gluttonousness, these are the characteristics of the quality of passion. By these he is filled, by these he is affected, therefore the elemental self attains manifold forms, yea, attains (manifold forms).

kārpanyam: weakness (mental), kṛpanatvam.

nāstikyam: unorthodoxy: non-belief in the unseen world and indifference to sacred scriptures, āmuṣmike śreyasi niraye vā nāstīti buddhir vedādy-anādaraś ca.

naiṣkārūṇyam: cruelty, naiṣṭhuryam.

nirākṛtītvam: v. nikṛtītvam: śaṭhatvam.

uddhatatvam: rashness, sāhaseṣu niḥśaṅkatvam.

himsā: hurting others, para-pīḍā.

dviṣṭiḥ: hatred, dveṣaḥ.

vyagrātvaṁ: distractedness, vyasanitā.

The Upaniṣad is greatly influenced by Sāṃkhya ideas.

CHAPTER IV

THE UNION OF THE ELEMENTAL SELF AND THE SUPREME SELF

1. te ha khalu vāvordhva-retaso'ttivismitā abhisametyocuh, bhagavan, namaste'stv anuśādhi, tvam asmākaṁ gatir anyā na vidyata iti; asya ko vidhir bhūtātmano yenedaṁ hitvātmann eva sāyujyam upaiti tān hovāceti.

1. They (the Vālikhilyas), indeed, of vigorous chastity, exceedingly amazed, approached him and said, 'Revered Sir, salutations to you, instruct us further. You are our way (of deliverance) and there is no other. What is the method (rule) by which this elemental self, after leaving this (elemental body) obtains union with the (true) self?' Then he (Prajā-pati Kratu) said to them.

vismitā: amazed that the true self, pure and undefiled, should appear to be impure and defiled: nitya-śuddhas-cidātmā'smatpratyayātmā samn api paroḥṣa iva śuddho'py aśuddha iva akriyō'pi sakriya iveti vismitā eva santah.

hitvā: leaving, vihāya.

ātman: atmani, the self, cid-ānanda-sat-svarūpa eva pūrṇātmani.

sāyujyam: union, sayug-bhāvam.

2. athānyatrāpy uktam, mahānadīśūrmaya ivānivartakam asya yat purākr̥tam, samudraveleva durnivāryam asya mṛtyor āgamanam, sad-asad-phalamayaḥ pāśaiḥ paṅgur iva baddham, bandhanasthasya vāsvātantryam, yam aviśayaśthasya iva bahubhayāvastham, madirommatta iva moha-madirommattam, pāpmanā grhīta iva bhrāmyamānam, mahoraga-daṣṭa iva viśaya-daṣṭam, mahāndhakāram iva rāgāndham, indrajālam iva māyāmayam, svapna iva mithyā-darśanam, kadālī-garbha ivāsāram, naṭa iva kṣana-veśam, citra-bhittir iva mithyā-manoramam ity athoktam.

śabda-sparśādayo hy arthā martye'narthā ivāsthitāḥ yeṣāṁ saktas tu bhūtātmā na smareta param padam.

2. And this it has been said elsewhere. Like the waves in large rivers there is no turning back of that which has been done previously; like the tide of the ocean, the approach of one's death is hard to keep back. Like a lame man, bound by the fetters made of the fruits of good and evil, like the condition of a man in prison, lacking independence, like the condition of one in the realm of death, beset by many fears, like one intoxicated with liquor, intoxicated with the liquor of delusion, rushing about like one possessed by an evil spirit, like one bitten by a great serpent, bitten by the objects of sense, like gross darkness, the darkness of passion, like jugglery, consisting of illusion, like a dream, false appearances, like the inside of the banana tree, unsubstantial, like an actor changing dress every moment, like a painted scene, falsely delighting the mind and therefore it has been said, 'Objects of sound, touch and the like are worthless objects for a man,' the elemental self, through attachment to them, does not remember the highest state.

martye: man, a mortal, maraṇa-dharminī bhūtātmani.

3. ayam vā va khalv asya pratividhir bhūtātmano yad veda-vidyādhigamaḥ svadharmasyānucaraṇam; svāśrameṣv evānukramaṇam, svadharmasya vā etad vratam, stambaśākhe vāparāṇi; anenorddhvabhāg bhavaty anyathāhvān ity eṣa svadharmo'bhīhito yo vedeṣu na svadharmātikramenāśramī bhavati, āśrameṣv evānavasthas tapasvī vetyucyata ityetad ayuktam, nātapaskasyātma-jñāne'dhigamaḥ karma-siddhir veti; evaṁ hy āha:

tapasā prāpyate sattvam, sattvāt samprāpyate manaḥ manasaḥ prāpyate hy ātmā, yam āptvā na nivartatā iti

3. This is, indeed, the antidote for the elemental self, acquirement of the knowledge of the Veda and the due performance of one's own duty. Pursuit of the duties of the stage of life to which each one belongs, this is the rule for one's own duty; others are like the branches of a stem. Through it one goes upwards, otherwise downwards. That is one's regular duty which is set forth in the Vedas. Not by transgressing one's regular duty does one belong to the stage of life. If one says that a man does not belong to any of the stages of life for he is (one) who practises austerities, it is not proper. (However) if one does not practise austerities there is no success in the knowledge of the self or in the perfection of works. For thus has it been said: By austerities goodness is obtained and from goodness understanding is reached and from the understanding is the self obtained and he who obtains the self does not return.

veda-vidyādhigamaḥ: acquirement of the knowledge of the Veda. veda-dvārā vidyāyā ātma-tattva-viśayāyā dhigamaḥ samyak-prāptiḥ. stamba śākheva: branches of a stem: trṇaśalākeva, like a bunch of grass.

We belong to a particular stage of life or āśrama by performing the duties belonging to it and not by assuming its external marks: kevalam tat-tad-āśrama-līṅga-dhāraṇa-mātrād āśramī na bhavati.

sattvam: goodness, sattva-guṇa-pradhānam cittaṁ manaḥ: understanding, viveka-vijñānam.

ātmā: the self, pūrṇam tattvam param brahma. We can say prasanna-cittasyeva mokṣaḥ: Upaniṣad Brahmayogin.

When one attains self-knowledge, he is freed from saṁsāra . . . prāpya sāksātkṛtya na nivartate punaḥ saṁsāra-maṇḍale bhūtātma-bhāvāya nāvartate mucyata iti.

KNOWLEDGE, AUSTERITY AND MEDITATION

4. asti brahmeti brahma-vidyā-vid abravīd, brahma-dvāram idam ityevaitad āha, yas tapasā pahata-pāpmā, aum brahmaṇo mahimety evaitad āha, yaḥ suyukto'jasram cintayati, tasmād vidyayā tapasā cintayā copalabhyate brahma, sa brahmaṇaḥ para. etā bhavaty adhidaivatvam devebhyas ceti, akṣayyam, aparimitam, anāmayam, sukham aśnute ya evaṁ vidvān anena trikeṇa brahmopāste, atha yaiḥ paripūrṇābhībhūto'yaṁ rathitāś ca tair vaiva muktas tv ātman eva sāyujyam upaiti.

4. 'Brahman is,' said one who knew the knowledge of Brahman. 'This is the door to Brahman,' said one who had freed himself from evil by (the practice of) austerity. 'Aum is the (manifest) greatness of Brahman,' said one who, completely absorbed, always meditates (on it). Therefore, by knowledge, by austerity, by meditation is Brahman apprehended. He becomes one who goes beyond the Brahmā (the lower, Hiranya-garbha) and to the state of the supreme divinity above the gods. He obtains happiness, undecaying, unmeasured, free from sickness, he who knows this and worships Brahman with this triad (knowledge, austerity and meditation). Then freed from those things by which he was filled and affected, this rider of the chariot attains (complete) union with the self.

brahma-vidyā: knowledge of Brahman which arises from logical investigation, pramāṇa-yukti-jānyam brahma-jñānam.

By austerity, knowledge and meditation, we obtain Brahman.

prathamam tapas tato brahma-vidyā śravaṇādi-lakṣaṇā tataḥ prana-vaika-niṣṭhateti kramena sādhana-trayaṁ brahmopapalabhetety arthah. brahmaṇaḥ: lower Brahmā, aparasya hiranya-garbhākhyasya śabda brahmaṇaḥ.

rathitāḥ: the rider of the chariot, ratham prāpīto rathitvam ca prāpīta iti yāvāt.

WORSHIP OF VARIOUS GODS PERMISSIBLE, BUT THEIR REWARDS ARE TEMPORARY

5. te hocur bhagavann abhivādyasīty abhivādyasīty, nihitam asmābhir etad yathāvad uktam manasīty, athottaram praśnam anubrūhīti, agnir vāyur ādityaḥ kālo yaḥ prāṇo'nnam brahmā rudro viṣṇur ity eke'nyam abhidhyāyanty eke'nyam; śreyāḥ katamo yaḥ so'smākaṁ brūhīti, tān hovāceti.

5. They said. 'Revered One, you are the teacher, you are the teacher. What has been said has been duly fixed in mind by us. Now answer a further question. Fire, air, sun, time, whatever it is, breath, food, Brahmā, Rudra, Viṣṇu, some meditate upon one, some upon another. Tell us which one is the best for us.' Then he said to them.

6. brahmaṇo vā vaitā agryās tanavaḥ parasyāmṛtasya śarīrasya tasyaiva loke pratimodatī ha yo yasyānuṣakta ityevam hy āha; brahma khalv idam vā va sarvam. yā vā'syā agryā stanavas tā abhidhyāyed arcayen niḥnuyāc ca, atas tābhiḥ sahairvopary upari lokeṣu carati, atha kṛtsna-kṣaya ekatvam eti puruṣasya, puruṣasya.

6. These are but the chief forms of the Supreme, the immortal, the bodiless Brahman. To whichever one each man is devoted here, in his world he rejoices. For it has been said, 'Verily, this whole world is Brahman.' Verily, these, which are its chief forms one meditates upon, worships and discards. For with these one moves higher and higher in the worlds. And when all things perish (in universal dissolution), he attains unity of (with) the person, yea, of the person.

tanavaḥ: forms; mūrtayaḥ. 'Verily, this whole world is Brahman,' C.U. III. 14. 1.

kṛtsna-kṣaye: when all things perish. kṛtsnasya sarva-devatātmanāḥ satya-lokasthasya hiranya-garbhasya kṣaye avasāne sampūrṇa-brahma-rūpaḥ san puruṣasya pūrnasya parabrahmaṇa ekatvaṁ sāyujyam eti gacchati, krama-muktim upaiti.

At the end of this world, at the time of universal dissolution, the lord of this world Hiranya-garbha lapses into the Absolute Brahman. Till then individualities are retained by the souls including the world-soul.

By the worship of these deities one rises to higher states of being. When these forms are resolved he attains to the unity of the Person. The different concepts of the Supreme are supports for contemplation.

Here apparently ends the conversation begun in II. 3. between the Vālikhilyas and Prajā-pati as derived by tradition from Maitrī and narrated by Śākāyanya to King Bṛhadratha. Śākāyanya's teaching is said to be continued till VI. 29, though it evidently is a later addition as undoubtedly chapters VI and VII are, even according to the commentator.

CHAPTER V

THE CONCEPTION OF TRIMŪRTI

1. atha yatheyam kautsyāyanī stutiḥ.

*tvam brahmā tvāṇ ca vai viṣṇus tvam rudras tvam prajāpatiḥ,

1. Now then this is Kutsāyana's hymn of praise.

Thou art Brahmā and verily thou art Viṣṇu, thou art Rudra and thou Prajā-pati; thou art Agni, Varuṇa, Vāyu, thou art Indra and thou art the moon. Thou art food, thou art Yama, thou art the earth, thou art all, thou art the Imperishable. All things exist in thee in many forms for their own or for their natural ends. Lord of the universe, salutations to thee, the self of all, the maker of all, the enjoyer of all, thou art all life and the lord of all pleasure and delight. Salutations to thee, the tranquil self, salutations to thee, the deeply hidden, the incomprehensible, the immeasurable and without beginning and without end.

viśvātmā: because he is the material cause of the world, viśvopādānatvāt.

the tranquil self: Cp. śānta upāṣita, śāntaḥ sa premabhaktikaḥ: Sridhara on Bhāgavata. Brahmaivaivarta Purāṇa: dhyāyante vaiṣṇavāḥ śāntāḥ śāntam taṁ tat parāyaṇam. Brahma Khaṇḍa XIX. 23. 2.

2. Verily, in the beginning this (world) was darkness alone. That was in the Highest. When impelled by the Highest it moves on to differentiation. That form, verily, is passion. That passion, when impelled, moves on to differentiation. That, verily, is the form of goodness. That goodness, when impelled, the essence flowed forth. That part is what the intelligence principle in every person is, the knower of the body, which has the marks of conception, determination and self-love, Prajā-pati (the lord of creation) called Viśva. His forms have been previously mentioned. Now then, indeed the part of him which is characterised by darkness that, O students of sacred knowledge, is this Rudra. Now then, indeed, that part of him which is characterised by passion, that, O students of sacred knowledge, is this Brahmā. Now then, indeed, that part of him which is characterised by goodness, that, O students of sacred knowledge, is this Viṣṇu. Verily, that one becomes threefold. He developed forth eightfold, elevenfold, twelvefold, in unlimited parts. Because he thus developed, he is a (created) being, he moves about, having entered all beings. He became the lord of (created) beings. That is the self within and without, yea, within and without.

The relation of the three forms (mūrti-traya), to the Supreme is here indicated. The three Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva are not to be conceived as independent persons; they are the threefold manifestations of the one Supreme.

rasaḥ: essence, sāras cid-ānanda-prakāśaḥ. See T.U. II. 7.

cetāmātraḥ: intelligence-principle; which is entirely intelligent, cetā cetanā sākṣi-caitanyaṁ tayā mīyate'vabhāsyata iti cetāmātraḥ svaprakāśa-sākṣi-mātreṇānubhāvya iti.

kṣetrajña: knower of the body. kṣetram śarīraṁ dharmādharma-bīja-praroha-bhūmitvāt tad ā-pāda-tala-mastakam aham iti jñātīti kṣetrajño jīva iti.

viśva: every one, i.e. every individual. He is not only the sum-total of all existences but is also the principle of the individual being.

eightfold, etc.: The eight forms are the five vital airs, the sun, moon and stars or the last three and the five elements. The eleven are the eleven organs of sense and action and mind. If we make mind and understanding (buddhi), different, we get twelve. It becomes unlimited if we take the endless activities in the various individuals.

MANIFESTATIONS OF THE SELF

1. dvidhā vā eṣa ātmānam bibharty ayaṁ yaḥ prāṇo yas cāsā ādityo'tha dvau vā etā asya paṇthānā antar bahiś cāhorātreṇaitau vyāvartete, asau vā ādityo bahir ātmāntarātmā prāṇo'to bahir ātmakṛyā gatyāntarātmāno'numīyate gatiṛ ity evaṁ hy āhātha yaḥ kaścīdvidvānapahata-pāpmā'kṣādhyaḥso'vadāta-manāstan-niṣṭha āvṛtta-cakṣuḥ so antarātmakṛyā gatyā bahir ātmāno'numīyate gatiṛ ity evaṁ ha āha, atha ya eṣo'ntarāditye hiraṇmayāḥ puruṣo yaḥ paśyatīmāṁ hiraṇyavasthāt sa eṣo'ntare hṛt-puṣkara evās-rito'nnam atti.

1. He (the self) bears himself in two ways, as he who is breath and he who is the Sun. Therefore, two, verily, are these paths, inward and outward. They both turn back in a day and night. Yonder sun, verily, is the outer self; the inner self is breath. Hence the course of the inner self is measured (inferred from) by the course of the outer self. For thus has it been said, 'Now, whoever is a knower, who has freed (himself) from evil, the overseer of the senses, pure-minded, firmly established in that, locking away (from outward objects) is even he (the self). Likewise, the course of the outer self is measured by the course of the inner self. For thus has it been said, 'Now that golden person who is within the Sun, who looks on this earth from his golden place is even he who has entered into the lotus of the heart and eats food.'

The sixth and seventh chapters are treated as supplementary. The main purpose of the Upaniṣad is to affirm that there is one Supreme Self to be known and the various forms of Brahmā, Viṣṇu and Śiva are only aspects or manifestations of that Supreme Self. In these chapters we find references to various modes of worship and means by which spiritual knowledge can be gained. See R.V. X. 90. 2.

akṣādhyaḥsa: overseer of the senses and not subject to them.

2. Now, he who has entered the lotus of the heart and eats food is the same as that fire of the Sun which enters the sky, called Time the Invisible, who eats all beings as his food. What is the lotus and of what is it made? That lotus, assuredly, is the same as space. The four quarters and the four intermediate quarters are its leaves. These two, breath and the Sun, move near each other. Let him reverence them with the syllable aum, with the mystic utterances (bhūh, bhuvah, svah) and with the Sāvitṛī prayer.

saurah: of the sun, sūrya-tejo-rūpaḥ.

Ākāśa is described as the lotus flower whose petals are the four quarters and the four intermediate quarters or the cardinal points. Time who eats all beings as his food, prāṇinām kalanāt kālākhyah sarva-bhūtāni samharati.

arvāg: near, adūre sammiktau.

THE MYSTIC AUM

3. dve vāva brahmaṇo rūpe mūrtāṁ cāmūrtāṁ ca; atha yan mūrtāṁ tad asatyam, yad amūrtam tat satyam tad brahma, taj jyotiḥ, yaj jyotiḥ sa ādityah, sa vā eṣa aum ity etad ātmābhavat, sa tredhātmānam vyākuruṭā, aum iti, tisro mātṛā, etābhiḥ sarvaṁ idam otam protaṁ caivāsmṛti, evaṁ hy ākaitāḍ vā āditya aum ity evaṁ dhyāyata ātmānam yuñjiteti.

3. There are, assuredly, two forms of Brahman, the formed and the formless. Now that which is formed is unreal; that which is the formless is the real; that is the Brahman, that is the light. That which is the light is the Sun. Verily, that came to have aum as its self. He divided himself threefold (for aum consists of three letters (a, u, m)). By means of these all this (world) is woven, warp and woof, across him. For thus has it been said, 'One should meditate on the Sun as aum and get united to it.'

The formed is the effect and the formless is the cause.

satyam: the real, paramārtha-satyam, sarvādhiṣṭhānam.

mātṛāḥ: parts, avayavāḥ.

4. athānyatrāpy uktam, atha khalu ya udgīthah sa prāṇavo yah prāṇavah sa udgītha iti, asau vā āditya udgītha eṣa prāṇavā iti. evaṁ hy āhodgītham prāṇavākhyam prāṇetāram bhā-rūpaṁ

4. And then it has been said elsewhere, 'Now then the udgītha is the praṇava and the praṇava is the udgītha. And so verily the udgītha is the yonder Sun and he is praṇava. For thus it is said, the udgītha called praṇava, the leader (in the performance of sacrificial rites), whose form is radiance, sleepless, ageless, deathless, three-footed, three-lettered, also to be known as fivefold, hidden in the secret place (of the heart).' And it is also said, 'The three-footed Brahman has its root above. Its branches are space, wind, fire, water, earth and the like. This Brahman has the name of the "lone fig tree" and of it that is the radiance which is called the Sun and the radiance too of the syllable aum. Therefore, one should continuously worship it with the syllable aum. For thus it is said, "This syllable, indeed, is holy, this syllable, indeed, is supreme. By knowing that syllable, indeed, whatever one desires (becomes) his".'

See C.U. I. 5. 1; R.V. X. 90. 3-4; Kāṭha VI. 1; II. 16.

praṇetāram: leader (of rites), prakarṣeṇa tat-tat-karmaṇām pravartayitāram.

5. athānyatrāpy uktam, svanavaty eśāsyaḥ tanūḥ yā aum ity stri-pun-napumsaketi līṅgavatī, eśā'thāgnir vāyur āditya iti bhāsvatī, eśā atha brahma rūdro viṣṇur ity adhīpativati, eśā'tha gārhapatyō daksināgnir āhavanīyā iti mukhavatī, eśā'tha ṛg yajus-sāmeti vijñānavatī, eśā bhūr bhuvaḥ svar iti lokavatī, eśā'tha bhūtam bhavyam bhavisyad iti kālavatī, eśā'tha prāno'gniḥ sūrya iti pratāpavatī, eśā'thānnam āpas candramā ity āpyāyanavatī, eśā'tha buddhir mano'haṃkāra iti cetanavatī, eśā'tha prāno'pāno vyāna iti prāṇavatī, eṣety ata aum ity uktenaitāḥ prastutā arcitā arpitā bhavantīti evaṃ hy āhaitad vai satyakāma paraṇ cāparaṇ ca brahma yad aum ity etad akṣaram iti.

5. And then it has been said elsewhere, 'This aum is the sound form of this (the self). Feminine, masculine and neuter (this) is the sex form. Fire, wind and sun; this is his light form.

Brahmā, Rudra and Viṣṇu, this is his lordship form. The Gārhapatyā, the Dakṣiṇāgni and the Āhavanīya sacrificial fires—this is his mouth-form. Rg, Yajus and Sāman (Vedas) this is his knowledge-form. Earth, atmosphere and sky, this is his world-form. Past, present and future, this is his time-form. Breath, fire and Sun, this is his heat-form. Food, water and moon, this is his growth form. Understanding, mind and self-sense, this is his thought-form. The prāṇa breath, the apāna breath and the vyāna breath, this is his breath form. Therefore, by the utterance of the syllable aum all these (forms) are praised, worshipped and ascribed. For thus it is said, 'This syllable aum, verily, is the higher and the lower Brahman.' svanavatī sound-form. śabdavatī.

THE EXPLANATION OF THE THREE WORLDS

6. athāvyaḥṛtaṁ vā idam āsīt, sa satyam prajāpatis tapas taṭtvā nuvyāharad bhūr bhuvah svar iti; eṣaivāsya prajāpateḥ śhaviṣṭhā tanūr-yā lokavatīti, svar ity asyāḥ śiro nābhīr bhūvo bhūh pādā ādityas cakṣuḥ, cakṣur-āyattā hi puruṣasya mahatī mātṛā, cakṣuṣā hy ayaṁ mātṛāś caratī, satyam vai cakṣuḥ, akṣiṇy avasthito hi puruṣaḥ sarvārtheṣu caratī, etasmād bhūr bhuvah svar ity upāsītānena hi prajāpatir viśvātmā viśva-cakṣur ivo-pāsito bhavatīti, evaṁ hy āhaiṣā vai prajāpater viśva-bhṛt-tanūr etasyām idam sarvam antarhitam, asmin ca sarvasminn eṣā antarhiteti, tasmād eṣopāsīta.

6. Now (in the beginning) this (world) was, verily, unuttered. When he, the Real, the lord of creation, performed austerity, he uttered (the words) bhūh, bhuvah, svah. This, indeed, is Prajā-pati's very gross form, this world-form. Its head is the sky, the navel is the atmosphere, the feet are the earth, the eye is the sun, for a person's great material world depends on the eye, for with the eye he measures all things. Verily, the eye is the real for stationed in the eye a person moves about among all objects. Therefore one should reverence bhūh, bhuvah, svah, for this Prajā-pati, the self of all, the eye of all, becomes revered, as it were. For thus has it been said, 'Verily this is the all-supporting form of Prajā-pati, for in it all this (world) is hidden, and it is hidden in this whole (world). Therefore, this is what one should reverence.'

unuttered: see T.U. I. 5; Pañcaviṁśa Brāhmaṇa XX. 14. 2.
śhaviṣṭhā: very gross, śhūla-tamā.

viśva-bhṛt: all-supporting, sūryarūpā prajā-pater brahmaṇo viśvam bibhartīti viśva-bhṛt.

WORSHIP OF THE SUN BY MEANS OF THE SĀVITRĪ PRAYER

7. tat savitur vareṇyam ity asau vā ādityaḥ savitā sa vā evam pravarāṇīya ātmakāmenety āhur brahmavādino'tha bhargo devasya dhīmahi, savitā vai devas tato yo'sya bhargākhyas tam cintayā-mīty āhur brahma-vādino'tha dhiyo yo naḥ pracodayād iti, budd-hayo vai dhiyastāyo'smākam pracodayād ity āhur brahma-vādinah, atha bhargā iti yo ha vā amuṣminn āditye nihitas tāraako'kṣini vaiṣa bhargākhyah, bhābhīr gatir asya hīti bhargah, bharjayatīti vaiṣa bharga iti rudro brahma-vādino'tha, bha iti bhāsayaatīmān lokān, ra iti rañjayatīmāni bhūtāni, ga iti gacchanty asminn āgacchanty asmād imāḥ prajāś tasmād bha-ra-ga-tvād bhargah, śaśvat sūyamānāt sūryaḥ savanāt savitā dānāt ādityaḥ pavanāt pāvano'thāpoṣyāyanād ity evam hy āha, khalv ātmano 'tmā netāmṛtākhyas cetā mantā gantotsrṣtānandayitā kartā vaktā rasayitā ghrātā draṣṭā śrotā spṛṣati ca vibhur vigrāhe sanniviṣṭā ity evam hy āha, atha yatra dvaitībhūtān vijñānaṁ tatra hi śṛnoti paśyati jighrati rasayati caiva sparśayati sarvaṁ ātmā jñāteti, yatrādvaitībhūtān vijñānaṁ kārya-kāraṇa-karma-nir-muktaṁ nirvacanam anaupamyam nirupākhyam kim, tad avācyaṁ.

7. That desirable (splendour) of Sāvitrī, yonder Sun, verily, is Sāvitrī. He, verily, is to be sought thus, by one desirous of self, so say the expounders of Brahma-knowledge. May we meditate on the splendour of the God. Sāvitrī, verily, is God. Therefore I meditate as that which is called his splendour. So say the expounders of Brahma-knowledge. May he inspire (illuminate) our thoughts. Thoughts, verily, are meditations. May he inspire these for us, so say the expounders of Brahma-knowledge. Now splendour, verily, he who is hidden in yonder Sun is called splendour or he who is the pupil in the eye. He is so called because his course is with the rays of light or he is Rudra because he causes to dry up, so say the expounders of Brahma-knowledge. Now bha means that he illumines these worlds, ra means that he gladdens these beings, ga means that creatures here go into him and come out of him. Therefore, because of being bha, ra, ga, he is bharga. Sūrya is so named because of the continued squeezing out, Sāvitrī is so named because of its bringing forth. Āditya is so named because of taking up into itself. Pāvana is so named because of its purifying. Āpas is so named because of its causing to grow. For thus has it been said, Assuredly the self of one's self is called the leader, immortal, perceiver, thinker, the goer, the evacuator, the delighter, the doer, the speaker, the taster, the smeller, the seer and the hearer and he touches. He, the all-pervader has entered the body. For thus has it been said, Now where knowledge is of a dual nature (implying a subject which knows and an object which is known), there, indeed, one hears, sees, smells, tastes and also touches, the self knows everything. Where knowledge, being devoid of effort, cause or action, unspeakable, incomparable, indescribable, what is that? It is impossible to say.

ātma-kāmaḥ: desirous of self, ātmaiva kāmaḥ yasya saḥ.

brahma-vādinah: expounders of Brahma-knowledge. brahma-vadana-śilā vedārtavidah.

bharjayati: causes to dry up. Rudra is the destroyer of the world, jagat saṁharati.

Creatures go into him and come out of him: They go into him in sound sleep and in intervals between successive creations and come out of him in waking and in creation.

For the distinction between dual and non-dual knowledge see B.U. II. 4. 14. The self is present in all knowledge but it is not itself an object of knowledge.

The gāyatrī prayer has come down from the period of the R.V. and expresses man's aspiration to know more and more. Cp. Nicolas of Cusa: 'To be able to know ever more and more without end, this is our likeness to the eternal wisdom. Man always desires to know better what he knows, and to love more what he loves; and the whole world is not sufficient for him, because it does not satisfy his craving for knowledge.'

8. eṣa hi khalv ātmeśānaḥ sambhur bhavo rudrah prajā-patir viśva-sṛk hiranya-garbhah satyam prāṇo haṁsaḥ śāstā viṣṇurnārāyaṇo'rkaḥ savitā dhātā vidhātā samrād indra indur iti, ya eṣa tapaty agnir vāgninā pihitah sahasrākṣeṇa hiraṇmayenāṇḍena, eṣa vā jijnāsitavyo'nveṣṭavyah, sarva-bhūtebhyo'bhayaṁ datvā-rāṇyam gatvātha bahiḥkṛtvendriyārthān svāc charīrād upalabheta enam iti.

8. This self, verily, is the lord, the beneficent, the real, the terrible, the lord of creation, the creator of all, the golden germ, truth, life, spirit, the ordainer, the pervader, Nārāyaṇa, the shining, vivifier, the upholder, the maker, sovereign, Indra, the moon. He it is who gives forth heat, concealed by the thousand-eyed golden egg as one fire by another. Him, verily, one should desire to know. He should be sought after. Having given fearlessness to all creatures, having gone to the forest, then having put aside objects of sense, let a man comprehend the self from out of his own body. He who has all forms, the golden one, who is all-knowing, the final goal, the only light, who gives heat, the thousand-rayed, abiding in a hundred places, the life of creatures, the yonder sun rises.

Rāmātīrtha makes out that the Supreme associated with the three guṇas is described here: rudrāntaḥ tamaḥ-pradhāna-māyopādhiḥ, hamsānto rajaḥ-pradhāna-māyopādhiḥ śāstā viṣṇur nārāyaṇa iti śuddha-sattva-pradhāna-māyopādhiḥ.

The one appears as threefold on account of the three functions. saṁhāra-sṛṣṭi-sthiti.

pīḥitāḥ: concealed, ācchanno bhavati ācchāditaḥ.

hiraṇmayena: golden, brilliant, tejomayena.

araṇyam: forest, a solitary place which soothes the mind. viṇaṁ deśam manāḥ-prasāda-karam.

harinaṁ: golden, also interpreted as the seizer of all: harati sarveṣāṁ prāṇināṁ āyūṁsi bhaumān vā rasān iti harinaḥ.

jāta-vedasāḥ: all-knowing. jātam jātam vetti. See also VII. 7; Praśna I. 8.

9. Therefore, verily, he who knows that this has both these (breath and the sun) as his self, meditates only on his self, sacrifices only to his self; such meditation, the mind absorbed in such practice, is praised by the wise. One should purify the impurity of his mind with the verse 'What has been defiled by the leavings.' He reads the verse. Leavings or what has been defiled by leavings and what has been given by a sinner or (what is rendered impure) by a still birth, may the purifying power of Vasu, Agni and of Sāvitṛī's rays purify my food and any other that may be evil. First (before taking his food), he swathes (his breath) with water. Hail to the prāṇa breath, hail to the apāna breath, hail to the vyāna breath, hail to the samāna breath, hail to the udāna breath. With these five invocations, he offers the oblation. Then he eats the remainder, with restrained voice (in silence). Then, afterwards he again swathes with water. So, having sipped (the water), having made the sacrifice to the self, he should meditate on the self with the two (formulas) 'As breath and fire,' 'Thou art all.' 'As breath and fire, the highest self has entered in with the five airs. May he when pleased himself, please all, the enjoyer of all.' 'Thou art all, thou art the Vaiśvānara (fire). All that is born is supported by thee. Let all oblations enter into thee. There creatures live where thou, the all-immortal art. So he who eats according to this rule comes not again into the condition of food.

In this passage the taking of food is represented as a sacrifice offered by the self to the self: ātma-yajña-rūpam bhojanam.

The formal rinsing of the mouth at the beginning and the end of meals is described here. See C.U. V. 2.

pāpena: by a sinner, pāpātmanā, patitena.

yata-vāk: with restrained voice, maunī.

viśva-bhuk: the enjoyer of all, viśvam bhukṣti, pālayati.

viśvāmṛtaḥ: all-immortal, viśvam amṛtasya jīvayaśīti viśvāmṛtaḥ.

comes not again into the condition of food: He does not become food for others, he is not reborn.

10. athāparam veditavyam, uttaro vikāro'syātma-yajñasya yathānnam annādaś ceti, asyopavyākhyānam, puruṣaś cetā pradhānāntaḥsthaḥ, sa eva bhoktā prakṛtam annam bhukṣta iti,

10. Now, there is something else to be known. There is a further development of this self-sacrifice, namely, what concerns the food and the eater thereof. The further explanation of this (follows). The conscious person abides within nature. He is the enjoyer for he enjoys (feeds on) the food (supplied by) of nature. This elemental self, verily, is food for him, its maker is nature. Therefore, that which is to be enjoyed consists of the three qualities and the enjoyer is the person who stands within. Here the evidence is what is observed (by the senses). Since animals spring from seed and as seed is the food, by this is explained that nature is what is to be enjoyed. Therefore, the person is the enjoyer, nature is what is to be enjoyed. Abiding in it, he enjoys. All that begins with the intellect and ends with the elements, being a transformation of the distinction of nature with its three qualities is the sign (that there must be a self). And by this, the fourteenfold course is explained. This world is indeed the food, called pleasure, pain and delusion. There is no apprehension of the taste of the seed (cause) so long as there is no production (of effect). And in its three conditions also it has the character of food, as childhood, youth and old age. There is in them the character of food, on account of transformation. Thus as nature moves to the state of becoming manifest, there arises the perception of it. For the tasting (of the effects of nature) arise intellect and the like, determination, conception and self-love. Then there are the five objects of sense, for the tasting of them. Thus arise all actions of organs and actions of senses. Thus the manifest is food and the unmanifest is food. The enjoyer of it is without qualities (but) from the fact of his being an enjoyer it is evident that he possesses consciousness. As fire, verily, is the eater of food among the gods and Soma is the food, so he who knows this eats food by fire. The elemental self is called Soma. He who has the unmanifest as his mouth is called Agni because of the saying, 'The person truly with the unmanifest as his mouth enjoys the three qualities.' He who knows this is a renouncer, a contemplator, a performer of the self-sacrifice. Even as there is no one to touch sensual women who have entered into an empty house, so he who does not touch objects of sense that enter into him is a renouncer, a contemplator, a performer of the self-sacrifice.

lingam: sign. Hume interprets it as the subtle body which includes from the intellect up to the separate elements.

the fourteenfold course: The four forms of antaḥ-karāṇa, the five organs of sense-perception and the five organs of action.

ātma-yājī: the performer of the self-sacrifice: ātma-saṁskārārtham yo yajate sa ātma-yājī.

kāminyaḥ: sensual women, kāminīḥ kāmāturāḥ strīḥ.

FOOD AS THE FORM OF SELF

II. paraṁ vā etad ātmano rūpam yad annam, annamayo hy ayam prāṇo'tha na yady aśnāty amantā'srotā'spraṣṭā'draṣṭā' vaktā'ghrātārasayitā bhavati, prāṇāṁscotsrjātīti, evaṁ hy āhātha yadi khalv aśnāti prāṇa-samrddho bhūtvā mantā bhavati śrotā bhavati, spraṣṭā bhavati, vaktā bhavati, rasayitā bhavati, ghrātā bhavati, draṣṭā bhavātīti, evaṁ hy āha annād vai prajāḥ prajāyante yāḥ kāscit prthivī'sṛtāḥ. ato'nnaiva jīvanti, athaitad api yanty antataḥ.

II. This, verily, is the highest form of self, namely, food, for truly this life consists of food. If one does not eat, he becomes a non-thinker, a non-hearer, a non-toucher, a non-seer, a non-speaker, a non-smeller, a non-taster, and he lets go his vital breaths. For thus it has been said, 'If, indeed, one eats, he becomes full of life, he becomes a thinker, he becomes a hearer, he becomes a toucher, he becomes a speaker, he becomes a taster, he becomes a smeller, he becomes a seer.' For thus has it been said: 'From food, verily, are creatures, whatsoever dwell on earth, are produced; moreover, by food, verily, they live and again into it they finally pass.'

See C.U. VII. 9. 1; T.U. II. 2.

12. And thus it has been said elsewhere: Verily all creatures here run about day after day, desiring to get food. The sun takes food to himself by his rays and thereby he gives forth heat. When supplied with food living beings here digest. Fire, verily, blazes up by food. This world was fashioned by Brahma with a desire for food. Therefore, let a man reverence food as the self. For thus has it been said: From food creatures are born, by food they grow when born, because it is eaten by and eats creatures, it is called food.

V. annenābhiḥvalati.

See T.U. II. 2; B.S. IV. 1. 4. 5.

abhiśiktāḥ: supplied, saṁklīnnāḥ santarpitāḥ.

13. Now it has elsewhere been said: That born of the blessed Viṣṇu which is called the all-supporting, that, verily, is this food. Life, verily, is the essence of food, mind of life, understanding of mind, (spiritual) bliss of understanding. He who knows this becomes possessed of food, life, mind, understanding and bliss. Whatever creatures here (on earth) eat food, abiding in them does he, who knows this, eat food. Food, indeed, prevents decay, food is worshipful, it is said: Food is the life of animals, food is the eldest-born, food is the physician, it is said.

jyestham: prathamajam, eldest born, first born.

IMPORTANCE OF TIME

14. And thus it has been said elsewhere: Food, verily is the source of this whole (world), and time of food, and the Sun is the source of time. The form of it (time) is the year, which is composed of moments (twinklings) and other measures of time, and which consists of twelve months. Of it one half (when the Sun moves northward, belongs to Agni, the (other) half (when the sun moves southward) belongs to Varuṇa. The course from the asterism Magha (the sickle) to half of Śraviṣṭha (the drum) belongs to Agni. In its northward course from Sarpā (the serpent) to half of Śraviṣṭha belongs to the moon. Among these each month of the self (named as the year) includes nine quarters according to the corresponding course (of the Sun through the asterism). Because of its subtilty (imperceptibility of senses) this (course of the Sun) is the proof for only in this way is time proved (to exist). Without proof there is no apprehension of the thing to be proved. However the thing to be proved may become proved from the fact of its containing parts and for the sake of making itself known. For this it has been said, As many parts of time as there are, through this the yonder (sun) moves. He who worships time as Brahman from him time moves away very far. For this has it been said, 'From time all beings flow, from time they advance to growth; in time they obtain rest (they disappear). Time is formed and formless too.'

Half the year is uttarāyana, belongs to Agni, auṣṇya-pradhānatvāt; and the other half dakṣiṇāyana belongs to Varuṇa, jala-pradhānatvāt. The two periods are predominantly warm and moist respectively. sārpam: the asterism of Āśleṣā, sacred to the serpents, sarpa-devatyām āśleṣā-nakṣatram.

sambodhanārtham: for making itself known, samyag-bodhanārtham avadhāraṇārtham.

15. dve vāva brahmaṇo rupe kālaś cākālaś cātha yaḥ prāḡ ādityāt so'kālo'kalo'tha ya ādityaḥ yaḥ sa kālaḥ, sakalaḥ, sakalasya vā etad rūpam yat samvatsaraḥ, samvatsarāt khalv evamāḥ prajāḥ prajāyante, samvatsareṇa vai jātā vivardhante, samvatsare pratyastam yanti, tasmāt samvatsaro vai prajā-patiḥ kālo'nnam brahma-nīdam ātmā cety evam hy āha kālāḥ pacāti bhūtāni sarvāṇy eva mahātmani, yaśmin tu pacyate kālo yas tam veda sa vedavit.

15. There are, verily, two forms of Brahman, time and the timeless. That which is prior to the sun is the timeless, without parts. But that which begins with (has a beginning from) the Sun is time, which has parts. Verily, the form of that which has parts is the year. From the year, verily, are these creatures produced. By the year, verily, after having been produced they grow. In the year they disappear. Therefore, the year, verily, is Prajā-pati, is time, is food, is the abode of Brahman, is the self. For thus has it been said: 'Time cooks (ripens) all things, indeed, in the great self. He who knows in what time is cooked, he is the knower of the Veda.'

The Sun is the self of time as he is its ordainer, kāla-nirvartakatvād ādityaḥ kālātmakāḥ.

abode of Brahman: brahmaṇo nīdam ālambanam brahma-dṛṣṭi-yogyam pratikam.

pacyate: is cooked, is dissolved, liyate.

The temporal process and the Sun go together. What is prior to the Sun is non-temporal.

Time is exalted as the highest principle, as the source of all that is.

There is a distinction between time which has parts, which is later than the Sun and the stars and the non-time which is without parts and is earlier, between time which cooks or matures all beings and that in which time is cooked or matured.

16. vigrahavān eṣa kālāḥ sindhurājāḥ prajānām, eṣa tat-stiḥṣavitākhyoyasmādevemecandra-rkṣa-graha-samhvatsarādayaḥ sūyante, athaibhyaḥ sarvaṁ idam atra vā yat kiñcit śubhāśubhāṁ drśyanteḥa loke tad etebhyaḥ, tasmād ādityātmā brahmātha kālasamjñāṁ ādityam upāsītādityo brahmetyeke'tha evaṁ hy āha.

*hotā bhoktā havir mantro yajño viṣṇuḥ prajā-patīḥ,

16. This embodied (incarnate) time is the great ocean of creatures. In it abides he who is called Savitr (the Sun as begetter) from whom, indeed, are begotten the moon, stars, planets, the year and the rest. And from them comes this whole (world) here and whatever of good or evil is seen in this (world) comes from them. Therefore, Brahman is the self of the Sun. Therefore one should reverence the Sun under the name of time. Some say the Sun is Brahman and thus is it said: 'The offerer (of the sacrifice), the enjoyer (of the sacrifice), the oblation, the hymn, the sacrifice, Viṣṇu, Prajā-pati all this is the lord, the witness who shines in yonder orb.'

See C.U. III. 19. 1.

ocean: samudravat dustarāḥ.

17. brahma ha vā idam agra āsīt, eko'nantāḥ, prāḡ ananto dakṣiṇato'nantāḥ, prāṭīcy ananta udīcy ananta ūrdhvaṁ cā'vāṁ ca sarvato'nantāḥ; na hy āsya prācyādi-diśaḥ kalpante'tha tiryagvāṁ cordhvaṁ vā, anūhya eṣa paramātmā'parimito'jo'tarkyo' cintya eṣa ākāśātmā; evaiṣa kṛtsna-kṣaya eko jāgartīti, etasmād ākāśād eṣa khalv idam cetāmātram bodhayati; anenaiva cedam dhyāyate asmin ca pratyastam yāti; asyaitad bhāsvaram rūpam yad amuṣminn āditye tapati, agnau cādhumake yaj jyotiś citrataram, udarastho'tha vā yaḥ pacaty annam; ity evaṁ hy āha; yaścaīṣo'gnau yaś cāyaṁ hṛdaye yaś cāsāv āditye sa eṣa ekā ity ekasya haikatvam eti ya evaṁ veda.

17. Verily, in the beginning this world was Brahman, the infinite one, infinite in the east, infinite in the south, infinite in the west, infinite in the north and above and below, infinite in every direction. For him, indeed, east and the other directions exist not nor across, nor below, nor above. Incomprehensible is that Supreme Self, unlimited, unborn, not to be reasoned about, not to be thought of (unthinkable), he whose self is space. At the dissolution of all he alone remains awake. Thus from that space, he awakes this (world) which consists of thought only. By him alone is all this meditated on and in him it is dissolved. He is that luminous form which gives heat in the yonder sun, the wonderful light on the smokeless fire, as also the fire in the stomach which cooks (digests) food. For thus has it been said, He who is in the fire, and he who is here in the heart and he who is yonder in the sun—he is one. He who knows this goes to the oneness of the one.

na kalpante: exists not, na vastutaḥ santi.

anūhya: The self cannot be imagined because it is not determinate. Whatever is imagined is determined: yad vastūhyate tat parimitam.

ākāśātman: whose self is space. See C.U. III. 14. 2; K.U. II. 14.

citra-taram: wonderful, atī-vicitram.

THE YOGA METHOD

18. tathā tat-prayoga-kalpāḥ prāṇāyāmaḥ pratyāhāro dhyānam dhāraṇā tarkaḥ samādhiḥ śaḍaṅgā ity ucyate yogaḥ, anena yadā paśyan paśyati rukma-varṇam kartāram īśam puruṣam brahmayonim; tadā vidvān puṇya-pāpe vihāya pare'vyaye sarvaṁ ekikaroty; evaṁ hy āha:

yathā parvatam ādīptam nāśrayanti mrga-dvijāḥ, tadvad brahmavido doṣā nāśrayanti kadācana.

18. This is the rule for achieving this (oneness), control of the breath, withdrawal of the senses, meditation, concentration, contemplative inquiry and absorption, (this is) said to be the sixfold yoga. When, by this (yoga) he beholds the gold-coloured maker, the lord, the person, the Brahmā source, then the sage, shaking off good and evil, makes everything into oneness in the supreme indestructible. For thus has it been said, 'As beasts and birds do not resort to a burning mountain, so sins do not find shelter in those who know Brahman.'

Yoga is the means by which we control the mind: citta-vaśīkāro upāyah. See Yoga Sūtra II. 29.

Withdrawal of the senses from their objects is pratyāhāra. indriyāṇām viśayebhyaḥ pratyāharaṇam pratinivartanam pratyāhārah.

Contemplative inquiry or tarka is savikalpaka-samādhi. It may also mean an inquiry whether the mind has become transformed or not into the object of meditation or an investigation into the hindrances of concentration caused by the inferior powers acquired by meditation.

paśyati: beholds. By means of yoga we achieve direct perception of the Supreme, sākṣād anubhavati. See M.U. III. 1. 3.

acittaṁ cittamadhyastham acintyaṁ guhyam uttamam tatra cittaṁ nidhāyeta tac ca liṅgaṁ nirāśrayam.

19. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'Verily, when a knower has restrained his mind from the external, when his breath has put to rest objects of sense, let him then remain void of conceptions. Since the living individual who is named the breathing spirit has arisen here from what is not the breathing spirit, therefore let the breathing spirit merge his breathing spirit in what is called the fourth (condition).' For thus has it been said: 'That which is non-thought, which stands in the midst of thought, the unthinkable, the hidden, the highest, let a man merge his thought there. Then will this living being be without support (attachment).'

aprāṇāt: from what is not the breathing spirit. Its source is the thinking self, prāṇādi-viśeṣa-rahitāc cidātmanah.

turya: the fourth, the other three being waking, dream and sleep. See M.U. 7.

liṅga: the subtle body. It will not appear in its separate individuality on account of the absence of any conscious object or the subtle body will become void of all objects.

THE VISION OF THE SELF

20. athānyatrāpy uktam; ataḥ parāśya dhāraṇā, tālu-rasanā-granipīḍanād vān-manah-prāṇa-nirodhanād, brahma tarkaṇa paśyati, yad ātmanā ātmānam anor anīyāmsaṁ dyotamānam manah-kṣayāt paśyati tad ātmanātmānam dṛṣṭvā nirātmā bhavati, nirātmakatvād asamīkhyo'yonis cintyo mokṣa-lakṣaṇam ity etat paraṁ rahasyam; ity evaṁ hy āha:

cittasya hi prasādena hanti karma subhāśubham, prasannātmātmāni sthitvā sukhāṁ avyayaṁ aśmūtā iti.

20. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'There is yet a higher concentration than this for him. By pressing the tip of the tongue down the palate, by restraining voice, mind and breath, he sees Brahman through contemplative thought. When, by the suppression of the mind, he sees through self he sees the shining self, more subtle than the subtle, then having the self through the self he becomes selfless. Because of his being selfless he is to be thought of as immeasurable, without origin. This is the mark of liberation, the highest mystery.' And thus has it been said, 'For by the serenity of thought, one destroys deeds, good and evil, with the serene self abiding in the self he enjoys eternal happiness.'

The process described here is called lambikā-yoga and the state produced by it is called unmanībhāva.

tārkeṇa: through contemplative thought, dhāraṇānāntara-bhāvinā niścita-rūpeṇa jñānena.

nirātmā: selfless, nirmanasko bhavati jīvaabhāvān nivartate eṣāvasthā yogibhir unmanīty ucyate.

21. athānyatrāpy uktam: ūrdhvagā nādī suṣumnākhyā prāṇa-sancāriṇī tālvantarvicchinmā, tayā prāṇomkāra-mano-yuktayordhvam utkramet, tālvadhyagram parivartya indriyāṇy asam-vojya mahimā mahimānam nirīkṣeta, tato nirātmakatvam eti, nirātmakatvān na sukha-duḥkha-bhāg bhavati, kevalatvam labhatā ity evaṁ hy āha:

paraḥ pūrvam pratiṣṭhāpya nigrhītānilam tataḥ.

tīrtvā pāram apāreṇa paścād yuñjīta mūrdhvanī.

21. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'The channel called suṣumnā leading upward, serving as the passage for the breath, is divided within the palate. Through it, when it is joined by the breath, the syllable aum and by the mind, let him proceed upwards. By causing the tip of the tongue to turn back on the palate, by binding together the senses, let greatness perceive greatness. Thence he goes to selflessness.' On account of selflessness, he is not (ceases to be) an experiencer of pleasure and pain. He obtains aloneness. For thus has it been said: 'Having first fixed the breath that has been restrained, having crossed the limit, let him join the limitless in (the crown of) the head.'

See C.U. VIII. 6.6; Kaṭha VI. 16; T.U. 1-6; Praśna III. 7. (7). 6. Freed from limitations he becomes conscious of the unlimited perfection of Brahman.

MEDITATION ON AUM

22. athānyatrāpy uktam: dve vā va brahmanī abhidhyeye śabdaś cāśabdaśca, atha śabdenaivāśabdām āviśkriyate, atha tatra aum iti śabdo'nenordhvam utkrānto'śabde nidhanam eti, athāhaisā gatiṛ etad amṛtam, etat sāyujyatvam, nirvṛtatvam tathā ceti; atha yathorṇanābhis tantunordhvam utkrānto'vakāśam labhātīty evaṃ vā va khalv asāv abhidhyātā aum ity anenordhvam utkrāntaḥ svātantryaṃ labhate, anyathā pare śabdavādināḥ: śravanāṅguṣṭhayogenāntarhṛdayākāśa-śabdām ākarnayanti, sapta-vidheyaṃ tasyopamā, yathā nadyaḥ kiṅkiṇī kāmśya-cakraka-bheka viḥkrāndhikā vṛṣṭir, nivāte vadatīti, taṃ pṛthag lakṣaṇam atītya pare'śabde'vyakte brahmaṇy astaṃ gatāḥ, tatra te'pṛthag-dharmīṇo'pṛthag-vivekyā yathā sampānnā madhutvaṃ nānārasā ity evaṃ hy āha:

dve brahmanī veditavye, śabda-brahma paraṃ ca yat, śabda-brahmaṇi niṣṇātaḥ param brahmādhigacchati.

22. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'There are, verily, two Brahmans to be meditated upon, sound and non-sound. By sound alone is the non-sound revealed. Now here the sound is aum. Moving upward by it one comes to ascend in the non-sound. So (one says) this is the way, this is immortality, this is complete union and also tranquillity. And now as the spider moves upward by the thread, obtains free space, thus assuredly, indeed the meditator moving upward by the syllable aum obtains independence.' Other expounders of the sound (as Brahman) think otherwise. By closing the ears with the thumbs they hear the sound of the space within the heart. There is the sevenfold comparison of it, like rivers, a bell, a brass vessel, a wheel, the croaking of frogs, rain, as when one speaks in a still place. Having passed beyond this variously characterised (sound), they disappear (become merged) in the supreme, the non-sound, the unmanifest Brahman. There they are uncharacterised and indistinguishable like the various juices that have reached the condition of honey. For thus has it been said, 'There are two Brahmans to be known, the sound Brahman and what is higher. Those who know the sound Brahman get to the higher Brahman.'

See M.B. XII. 8540, also Pāṇini-darśana in Sarva-darśana-saṃgraha-nirvṛtatvam: tranquillity, paramānandāvirbhāvaḥ kṛta-kṛtyatvam. free space: nirāṅkuśa-vihārasthānam. kiṅkiṇī: bell, ghaṇṭā-ghoṣaḥ.

kāṁsiyam: a brass vessel, tat-pātra-ghoṣaḥ.
the croaking of frogs, maṇḍūka-ravaḥ.
astam: disappearance, adarśanam.

For the comparison of juices and honey, see C.U. VI. 9. 1-2. The Absolute is not totally unconnected with God. Those who worship God get to the Absolute.

23. athānyatrāpy uktam: yaḥ śabdaḥ tad aum ity etad akṣaram, yad asyāgraṁ tac chāntam, aśabdāṁ, abhayam, aśokam, ānandam, tṛptam, sthiram, acalam, amṛtam, acyutam, dhruvam, viṣṇu-saṁjñitam, sarvāparatvāya tad etā upasītety evaṁ hy āha:

yo'sau parāpara devā aumkāro nāma nāmataḥ, niḥśabdaḥ śūnya-bhūtaḥ tu mūrākṇi sthāne tato'bhyaset.

23. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'What is (called) the sound is the syllable aum. That which is its end is tranquil, soundless, fearless, sorrowless, blissful, satisfied, steadfast, unmoving, immortal, unshaking, enduring, called Viṣṇu; for obtaining what is higher than everything (final release), let him reverence these two.' For thus is it said, 'He who is both higher and lower, that God known by the name of aum is soundless and void of being too. Therefore let one concentrate on (the crown) of the head.'

śūnya-bhūtaḥ: void of being, nirākāratvāt nirviśeṣaḥ. Distinctions do not apply to it, but it is not, on that account, to be regarded as non-being.

24. athānyatrāpy uktam: dhanuḥ śarīram, aum ity etac charaḥ, śikhāsyā manah, tamo-lakṣaṇam, bhūtvā tamo'tamāviṣṭam āgacchati; athāviṣṭam bhūtvā lātacakram iva sphurantam āditya-varṇam ūrjāsvanam brahma tamasaḥ paryam apaśyaḥ yad amuṣminn āditye'tha some'gnau vidyuti vibhāti; atha khalv enam dṛṣtvā mṛtatvam gacchatīty evaṁ hy āha.

24. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'The body is the bow. The arrow is aum. The mind is its point, darkness is the mark. Having pierced through the darkness, one goes to what is not enveloped in darkness. Then having pierced through what is thus enveloped one sees Brahman who sparkles like a wheel of fire, of the colour of the sun, full of vigour, beyond darkness, that which shines in yonder sun, also in the moon, in the fire, in the lightning. And having seen Him assuredly, one goes to immortality.' For thus has it been said: 'Meditation is directed to the highest being within and to the (outer) objects. Hence the unqualified understanding becomes qualified. But when the mind is dissolved and there is the bliss of which the witness is the self, that is Brahman, the immortal, the radiant, that is the way. That indeed is the (true) world.'

See B.G. XV. 12; M.U. II. 2. 3-4.

śikhā: point, agram, śalya-sthānīyam.

darkness, ignorance, mūlājñānam.

atamāviṣṭam: what is not enveloped in darkness, atama-āviṣṭam.
tama-āveśana-rahitam.

śukram: radiant, dīptimat jñāna-svabhāvam.

25. athānyatrāpy uktam: nidrevāntarhitendriyaḥ śuddhitamayā dhiyā svapna iva yaḥ paśyatīndriya-bile'vivaśaḥ prana-vākhyam pranetāram, bhā-rūpam, vigata-nidram, vijaram, vimrtyum, viśokaṁ ca so'pi pranavākhyah, pranetā, bhā-rūpaḥ, vigata nidraḥ, vijaraḥ, vimrtyur viśoko bhavati, ity evaṁ hy āha:

sarva-bhāva-parityāgo yoga ity abhidhiyate.

25. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'He who has his senses indrawn as in sleep, who has his thoughts perfectly pure as in dream, who, while in the cavern of the senses, is not under their control, perceives him who is called Pranava, the leader. of the form of light, the sleepless, free from old age, the deathless, the sorrowless, he himself becomes called Pranava and becomes a leader, of the form of light, sleepless, free from old age, deathless and sorrowless.' And thus it is said: 'Because in his manner he joins the breath, the syllable aum and' all this world in its manifoldness or perhaps they are joined, therefore this (process of meditation) is called Yoga (joining). The oneness of the breath, the mind and likewise of the senses and the abandonment of all conditions of existence, this is designated as Yoga.'

nidreva: as if in sleep; svapna iva: as if in dream.

indriya-bile: in the cavern of the senses, indriyāṇāṁ nivāsa-sthāne dehe.

avivaśaḥ: not under control, sthūla-dehābhimāna-sūnyaḥ.

śuddhitamayā: perfectly pure, atīśayena śuddhimatīyā.

pranētāram: leader. VI. 4.

bhā-rūpam: of the form of light, jñāna-prakāśa-svarūpam.

The first verse describes the goal of Yoga and the second the means to it.

26. athānyatrāpy uktam: yathā vāpsu cāriṇaḥ śākunikaḥ sūtra-yantrenoddhṛtyodare'gnau juhoty evaṁ vā va khalv imān prāṇān aum ityanenoddhṛtyānāmaye'gnau juhoti, atas taptorviva-so'tha yathā taptorvi sūrpis tṛṇa-kāśtha-saṁsparsenojjvalatīty evaṁ vā va khalv asāv aprāṇākhyāḥ prāṇa-saṁsparsenojjvalati, atha yad ujjvalaty etad brahmano rūpam caitad viśṇoḥ paramam padam, caitad rudrasya rudratvam, etat tad aparimitadhā cātmānam vibhajya pūrayatīmān lokān, ity evaṁ hy āha:

26. And thus it has been said elsewhere: 'Verily even as the huntsman draws in the dwellers in the waters with his net and offers them (as a sacrifice) in the fire of his stomach, thus, assuredly does one draw in these breaths by means of the syllable aum and sacrifice them in the fire that is free from ill. Hence it is like a heated vessel. Now as ghee in a heated vessel lights up by contact with (lighted) grass or wood, thus assuredly does he who is called non-breath light up by contact with the breaths. Now that which lights up is a form of Brahman, and that is the highest place of Viṣṇu and that is the Rudra nature of Rudra. That having divided itself in limitless ways fills these worlds.' For thus has it been said, 'And as indeed the sparks (issue) from the fire, as rays from the sun, so do the breaths and the rest come forth again and again into the world in proper order.'

See B.U. II. 1. 20.

anāmaya: free from ill. See Ś.U. III. 10.

27. And thus it has been said elsewhere: Verily, this is the heart of Brahman, the supreme, the immortal, the bodiless, even the warmth of the body. For that (heat) this (body) is the ghee (melted butter). Although it is manifest, verily, it is hidden in the space of the heart. Then by intense concentration they disperse the space within the heart that the light, as it were of that (heat) appears. Then one passes speedily into the same condition (of light) even as a ball of iron that is hidden in the earth passes speedily into the condition of earthiness. As fire and brass smiths and the like do not trouble about the ball of iron that is in the condition of earth, so does thought disappear together with its support. And thus it is said, 'The store house which consists of the space in the heart, the blissful, the supreme abode, is our self, our Yoga (goal) too and this the heat of fire and sun.'

for that this body is the ghee: the splendour of Brahman which is otherwise unmanifested is manifested, even as fire blazes up by contact with ghee.

aviḥ: manifest, prakaṣam. See M.U. II. 2. 1.

kośam: storehouse, bhāndāgāram.

The words āśraya and ālaya are used in their technical meanings. When disembodied in the yogic process the hṛd-ākāśa is the nirāśraya-līṅga consubstantial with citta, its own āśraya. When this process culminates in the ānanda state, it is the higher ālaya. Laṁkāvatara Sūtra distinguishes two aspects of ālaya, the lower of which is viññapti and the higher param ālayaviññānam which is tathatā.

28. And thus it has been said elsewhere: Having passed beyond the elements, the senses and the objects of sense and then having seized the bow, whose string is the life of a mendicant, and whose stick is steadfastness and having struck down, with the arrow which consists of freedom from self-conceit, the first guardian of the door to Brahmā; (who has) bewilderment as his crown, greed and envy as his ear-rings, sloth, sleep and impurity as his staff, the cord of self-love, who seizes the bow whose string is anger, whose stick is lust, who slays beings here with the arrow that consists of desires; having slain him, having crossed over with the raft of the syllable aum to the other side of the space in the heart, in the inner space which gradually becomes manifest one should enter the hall of Brahmā as a miner seeking minerals enters into the mine. Then let him disperse the fourfold sheath of Brahmā by the teaching of his spiritual perceptor. Henceforth being pure, clean, void (of being), tranquil, breathless, selfless, endless, undecaying, steadfast, eternal, unborn, independent, he abides in his own greatness. Thereafter, having seen (the self) which abides in his own greatness, he looks down on the wheel of births and deaths as on a revolving wheel (of a chariot). For thus has it been said: 'If a man practises yoga for six months and is constantly freed (from the world) then the infinite supreme, mysterious Yoga is accomplished. But if a man, though well-enlightened, is afflicted with passion and darkness, if he is attached to son, wife and family, for such a one, no, never at all.'

29. Having thus spoken (to Bṛhadratha) Śākāyanya with his heart (fixed) on the inner self bowed before him and said, by this brahma knowledge, did the sons of Prajā-pati ascend the path of Brahman. By the practice of Yoga one gains contentment, endurance of the dualities (of pleasure and pain) and tranquillity. Let no one declare this most secret doctrine to any one who is not a son, who is not a pupil, who is not of a tranquil (mind). To one who is devoted to none other (than his teacher) to one endowed with all qualities, one may give it.

30. Aum. One should be in a pure place, himself pure, abiding in goodness, studying the real, speaking of the real, meditating on the real, sacrificing to the real. Henceforth absorbed in the real Brahman is he who yearns for the real, becomes another. He has the reward of having his bonds (fetters) cut, becomes void of expectation, is freed from fear in regard to others as in regard to himself, void of desire, he remains, having attained imperishable and immeasurable happiness. Verily, freedom from desire is, as it were, the highest prize from the choicest treasure. For a person who is made up of all desires, who has the marks of determination, conception and self-love is bound. He who is the opposite of that is liberated. On this point, some (the *Sāṁkhya*s) say, it is the quality which, through the force of the differentiation of nature, binds the self with determination (and the like) and from the destruction of the fault of determination (and the like) liberation (results). It is with the mind, verily, that one sees. It is with the mind that one hears. Desire, conception, doubt, faith and lack of faith, steadfastness and lack of steadfastness, shame, meditation, fear, all this is truly mind. Borne along and defiled by the stream of qualities, unsteady, fickle, bewildered, full of desire, distracted, one gets into the state of self-love. In thinking I am he, this is mine, he binds himself with himself as a bird in a snare. Hence a person who has the marks of determination, conception and self-love is bound. He who is the opposite of that is liberated. Therefore stand free from determination, free from conception, free from self-love. This is the mark of liberation. This is the path to Brahman in this world. This is the opening of the door here in this world. Through it one will go to the farther shore of darkness for therein are all desires contained (fulfilled). On this point they quote, 'When the five forms (of sense) of knowledge along with the mind stand still and the intellect stirs not, that, they say, is the highest state.' Having spoken thus, Śākāyanya had his heart (fixed) on the inner self. Then Marut having bowed before him and properly honoured him, having obtained his end, departed by the northern course of the sun for there is no way thither by a side-path. This is the path to Brahma here in the world. Bursting open the door of the sun, he rose on high and departed. On this point they quote, 'Endless are the rays of him, who, like a lamp, dwells in the heart, white and black, brown and blue, tawny and pale red. One of them leads upwards piercing the solar orb; by it, crossing the world of Brahmā they go to the highest path. The other hundred rays lead upwards also and through them (the worshipper) reaches the abiding-places of the gods. But the rays of dim colour which manifestly lead downwards by them one wanders here helplessly for experiencing (the fruits of) his deeds. Therefore, the yonder blessed sun is the cause of creation, of heaven and of final emancipation.'

31. (One asks): Of what nature, verily, are these senses that go forth (towards their objects)? Who is the one that sends them out here and who restrains them? Another answers they are of the nature of self for the self is he who sends forth and restrains them. There are enticing objects of sense and there are what are called the luminous rays. Now the self feeds on objects by the five rays. Who is the self? He who has been defined as pure, clean, void, tranquil and of other marks. He is to be apprehended by his own marks. Some say that the mark of him who is without any mark is as heat and anything pervaded by it are to fire, or what the most agreeable taste is to water; others say that it is speech, hearing, sight, mind, breath; others say that it is understanding, steadfastness, memory, wisdom. Now, verily, these are the marks of him even as the sprouts here are the mark of a seed, as smoke, light and sparks are the marks of a fire. On this point they quote: As indeed the sparks from fire, and likewise as the rays from the sun, living creatures and the rest in proper order again and again proceed from him here on earth.

See II. 4; VI. 28; Ś.U. VI. 13; A.U. III. 2; B.U. IV. 4. 18; Kena 2. The sprout reminds us of the invisible seed, bhūmyantargata-tayā'drśyasya sad-bhāva-jñāpakā ankurā. Even so from the manifestations of self we infer the reality of self.

32. tasmād vā etasmād ātmani sarve prāṇāḥ, sarve lokāḥ, sarve vedāḥ, sarve devāḥ, sarvāni ca bhūtāny uccaranti tasyopaniṣat satyasya satyam iti, atha yathārdraidhāgner abhyāhitasya prthag-dhūmā nīscaranty evaṃ vā etasya mahato bhūtasya niḥśvasitam etad yad ṛg-vedo yajur-vedāḥ sāma-vedo' tharvāṅgirasā itihāsaḥ, purāṇam, vidyā, upaniṣadaḥ, ślokāḥ, sūtrāny anuvyākhyānāni vyākhyānāny asyaivaitāni viśvā bhūtāni.

32. From him, indeed, who is in the self come forth all living creatures, all worlds, all the vedas, all the gods and all beings. Its mystic meaning is that it is the truth of the truth. Know as from a fire laid with green (damp) wood, when kindled, clouds of smoke separately issue forth, so, verily, from this great being has been breathed forth that which is the Rg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda (hymns of), the Atharvans and the Angirasas, legendary stories, ancient lore, sciences, mystic doctrines, verses, aphorisms, explanations and commentaries. From it, indeed, all these beings (come forth).

See B.U. II. 1. 20; II. 4. 10.

the truth of the truth: empirical existence is the truth; the underlying truth of it is the self.

33. Verily, this (gārhapatya sacrificial) fire with its five bricks is the year. For that the bricks are these, spring, summer, the rainy season, autumn, winter. So it has a head, two wings, a back and a tail. In the case of one who knows the person, this earth is Prajā-pati's first sacrificial pile. With its hands it raises the sacrificer to the atmosphere and offers him to Vāyu (the wind). Wind, verily, is breath. Breath is the fire (dakṣiṇāgni). For that the bricks are these, the prāṇa breath, the vyāna breath, the apāna breath, the samāna breath and the udāna breath. So it has a head, two wings, a back and a tail. In the case of one who knows the person, this atmosphere is Prajā-pati's second sacrificial pile. With its hands it raises the sacrificer up to the sky and offers him to Indra. Verily, Indra is yonder sun. He is this (third āhavanīya) fire. For that the bricks are these, the Rg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda (the hymns of the), Atharvans and Angirasas, legendary stories, ancient lore; so it has a head, two wings, a back and a tail. In the case of one who knows the person, this sky is Prajā-pati's third sacrificial pile. With its hands it presents the sacrificer to the knower of the self. Then the knower of the self raises him up and offers him to Brahman. There he becomes blissful and joyful.

The three fires which are used in religious sacrifices are treated as three sacrificial piles erected by Prajā-pati the lord of creation on earth, the atmosphere and the sky. The year, the wind and the sun rule in these three regions. They raise the sacrificer to the next higher stage until, finally, he reaches Brahmā.

34. The earth is the gārhapatya fire, the atmosphere is the dakṣiṇa fire and the sky the āhavanīya fire. Hence they are (called) the pure, the purifying, the bright. By this the sacrifice is made manifest. Since the digestive fire is the combination of the pure, the purifying and the bright, therefore this fire should be worshipped with oblations, is to be built (with bricks), is to be praised, is to be meditated upon. The sacrificer, when he takes the oblation seeks (to perform) his meditation of the divinity thus: 'The bird of golden hue abides in the heart and in the sun, a diver-bird, a swan, of surpassing radiance. Let us worship him in the fire.' Having recited, one discerns the meaning of this verse, the adorable splendour of Sāvitrī should be meditated upon by him, who, abiding in his understanding, meditates thereon. Here he reaches the place of tranquillity for the mind. He places it in the self, indeed; on this point there are these verses: Even as fire without fuel becomes extinct in its own place, even so thought, by the cessation of activity becomes extinct in its own source. Even in a mind which seeks the truth and has quieted down in its own place, there arise false ideas due to past acts when deluded by the objects of sense. One's own thought, indeed, is samsāra; let a man cleanse it by effort. What a man thinks, that he becomes, this is the eternal mystery. For by the serenity of one's thought, one destroys all actions, good or bad. Dwelling within the self, with a serene self, he enjoys imperishable happiness. If the thought of man is so fixed on Brahman as it is on the things of this world, who will not then be free from bondage? The mind, it is said, is of two kinds, pure and impure, impure from contact with desire and pure when freed from desire. By freeing mind from sloth and distraction and making it motionless, he becomes delivered from his mind (reaches mindlessness), then that is the supreme state. So long should the mind be restrained in the heart till it reaches its end, that is knowledge, that is liberation. All else is but extensions of the knots that bind us to this life. The happiness of a mind whose stains are washed away by concentration and who has entered the self, it cannot be here described by words. It can be grasped by the inner organ (only). One cannot distinguish water in water, fire in fire or ether in ether, even so he whose mind has entered in, he is released completely. Mind, in truth, is the cause of bondage and liberation for mankind; for bondage if it is bound to objects; freedom from objects, that is called liberation. Therefore, for those who do not perform the agnihotra sacrifice, who do not build up the fire, who are ignorant, who do not meditate, the remembering of the ethereal (heavenly) place of Brahman is obstructed. Therefore that fire should be worshipped with oblations, should be built (with bricks), is to be praised, is to be meditated upon.

pavamāna-pāvaka-śuci: These attributes are applied to the different fires: gārhapatyah—pavamānah, dakṣiṇāgniḥ-pāvakah, āhavanīyah-śucir iti bhedaḥ.

Cp. Yoga-vāsiṣṭha:

citaṁ kāraṇaṁ arthānāṁ tasmin sati jagat-trayaṁ, tasmin kṣīṇe jagat kṣīṇaṁ tat cikitsyaṁ prayatnataḥ.

'Thought is the cause for all things. When it is active there are the three worlds; when it subsides the world subsides. Therefore the mind should be treated with diligence.'

Brahma-bindu U. 2, see also 3-5.

Aṣṭāvakra Gītā II says:

śarīraṁ svarganarakau bandha-mokṣobhayaṁ tathā kalpanā-mātram evaitat kiṁ me kāryaṁ cidātmanah.

'The body, heaven and hell and so both bondage and liberation are but mental. What then have I (who am) essentially intelligence to do with them?'

This passage equates āśraya with śabda Brahman whose pravṛtti or concomitant differentiation leads to the universe. Its purification or unification leads to aśabda or utter voidness, śūnyatva.

35. Adoration to Agni (Fire), who dwells in the earth, who remembers the world. Bestow the world on this worshipper. Adoration to Vāyu (wind) who dwells in the atmosphere, who remembers the world. Bestow the world on this worshipper. Adoration to the Āditya (the sun), who dwells in heaven, who remembers the world. Bestow the world on this worshipper.¹ Adoration to Brahmā, who dwells in all, who remembers all. Bestow all on this worshipper. With a golden vessel is the face of the real covered. That do thou, O Pūṣan, uncover, that we may reach the Eternal real, the pervader.² He who is the yonder person in the sun, I myself am he. Verily, that which is the sunhood of the sun is the eternal real. That is the bright, the personal, the sexless. Of the bright power that pervades the sky, it is only, a portion, which is, as it were, in the midst of the sun, the eye and in fire. That is Brahman, that is the immortal, that is splendour. Of the bright power that pervades the sky it is only a portion which is the nectar in the midst of the sun, of which the moon and the living creatures too are only offshoots. That is Brahman, that is immortal, that is splendour, that is the eternal real. Of the bright power that pervades the sky it is only a portion which shines as the Yajur Veda in the midst of the Sun that is aum, water, light, essence, immortal, Brahman bhūr, bhuvas, svar, aum. The eight-footed, the pure, the swan, three-stringed, minute, the imperishable, blind to the two attributes (of good and evil), kindled in the light, he who sees him sees all. Of the bright power that pervades the sky it is only a portion, which, rising in the midst of the Sun becomes the two light rays. That is the knower, the eternal, real, that is the Yajus, that is heat, that is fire, that is wind, that is breath, that is water, that is the moon, that is the bright, that is the immortal, that is the place of Brahman. That is the ocean of light. In it, indeed, the worshippers become dissolved like (a lump of) salt.¹ It is the oneness with Brahman for in it are all desires contained.² On this point they quote. Even as a lamp moved by a gentle breeze, he who dwells within the gods shines forth. He who knows this, is the knower, he knows the difference, having grasped the oneness, he becomes identified with it. They who rise forth perpetually like spray drops (from the sea) like lightnings from the light within the clouds in the highest sky, they, by virtue of their entrance into the light of glory appear like crests of flame in the track of fire.

prthivī-kṣite: who dwells in the earth, prthivī-loka-nivāsāya.

satya-dharmāya viṣṇave: that we may reach the eternal real, the pervader; satya-dharma-viṣṇusvarūpa-prāptaya iti.

alīṅgam: sexless, liṅga-varjitam stri-pun-napūmsakādi-bheda-rahitam.

dvi-dharmo'ndham: blind to the two attributes (of good and evil): dvābhyām puṇya-pāpābhyām andham anavabhāsamānam puṇyapāpa-rahitam.

brahma-viṣayam: the place of Brahman, brahma-prāpti-dvāram.

savit: the knower, vidā jñānena saha vartata iti savit, vidvān.

36. dve vā va khalv ete brahma-jyotiṣo rūpake śāntam ekaṁ samṛddham caikam, atha yac chāntam tasyādhāram kham, atha yat samṛddham idaṁ tasyānmam, tasmān mantrausadhājyā-miṣa-puroḍāśa-sthālī-pākādibhir yaśtavayam antarvedyām āsny avaśiṣṭair anna-pānaiś cāsyam āhavanīyam iti matvā tejasah samṛddhyai puṇya-loka-vijītyarthāyāmṛtatvāya cātrodāharanti: agni-hotram juhuyāt svarga-kāmo yama-rājyam agniṣṭomenābhiya- yati soma-rājyam ukīhena, sūrya-rājyam ṣoḍaśinā svārājyam atirātreṇa prājāpatyam āsahasra-samvatsarānta-kratuneti:

vartyādhāra-sneha-yogād yathā dīpasya samsthitih, antaryāṇḍopayogād imau sthitāv ātmaśucī tathā.

36. Verily, indeed, of the Brahmā light there are these two forms, one, the tranquil and the other the abounding. Now of that which is tranquil, space is the support, of the other which is the abounding, food here is the support. Therefore one should offer sacrifice in the sacrificial altar with sacred hymns, herbs, ghee, flesh (sacrificial), cakes, boiled rice and the like, and also with food and drink cast into the mouth, knowing the mouth to be the āhavanīya fire for the sake of abundance of vigour, for winning the world of sanctity and for immortality. On this point they quote: He who is desirous of heaven should offer the agnihotra sacrifice. One wins the kingdom of Yama by the agniṣṭoma sacrifice, the kingdom of the moon by the uktha, the kingdom of the Sun by the sixteen-day sacrifice, the kingdom of independence by the atirātra sacrifice, the Kingdom of Praja-pati by the sacrifice which continues to the end of a thousand years. As the continued existence of a lamp is because of the union of wick, support and oil, so also the self and the bright (sun) continue to exist because of the union of the Inner One and the world egg.

The two selves are the witness and the experiencing self. The former is tranquil and the latter is full of activity.

tejasah: vigour, jñāna-balādi-nimittam prāgalbhyam.

svārājyam: the kingdom of independence or the kingdom of Indra: indrādhiṣṭhito loka-viśeṣah.

Even as the lamp burns so long as there is oil to be consumed so the light of Brahman remains divided as the individual soul and the Sun so long as the latent brightness of previous actions in the incorporated being and in the world are not exhausted. If the Sun is taken as the symbol of the cosmic process it means that the process will continue until all men are liberated.

37. tasmād aum ity anenaitad upāsītāparimitam tejas, tat tredhābhīhitam agnāv āditye prāṇethaiśā nādy anna-bahum ity eṣāgnau hutam ādityam gamayati, ato yo raso'sravat sa udgītham varṣati, teneme prāṇāḥ, prāṇebhyaḥ prajā ity atrodāharanti: yadd havir agnau hūyate tad ādityam gamayati, tat sūryo raśmibhir varṣati, tenānnam bhavati, annād bhūtānām utpattir ity evam hy āha:

agnau prāstāhutih samyag ādityam upatiṣṭhate, ādityāj jāyate vṛṣṭir vṛṣṭer annam tataḥ prajāḥ.

37. Therefore one should meditate with the syllable aum on that unlimited splendour. That has been manifested threefold, in the fire, in the sun, in the breath. Now this is the channel by which the abundance of food offered in this fire goes up to the sun. The sap which flows therefrom rains down like the udgītha chant. By this living creatures here exist. From living creatures come offspring. On this point they quote. The oblation which has been offered in the fire goes to the sun. The sun rains that down with his rays. Thereby arises food. From food the production of beings. For thus has it been said, the offering properly cast in the fire goes toward the sun; from out of the sun comes rain; from the rain food; from food living beings.

nādi: channel, dvāra-rūpa. See Mam III. 76.

38. *agni-hotram juhvāno lobha-jālam bhinatti, atah sammoham chitvā na krodhān stuvvānaḥ kāmam abhidhyāyamānas tatas catur-jālam brahma-koṣam bhindad, atah param-ākāśam atra hi saura samyāgneya-sāttvikāni maṇḍalāni bhittvā tataḥ śuddhaḥ sattvāntaras-

38. He who performs the agnihotra sacrifice rends the net of selfish desire. Then having cut through bewilderment he does not approve of anger. Meditating on desire, he cuts through the fourfold sheath of Brahmā. Thence he goes to the highest space. There having broken through the spheres of the sun, of the moon, of the fire and of the pure being, he, then, being purified himself, he sees the intelligence which abides in the pure being, immovable, immortal, indestructible, enduring, bearing the name of Viṣṇu, the ultimate abode, endowed with love of truth (or the desires) and omniscience, independent, which stands in its own greatness. On this point they quote: In the midst of the sun stands the moon, in the midst of the moon the fire, in the midst of fire stands pure being; in the midst of pure being stands the indestructible one: Having meditated on him who is of the measure of a thumb within the span (of the heart) in the body, who is smaller than the small, then one goes to the supreme condition. For in that all desires are contained. On this point they quote: Having the measure of a thumb within the span in the body like the flames of a light burning twofold or threefold, the Brahmā who is praised, the great god, has entered (all) the worlds. Aum, adoration to Brahmā, yea, adoration.

VI. 28; VI. 23; VI. 30; VI. 35.

He who makes the fire sacrifice tears up the snare of greed, cuts down delusion and breaks with anger.

sarvasyeśānaḥ, sarvasyāntarāntaraḥ.*

1. The Fire, the gāyatrī metre, the trivṛt hymn, the rathantara chant, the spring season, the upward breath, the stars, the vasu gods (these), rise in the east, they warm, they rain, they praise, they enter again within and look out through an opening. He is unthinkable, formless, deep (unfathomable), hidden, blameless, compact (solid), impenetrable, free from qualities, pure, brilliant, enjoying (the play of the three) qualities, fearful, unproduced, the master yogin, omniscient, mighty, immeasurable, without beginning or end, possessing all excellence, unborn, wise, indescribable, the creator of all, the self of all, the enjoyer of all, the lord of all, the inmost being of everything.

bhayaḥ: fearful, because he is the all-devouring time, kālarūpaḥ.

maghaḥ: mighty or worshipful, maghavān indraḥ pūjyaḥ.

2. *indras triṣṭub pañcadaśo bṛhad-grīṣmo vyānaḥ somo rudrā

2. Indra, the triṣṭubh metre, the pañcadaśa hymn, the bṛhat chant, the summer season, the vyāna breath, the moon, the Rudra gods rise in the south; they warm, they rain, they praise, they enter again within and look out through an opening. He is without beginning or end, unmeasured, unlimited, not to be moved by another, independent, without any marks (signs), formless, of endless power, the creator, the maker of light (the enlightener).

3. *maruto jagatī saptaśaśo vairūpam, varṣā apānaḥ śukra ānandam, tṛptam, sthīram, acalam, amṛtam, acyutam, dhruvam, viṣṇu-samjñitam, sarvāparam dhāma.

3. The Maruts, the jagatī metre, the saptadaśa hymn, the Vairūpa chant, the rainy season, the apāna breath, the planet Venus, the Āditya gods, these rise in the west. They warm, they rain, they praise, they enter again within and look out through an opening. That is tranquil, soundless, fearless, sorrowless, blissful, satisfied, steadfast, immovable, immortal, unshaking, enduring, bearing the name of Viṣṇu, the highest abode.

4. viṣve devā anuṣṭubh ekaviṃśo vairājaḥ śarat samāno varuṇaḥ sādhyā uttarata udyanti, tapanti, varṣanti, stuvanti, punar viṣanti, antar vivareṇekṣanti, antaḥ-suddhaḥ, pūtaḥ, śūnyaḥ, śānto'praṇo nirātmānantah.

4. The Viṣve devas, the anuṣṭubh metre, the ekaviṃśa hymn, the Vairāja chant, the samāna breath, Varuṇa, the sādhyā gods, rise in the north. They warm, they rain, they praise, they enter again within, and look out through an opening. He is pure within, clean, void, tranquil, breathless, selfless, endless.

5. mitrāvaruṇau paṅktis trinava-trayastrimśo śākvara-raivate hemanta-śiśirāudāno'ṅgirasasā candramā ūrdhva udyanti, tapanti, varṣanti, stuvanti, punar viṣanti antar vivareṇekṣanti, praṇa-vākhyam praṇetāram, bhā-rūpam, vigata-nidram, vijaram, vimṛtyum, viśokam.

5. Mitra and Varuṇa, the paṅkti metre, the trinava and the trayastrimśa hymns, the Śākvara and Raivata chants, the winter and the dewy seasons, the udāna breath, the Āṅgirasas, the moon rise from above. They warm, they rain, they praise, they enter again within, and look out through an opening. Him who is called praṇava, the impeller, whose form is light, sleepless, ageless, deathless, sorrowless.

6. śani-rāhu-ketūraga-rakṣo-yakṣa-nara-vihaga-śarabhebhādayo'dhastād udyanti, tapanti, varṣanti, stuvanti, punar viṣanti, antar vivareṇekṣanti, yaḥ prājño vidharanaḥ sarvāntaro'kṣaraḥ, suddhaḥ, pūtaḥ, bhāntaḥ, kṣāntaḥ, śāntaḥ.

6. Saturn, Rāhu (the dragon's head), Ketu (the dragon's tail), serpents, the Rākṣasas, Yakṣas, men, birds, deer, elephants and the like rise from below. They warm, they rain, they praise, they enter again within and look out through an opening. He who is wise, the ordainer, within all, imperishable, pure, clean, shining, patient, tranquil.

vidharanaḥ: the ordainer, vidhārako varṇāśrama maryādāyāḥ.

THE WORLD-SELF

7. eṣa hi khalv ātmantarhrdaye'ñyān iddho'gnir iva viśvarūpo'syaivānnam idam sarvam asminn otā imāḥ prajāḥ, eṣa ātmāpahatapāpmā vijaro vimṛtyur viśoko'vicikitso'vipāśaḥ satya-saṃkalpaḥ, satya-kāmaḥ, eṣa paramēśvaraḥ, eṣa bhūtādhipatiḥ, eṣa bhūta-pālaḥ, eṣa setuḥ, vidharaṇaḥ, eṣa hi khalv ātmeśanaḥ śambhur bhavo rudraḥ prajāpatir viśva-syāhiranya-garbhaḥ satyaṃ prāṇo haṃsaḥ śāstācyuto viśnur nārāyaṇaḥ, yaścaiṣo'gnau yaś cāyaṃ hrdayeṇ yaścāsāv āditye sa eṣa ekaḥ, tasmai te viśva-rūpāya satye nabhasi hitāya namaḥ.

7. And he, verily, is the self within the heart, very subtle, kindled like fire, endowed with all forms. Of him all this is food. In him are woven creatures here. He is the self which is free from evil, ageless, deathless, sorrowless, free from uncertainty, free from fetters, whose conception is the real, whose desire is the real. He is the supreme lord, he is the ruler of beings, he is the protector of beings. He is the determining bridge. This self, verily, is the lord, the beneficent, the existent, the terrible, the lord of creation, creator of all, the golden germ, truth, life, spirit, the ruler, the unshaken, the pervader, Nārāyaṇa. He who is in the fire, he who is here in the heart, he who is yonder in the sun, he is one. To thee who art this, endowed with all forms hidden in the real space, be adoration.

8. Now then, the hindrances to knowledge, O King. This is indeed the source of the net of delusion, the association of one who is worthy of heaven with those who are not worthy of heaven, that is it. Though it is said that there is a grove before them, they cling to a low shrub. Now there are some who are always hilarious, always abroad, always begging, always making a living by handicraft. And others there are who are beggars in town, who perform sacrifices, for the unworthy, who are the disciples of Śūdras and who, though Śūdras, are learned in the scriptures. And others there are who are wicked, who wear their hair in a twisted knot, who are dancers, who are mercenaries, travelling mendicants, actors, those who have been degraded in the King's service. And others there are who, for money, profess that they can allay (the evil influences) of Yakṣas (sprites), Rākṣasas (ogres), ghosts, goblins, devils, serpents, imps and the like. And others there are who, under false pretexts, wear the red robe, earrings and skulls. And others there are who love to distract the believers in the Veda by the jugglery of false arguments, comparisons and paralogisms, with these one should not associate. These creatures, evidently, are thieves and unworthy of heaven. For thus has it been said: The world bewildered by doctrines that deny the self, by false comparisons and proofs does not discern the difference between wisdom and knowledge.

jñānopasargah: hindrances to knowledge; jñānotpatti-vighātakā hetavaḥ.

veda-vidyā: wisdom and knowledge, vedāvidyā: knowledge and ignorance.

The caste prejudice comes out here with reference to the Śūdras.

9. Verily, Br̥haspati (the teacher of the gods) became Śukra (the teacher of the demons) and for the security of Indra and for the destruction of the demons created this ignorance. By this (they) declare the inauspicious to be auspicious and the auspicious to be inauspicious. They say that there should be attention to the (new) law which is destructive of the (teaching of the) Vedas and the other scriptures. Therefore one should not attend to this teaching. It is false. It is like a barren woman. Mere pleasure is the fruit thereof as also of one who has fallen from the proper course. It should not be attempted. For thus has it been said: Widely opposed and divergent are these two, the one known as ignorance, and the other as knowledge. I (Yama) think that Naciketas is desirous of obtaining knowledge and many desires do not rend you. He who knows at the same time knowledge and ignorance together, having crossed death by means of ignorance he wins the immortal by knowledge. Those who are wrapped up in the midst of ignorance, fancying themselves alone wise and learned, they wander, hard smitten and deluded like blind men led by one who is himself blind.

Cp. C. U. VIII. 7.

śīvam: auspicious, sukṣhakaram.

10. Verily, the gods and the demons, being desirous of (knowing) the self went into the presence of Brahmā. Having bowed before him they said, Revered Sir, we are desirous of (knowing) the self, so do you tell us. Then, after having reflected a long while, he thought in himself. Verily, these demons are desirous of a self different (from the true one). Therefore, a very different doctrine was told to them. On that these deluded (demons) here live their life, with intense attachment, destroying the means of salvation and praising what is false. They see the false, as if it were true, as in jugglery. Therefore what is set forth in the Vedas, that is the truth. On what is said in the Vedas, on that wise men live their life. Therefore a Brāhmaṇa should not study what is not of the Veda. This should be the purpose.

See C.U. VIII. 8.

anyatātmanah: v. ayatātmanah, not self-subdued.

with intense attachment: atyasaktāḥ tat-parāḥ. They live according to another idea of the self than the reality, deluded, attached, expressing a falsehood; as if by an enchantment they see the false as the true.

II. Verily, the nature of the ether within the space (of the heart) is the same as the supreme bright power. This is manifested in a threefold way, in fire, in the sun and in the breath of life. Verily, the nature of the ether within the space (of the heart) is the same as the syllable aum. With this syllable, indeed, that (light) rises up (from the depths) goes upwards and breathes forth. Verily, it becomes for ever, the support of the meditation on Brahmā. In the breathing, that (bright power) has its place in the heart that casts forth light. In the breathing that is like the action of smoke; for when there is breathing the smoke rises to the sky in one column and follows afterwards one branch after another. That is like throwing salt into water, like heat in melted butter, like the range (of the thought) of a meditator. On this point they quote, now, why is it said to be lightning? Because in the very moment of going forth it lights up the whole body. Therefore one should meditate with the syllable aum that boundless light. The person who is in the eye, who abides in the right eye, he is Indra and his wife abides in the left eye. The union of these two (takes place) within the hollow of the heart and the lump of blood which is there is indeed the life-vigour of these two. There is a channel extending from the heart up to the eye and fairly fixed there. That is the channel which serves both of them, by being divided in two though but one. The mind stirs up the fire of the body; that stirs the wind. The wind, then moving through the chest produces the low sound. As brought forth in the heart, by contact with the fire of friction it is smaller than the smallest, it becomes double (the minimum size) in the throat, know that it is treble on the tip of the tongue and when it comes forth they call it the alphabet. The seer does not see death, nor sickness, nor any sorrow. The seer sees the all and becomes all everywhere. He who sees with the eye, who moves in dreams, who is sound asleep and he who is beyond the sound sleeper, these are a person's four distinct conditions. Of these the fourth is greater than the rest. Brahman with one quarter moves in the three and with three-quarters in the last. For the sake of experiencing the true and the false the great self has a dual nature, yea, the great self has a dual nature.

See B.U. IV. 2. 3; C.U. VII. 26. 2.

ajasram: for ever, nairantaryeṇa.

Veda is said to be the expression of the mind of Īśvara. īśvara-cid-vistāro vedāḥ.

suṣau: hollow, chidre.

For the four conditions of the self, see Mā.U.

SUBĀLA UPANIṢAD

This Upaniṣad belongs to the Śukla Yajur Veda and is in the form of a dialogue between the sage Subāla and Brahmā, the creator God. It discusses the nature of the universe and the character of the Absolute.

I

THE ORIGIN OF THE WORLD AND OF THE FOUR CASTES

1. tad āhuḥ, kim tad āsīt, tasmai sa hovāca, na san nāsan na sad asad iti, tasmāt tamaḥ saṁjāyate, tamaso bhūtādiḥ, bhūtādeḥ ākāśam, ākāśād vāyuh, vāyor agniḥ, agner āpah, adbhyaḥ pṛthivī; tad aṇḍam samabhavat; tat saṁvatsara-mātram uṣitvā dvidhākarot, adhastād bhūmim, upariṣtād ākāśam, madhye puruṣo divyaḥ, sahasra-śīrṣā puruṣaḥ, sahasrākṣaḥ, sahasra-pāt, sahasra-bāhur iti. so'gre bhūtānām mṛtyum asṛjat, tryakṣaram, trisīraskam, tripādaṁ khaṇḍaparaśum, tasya brahmābhidheti, sa brahmāṇam eva viveśa, sa mānasān sapta-putrān asṛjat, te ha virājah satya mānasān asṛjan, te ha prajā-patayo brāhmaṇo'sya mukham āsīd, bāhū rājanyaḥ kṛtaḥ, ūrū tad asya yad vaiśyaḥ, padbhyām śūdro ajāyata.

candramā manaso jātaś cakṣoḥ sūryo ajāyata, śrotrād vāyus ca prāṇas ca, hṛdayāt sarvaṁ idaṁ jāyate.

1. (He) discoursed on that: What was there then? To him (Subāla) he (Brahmā) said: It was not existent, not non-existent, neither existent and non-existent. From that emerged darkness, from darkness the subtle elements, from the subtle elements ether, from ether air, from air fire, from fire water, from water earth; then there came into being the egg; that (egg) after incubation for a year split in two, the lower one being the earth and the upper one being the sky; in the middle (between the two parts) there came into being the divine person, the person with a thousand heads, a thousand eyes, a thousand feet and a thousand arms. This (person) created death the foremost of all beings, the three-eyed, three-headed and three-footed Khaṇḍaparaśu. Of him Brahmā became afraid. He got hold of Brahmā alone. He (Brahmā) created seven sons out of his mind. These (seven) created in their turn, out of their minds, seven sons filled with truth. These are, verily, the Prajā-patis. Out of his (the divine person's) mouth came forth the Brāhmaṇas, out of his arms were made the Rājanyas (the Kṣatriyas), out of his (two) thighs the Vaiśyas were produced and from his feet came forth the Śūdras.

From his mind came the moon, and from his eyes came the sun and from his ear came forth air and the vital principle. From his heart sprang forth all this.

In the beginning was the formless state which cannot be described as either existent or non-existent or as both. Cp. R.V. Nāsadīya Sūkta X. 129.

The first existent was darkness, the principle of objectivity, the void which has to be illumined.

The egg is the world-form and the person is the world-spirit. Earth and heaven are generally represented as the two forces whose interaction produces the manifold universe.

Subjection to death, the principle of unceasing change is the characteristic of the cosmic process.

II

CREATION OF OTHER BEINGS

1. apānān niṣāda-yakṣa-rākṣasa-gandharvās cāsthibhyaḥ parvatā lomabhya oṣadhi-vanaspatayo lalātāt krodhajo rudro jāyate, tasyaitasya mahato bhūtasya niḥśvasitam evaitad yad ṛgvedo yajurvedaḥ sāmavedo'tharavedaḥ śikṣā kalpo vyākaraṇam, niruktam chando jyotiṣam ayanam nyāyo mīmāṃsā dharma-śāstrāṇi vyākhyānāṇy upavyākhyānāṇi ca sarvāṇi ca bhūtāni hiraṇya-jyotiḥ yasminn ayam ātmādhikṣiṃyanti bhuvanāni viśvā. ātmānam dvidhākarot; ardhena strī ardhena puruṣaḥ, devo bhūtvā devān asṛjat, ṛṣir bhūtvā ṛṣin yakṣa-rākṣasa-gandharvān grāmāny āraṇyāṃś ca paśūn asṛjat, itarā gaur itaro'naḍvān itaro vadave taro'sva itarā gardabhītaro gardabha itarā viśvambarītaro viśvambharāḥ. so'nte vaiśvānaro bhūtvā saṃdagdhvā sarvāṇi bhūtāni pṛthivy āpsu pralīyata āpas tejasi pralīyante, tejo vāyau vilīyate, vāyur ākāśe vilīyata ākāśam indriyeṣu indriyāṇi tanmātreṣu tanmātrāṇi bhūtādaḥ vilīyante, bhūtādir mahati vilīyate, mahān avyakte vilīyate, avyaktam akṣare vilīyate, akṣaram tamasi vilīyate, tamaḥ pare deva ekībhavati parastān na san, nāsan, nāśadasad ity etan nirvāṇānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam.

1. From the apāna of the Person (sprang forth) the Niṣādas (forest tribes) as also the Yakṣas, the Rākṣasas and the Gandharvas; from the bones the mountains; from the hairs herbs and trees of the forest, from the forehead Rudra, the embodiment of anger. Of this great person's outbreathing are the Rg Veda, the Yajur Veda, the Sāma Veda, the Atharva Veda, Śikṣā (pronunciation), Kalpa Sūtras, grammar, lexicography, prosody, the science of the movements of the heavenly bodies, the Nyāya logic, investigation of the rules of conduct and nature of reality, the codes of conduct, commentaries and sub-commentaries and all other things relating to all beings.

That light of gold (the world-spirit) in whom are reflected the self and all the worlds, (he) split his own form into two, half female and half male. Becoming a celestial he created the celestials, becoming a seer he created seers and similarly the Yakṣas, the Rākṣasas, the Gandharvas, village folk, and forest dwellers and animals he created, the one a cow, the other a bull, the one a mare, the other a stallion, the one a she-ass, the other a he-ass, the one the earth goddess, the other the lord of the world (Viṣṇu). At the end he, (the same world spirit) becoming Vaiśvānara, completely burns all existing things (dissolves the world), earth dissolves in water, water dissolves in fire, fire dissolves in air, air dissolves in ether, ether in the senses, the senses in the subtle elements, the subtle elements dissolve in their subtle sources, the subtle sources dissolve in the principle of mahat, the principle of mahat dissolves in the principle of the Unmanifested and the principle of the Unmanifested dissolves in the Imperishable. The Imperishable dissolves in the darkness. The darkness becomes one with the transcendent (Brahman). Beyond the transcendent there is no (other) existence nor non-existence nor both existence and non-existence. This is the doctrine relating to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda; this is the doctrine of the Veda.

from the hairs, herbs and trees of the forest: see B.U. I. 1. 1.

the one a cow and the other a bull: see B.U. I. 4. 4.

mīmāṃsā: investigation; it is taken as referring to both Pūrva and *Uttara Mīmāṃsā*s, the first relates to the nature of duty, dharma, and the second to the nature of Brahman. The order of dissolution is the reverse of the order of evolution and the account is based on the Sāṃkhya theory.

III

LIBERATION AND THE WAY TO IT

1. asad vā idam agra āsīt. ajātam, abhūtam, apratiṣṭhitam, aśabdham, asparśam, arūpam, arasam, agandham, avyayam, amahāntam, abhāntam, ajam, ātmānam matvā dhiro na śocati. aprāṇam, amukham, āśrotram, avāg, amano'tejaskam, acakṣuskam, anāmagotram, aśiraskam, apāṇi-pādham, asnigdham, alohitam, aprameyam, akraśvam, adīrgham, asthūlam, anarv analpam, apāram, anirdeśyam, anapāvrtam, apratarkyam, aprakāśyam, asaṃvrtam, anantaram, abāhyam, na tad aśnāti kin cana, na tad aśnāti kaś canaitad vai satyena dānena tapasānāśakena brahmacaryeṇa

1. In the beginning this was non-existent. He who knows (the Brahman) as unborn, uncaused, unestablished (in anything else), devoid of sound, devoid of touch, devoid of form, devoid of taste, devoid of smell, imperishable, not dense, not prodigious, originless, as one's own self (he), sorrows not. That which is lifeless, mouthless, earless, speechless, mindless, splendourless, devoid of name and clan, headless, devoid of hands and feet, devoid of attachment, devoid of glowing redness (like fire), immeasurable, not short, not long, not gross, not minute (like a speck), not small, not great, not definable, not obscure, not demonstrable, not manifest, not shrouded, without an interior, without an exterior. It does not feed on anything, nor does anything feed on it. One should attain this (Brahman) by recourse to the six means of truthfulness, charity, austerity, fasting, chastity (of mind and body) and complete indifference to worldly objects (renunciation of all objects which do not help the attainment of the knowledge of the self). One should also attend to the following three, self-control, charity and compassion. The prāṇas (vital airs) of this (knower of Brahman) do not go out; even where he is they get merged. He who knows thus, becoming Brahman remains as Brahman alone.

See B.U. III. 8. 8.

Brahman is described in negative terms and the means for its attainment are mentioned. While this is the ultimate reality, the world can be accounted for by the concepts of the Supreme Person and the world-spirit.

THE THREE STATES OF WAKING, DREAM AND DREAMLESS SLEEP

1. In the centre of the heart is a lump of flesh of red colour. In it the dahara of the white lotus blooms with its petals spread in different directions like the red lotus. There are ten hollows in the heart. In them are established the (chief) vital airs. When the individual soul is yoked with the prāṇa breath, then he sees rivers and cities, many and varied. When yoked with the vyāna breath, then he sees gods and seers. When yoked with the apāna breath then he sees the Yākṣas, the Rākṣasas and the Gandharvas. When yoked with the udāna breath, then he sees the heavenly world and the gods, Skanda, Jayanta and others. When yoked with the samāna breath, then he sees the heavenly world and wealth (of all kinds). When yoked with the vairambha, then he sees what he has (formerly) seen, what he has (formerly) heard, what he has (formerly) enjoyed or not enjoyed, whatever is existent or non-existent. In fact he sees all (in the waking state). (In the subtle sheath) these branch into ten branches of ten each. Out of each of these branch out seventy-two thousands of nāḍīs. In these (ramifications) the soul experiences the state of dream and causes sounds to be apprehended. Then in the subtle second sheath the soul experiences dreams, sees this world and the other world and knows all sounds. (The soul) declares it to be the state of serene perception. (In this state) the vital air protects the (gross) body. The branched nāḍīs are filled with fluids of greenish yellow, blue, yellow and white colours. Then in that in which the dahara is enclosed in the white lotus-like sheath which has bloomed like the red lotus, with its petals spread in different directions, are manifest nāḍīs called the Hitā, of the size of a thousandth section of the hair. In the ether of the heart situated in the interior of the sheath, the divine soul attains the state of sleep. When in the state of sleep (the soul) does not desire any desires, does not see any dreams. In it there are no gods or worlds of gods, no sacrifices or absence of sacrifices, neither mother nor father, nor kinsmen nor relations, neither a thief nor a killer of a Brāhmaṇa. His form is one of radiance, of immortality. He is only water and remains submerged. Then by resorting to the same course he leaps into the waking state. He rules on all sides, said (Brahmā to the sage Subāla).

kumuda: red lotus.

pari-rakṣati: protects. Life is devoted to its functions and keeps guard over the body.

We have here a repetition of the description of hita which extends from the heart of the person towards the surrounding body. Small as a hair divided a thousand times, these arteries are full of a thin fluid of various colours, white, black, yellow, red. In these the person dwells. When sleeping he sees no dreams. He becomes then one with the life principle alone.

When we wake up from the state of sleep we get back to the experience of dreams in the dream state and experiences of the world in the waking state. See Mā. U.

V

THE INDIVIDUAL SELF'S FUNCTIONS AND THE SUPREME SPIRIT

1. sthānāni sthānibhyo yacchati. nāḍī tesām nibandhanam, cakṣur adhyātman, draṣṭavyam adhibhūtam, ādityas tatrādhi-daivatam, nāḍī tesām nibandhanam, yas cakṣusi yo draṣṭavye ya āditye yo nāḍyām yaḥ prāṇe yo vijñāne ya ānande yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasmin antare samcarati so'yaṁ ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsitājaram, amṛtam, abhayaṁ, aśokam, anantam.

1. (The supreme self) bestows on the different local functionaries their (respective) spheres of action. The nāḍīs are the links establishing connection with them (the different organs). The eye is the sphere of the self; what is seen is the sphere of the objective; the sun is the divine principle (exercising its influence in aid of the self). The connecting link (between the self and the organ of the eye) is the (concerned) nāḍī. He who moves in the eye, in what is seen, in the sun, in the nāḍī, in the life principle, in the (resultant) knowledge, in the bliss (derived from such knowledge), in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

2. śrotram adhyātmaṃ, śrotavyaṃ adhibhūtaṃ, diśas tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yaḥ śrotre yaḥ śrotavye yo dikṣu yo nāḍyāṃ yaḥ prāṇe yo vijñāne ya ānande yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṃcarati so'yaṃ ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayaṃ, aśokaṃ, anantaṃ.

2. The ear is the sphere of the self, what is heard is the sphere of the objective; the (guardians of the) quarters are the divine principles. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the ear, in what is heard, in the quarters, in the nāḍīs, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all those is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

3. nāsādhyātmaṃ, ghrātavyaṃ adhibhūtaṃ, pṛthivī tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yo nāsāyaṃ yo ghrātavye yaḥ pṛthivyāṃ yo nāḍyāṃ yaḥ prāṇe yo vijñāne yo ānande yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṃcarati so'yaṃ ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayaṃ, aśokaṃ, anantaṃ.

3. The nose is the sphere of the self: what is smelt is the sphere of the objective. Earth is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the nose, in what is smelt, in earth, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle; in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these, in this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

4. jihvādhyātmaṃ, rasayitavyaṃ adhibhūtaṃ, varuṇas tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yo jīhvāyāṃ, yo rasayitavye, yo varuṇe, yo nāḍyāṃ, yaḥ prāṇe yo vijñāne ya ānande yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṃcarati so'yaṃ ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayaṃ, aśokaṃ, anantaṃ.

4. The tongue is the sphere of the self, what is tasted is the sphere of the objective. Varuṇa is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the tongue, in what is tasted, in Varuṇa, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

5. tvag adhyātman, sparśayitavyam adhibhūtam, vāyus tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yas tvaci, yaḥ sparśayitavye, yo vāyau, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṃcarati, so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

5. The skin is the sphere of the self; what is touched is the sphere of the objective. Air is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the skin, in what is touched, in the air, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

6. mano'dhyātman, mantavyam adhibhūtam, candras tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yo manasi, yo mantavye, yaś candre, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṃcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

6. The mind is the sphere of the self, what is minded is the sphere of the objective. The moon is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the mind, in what is minded, in the moon, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

7. buddhir adhyātman, boddhavyam adhibhūtam, brahma tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yo buddhau, yo boddhavye, yo brahmaṇi, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṃcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

7. Understanding is the sphere of the self, what is understood is the sphere of the objective. Brahmā is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the understanding, in what is understood, in Brahmā, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self, which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

8. ahaṁkāro'dhyātman, ahaṁkartavyam adhibhūtam, rudras tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṁ nibandhanam, yo'haṁkāre, yo 'haṁkartavye, yo rudre, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe, ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṁcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam aśokam, anantam.

8. The self-sense is the sphere of the self. The contents of self-sense are the sphere of the objective. Rudra is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the self-sense and in the contents of self-sense, in Rudra, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

9. cittam adhyātman, cetayitavyam adhibhūtam, kṣetrajñas tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṁ nibandhanam, yaś citte, yaś cetayitavye, yaḥ kṣetrajñe, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe, ya etasmin sarvasminn antare saṁcarati so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

9. The thinking mind is the sphere of the self; what is thought is the sphere of the objective. Kṣetrajña (the knower of the field) is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the thinking mind, in what is thought, in the Kṣetrajña, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

10. vāg adhyātman, vaktavyam adhibhūtam, vahnih tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṁ nibandhanam, yo vāci, yo vaktavye, yo agnau, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe ya

10. Voice is the sphere of the self. What is spoken is the sphere of the objective. Fire is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the voice, in what is spoken, in fire, in the nāḍī, in the life principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

11. hastāv adhyātmam, ādātavyam adhibhūtam, indras tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yaḥ haste, ya ādātavye, ya indre, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo viññāṇe, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe, ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati, so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

11. The hands are the sphere of the self, what is handled is the sphere of the objective. Indra is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the hands, in what is handled, in Indra, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

12. pādāv adhyātmam, gantavyam adhibhūtam, viṣṇus tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yaḥ pāde, yo gantavye, yo viṣṇau, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo viññāṇe, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe, ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati, so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

12. The feet are the sphere of the self. What is traversed by feet is the sphere of the objective. Viṣṇu is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves on the feet, in what is traversed, in Viṣṇu, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

13. pāyur adhyātmam, visarjayitavyam adhibhūtam, mrtyus tatrādhidaivatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, yaḥ pāyau, yo visarjayitavye, yo mrtyau, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo viññāṇe, ya ānande, yo hr̥dy ākāṣe, ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati, so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

13. The excretory organ is the sphere of the self. What is excreted is the sphere of the objective. Death is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the excretory organ, in what is excreted, in Death, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

14. upastho'dhyātman, ānandayitavyam adhibhūtam, prajā-patiḥ tatrādhidaravatam, nāḍī teṣāṃ nibandhanam, ya upasīhe, ya ānandayitavye, yaḥ prajā-patau, yo nāḍyām, yaḥ prāṇe, yo vijñāne, ya ānande, yo hṛdy ākāśe, ya etasmin sarvasminn antare samcarati, so'yam ātmā, tam ātmānam upāsītājaram, amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam.

14. The generative organ is the sphere of the self. What is enjoyed (as sexual satisfaction) is the sphere of the objective. Prajā-pati is the divine principle. The connecting link is the nāḍī. He who moves in the generative organ, in what is enjoyed, in Prajā-pati, in the nāḍī, in the life-principle, in the knowledge, in the bliss, in the ether of the heart, in the interior of all these is this self. One should meditate on this self which is devoid of old age, which is free from death, which is fearless, sorrowless, endless.

15. This (self) is all-knowing. This is the lord of all. This is the ruler of all. This is the indwelling spirit. This is the source of all. This, that is resorted to by all forms of happiness, does not stand in need of happiness of any kind. This, that is adored by all the Vedic texts and scriptures does not stand in need of Vedic texts and scriptures. Whose food is all this but who (himself) does not become the food of any. For that very reason (it is) the most excellent, the supreme director of all. Consisting of food (it is) the self of (all) gross objects; consisting of life (it is) the self of (all) sense organs; consisting of mind (it is) the self of (all) mental determination; consisting of intelligence (it is) the self of time; consisting of bliss, (it is) the self of dissolution. When there is not oneness whence (can arise) duality? When there is not mortality, whence (can arise) immortality? (It is) not (endowed) with internal knowledge; nor with external knowledge; nor with both these kinds of knowledge, not a mass of knowledge, not knowledge, nor not-knowledge, not (previously) known nor capable of being known. This is the doctrine relating to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

See Mā. U. 7.

kālātmā: the self of time. The witness self facing kāla or the principle of temporal happenings. The highest cannot be spoken of as non-dual or dual, mortal or immortal.

1. Whatever (we see in this world) did not, verily, exist at the beginning (of creation). So all these creatures became rootless, supportless, The one divine Nārāyaṇa alone (is the mainstay of all creation), the eye and what is seen. The ear and what is heard are Nārāyaṇa, the nose and what is smelt are Nārāyaṇa, the tongue and what is tasted are Nārāyaṇa. The skin and what is touched are Nārāyaṇa. The mind and what is minded are Nārāyaṇa. The understanding and what is understood are Nārāyaṇa. The self-sense and its contents are Nārāyaṇa. The thinking mind and what is thought are Nārāyaṇa. The voice and what is spoken are Nārāyaṇa. The two hands and what is handled are Nārāyaṇa. The two feet and what is traversed are Nārāyaṇa. The excretory organ and what is excreted are Nārāyaṇa. The generative organ and what is enjoyed (as sexual satisfaction) are Nārāyaṇa. The sustainer, ordainer, the doer, the non-doer, the celestial radiance are the one Nārāyaṇa. The Ādityas, the Rudras, the Maruts, the Aśvins, the Ṛk, the Yajur, the Sāma Vedas, the hymns (employed in sacrifices), the sacrificial fires, the offerings and the acts of offering, what arises (out of the sacrificial rites) are the celestial radiance, the one Nārāyaṇa. Mother, father, brother, abode, shelter, friend and the path (leading to life eternal) are Nārāyaṇa, the Virājā, the Sudarśanā, the Jitā, the Saumyā, the Amoghā, the Amṛta, the Satyā, the Madhyamā, the Nāsirā, the Śisurā, the Asurā, the Sūryā, the Bhāsvatī are to be known as the names of the divine channels. (The self that has to course through the channels) roars (like thunder), sings (like a faery spirit), blows (like wind), rains. He is Varuṇa, the Aryamān, the moon, (he is the) divisions of time, the devourer of time, the creator, Prajā-pati, Indra, the days and the half days, the divisions of time, aeons and great aeons. He is up and in all the directions. All this is Nārāyaṇa. All this, what has been and what is yet to be is only the person and symbol of immortality which continues (as Soma) by food (which contains life-sustaining Soma). Sages see constantly that most exalted state of Viṣṇu as the eye sees the sky. These learned (knowers of Brahman), with their passions cast away, with their inner senses alert, declare clearly (to ignorant people) that most exalted state of Viṣṇu. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

1. There abides for ever the one unborn in the secret place within the body. The earth is his body; he moves through the earth but the earth knows him not. The waters are his body; he moves through the waters but the waters know him not. Light is his body, he moves through the light but the light knows him not. Air is his body, he moves through the air but the air knows him not. Ether is his body, he moves through the ether but the ether knows him not. Mind is his body, he moves through the mind but the mind knows him not. Understanding is his body, he moves through the understanding but understanding knows him not. Self-sense is his body, he moves through the self-sense but the self-sense knows him not. Thinking mind is his body, he moves through the thinking mind but the thinking mind knows him not. The Unmanifest is his body, he moves through the Unmanifest but the Unmanifest knows him not. The Imperishable is his body, he moves through the Imperishable but the Imperishable knows him not. Death is his body, he moves through death but death knows him not. He alone is the indwelling spirit of all beings, free from all evil, the one divine, radiant Nārāyaṇa. This vidyā (wisdom) was imparted to Apāntaratamas. Apāntaratamas imparted it to Brahmā. Brahmā imparted it to Ghora Āṅgiras. Ghora Āṅgiras imparted it to Raikva. Raikva imparted it to Rāma and Rāma imparted it to all beings. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

SELF AND THE BODY

1. antaḥ śarīre nihito guhāyām śuddhaḥ so'yam ātmā sarvasya medo-māmsa-kledāvakīrṇe śarīramadhye'tyantopahate citra-bhitti-pratikāṣe gandharva-nagaropame kadālī-garbhavan niḥsāre jalabudbudavac cancale niḥsṛtam ātmānam, acintyarūpam, divyam, devam, asaṅgam, śuddham, tejaskāyam, arūpam, sarveśvaram, acintyam, aśarīram, nihitam guhāyām, amṛtam, vibhrajāmānam, ānandam, tam paśyanti vidvāmsas tena laye na paśyanti.

1. This self abiding within the secret place in the body of all beings is pure. Though intimately connected with the interior of the body, which is full of stinking fluid oozing out of the fat and the flesh, resembling (for its durability) the wall painted in a picture (for its invulnerability) the city of the Gandharvas (a castle in the air), as substanceless as the pith of a plantain tree, as fickle as a bubble of water, the self is pure. The learned perceive the self, of inconceivable form, radiant, divine, non-attached, pure, with a body of radiance, formless, lord of all, inconceivable, incorporeal, abiding in the secret place, immortal, shining (of the form of) bliss. When it subsides they do not perceive.

The similes used here indicate the fragility of the human body. The inner self remains unaffected by the changes of the body.

IX

THE DISSOLUTION OF THE UNIVERSE

1. atha hainam raikvaḥ paṇḍita, bhagavan, kasmin sarve 'staṁ gacchantīti. tasmai sa hovāca, cakṣur evāpyeti yac cakṣur evāstaṁ eti draṣṭavyam evāpyeti yo draṣṭavyam evāstaṁ eti, ādityam evāpyeti ya ādityam evāstaṁ eti, virājam evāpyeti, yo virājam evāstaṁ eti, prāṇam evāpyeti yaḥ prāṇam evāstaṁ eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstaṁ eti, ānandam evāpyeti ya ānandam evāstaṁ eti, turīyam evāpyeti yaḥ turīyam evāstaṁ eti, tad aṁṣam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyeti hovāca.

1. Then Raikva asked thus: Venerable Sir, in what do all things reach their extinction? To him he replied: He (the self) who absorbs the eye alone, in his own self does the eye reach its extinction (or disappearance). He who absorbs (forms) that are seen, in his own self do the (forms) that are seen reach extinction. He who absorbs the sun, in his own self does the sun reach extinction. He who absorbs the Virāja, in him does Virāja reach extinction. He who absorbs life, in him does life reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. He who absorbs bliss, in him does bliss reach extinction. He who absorbs the turīya, in him does turīya reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. This he said.

āditya: the sun. Different deities exercise beneficent influence over different organs.

seedless: the individual self has the basis or seed of individuality while the supreme Brahman has not this seed.

vijñāna: knowledge. It is repeated because the knowledge of tastes is different from the knowledge of smells and so on.

2. śrotram evāpyeti yaḥ śrotram evāstaṁ eti, śrotavyam evāpyeti yaḥ śrotavyam evāstaṁ eti, dīśam evāpyeti yo dīśam evāstaṁ eti, sudarśanam evāpyeti yaḥ sudarśanam evāstaṁ eti, apānam evāpyeti yo 'pānam evāstaṁ eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstaṁ eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti hovāca.

2. He who absorbs the ear, in him does the ear reach extinction. He who absorbs (sounds) that are heard, in him do (the sounds) that are heard reach extinction. He who absorbs the directions, in him do the directions reach extinction. He who absorbs the Sudarśana, in him does the Sudarśana reach extinction. He who absorbs the downward breath, in him does the downward breath reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

3. nāsām evāpyeti yo nāsām evāstam eti, ghrātavyam evāpyeti yo ghrātavyam evāstam eti, prthivīm evāpyeti yaḥ prthivīm evāstam eti, jītam evāpyeti yo jītam evāstam eti, vyānam evāpyeti yo vyānam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti hovāca.

3. He who absorbs the nose, in him does the nose reach extinction. He who absorbs (the smells) that are experienced by the nose, in him do the smells reach extinction. He who absorbs the earth, in him does the earth reach extinction. He who absorbs the jīta nāḍī in him does the jīta reach extinction. He who absorbs the vyāna breath, in him does the vyāna breath reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

4. jihvām evāpyeti yo jihvām evāstam eti, rasayitavyam evāpyeti yo rasayitavyam evāstam eti, varuṇam evāpyeti yo varuṇam evāstam eti, saumyam evāpyeti yaḥ saumyam evāstam eti, udānam evāpyeti ya udānam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti hovāca.

4. He who absorbs the tongue, in him does the tongue reach extinction. He who absorbs the tastes, in him do the tastes reach extinction. He who absorbs Varuṇa, in him does Varuṇa reach extinction. He who absorbs the Saumya (nāḍī), in him does the Saumya reach extinction. He who absorbs the udāna (breath), in him does the udāna (breath) reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

Varuṇa is the lord of the waters.

5. tvacam evāpyeti yaś tvacam evāstam eti, sparśayitavyam evāpyeti yaś sparśayitavyam evāstam eti, vāyum evāpyeti yo vāyum evāstam eti, mogham evāpyeti yo mogham evāstam eti, samānam evāpyeti yaś samānam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyeti hovāca.

5. He who absorbs the skin, in him does the skin reach extinction. He who absorbs the touch, in him does the touch reach extinction. He who absorbs air, in him does air reach extinction. He who absorbs the mogha (nāḍī), in him does mogha reach extinction. He who absorbs the samāna breath, in him does the samāna breath reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

6. vācam evāpyeti yo vācam evāstam eti, vaktavyam evāpyeti yo vaktavyam evāstam eti, agnim evāpyeti yo'gnim evāstam eti, kumāram evāpyeti yaś kumāram evāstam eti, vairambham evāpyeti yo vairambham evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyeti hovāca.

6. He who absorbs the vocal organ, in him does the vocal organ reach extinction. He who absorbs spoken expressions, in him do the spoken expressions reach extinction. He who absorbs fire, in him does the fire reach extinction. He who absorbs the kumāra (nāḍī), in him does the kumāra reach extinction. He who absorbs the Vairambha (vital air), in him does Vairambha reach extinction. He who absorbs knowledge, in him does that knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman, Thus he said.

7. hastam evāpyeti yo hastam evāstam eti, ādātavyam evāpyeti ya ādātavyam evāstam eti, indram evāpyeti ya indram evāstam eti, amṛtam evāpyeti yo amṛtam evāstam eti, mukhyam evāpyeti yo mukhyam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyeti hovāca.

7. He who absorbs the two hands, in him do the two hands reach extinction. He who absorbs what is handled, in him does what is handled reach extinction. He who absorbs Indra, in him does Indra reach extinction. He who absorbs the amṛta (nāḍī), in him does the amṛta (nāḍī) reach extinction. He who absorbs the mukhya (mukhya prāṇa, chief vital air), in him does the mukhya reach extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

8. pādam evāpyeti yaḥ pādam evāstam eti, gantavyam evāpyeti yo gantavyam evāstam eti, viṣṇum evāpyeti yo viṣṇum evāstam eti, satyam evāpyeti yaḥ satyam evāstam eti, antaryāmam evāpyeti yo 'ntaryāmam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti, hovāca.

8. He who absorbs the (two feet), in him do the feet reach extinction. He who absorbs what is traversed, in him does what is traversed reach extinction. He who absorbs Viṣṇu, in him does Viṣṇu reach extinction. He who absorbs the satya (nāḍī), in him does satya reach extinction. He who absorbs the antaryāmam, in him does the antaryāmam reach extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

9. pāyum evāpyeti yaḥ pāyum evāstam eti, visarjāyitavyam evāpyeti yo visarjāyitavyam evāstam eti, mṛtyum evāpyeti yo mṛtyum evāstam eti, madhyamam evāpyeti yo madhyamam evāstam eti, prabhāñjanam evāpyeti yaḥ prabhāñjanam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti hovāca.

9. He who absorbs the excretory organ, in him does the excretory organ reach extinction. He who absorbs what is excreted, in him does what is excreted reach extinction. He who absorbs death, in him does death reach its extinction. He who absorbs the madhyama (nāḍī), in him does the madhyama reach its extinction. He who absorbs the prabhāñjana, in him does the prabhāñjana reach its extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach its extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

10. upastham evāpyeti ya upastham evāstam eti, ānandayitavyam evāpyeti ya ānandayitavyam evāstam eti, prajāpatiṃ evāpyeti yaḥ prajāpatiṃ evāstam eti, nāsirāṃ evāpyeti yo nāsirāṃ evāstam eti, kumāraṃ evāpyeti yaḥ kumāraṃ evāstam eti, vijñānaṃ evāpyeti yo vijñānaṃ evāstam eti, tad amṛtaṃ, abhayaṃ, aśokaṃ, ananta-nirbījaṃ evāpyeti hovāca.

10. He who absorbs the generating organ, in him does the generating organ reach extinction. He who absorbs the (sexual) delight, in him does the delight reach extinction. He who absorbs Prajā-pati, in him does Prajā-pati reach extinction. He who absorbs the nāsirā (nāḍī), in him does the nāsirā reach extinction. He who absorbs kumāra, in him does kumāra reach extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

11. mana evāpyeti yo mana evāstam eti, mantavyam evāpyeti yo mantavyam evāstam eti, candram evāpyeti yaś candram evāstam eti, śiśurāṃ evāpyeti yaḥ śiśurāṃ evāstam eti, śyenaṃ evāpyeti yaḥ śyenaṃ evāstam eti, vijñānaṃ evāpyeti yo vijñānaṃ evāstam eti, tad amṛtaṃ, abhayaṃ, aśokaṃ, ananta-nirbījaṃ evāpyeti hovāca.

11. He who absorbs the mind, in him does the mind reach extinction. He who absorbs what is minded, in him does what is minded reach extinction. He who absorbs the moon, in him does the moon reach extinction. He who absorbs the śiśurā (nāḍī), in him does the śiśurā reach extinction. He who absorbs the śyena (nāḍī), in him does the śyena reach extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

12. buddhim evāpyeti yo buddhim evāstam eti, boddhavyam evāpyeti yo boddhavyam evāstam eti, brahmāṇaṃ evāpyeti yo brahmāṇaṃ evāstam eti, sūryaṃ evāpyeti yaḥ sūryaṃ evāstam eti, kṛṣṇaṃ evāpyeti yaḥ kṛṣṇaṃ evāstam eti, vijñānaṃ evāpyeti yo vijñānaṃ evāstam eti, tad amṛtaṃ, abhayaṃ, aśokaṃ, ananta-nirbījaṃ evāpyeti hovāca.

12. He who absorbs understanding, in him does understanding reach extinction. He who absorbs what is understood, in him does what is understood reach extinction. He who absorbs Brahmā (the creator), in him does Brahmā reach extinction.

He who absorbs the sūrya (nāḍī), in him does the sūrya reach its extinction. He who absorbs kṛṣṇa, in him does kṛṣṇa reach its extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

13. aham-kāramevāpyeti yo'ham-kāramevāstam eti, aham-kartavyam evāpyeti yo'ham-kartavyam evāstam eti, rudram evāpyeti yo rudram evāstam eti, asurām evāpyeti yo'surām evāstam eti, śvetam evāpyeti yaś śvetam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti hovāca.

13. He who absorbs the self-sense, in him does the self-sense reach extinction. He who absorbs the contents of self-sense, in him do the contents of self-sense reach extinction. He who absorbs Rudra, in him does Rudra reach extinction. He who absorbs the asurā (nāḍī), in him does the asurā reach extinction. He who absorbs the śveta (vital air), in him does the śveta reach extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach extinction. (The individual self) merges in the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman. Thus he said.

14. cittam evāpyeti yaś cittam evāstam eti, cetayitavyam evāpyeti yaś cetayitavyam evāstam eti, kṣetrajñam evāpyeti yaś kṣetrajñam evāstam eti, bhāsvatīm evāpyeti yo bhāsvatīm evāstam eti, nāgam evāpyeti yo nāgam evāstam eti, vijñānam evāpyeti yo vijñānam evāstam eti, ānandam evāpyeti ya ānandam evāstam eti, turīyam evāpyeti yaś turīyam evāstam eti, tad amṛtam, abhayam, aśokam, anantam, nirbījam evāpyeti, tad amṛtam, abhayam aśokam, ananta-nirbījam evāpyetīti hovāca.

14. He who absorbs the thinking mind, in him does the thinking mind reach extinction. He who absorbs the thoughts, in him do the thoughts reach extinction. He who absorbs the kṣetrajña (the knower of the field), in him does the kṣetrajña reach extinction. He who absorbs the bhāsvatī (nāḍī), in him does the bhāsvatī reach extinction. He who absorbs the Nāga (vital air), in him does the Nāga reach extinction. He who absorbs the knowledge, in him does the knowledge reach extinction. He who absorbs bliss, in him does bliss reach extinction. He who absorbs the turīya, in him does the turīya reach extinction. He who absorbs that immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman, in him does the immortal, fearless, sorrowless, endless, seedless Brahman reach extinction: Thus he said.

15. ya evaṁ nirbījaṁ veda nirbīja eva sa bhavati, na jāyate, na miriyate, na muhyate, na bhidyate, na dahyate, na chidyate, na kampate, na kupyate, sarva-dahano'yam ātmety ācakṣate naivam ātmā pravacana-śātenāpi lakṣyate, na bahu-srutenā, na buddhi-jñānāśritenā, na medhayā, na vedair na tapobhir ugrair na sāmṁkhyair na yogair nāśramair nānyair ātmānam upalābhante, pravacanena praśamsayā vyutthānena tam etam brāhmaṇā śuśruvāmso'nūcānā upalābhante śānto dānta uparatas titikṣuḥ samāhito bhūtvātmany evātmanam paśyati sarvasyātmā bhavati ya evaṁ veda.

15. He who knows this as seedless, he verily becomes seedless. He is not born (again). He does not die. He is not bewildered. He is not broken. He is not burnt. He is not cut asunder. He does not tremble. He is not angry. (Knowers of Brahman) declare him to be the all-consuming self. The self is not attainable even by a hundred expositions (of the Vedas), not by the study of countless scriptures, not through the means of intellectual knowledge, not through brain power, not through the (study of the) Vedas, not through severe austerities, not through the Sāmṁkhya (knowledge), not through Yoga (discipline), nor through the (observance of the four) stages of life nor through any other means do people attain the self. Only through a rigorous study and through discipline and devoted service to the knowers of Brahman, do they attain (the self). Having become tranquil, self-controlled, withdrawn from the world and indifferent to it and forbearing, he sees the Self in the self. He becomes the Self of all, he who knows this.

He becomes the Universal Self. What he does is expressive, not of his individual but of the Universal Self.

'I do nothing of myself,' said Jesus. Boehme says, 'Thou shalt do nothing but forsake thy own will, viz. that which thou callest "I" or thyself by which means all thy evil properties will grow weak, faint and ready to die; and then thou wilt sink down again into that one thing, from which thou art originally sprung.' Signatura Rerum.

X

THE SELF, THE ULTIMATE BASIS OF ALL WORLDS

I. atha hainam raikvaḥ śapraccha, bhagavan, kasmin sarve sampratiṣṭhitā bhavanṭīti, rasātala-lokeṣu iti hovāca, kasmin rasātala-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; bhūr-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin bhūr-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; bhuvvar-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin bhuvvar-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; suvar-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin suvar-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; mahar-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin mahar-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; jano-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin jano-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; tapo-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin tapo-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; satya-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin satya-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; prajāpati-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin prajā-pati-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; brahma-lokeṣu iti hovāca. kasmin brahma-lokā otāś ca protāś ceti; sarva-lokā ātmani brahmaṇi maṇaya ivantāś ca protāś ceti. sa hovācaivam etān lokān ātmani pratiṣṭhitān veda, ātmaiva sa bhavati iti, etan nirvāṇānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam.

I. Then Raikva asked, 'Venerable Sir, in what are all (these worlds) become firmly established?' In the rasātala worlds, said he. In what are the rasātala worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the terrestrial (bhūr) world, said he. In what are the terrestrial worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the worlds of atmosphere (bhuvvar), said he. In what are the worlds of atmosphere (established) as warp and woof? In the heavenly (suvar) worlds, said he. In what are the heavenly worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the mahar worlds, said he. In what are the mahar worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the janas worlds, said he. In what are the janas worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the tapas worlds, said he. In what are the tapas worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the satya worlds, said he. In what are the satya worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the Prajā-pati worlds, said he. In what are the Prajā-pati worlds (established) as warp and woof? In the Brahmā worlds, said he. In what are the Brahmā worlds (established) as warp and woof? All the worlds, like so many beads are established in the self, in Brahman as warp and woof, thus said he. He who knows thus that these worlds are established in the self, he becomes the self alone. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

like so many beads: see B.G. VII. 7.

evam sarvāṇi bhūtāni māṇiḥ sūtram ivātmani: even as the beads are strung into a thread are all objects strung in the self: Dhyāna-bindu U. 6.

THE COURSE AFTER DEATH

1. atha hainam raikvaḥ paṇḍitaḥ, bhagavan, yo'yam vijñāna-ghana utkrāman sa kena katarad vā va sthānam utsrjyāpakrāmātīti; tasmai sa hovāca, hrdayasya madhye lohitaṁ mām-sa-piṇḍam yasmims tad daharam puṇḍarikāṁ kumudam ivāne-kadhā vikaṣitaṁ; tasya madhye samudraḥ, samudrasya madhye koṣaḥ, tasmin nāḍyas catasro bhavanti, ramāramecchāpunarbhaveti. tatra ramā puṇyena puṇyaṁ lokam nayati; aramā pāpena pāpam, icchayā yat smarati tad abhisampadyate, apunarbhavayā koṣam bhinatti, koṣam bhitvā śīrṣakapālam bhinatti, śīrṣakapālam bhitvā pṛthivīm bhinatti. pṛthivīm bhitvāpo bhinatti. āpo bhitvā tejo bhinatti. tejo bhitvā vāyū bhinatti. vāyū bhitvākāśam bhinatti, ākāśam bhitvā mano bhinatti. mano bhitvā bhūtādīm bhinatti, bhūtādīm bhitvā mahāntam bhinatti, mahāntam bhitvāvāyaktam bhinatti, avyaktam bhitvākṣaram bhinatti. akṣaram bhitvā mṛtyū bhinatti. mṛtyur vai pare deva ekī-bhavatīti, parastān na san nāsan sad asad ity etan nirvāṇānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam.

1. Then Raikva asked thus: Venerable Sir, How and by what means does this self which is a mass of intelligence after leaving its seat and moving upwards have its exit? To him he replied. In the centre of the heart is a red mass of flesh. In it is the white lotus called the dahara which has bloomed like a red lotus with its petals spread in different directions. In the middle of it is an ocean. In the middle of the ocean is a sheath. In it are four nāḍis called Ramā, Aramā, Ichā and Apunarbhavā. Of these, Ramā leads (the practitioner of righteousness) through righteousness to the world of righteousness. Aramā leads (the practitioner of unrighteousness) through unrighteousness to the world of the unrighteous. Through Ichā one attains whatever object of desire one recalls. Through Apunarbhavā one breaks through the sheath. Having broken through the sheath one breaks through the shell of the crest (skull). Having broken through the skull, he breaks through the earth element. Having broken through the earth element he breaks through water. Having broken through water, he breaks through light. Having broken through light, he breaks through air. Having broken through air, he breaks through ether. Having broken through ether, he breaks through mind. Having broken through mind, he breaks through the subtle elements. Having broken through the subtle elements, he breaks through the mahat tattva. Having broken through the mahat tattva he breaks through the Unmanifested. Having broken through the Unmanifested, he breaks through the Imperishable. Having broken through the Imperishable, he breaks through Death. Then Death becomes one with the Supreme. In the Supreme there is neither existence nor non-existence nor existence and non-existence. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

mahat: the great, the first product of prakṛti, the principle of buddhi or intelligence in the individual. For the Sāṃkhya doctrine of evolution which is adopted here see I.P. Vol. II, pp. 266-277.

mṛtyu: death. The principle of all-devouring time is not different from the Eternal Supreme.

XII

PURITY OF FOOD

1. nārāyaṇād vā annam āgatam, pakvam brahmalokamahā-samvartake, punaḥ pakvam āditye, punaḥ pakvam kratryādi, punaḥ pakvam jālakilaklinnam paryuṣitam, pūtam annam ayācitam asanikṣiptam aśnīyān, na kaṁ cana yāceta.

1. From Nārāyaṇa came into being food (in a raw state). In the Mahā-samvartaka (the great dissolution) in the world of Brahmā it becomes ripe (cooked). It is again cooked in the world of the sun. It is again cooked in the sacrifices. Food with water oozing out of it or rendered stale (should not be eaten). Food which is clean (devoid of the defects mentioned) which is not acquired by begging or not got according to a previously arranged plan should one eat. He should not beg for food of any one whatsoever.

Purity of food makes for purity of disposition.

XIII

THE CHILD-LIKE INNOCENCE OF THE SAGE

1. bālyena tiṣṭhāset, bāla-svabhāvo asaṅgo niravadyo maunena pāṇḍityena niravadhikāratayopalabhyeta, kaivalyam uktam niga-manam prajā-patir uvāca; mahat-padam jñātvā vrkṣamūle vaseta, kucelo'sahāya ekākī samādhiṣṭha ātma-kāma āpta-kāmo niṣ-kāmo jīrṇa-kāmo hastinī sinḥe dāmṣe maśake nakule sarparākṣasa-gandharve mṛtyo rūpāni vidaditvā na bibheti kutaś caneti vrkṣam iva tiṣṭhāset, chidyamāno'pi, na kupyeta, na kampetotpalam iva tiṣṭhāset, chidyamāno'pi na kupyeta, na kampeta, akāśam iva tiṣṭhāset, chidyamāno'pi na kupyeta na kampeta, satyena tiṣṭhāset satyo'yam ātmā, sarveṣām eva gandhānām pṛthivīḥ hṛdayam, sarveṣām eva rasānām āpo hṛdayam, sarveṣām eva rūpānām tejo hṛdayam, sarveṣām eva sparśānām vāyur hṛdayam, sarveṣām eva śabdānām ākāśam hṛdayam, sarveṣām eva gatīnām avyaktāṇi hṛdayam, sarveṣām eva sattvānām mṛtyur hṛdayam, mṛtyur vai pare deva ekī-bhavatīti, parastān na san nāsan na sad asad ity etan nirvāṇāmuśāsanam iti vedāmuśāsanam iti vedāmuśāsanam.

13. One should cultivate the characteristics of a child. The characteristics of a child are non-attachment and innocence (freedom from notions of right and wrong). By abstinence from speech, by learning, by non-observance of conventions relating to the classes and stages of life one acquires the state of aloneness proclaimed by the Vedas. Prajā-pati said thus: After knowing the highest state (the sage) should reside at the foot of a tree. With a rag as his loin cloth, with no one to help him, all alone, remaining in concentration, with his desire for the self, with all desires fulfilled, with no desires, with desires consumed, recognising in the elephant, in the lion, in the tiger, in the mosquito, in the mungoose, in the snake, the demon and the faery spirit so many forms of death, he is not afraid of them on any account. He should be (unmoved) like a tree. Even if cut asunder, he should not get angry, he should not quake. He should be like a rock and even if cut asunder should not get angry, should not quake. He should be like the sky and should not get angry, should not quake. He should stand by the truth, for verily, this truth is the self. Of all smells, earth is the heart, of all tastes water is the heart; of all forms light is the heart; of all touches, air is the heart. Of all sounds ether is the heart; of all states of being the unmanifested is the heart; of all beings, death is the heart. Death, verily, becomes one with the Radiant Supreme. In the Supreme there is neither existence nor non-existence nor existence and non-existence. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

See B.U. III. 5. I.

Superiority to emotions and indifference to worldly objects and desires are stressed.

XIV

GRADUAL DISSOLUTION IN THE SUPREME

I. prthivī vānnaṁ āpo annādā, āpovānnaṁ jyotir annādam, jyotir vānnaṁ vāyur annādo vāyur vānnaṁ ākāśo'nnāda, ākāśo vānnaṁ indriyāṇy annādānīndriyāṇi vānnaṁ manonnādam, mano vānnaṁ buddhir annādā, buddhir vānnaṁ avyaktam annādam, avyaktam vānnaṁ aksaram annādam, aksaram vānnaṁ mṛtyur annādo mṛtyur vai pare deva ekī-bhavaṭīti parastān na sa nāsān na saś asad ity etan nirvāṇānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam.

I. Earth is the food, (in relation to it) water is the eater of the food. Water is the food, (in relation to it) light is the eater of the food. Light is the food, (in relation to it) air is the eater of the food. Air is the food, (in relation to it) ether is the eater of the food. Ether is the food, (in relation to it) the organs of perception and of action are the eater of the food, the organs of perception and of action are the food, in relation to them, mind is the eater of the food. Mind is the food, (in relation to it). Understanding is the eater of the food. Understanding is the food, (in relation to it) the Unmanifested is the eater of the food, the Unmanifested is the food, (in relation to it) the Imperishable is the eater of the food. The Imperishable is the food, (in relation to it) Death is the eater of the food. Verily, Death becomes one with the Radiant Supreme. In the Supreme, there is neither existence nor non-existence, nor existence and non-existence. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

annāda: the eater of the food, the cause in which it is dissolved in involution.

Only the Transcendent Self remains when all things are negated. The very principle of negation, death is absorbed in the Supreme.

XV

DISSOLUTION OF INDIVIDUALITY

1. atha hainam raikvaḥ papraccha, bhagavan, yo'yam vijñāna-ghana utkrāman sa kena katarad vā va sthānam dahatīti. tasmai sa hovāca, yo'yam vijñāna-ghana utkrāman prāṇam dahati; apānam, vyānam, udānam, samānam, vairambham, mukhyam, antaryāman, prabhañjanam, kumāram, śyenam, śvetam, kṛṣṇam, nāgaṁ dahati; pṛthivy-āpas-tejo-vāy-v-ākāśāṁ dahati; jāgaritam, svapnam, suṣuptam, turīyaṁ ca mahatāṁ ca lokam param ca lokam dahati; lokālokaṁ dahati; dharmādharmam dahati; abhās-karam, amaryādam, nirālokaṁ, ataḥ param dahati; mahāntaṁ dahati; avyaktam dahati; akṣaram dahati; mṛtyuṁ dahati; mṛtyur vai pare deve ekī-bhavadīti parastān na san nāsan na sad asad ity etan nirvāṇānuśāsanam, iti vedānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam.

1. Then (the sage) Raikva asked: Venerable Sir, how and by what means does this (self) which is a mass of intelligence, after moving upwards (from this seat) burn away its seat? To him he replied thus: This self, after moving upwards, burns the prāṇa, the apāna, the vyāna, the udāna, the samāna, the vairambha, the mukhya, the antaryāma, the prabhañjana, the kumāra, the śyena, the śveta, the kṛṣṇa and the nāga (vital airs). It burns (the elements) earth, water, fire, air and ether. It burns the waking, dreaming and sleeping states as also the Turīya, this mighty world and the other world. It burns the visible and the invisible worlds. It burns virtuous and vicious conduct. Thereafter it burns the world, devoid of lustre, devoid of limit, devoid of appearance. It burns the mahat tattva: it burns the Unmanifested. It burns the Imperishable. It burns Death. Death becomes one with the radiant Supreme. In the Supreme there is neither existence nor non-existence nor existence and non-existence. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

vijñāna: intelligence, a form of knowledge superior to the action of the mind. In T.U. II and III; K.U. III. 9; it is identified with buddhi and is ranked above mind. It is assumed that the moral qualities and power of remembrance of the self accompany the soul in the journey after death.

CONCLUSION

1. *saubālabīja brahmopaniṣan nāpraśāntāya dātavyā nā-

*ity etan nirvāṇānuśāsanam iti vedānuśāsanam iti vedānuśā-

1. This secret doctrine of the seedless Brahman owing its origin to Subāla should not be imparted to anyone who has not attained composure of spirit, not to one who has no sons, not to one who has no disciples, nor to one who has not taken residence for one year at nights, nor to one whose family and character are not known. This should not be imparted nor even mentioned to any such person. The subject-matter of this shines to advantage if imparted to the high-souled one whose devotion to the Supreme Being is profound and whose devotion to the teacher is as (profound as it is) to the Supreme. This is the doctrine leading to liberation. This is the doctrine of the Veda. This is the doctrine of the Veda.

JĀBĀLA UPANIṢAD

The Jābāla Upaniṣad belongs to the Atharva Veda and discusses a few important questions regarding renunciation.

JĀBĀLA UPANIṢAD

1. brhaspatir uvāca yājñavalkyam yad anu kurukṣetram devānām deva-yajanaṁ sarveṣām bhūtānām brahma-sadanam. avimuktam vai kurukṣetram devānām deva-yajanaṁ sarveṣām bhūtānām brahma-sadanam. tasmād yatra kvacana gacchati tad eva manyeta tad avimuktam eva, idaṁ vai kurukṣetram devānām deva-yajanaṁ sarveṣām bhūtānām brahma-sadanam. atra hi jantoḥ prāṇeṣūtkramamāṇeṣu rudraḥ tāraḥ brahma vyācāste, yenāsāv amṛti bhūtvā mokṣi bhavati, tasmād avimuktam eva niṣeveta avimuktam na vimuñced evam evaitad yājñavalkya.

1. Brhaspati said to Yājñavalkya, Kurukṣetra is for the gods, the resort of the gods and for all creatures it is the abode of Brahmā. Avimukta¹ is the kurukṣetra which is for the gods the resort of the gods and for all creatures the abode of Brahmā. Therefore, wherever one may go, one should think of it as such. It is only avimukta. It is kurukṣetra which is for the gods, the resort of the gods, and for all creatures the abode of Brahmā. There when the lives of living creatures go upwards, Rudra teaches the tāraḥ mantra. By it they become immortal and are liberated. Therefore meditate on avimukta. Do not give up avimukta, Yājñavalkya.

2. atha hainam atriḥ paṇḍita yājñavalkyam, ya eṣo'nanto' vyakta ātmā taṁ katham ahaṁ vijānīyāmi iti. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ so'vimukta upāśyo ya eṣo'nanto'vyakta ātmā so'vimukte pratiṣṭhita iti. so'vimuktaḥ kasmin pratiṣṭhita iti. varanāyāmi nāśyāmi ca madhye pratiṣṭhita iti. kā vai varanā kā ca nāśīti, sarvān indriya-kṛtān doṣān vārayatīti tena varanā bhavatīti, sarvān indriya-kṛtān pāpān nāśayatīti tena nāśi bhavatīti. katamaṁ cāśya sthānam bhavatīti bhrūvor ghrāṇasya ca yaḥ sandhiḥ sa eṣa dyaur lokasya parasya ca sandhir bhavatīti, etad vai sandhim sandhyāmi brahma-vida upāśata iti, so'vimukta upāśya iti, so'vimuktaṁ jñānam ācāṣṭeyo vai tad evam vedeti.

2. Thereafter Atri inquired of Yājñavalkya, 'How can I know that self which is infinite and unmanifested?' Yājñavalkya said (in reply), meditate on avimukta (for) the self which is infinite and unmanifested is established in avimukta. (Atri then inquired) In what is avimukta established? (Yājñavalkya answered) It is established in the middle of Varanā and Nāśi. (Atri inquired) What is Varanā and what is Nāśi? (Yājñavalkya answered) As it overcomes all the faults done by the sense organs it is called Varanā; as it destroys all the evils done by the sense organs it is called Nāṣī. (Atri asked) What is their abode? (Yājñavalkya answered) It is the meeting-place of the eyebrows and the nose. It is the meeting-place of the world of gods and (the world) beyond. The same meeting-place, the knowers of Brahman worship as sandhyā. So avimukta is to be meditated on. He who knows it gains the knowledge which makes for liberation.

3. atha hainam brahmacāriṇa ūcuḥ, kiṁ japyenā'mṛtatvam brūhīti, sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, śatarudrīyenety etāny eva ha vā amṛtasya nāmāni, etair ha vā amṛto bhavati, evam evaitad yājñavalkyaḥ.

3. Once students of sacred knowledge asked (Yājñavalkya): Can we gain life eternal by the repetition of formulas (mantras)? Yājñavalkya said (in reply) By (meditation on) śatarudriya which are the names of eternal life, one becomes immortal.

4. atha hainam janako vaideho yājñavalkyam upasametyo-vāca, bhagavan, samnyāsam (anu) brūhīti. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ; brahmacāryam paśamāpya grhī bhavet, grhī bhūtvā vanī bhavet, vanī bhūtvā pravrajat, yadi vetarathā brahmacāryād eva pravrajat, grhād vā vanād vā. atha punar avratī vā vratī vā snātako vā asnātako votsannāgniko vā yad ahar eva virajet tad ahar eva pravrajat, taddhatke prajāpatyām eveṣṭim kurvanti, tad u tathā na kuryād āgneyīm eva kuryāt. agnir ha vai prāṇaḥ prāṇam eva tathā karoti. traidhātavīyām eva kuryāt, etayaiva trayo dhātavo yad uta sattvaṁ rajas tama iti. ayaṁ te yonir rtiṣo yato jātāḥ prāṇād arocathāḥ, tam prāṇam jānan agna ārohathāno vardhaya rayim, ity anena mantrenāgnim ājighret, eṣa ha vā agner yonir yaḥ prāṇaḥ prāṇam gaccha svāhety evam evaitad āha. grāmād agnim āhrtya pūrvavad agnim āghrāpayet. yad agnim na vindet apsu juhuyāt, āpo vai sarvā devatāḥ sarvābhyo devatābhyo juhomi svāheti, juhvodhrtya prāśnīyāt sājyaṁ havir anāmayaṁ mokṣamantraḥ trayyaivaṁ vadet, etad brahma, etad upāsitavyam, evam evaitad bhagavann iti vai yājñavalkyaḥ.

4. Once Janaka (King) of Videha approached Yājñavalkya and said, 'Venerable Sir, teach me about renunciation.' Yājñavalkya said: After completing the life of a student, let one become a householder; after completing the life of a householder let one become a forest dweller; after completing the life of a forest dweller, let one renounce, otherwise (if a suitable occasion arises) let one renounce even from the state of a student or from the state of a householder or from that of a forest dweller. Whether one has not completed the injunctions or completed the injunctions, whether he is a student or not, even if he has not completed the sacrificial rites, on whatever day he has the spirit of renunciation, that very day let him renounce (and become a recluse). Some, indeed, perform the prājāpatya sacrifice. One need not do this but should only perform the fire sacrifice. Fire is life and one performs the life sacrifice thus: (He makes the fire take the form of life, or merge into its original source, life). Then he should also perform the traidhātaviyā sacrifice. The three elements represent the three qualities sattva, rajas and tamas (which are to be burnt). He should inhale the fire (smoke) by uttering the following mantra (verse), 'O Fire, this life who is the source of your birth and from whom, having sprung forth you shone. Knowing this you climb up to life and then make my wealth (spiritual wealth) increase.' He who is life is the source (material cause) of fire. O Fire, you assume the form of life, your source. (As for one who has not performed the fire sacrifice: having taken the fire from the village (i.e. any house in the village), he should inhale the fire as mentioned before. If he is not able to get the fire, he should perform the sacrifice in the water. For water represents all the gods. So uttering this mantra: 'I offer unto all the gods,' he should perform the sacrifice, he should take the sacrificial remnant with ghee, which cures all diseases. He should utter the pranava (which leads to release), which represents (the substance of) the three Vedas. This is Brahman. It should be meditated upon. 'Even so is it, Revered Yājñavalkya,' said Janaka.

avratīn: one who has not performed the prescribed rites even as vratīn is one who has performed the rites.

snātaka: one who has completed the ceremonies relating to Vedic studies even as asnātaka is one who has not completed the ceremonies. that very day he may renounce: Mahā-nirvāṇa Tantra says: One should not enter the stage of a recluse giving up an old father and mother or a devoted wife or an infant son.

mātaram pitaram vṛddham bhāryām caiva pativratām śiṣumś ca tanayam hitvā nāvadhūtāśramam vrajet. VII. 7.

He who becomes a monk, giving up father, mother, child, wife, kinsmen and relatives becomes a great sinner.

mātṛn pitṛn śiṣūn dārān svajanān bāndhavān api yaḥ pravrajeta hitvātān sa mahāpātakī bhavet. VIII. 18.

Cp. also:

adhitya vidhivad vedān putrānś cotpādya dharmataḥ iṣṭvā ca śaktito yajñair mano mokṣe niveśayet.

‘Having studied the Vedas according to rule, having produced sons, in conformity with dharma, having performed sacrifices to the best of one’s ability, let one set one’s mind on release.’

anadhitya dviḥ vedān, anutpādya tathātmanā, aniṣṭvā caiva yajñaiś ca mokṣam icchan vrajaty adhaḥ.

‘Any twice-born individual who desires release without having studied the Vedas, without having produced sons and without having offered sacrifices, goes down below.’

These verses are quoted in Vācaspati’s Bhāmātī, I. 1. 1.

prāṇa: life. Here it is not individual breath. It is the sūtrātman, the soul or the material cause of the world.

tridhātavīya: in this sacrifice three sacrificial cakes puroḍāśa, are used, representing the three guṇas.

5. *atha hainam atriḥ paṇḍitaḥ yājñavalkyam prcchāmi tvā

5. Then Atri enquired of Yājñavalkya. On being asked how one who does not wear the sacred thread can be (treated as) a Brāhmaṇa, Yājñavalkya answered, this alone is the sacred thread of him that purifies himself by the offering and sipping water. This is the procedure for becoming a recluse. (For one who is weary of the world but not yet fit to become a recluse the following are prescribed), he may choose a hero’s death (by following the path of the warrior in the battlefield), he may fast unto death, throw himself into water or enter fire (burn himself to death) or perform the last journey (walk on unto death). Then the wandering ascetic who (puts on) orange robes, who is shaven, who has non-possession, purity, non-enmity, lives on alms, obtains the state of Brahman. If he is diseased he can renounce by mind and speech. This is not to be done by one who is healthy. Such a renouncer becomes the knower of Brahman, so said the venerable Yājñavalkya.

upavīta: the sacred thread is a cotton thread of three strands running from the left shoulder across the body to the right hip.

It is first placed on the youth by the teacher at the ceremony of initiation. It is the outward and visible symbol of the sūtrātman, the thread-spirit on which all the individual existences are strung like beads and by which all are inseparably linked to their source.

Among the ancient Iranians as among the Parsees to this day, at the age of 15, a boy or a girl is admitted to the community of the Zoroastrians by being girt with the sacred thread.

āturah: diseased. When one is about to die he may renounce by mind or speech. It is unnecessary to go through the ceremonies.

This passage seems to justify suicide, in certain conditions.

6. tatra parama-hamsā nāma saṁvartakāruṇi svetaketu durvāsa ṛbhu nidāgha jaḍa-bharata dattātreya raivataka prabhṛtayah, avyaktalingāḥ avyaktācārāḥ anuṁmattā unmattavad ācarantās tridaṇḍam kamaṇḍalum śikyaṁ pātram jalapavitram śikhāṁ yājñopavitāṁ ca ity etat sarvaṁ bhūsvāhety apsu parityajy ātmānam anvicchet. yathā jātarūpadharo nirgrantho niṣparigrahas tat-tad-brahma-mārge samyak sampannaḥ śuddha-mānasah prāṇa-saṁdhāraṇārtham yathokta-kāle vimukto bhaikṣam ācāraṁ udara-pātreṇa lābhālābhayoh samo bhūtvā sūnyāgāra-devagṛha trṇa-kūṭa-valmika-vṛkṣamūla-kulāśālāgnihoṭra-gṛha-nadīpulina-giri kuhara-kandara-koṭāra-nirjhara-sthandīleṣu teṣu aniketa vāsya-prayatno nirmamaḥ śukladhyānaparāyaṇo'dhyātma-niṣṭho'śubha-karma-nirmūlanaparah saṁnyāsena deha-tyāgaṁ karoti, saparama-hamso-nāma parama-hamso nāmeti.

6. Saṁvartaka, Āruṇi, Svetaketu, Durvāsa, Rbhu, Nidāgha, Jaḍa-bharata, Dattātreya, Raivataka and others are paramahamsas. They are of unmanifested natures, of unmanifested ways of life, seen (to others) to behave like mad men though they are in no way mad. They renounce tridaṇḍa, kamaṇḍalu, tuft of hair and sacred thread and all that in water with the words bhū svāhā and seek to know the Self. Assuming the form they had at birth, without any bonds, without any possessions, they must tread well the path of Brahman. With a clean mind (or a pure heart), for the sake of maintaining life, they must fill at fixed times the vessel of their stomach with the alms obtained, treating gain and loss as equal. They must live in places like a deserted house or a temple or a shrub or an anthill, the root of a tree, a potter's house, fireplace, a sandbank in a river, hill, cave, hollow of a tree, stream in a deserted place. Without effort, without self-sense, intent on meditation established in the higher self, keen on removing the (effects of) evil deeds, they give up their bodies by the method of renunciation. Such is a parama-haṁsa. Such is a parama-haṁsa.

tri-daṇḍa: monks carry three staves tied together. It is the sign of triple control of thoughts, words and deeds.

kaṁḍalu: a water-jar used by ascetics.

The knower of dharma who wears no signs should practise its principles. M.B. XIV. 46. 51.

Vasiṣṭha Smṛti says: 'His signs are not manifest nor his behaviour,' tasmād alīṅgo dharmajño'vyaktalīṅgo'vyaktācāra iti.

PAIṄGALA UPANIṢAD

This Upaniṣad belongs to the Sukla Yajur Veda and is in the form of a dialogue between Yājñavalkya and his pupil Paiṅgala. Some of the important questions such as meditation on the Supreme, the nature of release, are discussed in it.

CHAPTER I

THE QUESTION

1. atha ha paingalo yājñavalkyam upasametya dvādaśavarṣa-susrūṣāpūrvakam paramarahasyam kaivalyam anubrūhīti papraccha.

1. Then Paingala approaching Yājñavalkya, after duly serving him for twelve years, asked, 'Do tell us about the great secret of aloneness.'

then: after the required ethical preparation.

paingala: the son of Piṅgala.

BRAHMAN

2. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ: sad eva saumyedam agra āsīt. tan nitya-muktam, avikriyam, satyajñānānandam, paripūrṇam, sanātanam, ekam evādvitīyam brahma.

2. Yājñavalkya replied to him: 'At the beginning, all this, my dear, was being alone. That is Brahman, the ever free, indeterminate, of the nature of truth, knowledge and bliss, ever full, ancient (or eternal) one without a second.

sad: being, with the names and forms unmanifest.

WITNESS SELF

3. tasmin maru-śuktikā-sthānu-sphaṭikādaṁ jala-raupya-puruṣa-rekhādīva lohita-śukla-kṛṣṇa-guṇa-mayī guṇa-sāmyānirvācyā mūlaprakṛtir āsīt, tat pratibimbam yat tat sākṣi-caitanya āsīt.

3. Even as in the mirage, the pearl-oyster, a log of wood, a piece of crystal and the like there is (respectively) the manifestation of water, silver, the figure of a human being, streaks of light and the like, in that (pure being) is the root-principle of all objectivity, possessed of the qualities of red, white and black, with the qualities in equipoise and incapable of being adequately expressed. When this is reflected in Brahman, it becomes the witness self.

The Pure Brahman becomes the witnessing consciousness, the eternal subject faced by the principle of all objectivity. The Pure Spirit develops into the subject-object relationship.

The similes employed suggest the apparent character of the reflection. The point stressed is that this development does not affect the character of Brahman. The development is based on Brahman but does not injure his integrity.

mūla-prakṛti: the root principle of matter. It cannot of its own develop. Matter by itself cannot give rise to life, mind, etc. So the principle of caitanya or consciousness is posited. Owing to the influence of caitanya the root principle evolves into detailed forms.

ĪŚVARA

4. sā punar vikṛtim prāpya sattvo-driktāvyaktākhyāvarāṇa-śaktir āsīt, tat pratibimbitam yat tad īśvara-caitanyam āsīt. sa svādhīnamāyaḥ sarvaññāḥ sṛṣṭi-sthiti-layānām ādikartā jagad-āṅkura-rūpo bhavati. svasmin vilīnaṁ sakalam jagad āvir-bhāvayati, prāṇi-karma-vaśād eṣa paṭo yadvat prasāritaḥ, prāṇi-karma-kṣayāt punas tirobhāvayati. tasminn evākhilam viśvam saṁkocita-ṭaṭavad vartate.

4. When that (mūla-prakṛti) undergoes change, due to the preponderance of the sattva (quality) it becomes known as the unmanifested and has the power of veiling (the nature of Brahman). What is reflected in it becomes the Īśvara consciousness. That (principle of Īśvara) has māyā under his control, he is all-knowing, the first cause of creation, sustenance and dissolution of the world, he takes the form of the sprout of the world (the seed from which the world grows). That causes the entire world resting in it to become manifest. On account of the previous deeds of the souls this unfurls like a piece of cloth; with the destruction of the deeds of the souls, this again causes the world to disappear. In that alone remains the entire universe like a rolled up piece of cloth.

HIRAṆYA-GARBHA

5. īśādhiṣṭhitāvarāṇa-śaktito rajo-drikta-mahad-ākhyā vikṣepa-śaktir āsīt, tat pratibimbitam yat tad hiraṇya-garbha-caitanyam āsīt, sa mahattattvābhimānī spaṣṭāspaṣṭa-vapur bhavati.

5. From the power of veiling dwelling in Īśvara there comes into being the power of projection, known as the mahat due to the preponderance of rajas. What is reflected in it becomes the Hiraṇya-garbha consciousness. That (consciousness) conceiving the mahat tattva as its own has its form manifested both distinctly and indistinctly.

VIRĀṬ

6. hiranya-garbhādhiṣṭhita-vikṣepa-śaktitas tamo-driktāhamkā-rābhidhā sthūla-śaktir āsīt, tat-pratibimbītam yat tad virāṭ caitanyam āsīt. sa tad-abhimānī spaṣṭa-vapuḥ sarva-sthūla-pālako viṣṇuḥ pradhāna-puruṣo bhavati. tasmād ātmana ākāśaḥ sambhūtaḥ, ākāśād vāyuḥ, vāyor agniḥ, agner āpaḥ, adbhyaḥ pṛthivī, tāni pañca-tanmātrāṇi triguṇāni bhavanti.

6. From the power of projection dwelling in Hiranya-garbha there comes into being the power of making gross bodies, known as the self-sense. What is reflected in it becomes the Virāṭ consciousness. That (Virāṭ consciousness), conceiving the self-sense as its own, with its form manifested distinctly becomes the chief person Viṣṇu, the sustainer of all gross creation. From that (Virāṭ) self ether originates; from ether air, from air fire, from fire water, from water earth; these five subtle elements become the three qualities (sattva, rajas and tamas).

See T.U. II. 1. 3.

In these passages the nature of the Supreme Reality is mentioned. Brahman which transcends the distinction of subject and object. Others are conceived on the subject-object pattern. Witness self has confronting it mūla-prakṛti, Īśvara, avyakta; Hiranya-garbha, mahat; Virāt, ahamkāra. All these are necessary for one another. Witness Self and Īśvara are sometimes combined. See Mā. U.

CREATION

7. sraṣṭu-kāmo jagad-yonis tamo-guṇam adhiṣṭhāya sūkṣma-tanmātrāṇi bhūtāni sthūlikartum so'kāmayata. sṛṣṭeḥ parimīṭāni bhūtāny ekam ekam dvīdhā vidhāya punaś caturdhā kṛtvā svasvetaradvitīyāṁśaiḥ pañcadhā samyojya pañcīkṛta-bhūtair ananta-koṭi-brahmāṇḍāni tat-tad-andocita-catur-daśa-bhuvanāni tat-tad-bhuvanocita-golaka-sthūla-śarīrāny asṛjat.

7. He (the creator of the world) desirous of creating, embracing the quality of tamas (inertia) desired to change the subtle elements into gross ones. Dividing each of the elements measured at the time of creation into two and again subdividing each (first equal part) into four equal parts each and mixing each of the four subdivided equal parts with each of the four (second) equal parts of the other four elements and thus forming five heaps (of five sorts each); out of the elements thus quintuplicated he created many crores of brahmāṇḍas (macrocosms), fourteen worlds appropriate to each (of these macrocosms) and globular gross bodies appropriate to each (of these worlds).

The process of quintuplication, pañcīkaraṇa, is mentioned here.

8. sa pañca-bhūtānām rajoṃ'sām caturdhā kṛtvā bhāga-trayāt pañca-vṛttyātmakam prāṇam asṛjat. sa teṣām turya-bhāgena karmendriyāny asṛjat.

8. Dividing the mobile property of the five elements with four parts, he created out of the three parts thereof, the principle of life with its fivefold functions. Out of the fourth part he created the organs of action.

As inertia is the character of tamas, mobility is the character of rajas.

9. sa teṣām sattvāṃsāṃ caturdhā kṛtvā bhāga-traya-samaśṭitāḥ pañca-kriyā-vṛttyātmakam antaḥ-karaṇam asṛjat. sa teṣām sattva-turiya-bhāgena jñānendriyāny asṛjat.

9. Dividing the rhythmic property (of the five elements) into four parts, out of the totality of the three parts thereof he created the inner sense with its fivefold functions. Out of the fourth part of the rhythmic property he created the organs of perception.

10. sattva-samaśṭita indriyapālakān asṛjat. tāni sṛṣṭāny ande prācīkṣipat. tad-ājñayā samaśṭyandam vyāpya tāny atīṣṭhan. tad ājñayāhamkāra-samanvito virāḍ sthūlāny arakṣat. hiraṇyagarbhas tad-ājñayā sūkṣmāny apālayat.

10. Out of the totality of the rhythm he created the organs of the sense organs. He then cast them into the macrocosm. Under his orders they stood pervading the entire macrocosm. Under his orders the Virāḍ possessed of self-sense protected the gross elements. Under his orders Hiraṇya-garbha ruled over the subtile elements.

11. andasthāni tāni tena vinā spanditum ceṣṭitum vā na śekuḥ. tāni cetanīkarturṇi so'kāmayata, brahmāṇḍa brahmarandhrāni samasta-vyaṣṭi-mastakān vidārya tad evānupraviśat. tadā jādāny api tāni cetanavat svakarmāni cakrire.

11. They (the gross and the subtile elements and the products of the macrocosm) were not capable of moving or functioning without him. He desired to make them all conscious. (sentient). Piercing through the macrocosm and the caverns of the cranium of the individual souls, situated in their crests, he entered them all. Then they, though nonconscious by nature, were engaged in their respective functions, as if they were endowed with consciousness.

12. sarvajñeśo māyā-leśa-samanvito vyāṣṭi-deham praviśya tayā mohito jīvatvam agamat. śarīra-traya-tādātmyāt kartṛva-bhokṛtvatām agamat; jāgrat-svapna-susupti-mūrchā-maraṇa-dharma-yukto ghaṭi-yantravad uāvigno jāto mṛta iva kulāla-cakra-nyāyena paribhramatīti.

12. The Omniscient lord possessed of a particle of māyā, on entering the several bodies and getting deluded by it attained the state of the individual soul. By identification with the three bodies (gross, subtle and causal) he attained the state of the doer and the enjoyer, ever performing the functions of waking, dreaming, sleeping, fainting and dying, he twirls round and round, like a potter's wheel, as if dead though alive, in keeping with the adage relating to the potter's wheel.

māyā-leśa: particle of māyā. Cp. Bhāgavata: holding on his own person māyā as a garland of flowers:

svamāyām vanamālākhyām nānā-guṇa-mayīm dadhat.

The potter's wheel seems to be still while whirling and whirling while still. Subjection to the world is only seeming, due to false identification of the spirit with the body and its adjuncts. This is Advaita Vedānta.

CHAPTER II

ĪŚVARA AND THE INDIVIDUAL SOUL

1. atha paīṅgalo yājñavalkyaḥ uvāca, sarvalokānāṃ sṛṣṭi-sthity-anta-kṛd vibhūr īśaḥ katham jīvatuṃ agamad iti.

1. Then Paiṅgala asked Yājñavalkya thus: 'How does the Lord, the all-pervading, the cause of the creation, maintenance and dissolution of all the worlds, attain the state of the individual soul?'

THE GROSS BODY

2. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ, sthūla-sūkṣma-kāraṇa-dehodbhava-pūrvakaṃ jīveśvara-svarūpaṃ vivicya kathayāmīti sāvadhānen-aikāgratayā śrūyatām. īśaḥ pañcīkṛta-mahā-bhūta-leśān ādāya vyaṣṭi-samaṣṭyātmaka-sthūla-śarīrāṇi yathākramam akarot. kapā-lacarmāntrāsthī-māṃsa-nakhāṇi prthivy-amśāḥ, rakta-mūtra-lālā-śvedādikam ab-amśāḥ, kṣut-trṣṇoṣṇa-moha-maidhunādya agny-amśāḥ, pracāraṇottāraṇa-śvāsādikā vāyv-amśāḥ, kāma-krodhādāyo vyomāṃśāḥ etat saṃghātam, karmaṇi sañcitam, tvagādi-yuktam, bālyādy avasthābhimānāspadam, bahu-doṣāśrayam, sthūla-śarīram bhavati.

2. Yājñavalkya replied to him thus: I shall relate the character of the individual soul and the Divine in distinction from each other preceded by an account of the origin of the gross, subtle and causal bodies. Let it be listened to by you with attention and one-pointed mind. The Lord, after getting together the minute parts of the quintuplicated great elements, created in order, gross bodies in their individual and collective aspects. The skull, the skin, the intestines, the bones, the flesh and the nails are parts (of the character) of the earth. Blood, urine, saliva, sweat and the like are of the character of water. Hunger, thirst, (bodily) heat, swooning, sex impulse and the like are of the character of fire. Movement, lifting, breathing and the like are of the character of air. Lust, anger and the like are of the character of ether. The combination of these becomes the gross body, organised by (under the influence of) previous karma, provided with the skin and the like, affording the basis for the notion that the stages of infancy and the like belong to it and forming the haunt of various ailments.

doṣa: evil. Evils of the gross body are ailments.

THE SUBTLE BODY

3. athāpañcīkṛta-mahā-bhūta-rajo'mśa-bhāga-traya-samaśṛtāḥ prāṇam asṛjat; prāṇāpāna-vyānodāna-samānāḥ prāṇavṛttayaḥ. nāga-kūrma-kykara-devadatta-dhananījayā-upaprānāḥ, hṛdāsana-nābhi-kañṭha-sarvāṅgāni sthānāni; ākāśādī-rajo-guṇa-turīya-bhāgena karmendriyāṃ asṛjat; vāk-pāṇi-pāda-pāyupasthās tad vṛttayaḥ; vacanādāna-gamana-viśargānandās tad-viśayāḥ.

3. Then out of the three parts (of four) of the great elements in their mobile character and nonquintuplicated state he created the life principle. Prāṇa, apāna, vyāna, udāna and samāna are the (varied) functions of the life principle. The minor functions of these are Nāga, Kūrma, Kykara, Devadatta and Dhananījaya. The heart, the anus, the navel, the throat and all the limbs form the seats (of the vital airs). Out of the (remaining) fourth part of the ether and other elements in their mobile character he created the organs of action. Its variants are the vocal organ, the hands, the feet, the excretory and the generative organs. Their functions are articulate expression, grasping, movement, excretion and (sex) enjoyment.

4. evam bhūta-sattvāmśa-bhāga-traya-samaśṛto'ntaḥ-karanam asṛjat; antaḥ-karaṇa-mano-buddhi-cittāhamkāraś tad-vṛttayaḥ; saṃkalpa-niścaya-smaraṇābhimānanusaṃdhānās tad-viśayāḥ; gala-vadana-nābhi-hṛdaya-bhrū-madhyam sthānām; bhūta-sattva-turīya-bhāgena jñānendriyam asṛjat; śrotra-tvak-caḥsur-jihvā-ghrānās tad-vṛttayaḥ; śabda-sparsa-rūpa-rasa-gandhās tad-viśayāḥ; dig-vātārka-pracetō'svi-vahnindropendra-mṛtyukāḥ; candro-viṣṇuś-caturvakraḥ śambhuś ca kāraṇādhipāḥ.

4. In the same manner out of the totality of the three parts of the great elements in their rhythmic character, he created the inner sense. Its various forms (or modifications) are the inner sense, the mind, understanding, thought and self-sense. Determination, conviction, memory, love and dedication are its functions. The throat, the face, the navel, the heart and the middle of the eyebrows are the seats. Out of the fourth part of the great elements in their rhythmical character, he created the organs of perception. Its varied forms are the ears, the skin, the eyes, the tongue and the nose. (Perceptions of) sound, touch, shape, taste, smell are its functions. Direction, Air, the Sun, Varuṇa, the Aśvins, Fire, Indra, Upendra, Death, the Moon, Viṣṇu, the fourfaced Brahmā and Siva are the deities presiding over the inner senses.

THE FIVE SHEATHS

5. athānnamaya prāṇa-maya-mano-maya-vijñāna-mayānanda-mayāḥ pañcakōṣāḥ, annarasaenaiva bhūtvānnarasenābhivṛddhim prāpyānna-rasa-maya-prthivyām yad vilīyate so' nna-maya-kōṣaḥ; tad eva sthūla-śarīram. karmendriyaiḥ saha prāṇādi-pañcakam prāṇa-maya-kōṣaḥ; jñānendriyaiḥ saha mano mano-maya-kōṣaḥ; jñānendriyaiḥ saha buddhir vijñāna-maya-kōṣaḥ, etat kōṣa-trayaṁ līṅga-śarīram; svarūpa-jñānam ānanda-maya-kōṣas tat kāraṇa-śarīram.

5. Then the five sheaths made of food, vital air, mind, understanding and bliss. What is brought into being only by the essence of food, what grows only by the essence of food, that which finds rest in earth full of the essence of food, that is the sheath made of food. That alone is the gross body. The five vital airs, along with the organ of action constitute the sheath made of the vital principle. Mind along with the organs of perception is the sheath made of mind. The understanding along with the organs of perception is the sheath made of intelligence. These three sheaths (of life, mind and intelligence) form the subtle body. The knowledge of one's own form is of the sheath made of bliss. That is also the causal body.

See T.U. II and III.

6. atha jñānendriya-pañcakam, karmendriya-pañcakam, prāṇādi-pañcakam, viyadādi-pañcakam, antaḥ-karāṇa-catustayaṁ kāma-karma-tamāṁsy aṣṭapuram.

6. Then the five organs of perception, the five organs of action, the five vital airs, breath and others, the five elements, ether and others, desire, action and darkness (ignorance), they constitute aṣṭapura (the totality of the subtle body).

7. īśājñayā virājo vyaṣṭideham praviśya buddhim adhiṣṭhāya viśvatvam agamat. vijñānātmā cidābhāso viśvo vyāvahāriko jāgrat sthūla-dehābhimānti karmabhūr iti ca viśvasya nāma bhavati. īśājñayā sūtrātmā vyaṣṭi-sūkṣmā-śarīram praviśya mana adhiṣṭhāya taijasatvam agamat. taijasah prātibhāsikah svapna-kalpita iti taijasasya nāma bhavati. īśājñayā māyopādhir avyakta-samanvito vyaṣṭi-kāraṇa-śarīram praviśya prājñatvam agamat. prājño'vacchinnaḥ pāramārthikah suṣupty abhimānti prājñasya nāma bhavati. avyakta-leśājñānācchādita pāramārthika-jīvasya tattvamasyādi vākyāni brahmaṇaikatām jaguḥ neta-rayor vyāvahārika-prātibhāsikayoḥ, antaḥ-karāṇa-pratibimbīta

7. By the command of the Supreme Lord, after entering each individual gross body and abiding in the intellect, he (Virādātman) attained the Viśva state. The intellectual self reflecting consciousness is the Viśva that has pragmatic relations with and conceives of the waking state and the gross body as its own. The field of action is the name of the Viśva state. At the command of the Supreme Lord, the subtle self, after entering each individual subtle body and abiding in the mind attained the Taijasa state. The Taijasa state is what manifests itself in the world of appearances. The product of dreams is the name of the Taijasa state. By the command of the Supreme Lord, the self conditioned by māyā and along with the (principle of) unmanifested, after entering each separate body attained the Prājña state. The Prājña state is non-differentiated from and (in quest of) the highest truth. That which conceives of the sleeping state as its own is the name of the Prājña state. The Vedic texts 'That thou art' and the like sing about the identity with the Supreme of the individual soul that is (in quest of) the highest end and shrouded by ignorance and traces of the (principle of) unmanifested, which is unrelated to the empirical and the apparent worlds. It is only the consciousness reflected in the inner sense that is capable of attaining the three states (of waking, dream and sleep). After attaining these states of waking, dream and sleep, becoming distracted like a potter's wheel, he becomes, though alive, dead as it were. Then there are the states of waking, dreaming, sleeping, fainting and dying, five in number.

This passage assumes the Advaita Vedānta view of the three grades of reality, pāramārthika, vyāvahārika and prātibhāsika, metaphysical or ultimate, empirical and illusory respectively.

WAKING AND DREAM STATES

8. tat-tad-devatāgrahānvitaiḥ śrotādi-jñānendriyaiḥ śabdādy-artha-viśaya-grahana-jñānam jāgrad avasthā bhavati. tatra bhrū-madhyam gato jīva ā-pāda-mastakam vyāpya kṛṣi-śravaṇādy akhila-kriyā-kartā bhavati. tat-tad-phalabhuk ca bhavati. lokāntaragataḥ karmārjita-phalam sa eva bhunkte. sa sārvaśaṇmavad vyavahāracchrānta antar-bhavanam praveṣṭum mārgam āśritya tiṣṭhati. karanoparama jāgrat-saṁskārottha-prabodhavad grāhya-grāhaka-rūpa-sphuranam svapnāvasthā bhavati; tatra viśva eva jāgrad vyavahāra-lopān nādi-madhyam carams taijasatvam avāpya vāsanā-rūpakam jagad-vaicitryam svabhāsā bhāsayan yatheṣitam svayam bhunkte.

8. The state of waking consists in the knowledge acquired through the perception of sound and other objects by means of the organs of perception like the ear and others accompanied by the blessings of the respective deities (presiding over the different forms of perception). Therein the individual soul who has established himself in the middle of the eyebrows, after pervading (the entire body) from head to foot, becomes the doer of all actions like husbandry, study of the sacred books. He becomes the enjoyer of their respective fruits. On reaching another world he alone enjoys the fruit. He then stands like an emperor overcome with fatigue, on account of his activities having taken the path leading to the entry into (another) body. When the sense organ has come to rest (ceased to function) the knowledge of the percepts and perceptions arising out of impressions (left by) of the waking state is the dream state. Therein, owing to the cessation of active functioning such as we have in the waking state, Viśva alone, after attaining the Taijasa state, moves through the middle of the nāḍis, manifesting through his own power the variety of the world in the form of impressions, and himself enjoys as he desires.

THE STATE OF SLEEP

9. cittaikakaraṇā susupty-avasthā bhavati. bhrama-viśrānta-śakuniḥ pakṣau saṁhṛtya nīdābhīmukham yathā gacchati, tathā jīvo'pi jāgrat-svapna-prapañcevyavahṛtya śrānto'jñānam praviśya svānandam bhunkte.

9. The sleeping state is that in which only thought (functions). Even as a bird tired of flying about turns towards its nest, restraining its wings, even so the individual soul tired of functioning in the worlds of waking and dream, entering on the state of ignorance, enjoys his own bliss.

He retires from his outward and inward activities and enters into his own nature. The principle of ignorance, of objectivity is present in the state of sleep though it is not manifest.

10. akasmān mudgaradaṇḍādyais tāḍitavad bhayājñānābhyām indriya-saṁghātaiḥ kampaṇṇa iva mṛta-tulyā mūrchā bhavati.

10. As if struck unawares by a hammer or a club, manifesting itself as tremor due to fright or loss of consciousness, caused by the fusing together of the several organs of perception is the state of fainting which resembles the state of a dead man.

DEATH

11. jāgrat-svapna-susupti-mūrchāvasthānām anyā brahmād-istamba-paryantam sarva-jīva-bhaya-pradā sthūla-dehavisarjanī maraṇāvasthā bhavati. karmendriyāṇi jñānendriyāṇi tat-tad-viś-ayān prāṇān saṁhṛtya kāma-karmānvitā avidyā-bhūtaveśṭito jīvo dehāntaram prāpya lokāntaram gacchati. prāk karma-phala-pākenāvartāntara-kṛtavad viśrāntim naiva gacchati. sa karma-paripākato bahūnām janmanām ante nr̥ṇām mokṣecchā jāyate.

11. What is different from the waking, dreaming, sleeping and fainting states, what instils fear into (the hearts of) all living creatures from Brahmā (the creator) to a tuft of grass, what causes the giving up of the gross body, that is the state of dying. After drawing together the organs of action and the organs of perception, their respective functions and the vital airs, the soul attended with desire and conduct (in the form of impressions left by conduct) and wrapped up in elements of ignorance goes to another world after attaining another body. Through the ripening of the fruits of his past actions he does not attain any rest, like a worm caught within a whirlpool. The desire for liberation arises in human beings at the end of many births through the ripening of their past virtuous conduct.

See B.G. VII. 19.

BONDAGE AND RELEASE

12. tadā sad-gurum āśritya cira-kāla-sevayā bandham mokṣam kaścit prayāti. avicārakṛto bandho vicārān mokṣo bhavati; tasmāt sadā vicārayet. adhyāropāpavādataḥ svarūpaṁ niścayīkartum śakyate. tasmāt sadā vicārayej jagaj-jīva-paramātmāno jīva-bhāva-jagad-bhāva-bādhe pratyag abhinnaṁ brahmaivāvaśiṣyata iti.

12. Then, after resorting to a good teacher and serving him for a long time he questions him as to the nature of bondage and release. Bondage produced by the lack of investigation becomes release by (proper) investigation. Therefore one should always inquire. It is possible to determine the nature of the self through the way of super-imposition (of qualities that do not belong to it) and denial. Therefore one should always inquire into the nature of the world, the individual and the supreme self. With the denial of the (ultimate) reality of the soul and the world, the innermost self non-differentiated from Brahman alone remains.

The way of superposition and denial is developed by Ś in his Introduction to S.B.

CHAPTER III

MEDITATION AND HIGHEST ENLIGHTENMENT

1. atha hainam paingalaḥ papracchayājñavalkyam, mahā-vākya-vivaraṇam anubrūhīti.

1. Then Paingala asked Yājñavalkya, please relate to me a detailed account of the great texts.

2. sa hovāca yājñavalkyas tat tvam asi, tvam tad asi, tvam brahmāspadam brahmāsmīty anusandhānam kuryāt; tatra parokṣya-śabalāḥ sarvajñatvādi-lakṣaṇomāyopādhiḥ sac-cid-ānanda-lakṣaṇo jagad-yonis tad-pada-vācyo bhavati; sa evāntaḥ-karāṇa-sambhinnabodho'smāt pratyayāvalambanas tvam-pada-vācyo bhavati, parajīvopādhimāyāvīdye vihāya tat-tvam-pada-lakṣyam pratyagābhinnam brahma; tattvamasīty aham brahmāsmīti vāk-yārtha-vicāraḥ śravaṇam bhavati; ekāntena śravaṇārthānūsandhānam mananam bhavati; śravaṇa-manana-nirvicikitsē'rthe vastuṇy ekatānavattayā cetāḥ sthāpanam nididhyāsanam bhavati; dhyātrdhyāne vihāya nivāstasthita dīpavad dhyeyaikagocaram cittam samādhir bhavati; tadānīm ātma-gocarāvṛttayah samutthitā ajñātā bhavanti; tāḥ smaraṇād anumīyante; ihānādisamsāre samcītāḥ karma-koṭayo'nenaiva vilayam yānti; tato'bhyāsapātāvāt sahasraśaḥ sadā amṛtadhārā varṣati; tato yoga-vittamāḥ samādhiṁ dharmamegham prāhuh; vāsana-jāle nīkṣesam amunā pravilāpīte karma-samcaye puṇya-pāpe samūlonmūlīte prāk parokṣam api kara-talāmalakavad vākyaṁ apratibaddhāparokṣa-sākṣāt-kāram prasūyate; tadā jīvan-mukto bhavati.

2. Yājñavalkya replied to him: One should engage in meditation of the kind 'That thou art,' 'Thou art the seat of Brahman.' 'I am Brahman.' Therein the imperceptible personal Lord with the qualities of omniscience and others, endowed with the power of māyā, of the character of being, consciousness and bliss, the source of the world is (what is connoted by) the word 'that' (of the text). That alone, being influenced by the inner sense, supported by the conception of self (I-conception) is (what is connoted by) the word 'thou' (of the text). Giving up the power of māyā and ignorance which envelop (the two), the supreme and the individual soul, what is meant by the terms 'that' and 'thou' becomes Brahman which is non-distinct from the self. The investigation into the import of the texts 'That thou art,' I am Brahman is hearing. Exclusive attention to the meaning of what is heard is reflection. The fixing of thought with one-pointed attention solely on the object attained through hearing and reflection is meditation. The thought absorbed only in the object meditated upon, giving up the distinction of the meditator and the act of meditation resembling a lamp in a windless spot attains the highest enlightenment. In that state, when the functionings directed towards the cognition of the self are roused (the intuitions of the self), are not cognised but only inferred from memory. Through this the numberless previous karmas accumulated during this beginningless cycle of births and deaths attain their dissolution. Thence, through the power of practice, a stream of nectar showers always from a thousand directions. Therefore the adepts in yoga call this highest enlightenment 'the cloud of virtue.' When the nets of dispositions (good and bad) are dissolved without any residue, when the accumulated deeds, virtuous and vicious, are completely destroyed, to the very roots, the past and the future alike, owing to the removal of all impediments bring about the direct and immediate perception (of Brahman) as of the āmalaka fruit, on the palm of the hand. Then (the knower of Brahman) becomes one liberated while in life.

śabalāḥ: mixed. The Absolute is viewed as the personal lord with māyā or the power of manifestation. Though sac-cid-ānanda, he is the source of the world, jagad-yoni.

śravaṇa: the four stages of hearing, reflection, meditation and direct intuition, ātma-darśana, here called samādhi are explained. The truths of the sacred texts are endorsed by personal effort and experience. See Introduction XIX.

a lamp in a windless spot: see B.G. VI. 19.

inferred from memory: when the intuition is no more felt, when it lapses from consciousness, we have only a memory of it.

dharma-megha: the cloud of virtue. The realised soul is virtuous by nature.

3. īśaḥ pañcī-kṛta-bhūtānām apancī-karaṇam kartum so'kāma-yata; brahmānda tadgata-lokān kārya-rūpānś ca karaṇatvam prāpayitvā, tataḥ, sūksmāṅgam karmendriyāṇi prānānś ca jñānendriyānyantaḥ-karaṇa-catuṣṭayaṁ caikīkṛtya, sarvāṇi bhautikāni kāraṇa bhūta-pañcake samyojya bhūmim jale, jalam vahnau, vahnim vāyau, vāyūṁ ākāśe, cākāśam ahaṁkāre, cāhaṁkāraṁ mahati, mahad avyakte, avyaktam puruṣe krameṇa vilīyate; virāḍḍhiraṇyagarbheśvarā upādhi-vilayat param-ātmani liyante; pañcī-kṛta-mahā-bhūta-sambhava-karma-samcita-sthūla-dehāḥ karmakṣayāt sat-karma-paripākato'pañcī-karaṇam prāpya sūksmen-

3. Īśvara developed the desire to disquintuplicate the quintuplicated elements. After causing the macrocosms, the worlds comprised in them and other effects to recede into their (antecedent) causal form, after making into one the subtle body, the organs of actions, the life principles, the organs of perception and the fourfold inner sense, and after merging all elements in the fivefold causal elements, he causes earth to dissolve in water, water in fire, fire in air, air in ether, ether in the self-sense, the self-sense in the great, the great in the unmanifested and the unmanifested in the self in due order. The Virāt, the Hiranya-garbha and the Supreme Lord, owing to the dissolutions of their respective adjuncts, lapse into the Supreme Self. The gross body composed of the quintuplicated great elements, organised through the accumulated (past) karma, owing to the destruction of karma and the ripening of the fruits of good karma, becoming one with the subtle body, attaining the form of the causal body, causes the causal body to merge in the unchanging inner self. The three states of Viśva, Taijasa, Prāñna, on account of the dissolution of their adjuncts merge in the inner self. The microcosm being burnt (and purified) by the fire of knowledge becomes merged along with its causes in the Supreme Self. Therefore let the Brāhmaṇa, after becoming possessed of self-control engage in meditation incessantly on the identity of That and Thou. Thereafter, even as the sun shines with all his splendour on the dissipation of the clouds, the self manifests himself. After meditating on the self seated in the middle (of the heart) like a lamp placed inside a vessel, of the size of a thumb and of the form of smokeless flame (the self manifests himself).

The order of involution is the reverse of the order of evolution. The subordination of the world, world-soul and the Supreme Lord to the Ultimate Reality is suggested here. The logical priority of Brahman to these three is to be understood.

4. prakāśayantam antahstham dhyāyet kūṭastham avyayam dhyāyan nāste muniś caiva cāsuṣṭer āmrtes tu yah.

4. One should meditate on the unchanging, imperishable that is inside, manifesting (the diverse functions). The sage who is continuously engaged in meditation till he goes to sleep or is overtaken by death.

5. jīvanmuktas sa vijñeyaḥ sa dhanyaḥ kṛta-kṛtyavān jīvanmuktapadam tyaktvā svadehe kālasātkṛte viśatya deha-muktatvam pavano'spandatām iva.

5. He should be known as one liberated while alive (in this body). He is blessed and is of fulfilled duties. After giving up the state of being liberated while alive, when the time arrives for his quitting the body, he enters on the state of disembodied liberation even as the air attains the state of non-movement.

6. *aśabdam, aśparśam, arūpam, avyayam, tathā rasam nityam, agandhavaś ca yat.
anādy anantaṁ, mahataḥ param, dhruvam, tad eva śiṣyaty amalam, nirāmayam.*

6. (He attains the state) that is devoid of sound, devoid of touch, devoid of forms, devoid of wasting, likewise devoid of taste, that is eternal, and devoid of smell, having neither beginning nor end, that transcends the Great, constant, that alone remains, which is flawless and free from ailing.

It is the supreme state which is negatively described; it is oneness with the transcendent Brahman.

CHAPTER IV

1. atha hainam paingalah papraccha yājñavalkyam, jñāninah kim karma kā ca sthitiḥ iti. sa hovāca yājñavalkyaḥ; amānitvādi sampanno mumukṣur eka-viṁśati-kulam tārayati; brahma-vin-mātreṇa kulam ekottara-śatam tārayati:

ātmānam rathinam viddhi śarīram ratham eva ca buddhiṃ tu sārathim viddhi manah pragraham eva ca.

1. Then the sage Paingala asked Yājñavalkya: What is the (nature of) action of a knower? What is his condition? Yājñavalkya replied unto him: The seeker after liberation endowed with humility and other good qualities carries (safely) across (the ocean of worldly existence) twenty-one generations of his class. The moment he becomes a knower of Brahman he carries across one hundred and one generations of his class. Know the self as the lord of the chariot and the body as verily, the chariot. Know the intellect as the charioteer and the mind as, verily, the reins.

See Kāṭha I. III. 2 ff.

2. indriyāni hayān āhur viśayāms teṣu gocarān.

jaṅgamāni vimānāni hṛdayāni manīṣiṇaḥ.

2. The senses, they say, are the horses and the objects (of the senses) the paths (they range over). The hearts of the knowers (of Brahman) are so many air chariots.

3. ātmendriya-mano-yuktam bhoktety āhur maharṣayaḥ tato nārāyaṇaḥ sāksāt hṛdaye supraṭiṣṭhitāḥ.

3. (The self) associated with the body, the senses and the mind, the great sages declare, is the enjoyer. Therefore, Nārāyaṇa is actually established (as the self) in the hearts (of all beings). The seeker after God, after becoming one with God, becomes the self of all beings.

4. prārabdha-karma-paryantam ahinirmokavad vyavaharati candravac carate dehī sa muktaś cāniketanah.

4. As long as his previously commenced karma remains unspent, he functions (very much) like the snake with the slough on. He who has attained liberation, though possessed of the body, wanders about homeless like the moon (on the sky).

His body does not fall off until the karmas which have started waking out reach their culmination.

5. *tīrthe śvapaca-grhe vā tanuṁ vihāya yāti kaivalyam prāṇān avakīrya yāti kaivalyam tam paścād dig-baliṁ kuryād athavā khaṇanam caret.
pumsaḥ pravrajanam proktaṁ netarāya kadācana.*

5. Casting off his body either in a place of pilgrimage or in the house of an eater of dog's flesh (the knower) attains aloneness. After scattering the vital airs he attains aloneness. After (the knower has run the appointed course of life and dies) his body should be cast away as an offering to the cardinal points; or else it may be buried. Only in the case of a male who is eligible for the order of monkhood is (burial) prescribed, never for others.

dig-bali: food for appeasing the hunger of birds and the like.

6. nāśaucam nāgni-kāryam ca na pindaṁ nodakakriyā na kuryāt pārvaṇādāni brahma-bhūtāya bhikṣave.

6. No pollution (is to be observed by blood relations), no rituals connected with the funeral fire, no oblations (in the form of balls of cooked rice) nor offerings of water nor rituals on new moon and other days should be adopted for the (departed) mendicant who has become Brahman.

7. dagdhasya dahanam nāsti pakvasya pacanam yathā jñānāgni-dagdha-dehasya na ca śrāddham na ca kriyā.

7. Even as there is no cooking of food that has already been cooked, there is no cremation of the body (of a knower) which has already been burnt (in the fire of austerity). For one whose body has already been consumed by the fire of knowledge, there is no need for the performance of śrāddha ceremonies or any other obsequies.

8. yāvaccopādhi-paryantam tāvac chūsrūṣayed gurum, guruvaḍ guru-bhāryāyām tat putreṣu ca vartanam.

8. So long as there is the limitation (leading to differentiation between the teacher and the pupil) so long the pupil should serve the teacher. He should behave with the teacher's wife and his sons as he would with the teacher (himself).

9. *śuddha-mānaśaḥ śuddha-cid-rūpaḥ sahiṣṇuḥ so'ham asmi sahiṣṇuḥ, so'hamasmiti prāpte jñānena vijñāne jñeye param-āt-bhavati; jñānāmṛta-tr̥pta-yogino na kiṁ cit kartavyam asti, tad asti cen na, satattva-vid bhavati. dūrastho'pi na dūrasthaḥ pīṇḍavarjitaḥ pīṇḍavastho'pi pratyagātmā sarvavyāpī bhavati, hṛdayam nir-malam kṛtvā cintayitvāpy anāmayam aham eva sarvam iti paśyet param sukham.

9. With a purified mind, with a purified consciousness, full of forbearance, and in the attitude 'I am he' full of forbearance, and when he gains the attitude 'I am he,' when the supreme self, the basis of all knowledge gets firmly fixed in the heart, when the body attains the state of quiescence then does the mind scintillating with the intellect become void of its functionings. What is the use of milk to one satiated with nectar? Even so what is the use of the study of the Vedas for one who has perceived the Self? For the Yogin who is satisfied with the nectar of knowledge (of Brahman) there is nothing whatsoever that has yet to be achieved. If there is anything (still to be achieved), he is not a knower of the truth. Remaining aloof, yet not aloof, remaining in the body, yet not of the body, the innermost self, becomes the all-pervading (Brahman). After purifying the heart, thinking of Brahman the perfect (free from ailment), the Yogin should perceive that he is the all, the transcendent, the blissful.

10. yathā jale jalam kṣiptam, kṣīre kṣīram, ghye ghyam, aviśeṣo bhavet tadvaj jīvātma paramātmanoh.

10. As water poured into water, milk poured into milk, ghee into ghee becomes one without differentiation, even so the individual soul and the Supreme Self (become one).

The state of liberation is here suggested to be oneness with the Absolute Self.

11. dehe jñānena dīpīte buddhir akhaṇḍākāra-rūpā yadā bhavati, tadā vidvān brahma-jñānāgīna sarva-bandham nirdahe, tataḥ pavitram paramaśvarākhyam, advaita-rūpam, vimalāmbarābham yathodake toyam anupraviṣtam tathātma-rūpo nirupādhi-samsthitaḥ.

11. When the body is lit (with the flame of) knowledge, when the understanding becomes indivisible in form, then the knower should burn all the bonds with the fire of the knowledge of Brahman. Then he who has attained the form of the self, firmly established in the state without limitations should enter on the state hallowed, that is known as the supreme lord, that is of non-dual form, that resembles ether devoid of impurities, like water that has flown into water.

The state of liberation is described not as that of a fish in water but as that of a dewdrop in the sea. Complete identity is maintained.

12. ākāśavat sūkṣmaśarīra ātmā na drśyate vāyuvad antarātmā sa bāhyām abhyantara niścalātmā jñānolkayā paśyati cāntarātmā.

12. The self that has a subtle body like the ether, that self immanent in all beings is not seen like the air. (That) self is motionless both outside and inside. The self immanent in all beings perceives with the torch of knowledge.

13. yatra yatra mṛto jñānī yena vā kena mṛtyunā yathā sarva-gatam vyoma tatra tatra layam gataḥ.

13. Wheresoever the knower may die, whatever may be the manner of death, at that very place he becomes merged (in Brahman) even as the all-pervading ether.

14. ghaṭākāśam ivātmanam vilayam vetti tattvataḥ sa gacchati nirālambam jñānālokaṁ samantataḥ.

14. The knower who knows the self to be indissoluble, like the ether of the pot, reaches independence with the range of his knowledge (spreading) on all sides.

As the ether in the pot gets dissolved in the all-pervading ether when the limitations are broken, even so the liberated individual is lost in the universal self.

15. taped varṣa-sahasrāṇi eka-pāda-sthito naraḥ etasya dhyāna-yogasya kalām nārhati ṣoḍaśim.

15. A man may perform penance standing on one leg for a thousand years (yet his austerities) do not deserve a sixteenth part of the merit of concentrated meditation.

The verse brings out the superiority of dhyāna-yoga to tapas.

16. idaṁ jñānam, idaṁ jñeyam, tat sarvaṁ jñātum icchati, api varṣa-sahasrāyuh śāstrāntaṁ nādhigacchati.

16. One desires to know all about what constitutes knowledge and what has to be known, but even if he should live for a thousand years he does not get to the end of the (study of the) scriptures.

17. viññeyo'kṣara tanmātro jīvitam vāpi cañcalam, vihāya śāstra-jālāni yat satyam tad upāśyatām.

17. What is to be known is the subtle imperishable existence while one's life is unsteady. (Therefore) giving up the network of scriptures (which are many and endless), let the truth be meditated on.

18. ananta-karma śaucam ca japo yajñas tathaiva ca tīrtha-yātrābhigamanam yāvat tattvaṁ na vindati.

18. (It is only) so long as the seeker does not attain knowledge of the real that endless ceremonies, observances of purity, prayers, likewise performance of sacrifices, visits to places of pilgrimage (are prescribed by the scriptures).

All these are not ends in themselves. They are means to the realisation of the eternal.

19. aḥam brahmeti niyatam mokṣa hetur mahātmanām dve pade bandha-mokṣāya na mameti mameti ca.

19. For the great souled, the surest way to liberation is the conviction that I am Brahman. The two terms, what leads to bondage and what leads to liberation, are the sense of mineness and the absence of the sense of mineness.

Selfishness or looking upon the body and the world as one's own, as means to one's enjoyment causes bondage. The realisation that the body and the world are external to the true self and the consequent universality of spirit lead to liberation.

20. mameti badhyate jantur nirmameti vimucyate, manaso hy unmanībhāve dvaitam naivopalabhyate.

20. With the sense of mineness the soul is bound; with the absence of the sense of mineness it is liberated. When the mind rises to the state of illumination, the sense of duality is never attained.

21. yadā yaty unmanībhāvas tadā tat paramam padam yatra yatra mano yāti tatra tatra param padam.

21. When the seeker attains the state of illumination then he (attains) the highest state. Wheresoever his mind goes there is the highest state.

22. tatra tatra param brahma sarvatra samavasthitam hanyān muṣṭibhir ākāśam kṣudārtam khandayet tuṣam.

22. There is the transcendent Brahman well established everywhere. However much one tormented by hunger strikes with his fisticuffs the ether round him or chews (any amount of) chaff (his hunger is not appeased).

THE REWARD FOR THE STUDY OF THIS UPANIṢAD

23. nāham brahmeti jānāti tasya muktir na jāyate. ya etad upaniṣadam nityam adhīte so'gni-pūto bhavati, sa vāyu-pūto bhavati, sa āditya-pūto bhavati, sa brahma-pūto bhavati, sa viṣṇu-pūto bhavati, sa rudra-pūto bhavati, sa sarveṣu tīrtheṣu snāto bhavati, sa sarveṣu vedeṣu adhīto bhavati, sa sarva-veda-vrata-caryāsucarito bhavati, teneti hāsa-purāṇānāmrudrānāṁśata-sahasrāṇi japtāni phalāni bhavanti, prāṇavānāṁ ayutam japtam bhavati, daśa-pūrvāndaśottarāṇi punāti, sa paṅkti-pāvano bhavati, sa mahān bhavati, brahmahatyā-surāpāna-svarṇasteya-gurutaḥpagamana-tat samyogipātakebhyah pūto bhavati.

tad viṣṇoḥ paramam padam sadā paśyanti sūrayaḥ divīva cakṣur ātatam.

23. For him who does not know 'I am Brahman,' liberation does not arise. He who studies this Upaniṣad every day becomes hallowed as by fire; he becomes hallowed by air; he becomes hallowed by the sun; he becomes hallowed by Brahmā; he becomes hallowed by Viṣṇu; he becomes hallowed by Rudra. He attains the merit of bathing in all the sacred waters. He becomes accomplished in the study of all the Vedas. He becomes disciplined in the performance of all the vows prescribed in the Vedas. By him are attained the fruits resulting from a hundred thousand recitals of the Itihāsas, the Purāṇas and the Rudras. By him has been repeated the syllable prāṇava (aum) myriads of times. He sanctifies ten previous and ten future generations. He sanctifies the rows of people with whom he dines. He becomes a great-souled one. He becomes freed from the sins of killing a Brāhmaṇa, drinking liquor, stealing gold, sharing the bed with the teacher's wife and associating with those who have committed these sins.

That is the highest state of Viṣṇu (the all-pervader) which the sages see constantly as the eye spreads towards the heaven.

24. tad viprāso vipānyavo jāgrvāṁśaḥ samindhate viṣṇor yat paramam padam, satyam ity upaniṣat.

24. These knowers of Brahman, with their passions cast away, their inner senses alert, expound clearly that highest state of Viṣṇu. This is the truth, (this is) the Upaniṣad.

KAIVALYA UPANIṢAD

The Upaniṣad belongs to the Atharva Veda and is called Kaivalya Upaniṣad as its study and practice lead to the state of Kaivalya or aloneness.

KAIVALYA UPANIṢAD

1. athāśvalāyano bhagavantam paramēṣṭhinam parisametyo-vāca.

adhīhi bhagavan brahma-vidyām variṣṭhām sadā sadbhiḥ sevyamānām nigūḍhām.

yayācirāt sarva-pāpam vyapohya parātparam puruṣam upaiti vidvān.

1. Then Āśvalayana approached the Venerable Lord Brahmā and said: Teach (me), Venerable Sir, the knowledge of Brahman, supreme, sought constantly by the wise, hidden, that by which the knower is soon freed from impurities and attains the person greater than the great.

atha: then, after having prepared himself for the acquisition of wisdom.

yaya: yathā, as.

2. tasmai sa hovāca pitamaha ca śraddhā-bhakti-dhyāna-yogād avehi,

na karmanā na prajayā dhanena tyāgenaike amṛtatvam ānaśuḥ.

2. Brahmā the grandsire said to him (Āśvalāyana): Seek to know (Brahman) by faith, devotion, meditation and concentration. Not by work, not by offspring, or wealth; only by renunciation does one reach life eternal.

3. *pareṇa nākām nihitam guhāyām bibhrājad etad yatayo
viśanti.*

3. It is higher than heaven, shines in the cave of the heart. Those who strive (for it) enter into it.

4. vedānta-vijñāna-suniścītārthāḥ saṁnyāsa-yogād yatayaḥ suddha-sattvāḥ.

te brahma-lokeṣu parāntakāle parāmṛtāḥ parimucyanti sarve.

4. The ascetics who have ascertained well the meaning of the Vedānta knowledge, who have purified their natures through the path of renunciation, they (dwelling) in the worlds of Brahmā, at the end of time, being one with the immortal, are all liberated.

5. vivikta-dēśe ca sukhāsanasthaḥ śuciḥ samagrīvaśīraḥ śarīraḥ. antyāśramasthaḥ sakalendriyāṇi nirudhya bhaktyā svagurum prāṇamya,

5. In a solitary place, seating oneself in an easy posture, with a pure heart, with the head, neck and body straight, in the last order of life, controlling all the senses, bowing with devotion to the teacher.

in the last order of life: antyāśramasthaḥ is another reading, 'having passed beyond all orders of life.'

6. hṛt puṇḍarikam virajam viśuddham vicintya madhye viśadam viśokam acintyam, avyaktam, ananta-rūpam, śivam, praśāntam, amṛtam, brahma-yoniṁ.

6. Meditating on the lotus of the heart, devoid of passion and pure, in the centre of which is the pure, the sorrowless, the inconceivable, the unmanifest, of infinite form, the blissful, the tranquil, the immortal, the source of Brahmā.

Brahmā is the creator, the world-spirit.

viraja: devoid of passion or the quality of rajas.

7. tam ādimadhyānta-vihīnam ekaṁ vibhūm cid-ānandam arūpam adbhutam umāśahāyam parameśvaram prabhūm trilocanam nīlakaṇṭham praśāntam dhyātvā munir gacchati bhūta-yoniṁ samasta-sākṣiṁ tamaśaḥ parastāt.

7. Him who is without beginning, middle or end, who is one, all-pervading, who is wisdom and bliss, who is formless, wonderful, who has Umā as his companion, the highest lord, the ruler, who is the three-eyed, who has a dark throat, who is tranquil; by meditating on him the sage reaches the source of beings, the witness of all, who is beyond (all) darkness.

who has a dark throat. Śiva is said to have taken the poison which came to the top when the ocean was churned, and kept it in his throat.

8. sa brahmā sa śivaḥ sendraḥ so'kṣaraḥ paramaḥ svarāt, sa eva viṣṇuḥ sa prāṇaḥ sa kālo'gniḥ sa candramāḥ.

8. He is Brahmā (the creator); he is Śiva (the judge), he is Indra, he is the imperishable, supreme, the lord of himself. He is Viṣṇu (the preserver), he is life, he is time, he is fire, he is the moon.

9. sa eva sarvaṃ yad bhūtam yac ca bhavyaṃ sanātanaṃ, jñātvā taṃ mṛtyuṃ atyeti nānyaḥ pañthā vimuktaye.

9. He is all, what has been and what shall be. He is eternal. By knowing him one conquers death. There is no other way to liberation. .

10. sarva-bhūtasthaṃ ātmānaṃ sarva-bhūtāni cātmani sampaśyan brahma paramaṃ yāti nānyena hetunā.

10. By seeing the self in all beings and all beings in the self one goes to Brahman, not by any other cause. .

not by any other cause: there is no other way to liberation.

11. ātmānaṃ araṇiṃ kṛtvā pranavaṃ cottarāraṇiṃ, jñāna-nirmathanābhyāsāt pāśaṃ dahati paṇḍitaḥ.

11. Making one's body the lower firestick and the syllable aum the upper firestick, by the effort of kindling (the flame of) knowledge, the knower burns the bond (of ignorance).

See S.U. I. 14.

pāśaṃ: bond of ajñāna. V. pāpam. He burns away the evil or the impurity.

12. *sa eva māyā-parimohitātmā śarīraṃ āsthāya karoti sarvaṃ.
stry-anna-pānādi vicitra-bhogais sa eva jāgrat parirṣptim eti.*

12. The same self veiled by māyā attains a body and performs all work. In the waking state he attains satisfaction by the varied enjoyments of women, food and drink.

13. svapne tu jīvaḥ sukha-duḥkha-bhoktā svamāyayā kalpita-viśva-loke

susupti-kāle sakale vilīne tamo'bhibhūtas sukha-rūpaṃ eti.

13. In the state of dream the self experiences happiness or sorrow in the worlds created by his own māyā. In the state of dreamless sleep in which all things disappear, overcome by darkness, he experiences happiness.

See Mā. U.

viśva-loke: v. jīva-loke.

14. punaś ca janmāntara-karma-yogāt sa eva jīvaḥ svapiti prabuddhaḥ.

pura-traye kṛīḍati yaś ca jīvaḥ tatas tu jātam sakalam vicitram.

ādhāraṃ ānandam akhaṇḍa-bodham yasmin layam yāt pura-trayaṃ ca.

14. Again, he (the individual jīva) on account of his connection with the deeds of his past life wakes up and sleeps. He revels in the three states of consciousness (waking, dream and dreamless sleep) and from him all this varied world is born. In him who is the support, who is the bliss, who is indivisible wisdom are merged the three states of consciousness.

The three bodies are the gross, the subtle and the causal ones.

15. etasmāj jāyate prāṇo manas sarvendriyāṇi ca, kham vāyur jyotir āpaḥ pṛthivī viśvasya dhārīṇī.

15. From him are born life, mind and all the senses; sky, air, light, water and earth which is the support of all existence.

16. yatparam brahma sarvātmā viśvasyāyatanam mahat sūkṣmāt sūkṣmataram nityam tat tvam eva tvam eva tat.

16. He is the supreme Brahman, the self of all, the chief foundation of this world, subtler than the subtle, eternal. That thou art; Thou art That.

17. jāgrat-svapna-suṣupty ādi prapañcam yat prakāśate tad brahmāham iti jñātvā sarva-bandhaiḥ pramucyate.

17. The world which shines in the states of waking, dream and dreamless sleep, knowing that it is Brahman who I am, one is freed from all fetters.

Cp. ayam ātmā brahma.

18. triṣu dhāmasu yad bhogyam bhoktā bhogaś ca yad bhavet tebhyo vilakṣaṇaḥ sāksī cinmātro'ham sadāśivaḥ.

18. In the three states of consciousness whatever appears as the object of enjoyment, or the enjoyer or the enjoyment, I am different from them, the witness (thereof), pure consciousness, the eternal Siva.

19. mayy eva sakalam jātam, mayi sarvam pratiṣṭhitam, mayi sarvam layam yāti, tad brahmādvayam asmy aham.

19. From me all proceed, in me all exist, and to me all return. That Brahman without a second am I.

See T.U. III.

20. *aṇor aṇīyān aham eva tadvan mahān aham viśvam idam
vicitram.*

purātano'ham, puruṣo'ham, īśo hiraṇ-mayo'ham, śiva-rūpam asmi.

20. I am subtler than the subtle, greater than the great. I am this manifold universe. I am the ancient, the person. I am the lord of golden hue. I am Śiva.

21. apāni-pādo'ham acintya-śaktiḥ paśyāmy acakṣuḥ sa śṛṇomy akarnaḥ, aham vijānāmi vivikta-rūpo na cāsti vettā, mama cit sadāham.

21. I am without hands and feet, of inconceivable powers. I see without eyes. I hear without ears. I know (all). I am of one form. None knows me. I am always pure consciousness.

22. vedair anekair aham eva vedyaḥ, vedānta-kṛd veda-vid eva cāham:

na puṇyapāpe mama nāsti nāśaḥ, na janma dehendriya-buddhir asti,

22. I am the One to be known through the many Vedas. I am the maker of the Vedānta and the knower of the Vedas. Merit or demerit I have none (do not affect me). There is no destruction for me, no birth or body, senses or intellect.

23. na bhūmir āpo mama vahnir asti, na cānilo me'sti na cāmbaram ca, evam viditvā paramātma-rūpaṁ guhāśayaṁ niṣkalam advittyaṁ samasta-sākṣim, sad-asad-vihīnam prayāti śuddhaṁ paramātma-rūpaṁ.

23. I have not earth, water, fire, air, ether. Knowing the nature of the Supreme Self, dwelling in the cave of the heart, stainless without a second; the witness of all, free from (the duality of) existent and non-existent, he obtains the pure nature of the Supreme Self.

24. yaḥ śatarudrīyaṁ adhīte' sogni-pūto bhavati, sa vāyu-pūto bhavati, sa ātma-pūto bhavati, sa surāpānāt pūto bhavati, sa brahma-hatyāyāḥ pūto bhavati, sa suvarṇa-steyāt pūto bhavati, sa kṛtyākṛtyāt pūto bhavati, tasmād avimuktam āśrito bhavati, atyāśramī sarvadā sakṛd vā japeṭ.

24. Whoever reads śatarudrīya (this Upaniṣad connected with it) becomes pure as fire, he becomes pure as air, he becomes purified from (the fault of) stealing gold; he becomes purified from (the fault of) drinking liquor, he becomes purified from (the fault of) murdering a Brāhmaṇa, he becomes purified from (the faults of) commission and omission. Therefore one should strive to become freed (from these faults). He who has freed himself from the different orders of life should meditate (on this upaniṣad) constantly or occasionally.

25. anena jñānam āpnoti saṁsārārṇava-nāśanam, tasmād evaṁ vidittvainaṁ kaivalyam padam aśnute kaivalyam padam aśnute.

25. He obtains this wisdom which destroys the ocean of births and deaths. By knowing this he obtains the state of kaivalya, he obtains the state of kaivalya.

Anyone who by faith, devotion and meditation realises the Self and becomes one with the Supreme Brahman is released from the wheel of time and change, from sorrow, birth and death.

VAJRASŪCIKA UPANIṢAD

The Upaniṣad belongs to the Sāma Veda and describes the true character of a Brāhmaṇa and incidentally offers comments on the nature of the Supreme Reality. The Upaniṣad is valuable in that it undermines caste distinctions based on birth.

VAJRASŪCIKA UPANIṢAD

1. vajrasūcim pravakṣyāmi jñānam ajñāna-bhedanam dūṣaṇam jñāna-hīnānām bhūṣaṇam jñāna-caḥṣuṣām.

1. I shall describe the Vajrasūci doctrine which blasts ignorance, condemns those who are devoid of the knowledge (of Brahman) and exalts those endowed with the eye of knowledge.

jñānam: doctrine. V. 'śāstra': scripture.

2. *brāhmaṇa-kṣatriya-vaiśya-śūdrā iti catvāro varṇāḥ; teṣāṃ varṇānām brāhmaṇa eva pradhāna iti veda-vacanānurūpaṃ smṛtibhir apy uktam. tatra codyam asti. ko vā brāhmaṇo nāma?
kiṃ jīvaḥ? kiṃ dehaḥ? kiṃ jātiḥ? kiṃ jñānam? kiṃ karma? kiṃ dhārmika iti.*

2. The Brāhmaṇa the Kṣatriya, the Vaiśya and the Śūdra are the four classes (castes). That the Brāhmaṇa is the chief among these classes is in accord with the Vedic texts and is affirmed by the Smṛtis. In this connection there is a point worthy of investigation. Who is, verily, the Brāhmaṇa? Is he the individual soul? Is he the body? Is he the class based on birth? Is he the knowledge? Is he the deeds (previous, present or prospective)? Is he the performer of the rites?

3. tatra prathamo jīvo brāhmaṇa iti cet tan na, atītānāgatāneka-dehānām jīvasyaika-rūpatvāt. ekasyāpi karma-vaśād anekadeha-sambhavāt sarva-śarīrāṇām jīvasyaika-rūpatvāc ca, tasmān na jīvo brāhmaṇa iti.

3. Of these, if the first (position) that the Jīva or the individual soul is Brāhmaṇa (is to be assumed), it is not so; for the individual's form is one and the same in the large number of previous and prospective bodies. Even though the jīva (the individual soul) is one, there is scope for (the assumption of) many bodies due to the stress of (past) karma, and in all these bodies the form of the jīva is one and the same. Therefore the jīva is not the Brāhmaṇa.

4. tarhi deho brāhmaṇa iti cet tan na. ācaṇḍalādi paryantānām manuśyānām pañca-bhautikatvenadehasyaika-rūpatvāt; jarā-mara-ṇa-dharmādharmādi-sāmyadarśanāt, brāhmaṇas sveta-varṇaḥ, kṣatriyo rakta-varṇaḥ, vaiśyah pīta-varṇaḥ, śūdraḥ kṛṣṇa-varṇa iti niyamābhāvāt. pītrādi-dahane putrādinām brahma-hatyādi-doṣasambhavāc ca, tasmān na deho brāhmaṇa iti.

4. Then if (it is said) that the body is the Brāhmaṇa, it is not so, because of the oneness of the nature of the body which is composed of the five elements, in all classes of human beings down to the caṇḍālās (outcastes), etc.; on account of the perception of the common features of old age and death, virtue and vice, on account of the absence of any regularity (in the complexion of the four classes) that the Brāhmaṇa is of the white complexion, that the Kṣatriya is of the red complexion, that the Vaiśya is of the tawny complexion, that the Śūdra is of the dark complexion and because of the liability of the sons and others (kinsmen) to becoming tainted with the murder of a Brāhmaṇa and other (sins) on cremating the bodies of their fathers and other kinsmen. Therefore the body is not the Brāhmaṇa.

5. tarhi jātir brāhmaṇa iti cet tan na; tatra jātyantarajantuṣv aneka-jāti-sambhavā maharṣayo bahavas santi, ṛṣyaśṛṅgo mṛgyāḥ, kauśikāḥ kuśāt, jāmbuko jambukāt, vālmīko valmīkāt, vyāsaḥ kaivarta-kanyāyām, śaśapṛsthāt gautamaḥ, vasiṣṭha ūrvaśyām, agastyah kalaśe jāta iti śrutatvāt, eteṣāṃ jātīyā vināpy agre jñāna-pratipādītā ṛṣayo bahavas santi; tasmān na jātir brāhmaṇa iti.

5. Then (if it is said) that birth (makes) the Brāhmaṇa, it is not so, for there are many species among creatures, other than human, many sages are of diverse origin. We hear from the sacred books that Rṣyaśṛṅga was born of a deer, Kauśika of Kuśa grass, Jāmbuka from a jackal, Vālmiki from an ant-hill, Vyāsa from a fisher girl, Gautama from the back of a hare, Vasiṣṭha from Ūrvaśī (the celestial nymph), Agastya from an earthen jar. Among these, despite their birth, there are many sages, who have taken the highest rank, having given proof of their wisdom. Therefore birth does not (make) a Brāhmaṇa.

6. tarhi jñānam brāhmaṇa iti cet tan na; kṣatriyādayo'hi paramārthadarśano'bhijñā bahavas santi, tasmān na jñānam brāhmaṇa iti.

6. Then (if it is said) that knowledge (makes a) Brāhmaṇa, it is not so because among Kṣatriyas and others there are many who have seen the Highest Reality and attained wisdom. Therefore knowledge does not (make) a Brāhmaṇa.

7. tarhi karma brāhmaṇa iti cet tan na; sarveṣāṃ prāṇinām prārabdha-saṅcītāgāmi-karma-sādharmya-darśanāt. karmābhi- preritāḥ santo janāḥ kriyāḥ kurvantīti. tasmān na karma brāhmaṇa iti.

7. Then (if it is said) that work (makes a) Brāhmaṇa, it is not so, for we see that the work commenced in the present embodiment or accumulated during the previous or to commence on a future embodiment is common to all living creatures and that good men perform works impelled by their past karma. Therefore work does not (make) a Brāhmaṇa.

8. tarhi dhārmiko brāhmaṇa iti cet tan na; kṣatriyādayo hiraṇya-dātāro bahavas santi; tasmān na dhārmiko brāhmaṇa iti.

8. Then (if it is said) that the performer of religious duties is a Brāhmaṇa, it is not so; for there have been many Kṣatriyas and others who have given away gold. Therefore the performer of religious rites is not the Brāhmaṇa.

Giving away gold is an act of religious duty.

9. tarhi ko vā brāhmaṇo nāma? yaḥ kaścīd ātmānam, advītyam, jāti-guṇa-kriyā-hīnam, ṣaḍūrmī-ṣaḍbhāvetīyādi-sarva-doṣa-rahitam, satya-jñānānandānanta-svarūpam, svayam, nirvikalpam, aśeṣa-kalpādhāram, aśeṣa-bhūtāntaryāmitvena vartamānam, antar-bahiśc-ākāśavad anusyūtam, akhaṇḍānanda-svabhāvam, aprameyam, anubhavaikavedyam, aparokṣatayābhāsamānam, karatalāmala-kavat sāksāt aparokṣīkrītya kṛtārthatayā kāma-rāgādi-doṣa-rahitaḥ śamādi-guṇa sampanno bhāva-mātsarya-tṛṣṇāśā-mohādi-rahitaḥ dambhāhamkārādibhir asamspṛṣacetā vartate, evam ukta-lakṣaṇo yaḥ sa eva brāhmaṇa iti śruti-smṛti-purāṇetihāsānām abhiprāyaḥ; anyathā brāhmaṇatva-siddhir nāstī eva. sac-cid-ānandamātmānam, advītyam, brahma bhāvayet, ātmānam, advītyam, brahma bhāvayed ity upaniṣad.

9. Then, who, verily is the Brāhmaṇa? He who, after directly perceiving, like the amalaka fruit in the palm of one's hand, the Self, without a second, devoid of distinctions of birth, attribute and action, devoid of all faults such as the six infirmities, and the six states, of the form of truth, wisdom, bliss and eternity, that is by itself, devoid of determinations, the basis of endless determinations, who functions as the indwelling spirit of all beings, who pervades the interior and the exterior of all like ether, of the nature of bliss, indivisible, immeasurable, realisable only through one's experience and who manifests himself directly (as one's self), and through the fulfilment of his nature, becomes rid of the faults of desire, attachment, etc., and endowed with qualities of tranquillity, etc., rid of the states of being, spite, greed, expectation, bewilderment, etc., with his mind unaffected by ostentation, self-sense and the like, he lives. He alone who is possessed of these qualities is the Brāhmaṇa. This is the view of the Vedic texts and tradition, ancient lore and history. The accomplishment of the state of the Brāhmaṇa is otherwise impossible. Meditate on Brahman, the Self who is being, consciousness and bliss, without a second; meditate on Brahman, the Self who is being, consciousness and bliss without a second. This is the Upaniṣad.

six infirmities: old age, death, sorrow, delusion, hunger and thirst.

six states: birth, being, growth, change, waning and perishing.

Many texts declare that the determining factor of caste is character and conduct and not birth.

śṛṇu yakṣa kulaṃ tāta na svādhyāyo na ca śrutam kāraṇam vā dvijatve ca vṛttam eva na saṃśayaḥ.

Listen about caste, Yakṣa dear, not study, not learning is the cause of rebornness. Conduct is the basis, there is no doubt about it. M.B. Aranya-parva 312. 106.

satyam, dānam, kṣamā, śīlam anṛśaṃsyam tapo ghrṇā dṛśyante yatra nāgendra sa brāhmaṇa iti smṛtiḥ.

O King of serpents, he in whom are manifest truthfulness, charity, forbearance, good conduct, non-injury, austerity and compassion is a Brāhmaṇa according to the sacred tradition.

yatra itaḥ lakṣyate sarpa vṛttam sa brāhmaṇas smṛtaḥ, yatraitan na bhavet sarvaṃ tam śūdraṃ iti nirdiśet.

O serpent he in whom this conduct is manifest is a Brāhmaṇa, he in whom this is absent treat all such as Śūdra. M.B. Aranya-parva 180. 20, 27. The gods consider him a Brāhmaṇa (a knower of Brahman who has no desires, who undertakes no work, who does not salute or praise anybody, whose work has been exhausted but who himself is unchanged).

nirāśiṣam anārambham nirnamaskāram astutim akṣīṇam kṣīṇakarmāṇam tam devā brāhmaṇam viduḥ.

M.B. XII. 269. 34.

See Dhammapada, Chapter XXVI.

Sanatsujāta defines a Brāhmaṇa as one who is devoted to truth: sa eva satyānnāpāti sa jñeyo brahmaṇas tvayā.

It is valuable to recall the teaching of this Upaniṣad which repudiates the system that consecrates inequalities and hardens contingent differences into inviolable divisions.

APPENDIX A

FOREWORD

By RABINDRANATH TAGORE

to The Philosophy of the Upaniṣads

NOT being a scholar or a student of philosophy, I do not feel justified in writing a critical appreciation of a book dealing with the philosophy of the Upaniṣads. What I venture to do is to express my satisfaction at the fact that my friend, Professor Radhakrishnan, has undertaken to explain the spirit of the Upaniṣads to English readers.

It is not enough that one should know the meaning of the words and the grammar of the Sanskrit texts in order to realize the deeper significance of the utterances that have come to us across centuries of vast changes, both of the inner as well as the external conditions of life. Once the language in which these were written was living, and therefore the words contained in them had their full context in the life of the people of that period, who spoke them. Divested of that vital atmosphere, a large part of the language of these great texts offers to us merely its philological structure and not life's subtle gesture which can express through suggestion all that is ineffable.

Suggestion can neither have fixed rules of grammar nor the rigid definition of the lexicon so easily available to the scholar. Suggestion has its unanalysable code which finds its depth of explanation in the living hearts of the people who use it. Code words philologically treated appear childish, and one must know that all those experiences which are not realized through the path of reason, but immediately through an inner vision, must use some kind of code word for their expression. All poetry is full of such words, and therefore poems of one language can never be properly translated into other languages, nay, not even re-spoken in the same language.

For an illustration let me refer to that stanza of Keats' 'Ode to a Nightingale,' which ends with the following lines:—

The same that oft-times hath Charmed magic casements, opening on the foam
Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn.

All these words have their synonyms in our Bengali language. But if through their help I try to understand these lines or express the idea contained in them, the result would be contemptible. Should I suffer from a sense of race superiority in our own people, and have a low opinion of English literature, I could do nothing better to support my case than literally to translate or to paraphrase in our own tongue all the best poems written in English.

Unfortunately, the Upaniṣads have met with such treatment in some parts of the West, and the result is typified disastrously in a book like Gough's Philosophy of the Upaniṣads. My experience of philosophical writings being extremely meagre, I may be wrong when I say that this is the only philosophical discussion about the Upaniṣads in English, but, at any rate, the lack of sympathy and respect displayed in it for some of the most sacred words that have ever issued from the human mind, is amazing.

Though many of the symbolical expressions used in the Upaniṣads can hardly be understood to-day, or are sure to be wrongly interpreted, yet the messages contained in these, like some eternal source of light, still illumine and vitalize the religious mind of India. They are not associated with any particular religion, but they have the breadth of a universal soil that can supply with living sap all religions which have any spiritual ideal hidden at their core, or apparent in their fruit and foliage. Religions, which have their different standpoints, each claim them for their own support.

This has been possible because the Upaniṣads are based not upon theological reasoning, but on experience of spiritual life. And life is not dogmatic; in it opposing forces are reconciled—ideas of non-dualism and dualism, the infinite and the finite, do not exclude each other. Moreover the Upaniṣads do not represent the spiritual experience of any one great individual, but of a great age of enlightenment which has a complex and collective manifestation, like that of the starry world. Different creeds may find their sustenance from them, but can never set sectarian boundaries round them; generations of men in our country, no mere students of philosophy, but seekers of life's fulfilment, may make living use of the texts, but can never exhaust them of their freshness of meaning.

For such men the Upaniṣad-ideas are not wholly abstract, like those belonging to the region of pure logic. They are concrete, like all truths realized through life. The idea of Brahma when judged from the view-point of intellect is an abstraction, but it is concretely real for those who have the direct vision to see it. Therefore the consciousness of the reality of Brahma has boldly been described to be as real as the consciousness of an amlaka fruit held in one's palm. And the Upaniṣad says:—

yato vāco nivartante aprāpya manasā saha ānandam brahmaṇo vidvān na bibhēti kadācana.

From Him come back baffled both words and mind. But he who realizes the joy of Brahma is free from fear.

Cannot the same thing be said about light itself to men who may by some mischance live all through their life in an underground world cut off from the sun's rays? They must know that words can never describe to them what light is, and mind, through its reasoning faculty, can never even understand how one must have a direct vision to realize it intimately and be glad and free from fear.

We often hear the complaint that the Brahma of the Upaniṣads is described to us mostly as a bundle of negations. Are we not driven to take the same course ourselves when a blind man asks for a description of light? Have we not to say in such a case that light has neither sound, nor taste, nor form, nor weight, nor resistance, nor can it be known through any process of analysis? Of course it can be seen; but what is the use of saying this to one who has no eyes? He may take that statement on trust without understanding in the least what it means, or may altogether disbelieve it, even suspecting in us some abnormality.

Does the truth of the fact that a blind man has missed the perfect development of what should be normal about his eyesight depend for its proof upon the fact that a larger number of men are not blind? The very first creature which suddenly groped into the possession of its eyesight had the right to assert that light was a reality. In the human world there may be very few who have their spiritual eyes open, but, in spite of the numerical preponderance of those who cannot see, their want of vision must not be cited as an evidence of the negation of light.

In the Upaniṣads we find the note of certainty about the spiritual meaning of existence. In the very paradoxical nature of the assertion that we can never know Brahma, but can realize Him, there lies the strength of conviction that comes from personal experience. They aver that through our joy we know the reality that is infinite, for the test by which reality is apprehended is joy. Therefore in the Upaniṣads satyam and ānandam are one. Does not this idea harmonize with our everyday experience?

The self of mine that limits my truth within myself confines me to a narrow idea of my own personality. When through some great experience I transcend this boundary I find joy. The negative fact of the vanishing of the fences of self has nothing in itself that is delightful. But my joy proves that the disappearance of self brings me into touch with a great positive truth whose nature is infinitude. My love makes me understand that I gain a great truth when I realize myself in others, and therefore I am glad. This has been thus expressed in the Īsopaniṣad:—

sarvabhūteṣu cātmānam tato na vijugupsate.*

He who sees all creatures in himself, and himself in all creatures, no longer remains concealed.

His Truth is revealed in him when it comprehends Truth in others. And we know that in such a case we are ready for the utmost self-sacrifice through abundance of love.

It has been said by some that the element of personality has altogether been ignored in the Brahma of the Upaniṣads, and thus our own personality, according to them, finds no response in the Infinite Truth. But then, what is the meaning of the exclamation: 'Vedūhametam puruṣam mahāntam.' I have known him who is the Supreme Person. Did not the sage who pronounced it at the same time proclaim that we are all amṛtasya putrāḥ, the sons of the Immortal?

Elsewhere it has been declared: tam vedyam puruṣam veda yathā ma vo mṛtyuḥ parivyathāḥ. Know him, the Person who only is to be known, so that death may not grieve thee. The meaning is obvious. We are afraid of death, because we are afraid of the absolute cessation of our personality. Therefore, if we realize the Person as the ultimate reality which we know in everything that we know, we find our own personality in the bosom of the eternal.

There are numerous verses in the Upaniṣads which speak of immortality. I quote one of these:—

eṣa devo viśvakarmā mahātmā sadā janānām hṛdaye sammivṛṣṭaḥ hṛdā manīṣā manasābhīkṣpto ya etad vidur amṛtās te bhavanti.

This is the God who is the world-worker, the supreme soul, who always dwells in the heart of all men, those who know him through their mind, and the heart that is full of the certainty of knowledge, become immortal.

To realize with the heart and mind the divine being who dwells within us is to be assured of everlasting life. It is mahātma, the great reality of the inner being, which is viśvakarmā, the world-worker, whose manifestation is in the outer work occupying all time and space.

Our own personality also consists of an inner truth which expresses itself in outer movements. When we realize, not merely through our intellect, but through our heart strong with the strength of its wisdom, that Mahātmā, the Infinite Person, dwells in the Person which is in me, we cross over the region of death. Death only concerns our limited self; when the Person in us is realized in the Supreme Person, then the limits of our self lose for us their finality.

The question necessarily arises, what is the significance of this self of ours? Is it nothing but an absolute bondage for us?

If in our language the sentences were merely for expressing grammatical rules, then the using of such a language would be a slavery to fruitless pedantry. But, because language has for its ultimate object the expression of ideas, our mind gains its freedom through it, and the bondage of grammar itself is a help towards this freedom.

If this world were ruled only by some law of forces, then it would certainly have hurt our mind at every step and there would be nothing that could give us joy for its own sake. But the Upaniṣad says that from ānandam, from an inner spirit of Bliss, have come out all things, and by it they are maintained. Therefore, in spite of contradictions, we have our joy in life, we have experiences that carry their final value for us.

It has been said that the Infinite Reality finds its revelation in ānanda-rūpam amṛtam, in the deathless form of joy. The supreme end of our personality also is to express itself in its creations. But works done through the compulsion of necessity, or some passion that blinds us and drags us on with its impetus, are fetters for our soul; they do not express the wealth of the infinite in us, but merely our want or our weakness.

Our soul has its ānandam, its consciousness of the infinite, which is blissful. This seeks its expression in limits which, when they assume the harmony of forms and the balance of movements, constantly indicate the limitless. Such expression is freedom, freedom from the barrier of obscurity. Such a medium of limits we have in our self which is our medium of expression. It is for us to develop this into ānanda-rūpam amṛtam, an embodiment of deathless joy, and only then the infinite in us can no longer remain obscured.

This self of ours can also be moulded to give expression to the personality of a business man, or a fighting man, or a working man, but in these it does not reveal our supreme reality, and therefore we remain shut up in a prison of our own construction. Self finds its ānanda-rūpam, which is its freedom in revelation, when it reveals a truth that transcends self, like a lamp revealing light which goes far beyond its material limits, proclaiming its kinship with the sun. When our self is illuminated with the light of love, then the negative aspect of its separateness with others loses its finality, and then our relationship with others is no longer that of competition and conflict, but of sympathy and co-operation.

I feel strongly that this, for us, is the teaching of the Upaniṣads, and that this teaching is very much needed in the present age for those who boast of the freedom enjoyed by their nations, using that freedom for building up a dark world of spiritual blindness, where the passions of greed and hatred are allowed to roam unchecked, having for their allies deceitful diplomacy and a widespread propaganda of falsehood, where the soul remains caged and the self battens upon the decaying flesh of its victims.

APPENDIX B

AN INTRODUCTION

By EDMOND HOLMES

to The Philosophy of the Upaniṣads

PROFESSOR RADHAKRISHNAN'S work on Indian Philosophy, the first volume of which has recently appeared, meets a want which has long been felt. The Western mind finds a difficulty in placing itself at what I may call the dominant standpoint of Indian thought, a difficulty which is the outcome of centuries of divergent tradition, and which therefore opposes a formidable obstacle to whatever attempt may be made by Western scholarship and criticism to interpret the speculative philosophy of India. If we of the West are to enter with some measure of sympathy and understanding into the ideas which dominate, and have long dominated, the Indian mind, India herself must expound them to us. Our interpreter must be an Indian critic who combines the acuteness and originality of the thinker with the learning and caution of the scholar, and who has also made such a study of Western thought and Western letters as will enable him to meet his readers on common ground. If, in addition to these qualifications, he can speak to us in a Western language, he will be the ideal exponent of that mysterious philosophy which is known to most of us more by hearsay than by actual acquaintance, and which, so far as we have any knowledge of it, alternately fascinates and repels us.

All these requirements are answered by Professor Radhakrishnan. A clear and deep thinker, an acute critic and an erudite scholar, he is admirably qualified for the task which he has set himself of expounding to a 'lay' audience the main movements of Indian thought. His knowledge of Western thought and letters makes it easy for him to get into touch with a Western audience; and for the latter purpose he has the further qualification, which he shares with other cultured Hindus, of being a master of the English language and an accomplished writer of English prose.

But the first volume of Indian Philosophy contains over 700 closely printed pages, and costs a guinea; and it is not every one, even of those who are interested in Indian thought, who can afford to devote so much time to serious study, while the price, though relatively most reasonable, is beyond the means of many readers. That being so, it is good to know that Professor Radhakrishnan and his publisher have decided to bring out the section on The Philosophy of the Upaniṣads as a separate volume and at a modest price.

For what is quintessential in Indian philosophy is its spiritual idealism; and the quintessence of its spiritual idealism is in the Upaniṣads. The thinkers of India in all ages have turned to the Upaniṣads as to the fountain-head of India's speculative thought. 'They are the foundations,' says Professor Radhakrishnan, 'on which most of the later philosophies and religions of India rest. . . . Later systems of philosophy display an almost pathetic anxiety to accommodate their doctrines to the views of the Upaniṣads, even if they cannot father them all on them. Every revival of idealism in India has traced its ancestry to the teaching of the Upaniṣads.' 'There is no important form of Hindu thought,' says an English exponent of Indian philosophy, 'heterodox Buddhism included, which is not rooted in the Upaniṣads.'¹ It is to the Upaniṣads, then, that the Western student must turn for illumination, who wishes to form a true idea of the general trend of Indian thought, but has neither time nor inclination to make a close study of its various systems. And if he is to find the clue to the teaching of the Upaniṣads he cannot do better than study it under the guidance of Professor Radhakrishnan.

It is true that treatises on that philosophy have been written by Western scholars. But the Western mind, as has been already suggested, is as a rule debarred by the prejudices in which it has been cradled from entering with sympathetic insight into ideas which belong to another world and another age. Not only does it tend to survey those ideas, and the problems in which they centre, from standpoints which are distinctively Western, but it sometimes goes so far as to assume that the Western is the only standpoint which is compatible with mental sanity. Can we wonder, then, that when it criticizes the speculative thought of Ancient India, its adverse judgment is apt to resolve itself into fundamental misunderstanding, and even its sympathy is sometimes misplaced?

In Gough's Philosophy of the Upaniṣads we have a contemptuously hostile criticism of the ideas which dominate that philosophy, based on obstinate misunderstanding of the Indian point of view—misunderstanding so complete that our author makes nonsense of what he criticizes before he has begun to study it. In Deussen's work on the same subject—a work of close thought and profound learning which deservedly commands respect—we have a singular combination of enthusiastic appreciation with complete misunderstanding on at least one vital point. Speaking of the central conception of the Upaniṣads, that of the ideal identity of God and the soul, Gough says, 'this empty intellectual conception, void of spirituality, is the highest form that the Indian mind is capable of.' Comment on this jugement saugrenu is needless. Speaking of the same conception, Deussen says, 'it will be found to possess a significance reaching far beyond the Upaniṣads, their time and country; nay, we claim for it an inestimable value for the whole race of mankind . . . one thing we may assert with confidence—whatever new and unwonted paths the philosophy of the future may strike out, this principle will remain permanently unshaken, and from it no deviation can take place.' This is high praise. But when our author goes on to argue that the universe is pure illusion, and claims that this is the fundamental view of the Upaniṣads, he shows, as Professor Radhakrishnan has fully demonstrated, that he has not grasped the true inwardness of the conception which he honours so highly.

With these examples of the aberration of Western criticism before us, we shall perhaps think it desirable to turn for instruction and guidance to the exposition of the Upaniṣads which Professor Radhakrishnan, an Indian thinker, scholar and critic, has given us. If we do so, we shall not be disappointed. As the inheritor of a great philosophical tradition, into which he was born rather than indoctrinated, Professor Radhakrishnan has an advantage over the Western student of Indian philosophy, which no weight of learning and no degree of metaphysical acumen can counterbalance, and of which he has made full use. His study of the Upaniṣads—if a Western reader may presume to say so—is worthy of its theme.

The Upaniṣads are the highest and purest expression of the speculative thought of India. They embody the meditations on great matters of a succession of seers who lived between 1000 and 300 B.C. In them, says Professor J. S. Mackenzie, 'we have the earliest attempt at a constructive theory of the cosmos, and certainly one of the most interesting and remarkable.'

What do the Upaniṣads teach us? Its authors did not all think alike; but, taking their meditations as a whole, we may say that they are dominated by one paramount conception, that of the ideal oneness of the soul of man with the soul of the universe. The Sanskrit word for the soul of man is Ātman, for the soul of the universe Brahman. 'God's dwelling place,' says Professor Radhakrishnan in his exposition of the philosophy of the Upaniṣads, 'is the heart of man. The inner immortal self and the great cosmic power are one and the same. Brahman is the Ātman, and the Ātman is the Brahman. The one supreme power through which all things have been brought into being is one with the inmost self in each man's heart.' What is real in each of us is his self or soul. What is real in the universe is its self or soul, in virtue of which its All is One, and the name for which in our language is God. And the individual soul is one, potentially and ideally, with the divine or universal soul. In the words of one of the Upaniṣads: 'He who is the Brahman in man and who is that in the sun, these are one.'

The significance of this conception is more than metaphysical. There is a practical side to it which its exponents are apt to ignore. The unity of the all-pervading life, in and through its own essential spirituality—the unity of the trinity of God and Nature and Man—is, from man's point of view, an ideal to be realized rather than an accomplished fact. If this is so, if oneness with the real, the universal, the divine self, is the ideal end of man's being, it stands to reason that self-realization, the finding of the real self, is the highest task which man can set himself. In the Upaniṣads themselves the ethical implications of their central conception were not fully worked out. To do so, to elaborate the general ideal of self-realization into a comprehensive scheme of life, was the work of the great teacher whom we call Buddha.

This statement may seem to savour of paradox. In the West the idea is still prevalent that Buddha broke away completely from the spiritual idealism of the Upaniṣads, that he denied God, denied the soul, and held out to his followers the prospect of annihilation as the final reward of a righteous life. This singular misconception, which is not entirely confined to the West, is due to Buddha's agnostic silence having been mistaken for comprehensive denial. It is time that this mistake was corrected. It is only by affiliating the ethics of Buddhism to the metaphysics of the Upaniṣads that we can pass behind the silence of Buddha and get into touch with the philosophical ideas which ruled his mind, ideas which were not the less real or effective because he deliberately held them in reserve. This has long been my own conviction; and now I am confirmed in it by finding that it is shared by Professor Radhakrishnan, who sets forth the relation of Buddhism to the philosophy of the Upaniṣads in the following words: 'The only metaphysics that can justify Buddha's ethical discipline is the metaphysics underlying the Upaniṣads. . . . Buddhism helped to democratize the philosophy of the Upaniṣads, which was till then confined to a select few. The process demanded that the deep philosophical truths which cannot be made clear to the masses of men should for practical purposes be ignored. It was Buddha's mission to accept the idealism of the Upaniṣads at its best and make it available for the daily needs of mankind. Historical Buddhism means the spread of the Upaniṣad doctrines among the people. It thus helped to create a heritage which is living to the present day.'

Given that oneness with his own real self, which is also the soul of Nature and the spirit of God, union with the ultimate is the ideal end of man's being; the question arises: How is that end to be achieved? In India, the land of psychological experiments, many ways to it were tried and are still being tried. There was the way of jñāna, or intense mental concentration. There was the way of bhakti, or passionate love and devotion. There was the way of Yoga, or severe and systematic self-discipline. These ways and the like of these might be available for exceptionally gifted persons. They were not available, as Buddha saw clearly, for the rank and file of mankind. It was for the rank and file of mankind, it was for the plain average man, that Buddha devised his scheme of conduct. He saw that in one's everyday life, among one's fellow men, there were ample opportunities for the higher desires to assert themselves as higher, and for the lower desires to be placed under due control. There were ample opportunities, in other words, for the path of self-mastery and self-transcendence, the path of emancipation from the false self and of affirmation of the true self, to be followed from day to day, from year to year, and even—for Buddha, like the seers of the Upaniṣads, took the reality of re-birth for granted—from life to life. He who walked in that path had set his face towards the goal of his own perfection, and, in doing so, had, unknown to himself, accepted the philosophy of the Upaniṣads as the ruling principle of his life.

If this interpretation of the life-work of Buddha is correct, if it was his mission to make the dominant idea of the Upaniṣads available for the daily needs of ordinary men, it is impossible to assign limits to the influence which that philosophy has had and is capable of having in human affairs in general and in the moral life of man in particular. The metaphysics of the Upaniṣads, when translated into the ethics of self-realization, provided and still provides for a spiritual need which has been felt in divers ages and which was never more urgent than it is to-day. For it is to-day, when supernatural religion is losing its hold on us, that the secret desire of the heart for the support and guidance which the religion of nature can alone afford, is making itself felt as it has never been felt before. And if the religion of nature is permanently to satisfy our deeper needs, it must take the form of devotion to the natural end of man's being, the end which the seers of the Upaniṣads discerned and set before us, the end of oneness with that divine or universal self which is at once the soul of all things and the true being of each individual man. In other words, it is as the gospel of spiritual evolution that the religion of nature must make its appeal to our semi-pagan world. It was the gospel of spiritual evolution which Buddha, true to the spirit of the Upaniṣads, preached 2,500 years ago,* and it is for a re-presentation of the same gospel, in the spirit of the same philosophy, that the world is waiting now.

* It was the gospel of spiritual evolution which Christ preached in a later age, to a different audience and through the medium of other forms of thought. Such at least is my earnest conviction. Of the two pivotal sayings, 'I and my Father are one,' and 'Be ye perfect even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect,' the former falls into line with the spiritual idealism of the Upaniṣads, the latter into line with the ethical idealism of Buddha. The notation, as might be expected, is different: but the idea and the ideal are the same.
